The claims are obvious. He died. It was witnessed by many, assured by the Roman soldier with the spear, and verified by Pilate and the centurian. He rose from the dead. The actual event is not described (and surely, one creating a myth would have tried), but over 500 people saw and talked with the Resurrected Christ. Fearful and cowardly disciples were transformed into dynamic leaders who withstood persecution and eventually suffered martyrs' deaths. (They certainly had nothing to gain by endorsing what some would call a hoax.)

If it happened, it is an event of great importance second to none in all of history. Death has been conquered. The just penalty for a man's moral guilt has been paid and is now available to anyone coming to Christ on His terms. An all powerful God has acted in time-space history.

If it didn't happen, according to Paul, the power and meaning in Christianity is gone. Even the ethical teachings of Christ and the apostles are a farce, for they came from men who were either fantastic liars, deranged lunatics or deluded fools. This would make Christianity significant only as a museum piece.

All the evidence indicates that the Resurrection happened. (For a lawyer's approach see Christianity: The Witness of History. J. N. D. Anderson. Tyndale Press, and Who Moved the Stone? Frank Morison. Faber and Faber Limited.) Most of the world is commemorating this event this weekend, some by worship and some by play.

Millions of people over hundreds of years have experienced this life, power and peace of Christ because he lives in their lives. The key has been and still is a personal acceptance of Christ as Lord and Saviour in the individual's life. The age old question remains, what are you going to do with the living Christ?

By Bob Eickelberg

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 Maryville College Maryville, Tennessee 37801

JOHN POWELL, Editor
BOB EICKELBERG, Business Manager
NANCY RANKIN, Managing Editor
DR. CAROLYN BLAIR, Faculty Adviser

THE HIGHLAND ECHO is published by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

Red Cross stations bloodmobile at MC

The World Concerns Committee of the ACC has been working since last fall to bring the American Red Cross Bloodmobile to the campus. On Tuesday, April 25, their dream will be realized. The Asheville regional office will operate a bloodmobile unit in the Health, Physical Education Building from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. At a recent meeting held in the Little Chapel representatives from the various dorms made a decision to strive for 200 blood donor volunteers. Ed Bush, Linna Schotter, and John Bleazy (students who are med-technicians) will work with Mrs. Betty Reuter, Maryville Red Cross nurse, in making arrangements for the day.

The theme for the program is "Blood Is Life - Pass It On." Contact persons who have added information and pledge cards are:

Jane Beth Markley, Dorm I; Laurie Miller, Davis; Morna McEver, Lloyd; Ward Brooks, Carnegie; Ron Salage, Memorial; Dave Blough, Dorm III; Ellen Myers, Town Students; Jeff Hamilton, Faculty, staff, administration.

Letters to the Editor

UN flag petition questioned

Dear Editor:

A disheartening case of myopic values was displayed in the March 3 issue of the "Echo." I am speaking of the proposed U.N. flag petition to have the United Nations flag planted on the moon during the next U.S. manned lunar landing.

Might it not be more appropriate if the near-sighted co-sponsors (the World Federalist Youth and the Concerns Committee on Campus) sponsored a petition for the reallocation of NASA "space-waste" funds to benefit the indigent peoples of the United States and the world?? How about a realistic appraisal of national and worldwide priorities?!? There is no need for this petition of tokenism in a world as it is today.

Imploringly,
Shep Spear

Anonymous letter welcomed

Dear Editor:

This last week the Register's Office received an anonymous thank you note. It stated: "Thank you so much for your kindness yesterday in making schedule changes. I know it was a really rough day but you helped so many of us so much."

Usually, anonymous letters are not always welcome. But this one was an exception.

Most people never bother to pause in their daily routine to reflect on other people's feelings. At least one person did. That's a nice change.

Jacob Koss

The HIGHLAND ECHO invites readers' responses in the Letters to the Editor column. To be published, letters must be placed in Box 2820 by 12:00, Monday, of week of publication. All letters should be typed and must be signed.

My Back Pages

Disney world a la USA

BY TOM COE
New Products Editor

The Mickey Mouse imperative: if Walt Disney can do it, then do it! I know what the end of the world will be like: I have been to the Atlanta Pop Festival (that is, it might come matter of nowhere to go the john). But Walt Disney says differently, and a glorious chromium dream it is at that, with Tomorrowland looking like the back-drop for A Clockwork Orange. Walt Disney World gives one a vision of what the world could be like, what the world could be if affluence and planning ran it.

There are two different, distinct impressions that come out of the place. The first is fantasy and wonder; it is a magic sort of place and anyone who ever wanted to go to Disneyland owes it to their childhood to see Disney World, a place where the unreal and unexpected become commonplace.

The second impression grows from the overwhelming sense one gets that this is the way the world really could be, dancing mickeys and goofys in the streets. Life could be fun, less serious, and most of all, more efficiently handled.

You can't help but marvel over the place as it is so well-run and so clean. It has to be one of the cleanest public attractions in the world — even to the point where one guy's job is simply to follow the horse-drawn trolleys around sweeping up you-guessed-it.

But beneath this sterile, optimistic exterior is something more — something less than the really real. Audio-animitronics is the best example. These are Disney's now famous "robots" that are so close to life (remember how Abe Lincoln was such a hit at the New York World's Fair?)

The most precious comment of all came for me at the "Flight to the Moon" in Tomorrowland. As one of these sophisticated machines — in the form of mission control director — explained what he and the other "scientists" were doing, a woman far in the back of the crowd, after a full five minutes, exclained quite clearly, "Why . . . why, they're all dummies!"

So it goes. The technocrats of mission control have themselves become little miracles of "science." Oh, the philosophical possibilities are tremendous (but so are the technological ones).

Of course, all this is a bit like having bees live inside your head. When asked about the future, the Fireside Theatre answered, "The future? ... Uh ... well, I think it has a great future ... it's electric." Certainly, Walt Disney World is probably saying something to us — as Americans, children of technology and what not.

It is probably also stating something for us — as to our dreams, goals, and values. The Magic Kingdom is deeply rooted not only in our technical future but in our mythical past; a keener eye than mine will surely find the history of mankind somewhere between Fantasyland and Adventureland, between the steel and concrete "tree" of Swiss Family Robinson and holigram "ghosts" of the Haunted Mansion.

Walt Disney World deserves more than just a visit; it deserves some thought and reflection. I suggest two things as a matter of preparation; A. Listen to "I think we're all Bozos on this Bus" by the Fireside Theatre — the parallels are amazing and B. Go prepared (if you know what I mean).

Poetry

Ghostly Realms

I wander now in ghostly realms—worlds where darkness molds the silence striving with the wind to etch charcoal prints of roses gripped in death.
Treeless worlds—
  where darkness guards its sway saddled on the hoofless wind, directing slate-gray clouds
In senseless charge across the sky.
Birthless worlds—where laughter hides its face behind a frown or tear
Trapped in horrid scenes
From dreams
  I've never dared to dream.

Notes list ACC actions

The All-College Council meeting on March 1 opened with a report from Dr. Willey on the instructional program. Dr. Willey stated that the science curriculum had been changed extensively in the framework of the individualized major. There will be six new course offerings which may also serve as elective for those in unrelated majors.

Dr. Willey also said the committee discussed the faculty course evaluations and concluded that they should be continued. The speech-theatre curriculum also has some changes, notably the offering of a course in the history of the theatre in the 300's division. The '72-'73 calendar was another of the committee's accomplishments. Comprehensive exams will be given on October 17-18 and April 17-18.

The resurrection of English proficiency tests was also considered. It has been decided that they will be given in the sophomore year and again in the junior year, beginning the spring term of '72-'73. These tests are a prerequisite for beginning Independent Studies and for graduation.

The announcement of the committee's curriculum touched off a serious debate in the ACC. Mr. Brahams questioned whether such an extensive change should be undertaken with out the Council being informed before the fact. There was discussion about the true function of the ACC. Several members said they understood the function of the committees to be research. studv and recommendations with the ACC as the legislative body. This led to a question what the committees were to bring before the council for approval. After extensive discussion of the responsibilities of the committees to the council and vice versa, it was decided that "policy" change matters are to be brought before the council and it is the duty of the commitee to decide what constitutes a change of policy.

Reporting on the Social recreational cultural committee, Dean Elia said the coed living arrangements in Dorm III are working out well and probably will be continued next year.

Dr. Copeland consulted with the council about appropriation requests to the Board. In view of the fire, this year's budget will not be adequate and measures must be taken rapidly.

Doug Chase presented the council with a sheet evaluating the efficacy of the January Meetings committee and the meetings themselves. This sheet included some suggestions for improvement, notably the selection of the committee in the spring. It was decided that all committees should be selected at that time to allow them more time to coordinate their projects.

At this time, Doug resigned as co-chairman of the committee and suggested Louis McNair take over the responsibility. Louis will be chairman at least until a new committee is selected. Doug was commended for his work on the committee and the meeting was adjourned.

. . . Heard

Choir tour 'funnies' revealed

By Wiley Rutledge

Well, here we are again, on another choir tour. We're still watching Dr. Harter's hands, while Quarles plays yo-yo. Maybe the U-Haul will get us to Lakeland, but then Quarles is driving — so who knows? H.F. (one for the horse) Steele is waiting for a tire back in Ocala — maybe our luggage will make it.

Wiley will sing us a song as soon as he gets his voice back. Jim better get out of the aisle so Kay can go potty. Meanwhile the other Kay can't be separated from her football (is there a romance here)? One of these days we'll find the beach — if Wayne can get us to the church.

Rhonda and Lana miss their honeys — but that's all right, Howard has more than he can handle. What? Not another tire — well let's break out the football. We'll do the concert, anyway — and remember, girls — chests up!

Seriously, the choir tour was a lot of fun, and we all had a good time. We thank all those who came out and supported us while we were on tour.

Theatre tackles 'Cherry Orchard'

By Kathy Meier

Rehearsals for 'The Cherry Orchard', the next theater production, began last Thursday evening. Readings for the cast were concluded Wednesday and the results are as follows: Wayne Dansbury as Yasha, Tom Williamson as Feers, Sharon Murphy as Dunyasha, Paul Hollingsworth as Semyon, Nancy McCleary as Charlotta, Paul Miggot as Pischihk, Phil Gibson as Pyotr Sevgeyevich, Steve Ayres as Yermolay Alexeyevich, Mark Staub as Leonid Andreyvich, Sue Dress as Anya, Ruth Ann Hill as Varya, and Dianne Wood as Lyubor Andreyevna. Steve Maggio, Bob Gillespie, and Terry Noack are included.

Chekhov's last play has been characterized as very difficult to produce due to the enormus amount of detail and because there are no unimportant character. The performance is set for May 12 and 13.

Rep. Duncan visits Tremont

John Duncan, Congressman from the Knoxville District, visited the Maryville College Environmental Education Center at Tremont and presented the Center with an American flag last Friday.

Congressman Duncan said he brought the flag that had flown over the capitol in Washington. Andy Miles accepted the flag for the Center.

Hysterium (Tom Williamson) plays possum while the rest of the 'Forum' cast continues action.

A review

'Forum' viewed as success

By Kathy Meier

The M.C. production of A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum was certainly a success with the Maryville audience. For those of us who remember David Nighbert's marvelous performance in Man of La Mancha, his appearance in Forum was the return of a great favorite.

Other familiars on the stage were Howard M. Welsh and Thomas Williamson. Both surpassed any of their previous performances in Forum. The wealth of talent displayed by both Tom and Howard in the comic roles was illuminated by the very competent way they handled the musical numbers. Steve Ayres also gave a very creditable performance both in his acting and singing.

Kay Hurlbert presented a good, funny interpretation of her role as domineering wife and mother. Her musical numbers, although intentionally off-key as part of the characterization, were not as impressive as her solo in the Messiah. One could say the same for Tina Bergner.

One could not conclude without mentioning Sean Sullivan, whose acting was hilarious, Paul Hollingsworth, who was perfect, the Courtesana, who did a good job of being voluptuous, and the Proteans, who did a good job of being everything.

Mr. Stallings and the orchestra who worked with the actors in very difficult staging conditions are to be commended.

Mark Mertz and Melissa Collins can celebrate the fact that Forum was the funniest thing anybody has seen at M.C. in a long time.

Board plans for Pearsons

The Board of Directors of Maryville College met in special session Monday, March 5, to discuss courses of action to take in restoring facilities lost in the Pearsons Hall fire February 13.

It was decided that the first priority is restoration of dining facilities by the beginning of the fall 1972 term either by rebuilding Pearsons or by erecting new facilities. Hwever, the final decision will depend in great measure on the insurance settlement.

Two Maryville College board members have contributed $100,000 each to help meet the financial need caused by the recent fire.

The two members responded immediately but asked that the gifts be received anonymously.

Commenting on the gifts, President Joseph J. Copeland said, "These two gifts of $100,000 each from board members gives us confidence that we can meet facility needs and achieve the $750,000 objective."

The $750,000 is part of a three-year financial emphasis of $5,900,000.

The 36-member board is chaired by Dr. James N. Proffitt, Maryville surgeon; vice chairman is Dr. Herman E. Spivey, noted educator now at the University of Florida

The three main panels of the board are chaired by Dr. Spivey, R. Arnold Kramer, Knoxville attorney, and Dr. John Magill of Cleveland, Ohio.

Hero (Steve Ayres) and his slave-companion (Dave Nighbert) scheme to win Hero a lover.

Remedial reading course begins

Maryville College is offering a new non-credit remedial reading course for the spring term.

The major purpose of the program is to improve both rate and comprehension of reading.

According to Dr. Malcolm Willey, Academic Executive Officer, many college students are achieving far below their potential academic level because they need to develop efficient reading habits.

Both rate of reading and comprehension of materials can be greatly improved by the program.

The reading rate can be increased from 50 to 100 percent, and the level of comprehension can be improved 25 percent or more.

The course will be taught by Dr. David H. Briggs, a former member of the Maryville faculty who specialized in this field.

SPORTS

Track men take off

Today, weather permitting, the Scots' track team will open their 1972 season in a home meet against Milligan.

Although practice has been hampered by bad weather, Coach Hasty is looking forward to a successful season. He feels the team has real talent.

Running in the 440 relay this year are Eddie Hill, John Drewery, Bill Campbell and Jeff Hamilton. Buddy Lewis and Jeff Ference will tackle the mile. In the 440 dash, Tom Piper, Campbell and Hamilton are still competing for the top two slots.

Campbell and Hamilton, along with Bill Postler, will also see action in the 220 dash. Running in the 880 will be Brad Towne and John Drewery. Hill and Campbell will participate in the 100 yd. dash.

Chip Pusey and Judson Stone will leap the 120 yd. hurdles this season. Pusey, possibly joined by Campbell, will also attempt the 440 hurdles.

Lewis, as well as John Powell, will run the three-mile event. Piper, Campbell, Postler, and Hamilton will join forces in the mile relay.

In field events, Bill Postler will participate in the broad jump, triple jump, and will be joined by Walt Cross in the high jump. Bob Woolfe and Malcolm Westbrook will be the Scots' pole vaulters.

Mike Haas and Andy Wessing will throw the javelin while Rick Livernoise and Doug Robinson will hurl the shot put. Robinson and Larry McDowell will participate in the discus-throwing event.

The 1972 track schedule for MC is:

March 31	Milligan	Home
April 4	Swanee	Away
April 11	Mars Hill	Away
April 14	Bryan College	Home
April 17	Milligan	Away
April 22	Centre	Away
May 5-6	TIAC Meet	Murfreesboro, Tennessee

All home meets will be held at 3:00 p.m.

Men's Intramurals are busy

The Juniors proved to be too much for the Independents as they eased their way into the finals with decisive 68-38 victory. Despite hitting for a poor percentage, Jay Lentz led everyone with 17 pts., followed for the Juniors by Tom Milligan and Mark Brooks with 13 a piece. Steve Maggio had 14 for the losers, as did Glen Doig, he hitting his season's high. The independents finished at 4-3.

The Olympians sneaked into the final twosome by overcoming the determined Hachers in a battle of the jocks, 67-52. Leon Hart played well, scoring 18 pts., while Calloway added 14 for the winners. For the Hackers David Warwick matched Hart with 18, and David Clinton hit for 12. The Hackers closed out a fine season at 6-1.

The best was saved for last as the Olympians came through with the upset of the year as they avenged an earlier trouncing from the Juniors, 70-60. The 1st qtr. began slowly but action picked up with the Olys grabbing a 16-10 lead on a last second shot by Hart. Drewery was keeping the Juniors in the game at this point, having scored 8.

The 2nd qtr. was very even, though the Jrs. did pull within 4, 32-28 Stephens picked up his 3rd foul and Calloway had 8 for the Olys in this quarter drewery completed a brilliant 1st half with 16 pts.

Spring practice begins April 24

Maryville College head coach Lauren F. Kardatzke has announced that spring practice for the 1972 Scot football team will begin April 24 and end May 20 with the Red and White game.

The Sots return nine offensive starters and five defensive to the team which had its first winning season since 1964 with a 5-4 record. Included are offensive standouts Joe Costner, Randy Minor and Mike Butler.

Costner completed 51 percent of his passes for 1250 yards and 13 TDs last year, earning Little All-American honors. His leading receivers are Randy Minor and Mike Butler who accounted for 11 of Costner's TD aerials between them. Minor hauled in 56 passes for 6 TDs and Butler caught 27, good for 5 TDs.

Butler is also a leading kick return specialist for the Scots. Bob Calloway, also of Maryville, was the leading rusher with 372 yards and a 4.0 average per carry. Bill Corbett and Bill Baggett contributed 307 and 306 yards respectively.

Defensively, the Scots will return leading tackler and Little All-American Dave Clinton to lead the defensive unit. Clinton racked up 110 tackles with 56 assists last season. Dave Warwick, injured early in the season, will return to the team with Clinton at the linbacking spots. Leon Hart, the Scots' leading interceptor in 1971 will lead the secondary. Phil Ziglar will return to the defensive line where he was a standout as a freshman. He was used offensively as well last year.

Tennis team bounces

Hampered by cold, rainy weather, the Scots netmen got off to a slow start against Shorter last Friday, being defeated 6-3.

Shorter, having just returned from a Florida tour, won as the Scots just could not play up to their potential, largely due to brief practices.

Only Dave Kidder and Malcolm Westbrook could score single wins. In doubles, Kidder and Willis came through with a victory.

Although the start was slow, the season looks bright. The Scots' current team is one of the best in recent years.

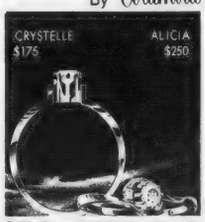
Ward Brooks, a native of Maryville, is on first court, with junior college transfer Tonny Willis on second. Freshman Skip Vessells, of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, holds third court.

Dave Kidder, a sophomore, and Malcolm Westbrook of Winter Park, Florida, hold the next two slots. Freshman Mike Pertz of Geneva, Ohio, rounds out the squad.

Hampden-Sidney to be Scots first opponents

Hampden-Sydney will be the Scots' first opponent when the 1972 football season starts September 16. Hampden-Sydney went undefeated last season fefore losing to Bridgeport in the Knute Rockne Bowl. They have many returning starters and will be good test for the 1972 Scots. Two new additions to the schedule Bridgewater and Franklin. Last year Bridgewater was 6-3 including a 7-6 victory over Randolph-Macon. Franklin was a Scot foe in 1968, dropping a homecoming decision to Maryville. This will be the second meeting between the teams. Maryville closes the season hosting Southwestern, the College Athletic Conference champion.

Judy E. Tipton
fashions for today's lady
10 per cent discount with M.C. I.D.



DAVY CROCKETT STABLES
Announces A New Two Hour Trail
(for experienced riders only)
SPECIAL RATES FOR PARTIES
Large cabin available for Weekend Parties. Transportation furnished from Maryville College for cabin rental or overnight trips.
For information call Townsend 448-6411.

Byrne Drug Company

Drugs and Cosmetics
120 E. Broadway
Free Delivery
982-1461

Parks & Belk
"Your Happy Shopping Store"

Remember the one you love with flowers from
HARTMAN'S FLOWERS
204 Washington
Phone 982-7500

Tipton Jewelers
See our outstanding selection of diamond rings . . .
By Columbia

College students get 10 per cent discount on all purchases with I.D.

★ ★ ★
Denim Tote Bags, Posters, Banners
Keep on Truck'n,
Men are no damn good,
Etc.
W. C. Fields
Toys & Games
Grassmats
Candles
Incense
The list goes on and on, with something new most every day at
POTPOURRI
Downtown Maryville

bank of maryville

½ PRICE WHOPPER®
Our famous broiled beef burger and all the trimmings
IN MARYVILLE
Offer Expires April 7

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 | Maryville College | Maryville, Tennessee | April 7, 1972 | no. 20

The Circus

Stan Jack

A gentle night is spreading all around,
Father is taking us into the city-town
To see the animals and funny circus clowns.
We take our places in seats in the second row,
The ringmaster walks out and says things he doesn't know
Purple and crimson and yellow flames begin to glow.
And the music starts playing,
The calliope groans
And acrobats start flashing into places unknown.
With minds filled with laughter in a sea that overflows-
As we eat cotton candy and watch the circus show.
I find it is late and my mind is wondering at
How the magic magician pulled funny things out his hat.
And how the thin man might put on a little fat.
Though my thoughts are quite happy there's wonderment in me now.
Can the circus last longer than it's meant to, I say but how Can I stop the silly clowns from taking the final bow?
And the music starts playing at the bold Tiger's roar
And freaks rush to places that never were before
With the ringmaster smiling he bids us adieu
Telling all of my friends that the circus is through.
This song was composed upon first seeing the movie, "The Parable."

A review

'Godspell'

By Kathy Meier

Last Monday night the youth group of the First Presbyterian Church of Deerfield, Illinois performed 'Godspell' in the Music Hall. The high school group is chosen yearly from 150 contestants and for the past five years has toured the country during spring vacations. The members raise the funds for the tour themselves, raising over 13,000 this year.

The youth group is directed by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bonhivert. During its first few years of existence, the group sang traditional hymns. For their 1971 tour they performed 'Jesus Christ, Superstar' on the West Coast.

This year they chose 'Godspell' designated as a rock opera and still running on Broadway. Although similar to 'Superstar' in form, this work is based on the Gospel according to Matthew and the characterization is built from the same source. Lacking somewhat in professionalism, the chorus does have some undeniably fine talent. The enthusiams of the group added greatly to their performance which lacked precision in many cases. On the whole it was an enjoyable experience.

Scene from 'Godspell' presentation

ACC elections

A list of the nominees for ACC will be posted in the library, post office and student center. The campus will have an opportunity to see the nominees at CIV, Wednesday, April 12, with the elections taking place on Thursday, April 13.

Election boxes will be located in the P.E. building at lunch and dinner. An election box will also be located in the student center at lunch hour for town students.

Do not cross class lines when you vote. The ACC elections now taking place are for positions to be held next year, so vote for someone in your class who will be elibible to serve next year.

Faculty, administrative officers and staff will be notified as to how their election will operate.

Varied program for orchestra

The Maryville College-Community Orchestra, under the direction of Lee Kull, will present a concert Friday, April 7, 8:15 p.m. in Wilson Chapel. There is no admission charge for the concert and CIV credit will be given.

"The dimension of religious experience rises at right angles in the learning process and, we believe, does not distort, confuse, or impair the search for truth but rather enhances the three-dimensional manifold of knowledge."

New roles of the university

Cleveland, Ohio - (I.P.) - How to maintain their traditional religious outlook and still qualify for direct federal aid, should it be made available, is a problem that church-related private colleges may be facing soon, believes Rev. Henry F. Birkenhauer, S. J., president of John Carroll University.

In his recently published "Report of the President," Father Birkenhauer says he feels that church-affiliated schools will be able to qualify for funds "as long as religion retains its 'third-dimensional' character."

He said that a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision in favor of four church-related colleges in Connecticut may open the door for direct federal support.

"Built into that decision is the right of any institution of higher learning to qualify for direct federal aid provided that its educational function is not distorted by its religous commitment.

"In the words of Chief Justice Burger, 'institutions with admittedly religious functions but whose predominant education mission is to provide their students with a secular education' are entitled to federal aid.

Sunrise service greets Easter

By Wiley Rutledge

Easter began early this year for many MC students as they attended the thirty-fifth annual Easter sunrise service in the College Amphitheatre. The service, which began in 1937, has traditionally been a celebration of Christ's resurrection and victory over death.

Today's service began at 6:21 a.m. as the band played the Mass from "La Fiesta Mexicana." The service itself then began with the choir singing "Christ Is Arisen," celebrating Christ's freeing man by his rising from the dead. The choir also sang several other choral pieces celebrating the resurrection.

The service was led by Dr. Copeland and Mr. Harrison. They led in the prayers and responsive readings. Dr. Copeland also delivered a message.

Worship actually began before anyone arrived at the amphitheatre, with the brass players from the band playing hymns at the various dorms, and eventually arriving at Morningside, where breakfast was served to the participants.

As the service concluded, the sun came up over the trees in the back of the amphitheatre, presenting those who attended with a magnificent background for the celebration of Christ's rising from the dead.

Three receive doctorates

Three members of the MC faculty have received the doctorate degree since the beginning of the school year. They are: Dan H. Kinsinger, Music Department; Charlotte Beck, English Department; and John W. Nichols, Mathematics Department.

A member of the Maryville faculty since 1954, Dr. Kinsinger received his Doctor of Musical Arts degree in the performing arts in voice from the University of Illinois, October 15, 1971. His doctoral thesis was "The Seven Song Collections of Gabriel Faure."

Dr. Beck began teaching at Maryville in 1968 under a Title III fellowship Her dissertation is 'The Dramatic Mode in the Poetry of Randall Jarrell,' and she received her Ph.D. from U-T on March 15.

Also receiving his Ph.D. in mathematics from U-T on March 15, Dr. Nichols is an alumnus of Maryville College and has been part of the faculty since 1967.

Both Dr. Beck and Dr. Nichols worked toward their doctorates under Title III of the Higher Education Act.

These three additions bring the total of full-time faculty members at MC holding the earned doctorate to more than fifty percent.

New members in Theta Alpha Phi

The Theta Alpha Phi fraternity has admitted five new members this term. The initiates are: Howard M. Welsh, Nancy McCleary, Sharon Murphy, Tom Williamson, and Dianne Wood.

Membership in Theta Alpha Phi, a national theater fraternity is based on a point system. Points can be accumulated through theater courses, acting, directing, and technical work. After points have been acquired. the initiates voted on by the members and the advisor, Mr. Jones. The group plans to hold the initiation rituals before the end of the term.

Middlebury explores mission

Northfield, Vt.--(I.P.)-Middlebury College President James I. Armstrong, after wide consultation, has appointed a special committee of five faculty members and one student to conduct a searching and thorough examination of the mission and operating assumptions of the College, and to report its findings to the college community by May, 1973.

The President's action coincides with the commencement of the 175th Anniversary Campaign.

Editorial

Elections on campus

With ACC and class elections in the offing, it would seem both timely and necessary to discuss guidelines for the nomination of candidates in both areas.

In the past, officers have been chosen largely on the basis of their popularity and social activities rather than with regard to their abilities and competency for holding office, or even to their desire to serve in such capacities. This has, unfortunately, led to an ever-widening gap between those in office and the rest of the student body. With the exception of the senior class; meetings are rarely held for an entire class,leaving us to wonder whether the fault lies with the officers, who apparently care nothing for the class as a whole; or with the members of the class who seem to put forth such an aura of apathy as to force the officers into a negative feeling of discouragement with regard to the possibility of the class doing anything productive.

These same problems of lack of confidence and communication also apply to the ACC elections. Although ACC meetings are open to the entire college community, few observers attend. With no reports by representatives to general class meetings, the mass of students remains uninformed on the vital campus issues.

With such an attitude on campus,how can students,most now enfrachised nationally, be expected to take responsible action in a national election? There the candidates are not personally known and the student will be forced to look into the issues for himself. We shudder to think of such an enormous group of new voters electing national leaders on the basis of "charisma" while ignoring the issues and platforms at stake. We hope, probably in vain, that this year a more responsible attitude of nomination and election will be shown, with emphasis being placed on what each candidate has done and will do for the campus as a whole, not for any "elite" group.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I would like to question how you can logically state that the creative view Tim Hodge is trying to show in this year's Chilhowean is nonexistent or "lost" without seeing the actual finished work?

I am also somewhat curious about the blanket statement that he has been given freedom to create when you, in the next paragraph indicate that without rows of pictures of underclassmen, (the traditional yearbook format) a yearbook is falling short of its true purpose.

Personally, I would prefer a small, well executed book containing pictures of campus scenes and individuals in typical situations to a bulky volume containing row after row of blank faces, few of which I will recognize in ten years anyway.

Betty Goshorn

All letters to the Editor must be submitted to Box 2820 by twelve noon on the Monday preceding publication.

Political Profile '72

The donkey race

By Kathy Meier

The Echo feels that a rundown on major candidates, issues, and primaries surrounding the '72 election is called for due to the fact that, for the first time, students are part of the electorate.

The New Hampshire primary of March 7 gave evidence that the Democratic race for the nomination was more open than first predicted. George McGovern won over the favored candidate, Edmund Muskie, whose pools indicated wide spread popularity in the state. Other Democratic hopefuls merely cleaned up the leftovers. President Nixon won the Republican primary handily.

March 14 either made or broke the fortunes of the Democratic candidates in Florida. George Wallace won his expected victory with a 42 per cent plurality. Hubert Humphrey made a strong showing with 18 per cent of the vote. Muskie, in fourth place, had a very poor showing behind Jackson's 13 per cent. Lindsay (7 per cent and McGovern 6 per cent) trailed badly and once again the nomination became anybody's game.

The plethora of Democratic contenders ranges from very conservative to avowed liberals. Gov. George Wallace (Ala.) was the pace setter for the Florida primary. This populist candidate toned down his overt racism and now blends in with the "moderate temper of the South." Wallace aims his campaign at the "middle class common man" and his strongest issue is busing. In most of the South the degree of success of the other contenders depends largely on how they stand on Wallace's issue.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey (Minn.) running for a second time, shrewdly perceived the drift of voters in Florida and deliberately colored his campaign with statements against busing. His '72 platform is quite a contrast to his impressive civil rights background. As a result of his good showing in Florida, finances are much improved as are his chances of Humphrey's besting Muskie in Wisconsin.

Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson also played down his progressive civil rights record in Florida. He suggested a Constitutional amendment to end busing. Jackson supporters are hoping for a substantial vote from people who oppose busing but reject Wallace on other principles. This candidate seems to have fairly solid financial backing.

Sen. Edmund Muskie (Men) with a surprising lack of political foresight, failed to see the importance of the busing issue and of Mr. Wallace. After his bitter tirade in Florida, Muskie's image suffered some what, though he seems to have recovered rapidly and he is hitting the campaign trail at an accelerated pace. Muskie is not too secure financially but is till polled as a serious threat to Humphrey.

Mayor John Lindsay (N.Y.) never altered his strong integrationalist stand in Florida. Mayor Lindsay spent a vast amount of money in Florida and his campaign will be in serious straits if his loss to Wallace does not help his showing in more liberal Wisconsin.

Sen. George McGovern (S.D.), although lacking in charisma, has gained some of the Kennedy-McCarthy support. He maintained a low profile and spent little money in Florida. McGovern also hopes to improve in Wisconsin. Classified as a Liberal, he has actively opposed the Vietnam war and while refusing to center on the liberal-conservative scales.

The Wisconsin primary may be the turning point for the Democratic hopefulls. The financial status of most may force withdrawal unless a substantial showing is made.

Echo receives award for fall

A score of B has been awarded the HIGHLAND ECHO of Maryville College, Maryville, Tenn. by National Newspaper Service of Memphis, Tennessee. The score is for the 1st term of the school year 1971-72.

National Newspaper Service is a highly select service which offers comprehensive critical analyses of student newspapers about evenly divided between schools and colleges, with professionally oriented recommendations thought by the service to be unique in the nation.

It combines the usual critique and score based on professional rating standards with inside-newspaper annotation which was suggested by the great success of National School Yearbook Association's annotation service for yearbooks. NSYA is an affiliate organization with NNS. Both are served by Photolith magazine.

Organized in Missouri about 11 years ago, NNS actually branched off NSYA, both organizations having been founded by N. S. Patterson, director. Patterson was at the time of NNS' organization on the journalism faculty of the University of Missouri, having previously organized and headed the journalism department at the Universtiy of Houston.

Head judge is E. P. Mills, who judges most college newspaper entries. He is himself a retired newspaper editor and journalism teacher on the University of Houston faculty. Other NNS judges are highly successful professionals, including some of the leading school newspaper advisers in the country.

Director Patterson said today's school newspaper editors, college and high school, show an awareness to and interest in society's problems, regional, national, and worldwide, that was unknown a decade ago. In-depth reporting and feature stories based on research delve into so many aspects of current life that some observers fear school news may be forgotten altogether if the trend continues.

"We in NNS continue to be bullish on the editors of student newspapers and on the future of the school newspaper under their leadership. On the whole, these young people have shown remarkable leadership and poise in very trying times," the director said.

This issue is being edited jointly by Carla Hulce and Patti Shelton, candidates for editor of the '72-'73 Echo. Contributors to this issue are: Kathy Meier, Betsey Joyner, Phyllis Garner, Sue Bailey, Julie Chapman, Irving Wertz, Stan Jack, Alvin Baker, Wiley Rutledge, and the regular staff. Comments on this issue may be submitted to Box 2820.

Poetry

The Boxer

The blow of a word–
The fighter recoiled battered from all sides it seemed.
Blood formed a scar across his face.
You could see fear grip his mind-
As he doubled over, falling.

Flung out careless and heedless,
To reach a tender spot–
you had not known was there.

Carousel awhirl–
as mind when shoe strings snap–

Careening, rushing, spinning– faster, speeding on–
Only to arrive again, and find you horse's nose was chipped.

The aim was poor,
the hit more so the painful–

The grimace on his face was real.
The same
the swiftly darkening hollow of his eye.
He pawed the air–
as child as shadow's game,
Fighting an opponent
He did not know had gone.

And only you aware–
the gun was never loaded.

-A-

i am being a forest like i have been for a million years.
what is that like, a forest?
dying race of indians.
they were the lucky ones, red men of the silent feet.
chasing buffalo and speaking quietly to the deer.
making love and having babies; traveling softly through my soul.
they could fight back, at least they could do that.
the price that they paid to be free.
to worhip the sun, and to know the beautiful coolness of the summer rain on their red skin.
the secret language of rivers and blue artistry clounds.
a warm hand upon a child's silver tears, before he becomes a man.
they could yell from the depths of their hatred.
words and arrows.
Blood flowing over the bravest hearts and the greatest lovers of life.
hacked and slain.
gone.
i have been slain, and ripped.
proudly watched the spring nurse my children of the earth.
killed and nailed and sawed and split.
the cross of a thousand martyrs.
my blood crashed through the stillness, and my ears heard the sound of money and cars and buildings in the darkness, and the long lonely night.
waiting to die.
the night is so long before you die.
my soul was shot with the eagle.
my heart pierced as the red man fell.
and i have no worlds,
after a million years of being a forest.

m. g p

New D.A. degree to supplement Ph. D.

Storrs Conn.-(I.P.)- A University of Connecticut faculty committee has urged adoption of a new "doctor of arts" degree here, where the stress would be on teaching.

In a digest of Report of the Committee on the Doctor of Arts Degree of the Graduate Faculty, the nine-member unit agreed:

"First of all, it (the D.A. degree) must be on a par intellectually with the Ph.D. It must not be a cheap degree, an ersatz degree, a curtailed Ph.D., or an empty title. Its achievement must entail a preparation as rigorous, its standards must be as stringent as those for the Ph.D."

The Committee noted that the D.A. degree proposed here would differ from the Ph.D. in two respects.

First, it would emphasize in subject matter a breadth of preparation that would better equip the recipient to function as a teacher in undergraduate teaching at all levels – four-year colleges and two-year colleges.

Second, it would incorporate into the preparation of the student actual teaching experience. Moreover, the D.A. student would be given an internship, where he would be introduced to college teaching methods and supervised by superior instructors in his field.

The Committee acknowledged that many Ph.D.s become top-flight teachers in the course of time. But it suggested that a potentially promising teacher can be helped toward excellence earlier if his initiation occurs under favorable critical conditions.

The new D.A. degree would not eliminate the dissertation – or thesis. But the new thesis would not be built upon research in the same way as the Ph.d. dissertation. "It could be an analysis of existing knowledge, for example, or a sophisticated survey of recent research in a given field.

"The D.A. dissertation would have to demonstrate the author's mastery of a chosen field, his capacity to think acutely about it, his powers of analysis and syntheis. It need not be, however, as the Ph.D. dissertation is supposed to be, a contribution of new knowledge derived from basic research."

The Committee envisions the D.A. recipient matching the Ph.-D. student in all other respects. He would face as rigorous a set of general exams and course requirements, etc.

In conclusion, the committee noted that the D.A. program would involve a reallocation of existing resources and would not require budgetary expansion or an increase in a department's total doctoral students.

ACC debates yearbook question

The All-College Council met on March 29 with an agenda headed up by a discussion of the yearbook situation. Present at the meeting were John Powell and Ms. Ussrey of the Communications committee.

After reports from this committee, the ACC heard proposed guidelines for the selection of the next yearbook editor. The council agreed that they would support the committee in a decision whether or not to publish a yearbook and their selection of an editor. Some of the proposed guidelines included resume of experience, letters of recommendation and interviews.

If only one student has applied for the position of editor, the committee will actively seek other applicants. The ACC also suggested that the next editor should be a full-time student at MC. It was clear from the outline of duties and responsibilities of the editor that future editors of the yearbook will be held accountable to the committee and treasurer's office more than before.

Mr. Arthur Bushing and Dr. Wallace Lewis were welcomed by the council as replacements for Dr. Esther Swenson and Dr. James Bloy, both of whom are on sabbatical leaves this year.

The next item on the agenda was concerned with the method of faculty nominations for the ACC. Dr. Carolyn Blair explained the rationale used by the previous committee to establish the present method. Dr. Donald Stine then proposed a plan for nomination according to recognition of the various professional ranks. Dr. Stine suggested two nominations from each rank with one of each to be elected and three nominations from the faculty at large with two to be elected. After some debate, the council took a straw vote on this matter and the vote was 7-3 against changing the present method. However, co-chairman Ward Brooks said that he felt more information was needed on the reaction of the faculty to this plan.

Dr. Stine also proposed that service on the ACC be limited to two successive years with one intervening year off the council before a member is eligible for re-election. The time period was raised to three successive years and this plan met with council approval. The final word will come from the Board.

Next, Dr. Copeland announced Col. Taylor's retirement and the selection of Dr. George Kramer as Dean of Student Relations. The primary emphasis of Dr. Kramer's work at MC will be admissions.

The council heard a report by Dick Harrison on the Religious Life committee. Chaplain Harrison announced the dates for next year's January meetings as January 18-21, the end of the second academic week of winter term '73. The Chaplain also reported to the council on events to be sponsored on campus by the World Concerns Committee. These include the Bloodmobile on April 25, a CIV on the Fred Hope Story on April 12, and a carnival for the Fred Hope fund on April 15. Also planned is a May 6 Walk for Development in this area. The Echo will have more information on this later in the term.

To close the meeting, Dr. Copeland said that Karl Runkle at the Univ. of Toledo is doing a doctoral study on governance and wants to study MC's method. The council felt that this could be instructive to them also.

Bloodmobile to operate at gym

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile will operate at the Health, Physical Education Building on Tuesday, April 25 from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. The goal is 200 volunteer donors from the Maryville College campus. Daily tabulations will be made and shared through the Campus NEWS.

The following information may be of help to anyone who is considering giving blood:

(1) I'm TOO YOUNG. You can become a blood donor when you reach 18. Some states require a parent's consent if you are under 21.

(2) THEY'LL TAKE TOO MUCH AND I'LL FEEL WEAK. Less than a pint is all that is taken. Your body manufactures new blood constantly. The volume you give will be replaced within a few hours. After donating, most people go about their usual activities.

(3) I'M TOO THIN. If you weigh 110 pounds or more you can be accepted.

(4) IT'S TOO INCONVENIENT TO DONATE BLOOD. Red Cross tries to make donating as convenient as possible. Make an appointment for the time and place that's easiest for you. Donating takes less than 10 minutes, the entire visit about an hour.

(5) I ALREADY GAVE THIS YEAR. Many donors give three and four times a year.

(6) NO ONE HAS EVER ASKED ME TO DONATE BLOOD. Consider yourself invited. Blood comes only from people. It can't be manufactured. Your gift could mean life for a sick child, an accident victim, or an elderly person facing surgery.

See your dorm contact person, Bill Martin, or the Chaplain for pledge cards.

Seniors debate graduation plans

A senior class meeting was held Thursday evening, March 30, to discuss graduations plans and details. The first concern centered on the possibility of a yearbook. Its existence is still under question, although editor Tim Hodge assures the school that the yearbook will be completed.

The seniors present at the meeting decided to leave their final mark in the forms of a Senior CIV and a senior issue of the Echo. The CIV program will combine skits and impersonations from the seniors. All those interested in presenting their act should contact Bob Eickelberg, chairman.

The senior Echo also wants to feature as many seniors as possible. Contributions, on any topic, are to be held under 300 words and submitted in typed form. The material should be submitted to Box 2820, by the beginning of the sixth week of the term, April 24.

The alumni of Maryville College are planning to sponsor a dinner for the senior class, in order to meet with the future graduates. It will be held on a Saturday near the end of the term.

Graduation exercises will feature two speakers. Dr. E. Faye Campbell, recent MC Chaplain, will speak along with Tom Coe, student chosen by the senior class.

Sunset Gap to obtain Fred Hope funds

"The Fred Hope Story" will be presented at CIV on April 12. The following Saturday a carnival will be held in the chapel colonade to raise money for this year's projects. In addition to Bangladesh, which will be our overseas emphasis, the World Concerns Committee of the ACC has chosen to include a home mission emphasis - Sunset Gap Community Center.

Sunset Gap Community Center, located between Newport and Cosby in an Appalachian mountain section, has been ministering to the people of Appalachia since 1924. Orginally it operated a school house and medical clinic. Since 1960, when local county schools were consolidated, the schoolhouse has been changed into a community center that operates a pre-school program, boy and girl scout troops, a thrift shop, library, and a church school. It is the site of work camps and Appalachian culture seminars during the summer.

During the 1972 interim, six Maryville College students (Anne Holmes, Merida Kearns-Preston, Roxann Goshorn, Jim Saint, Diana Davis, Diane Manly) worked with the Rev. Bob Davis, director of the Center, in surveying three isolated mountain neighborhoods to determine recreational and social needs.

A plan is now underway to follow up on this project this summer. Half of the money that is raised at the Fred Hope carnival will go toward purchasing some kind of mobile unit that can be equipped with books, games, arts and crafts, and recreational equipment to service these areas.

This program will be further explained at the CIV on April 12.

Job opportunities in Europe this summer ... Work this summer in the forests of Germany, on construction in Austria, on farms in Germany, Sweden and Denmark, on road construction in Norway, in industries in France and Germany, in hotels in Switzerland.

Please write for further information and application forms to: American-European Student-Service, Box 34733, FL 9490 Vaduz, Liechtenstein (Europe).

ACLU defends agitator

Palo Alto, Calif.- (I.P.) - The American Civil Liberties Union of Northern California laid heavy emphasis on "fair warning" in an amicus curiae brief outlining civil liberties guidelines for the Stanford University Faculty Advisory Board in ruling on dismissal charges against revolutionary Associate Prof. H. Bruce Franklin.

President Richard W. Lyman has accepted the 5-2 majority report of the Advisory Board recommending that Professor Franklin be dismissed from the faculty immediately and be paid a sum equal to his salary until August 31, 1972.

The ACLU took no position on facts developed in the six-weeks hearing by the board. The brief was signed by Harvard Law Professor Alan Dershowitz on leave at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford, Prof. John Kaplan, Assistant Prof. Paul Brest, both of the Stanford Law School.

University President Richard Lyman had charged the suspended English professor with contributing to the disruption of a speech by former Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jan. 11, and, on Feb. 10, of inciting occupation of the University Computation Center, a confrontation with police and nighttime violence.

Minority rights on campus

Washington, D.C. (CPS)— Asserting that "college students are entitled to the identical First Amendment protections on the campus as they or any other citizen would have in the community-at-large," the American Civil Liberties Union asked the Supreme Court to review two cases: one involving demonstrations inside campus buildings, the other involving official recognition of student political organizations.

If the court agrees to hear the cases, it will mark the first time in 37 years that the Justices have addressed themselves to freedom of speech and assembly for college students.

The ACLU noted that "by virtue of the 26th amendment, almost every college student is now fully enfranchised and entitled to participate in the political process."

Two years ago the Court ruled that a high school student could wear a black arm band during moratorium activities in Tinker Vs. Des Moines Independent Community School District. However, it has not ruled on the First Amendment rights of college students since the 1934 case of Hamilton Vs. Board of Regents of the University of California.

The demonstration case arose at Madison College, a state school in Harrisonburg, Va. Ironically, during the student reactions to the invasion of Cambodia in April, 1970, about 25 students and faculty assembled in an open campus building, and expressed their intention to hold an overnight vigil in protest of the firing of several teachers. That vigil was held successfully, but when the group held a similar demonstration two nights later, 30 of them were arrested by campus police.

The case was carried to the U.S. District Court, which ruled The court said the definition of "demonstration" was unconstitutionally vague; the ban on indoor demonstrations was unconstitutionally broad; the registration rule unconstitutionally barred spontaneous dissent.

The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, however, overturned the District judge's ruling.

The second case concerns students at Central Connecticut State College, who in Sept., 1969, asked for offfcial college recognition of their chapter of Students for a Democratic Society.

F. Don James, president of the school, rejected the advice of a student-faculty committee and denied recognition.

The ACLU is arguing in this case that college officials may interfere with the exercise of First Amendment rights only upon showing "a clear and present danger of some substantive evil occurring," and that the burden of proof is on the administrator.

When's the right time to have a baby?

When you really want one.

Just remember that more than half of all the pregnancies each year are accidental.

Planned Parenthood

Children by choice. Not chance.

For further information, write Planned Parenthood,

114 Dameron Avenue N.W.
Knoxville, Tennessee 37917
Phone: (615) 524-7407

The Leader

BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES

Announces A New Two Hour Trail

(for experienced riders only)

SPECIAL RATES FOR PARTIES

Large cabin available for Weekend Parties. Transportation furnished from Maryville College for cabin rental or overnight trips.
For information call Townsend 448-6411.

SPORTS

Men's intramurals championship

Irving Wertz

In the championship game between the Olympians and the Juniors, the Olympians led at halftime, 32-28. The Olympians gained back 2 points to lead at the end of the third quarter, 47-41. Highlights were both Stephens and Drewery picking up their 4th fouls.

The Olys quickly stretched their lead from 6 to 15 in the first 3 minutes of the fourth quarter. Costner hit a 1-1 with 3:00 left to ice it, 64-48, though the Juniors did battle back, led by Tom Milligan who had 8 fourth quarter points. Final score - Olympians 70, Juniors 60. For the winners and now champions, Leon Hart had 19, Calloway 18, Costner 16, Stephens 8, Rupp 4, Minor 3, and Kozel 2. For the Juniors, John Drewery had 16, Tom Milligan 14, Jay Lentz 14, Mark Brooks 12, and Steve Gilmore and Ward Brooks each had 2. The Juniors completed a fine season with a 6-1 record, while the Olympians battled back from an 0-2 record to finish at 6-2 and take the championship.

In the traditional battle for the Stinkin' Shoe between Kappa Phi and Sig, Sig pulled through with a 42-33 victory. Superior height and rebounding proved to be the difference over the poor-shooting Kappa Phi team. John Wright led Sig with 13, whil Bill Sivernale added 10. For Kappa Phi, Eddie Allman poured in 16, while McEachern added 10 and Bobby Woolfe 7.

Final Statistics
IM Basketball
(B) — B League

	points per game	games
Blair (B)	20.8	6
Calloway	18.4	7
Thompson	18.3	6
Clinton (B)	17.8	5
Lentz	17.6	7
Hart	17.6	5
DeBlois	16.7	6
Black (B)	16.6	5
Drewery	15.8	6
Gilbert	15.7	6
Rhodes	14.8	6
Salage	14.5	6
M. Brooks	14.4	7
Allman	13.6	5
Warwick (B)	13.1	7
Schwartz (B)	12.0	5
Portz	11.8	5
Wright (B)	10.4	5
Yacucci	10.3	6

★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★

Tennis team bounces back

Friday the Scot netmen bounced back, defeating two of their three opponents in a quadrangular match at David Lipscomb in Nashville.

The netmen dropped the first match to the home team 5-4. However, the Scots made a good showing. Skip Vessels won 7-5, 6-3, and Steve Rael did likewise at 3-6, 6-1, 6-3. Malcolm Westbrook took his match 7-5, 2-6, 12-10. Mike Pertz won 6-3, 6-1.

In the second match, against Christian Brothers College, the Scots won 7-2. In singles, Ward Brooks won 6-1, 7-5, and Tony Willis followed 6-2, 6-4. Vessels downed his opponent 6-1 6-3, and Rael won 6-1, 6-3. Westrook took a 2-6, 6-4, 6-1 victory, and Pertz won, 6-2, 6-4.

The Brooks-Vessels match-up won 6-3, 6-0 in doubles.

In the final match with Florence State University, the Scots scored an impressive 9-0 victory.

Brooks took first place 6-1, 6-1; Willis won 4-6, 6-2, 6-4. Vessels scored a 6-0, 6-3 win, his third, as did Rael, 6-1, 6-1. Westbrook chalked up his third win, 6-4, 6-9, and Pertz brought back another 6-0, 6-0.

In doubles competition, Brooks and Vessels took their opponents 6-1, 7-5. The Willis-Westbrook combo won 4-6,6-3, 6-3. Rael and Pertz were victorious, 6-1 6-2.

The 1972 tennis schedule is:

March 31	David Lipscomb (quad)	away
April 3	Milligan	home
4	Western Carolina	home
7	UT-Chattanooga	home
8	Hope	home
10	Temple	home
11	Carson-Newman	home
13	Tennessee Wesleyan	away
15	Centre (quad)	away
20	King	away
21	Clinch Valley	away
22	Transylvania	home
25	Emory and Henry	home
27	North Georgia	away
May 5-6	TIAC Tournament	Cookeville, Tenn.

All home matches begin at 1:15 p.m.

Scots win opener

Unleashing a fifteen hit barrage and getting a fine bit of pitching from Rob Randall, the Scots downed Capital University 10-3 in their opening game.

The Scots started fast getting three runs in the first inning on a walk to Brookes, a double by Stephens, an error on McKinstry's grounder, and a single by Kozel.

The Scots added two more runs the next inning with Rob Randall tripling, and with McKinstry singling and scoring when the centerfielder had a three base error in addition to the hit.

The Scots scored one in the third and three in the seventh with McMahon, Hart, Randall, Stephens and McKinstry sparking the rally.

In the end, McKinstry had three hits including a home run, Stephens, Hart, Brookes, Kozel, and Randall two apeice. Randall limited Capitol to six hits while striking out four.

The upcoming schedule for the Scots sees Bryan College here Saturday for a doubleheader starting at 2:00 p.m. Next Tuesday the Scots will tangle with Tennessee at Knoxville. Thursday Emory and Henry will come here for a game at 2:45 p.m.

Women plan spring sports

Betsey Joyner

Women's intramurals for the spring have already gotten under way at Maryville College. Soft ball season has started and some 31 girls have signed up. There will be two games a week for three weeks. Theta Epsilon, Chi Beta, and Independent teams are playing for the championship.

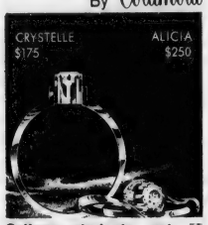
M-Club has started plans for a spring retreat, possibly an overnight, to initiate the new girls who have earned an accumulation of 400 points needed to join the club.

The powder-puff flagball game, a popular spring event, will be sponsored by M-Club this year under the leadership of Julie Mobley and Betsey Joyner. There will be an organizational meeting in the very near future.

Spring season for women's sports will be a very busy one around the campus and there should be something to please every girl.

Applications are now being taken for the Maryville College summer session. The first session will begin on June 5 and end June 23. Dates for the other two sessions are: Second term-June 26-July 14, Third term- July 17-Aug. 4.

Students take one course each three week session, meeting two periods per day, five days per week. One course credit transfers as the equivalent of three semester hours or four and one-half quarter hours.



Courses to be offered are posted on campus or check with the registrar's office.

Remember the one you love with flowers from
HARTMAN'S FLOWERS
204 Washington
Phone 982-7500

GAY COFFEEHOUSE
Epworth Church
Fridays, 10 p.m.-3 a.m.
DONATION-50¢
16th & Laurel, Knox.
GLF meeting — every Thurs., 7 p.m.
Need a ride? Contact Box 2523.

Learn While You earn
Ad Salesmen & Women wanted to represent Highland Echo
Keep an easy 10 per cent of all you sell. For more information — Contact Box 2820.

Tipton Jewelers
See our outstanding selection of diamond rings . . .
By Columbia

College students get 10 per cent discount on all purchases with I.D.

Proffitt's

AT LAST, FRESH COSMETICS BECAUSE YOU MAKE THEM YOURSELF. . .

SEE A DEMONSTRATION IN OUR COSMETIC DEPARTMENT FRIDAY & SATURDAY - APRIL 7, 8th

WELL SPRING is a newly discovered source of beauty . . . a vital ingredient that blends instantly with Nature's offerings to produce a delicious array of creative cosmetics that are yours practically for the imagining.

The product of over two years of research, WELL SPRING is a new concept in cosmetics. Its special beauty blend integrates instantly with water-based liquids ... add just a little of your favorite natural ingredient plus a couple of shakes, and watch your own custom-blended cream or lotion happen before your very eyes. You receive the benefits of Nature in addition to WELL SPRING'S twenty-four selected ingredients that moisten, soothe, and nourish on their own. Used alone, WELL SPRING is a gentle eye makeup remover and skin cleanser.

Imagine T.he Thrill Of Being Your Own Cosmetic Chemist

It's so easy. In minutes you can have an assortment of luxurious skin treats, as exoitic as your own imagination would have them. Mix WELL SPRING with water and a whole egg, and you have a rich protein cream for dry skin; or with cucumber juice for a cream that's cool, refreshing, and slightly astringent. WELL SPRING comes with its own recipe booklet, just for starters, but you'll soon want to venture out on your own.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 No. 21 Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee, April 14, 1972

Annual gets new editor; plans summer publication

Freddie Rhodes, junior from Columbia, Tennessee, has accepted the editorship of the Chilhowean, the MC yearbook, following a Communications Committee meeting Monday, April 3.

Tim Hodge, former editor, was removed from his position after missing several publisher's deadlines.

Rhodes said of the Chilhowean, "We need full co-operation of students, faculty and administration. We'll get the book out."

Tom Young, Hunter Publisher's local represenative, volunteered to help the new editor and his staff any way he could.

Early June has been established as a tentative deadline. The Chilhowean is tenatively scheduled to appear by late summer.

Arrangements were made with Graham Studio of Knoxville, Tennessee, to have pictures made of the student body. Pictures of underclassmen were scheduled for last Wednesday and Thursday. Junior and senior pictures will be made Monday in the Chilhowean room.

Graham studios offers packages of pictures that include one 8 x 10, two 5 x 7 and ten billfold pictures. All are in color. The price given is $10.50.

Besides these pictures, Rhodes is asking for candid pictures from students, faculty or staff. "Any people willing to donate pictures, please do so," says Rhodes. "They'll be returned at the end of the year.

By the beginning of this week, Rhodes had begun to organize his staff. Those helping him include: Janet Vail, Vicki Clower, Martha McCoy, Tony Willis, Cynthia Newsom, Julie Mobile, Lindy Harris, Neva Parker, Richard Gaunt, Maureen Meade and Ann Holmes.

Campbell and Coe speak for graduation

The senior class chose as their graduation speakers Tom Coe and former MC chaplain, Dr. E. Fay Campbell.

Dr. Campbell graduated from Yale University in 1918 and received an S.T.B. degree from Yale Divinity School in 1924. In addition to these earned degrees, he has received twelve honorary degrees from schools around the nation.

Coming to Maryville in 1961, Dr. Campbell formerly held positions with the Board of Christian Education for the Presbyterian Church and the Council on Theological Education. He has also been a member of several committees dealing with international Christian education and Christian Missions.

Since his retirement from MC in 1970, Dr. Campbell and his wife, Edith, have lived in Swarthmore, Pennsylvania.

The senior class speaker, Tom Coe, is a philosophy and religion major from Cincinnati, Ohio. Coe is a member of the campus honorary society, Alpha Gamma Sigma and was selected for Who's Who earlier this year. A former member of the All-College Council, he is also an R.A. for freshmen men and is well-known on campus for his weekly articles in the ECHO.

Circle K represented at district convention

The annual Circle K Kentucky, Tennessee District Convention was held this past weekend in Lexington, Kentucky at the Continental Inn with the Maryville College Circle K well represented. Randy Minor, a junior political science major was elected treasurer of the district and Bob Cox, a junior communications major won first place in the essay contest and second place in the oratorical contest.

Randy Minor, from Jacksonville, Florida, is completing his year as president of the Maryville Circle K club and will now assume the financial responsibilities for all work done on the district level. Minor has also been an outstanding player for the MC football team in addition to his Circle K leadership.

Bob Cox is from Youngstown, Ohio and is currently the public relations man for the club. Cox won first place in the essay contest out of sixteen entries in an essay about "involving youth" and was nudged out of first in the oratorical contest by a Circle K'er who won second place in national competition in Chicago last summer.

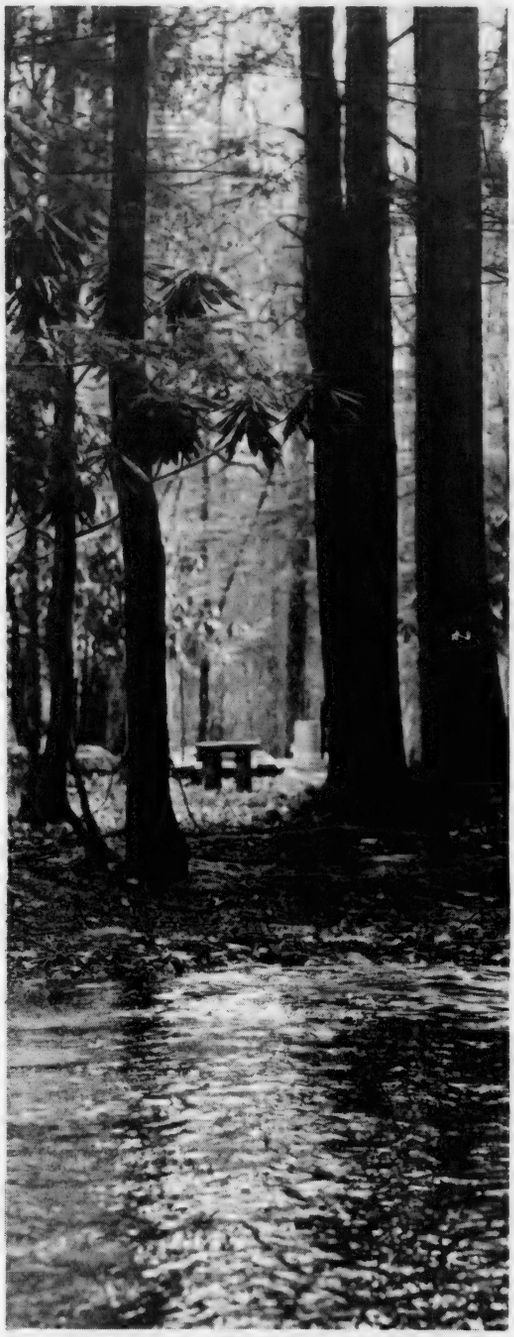
The third delegate to the convention was Bob Eickelberg, a senior from Baltimore, Maryland and treasurer of the local club.

The Maryville College Circle K Club is jointly sponsored by the Maryville and Alcoa Kiwanis Club.

Fred Hope Carnival held

In order to raise money for the Fred Hope Fund, Maryville College is having a carnival this Saturday, April 15.

In addition to bringing excitement to a Saturday afternoon on the Maryville campus, the carnival will raise funds to aid the people of Bangladesh, through UNICEF, and to establish a mobile ministry serving the people f Appalachia, through the Sunset Gap Community Center.



The carnival will run from 2:00 to 7:30 p.m. with many student groups participating. Booths will be sponsored by Delta Omicron, Chi Beta, the sophomore class, Walk for Development, Bloodmobile, the band, the Echo, and others. The booths will provide games, competition, prizes, food, art work, and music.

Planners of the carnival are hoping for a large attendance.

Dogwood festival ballet to be performed

On Friday and Saturday night, April 14 & 15, the Maryville College Theatre has been leased to the Van Metre Dancers for a full-length classical ballet performance of GISELLE. Originally performed in Paris in 1841, GISELLE is the only ballet of the Romantic period to have continuous performance for more than 130 years.

In the local production, directed and choreographed by Cheryl Van Metre, with costumes by Lucy Proffitt, sets by David Styles, and lighting by Bob Hutchinson, the title role will be played by Elaine Armfield, a local high school student. Playing the male lead is Kent Marshall, an MC student. Among the cast of 28 are MC students Bill Gimbrede, Tom Martin, Terry Noack, Gordon Adler, Tom Williamson, Bob Cox and Paul Hollingsworth. Lucy Proffitt, instructor in Speech, will be seen in the role of Berthe, Giselle's mother. Tickets can be purchased at the theatre box office before the 8:15 curtain with the price $1.00 for students and $1.50 for adults.

Part of the program at Tremont is a tour of Cades Cove to create an awareness of the environment. Tours show man's impact on nature such as with picnic grounds under tall trees.

What's Tremont all about?

By Sue Bailey

Maryville College became a pioneer in resident and day-use programs of environmental education when it became affiliated with Tremont Environmental Education Center. The Center, located in the Smokies 22 miles from campus, is operated by the college in cooperation with the National Park Service.

Several MC students are involved each week in activities with the elementary and secondary school classes which come for week-long periods to Tremont. Some are elementary education majors, but others simply enjoy working with children in an outdoor setting. One of the latter, Jan Bukoveski, says: "The fifth and sixth graders we hike with and teach seem to enjoy it almost as much as I do...The kids show great awareness of their environment and, as it turned out, the only difficulty was learning to drive the bus!"

Another student who became active at Tremont, and now works there full-time, is Crissi Johnson. Crissi emphasizes the satisfaction she receives in a job that combines working with children and with nature. She also clarifies that any interested MC student is welcome — "Students think that only a select group works at Tremont. This is not true. Anyone can participate simply by calling the center to provide transportation, especially on weekends."

The Tremont Center provides more than just an opportunity for the MC student to gain teaching experience and deepen his environmental awareness through structured activities and study. It is also an ideal location for an escape from the everyday patterns and problems of college life. Diane (P.B.) Fisher, who became involved at Tremont

(continued on page 4)

Editorial

Perils of publishing

A good deal of controversy has surrounded this year's yearbook. With the selection of Freddie Rhodes as editor for the rest of the year, we're confident that the Chilhowean can become a success.

Mr. Rhodes has called for the co-operation of everyone. We hope that he will receive it. At the same time, though, the College has the opportunity in the wake of recent events to go beyond a mere co-operation. Consent to let someone handle the publication of something as difficult and time-consuming as a yearbook is not enough.

The College must take a more active role in ensuring the quality of its publications. Thi activism must begin at the administrative level. Without this active support, it's apparent that MC's publications will continue their slap-dashexistence.

Two areas call for change. First, finances need changing. The editor of the annual receives a $150 stipend per year. This amount of money does not reflect the amount of effort required to publish a yearbook. To bring about a just compensation for the editor, the College should grant a stipend in the neighborhood of $1,000 or waive half his tuition. Such a grant could bring MC into line with other institutions.

Talk of money sounds mercenary to some. Yet, lack of compensation promotes lack of competence. At present, dedication is the only incentive to edit the annual. There's not enough of that at MC.

A second area for change is physical equipment. Those students who had their pictures made this past week in the Chilhowean room became aware of just how shoddy the facilities are. A few warped tables, an antique typewriter and a door with a broken lock do not an annual make.

A few dedicated, responsible people have published the Chilhowean in the past. However, these people have become disillusioned with the apathy of others. This situation promotes a lack of morale, leading to no publications.

When students accept respolnsibility, as Mr. Rhodes is doing, it must be matched with equal efforts by the college officers. Until now MC hasn't supported is publications. We hope that the College will begin to accept its responsibility in this area.

Parting shots

Comps questioned

Editor's note:

Parting Shots is a column of opinions. Differing viewpoints on campus issues are presented by various people.

By Chuck Cary

It's time once again for all seniors to worry and become paranoid over comprehensives and URE's.

Both examinations seem very anti-climatic to special studies and the fulfillment of course requirements. Many uncertainties arise to the nature of the questions, knowing the content of each course, and what teacher is to pose which question.

In some cases the department has undergone many changes in faculty members, subject matter, etc. The sociology department is one example.

How should one approach the idea of synthesizing what knowledge he supposedly has gained throughout his four years, collectively and comprehensively putting these ideas on paper? Not to sound irrelevant, but this aspect of gathering one's thoughts is not really the case. In reality it's the pressure of the grade and the possibility (or impossibility) of graduation.

The idea and opportunity to gathering together one's ideas about his chosen course of study is in toto a very valuable and educational endeavor. Without the added pressure of "making the grade", comprehensives might take on a more positive label. This writer does not propose that Maryville College do away with comprehensives altogether but that someone study a new method for their evaluation.

Those seniors who look at comps as merely a necessary evil are in most cases worrying about this added responsibility and pressure. From one who has taken these two exams, a word of advice: Do not try to re-learn the subject matter of your discipline but instead review what you do know and undertake these examinations with the idea of expressing your own impression and evaluations.

What is now something dreaded by all could potentially become something looked forward to if the necessity of the grade is taken away and s-u basis put in its place. To you underclassmen: You have the power to make comps a more subjective reflection of what you have learned; not just a restatement of the specific information set forth in each syllabus.

Comps can be a positive undertaking. Let's not feel imprisoned by them but instead make them a channel for revealing what education is all about.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 Maryville College Maryville, Tennessee

JOHN POWELL
Editor

BOB EICKELBERG
Business Manager

NANCY RANKIN
Managing Editor

DR. CAROLYN BLAIR
Faculty Adviser

THE HIGHLAND ECHO is published by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

It's the right time

Love is exploited

By Rick Mitz

Future Shock, the sociologists tell us. Future Shock? Never. We're suffering from Schlock Shock. And it all revolves around one word: Love.

What used to be so personal, private and intimate has turned into a merchandising formula for wealthy would-be poets and capitalistic couldn't-be writers who never have to say they're sorry.

We're allowing today's millionaire mod prophets to perpetuate old romantic myths that dictate the meaning and greening and, worse yet, how we can find Love.

In order to find The Meaning of Love, you have to play hockey at Yale, break away from your rich father and find a poor girlfriend who has leukemia.

You'll find it if you get rid of your bad breath. Or the frizzies. Or psoriasis. Or your mild case of terminal acne.

You'll find it if you buy the world a Coke.

You'll find it if you live alone-alone-alone with a cat named Sloopy.

Cardboard Love is enveloping — rather than developing — us. In poetry, in movies, on television, in alleged literature.

"i used to be in love with my teddy bear, but i love you lots more ..." proclaims a book called "i love you" that's guaranteed to be so impersonal you can give it to anyone — your lover, your mother or your teddy bear. One dollar please.

Or Peter McWilliams who has written a slew of sappy books ("Come Love with me & be my Life," "I love therefore I Am," not to mention "The Hard Stuff: Love.") His books contain such hard stuff as:

first
I lived for love.
then
I lived in love.
then
I lived love.
now, with you
I just love!

Two dollars please.

But their books read like Walgreen greeting cards compared to the works of the fathers of them all: Erich Segal and Rod McKuen.

Love Story: about a male student who plays hockey instead of hookey. About a coed who gets married and then buried. $5.95 in hard-back, 95 cents in paper-back please.

And Maestro McKuen: "If they could overlook my acne— and the inch I lacked— to carry them to heaven,— I too could deal in charity." $4.50 please.

"Rod puts into words all the things I feel," said one girl I know who doesn't even have acne. She considers McKuen's prose-poetry to be good literature because it puts her feelings into words. But good literature takes words and transforms them into feelings.

McKuen and Segal deal in greeting card kitsch, but on a different level than the others. They manipulate us into wanting to believe that love is easy. Their works are read quickly, cried and sighed over quickly. They lead us into a fantasy world, where life is a love story, where loneliness is a national pastime, exceeded only by leukemia and acne. And they laugh all the way through the bunk and to the bank.

Love Story has sold more than five million copies and was made into a successful (financially, anyway) movie. McKuen's books and records have earned The Bard more than $5 million a year. Not bad for a little love.

And what does it all mean? It means that we're desperate enough to find out the meaning of love that we'll go through one-night stands with McKuen and Segal, who have become Dr. Ruebens in romantic drag. Everything you— always wanted— to know.

So what does it all mean? The answer is probably best put in one of McKuen's own poems: "If you had listened hard enough— you might have heard— what I meant to say: Nothing."

But whatever they meant to say, they say it over and over and over again.

Maybe love means you never have to say.

Women like co-ed living

By Linda Blomeke

As a result of the Pearson's fire, eight girls have been living on the first floor of Dorm III. According to Bob Eickelberg, the first R.A. of a co-ed quad in the history of Maryville College, the co-ed living is working out beautifully. "No problems," reports Mr. Eickelberg.

Apparently, the girls themselves are happy in their new living quarters. When asked how the girls were responding to living in Dorm III, Butch Yardumian replied, "Everybody loves it." She went on to say that most of the girls would prefer a co-ed dorm next year if the opportunity was available.

Mr. Eickelberg, always ready to speak out on any subject, made the suggestion that Maryville College should consider using one dorm for co-ed living next year, with boys and girls alternating in every other room.

A rumor has been circulating on campus that "shower hours" have been established at Dorm III. According to this rumor, the girls have the showers from the hour to the half-hour and the guys have the showers from the half-hour to the hour.

The Highland Echo, always searching for the truth, confronted the originator of this rumor, Mr. Eickelberg. He admitted that the rumor was indeed mere fabrication on his part, contrived solely for the purpose of hearing himself talk.

New food service tried

Storrs, Conn.-(I.P.)- When it comes to student-operated food services, under-graduates at the University of Connecticut are writing the book for the whole nation.

The Associated Student Commissaries (ASC) was organized about a year ago, and recently, President Michael Duane reports that the $2.5 million-a-year operation appears to be in for a bright future.

Undergraduates in 58 dormitories delegate the management of their kitchens to the ASC which hires a chef, buys the food, provides dietary supervision, insures quality control, maintains records and trains food handlers.

Students pay from $220 to $310 each semester for food services. For these prices students receive three meals a day, five days a week, plus between-meals snacks.

Kent Banning, coordinator of the University dining halls, reports that the ASC units provide well-balanced meals, high in nutritional value. What's more, he says, students receive very generous portions– with seconds or thirds for most items.

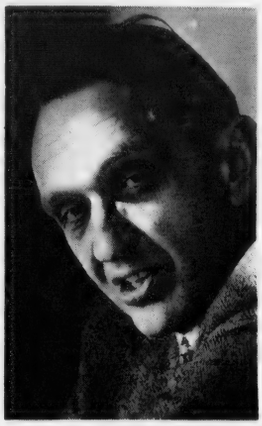
Mr. Banning also noted that ASC buys quantities of steak, lobster, roast beef, turkey and other dietary mainstays. At the same time, however, a liberal amount of hamburgers and hot dogs also are on the ASC menus because "that's what the students want."

This bulk buying — of both food and supplies — actually saves money for each of the dining units, says Mr. Duane. He also notes savings result from centralized accounting procedures, and the investment of extra capital. Last year, investments earned $19,000.

Each residential unit has control over its own menus and if the students don't like the fare – they change it.

Danforth lecturer speaks today

William R. Ewald, Jr., planner and development consultant, is on the Maryville College campus this Thursday and Friday as a Danforth Visiting Lecturer.



Mr. Ewald spoke on "Creating a Human Environment" Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Lounge. Friday at 9:20 a.m. he gave a Community Issues and Values talk on "Education: Rational, Irrational, Extra-Rational."

Ten years ago Mr. Ewald established an office in Washington to provide a personal consulting service to public and private decision-makers concerned with future development. His clients have included General Electric, the State of New York, President Kennedy's Appalachian Regional Commission, Governor Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas, Puerto Rico, the American Institute of Architects, American Institute of Planners, U.S. Public Health Service and American Society of Landscape Architects.

He commissioned and edited three major studies projecting the next fifty years: "Environment for Man," "Environment and Change," and "Environment and Policy."

In 1964 he wrote "Change-Challenge-Response," a sixty-year development policy for New York State. For the American Institute of Architects he wrote a basic part of "Creating a Human Environment," published in 1970.

Mrs. Ewald earned a Sc.B. degree from Brown University in civil engineering and did graduate work at the University of Michigan. He is a full member of the American Institute of Planners and of numerous other professional societies. In 1970 he was a Visiting Fellow at the Center for the Study of Democratic Insitutions at Santa Barbara, California.

William R. Ewald
Danforth Lecturer

The visiting lecturers program under which Mr. Ewald comes to Maryville was initiated in 1957 by the Arts Program of the Association of American Colleges, and is supported by a grant from the Danforth Foundation. Its purpose is to assist colleges in their efforts to strengthen liberal education. Each year several people of outstanding intellectual stature from this country and abroad are made available to colleges and universities. They remain on campus for two days or a week.

Debaters receive top ratings

At the Pi Kappa Delta Regionals held March 22-24, 1972 in Gatlinburg the Maryville College debate team received a certificate of excellence for their 4-2 record which resulted in a tie for second place in open debate. In this tournament the Southeastern Province combined with the Great Lakes Province resulting in representation of twenty-four schools from ten states.

The Maryville debate team is made up of Jerry Reed and Bob Cox. In over all sweepstakes points Maryville ranked in the upper one fourth of the colleges present. Accumulating sweepstakes points were Bob Cox and Kevin Russell in persuasive, Janet Vail in oral interpretation and after dinner speaking, and Jerry Reed in extemporaneous.

What's the role of a church-related college?

Nashville, Tenn.-(I.P.)- In the introduction to his pamphlet, "The Church College-the Church-Tomorrow,"

Dr. Myron F. Wicke, Associate General Secretary, Division of Higher Education, The United Methodist Church Board, lists the concerns about the church-related college:

1. Is it not time that all education should become a state function? Why should a church member be double taxed to maintain independent colleges?

The argument implies that education is education, a commodity, no more, and that it is pretty much the same wherever it is practiced. Education is necessary to keep the wheels of progress moving, but after that is said the subject has been nearly exhausted. The dual system of education – public and independent– is basically expendable, except perhaps for Alma Mater.

2. A second question follows from the first. What is distinctive about the church-related college? Is there anything more than rhetoric in the ancient phrase "Christian education"? Historically there were simple characteristics to be hauled out: compulsory chapel, special requirements in Bible and religion, rigid social regulations.

But these have largely disappeared or, like optional religion courses, are now available also at state institutions. In short, is the role of the church-related college so confused and confusing as to represent an anachronism, good for its day but no longer relevant to the present?

3. There is a third question, a product of our history, which troubles many people. Why do we have relationships with so many colleges? If there are cogent reasons for church-related colleges, why should we not support one — or at most two — in a state, make it superior by every standard, and eliminate all the rest or, more charitably, turn them loose?

4. There is a fourth question — among many others — asked primarily by those who have had enough and more of what they feel to be student excesses.

Why, they ask, should we spend one dollar of church money to support students today. Are they not quite beyond touching by the church?

Then there are the colleges themselves — faculty, students, administrators. These tend to judge the church by its failures, and wonder whether connection with a church is not a handicap.

If there is no definable vitality in church-college relationship, let us admit it openly and frankly. It will be good for our souls. If there is no honest case to be made for the church-college relationship, let us agree that our current connections are purely historical and traditional. Then let us act accordingly.

Where is truth to be found? It is clearly the moment of time in which the educational opportunity inherent in the church-related college should be reassessed and restated.

Teacher corps visits MC

By Leigh Thorington

The Teacher Corps Program, in Louisville, Kentucky, is an effort to develop better programs for teacher preparation and retraining and to improve the educational environment for pupils in low-income areas.

A representative was on campus April 13.

University coursework, classroom teaching, and community work combine for a vigorous program. All corps members will be engaged in a course of study to meet the requirements of the Master's degree and state certification.

Although much of the work is experimental in nature and integrated with field work experience, there are regularly scheduled university classes and attendance is expected. Credit will not be given for work until a stated competency is reached.

Applicants who have a good general education background will considered, but applicants should have a major or its equivalent in one of the following fields: English, math, social science, music, art, physical education, or science.

Additional information can be obtained from Mr. Booker Rice, Director, Teacher Corps, Brown Education Center, 675 South Fourth Street, Louisville, Kentucky, 40202.

A review

Orchestra shows versitility in recent concert

By Charles Craven

A wide variety of different musical selections was presented at the Orchestra Concert last Friday evening, April 7. The selections ranged from the Russian Sailors' Dance (from "The Red Poppy"), which began the program, to Schubert's Unfinished Symphony (No. 8 in b minor), which ended the first half, and finally to selections from "West Side Story," which concluded the concert.

Three of the program selections featured solos by Maryville College students. Two solos featured the organ and the viola, two instruments not commonly heard by themselves with an orchestra. Jeanne Dawe, a senior music major from New Wilmington, Penn., gave a conscientious rendition of Handel's Concerto in B, opus 4, No. 2 for Organ. Linda Rowe, who is a also a senior music major and who comes from Placitas, New Mexico, was impressive in her performance of the Concerto in b minor for Viola, also by Handel.

The emotion of a young woman sorrowful at the prospect of deceiving her lover was vividly conveyed by Delores Ziegler, a junior music major, in her solo O Mio Fernando from "La Favorita." With her vibrant expression and clear articulation, Mrs. Ziegler caused te listener to feel the sorrow of the piece, even though she sang in Italian.

Are church-related colleges "distinctively Christian"? The slogan of Temple College of Chattanooga reflects their feelings. For another point of view see the adjoining article.

Jesus festival held in woods

By Wiley Rutledge

Saturday afternoon several MC students gathered in the picnic area to, as they put it "Meet Jesus," through a time of informal worship and fellowship. The meeting began with people talking in small groups as a fire was built in the grill. After the fire was going strong, the group gathered together on blankets to share experiences and sing.

The festival comes out of the idea of informal worship, which removes all the trappings imposed by the Church and puts the concentration on a personal communication with God and a personal knowledge of Jesus Christ.

As the afternoon went on, the gathering became even more informal, as people began eating hot dogs, potato chips and marshmallows. The meeting broke up when people crowded into cars and went to First Baptist Church in Alcoa to hear the musical, "Natural High."

Honor society holds initiation

Alpha Gamma Sigma, honor scholarship society of Maryville College, recognized fourteen new members in a special program Wednesday.

The new members are: Thomas Coe, Cincinnati, Ohio; Emily Dowdy, Lebanon, Tennessee; Anita Ellen Gerra, Kensington, Maryland; Larry Alan Martin, Rt. 1, Walland; Sarah C. Miller, Rogersville, Tennessee; Kenneth R. Murr, Rt. 1, Rockford; William J. Postler, Cincinnati, Ohio; John F. Powell, Memphis; Nancy L. Rankin, Charlotte, N. C.; Mary Carol Robertson, Knoxville; Kathryn B. Schieber, Creve Coeur, Mo.; Deborah S. Stearns, Dayton, Ohio; Carol Weston, Maryville; and Richard H. Wilson, Maryville.

Alpha Gamma Sigma was organized at Maryville College in 1934, and the provisions and requirements are parallel to those of the older national honor society, Phi Beta Kappa.

Each year the alumni members of the Society elect a number of the highest ranking seniors for membership in the society.

The purpose of Alpha Gamma Sigma is to stimulate interest in intellectual and cultural pursuits and to recognize and encourage sustained academic achievement.

There are three kinds of members in the Society: Active members, who are regularly enrolled students of senior classification and who meet certain clearly established standards; associate members, who are members of the faculty and staff and are members of Phi Beta Kappa; and honorary members who are elected from among graduates of Maryville College and have won special distinction for achievement in literary, scientific, educational or social fields.

Irving honored

Dr. Evelyn U. Irving, Visiting Professor in the Foreign Languages Department of Maryville College, has recently been named to the Executive Board of AIMAV.

AIMAV is an international association for research and diffusion of audio-visual and structural-global methods in language teaching.

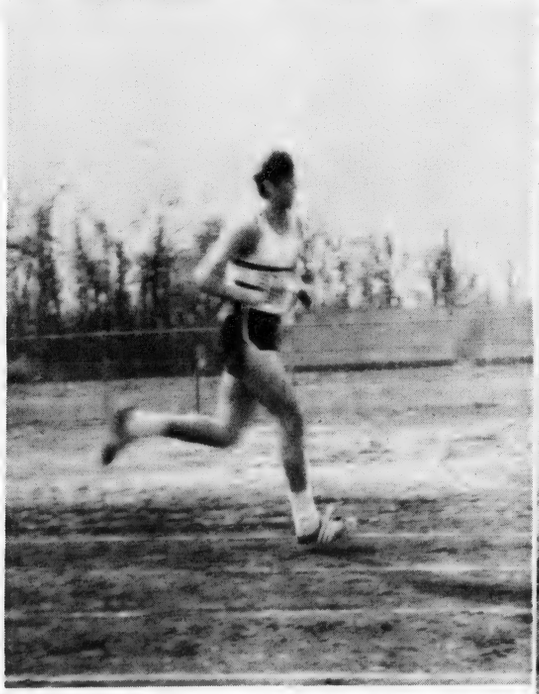
SPORTS

Thinclads drop opener

The Scot thincleds went on the road last Wednesday to Sewanee. They were handed a 93-51 defeat for their first outing of the 1972 season.

Coach Gerald Hasty said he was proud of the team's Performance in spite of the defeat by the tough Tiget tracksters. Hasty feels the team will have the motivation to win now.

The Scots held their own through the field events. Pole vaulter, Robert Woolfe, jumped into second spot. Also, the Scots took second and third in the javelin.



In the broad jump, Chip Pusey lept for a surprise first place. Walt Cross followed with a second. Triple jumpers, Buddy Lewis and Steve Maggio moonlighted in the triple jump. They took second and third.

The Scots came close to sweeping the shot put when Rick Livernoise and Doug Robinson took the top two spots. In the high jump, Walt Cross captured first place. At the end of the field, the score 32-26 in favor of the Scots.

In the distances, Freshman Buddy Lewis placed third in both the mile and three mile runs. Finishing behind a strong Sewanee distance squad. Walt Cross and Cip Pusey jumped into second and third for the 120 yd. high hurdles.

The outstanding running event of the day was the quarter mile run. Senior Tom Piper swept pass rivals getting revenge for last year's defeat at Maryville.

In the sprints, Eddy Hill and Jeff Hamilton placed John Dewrey took a third in a fast 880 yd. run. Freshman Jud Stone salvaged a third place for the Scots in the Intermediate hurdles.

Buddy Lewis, freshman from Morrisville, Pa., stretches out in the three mile run.

1972 Scot Tennis team

Netmen get bad bounce

Last week the Scot netmen fell behind, dropping three of four giving them a record of 3-5.

Tuesday, the Scots lost a close one to Western Carolina, 5-4. Tony Willis and Mike Portz collected victories in singles. The Brooks-Vessells and Willis-Westbrook match-ups won in doubles.

Thursday the Scots came through against Milligan College, winning impressively, 8-1. Ward Brooks, Tony Willis, Skip Vessells, Malcolm Westbrook, and Mike Portz all won in singles. First and second board doubles were victorious, as was the Rael-Portz team.

However, on Friday afternoon the Scots had more than games, and giving them a record of 3-5.

UT-Chattanooga. The Moccasins showed str ength on all boards, sweeping the match, 9-0.

Saturday the Netmen suffered another setback at the hands of Hope College, being defeated 7-2. Ward Brooks won in singles, and Rael and Portz came through in doubles.

Although at first the statistics look depressing, it might be added that cold, cloudy weather has been a deteriorating factor. Coach Kardatzke is pleased with the team's progress and feels they have been playing well. He also is very pleased with the individual progress of Tony Willis and Mike Portz, who are really starting to play well.

This week the Scots had two home matches, on Tuesday and Wednesday, and one away match Thursday. Tomorrow the Scots will compete in a quatiangular match at Danville, Kentucky's Centre College.

Doug Robinson tosses the shot against Sewanee's Tigers

Men's Intramurals are wraped-up

New men's intramurals this year is swimming. The men rounded out the winter term with swimming and wrestling events.

Here are the results:

Swimming

Butterfly—Jim Batchler; Breaststroke—Meade Bradshaw; Free style 50 yard—Mark Baxis; 75 yard—Mark Baxis; Backstroke—Meade Bradshaw.

WRESTLING

Weight Class: 134—Roy Adelman; 142—Andy Hovanec; 150—Jeff Ference; 177—Randy Minor; 190—Bill Baggett; Heavyweight—Dennis Marino.

Commissioner Semple has announced that upcoming intermural events include first a Powerlift meet to be held Friday, April 15. Scheduled for the first part of May is a track meet. Also in May will be held an off-campus Intermural Banquet, where championship trophies will be presented. More about the time, cost, and place later in the ECHO.

Tremont

(continued from page 1)

early in her freshman year, stresses the chance to get away and live with the mountains. Jan Welton, who will be a fulltime instructional assistant next year at the center, agrees. She sees the Tremont setting as not only a well-equipped educational center, but a retreat for hiking, studying, and spontaneous activities — a place of "beautiful mountains, streams, and peace."

One act play presented

Wednesday night Stephen M. Ayers directed a one act play, "Moon," as part of the requirements of the directing acting class taught by Mr. Jones this term. Throughout the term all the students in the class will be producing one act plays of their choice.

The directing-acting course has no prerequisities and is open to everyone who is interested. The director can choose anyone who trys out for a part and is not limited to other students in the class. The aim of the course is to give students experience in both acting and directing therefore little emphasis is placed on set design and make-up.

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES

Announces A New Two Hour Trail

(for experienced riders only)

SPECIAL RATES FOR PARTIES

Large cabin available for Weekend Parties. Transportation furnished from Maryville College for cabin rental or overnight trips.
For information call Townsend 448-6411.

bank of maryville

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | Friday, April 21, 1972 | No. 22

Spring's here!

The weatherman knows the exact date of the arrival of spring. But to most people spring does not arrive till the weather warms up and flowers bloom. One of the first real signs of spring is when the Dogwoods blossom

Dr. Roberts Rugh to speak at CIV

Dr. Roberts Rugh, distinguishied embryologist and radiobiologist, will speak on "From Conception to Birth, The Drama of Life's Beginnings" at Maryville College Friday, April 21, 9:20 a.m.

A member of the Bological Effects research staff of the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Radiological Health in Rockville, Maryland, Dr. Rugh investigates the possible impact of microwave and ultrasonic radiations on embryo development.

Dr. Rugh went to the Bureau from the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Columbia University in New York City, where he had studied radiation biological effects since 1949. He was appointed to Columbia's College of Physicians and Surgeons to direct an Atomic Energy Commission supported research program in radiobiology with the title of Associate Professor and later Professor of Radiology. He retired from the university last year.

Dr. Rugh received his B. A. and M. A. degrees from Oberlin College in Ohio. He received the Ph.D. in biology at Columbia University in 1935.

A member of 14 scientific societies, he is listed in Who's Who in America, Who's Who in the East, American Men of Science, Leaders in American Science, Who's Who in Education and The Blue Book of Scientists of the World.

He has written more than 220 publications including six books on embryology, biology and radiology. His most recent book, "From Conception to Birth, The Drama of Life's Beginnings," was written in collaboration with Dr. Landrum B. Shettles of Columbia University and published by Harper and Row. It is soon to be published in England.

Dr. Rugh is the brother of Mrs. Harry B. Price whose husband is chairman of the department of Economics at Maryville.

Circle K has service projects

The Maryville College Circle K Service club sponsored a work day this past Saturday involving four different projects. The projects were cleaning out the fish pond, bottle recycling, planning a ping pong tournament, and selling cokes and hot dogs at the carnival. Another creative project which is in the plans is showing old flicks at Friday night supper.

Circle K has had a very successful membership drive and invites any male student to become a member. They are also interested in finding out ways from all segments of the MC community how they can better serve the campus. Put your suggestions in the circle K post office box.

Senior articles due Monday

Monday, April 24, is the deadline for senior articles. All contributions must be typed and in box 2820 by 5:00 p.m. These articles will be published in the final issue of the Echo. Individual compositions are intended to mirror the senior's last four years at Maryville College.

Members of Circle K clean fishpond

New ACC seeks student interest

By Debby McClain

According to the new student members, a promising future for All-College Council in '72-73 largely depends upon the interest and support of the student body.

Alice Hook, senior psychology major from Knoxville, Tenn., and co-chairman of the newly elected body, sums up the responsibility of the students by saying, "we, as student members of ACC, will have the opportunity to vote on policies, but we will be meaningless figureheads without student support. This interest and support must be shown by attending the ACC meetings, Town Hall meetings, and through active committee work."

Vaughan Kennedy, a senior political science major from Columbia, Tenn., feels much the same way as the new co-chairman. She adds that her main objective as a member of ACC is to be an active representative of the student body by discovering the problems of the students and by presenting these suggestions or complaints to the council. Lance Dunaway, senior political science major, completes the senior representatives.

Various answers were given as to why the members ran as ACC candidates in last week's election. Sophomore representative Amy Dickerson, whose main interest tends toward psychology, admits that her nomination was somewhat of a surprise, but, "Since the students had that much faith in me, and thought that I had something to offer, I felt that I should continue to run for membership."

Junior sociology major Todd Trumbore of Ashland, Ky., feels that there are many possibilities for growth and change in ACC, and he wanted to be a part of this transformation. Todd, along with Gil Nicholas, represents the junior class on the council.

MC hosts science meeting

Maryville College was host to the Easter Regional Meeting of the Collegiate Division of the Tennesseee Academy of Science Saturday.

Colleges participating in the program were: Maryville, Lee, Lincoln Memorial, Bryan and King. Michael Hanks of Lee College presided.

Four Maryville students — Kathy Peterson, Kathryn Schieber, Emily Hager and John Weeks — participated in the program.

Dr. David Young addressed the group on "On Our Way to the Future, Science is Changing the Rules of the Game."

AGS holds reception

Alpha Gamma Sigma held its annual recognition reception on Thursday, April 20, in the Fine Arts Center Lounge.

Those students attaining the Dean's List during two of the past three terms were honored for this academic excellence. Dessert, in the form of ice cream sundaes, was provided by the active and associate members of the society for some one hundred and fifty eligible students.

Editorial

ACC changes urged

This last week was the election of next year's All-College Council. It is the time of year when most organizations take steps to continue their existence. The ACC has taken this action.

Judging from the lack of interest in this year's ACC, just continuing is not enough, however. Now is the time to take more positive steps if it is to gain support.

We'd begin by selecting the ACC committees now rather than during the summer. The committees are called the working arm of the ACC. But it's hard for them to work without some continuity. Spring selections would provide this continuity.

Besides lacking continuity, the current method of selecting committees sometimes lacks credibility. A cloak and dagger atmosphere seems to surround the selections. Besides being undemocratic, current procedures do not generate interest. We cannot help but feel a more public procedure would create more credibility in the ACC, if not more support.

At present, the ACC does not generate much enthusiasm among students. If it is to be an enduring institution, it cannot remain a surface organization as it has in the past. Instead, it must extend itself by creating more interest. With the current structure, the committees are that extension agent.

With these ideas in mind, we feel the necessity of placing much more emphasis on the selection of committees.

It's the right time

The student mouth

By Rick Mitz

It's not the shaggy hair nor the bell bottoms nor the love beads nor the tie-dyed shirts that give the student his image. It's his mouth.

The student mouth is a complex creature. It can shout at demonstrations, whimper through Love Story, gasp in horror at the atrocities of war. But none of these gives us away as students. It's the Meaningful Dialogue — the zig-zag big talk and the spaced-out small talk — that makes the student mouth — from tooth to lip — the unique organ it is .

Being a mouthy student, I decided to investigate the subject. I decided to get right to the throat of the problem. I asked a student what he perceived student language to be.

"The stud lingo? Man, that went out with the fifties. Rapping isn't where it's at, man. It's a big head trip. And you've got to have a good head in order to have a good mouth. Dig? Got the scene? It's a regular high."

Suffering from a regular low, I decided that perhaps the best way to investigate student language was to observe it. I wangled myself an invitation to the Student Life Seminar Workshop party and picked up a few mouthy tid-bits there.

I walked through a beaded doorway and introduced myself to a tall, skinny, pock-marked girl. "And who are you?" I asked.

"Who am I, you ask?" she asked. "I could tell you I'm Delores Shlumple. That's true. True, I am Delores Shlumple. Yes. Yes. You've probably already guessed: of the famour Newark Shlumple family. Some people call me Dee. But who am I really? I am the sun. I am the moon. I am a strange concoction of whatever you wnat me to be and what I am not and what I would like to be. I am my famous father's daughter and he is my son. I am a complex of complexes. According to my analyst, I am a profound combination of Jocast and Oedipus, searching, searching, searching for the right womb. "Say," she said, pausing. "Who did you say you are?"

"What are you doing here?" a bespectacled, be-bearded fellow said, grabbing my arm. "Why are you wasting your time when there's a war going on, killer? People are starving in Africa, glutton. Women are discriminated against, chauvinist pig. Education needs reforming, dummy. There's crime in our big cities, criminal. The plight of the migrant worker, racism, the drug problem. And you're sitting here at a party."

"But so are you," I pointed out.

"That's different," he said. "This is my party. Excuse me." He walked over to another guy. "What are youd doing here? People are starving in Africa, glutton..."

"Far out, man," the kid answered. "Like, um, like, well, like, y'know, groovy, wow, like man, like I can't relate. It's a real bummer and like all that but, wow..."

I had had enough. Between all the relevance and relating, the head trips and the dead trips, I decided to like split. I marched right out of the party to the beat of a different bummer.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 Maryville College Maryville, Tennessee

JOHN POWELL
Editor

BOB EICKELBERG
Business Manager

NANCY RANKIN
Managing Editor

DR. CAROLYN BLAIR
Faculty Adviser

THE HIGHLAND ECHO is published by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

Parting shots

Animal cruelty cited

Editor's note:
Parting Shots is a column of opinions. Differing viewpoints on campus issues are presented by various people.

By Patti Shelton

On Saturday morning, April 8, several members of our staff were told that some residents of Dorm III had clubbed to death and then cremated a duck from the pond on the college farm. This action supposedly took place on the preceeding night. We really didn't want to believe even this isolated story of cruelty, but as the day progressed, the reports got worse.

We began to ask other Dorm III residents and were told repeatedly that these same people had also mistreated some of the campus dogs as well as other ducks. Still, these were only word-of-mouth reports, so we went to Dorm III, where we found that the people involved in these incidents had quite freely admitted their part in them to anyone. Also we took a photo of one of the dead birds, charred almost beyond recognition.

The first step after gaining what little evidence we had was to find out to whom the duck belonged. After several telephone calls, we learned that it was the property of the Smith Mortuary, an ownership that made these animals private property and the taking of them theft. However, there was little the mortuary could do without eyewitness proof.

Next we called several members of the faculty, biology professors mainly, feeling that they would be equally concerned — and they were. They also felt that we needed more proof, so several students have volunteered to spend time at the pond with a camera and any instances of cruelty on campus will hopfully also be recorded.

We realize that a constant watch can't be kept on all the animals in this area. We can only hope that, if these stories are true, the students at MC will let their disgust with these actions be known and so protect a lot of vulnerable animals.

A review

Heide play subtle

By Kathy Meier

In his choice of 'Moon' by Robert Heide, Steve Ayers has produced a play of great potential. This one-act seems to have lent itself to the necessities of uncomplicated staging and lights.

The simplicity of setting was good contrast for the involved pyschological dialectic of the couple played by Tom Williamson and Pat D'Alba.

Heide has captured the hip-intellectual life style in the first part of his play but hasn't let the characters date or limit the story. "Sam and Sally" could be any blase intellectuals who are losing speed and sense of purpose. To escape despair, they act out spontaneous fantasies which also help to lighten the mood of the play.

With the entrance of the other couple, Ingrid (Melissa Collins) and Harold (Scott Ross), plot starts to develop. Ingrid and Harold are absurd horrors wrapped in evil. Ingrid seems especially malevolent as she tortures Harold into a confession of his crime of murder and plays cat and mouse games with Sam, obviously with claws showing.

The last visitor is strangly preoccupied in spite of his symbolic gift of fresh bread. He tells Sam his name is Christopher and in a flash of comprehension both characters and audience see the true significance of the evenings events.

The fact that the audicence is never quite sure about the symbolic identity of the characters is a refreshing change from the overt, massive Christ-figures of recent years. Heide cloaks his theme in a camouflage made up of vague allusions and coincidence which makes the sudden recognition more explosive- and rather apocalyptic.

Poetry

Saturday night

By Bill Martin

I met a drinking girl one smokeless night
With stagger walk and silly, silly laugh—
Her daylight's spotlight is so out of sight—
Then why is beauty cut by drink in half?
Her radience does shine from in and out—
From figure graceful to a smile within,
These facts no one could possibly doubt—
Then why is beauty cut by drink within?
But everything must bow to this, our fun—
And, yes — let's lift our glasses higher still—
No hope for headache when the night is done!
My toast is "beauty"— don't think of the bill.
I cannot think what more there is to say
And not a syllable is left to play.

German festival succeeds

Last Saturday, April 15, 16 students and two professors attended the First Annual Spring Festival of the National Federation of Students of German at the U-T Knoxville campus. Many other schools from all over Tennessee, Junior High - College level, also participated in the event.

The day started off with group singing and getting-acquainted sessions. Lunch was served on the U.T. campus and knockwurst and sauerkraut was the fare of the day.

After lunch, competitions were held in various events including readings, skits, songs, instrumental solos, dancing. Maryville accumulated quite a number of awards.

Kevin Higgs, Thomas Barber, and Jennifer Moore presented a skit and won first prize in the college level. They are certainly to be congratulated for their fine performance. Mary Robertson won first in the cake decorating contest. The dancing group under the able leadership of Rick Smock and Mr. Lukner won second prize in a close competition. Other Maryville students also won prizes and we are all proud of them.

Vespers held

The Blount County Walk for Development will be a feature of the vesper service on Sunday at 7:00 p.m. in the Little Chapel. Slides will be shown and the projects for the walk discussed.

The HIGHLAND ECHO invites readers' responses in the Letters to the Editor column. To be published, letters must be placed in Box 2820 by 12:00, Monday, of week of publication. All letters should be typed and must be signed.

New science program is finally revealed

A new science program, designed for students with a commitment toward getting involved in the measures necessary for improvements in the quality of life in our society, has been announced by Maryville College (Maryville, Tennessee.)

The program involves new patterns of contact between the science departments and the social sciences and humanities departments. "Modern science must be taught on an interdisciplinary basis," explained Dr. Malcolm M. Willey, Maryville's academic executive officer.

In devising the new science program, the faculty started from the premise that society is going to have to solve some basic technological and environmental problems.

Dr. David Young, chairman of the Chemistry Department, said, "We also have become aware that the solution will not be simply a scientific and technological one; it will involve social values in a most fundamental way. The task of integrating the physical sciences with other areas of meaning and value will be the challenge of the coming decades."

Basically, there are two directions which can be taken by students who study science at Maryville. First, there is the direction of preparation to become a practioneer of science. Second, there is the direction of those who recognize that for them to play an effective role in society requires knowledge of the structure, possibilities and value orientation of the scientific endeavor — persons who will be involved in areas such as social work, vocational rehabilitation, education, law, business, the ministry and as a housewife (or, with all due respect to Women's Lib, househusband)."

The strength of the past — pre-professional studies in the basic sciences and preparation for medical careers — will still be at the core of the new program. The three new areas of concentration will serve as focal points for student who want individualized majors involving interdisciplinary contact between science and other areas of the liberal arts.

The four programs are: a program in pre-professional studies; a program in behavior; a program in environmental quality; and a program in science values society.

The pre-professional studies encompasses the college's present majors in biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics and psychology. Although the major emphasis in each area is on the basic fundamentals and learning the process of logical and dynamic thinking, there are numerous opportunities available for interdisciplinary contact through team-taught courses and team-directed study.

The program in behavior centers on the fundamental principles of animal and human behavior. Through the study of topics such as motivation, emotion, learning and personality, an interdisciplinary approach is taken toward the understanding of patterns of behavior in individuals, groups and societies, whether they be of man or animals.

There are two focal points in the program in environmental quality: the scientific techniques and knowledge fundamental to and understanding of basic ecological principles; and the sociological, economic and political ramifications of the proper management of the world's limited resources.

The program in science, values and society is concerned with the ethical, social, religious and legal implications of the continued advancement and use of the knowledge of science and technology. "Because of the rapidity of the gain of new knowledge and its power to influence the cultural patterns of man, we feel that considerable attention must be given to possible futures before they happen," Dr. Young said.

"The ultimate goal of an education is to be in a better position to be involved and to act," Dr. Young continued, "To deal with our scientific and technological problems requires the poet or businessman as much as the basic scientist. No one group can do it alone. The basic goal of Maryville's science programs is to create a vechicle for the communication necessary for this task."

Beauty pageant held at MC

By Charles Craven

Tonight, at 7:30 p.m. in the theatre, the Annual Miss Blount County Pageant will take place. The Pageant is a beauty contest involving girls who live in Blount County.

Four MC coeds will compete for the Miss Blount County title. They are: Carolyn Graham, sophomore from Marshall, N.C., and co-captain of the MC cheerleaders; Morna McEver, junior from Atlanta, Georgia, and a member of the drill team; Pat D'Alba, junior from Newton, New Jersey, and moderator of the Sociology Club; and Lovie Turner, freshman from Jacksonville, Florida.

Philip Steele, our Affiliate Artist, will narrate the Pageant. Mr. Steele recently returned to Maryville College for his third visit this year.

Carolyn Graham

Morna McEver
not pictured: Pat D'Alba, Louie Turner

Band to give concert

The Maryville College Concert Band will present a concert this Thursday evening, April 27, at 8:15 p.m. in the chapel.

The concert will feature 1968 graduate Margaret Mann, who is now with the Lyric Opera Company of Chicago.

The concert will also honor the newly selected members of Tau Kappa Chi. Tau Kappa Chi is an honorary music organization with its members being selected on the basis of academic excellence.

The following students have been selected for membership: Jim Colpitts, Jim Buxton, Jean Dawe, Warren Gaughan, Janet Welton, Pam Faulkner, Christine Sterner, Tina Bergner, Linda King, Ruth Ladner, Judy Loeffler, Sue Sterling, and Robert Wertine.

Lili Chookasian is 'Abraham' soloist

Metropolitan Opera contralto Lili Chookasian will return to Maryville College May 18 to sing a solo part in the world premiere performance of Richard Yardumian's "The Story of Abraham." Miss Chookasian was on the Maryville campus two years ago to perform a solo part in Yardumian's Mass in English, "Come, Creator Spirit."

Possessor of a voice most frequently described as "opulent" and "sumptuous," Lili Chookasian is in the words of the Chicago Tribune, "A true contralto — an authentic member of a tribe so rare as to be almost non-existent."

Far from being non-existent, Miss Chookasian is virtually omnipresent: she has appeared in concert, opera and recital from Rio de Janeiro to Soviet Armenia. On records she is frequently heard as soloist with the orchestras of New York, Boston and Philadelphia.

Chicago-born and trained, Miss Chookasian was first noted nationally after critical raves from a summer concert with her home city's orchestra in Grant Park. A singer of lieder and oratorio, she made her operatic debut in Little Rock, Arkansas, as Adalgisa in Bellini's "Norma."

A tape of the performance was played for Thomas Schippers, who asked to hear the young artist in person and promptly engaged her for Gian Carlo Menoitti's "Festival of Two Worlds" as well as for performances of Prokofiev's "Alexander Nevsky" with the New York Philharmonic.

The subsequent recordings of this work focused wide musical attention on Miss Chookasian and the following year, in 1962, she made her Metropolitan Opera debut as La Cieca in Pochielli's "La Cioconda."

Miss Chookasian has sung consistently at the Metropolitan in new as well as standard operas. She created the role of Maharani in Menotti's "The Last Savage."

She was selected by Menotti and "borrowed" by the New York City Opera Company to sing the title role in Menotti's "The Medium."

In 1970 Miss Chookasian, who appears regularly in the great music centers of the world, was heard in "Gotterdammerung" at the Salzburg Easter Festival. She also appeared at Portugal's Gulbenkian Festival in Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis" and at the Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires.

During the past year, her American tour included appearances with orchestras in such cities as Los Angeles, San Francisco, Toronto and Montreal.

Married to George Gavejian, Miss Chookasian has two sons and a daughter.

A second performance of the oratorio is scheduled for May 19 at the Koxville Civic Auditorium. Anshel Brusilow will conduct the Dallas Symphony Orchestra for both performances. The premiere was originally scheduled for November 1971 but was postponed because of a strike situation involving the Dallas Symphony Orchestra.

A review

Giselle is a success

By Sue Bailey

Last weekend two receptive audiences relished a full-length performance of the classical ballet, Giselle, by the Van Metre Dancers and a number of MC students. This romantic ballet, first produced at the Paris Opera in 1841, is an increasingly popular part of the ballet repertoire. Based on a sentimental theme, with a colorful peasant scene and a concluding atmosphere of haunting unearthiness, Giselle is enhanced by a dramatic musical score.

The Van Metre Dancers, under the skilled directing of choreographing talents of Cheryl Van Metre, did not fail the potential of Giselle. The students gave evidence of dedicated practice and, for the most part, were poised and well-coordinated.

The ballet gave evidence of some very fine talent. The most emphatic plaudits must be extended to Elaine Armfield, playing the peasant girl Giselle. Miss Armfield distinguished herself with a polished and graceful performance, enhanced by the feeling she injected into the role. Another notable performance was the characterization of Myrtha, the Queen of the Wilis. Sarajune Owen received an enthusiastic response from the audience for this role, as she seemed one of the most assured and precise of the dancers.

One cannot neglect the eight MC students who formed the male characters of Giselle. Kent Marshall and Bill Gimbrede, in particular, complemented the female dancers and the total ballet.

Pro and con of Comps discussed

By Wiley Rutledge

The question of comprehensive examinations, commonly known as comps, has been a wide open one on campus. Most of the commentary on comps has been negative, and most of it has come from the students. In an effort to secure a different perspective on comps, this reporter recently conducted an interview with Dr. Walker, chairman of the History department.

The first major point that Dr. Walker made in relation to comps is they are the only way that a student can bring together four years worth of knowledge. This, she contends, is vital for a thorough understanding of the subject matter in a particular major.

Undergraduate Record Exams (URE) are required by most graduate schools, she pointed out, while at the same time they give a student an opportunity to compare his standing in a field of study with other students across the nation. Since UREs are part of the comprehensive exam system as it stands now, scrapping of the system would require elimination of UREs.

On the subject of students opposing comps, Dr. Walker mentioned several cases where former students who had been opposed to comps before they took them have written back to her urging that comps be retained. She suggested that the student who opposes comps violently is usually very close to taking them and stated that he or she would be in a better position to evaluate comps after the grades are in.

In response to a question regarding fear of comps, Dr. Walker stated that a good deal of the opposition to comps may indeed come from fear. She pointed out that this fear is understandable, but largely unfounded.

She expressed the belief that most students will pass their comps, usually with an A or a B. After a question regarding student performance, she showed the URE grades for last year's 12 graduating history majors. Five of the 12 were above the nintieth percentile, one had a grade of 100 plus, and only one was below the national mean. This, she felt, is indicative of the fact that most students do better than they feel they will do.

Another reason for maintaining comps, Dr. Walker said, is the fact that students will be facing this type of test in graduate school, and those who have had comps are often grateful that they have had the experience before.

Also, comps give each department an indication of how well they are imparting their subject matter. She felt that comps can show each department when they need such things as a cirriculum change.

SPORTS

Baseballers are up

The Maryville College baseball team ran its record to 5-0 by outscoring Emory & Henry 9-2. Earl McMahan was the winning pitcher as he scattered 6 hits and struck out 3. Brad Hague collected 2 hits and drove in two runs for the Scots. Dan McKinstry, Joe Bilella, Leon Hart, and Dave Clinton each drove in a run also. Maryville traveled to Milligan Saturday, April 15, and hosted Milligan Monday, April 17.

Track team are victors

Friday afternoon Maryville College hosted Bryan for a track meet. The Scots won the meet 83-62.

In the 100 yd. dash Eddie Hill took first place with a time of 10.65 and Jeff Hamilton followed in second at 11.0. Hamilton won the 220 dash in 23.2, and Hill took third in 23.9.

Tom Piper took the 440 yd. dash in fine style, beating his nearest competitor by 2.6 seconds. Piper's time was 51.6. In the 880 run, John Drewery took third place with a 2:8.4 time.

Maryville won the 440 relay by a two-second margin, clocking it at 45.5.

In the mile run, Buddy Lewis captured third place with a 4:49.5 time. Lewis took second place in the three mile run with a time of 16:59.5.

Chip Pusey went away with a win in both hurdles competitions. In the 120, Pusey won with a time of 19.6. Judson Stone took third place at 21.0. Pusey also clocked in at 1:02.5 in the 440 hurdles, followed by Stone with 1:3.5.

In field events, Mike Haas topped the competition in the javelin contest, hurling it 184' 11". Andy Weissing placed third with a 150' 7" throw.

Rick Livernoise came up seond in discus with a 116' 5" mark. Livernoise also placed second in shot put, thrusting it 45' 5½". Doug Robinson took third with a 43' 2½" throw.

Bill Postler placed second in highjumps, clearing 6' 2" and Walt Cross followed in third at 6' 0". In the broad jump, Postler claimed another second, leaping 18' 1½". Chip Pusey jumped 16' 9¾" to take third.

In pole vaulting, Woolfe placed first, clearing 11' 6" and Malcolm Westbrook finished second at 9' 6".

Bill Postler took first place in the triple jump at 40' 3". Steve Maggio placed third.

Tennis team wins part of matches

Last week the Scots netmen faced five opponents, and defeated one of them.

In a home match Tuesday, the Scots downed Temple 8-1. Tony Willis, Skip Vessells, Steve Rael, Mike Portz, and Malcolm Westbrook won in singles. All three doubles matches were taken by the Scots.

Wednesday, the Scots were not so lucky. Carson-Newman handed them an 8-1 defeat. Only Tony Willis was able to pull out a victory.

Thursday, in Athens, Tennessee, the home of Tennessee Wesleyan, the Scots fell 7-2. In singles, Malcolm Westbrook won, and Rael-Poetz took their match in doubles competition.

Saturday, the Scots traveled to Danville, Kentucky, to play Xavier University and homestanding Centre College. The Maryville men dropped both matches.

Battling in high winds Xavier downed the Scots 6-3. Willis and Westbrook collected singles wins. Rael-Poetz won in doubles.

In the match against Centre the winds became so strong that two doubles were cancelled. In the doubles match that was played, Rael and Poetz won. Skip Vessells downed his opponent in singles. Centre won 5-2.

Firefighters quench flames in N.C. blaze

The Maryville College Fire Fighting Brigade finally got their chance to prove themselves. They answered a urgent request for men from Lloyd Foster, director of Tremont, to help fight fires near the North Carolina border late Sunday night.

As it turned out, most of the Brigade's contributions were in the cleanup area, extinguishing any small pockets of fire left by the initial crews.

Those who risked their lives (riding through the mountains with driver Wildman Pusey isn't easy) were: Chip Pusey, Dave Russell, George Boronow, Rick Livernoise, Walt Cross, Bob Cox, Rich Gaunt, Todd Trumbore, Chuck Wineland, Jeff Sauerwine, Jim Westbrook, Jim Saint, Rod Adams, Doug Griest, Bill Kenney, Ted Stewart, Malcolm Westbrook, and Jeff Ference.

Intramurals play softball

By Irving Wertz

Softball is the current sport in men's intramurals. With the coming of spring, team play is in full swing. To date, the results are:

Independents	19
ETPA	17
Screwballs	14
Nads	11
Sledges	15
Screwballs	7
M. Jocks	9
Sunnies	8
Independents	18
Southside	8
Screwballs	20
Salty Dogs	7
Sledges	20
Nads	3
Bent Nails	11
M. Jocks	10
Independents	20
Kappa Phi	0

Minority rights protected at Dartmouth

Hanover, N.H.-(I.P.)-Special safeguards for the rights of minority groups on campus have been built into a new judiciary system for undergraduates approved conditionally by the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at Dartmouth College.

At the core of the new system and constituting the primary arm of the CSC would be a 10-member Central Committee composed of an appointee by the president, three members of the faculty elected by the faculty of arts and sciences, the dean of the college, and five students.

Three of the students would be elected by the entire undergraduate student body. Black students would elect one of the remaining two members and Indian students the other.

The Central Committee would serve as a clearing house for all matters within the jurisdiction of the CCSC (College Committee on Standing and Conduct); would adjudicate all cases of academic standing; and would hear and resolve cases of conduct, except when a student requested a hearing before one of the judiciary panels.

In cases of doubt, it would also determine whether a case were a matter of academic standing or conduct. It was pointed out by Professor Agnar Pytte, chairman of the faculty Committee on Organization and Policy which prepared the proposal, that 95 per cent of the student cases coming before the CCSC each year involve academic standing. Therefore, he said, the Central Committee would handle the bulk of the cases under the new system.

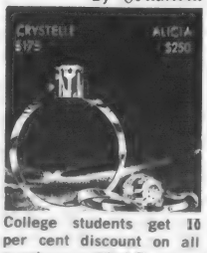
A central feature of the proposal revising the CCSC would be the establishment of three separate judiciary panels which students concerned about possible prejudice or lack of understanding could convene if desired in cases involving charges of misconduct.

One judiciary panel would be available for black students, and student representation on that panel would be elected by the black students at Dartmouth. A second panel would be available to American Indian students, and the Indian population on campus would elect its student members. Students on the third panel would be elected by the student body at large.

Each of the panels would be composed of eight members — four students, three faculty and a non-voting chairman.

A student choosing a judiciary panel to hear a conduct case could designate which panel he wished, and once made, his choice would be final. To fill out the panel hearing his case, in addition to the three elected student members, a student could select from the Central Committee one of the five student members and three officers of the college from among the five faculty and administrative members on the committee. The eighth member would be the president's appointees on the Central Committee, who would chair the panel.

Byrne Drug Company



Drugs and Cosmetics
120 E. Broadway
Free Delivery
982-1461

Tender Thoughts
Mother's Day Cards & Posters
POTPOURRI
P.S. LAMP OIL IS NOW IN

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE
Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Remember the one you love with flowers from
HARTMAN'S FLOWERS
204 Washington
Phone 982-7500

Tipton Jewelers
See our outstanding selection of diamond rings . . .
By Columbia

College students get 10 per cent discount on all purchases with I.D.

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES
Announces A New Two Hour Trail
(for experienced riders only)
SPECIAL RATES FOR PARTIES
Large cabin available for Weekend Parties. Transportation furnished from Maryville College for cabin rental or overnight trips.
For information call Townsend 448-6411.

Part Time Now
Full Time This Summer
$300 Weekly Average
Must Be Able To Communicate Freely
Car Necessary
Knoxville-Maryville Area
We train you; no experience necessary. You will be able to go full blast by summer for personal interview. See Mr. Armstrong at the Dean of Students Office, 10:00 Saturday.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 No. 23 Maryville College Maryville, Tennessee Friday, April 28, 1972

Ward Brooks, ACC Co-Chairman, inspects the newly re-opened Pearsons dining hall

Pearsons dining hall opens

In the process of assessing fire damage, M.C. officials were surprised at the relatively undamaged condition of the back dining hall and kitchen.

The temporary roof has kept the area from further deterioration so that insurance inspectors can make an accurate assessment of the fire. This roof also enabled the college to repair and utilize the undamaged part of the building.

Dining in Pearsons is more convenient for the workers and cuts college expenses.

Building authorities stated that the building met safety regulations and issued the college a ninety day permit with extensions up to thirty days available. The time limit is a formality which enables the authorities to recheck the building at intervals. M.C. students can expect to continue to use the Pearson's Dining Hall for the remainder of the academic year.

Plans for summer school dining arrangement are uncertain. If building begins soon after the insurance settlement, dining facilities will be set up else where.

The insurance settlement is progressing with all possible speed. Both M.C. officlas and insurance inspectors have been dependent on engineers and contractors assesment of actual damage and cost of rebuilding. The College has replacement insurance which does not mean, however, that Pearsons must be rebuilt in its original turn of the century style.

Miss Ware cooks in Pearsons again

After nearly nine weeks of food service in the gym, the dining hall in Pearsons has been rejuvenated and opened for business. Although there have been mixed reactions among students, there is at least one person on campus who is unequivocally joyful about the reopening of Pearsons: Miss Ware views the occasion with relief.

"Frankly, 'I'm delighted and thrilled," said Miss Ware after the opening. From a personal point of view, it was hard for her to leave Pearsons. For thirty-six years, the building had been her home, and naturally she had a feeling of displacement after the fire.

Miss Ware feels an even greater relief from a professional point of view. She cited the many inconveniences created by serving food in the gym – the tremendous expense and waste of paper products, the cost of renting the truck to transport the food, and the absence of "the small niceties we had taken for granted, such as china plates, glasses, silverware, and trays." In general, she commented on how good it was to finally get "food, people, and equipment together again." She also mentioned how grateful she is for the use of the gym and how fortunate it was that such a facility was available.

As far as the physical condition of the building is concerned, Miss Ware commented on the vast amount of work that had to be done to the interior of Pearsons. She said it was a miracle that the workmen were able to get the building in such good shape. Work is still being done; right now the wiring must be reworked so that the steam tables can be put to use.

Miss Ware feels that most students are glad to be back in Pearsons. She said they have been very cooperative, and she quotes one student as saying that "it's like coming home!"

Guidance conferences held at MC

High school guidance counselors from five state attended the Guidance Personnel Conference at Maryville College this past weekend. States represented were Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina, Florida and Pennsylvania.

The purpose of the conference was to provide the counselors with a first hand look at Maryville College and to acquaint them with the unique opportunities that are available to students on the Maryville campus.

The counselors were enteretained at a buffet dinner Thursday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. James N. Proffitt.

Friday's program included a faculty-student panel discussion, campus tours, free time to visit classes and talk to students, lunch at the Maryville College Environmental Education Center at Tremont, a tour of Cades Cove and dinner with President and Mrs. Joseph J. Copeland. Following dinner the group attended the ballet "Giselle" at the College Theatre.

Co-ed dorms are included in proposal

Meetings were held in the women's dorms last week to discuss housing arrangements for next year. Due to the Pearsons' fire, there will be a lot of homelss women so auxiliary housing has been planned. Next year, also, will see a price differential in the cost of residence life.

As presently outlined, women living in Dorm I and Davis will pay $400 per year for double occupancy. The exceptions to this are the guest rooms 105-107 in Dorm I which will be assigned only if neessary and cost $425 per year.

In Margaret Lloyd, the cost will run $375 per year for double occupancy with rooms 103-104 priced at $400 if they must be assigned.

Co-ed living will again be in evidence in Dorm III with the same arrangement as we now have (room 108, 109, 110, and 112) at a cost of $400 per year for men and women.

Additional women's housing will be the Thaw Hall Apt. (the Rodriguez apt.) for six girls at $400 per year and Willard House (the Brahams' house) with 14 spaces also at $400 per year. It has been suggested that those wishing to live in the auxiliary housing select a group to live with before drawing.

Options for the men have been provided in the form of Crawford House, located on MC property near the steam plant. Twelve men may live there at a cost of $400 per year. Memorial remains all men and will cost $350 for doubles.

In addition, Carnegie will open its exra apartment to seven girls at a price of $350 per year. The men living in Carnegie will also pay $350 per year except for a few choice rooms (see chart in dorm) going for $400 for a double.

Drawings for room assignments will be based on classes, with seniors ('72-'73) having priority. This drawing will probably occur around the second week in May.

Peterson receives science award

The third annual meeting of the Eastern Regional Tennessee Academy of Science (Collegiate Division) announced Kathleen Peterson, senior chemistry major at Maryville College, winner of their award for best chemistry presentation at a conference held recently on this campus.

Ms. Peterson's presentation, "Preparation of long-lived radicals in clathrates and liquid crystals," utilized both slides and models in a seminar previously heard at a NSF convention in Blacksburg, Virginia.

The talk covered work done under a National Science Foundation grant at the University of Alabama during the summer of 1971.

Rob Randall poses for camera as he and other students enter new entrance to dining hall.

Editorial

Co-ed dorms emphasized

According to the proposed housing changes discussed in the last ACC meeting, co-ed dormitories are part of Maryville College. Necessity is called the mother of invention. In our case, it is the mother of co-ed living.

While we won't extend the metaphor further, it is obvious that the Febuary burning of Pearsons Hall is housing after effects. Currently, a shortage of housing exists. To accomodate women on campus, the first floor of Dorm III and the Carnegie Apartment are expected hold about fifteen women. As the guinea pigs of this new life style, they have drawn the ire of the evicted men.

While co-ed dorms are popular with most students, they lose their appeal when self-interest is involved. There is a touch of irony here.

Despite these objections, we feel that something postive can come out of the emergency doubling-up. Most of the female residents of Dorm III have shown that there are no major problems involved in co-ed living. People of different sex and different opinion have agreed on the positive appeal of such an arrangement as in Dorm III.

To some people, the co-ed dormitories conjures up a vision of sexual promisicuity. This vision is not part of the reality of life in Dorm III. Such a theory falls apart in practice.

The traditional dormitory structure does not meet the needs of many residents. If on campus living is to be retained, and we feel it should, then dorm structure must change. The most important change coming out of the housing crisis is a shift to co-ed dormitories.

As the emergency fades, some people will want to return to the traditional living arrangements. They would disregard all change. But there are too many positive aspects of the co-ed structure to reverse policy. We hope that the positive legacy will be retained.

It's the right time

180 days in prison

By Rick Mitz

My best friend is going to prison in five days. We don't know exactly where he's going. There's been talk about Missouri or Michigan or Minnesota. But it will be a work camp or prison. We do know that he'll be back in six months — 180 days. And nights. We don't know what he'll be doing; what he'll be remembering or forgetting; if he will be permitted to read out letters in their entirety, or censored, or at all. We do know that he'll be separated from his wife and family, the few people he cares about, his job and his education.

And why? Because he refused to step forward. Or because he stepped forward.

After being denied a conscientious objector deferment, he was drafted. On induction day, he refused to step over that invisible line that indicates one's willingness to go into the armed forces. Instead he stepped forward and said he would rather serve his country in another manner. Now he's going to prison.

At his sentencing two days ago, he stood before the judge in a routine Monday morning courtroom appearance. There were bigger things to adjudicate than the problems of a routine resister, and his sentencing took only a few short minutes. But the judge — one of the more "liberal" ones — made himself perfectly clear as he handed out the "standard" sentence: "You are hereby sentenced to six months in a federal institution and to 18 additional months on probation."

I could'nt understand it. It all seemed unreal. My only experience with courtrooms had been on television, in movies, in a Kafka novel. And my only experience with prison was none. I couldn't understand it. Why was this happening? Because my friend had refused to "serve his country."

I've thought a lot about that since Monday. I don't know what "serving one's country" means anymore.

I have seen quadraplegics — paralyzed from their necks down — who wear the living scars forever to remember how they "served their country." I have seen pictures of corpses of men who had "served their country." And I have seen men making decisions concerning the sincerity of others — judges, probation officers, members of draft boards — who are "serving their country."

My friend doesn't fit the stereotype of draft resister. He would never think of leaving the country, because he likes this country. He wants to serve the country — but in a way in which he can feel comfortable. Until he goes off to prison, he'll continue working at his job — a public service position helping blind people. So he has been serving his country, but in five days he'll have to stop so he can serve his country in prison.

It all seemed so illogical. My friend is mild and gentle and sincere. Old military men have written letters to draft boards attesting to this. His father — a military educator — has vouched for his son's sincerity. He has good credentials. But he broke the law.

At the sentencing, he was given one week to "get things in order. "Perhaps the judge should have given this country some time to "get things in order." Like priorities. I can't help but question the legitimacy of a country that puts men on trial to test their pacifism, their sincerity, their degree of opposition to a war. They did this to my friend. And he lost. I can't help wondering if there's a difference between serving our country and servicing our country. Why must someone's personal convictions lead to convictions?

I guess I'm thinking about all this now because I just talked to him on the phone. He's at work now, finishing up some final projects. He's delighted that they've promised to give him his job back when he returns. But a strange thing has happened to him: he's turned into a martyr. Not in his own eyes, but in the eyes of people he rearely talks to who've suddenly dropped over, invited him for dinner and turned his six-month sentence into cheap radical chic, with my friend in the role of folk hero. They are treating him with the same indignity and impersonality that the judge did.

I don't know what any of this means. But I keep thinking of the letter my friend wrote to his parents, how live in Italy. "By the time you read this, I'll be in prison..."

By the time you read this, my friend will be in prison. Where will we be?

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 Maryville College Maryville, Tennessee

JOHN POWELL
Editor

BOB EICKELBERG
Business Manager

NANCY RANKIN
Managing Editor

DR. CAROLYN BLAIR
Faculty Adviser

THE HIGHLAND ECHO is published by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

Former MC teacher returns to alma mater

By Charles Craven

Maryville College welcomes back Dr. David Briggs. He is teaching the evening course in remedial reading. From 1936 until his retirement in 1961, Dr. Briggs was Professor and Chairman of the Education and Psychology Departments.

In the 1950s, Dr. Briggs began some experimental work in hypnosis. At that time, he was the only person to practice hypnosis in the classroom. In April of 1958, an article with the headline of "Maryville Professor Hypnotizes Class" appeared on the front page of the Knoxville News-Sentinel. The article stated that Dr. Briggs "hypnotizes his students to make them forget all the deep-seated blocks in their subconscious minds so that they can more easily retain what he teaches them." Many of his students stated that the hypnosis improved their ability to concentrate. He has also used hpynosis susccessfully to help people cut down on their smoking and drinking.

But Dr. Briggs hastens to say that his study of hypnosis is not the most important work he has done. He says that it is now just "water over the dam." His real interst is in the field of reading and reading improvement. In 1939, he organized at Maryville College one of the first school reading programs in the South. Since then, he has continuously worked on such programs. After retiring from Maryville College in 1961, he went to Landor College, where for three years he was chairman of the psychology department. From Landor College, he went to Furman University, where he directed the elementary education program. While at Furman, he was a reading consultant for the area public schools.

Dr. Briggs enjoys recalling his student days at Maryville College. He remembers that in 1919, the year he graduated, tuition was $6.00 a term, board was $1.75 a week, and room fee was from $8.00 to $15.00, depending on the room. Dr. Briggs can sympathize with the girls who lived in Pearsons, as he was living in the original Carnegie Hall when it burned in 1916. (Incidentally, the Head Resident of Carnegie Hall at that time was Professor E. R. Walker, father of the present Dr. Walker).

As a student at MC, Dr. Briggs took part in many activities. He played on the football team the year Maryville beat Carson Newman 99-0. (Look it up in the History of Athletics at Mayville College if you don't believe it!) He also played on the basketball team that beat U-T and was a member of the track team. Outside of athletics, he was a member of the law club, the debate team, the "M" Club, and the YMCA. He was also president of Alpha Sigma and president of his class. Even in retirement, Dr. Briggs continues to stay busy. In addition to reading class and his hobbies of fishing and gardening, he has recently bought a farm near Walland, which he manages himself.

Clathsworthy solos in 'Abraham'

David Clatworthy, a leading baritone of the New York City Opera, will be one of the soloists for Maryville College's presentation of "The Story of Abraham."

Mr. Clatworthy attended the University of Arizona as a baseball scholarship student, but during his college years the former Metropolitan Opera baritone, Richard Bonelli, heard him and persuaded him to study music seriously.

Upon being graduated from the University, and after two years' active duty as a officer in the U.S. Army, Mr. Clatworthy enrolled at the Juilliard School of Music and Columbia University where he received his Master of Arts degree. At Juilliard he studied with Hans J. Heinz.

In 1962 Mr. Clatworthy joined the roster of the New York City Opera. He has been heard there in a vareity of roles ranging from the Count in Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," to the leading baritone roles in the contemporary works of Stravinsky, Menotti Britten and Ginastera.

Other operatic appearances include recent performances in San Francisco, Houston, Fort Worth, Mobile, the Central City Opera Festival and the Chautauqua Festival.

Mr. Clatworthy is equally at home as soloist with orchestra, and his recent credits include the Boston Symphony, the Detroit Symphony, the Baltimore Symphony, the Philadelphia Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic and the American Symphony Orchestra.

His versatility extends to solo apperances with many leading choral societies, among them being the Schola Cantorum which was at Maryville College last fall.

Mr. Clatworthy has appeared in television productions on all three major networks and has recorded for Vanguard, Mercury and RCA Victor.

The world premiere performance of the Yardumian oratorio, "The Story of Abraham," will be in Wilson Chapel on the Maryville campus May 18 with a second performance the following evening at Knoxville Civic Auditorium.

Meetings have history topic

The Maryville College history faculty met recently with interested area high school and junior high school teachers to organize a cooperative program aimed at stimulating historical interest in the schools and community.

Various programs were discussed. They included: presentation of papers for mutual enrichment; a history of social studies fair; a history prize in recognition of achievement at the junior high school and high school levels; and tests to distinguish and properly recognize outstanding students.

Those present were: Rufus Pannell, Melba Richardson, Gordon Horner and Pat Blaine from Maryville Junior High School; David Berry from Alcoa High School; Maurice Long and L. G. Hutchens from Everett High School; Gladys King from Walland High School; and Drs. Arda Walker, Marjorie Kratz, Wallace L. Lewis and Russell D. Parker of the Maryville College Faculty.

1971-1972 Drill Team

Drill team tryouts held

Tryouts for the 1972-73 Scots' Brigade Drill Team will be held on Thursday, May 4, 7:00 p.m. in the gym. In order to tryout, gilrs must attend both practice sessions next week, to be held on the golf course from 4:00 to 5:00 on Monday, May 1 and Wed. May 3. In case of rain, sessions will be held in the PE buildng.

A preliminary meeting was held on Monday, April 24 in Lloyd basement. Those who are interested in trying out for Drill team may obtain the instructions and suggestions which were handed out at that time from either Captian Eleanor Murrah or sponsor Mrs. Lucy Proffitt.

The Drill team was a popular addition to the parades and half-time activities at 1971-72 sports activities. It is anticipated that over ½ of the 1971-72 group will be trying out for places on next year's group. During tryouts, girls will be judged by a panel of 5 judges on their marching ability; co-ordination, timing, and rhythm; poise; appearance, including smile, facial expression, and posture; attitude and teamwork; and, aptitude at learning a routine.

The Scotch Brigade Drill Team is a two year old organization whose purpose is to work with the band in football half-time entertainment, aiding in spirit and enthusiasm.

Development Walk planned

By Debby McClain

The American Freedom from Hungar Foundation (AFHF) has come to Blount County in hopes that concerned citizens of Maryville and Alcoa, plus students of Maryville College, will join together in the "Walk for Development.'' This organization, founded in 1961 by the late President Kennedy, is an entirely volunteer committee, supporting the worldwide Freedom from Hunger Campaign of the UN, to combat hunger both at home and abroad.

The first Blount County Walk for Development is scheduled to begin at 8:00 a.m. on Saturday, May 13, 1972-rain or shine. This 20-mile walk will form a circle starting at the college, proceeding through various neighborhoods in the Maryville-Alcoa area, and ending once again at MC. Several churches and agencies will act as check-points along the walk to serve refereshments and validate walker's cards.

Those from MC interested in walking should secure an application and set of rules from the Chaplain's office. Each participant must have at least one sponser who is willing to pledge an amount of money per mile walked and validated. It is hoped that each walker will attempt to complete the 20-mile streatch, but for those who are unable to do so, transportation from check-points to the college will be provided. Every participant is encouraged to check in early in order to be validated before the walk begins.

The funds raised from this walk will be divided into three areas. The first 42.5 per cent will go to help Peace Corps volunteers, who are working along with local villagers in Niger, to stop the critical problem of land loss due to the Sahara Desert's constant Southern shift. Experts, working in this area, predict a massive famine within 10 years, if the present loss rate is not stopped. Therefore, the AFHF money will help to provide various equipment and materials to combat this situation.

The next 42.5 per cent will go towards a domestic project centered in Blount County. A community van will be purchased and equipped to serve the Blount County area. This van would be invaluable for transporting senior citizens to the various programs, taking students to the Parkside and Alcoa tutoring programs, assisting the Boys Club in moving to a new location, and many other suck services. Future uses for this van may be a possible "Meals on Wheels" or mobile toy library for underprivileged children.

The final 15 per cent raised will go to the AFHF to help develop and organize other walks in concerned areas. Therefore, it is hoped that a large representation of concerned MC students will participate in the "Walk for Development.'' Students are reminded to promptly collect the money after the walk and turn it in to Rev. Harrison.

Oops!. . . a mistake

In the interview with Dr. Walker that appeared last week, there was inaccuracies in quoting her in some places. She did not say that most students taking comps would bet As or Bs, but rather that the grades on the UREs for the history department last year were the equivalent of As and Bs. She emphasized the fact that she cannot speak for the whole school, and was only speaking for the history department. Also, it is not UREs that are required for graduate school, but rather GREs (Graduate Record Exams.).

Kinsinger holds recital tonight

Dr. Dan H. Kinsinger of the Maryville College Music Department will be presented in a faculty recital Friday, April 28 at 8:15 p.m. in the Music Hall. Robert Bonham, also of the Music Department, will be Dr. Kinsinger's accompanist.

A string quartet will accompany a group of songs, "Wenlock Edge Cycle," by Ralph Vaughan-Williams.

The program also will include four serious songs of Brahams, five Venetian songs by Faure and "Siegmund's Liebeslied" from "Walkure" by Wagner.

Dr. Kinsinger, who received the Doctor of Musical Arts degree in the performing arts in voice from the University of Illinois, has been a member of the Maryville College faculty since 1954. He performs as soloist in many area programs including the annual performance of "Messiah."

Dorm mourns

Mrs. Pearl Cathy, long-time house mother for Dorm I, passed away Saturday morning April fifeenth. Mrs. Cathy was also house mother in Pearsons for many years prior to Dorm I's construction.

The girls also want to plant a dogwood tree in front of the dorm because of Mrs. Cathy's love of flowers and trees.

Giving blood isn't bad!

By Wiley Rutledge

In case some of you who gave blood (and some who didn't) wonder if there's anyone besides the Red Cross you can give your blood to, the answer is yes. Bloodthirsty, Inc. is one of the major private concerns in the country accepting donations of blood.

Their procedure is really quite interesting. After you are escorted into one of their clinics (if you are walking anywhere within two blocks of one, you will be "escorted" into one) by the giant (usually named Igor), you are briefly questioned by one of the nurses. If you know your own name, you are accepted to give blood–even if you don't want to.

After you have been interviewed, you are taken into the room where you actually give the blood. There you will find a technician ready to take the blood from you and an ex-football player or ex-wrestler ready to hold you down on the table. After you have been placed (often by the wrestler) on the table, the actual process of taking the blood begins. A cut is made in your arm with an old razor blade, and a straw is placed over this cut so that the blood will run to an old pint bourbon bottle. When the bottle is full, the straw is taken off, you are given a piece of tissue to cover the cut, and you are on your way. That's all there is to it.

This article was written in fun, and of course there are no organizations that take blood the way that was described. But the fear of some people would make you think they wre going to go through something like this when they give blood. Fear is normal, but it's not necessary. It's too late this time to give blood, but if you didn't take the next chance you get. Don't be afraid.

Bob Millner entertains crowd at Fred Hope carnival.

Carnival helps Hope Fund

The Fred Hope Fund and carnival raised $173.71. Chaplain Harrison described the carnival as a good one for those who came. He said student and faculty support trickled in all day. The carnival was an attempt to raise money all at one time. Donations will still be accepted, however.

Chaplain Harrison has several pictures by Kim Robinson who donated them to the cause. Anyone interested in buying a painting would add to the fund.

The final sum will be divided equally between Bangladesh and the Sunset Gap Community Center.

Gandhi secretary speaks

Mr. Karnamadakala Sreenivasa Acharlu Radhakrishna (he goes by his last name for convenience), Secretary of the Gandhi Peace Foundation in New Delhi since 1969, was the CIV speaker on April 26.

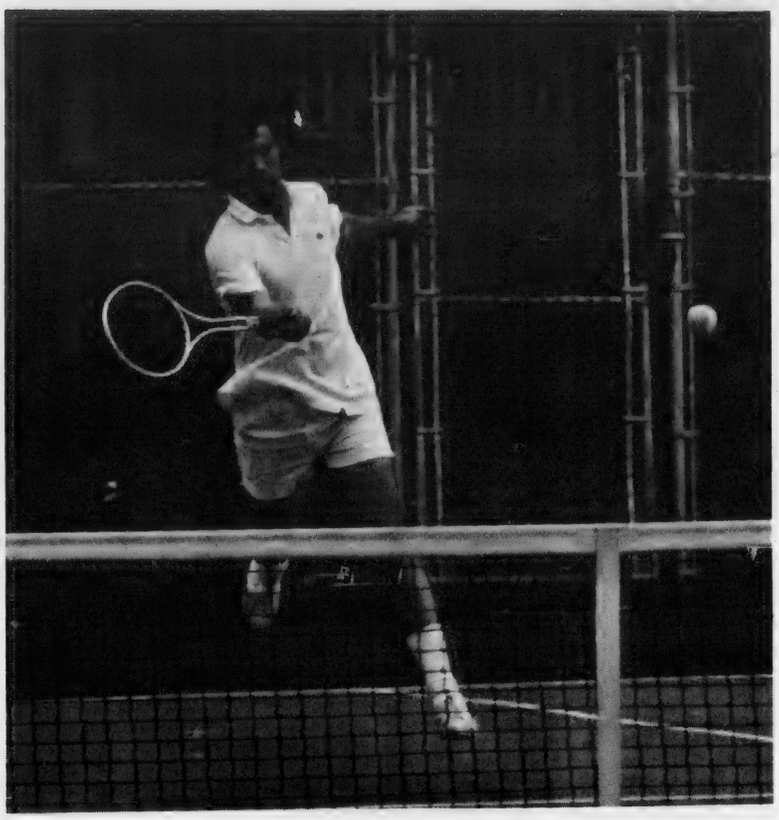
Mr. Radhakrishna has been active in various service committees and organizations. He served as General Secretary of Sarva Seva Sangh, the service organization of the Gandhian nonviolent movement for eight years, and was associated with the Gandhian Institute of Studies at Varanasi. His interest also extends over improvement of Indian education and development. In this area, he was a member of the National Board of Basic Eeucation and of the Task Force on School Education. He is currently involved in numerous other committees to further education, as well as serving as editor for People's Action, a monthly publication.

Graduating from Benares Hindu University in 1944, and later receiving a diploma in Teachers' Training, Mr. Radhakrishna then spent a term at the London Institute of Education. In addition, he visited centers of educational interest in Denmark, Germany, France, and Italy. Since leaving India, he has been an active participant in international seminars and as a guest speaker through the auspices of the American Friends Service Committee.

SPORTS

Baseball team strikes out

The baseball Scots have found the going rough in the last three outings. After six straight victories, the Scots have fallen victims to Milligan twice and to Tennessee.



In the first game of the Milligan doubleheader, Mark Brookes drove in both runs and Rob Randall did the pitching as Maryville eked out a 2-1 victory.

The second game saw Milligan gain a split as the Scots were guilty of seven errors. The Scots fought from a 2-0 deficit and led 4-2 but three consecutive errors allowed the Buffaloes to take a 5-4 lead and then hold on to gain the victory.

Monday, Milligan came here for a single game. The Scots gained the lead early but before long Milligan began stroking the ball and finally pounded out a 14-8 victory. For the Scots, Leon Hart had two hits and Dave Clinton hit a tremendous home run driving in three runs.

Thursday, U.T. completely outclassed the Scots, as they won 11-0. The Scot hitters were limited to five hits in the losing effort.

Next Tuesday the Scots go to Chattanooga to play Temple College. Friday the Scots go to Tusculum to tangle with the Pioneers. Saturday, May 6, will the close the Scots' home season as Temple will provide the opposition.

Tony Willis rams a volley.

Tennis team works hard

The Maryville College tennis team dropped two matches last weekend to Xavier, 6-3; and Centre, 5-2. Both matches were played in near gale force, causing cancellation of two doubles matches in the Centre match. Scot winners against Xavier were Tony Willis and Malcolm Westbrook in singles and the doubles team of Steve Rael and Mike Portz on default. Skip Vessells was the only Scot winner in singles against Centre, but Rael and Portz picked up another doubles win. Maryville's record is now 4-9 with four matches remaining. Malcolm Westbrook remains the team's leading scorer with 10 points.

Maryville vs. Xavier 4-16-72.

Thursday the Scot netmen traveled to Bristol where they downed the King College team, 8-1.

Ward Brooks, Tony Willis, Steve Rael, Mike Poetz, and Malcolm Westbrook scored victories in singles. Skp Vessells was forced to forfeit his match due to trouble with his arm.

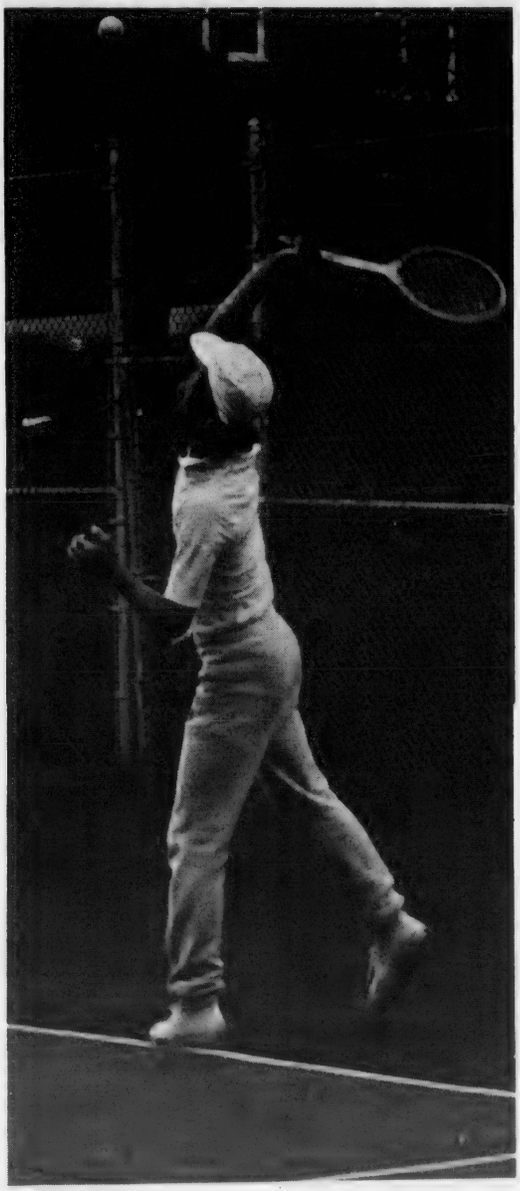
In doubles, The Scots again swept the courts. Brooks-Vessells, Willis-Westbrook, and Rael-Poetz all took their opponents.

Singles

Bill Mooney (X) over Ward Brooks (M) 7-5, 6-2; Tony Willis (M) over Robbie Thomas (X) default; Stan Beck (X) over Skip Vessels (M) 6-3, 5-7, 6-4; Ed Jacques (X) over Steve Rael (M) 6-1, 6-3; Mike Montgomery (XM) over Mike Portz (M) 6-1, 6-0; Malcolm Westbrook (M) over Greg Brinker (X) 6-0, 7-5

Doubles

Mooney-Montgomery (X) over Brooks-Vessells (M) 6-2, 6-1; Beck-Jacques (X) over Willis-Westbrook (M) 6-0, 6-0; Rael-Portz (M) over Brinker-Thomas (X) default.



Maryville vs. Centre 4-16-72

Singles

Steve Powell (C) over Ward Brooks (M) 6-2, 6-1; Steve Richardson (C) over Tony Willis (M) 7-5, 6-0; Skp Vessels (M) over Mark Lucas (C) 6-3, 1-6, 6-3; Mel Hershey (C) over Steve Rael (M) 6-2, 6-3; David Marye (C) over Mike Portz (M) 6-2, 6-2; Steve Daniel (C) over Malcolm Westbrook (M) 7-6, 6-3.

Doubles

Rael-Portz (M) over Oldham-Hall (C) 6-1, 4-6, 7-5.

Malcolm Westbrook slams back another serve.

Speech festival held

Ten members of the MC Forum will journey to Statesboro, Georgia, to participate in the Dixie Speech Festival this weekend. The events are wide and varied from puppetry to radio broadcasting and from Reader's theatre to extemporaneous speaking. Mrs. Lucy H. Proffitt will accompany the group as coach and judge. Students making the trip are Sue Drees, Janet Vail, Diane Wood, Martha Brown, Nancy McCleary, Mark Stoub, Howard Welsh, Paul Mygatt, Jerry Reed, and Bob Cox.

Remember the one you love with flowers from
HARTMAN'S FLOWERS
204 Washington
Phone 982-7500

bank of maryville

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES
Announces A New Two Hour Trail
(for experienced riders only)
SPECIAL RATES FOR PARTIES
Large cabin available for Weekend Parties. Transportation furnished from Maryville College for cabin rental or overnight trips.
For information call Townsend 448-6411.

free copies
of one of the world's most-quoted newspapers.
The Christian Science Monitor. Facts. Ideas. Solutions. That's what the Monitor is all about.
To prove this to yourself, send us the coupon. We'll send you the free copies without obligation.

(Please print)
Please send me some free copies of The Christian Science Monitor.
Name
Address
City
State Zip
Z4SEA
The Christian Science Monitor
P.O. Box 125, Astor Station
Boston, Massachusetts 02123

Dr. Blair is Academic Dean

Dr. Carolyn Blair, professor of English at Maryville College, has been named Dean of the College by unanimous action of the board of directors. The announcement was made Monday by Board Chairman Dr. James N. Proffitt.

Dr. Carolyn Blair

A native of Leeds, Ala., Dr. Blair has been a member of the English Department at Maryville since 1948. She will begin her responsibilities as Dean Aug. 1.

As dean, Dr. Blair will be the chief academic administrator of the college, working with all facult personnel on the formal instructional program.

In announcing the appointment, Dr. Proffitt said, "Dr. Blair has always been an effective and influential member ot the faculty and has maintained an excellent rapport with the students. She has requested that her new position not be completely excluded from teaching."

Dr. Blair received the A.B. degree from Alabama College and the M.A. and PhD. degrees from the University of Tennessee.

In 1962 Dr. Blair was appointed secretary of the faculty, a post she has filled ever since. She was active in establishing the guidelines and setting up the All-College Council the present system of governance at Maryville, and has been a member of the Council from its beginning.

During the 1965-66 academic year, Dr. Blair was selected by the faculty as one of two members freed from classroom duty to visit other schools and study their programs and organizations. Upon return to Maryville, she was one of the leaders in developing a revised curriculum and calendar based on the study.

Commenting on Dr. Blair's appointment, Maryville President Joseph J. Copeland said, "I am pleased that the Faculty-Student Advisory Committee and the board turned to our own faculty in making this major appointment. Dr. Blair is recognized as a superior teacher and a genuine leader in liberal arts education."

Students' response on learning of the appointment indicated Dr. Blair's popularity with the student body. One young man said, "This is the greatest thing that has ever happened to Maryville College."

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 No. 24 | Maryville College Maryville, Tennessee | Friday, May 5, 1972

Board approves new budget

The Maryville College Board of Directors, meeting in full session last week, adopted a 1972-73 budget of $2,879,000, an increase of $72,000 over the current budget.

The board also voted to place $250,000 of endowment funds recently received as a gift into The Common Fund, a fund organized for the purpose of enhancing the income of the endowment funds of colleges and universities. The action was taken in order to have the maximum support for Maryville's scholarship program.

In other action, the board received the faculty self-study required by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, an accrediting organization. A three-day survey will be made later this month by a visiting team from the association. The visits are regularly scheduled every 10 years.

Upon a recommendation from President Joseph J. Copeland and Academic Executive Officer Dr. Malcolm M. Willey, the board approved sabbatical leaves for four members of the faculty: Dr. Harry H. Harter, Dr. David Cartlidge, Dr. Elizabeh Jackson and Mrs. Victor (Sallie W.) Schoen.

Dr. Harter, professor and chairman of the Fine Arts Department, will spend the winter and spring terms in Europe studying the work and history of outstanding choral groups. He also will spend part of the time on the composition of a large score for choral presentation.

Dr. Cartlidge, associate professor of religion and philosophy, will spend the winter and spring terms doing research on non-canonical Christian documents in relationship to their own hellenistic background. He will utilize sources in his own library supplemented by materials in Boston, Atlanta and Nashville.

Dr. Jackson, chairman of the English Deparment, will spend the winter and spring terms on a project relating to a study of Tennessee speech. Part of her sabbatical will be spent in the preparation for publication of a portion of the British Dialect Survey.

Mrs. Schoen, associate professor of music, will spend the fall and Interim terms in study, preparation and presentation of a recital program. She will appear as a representative of Maryville College in New York, Washington and at other colleges.

Emory is down on termpaper service

Atlanta, Ga. - (I.P.) - Responding to a recent campus leafletting by an Atlanta term paper supplier, both the Dean of Emory College and the College Honor Council have issued statements condemning the use of term papers secured from outside sources and promising harsh penalties to any Emory student who would subscribe to their use.

Dean John C. Stephens' statement reads in full: "Recently announcements from outsiders have appeared on campus offering to sell term papers to Emory students.

"An early impulse might have been to treat such offers with the contempt that they deserve and to ignore them. But such an attitude would not take account of the immediate and strong indignation voiced by Emory students and faculty at this affront to the character and integrity of the Emory community.

"Protests and comments made to me emphatically underlined the fact that persons who engage in these activities are not welcome here.

"It should be made clear, however, that should any student in Emory College be so ill advised as to fall victim to schemes of this sort, his actions will be viewed with extreme disfavor.

New Dean will continue teaching

Is she going to teach? That is the question most asked of MC's newest academic dean, Dr. Carolyn Blair of the English Dept. According to this newest high administration source, the answer is yes.

"If I couldn't have continued teaching, I wouldn't have accepted the position," says Dean Blair. "I never intend to quit teaching."

To some, a teaching dean is a radical change. But Dr. Blair feels it is an excellent one and in keeping with MC's innovative academic policy.

"The Academic Dean can't do the job without knowing what is going on in the classroom," says Dr. Blair. "I'd be out of touch in about two years if I quit teaching," she concludes.

Dr. Blair plans to teach three courses next year including the combined freshmen History-English courses and Shakespeare.

Despite wisecracks referring to her as a "fallen angel," over her recent move to downstairs Anderson from the more heavenly third floor, Dr. Blair says she is ready to tackle the College's top academic job. "I'm looking forward to it," she says.

She feels that the dean's job involves a little of everything, but focuses primarily on curriculum. Also, she'll work with the other deans.

Dr. Blair is the second new dean recently appointed by MC. Dr. George Kramer, currently at Rutgers University, will begin duties as Dean of Student Relations next fall. Dr. Blair is pleased to have his help.

"We have a good situation here," she says.

The appointment of a woman has raised a few male eyebrows.

"My appointment was important for the role of women," Dr. Blair says. But she's quick to add that she is no fervent women's libber. She feels this facet of her appointment was not foremost in the selections committee's mind. At least, she hopes it was not.

To date, one of the problems Dr. Blair has encountered in her new problem-filled position is what title to go by. She cannot decide on the most appropriate title, and prefers to be called "the same old names people have been calling me."

When she assumes her duties about August 1, Dr. Blair expects more pressing matters to attend to besides title. She expects one of the first problems she tackles will be to try and iron out a more workable direct transfer policy for junior college students.

Knox rejects all-night visitation proposal

Galesburg, Ill. - (I.P.)- A 24-hour dormitory visitation policy for Knox College has been rejected by President Sharvy G. Umbeck because it "would not serve the best interests of Knox College."

His decision was disclosed in the form of a letter to Dean of Students Ivan C. Harlan, chairman of the Student Affairs Committee.

"In arriving at this decision," Umbeck said, "I am mindful of one of our basic principles of governance (endorsed by the Trustees, the Executive Committee of the Faculty and the administration, October, 1970):

"'Due cognizance must be given to restraints external to the College--other facets of education, such as secondary schools, graduate and professional schools, economic and social trends, mores of the local as well as the larger community.'"

Umbeck's letter added: "Furthermore, it is doubtful that adoption of this policy would significantly enhance the learning environment of this campus, and there is good reason to believe that the Development and the Admissions programs of the college would be adversely affected."

The 24-hour visitation policy, recommended by the Student Affairs Committee and endorsed by the faculty by a vote of 34-24, would have been restricted to upperclassmen and would have required parental permission regarding students under 21. Students in individual dormitory units would have set their own regulations regarding visitation.

UNI tries out new grades

Cedar Falls, Ia. — (I.P.) — A University of Northern Iowa faculty committee recently recommended a new grading system for UNI students. The proposed new system is a variation of the Brown University grading system, according to the UNI ad hoc committee on grading.

In a letter to the faculty, the committe said: "We have reached a point at which further evaluation and adaption of the Brown system, or any other, requires much broader faculty participation than any small committee can represent."

The committee's plan would eliminate D and F letter grades. In all undergraduate courses taken for grades, the grades would be A, B, C, and no credit. In all graduate courses taken for grades, the grades would be A, B, and no credit.

"An undergraduate failing to earn a C, or a graduate student failing to earn a B, would receive no credit toward a degree for his work in that course," the committee pointed out.

Editorial

Library theft cited

A funny thing happened in the MC library the other day. A student with an armload of books said she was ready to take the books without checking them out. The librarian had been delayed in waiting on the student. But the sutdent needed one more book. The librarian went to get it and found that it was stolen. The student who was ready to steal books found someone else had stolen from her.

Even without the irony involved, this story serves to point out the dilemma that the library is in. It points up people's attitude to the libary.

Losses from theft to the library are severely crippling. In a college situation, a library is more than a necessity, it is an absolute essential. While MC has one of the best college libraries in Tennessee, it is being destroyed by theft.

We hate to call anyone at Maryville a thief, but people who take books or magazines without checking them out are just plain stealing. In the "real world," that's what gets people in jails.

Most people at MC are not thieves, however. They just do not take time to think how much damage they do to themselves and the College when they take a book, then forget it somewhere. Some people just forget to take out books, and it's easy enough to do. However, we'd like to point out reasons to remember.

A number of people complain about the lack of resources in the library. They cannot understand how the loss of one book will damage anything. But losses are terribly expensive to replace. When funds allocated for new books are spent to replace stolen ones, then the resources are not going to be ideal.

With the loss of a government grant to colleges like Maryville, the library's over-tight budget must be stretched further. Sixty-seven books were taken during 1970. To date, several hundred unbound periodicals have been swiped and thirty-nine irreplaceable bound volumns of periodicals were ripped-off. The replacement cost of four single back copies of magazines would pay a year's subscription to a new periodical.

What do all these figures mean? They mean considerable time and frustration when sources are missing for a paper or Independent Study. They boil down to an inferior education.

Theft of books and periodicals from the library is too self-defeating to pass unnoticed. All the library can do is to assume honesty. Maybe that is asking too much from MC. If the library assumed dishonesty, it might install guards, cameras and alarms. We'd hate to see that happen.

People apparently hate to be bothered by checking out books. This attitude must change, or the open system will change. If MC continues to have a library, this change of attitude begins with you.

Parting shots

Evangelism questioned

By Chuck Cary

I recently heard the criticism directed at the Maryville College Religion department which stated, "They intellectualize too much and miss the point of religion."

The frightening aspect of this criticism is that this type of attitude is evident among many members of the collee community. I don't really want to ostracize the individuals who hold these views but instead relate what I feel the purpose of a good religion department to be.

First and foremost, Maryville has always maintained the status of liberal arts institution. Therefore, all respective diciplines must respect new truths and hold, as much as possible, to an objective course of study.

The religion department is no exception. Its purpose, like all others, is to inform, to educate, not to evangelize or dictate channels of personal salvation. In other words,it must continue to insure religious freedom in light of denominational barriers or ecclesiastical absolution. From this standpoint I feel the Maryville religion department has exceptionally well.

Another attitude which is prevalent is that we too often label wrongly or ineffectively that which we do not know or understand. Our religion faculty, by presenting a wide circle of religious beliefs, differing theologians, and an objective church history has given all areas of concern, from fundamentalist to radical, a place to start.

Religion is a highly personal and sensitive discipline. Very few religious people maintain strictly the same beliefs. Those who do and avoid conflicting opinions are in danger of growing stagnant and dogmatic in their feelings toward others of different religions. Certainly one's religious fredom and awareness are stifled in this case.

What is so important is that we continue to examine the subject matter, and in a personal way, apply the ideas we discover to our own existence. Subjectively speaking, religion has always been a combination of man's contemplative intellect and his spirit.

I would hope that Maryville College continues its liberal arts reputation by insuring religious freedom and by permitting not only the religion faculty, but all students as well, to pursue religious truth in an objective manner.

Editor's note:

Parting Shots is a column of opinions. Differing viewpoints on campus issues are presented by various people.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 Maryville College Maryville, Tennessee

JOHN POWELL
Editor

BOB EICKELBERG
Business Manager

NANCY RANKIN
Managing Editor

DR. CAROLYN BLAIR
Faculty Adviser

THE HIGHLAND ECHO is published by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

It's the right time

The Relevancy of relevance

By Rick Mitz

True Confession: I laugh at "All In The Family" and have gotten so used to growing up with Lucy on TV that I just can't cut the cord. I run the water while I brush my teeth. I use Tide. And two-ply toilet paper. Blue. With those little fleurs de lis on them. Because they match the motif of my bathroom.

I enjoy blazing fires in my fireplace. The last movie I saw was "Lady and the Tramp," which exploits women. My bottles are nonreturnable and I don't separate my garbage, which I burn in my blazing fireplace.

I just can't help it. I'm a failure at relevance.

There are, however, some things about which I am relevant. I don't have a snowmobile or a sable coat. But that's about it. I read the wrong things (Nash, not Yevtushenko). I eat the wrong things (meat, not brown rice). I enjoy the wrong theatre (Neil Simon, not Albee).

So what can I do? I am a product of an educational system and a biodegradable environment that makes me feel I have to take the pleasure out of the pleasure, the enjoyment out ot of enjoying. The product of a guilt-ridden culture where free-love means I always have to say I'm sorry.

But what's so relevant about relevancy anyway?

A while ago, I visited the University of Wisconsin campus at Green Bay — a college totally devoted to the study of ecology. There one student told me, "It's okay, but you feel guilty doing anything that's not relevant." I thought the remark was ridiculous. After a day there, I found myself checking the soap in the school lav soap dishes to make sure they were using the Right Kind.

So what is relevant? Bicycling? Good for the environment. Cuts down on air pollution. But I don't like bicycling. It's not good for my psychological environment.

And what is meaningful? It's the hey-day of the academic radical chic where everything must have a Profound Meaning; where anything more than a pair of jeans and a stereo system borders on decadence; where back-to-earth means back-to dearth.

Ecology, racism, women's liberation, war and the rest of the list are all important issues. Too often, it seems that it's not the issues that are significant but only the relevance of the issues. We feel guilty if we're not doing what's Right, and we feel Wrong if we're not feeling the guilt.

There are things — little and big — that can be enjoyed. For their own sake. And for no other reason. Too often the Relevance Regalia focuses only on what's not there rather than what exists.

For some people, perhaps, the patterns of smog formed from a dingy smoke stack might be aesthetically pleasing. That doesn't justify the polluting smog, but it creates a new and positive viewpoint where even the ugliness of pollution can have its own beauty.

Truthfully, I haven't resolved my own guilt feelings about being irrelevant. True Confession: In my city, "The Lucy Show" is on at the same time as the Evening News. So I sit near the color television — receiving radiation — ,and constantly recycle the channels back and forth from one show to the other. Last night, Lucy talked about the casualties in Viet Nam while Walter Cronkite put on a Charlie Chaplin costume and danced at a PTA meeting. It all evens out.

To Aurora

By Bill Martin

Hello, mighty prophetess firefly,
Your songs I hear while Venus lingers still,
Foretelling light over mountains peaking;
And your labors catch my eye
When sight takes note
The baby leaf of spring.
Ah, Aurora! I love your symphonies
Of dancing perfumed winds
And the solitude tinted blue of this day's chilhood love.
Aurora, may my treasurers at your feet be laid so open I may be to the Love that follows dawn.
And filled with its sweetness when we meet again.

Mich. students try ecology action

East Lansing, Mich. — (OI.P.) — Last year two Michigan State University students who were enrolled in a popular ecology course got the notion that they could help the auto industry in tis pollution abatement efforts.

Bill Vantine and Betty Blaske recruited seven other undergraduates and began a study of the Pollution Abatement Manpower Requirements in the Automotive Industry (PAMRAI).

The result was a 427-page report issued recently to Oldsmobile, General Motors Proving Ground at Milford, where the corporation's principal pollution abatement research efforts are centered, and MSU personnel.

Not the structured dissertation common to academia, it tells of students who picked their way through a series of frustrations.

But when all the data had been collected the PAMRAI students saw it cohere into a series of identifiable factors that helped account for the problem they were investigating.

They pointed to a series of specific skills that General Motors needed in building a more environmentally compatible car, and saw where Michigan State University could do more in developing those skills in the engineers and managers it sends to the industry. They saw how the scheduling of night classes, and the subjects offered, could do more.

Most importantly, however, they described two groups of people — ecucators and industrialists — with the same sincere concern about environemental pollution and with resources and information to share, but who don't seem to talk much to each other.

"We expected, and found, university faculty members who were convinced that the auto industry had made no effort to curb environmental degradation," Valentine wrote in the report.

"On the other hand," he said, "we found industry personnel voicing their complaints about the 'ivory tower intellectuals' of the university who knew nothing about business and profits.

MC prepares for Walk for Development

On Saturday, May 13, the first Walk for Development will be held in Blount County. People of all ages, all races, all economic and social stations will be joining together to express concern for mankind. A 20-mile hike has been laid out through sections of Maryville, Alcoa, and the county to let people see the various neighborhoods that comprise our community. The hike will begin at 8:00 a.m., rain or shine, at the college and end there for those who are able to complete it at varying times in the afternoon or early evening. The check stops along the way where hikers will get refreshments and have their cards validated indicate something of the community support for the project. They include First Methodist and New Providence Presbyterian Churches in Maryville, as well as St. Paul A.M.E. and First Baptist Churches in Alcoa. Other checkpoints are the Blount County Girls Club, WEAG Radio Station, Parkside Housing Project, and Dr. Homer Isbell's garage.

Each hiker will have at least one sponsor (the more the better) who will agree to pay so much a mile for the development projects. The funds raised will help in a forestation project in Niger to help contain the Sahara Desert and stave off famine, and to purchase a community van to serve the needs of the poor in Blount County. The May Madness Committee of the college has listed the walk as one of the events on the weekend schedule. It has been rumored that the college football team will walk the first mile before spring practice. Jim Colpitts plans to jog the Walk for Development. Hardy DeYoung and Pete Isenberg will have their entire scout troop participate. Chi Beta is going to attempt to participate as a group, and Circle K is encouraging its members to walk. Anyone can take part and if unable to finish the walk can get a ride back from any of the checkpoints. Literature describing the projects and the hike are available in the Chaplain's Office, as well as in the dorms.

Dr. Shields attends conference

Dr. A. Randolph Shields, chairman of the Department of Biology at Maryville College, and Andy Miles, assistant director of the Environmental Education Center at Tremont, attended a conference on environmental education at Henry Horton State Park this week.

The purpose of the conference is to formulate policies for statewide program in environmental education. Representatives from the state departments of education, health and conservation will be present.

Dr. Shields will also be in Washington later this week for a conference of the Directors of National Science Foundation's College Science Improvement (COSIP) grants. Maryville College is currently in a three-year NSF sponsored science improvement program.

Admissions seeks applicants

The Admissions Office is currently interviewing applicants for two positions as admissions Counselor. This is a full-time position, beginning early in the summer, and involves extensive travel during the school year. Any graduating seniors who are interested should contact Col. Taylor or Hal Laster in the Admissions Office.

Mr. Steele will present CIV

On May 10, Maryville's CIV will be the annual program given by the campus affiliate artist. Philip Steele, lyric bass, is ending his second year as Maryville's artist.

A scholarship student and graduate of The Juilliard School of Music, Mr. Steele has professional performing experience in opera, concert and oratorio. He is presently a member of the Metropolitan Opera Studio in New York City.

Affiliate Artists, Inc. is a coordinating force which brings performers and people together in ways which create new experiences for both. The artist spends a total of eight weeks each year in his appointed community making four or five visits of one or two weeks each. During the remainder of the year, he is free to pursue his professional career.

Many students remember the enjoyable program which Mr. Steele presented last year and will look forward to next wek's CIV.

Callahan speaks at CIV

Mrs. Sidney Callahan, author of several books about the modern woman, was the guest speaker for Maryville College's Community Issues and Values program Wednesday, May 3, at 9:30 a.m. She spoke on "Women's Changing Role in the Modern World."

Mrs. Callahan's book, "The Illusion of Eve: Modern Woman's Quest for Identity" (1965) has received national attention for its efforts to create a synthesis of values and insights from psychology and religion. It has been published in French, German, Italian and Spanish editions.

"Beyond Birth control: The Christian Experience of Sex" (1968) has been put into a paperback edition, "Exiled to Eden," and is used in many religion courses at different universities.

Her most recent book is "The Working Mother," published in 1971. She is also a regular national syndicated columnist.

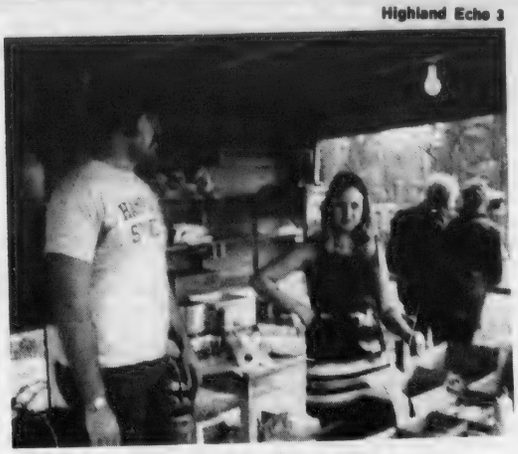
Mrs. Callahan maintains that the modern woman has more choices and decisions to make than any women before or since. However, they are poorly prepared to take responsibility and made decisions, she says.

Married to Daniel Callahan, author and philosopher, Mrs. Callahan received her B.A. degree magna cum laude from Bryn Mawr College. She is doing graduate work at Sarah Lawrence in psychology.

Church choir sings at Vespers

On Sunday, May 7, at 7:00 p.m. in the Chapel, vespers will take on a new form. The 50 voice youth choir of the First Baptist Church of Maryville will present a concert of sacred music. In addition to such familiar numbers as "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," "If I had a Hammer," and "Amazing Grace" there will be everything from Mozart's "Praise 'Ye the Lord" to Hairiston's "Elijah Rock." The most innovative section of concert will be a rock version of "The Creation' complete with drums, electric guitar and electric bass.

The youth choir is under the direction of Mr. Don Brakebill and is accompanied by the organist, Mrs. Don Rogers, and pianist, Mrs. Don Brakebill. Each year the group takes the week of spring vacation for a retreat tour. This year they sang in Athens and Gainsville, Georgia. In prior years they have sung in Kentucky, Florida, and Middle Tennessee.



New College formed at Ala.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.- (I.P.)- The New College, a new division of the University of Alabama, is influencing its students and the future of the University of Alabama by encouraging its members to incorporate their learning into a total lifestyle that reflects and satisfies their own individual needs.

This function is being accomplished as much by the students' motivation and response to the New College environment and concepts as it is by any administrative set-up. In fact, the truce success of the program is dependent upon the innovativeness and drive of the students in building and using the freedom New College offers.

The New College is based on the small school principle, having only 85 members at present out of a university of 13,000, and at full size it will have about 450 members. It was set in operation in the spring semester of 1971 with only 20 people.

Other features of the New College include a commitment to a cross-section of students in terms of admission with motivation as a primary concern, inter-disciplinary problem-focused approaches to general education, credit for out-of-class learning experiences, an opportunity to specialize and engage in independent study through the depth study program, and individualization of each student's academic plan through a contract-advising model.

Many people do different things in spring. Some work. . .

What happens to you in spring?

By Sue Bailey

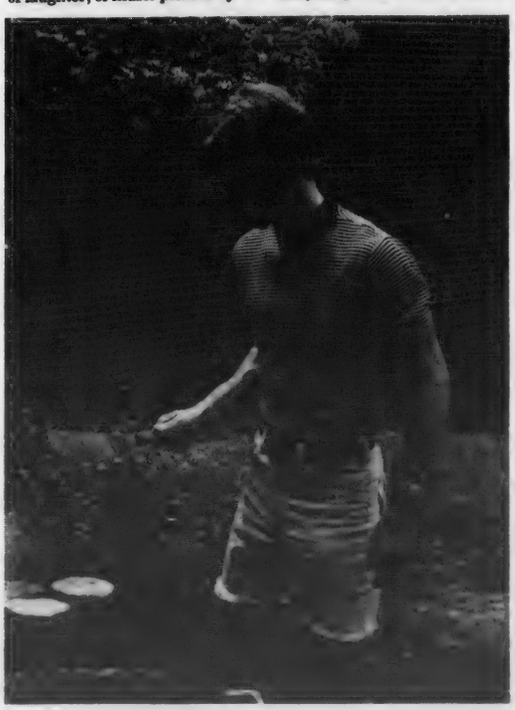
Spring has always been heralded as a very special time of the year – a season when, from the seemingly still and lifeless depths of the earth, the strange alchemy of spring creates new life. Today, with scientific explanations for the phenomenons of the season, we can promptly view as a myth the Greek explanation of Persephone's annual return from the underworld. But can we really explain what begins, what happens to us during Spring?

This is what a variety of student spokesmen contributed:

Spring is detecting whiffs of cut grass, honeysuckle, charcoaled (sometimes charred) steaks, baby oil, earth after a sudden shower.

Spring is becoming active–to get sore muscles from tennis, baseball, croquet, swimming, jogging, reducing-to-fit-into-swimsuit exercises.

Spring is feeling the sun on a bare back, fiery pavement under shoeless feet, ice cream slithering down a wrist, and the discomfort of poison ivy, insect bites, skinned knees and salmon sunburn.



Spring is catching the sound of birds, crickets, and frogs, of the wheezing breaths of labored air conditioners and the purr of fans, of laughter, of music pierced by a motocycle's buzz.

Spring is thinking about opening windows, mowing the lawn, writing people you miss, putting away the trappings of winter, losing weight, getting a summer job.

Spring is opening your eyes to all the atmosphere and discovering the living: the delicacy of a transient butterfly, dogwoods on lawns and hillsides, mummy-like larvae stirring in sheltered crevices, violets nestled among gnarled roots, frisky squirrels, a golden haze which on close inspection becomes a weeping willow, dedicated bees gathering pollen, couples with intertwined limbs, greenness so tempting that even the hesitant ignore "Keep Off the Grass."

Spring is wandering, in degrees, from the work or study we are supposed to be doing. It is a time for the young to play, a season both innocent and wanton.

A professor at the University of Ky. believes that, although spring is definitely a season of resurrection and of new life, it is also a time for the old. Old forsythia, old cows, old robins, old fish, and old people. Everything reacts "...to its subtle chemistry and its wonderful transcendent biology, and for a brief moment feel young, even if only in spirit."

some cook.

SPORTS

Track winds down season

The Scot thinclads traveled to Centre College in Danville, Ky., last week to close out the regular season. They placed second in a three-way meet with Centre first and Ashbury College a poor third. Centre took an early lead and held it throughout the meet.

In the 440 yd. relay, the Maryville team of Hill, Hamilton, Wolfe and Piper took a close second. John Powell was third in the mile. Tom Piper recovered from the opening relay to win the 440 yd. dash. Both Hill and Hamilton came back from the relay to place third and fourth in the 100. They held their same places in the 200 later. In the three mile, Powell took second. The mile relay team of Hill, Hamilton, Wolfe and Piper rounded out the running events with a victory over the opposing runners.

In the field, Rick Livernoise and Doug Robinson took one ad two in the shot put. Livernoise came back in the discus with a fourth place. Mike Hass tossed the javeline for a first place. Bob Wolfe pole vaulted into third spot.

The tracksters finished the season with two victories against one loss in dual meets. In two tripele meets, the thinclads were se ond. Today and Saturday, the Scots are at Murfreesboro for the State Track Meet.

Netmen win 3; drop 1

Last week the Scot tennis team face three opponents, defeating two and bowing to one.

Tuesday, the Scots entertained the netmen from Emory and Henry. The Wasp team left victorious, claiming a close 5-4 victory. In singles Skip Vessells, Mike Portz, and Malcolm Westbrook scored wins. The Brooks-Vessells match-up took a triumph in doubles.

On Thursday the netmen traveled to Dahlonega, Georgia, to play North Georgia. The Scots swept the competition 9-0. Ward Brooks, Tony Willis, Skip Vessells, Steve Rael, Mike Portz, and Malcolm Westbrook all won in singles. Brooks - Vessells, Willis-Westbrook, and Portz-Rael won the doubles.

The last home match was Saturday when Maryville played host to Transylvania College. Brooks, Willis, Vessells, Rael, and Westbrook chalked up single victories. Brooks-Vessells won in doubles. The final score was Maryville 6, Transylvania 3.

The team travels to Cookeville, Tennessee, May 5-6 to compete in the TIAC tournament. Senior Ward Brooks will be playing his final tennis for Maryville. As the Scots' number one player he compiled an 8-10 record, winning 4 out of his last 5 matches. Malcolm Westbrook carries a 13-5 record to the TIAC and Tony Willis is 11-7.

Students for Bangladesh relief organize

WASHINGTON, (APRIL 17).... "In lieu of bombing and killing people in Vietnam we should use the equipment in Indochina to save lives in the starving nation of Bangladesh," stated the presidents of four U.S. student organizations.

"The urgency of the situation in Bangladesh and the immediate necessity to halt the massive killings in Vietnam dictate that the people of the United States stand-up and be heard.

"Betweeen two and three million people have died in nine months of war, disease and starvation in what was once East Pakistan - now Bangladesh. The death tolls are mounting fast while the U.S. insists on killing thousands of people in Vietnam.

"The cost for one bombing run by one B52 is over $41,000. The cost of delivering 44,000 pounds of food in Bangladesh is only $1,000. In our opinion, the ends of justice would be better served by saving lives than taking them.."

Represented were the Presidents of the U.S. National Student Association, National Student Lobby, Student World Concern, and the Student National Education Association (Tabankin, Coye, Hamilton, Buress, respectively).

"We are pleading with everyone to help. The situation is so sick, that words cannot express our concern. Sympathy is not needed; it just won't co. The alleviation of the problems in Bangaldesh is going to take cash, plain cash," Hamilton added.

Tabankin furthered "..that funds to help save the people of Bangladesh could be sent to the Emergency Relief Fund, Inc., P.O. Box 1776, Washington, D. C. 20013."

Prep star to come to MC

The 1973 tennis team may be getting an addition next year with entering freshman Craig Larsen from Westfield, New Jersey.

Hailing from a net-conscious family — his dad's a tennis coach at a nearby high school — Craig's tennis merits recently gained prominence when his school team defeated his father's in a stunning defeat 5-0.

Larson is the nephew of Dr. George Kramer, newly appointed Dean of Student Relations for Maryville College. "Right now, I'm planning on going to college at Maryville in the fall," says the senior tennis champ.

His younger brother, Glen, a 16-year-old sophomore, specializes in track. Perhaps, the near future may bring a boost to the M.C. track team as well.

Remember the one you love with flowers from
HARTMAN'S FLOWERS
204 Washington
Phone 982-7500

A review

Band concert is success

By Wiley Rutledge

It has certainly been a pleasure to watch the development of the Maryville College Band into one of the best musical organizations to perform this year on campus. April 27, the Band proved that it was just that in its spring concert in Wilson Chapel.

The program began with "Fanfare, Chorale and Fugue" by Caesar Giovannini, a very exciting piece and a very exciting performance. This excitement was continued through the performance of the "William Byrd Suite," transcribed by Gordon Jacob. The life of the performance was felt even in the slower passages.

During the second half of the program Margaret Mann, a graduate of MC, joined the band to perform "Songs of "Ablard" by Norman Delio Joio, a part of "Selections from progy and Bess' By George Gershwin, and "Mon cocur souvre a ta voix." Miss Mann was excellent in her performances, greatly enhanced by an outstanding job of accompaniment.

The program closed with a performance of Edwin Franko Goldman's "Cheerio," a piece which particularly entertained the audience because they got a chance to sing and whistle. An encore, performed apparently with little practice, was also done very well.

Stevens has new program

Hoboken, N.J. - (I.P.) - A new curriculum in "technology and society" will be offered for the first time next fall at Stevens Institute of Technology, it was announced here recently by Dr. Preston R. Clement, provost and dean o the faculty.

The new course of study will lead to a Bachelor of Science degree and educate its graduates in social systems analysis. "Most problems of modern society have a technological as well as a social basis, and their solutions depend upon persons with background in both areas," Dr. Clement said.

Students in the Stevens program will receive a foundation in science and mathematics similar to the traditional engineering education, but will also receive core courses in economic, political and social analysis of the ways society develops, functions, and changes. They will be educated as both professional technologists and social scientists.

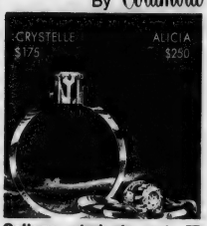
Columbia has gay lounge

New York, N.Y. — (I.P.) — Both President William J. McGill of Columbia University and Dean Carl F. Hovde of Columbia College have voiced opposition to the sanctioning of a gay lounge at Columbia.

Recently the American Civil Liberties Union asked Dean Hovde to grant recognition to the lounge. In his first official statement on the issue, Dean Hovde refused. In a letter to the ACLU, which the Dean's Office made public, Dean Hovde denied any "institutional oppression" of homosexuals at Columbia.

"I do not feel," the Dean said, "so far at least, that I wish to take an action seen by some as endorsing a homosexual orientation in a community where there are many young people of naturally ambiguous drives given their age."

In a letter to the administrator of the Institute of Social Ethics in Connecticut, President McGill said: "Our cloudy understanding of homosexuality suggests that many young students experience latent homosexual impulses.



there's lots of living and loving ahead

Why cut it short?

American Cancer Society

Tipton Jewelers
See our outstanding selection of diamond rings . . .
By Columbia

College students get 10 per cent discount on all purchases with I.D.

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES
Announces A New Two Hour Trail
(for experienced riders only)
SPECIAL RATES FOR PARTIES
Large cabin available for Weekend Parties. Transportation furnished from Maryville College for cabin rental or overnight trips.
For information call Townsend 448-6411.

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE
Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Byrne Drug Company

Drugs and Cosmetics
120 E. Broadway
Free Delivery
982-1461

free copies
of one of the world's most-quoted newspapers.

The Christian Science Monitor. Facts. Ideas. Solutions. That's what the Monitor is all about.

To prove this to yourself, send us the coupon. We'll send you the free copies without obligation.

(Please print)
Please send me some free copies of The Christian Science Monitor.
Name
Address
City
State Zip
Z4SEA
THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR
P.O. Box 125, Astor Station
Boston, Massachusetts 02123

ACC hears disputes in meeting

By Kathy Meier

The All College Council, meeting for three hours on May 3, considered a variety of important issues. On the agenda for debate were such controversial subjects as housing for next year, CIV, and the Dean appointment.

The Residential Life Committee reported the results of their meeting, held May 1, in which complaints were registered concerning the rule prohibiting off-campus living. Students seemed to be most concerned with the principle involved in the decision. The ultimate consensus was that the majority of students would live on campus, but felt that others who wished to live elsewhere be allowed to do so.

Dr. Copeland and Mr. Brahams initiated consideration of the financial problems related to off-campus living. The cost of dorm space could rise if an appreciable number moved off campus. Dr. Walker raised the subject of high rents off campus and also the question of the lack of dorm space if students decided to live off campus in the future.

Dr. Richardson brought up a concern for whether or not off campus living was a part of the Maryville College philosophy. Most of the members, however, thought that off-campus living would not contradict the "statement of purpose."

The Council eventually decided to make off-campus living an experimental program to be attempted if enrollmment increased beyond present capacities. A panel, composed of members of the Residential Life Committee and the Council Officers, was set up to review the plan.

Next, Wayne Kramer, spokesman for the residents of the Carnegie apartment, presented complaints about their eviction from the apartment. The plaintiffs, though seeing the necessity of girls living in Carnegie, protested the manner in which they had been evicted; they felt without due notice.

Gil Nichols, a newly elected member of the ACC, protested the manner in which he felt the new academic Dean had been elected. He stated that the Dean's selection should have been influenced more by the opinion of the students.

Reverend Harrison made a plea on behalf of students who will fail to graduate this spring due to their lack of CIV credits. These students were referred to the Instructional Program Committee. Each case will receive an individual decision.

Freddie Rhodes, representing the cheerleading squad, asked that MC cheerleader constitution be changed so that elections could be made by a panel rather than the student body. He was referred to Dr. Parker and the Elections Committee.

The Council adjourned, following other discussion, at 5:30.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee Friday, May 12, 1972 | No. 25

MC Theatre presents 'Cherry Orchard'

"The Cherry Orchard, Anton Chekhov's comically absurd and poignant account of a patrician family's downfall, will be presented at the Maryville College Theatre at 8:15 Friday and Saturday.

Chekhov's masterpiece is primarily a tale of the anguish of a once-prosperous family of Russian landowners as they drift helplessly to a loss of all their possessions and their upper-class status through a dawdling incompetence, a failure of an instinct for survival.

Apart from its serio-comic tale of human tribulation, it is also a page of history–a demonstration of the decay of Russian aristocracy at the turn of this century, a decay which eventually led to the rise to power of Communism.

The play is one of poignancy tinged with humor, the most notable example of the contrapuntal style Chekhov introduced.

Tickets are available at the Theatre Office, or call 982-2911.

May madness hits MC

By Carla Hulce

Saturday nights at 8:15 in the Theatre. But Sunday will be the highlight of the activities, as students participate in some of the following events: the sack race, a raw egg throwing contest, pie eating contest, the popular bed rade, in which several healthy young men carry a lady of their choosing on bed spring, and they always exciting tug of war, held over a large, muddy pit, in which the losers of the contest eventually land, accompanied by various innocent and unsuspecting bystanders.

All events must be entered by a co-ed team consisting of twelve persons, with no fixed combination of male and female Rosters should be turned in to the Carnegie houseparents' apartment or to Box 2099.

Sunday, May 14, is the one day in this year officially dedicated to mothers, one on which they should be honored. It is also the occasion of the culmination of May Madness weekend, Maryville College's annual contribution to the world of insanity.

May Madness was instituted as a replacement for the traditional Mothers' Day riots, during which the campus was invaded by the local townspeople; now the campus is blocked off by police, thus preventing any non-College community person from entering into the "organized" activities.

As is traditional, a presentation by the Playhouse, this year Chekov's "The Cherry Orchard," will kick off the weekend, being presented both Friday and

Echo staff attend meeting

The Tennessee Collegiate Press Association held its second annual convention this past weekend. Echo editor, John Powell, represented the MC newspaper.

The program involved a Friday evening banquet and Saturday morning business session. At the Saturday session, Kathy Meier and Sarah Winbigler, both of Maryville, were appointed to the committee on Legal Aid. The committee is investigating the possibility of obtaining legal services for member schools.

In other action, plans were made for a fall workshop to be held at Memphis next October.

The Tennessee Collegiate Press Association is a two year-old organization. It tries for mutual aid in solving the problems of the collegiate press. Maryville's newspaper, The Highland Echo, joined earlier this year.

McGovern supporters meet at MC

A meeting was held on Monday, May 1 in the FAC lounge to discuss activity on the part of the McGovern candidacy in the Tennessee primary of May 4. The group, headed by Ms. Ann Harrison, chairman of the Blount County McGovern effort, placed ads in newspapers and on the radio. They feel that these efforts may have aided in getting the 600 votes George McGovern polled in Blount County last Thursday.

The McGovern group is composed of both college students and community residents. In the event of McGovern's nomination at the Democratic convention this summer, it is hoped that those who would like to work on behalf of this candidate will contact Ann Harrison when the fall term begins.

Yardumian almost ready to show

By Wiley Rutledge

Next Thursday, May 18, Maryville College will host the premiere of "The Story of Abraham" BY Richard Yardumian. The oratorio, commissioned by the College in 1969 for its sesquicentennial, has weathered a number of postponements to reach this moment.

The work will be performed by the Dallas Symphony under the direction of Anshle Brusilow, and soloists Jeannine Crader, Lili Chookasian, David Clatworthy, and Philip Steele. The orchestra will arrive in Maryville on Tuesday morning, and concentrated rehearsals will begin that evening for the Thursday performance.

In addition, the orchestra and soloists, the oratorio calls for no less than four choruses. These will be made up of the Maryville College Choir, the College–Community Chorus, the Doyle High School Choir from Knoxville, and a chorus made up of former Maryville College Choir members. These alumni, ranging from the class of 1934 to the class of 1971, are coming from as far away as Pittsburgh and Richmond, Virginia to participate.

Another highlight of the work is the video art film, by Andre Girard, which will accompany the music. In total, there will be an 85 piece orchestra, four soloists, four choirs, and the film.

This is undoubtedly going to be an outstanding musical event. It is already impossible to get into the Maryville performance, which is by invitation only, but tickets may be purchased for the Knoxville performance the next night. Both performances are at 8:15 p.m.

Relevance decried by U. Conn. Professor

Storrs, Conn. - (I.P.) - The current preoccupation of certain students and faculty with "relevance" in their academic pursuits is decried by a University of Connecticut political scientist.

Prof. Fred Kort maintains that irrelevance of the moment may become of "utmost and lasting relevance at a later time." Drawing on history to make his point, Dr. Kort cites the case of a mathematical theorem developed by Brook Taylor some 250 years ago.

"At the time of its formulation, Taylor's theorem undoubtedly was of interest to pure mathematicians. As far as the solution of problems which occupied mankind at that time is concerned, it probably had very limited relevance."

However, today with the aid of high speed computers, the Taylor theorem permits the completion of math computations in minutes which would require several hundred years to perform with pencil and paper.

Dr. Kort indicates the technique, made possible by what appeared to be an irrelevant theorem, is highly relevant today for many problems in the natural and social sciences. He further suggests that this illustration is merely one among scores which might have been cited to make this point.

"A preoccupation with contemporary relevance soon may be lead to permanent irrelevance. Social scientists who are obsessed with finding an immediate cure for social ills may find superficial temporary solutions, which have considerable appeal today, but which probably will be totally irrelevant tomorrow."

He says an academic discipline should not make the mistake of choosing relevance of the moment over relevance in "terms of a cumulative development of knowledge."

Dr. Kort's point of relevance is made in the broader context of his major topic which relates to two movements in the political science camp– the traditionalists and the behavioralists.

In simplest terms, the first emphasizes descriptive, or historical, techniques while the second supplements conventional scholarship with mathematical and statistical (quantitative) methods in its efforts to establish validity of its hypotheses.

"The use of quantification by responsible exponents of behavioralism is not based on an obsession with mathematical elegance, but on a sincere interest to state hypotheses more precisely and to provide a better framework for their verification or refutation."

Nevertheless, Dr. Kort concedes a problem in the use of quantitative methods– a problem which reflects more on the users than on the methods. He has little patience with persons who use quantitative methods in political science as "routines."

He states that they have no understanding of the underlying mathematics and statistical theory–and "what is worse" – have no interest in acquiring it.

Editorial

New Dean congratulated

This past week the Board of Directors appointed Dr. Carolyn Blair as Dean of the College. We'd like to congratulate the Board on an excellent choice.

The Board with the help of a Student-Faculty Advisory Committee has been looking for a new dean about two years now. Until two weeks ago, the committee interviewed candidates outside the College for the position. While a number of applicants applied, they did not meet all the qualifications. Those that met the qualificications were already committed to other institutions.

The committee began to consider an internal appointment. They selected several names of possible candidats, and presented them to the Board. The Board selected Dr. Blair as the best qualified over the weekend of April 28. She accepted. The announcement was made public Monday, May 1.

A number of people have objected to not being informed of which faculty were up for the appointment. However, internal a ppointments must be handled with care to avoid damaging the feelings of the people involved. Considering the response following the appointment, we'd hate to have seen the strife preceding a a publicized internal appointment.

Dr. Blair's appointment raised several questions. Some asked how is an English teacher qualified? Having known several, we'd point out that anyone who can unravel Shakespeare's characters can understand the characters at MC. Both involve an understanding of human nature. In addition to her stated qualifications, Dr. Blair has this vital understanding.

The Academic Deanship is a man-sized job. We're glad there is a woman of Dr. Blair's stature to fill it.

Lack of CIV policy cited

At the close of the last ACC meeting, the problem of how a senior lacking sufficient CIV's can graduate was discussed.

The Council responded to this muddled, borderline problem with a very muddled, borderline solution. The Council referred the students involved to the Instructional Program committee. Here, each case will be decided on its individual merits. Apparently, College policy in this area is no policy.

In the past, students lacking one or two CIV credits have been allowed to make them up by listening to tape recordings of past CIV's. They then summarized them in a paper. This policy was discontinued for a number of reasons. Among them was that no one would read the papers; the faculty would not accept this responsibility.

Another reason for not having a policy is that it is assumed that people will continue coming up short of C IV's if they know they can make them up. They probably will. However, a look at the record shows that people come up short whether or not there is a provision. It seems part of man's nature to be caught short.

If lack of policy does not stop the problem, and it has not, then it seems necessary to develop a policy. Even the Army is capable of such planning. We'd hate to admit the Army can plan better than MC.

If the problem is allowed to fester, it will recur. The cost is considerable waste of time and effort to the ACC and committees and to the students involved.

Consequently, we'd recommend adopting guidelines to prevent this problem from recurring every May as seniors find themselves short of CIV.'s.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 Maryville College Maryville, Tennessee

JOHN POWELL
Editor

BOB EICKELBERG
Business Manager

NANCY RANKIN
Managing Editor

DR. CAROLYN BLAIR
Faculty Adviser

THE HIGHLAND ECHO is published by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

Letters to the Editor

Science Center theft cited

To the Editor:

I have been in college teaching for twnty-six years. In that time I have hopefully learned a great deal about people, especially young people. My philosohy of education developed with these experiences. When I came to Maryville College in the fall of 1962 I was determined to establish and maintain in biology as best I could an atmosphere of learning which would encourage student participation and independence. The planning of the biology facilities in the new science center centered on this concept. Everything seemed to be going pretty well until recently. We have had to lock up more and more areas due to vandalism and theft. To facilitate independent learning requires that certain types of equipment be available, but if this equipment is stolen or vandalized the purpose is defeated, and students are denied the privilege of freeuse. To replace and maintain audio-visual aids and microscopes is very expensive. In fact, a microscope stolen last summer, a gift from concerned alumni, will take $2500 to replace. We may not have that money available for some time. Meanwhile students are deprived of the use of a phase microscope. A filmstrip projector, tape cassette set up for ecology learning was stolen Thursday night (May 4) and consequently a class has lost the use of this facility.

What does all this mean? To me it is a loss of my feeling of convidence in young people. I know! The majority are trustworthy, but when even those ignore, or perhaps it's the "I don't want to get involved" complex, what is going on around them it really does hurt "deep down." It also means, and this is more important, that we can no longer open our facilities to real learning. Maybe we will have to close the Science Center completely except during scheduled class hours. Perhaps all this is an indication of our times. It is really a sad situation to look forward to: Everything behind locked doors that facilitiates learning; student access denied except under supervision (guard would be a better term); the freedom of learning drastically restricted - and this has been one area in which Maryville College has been able to offer so much in these past few years.

The idea of having to go back to scheduled labs and locked doors kinda makes the future of teaching a bit bleak - C'est la vie??:

A. Randolph Shields

continued on page 4

It's the right time

I tend to forget

By Rick Mitz

I tend to forget.

As I sit through classes in sociology, as I talk humanism in my student-oriented world, as I ponder What I Want To Be When I Grow Up after college, as I write for this college newspaper, I tend to forget that not everybody between the ages of 18 and 25 goes to college. Some young people aren't in academia because they've chosen other alternatives. Or because other alternatives have chosen them.

MILWAUKEE, WISC. — Atop a factory laden city, atop a high hill, atop a huge new building, lie hundreds of prostrate young bodies. There is no noise on the top floor except the sound of an old movie on the community TV, the sound of slowly turning wheels, the sound of an occasional doctor's diagnosis. There is no laughter. Very little talking. It's not a scene out of Marcus Welby. It's the real thing.

Down the hall in a starched white room lies a young Harvard graduate who will never see, speak, hear, taste or move again. Vegetable. He just lies in bed and thinks. He can do nothing else. Nearby, a kid in a bed chats with a guest. His mother? His head is propped on three pillows and he talks animatedly. A nurse wheels a sleeping patient to a therapy room. He can't move anything below his neck.

They're all young. They're all our age. And they're all quadraplegic. Paralyzed from their neck down, they walk with their talk, they run with their ears, they move with their eyes. Fro the neck down it's just the neck down. Their legs are shrunken, their hands just slightly quiver. They may never move again.

They did it for their country.

They had not chosen to to go college. Now they have few choices left.

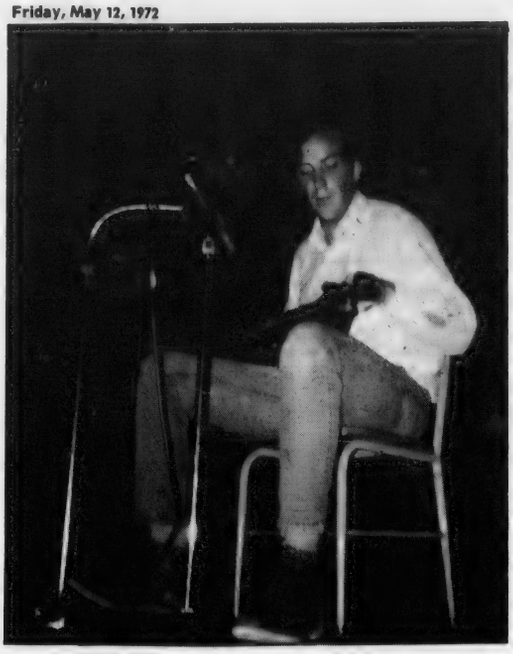
I visited the Milwaukee VA hospital recently. I wandered up and down hallways of the spinal injury ward and asked the Vietnam veterans there what was important to them. They often talked like elderly men in rest homes — reminiscing about the war years or months. Because they hae little else to do . Except wait till they get better. If . . .

A long-haired 22-year old sat up in his bed. A sign that read "Love" hung over hid head. "I'm not mad or bitter at anybody. I'm just disabled. It just happened. My country said go in there and so I did. I was brought up to believe not to kill, but sometimes you have to kill to bring right. I'm happy . . . I'm happy to be back here. Yeah . . . When I came back, my buddy took me out — and he didn't care if I was disabled or not."

"Nobody likes to get killed," another said. "But burning flags is hypocritical. If I saw anyone burning a flag, I would have to shoot him. A lot of men died for that flag. If you can't believe in your country, you don't belong. Get out."

"What's important to me now is that I'd like to go back to school," said a dark-haired, good-looking young veteran hunched over in a wheel chair. 'I want to work with people, to become a psychologist. I want to be able to cope. I want to get back in to society.

"The war? I never believed in killing people. I had to kill people to survive. I think about it a lot. How would it feel to you?" And then he began to cry.



They all want to "get back in to society." But until then, they live in a strange society which is curious combination of day-to-day rehabilitation activities, the disabled people who surround them, their memories, and their hopes for the future.

But what they don't know might hurt them. "Many of them don't know how serious they are injured," a doctor at the hospital said. "Many will be here for years. They have many conventional dreams — maybe go to school, get a job, get married, have children. They don't know, however," he said sighing, "that they most likely won't be able to fulfill that dream. We don't tell them. I would be too shattering."

It's quiet. They don't talk much. Their worlds are basically lonely. When they do talk about the war, it's in glowing patriotic terms, possibly trying to justify their own disabilities — so that it shouldn't have been for notheing. Many talk eagerly about going back to fight in Vietnam — as if, once there, they'll be whole again.

We talk about the war too. As students, with Newsweek and newsreel knowledge, we often talk all about it as if we know all about it. But these non-students, residing with a life-long lease on the top floor of a Milwaukee VA hospital, do know all about the war. They are the war.

It could've been me. I tend to forget.

Dave Russell gets to picking and singing at MC's second annual Rural Music Festival

Rural music concert held for second year

Pickin', cloggin,' and mountain singin' were the features for last Wednesday evening's Rural Music Concert. This second annual event–back by popular demand–involved community and college musicians in an informal presentation of country, blues, and Appalachian music.

Dave Russel, Nat Kurkyndall, and Carl Hafner led the groups with banjo, guitar and fiddle. Instruments played included dulcimer, an autoharp and harmonica.

Other participants included Scottie Gray on the banjo, Mr. Hurst, the campus policeman, on the electric guitar and Bob Amyx singing blues. The cook from Tremont, backed by an audience of admirers remembering last year's performance, entertained with her East Tennessee clogging.

Bob Amyx makes a little music at the Rural Music Festival

Elon faculty can relax

Elon College, N.C. - (I.P.) - A program started two years ago at Elon College to bridge the College generation gap has proven to be successful.

The low-keyed, informal student-administration relations program, tabbed "Lend an Ear," was initiated to give students a chance to express their opinions on most any subject, issue or problem to some 20 College administrators in the students' own environment.

Each of the 20 administrators, from the areas of student personnel, academics, and development, devotes at least one hour per week to the program by making himself available in the student center.

Gospelites sing at Vespers

It will be music with a beat on Sunday when the "St. Paul Gospelites" present a concert at vespers at 7:00 p.m. The Gospelites is an organization made up of young adults from the St. Paul A.M.E. Zion Church of Maryville. They are under the direction of Helen M. Valentine and are accompanied by pianist Ronald Ward.

The Gospelites have sung in such places as Chattanooga, Harriman, Kingston, Knoxville, Claxton in Tennessee, as well as in North Carolina. Their repertoire includes gospel songs, spirituals, and other familiar tunes. The group is headed by Patrick Porter, president, and Diane Cook, vice president. The concert at Maryville College will be given in the Music hall auditorium.

Drill team selected for next year

Last week, practices and try-outs were held for the new 1972-73 Maryville College Drill Team. Early in the week, two practices were held in which returning members, Eleanor Murrah and Kathy Mayurnik, introduced an audition drill to the candidates.

On Thursday evening, the girls performed in an informal try-out at the P.E. building, Mrs. Largen, Mrs. Proffitt, Ann Gamble, and Dale White acted as judges.

The results of the try-outs are as follows: Barbara Belt, Diane Chiusano, Vicki Clower, Jane Duffy, Debbie Horne, Morna McEver, Maureen Meade, Mona Miller, Neva Parker, Pam Phillips, Sue Schoultz, Jeannie Sherman, Denise Smith, Sandy Stickler, Patrada Thisyamondol, Beth Tibbetts, Kathy Mayurnik, and Eleanor Murrah.

Elections will be held next week to determine the officers of the new drill team.

Speech team ranks high at Dixie festival

By Patti Shelton

At the Dixie Speech Festival, held last Friday and Saturday at Georgia Southern College, Statesboro, Ga., members of the MC speech team placed high in the over-all team rankings among the 21 colleges and universities participating. The Dixie Festival brings together speakers and actors from nine states for adjudication.

The MC Reader's Theatre, performing an adaptation of Ray Bradbury's "Dandelion Wine," won second place in the competition. Performers were Nancy McCleary, Paul Mygatt, Sue Drees, Howard Welsh, Diane Wood, and Mark Stoub. In the Acting competition, Stoub, Wood and Welsh also took second place with scenes from "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail."

In individual events, following two preliminary rounds of judging, Maryville claimed seven slots in the finals. In Interpretation of Poetry, both Janet Vail and Diane Wood were selected as finalists. In the category of Prose Interpretation, Mark Stoub and Nancy McCleary were among the six chosen for finals, Jerry Reed, freshman from Manteo, N.C., was selected as finalist in Persuasive Speaking in his first time to enter that event. In Radio Ad Lib, where the speakers are given a situation, put "on the air" and asked to fill time, Paul Mygatt made the finals in his first attempt at radio competition. In Drama Interpretation, Mark Stoub won the 3rd place medal for his reading of the mad king in "Escurial."

The puppetry team claimed three medals for MC: Third place in Marionettes with a cutting from Winnie the Pooh; second in Rod puppets with an interpretation of Yeats' At the Hawk's Well; and third in shadow puppets, using an English ballad theme, "Mattie Groves." Members of the puppet grup were Martha Brown, Sue Drees, Bob Cox, Jerry Reed, Paul Mygatt & Nancy McCleary.

Graphic Art exhibit is at MC today

Maryville College will sponsor an exhibition and sale of original graphic art by contemporary and old master artists Friday, May 12, in the Lounge of the fine Arts Center. The exhibition will be on display from 11 a.m .to 5 p.m.

Included in the exhibition will be over 1,000 original etchings, lithographs, and woodcuts by artists such as Picasso, Chagall, Miro, Dali, Goy, Renoir, Kollwitz, and many others including contemporary American, European, and Japanese printmakers. Prices start at $5 with the majority prices under $100.

A well-qualified representative of the Roten Galleries will be present at the exhibition to answer any questions the public may have regarding graphic art and printmaking.

Established in 1932, Roten Galleries has one of the largest collections of graphic art in the country. The firm which operates its main gallery in Baltimore, specializes in arranging exhibition sales at colleges, museums, and art centers throughout the country.

Northeastern sets guideline for publications

Boston, Mass.- (I.P.)- The report of the Student Publications Committee at Northeastern University states that the Committee hopes that the Northeastern News and other student publications will be able to exist on campus and fulfill their goals in a responsible manner.

However, in the event that another situation arises like that which led to the creation of this Committee (the result of two articles published in last August's freshman orientation issue), the Committee voted:

That the Student Affairs Committee will act as mediator in cases of conflict between the student publications and the University administration. The Committee's response to the specific questions raised in President Asa S. Knowles' charge follows:

Question: How should the faculty and student body participate in formulating the general policies which guide the nature, character, and quality of student publications?

Answer: It is hoped that the (aforementioned) Advisory Committee will bring the News and other student publications an increased awareness of community opinions and thus make them more responsive to the whole community.

Question: To what extent should the Northeastern News cover campus events and collegiate activities as opposed to national, social and political issues?

Answer: The Committee felt that although there should be no fixed ratio between these items, the News has a primary responsibility to record and publish meaningful campus happenings and official announcements.

Question: How should the editors and staff members of our publications be selected and to whom should they be responsible? What standards of responsible journalism can be established and maintained and at the same time permit the student editors the freedom guaranteed in the "Joint Statement on Rights and Freedom of Students?"

Answer: The editors of the News (and other publications) are presently elected by their respective staffs. The Committee is aware of the great freedom which is inherent in this process, but also recognizes the concomitant heavy responsibility.

Since the University subscribes to the Joint Statement and is thereby committed to protecting press freedom, this Committee points out tthe responsibility of the editors to be governed by canons of responsible journalism as outlined in the Joint Statement.

The Committee feels that the election process should not be altered lest there be any suggestion of internal control. The editors, therefore, are ultimately responsible only to the legal publisher, the President of Northeastern University.

The Committee would like to think that its recommendations will guarantee ? cades of free and responsible operation. In an any event, it is hoped that the way at least has been charted.

Car wash held

Well, guys, Phi Mu Alpha is at it again. They're gonna be washing cars this weekend. All day Friday from about C hour to supper, and Saturday from nine in the morning till quitting time. They charge $1 for a wash and $5 for a wax (cheap). That's Friday and Saturday.

SPORTS

Netmen end season with state match

Last weekend the Scot netmen traveled to Cookeville, Tennessee to participate in the T.I.A.C. tournament at Tennessee Tech. The Scots faced very stiff competition, with none of the team advancing past the second round.

In singles, Tony Willis won his first match, defeating Frank Bennet of David Lipscomb, to whom he bowed earlier this year. In the second round, however, Tony fell to Bill Busiek of powerful UT-Chattanooga.

In third court doubles, Steve Rael and Mike Portz advanced to the second round, collecting a victory by default. The Scot duo was later downed, however, by the Torr-Dickenson team from champion Carson-Newman.

This season has been one of solid, steady improvement for the Scot netmen. They have faced rigid competition throughout, emerging with a good record. Though it was only 8-10, it might be added that three of the matches were lost by only one point.

Coach Kardatzke feels that the main strength of the team lay in the balance from top court down. Ward Brooks provided fine leadership on first board, battling fiercely against top players from much larger schools, as he collected eight wins in singles.

On second court, Tony Willis had a good season, boasting an 11-7 record. Skip Vessels won ten and lost eight, for a remarkable record for a third court freshman.

Steve Rael came onto the team to claim an 8-9 season. Malcolm Westbrook had the best record in singles, winning thirteen of his eighteen matches. Mike Portz, another freshman, had an impressive 10-8 season on sixth board.

In doubles, Brooks and Vessels led the way, winning ten and losing seven. Willis and Westbrook had a 6-11 record, while Rael and Portz finished 9-9.

Since Maryville is losing only one team member through graduation, Coach K is looking forward to an especially good season next year. The returning members, coupled with some promising freshmen prospects, should foretell some interesting competition.

Student voters have registration problems

Canton, N.Y.- (I.P.)-Amid the process of registering the young voters who will be eligible to cast their first ballots in the national eelection this year, many election officials are pondering the question of where to register colllege students.

At least 17 states are allowing students to vote in the towns in which they attend college. Several others appear to be on the brink of taking the same route.

In New York State the law is quite clear. The 1972 election law declares that "for the purpose of registering and voting no person shall be deemed to have gained or lost a residence by reason of his presence or absence while a student of any institution of learning." Election laws in several states contain such a phrase.

Census studies count college students as residents of the community where they attend college. The 1970 census study shows that the Village of Canton has a population of 6,398 including 2,070 St. Lawrence University students.

Some 65 per cent of the students here are residents of New York State and a sampling of a few of them shows divergent views on the subject. Anthony C. Polvino, a junior, says that several points militate against "dormitory registration."

"An inordinate amount of power would be placed in the hands of the students in a situation in which most of them could not handle the franchise intelligently and in an atmosphere of increased antagonism between students and the more permanent residents," he says.

Associate Dean Robert N. Wells agrees. "It would take just one election to create local opposition if the student vote was pivotal," says the dean.

John F. Adsit, president of the student body, thinks that students definitely should be able to vote locally in senatorial and presidential elections. "Absentee ballots are too much fuss and bother — they only complicate the voting process," he says.

Letters

continued from page 2

1984 envisioned

To the Editor:

As I sat before the blub-tube listening to the god of democracy, Tricky Dicky, my mind flashed images of 1984. I saw Big Brother leaning toward the TV camera addressing me as "Mah fellow American" in the best of Newsthink jargon. I listened as I felt myself being swept along in a twilight zone journey back to the days of Dulles, the Domino Theory, and the McCarthy fear of communism. "Mah fellow American," Tricky Dick, tried to reassure me with the promise that God was on America's side and would aid her in the heroic duties she must perform as Cop of the World.

When Big Brother concluded his message I switched off the tube and tried to fit "future" and "hope" into my mind's swirling disorder. I reminded myself of Reich's belief that the grass is getting greener on the younger side of time and in the minds of Consciousness III people. This attempted comfort was to no avail. Thoughts of the Jesus Freaks, the Behaviorists, the Marxists and an infinite number of other ideologies clouded the scene.

Through the dizziness of reality I tried to determine how we have arrived at our tendency to pick surface solutions for the deepest problems. I thought of education - what it has been-what has been in working through calculus problems, but I can remember well sitting in math exams, filing through my memory bank, locating the correct theorem and plugging the data into the appropriate formula. We've all learned the process somewhere along the way - reducing confusion to a right answer complete with two figures after the decimal. We have learned to analyze, to deduct, to fit complexity into the ideological box of our choice. But, sometimes when we arrive at the correct answer we see that the formula selected has ignored the variables in the confusion with which we cannot deal. Gradually, we avoid this difficulty by asking questions that are bound within the limits of our frame or reference.

Our education has been successful in teaching us to function mechanically. We have learned to overlook sensitivity, understanding, and "humanness' as insignificant intervening variables. I see my "generation" making mechanical responses to the world that threatens us. Some choose the null hypothesis: "There is no hope for the world, I shall enjoy life while it is mine to live." This response encompasses feelings of powerlessness, and hopelessness that surpass the labels of apathy. Others have adopted formulas with organizing limits that have the potential of becoming narrow ideologies as destructive as Wallace's "love it or leave it" and Tricky Dick's pride in American supremacy.

As the shock of the North Vietnamese offensive and Nixon's response linger, I ask myself again the question of what it means to be a human being in a technological age. The challenge for me is to become more human rather than more mechanical; to become an active part of the solution rather than a passive part of the problem. To meet this challenge I've pulled the words of Rabbi Hillel's 2,000 year old code from the back of my memory file:

"If I am not myself, who will be for me? And if I am only for myself, what am I? And if not now, when?"

Carey Cox

Judy E. Tipton

FASHIONS FOR TODAY'S LADY

Downtown, Maryville
984-3587

M

bank of maryville

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES

Announces A New Two Hour Trail

(for experienced riders only)

SPECIAL RATES FOR PARTIES

Large cabin available for Weekend Parties. Transportation furnished from Maryville College for cabin rental or overnight trips.
For information call Townsend 448-6411.

Remember the one you love with flowers from

HARTMAN'S FLOWERS

204 Washington
Phone 982-7500

free copies of one of the world's most-quoted newspapers.

The Christian Science Monitor. Facts. Ideas. Solutions. That's what the Monitor is all about.

To prove this to yourself, send us the coupon. We'll send you the free copies without obligation.

(Please print)

Please send me some free copies of The Christian Science Monitor.

Name_____

Address_____

City_____

State_____ Zip_____

Z4SEA

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR
P.O. Box 125, Astor Station
Boston, Massachusetts 02123

It's more than a tree. It's anti-pollution.

A tree absorbs sound. Its leaves trap particles in the air. Visit a tree, it's cleaner and quieter.

Only you can prevent forest fires.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 57 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | Friday, May 19, 1972 | No. 26

Graduation plans are finalized

The weekend of May 26-29 will hold a full schedule of activities at MC.

Initiating the activities, on Friday, May 26, is an Environmental Awareness Seminar at Tremont. The Seminar begins with Registration at 12:00 noon at the Center and concludes at 7 p.m., including a schedule of films, discussion, and short field trips. The cost of $4.00 includes lunch and dinner.

Saturday, May 27, will be the big day for the many classes of alumni converging on the campus. Registration, a coffee, and campus tours are planned for the morning, to be followed by class reunion luncheons for the classes of 1917 (the Golden Scots) through every fifth year to the class of 1967. That evening, at 6:.30, will be the Annual Alumni Dinner and meeting.

The Senior Fine Arts Hour is planned for the following day, Sunday, May 28, at 4 p.m. in the Music Hall. That evening Dr. Copeland will deliver the Baccalaureate Sermon at 8 p.m. in the Wilson Chapel.

At 10:30 a.m. on Monday, May 29, the 153rd year Commencement will be held in Wilson Chapel. Tom Coe, senior, and Dr. E. Faye Campbell will be the speakers.

Editorial

Leadership grants clarified

Throughout the ages, philosophers have spent a good deal of time refining terms. They were seeking to avoid confusion.

Unfortunately, we have not escaped this problem of ambigious definitions at Maryville today. Take, for example, the confusion surrounding the term "leadership tuition grant."

These grants of varying amount are awarded on the basis of need to students who exhibit outstanding leadershp qualities. They require the maintenance of a 2.2 grade average.

Varsity athletes receive about two-thirds of these grants according to the financial aid office.

Such an overwhelming percentage of athletes on leadership grants has promoted considerable confusion. We thought the air needs clearing on this matter.

Based on this percentage, one way to avoid confusion is by equating two thirds of all leaders at MC with all athletes. When there is such a lack of leadership on a national level, it is comforting to know that we have such a vast reservoir of leadership at MC.

But the confusion still exists. Another way to clear up this confusion is to change the name of these grants from leadership to "academic-athletic grants for leaders." Or it might be less confusing to call them "leadership grants for academically qualified athletes."

However, these long names sound even more confusing. What is needed in a name for these grants is something simple, direct and honest. The best name for a leadership grant is simply an athletic scholarship.

Echo editors thank staff

This issue marks the final publication of the 1972 Highland Echo.

A member of the Tennessee Collegiate Press Association and the Intercollegiate Press Association, the Echo received a Certificate of Merit from the National Newspaper Service for its format and presentation.

The editors express their appreciation to faculty sponsor Dr. Carolyn Blair, business manager Bob Eichelburg, cameraman Rich Fiest, and sports editor Dan McKinstry.

Thanks is also extended for Alice Hook's CIV articles, Carla Hulce and Kathy Meier's theatre and play reviews, Phyllis Garner's sports coverage, Tom Coe's opinions, Linda Blomeke's patience, Patti Shelton's ACC reports, Sarah Winbigler's lay-out endurance, Sue Bailey's proofing ability, and Al Baker's business acumen.

Further recognition also goes to weekly reporters Wiley Rutledge, Leigh Thorington, Lynn Schieber, Gay Wingfield, Charlie Craven, Scott Ross, Faith Baird and Debby McClain.

It's the right time

Utopia University

By Rick Mitz

GREEN BAY, WIS. — The cab made its way through the dirty dankly polluted college town. Tall chimneys emitted a bad black smog in a city where that kind of black isn't beautiful.

And then the vehicle pulled in front of a puddle of dirty water near a slightly larger puddle of dirty water called Lake Michigan near a construction site near an environmental science building. I had arrived.

"I don't know," said the Green Bay cab driver. "It's just like any other university, I suppose."

At first glance it looks just-like-any-other-university-I-suppose — with 3,500 students shoving their way to class, books under arms, girls under arms, long hair, short hair, linoleumed floors, white cement walls, bulletin boards announcing the usual bull.

At second glance it looks just like any other university.

And at third and fourth and fifth...

In fact, it's only until you find out what's going on there (and, more important, what isn't) that you discover it's not just like any other university.

It's the University of Wisconsin at Green Bay, its acronym being UWGB, the sound one emits upon getting a mouthful of smog, which is exactly one of the things this college is dedicated to remedy.

Dubbed "Survival U," "Ecology U" and the "University of Involvement," UWGB is all of the above. The entire school has been organized around the theme of environmental crisis. A lot of theme. A lot of crisis.

It's the first of its kind. Structured with a unique semi-structure, it's the free school au courant, complete with bio degradable students who study the solution to pollution, the psychology of ecology as they bicycle and recycle their ways through four years of issue-oriented education.

UWGB, all acronyms aside, is a breath of fresh air in an otherwise polluted academic environment. It opened its doors to students in 1969. And word has spread. Now, more than two years later, ecologically minded students from all over the country flock to this environmental mecca.

But the college itself is polluted with many undistinguished problems — an 80 per cent commuter campus, a minor housing crisis, student apathy (and apathy about the apathy). But certainly never a complaint about Irrelevant Education. UWGB is anything but irrelevant - the answer to any activist's academic reform visions. If anything, it just might be too relevant.

A student selects an environmental problem that "forms the center of his intellectual interests," according to the school catalog. The structure is based on environmental themes rather than standard disciplines. There are four colleges within the University: Environmental Sciences, Community Sciences, Human Biology and Creative Communication.

Curriculum includes such subjective subjects as "Visions of Man," "Ecosystems Analysis," "The Philosophy of Leisure," independent study programs that include community communication and involvement — as well as the old standby standards like accounting and phys. ed. But this university ties them all together.

"Frankly," says chancellor Frank Weidner, "we've tried to build an institution that says the cop-out from society isn't welcome here. There must be a feeling of social responsibility — relevance — in every area. Let's not pollute this university with things that lack meaning."

It is this man who sets the pace. Complete with a simple, folksy charm, Weidner wows students into involvement like cows into an educationally verdant pasture. But sometimes, as they say, the pasture is greener on the other side. For most people UWGB is that greener side. But for many UWGB students, their pastures are more gangrene.

"Do I sound bitter?" asked one bitter coed after she had listed several reasons why she hated the school — from big classes to big masses to her disdain for student apartments. "If there weren't any classes, I'd like it better." But there are classes. And there are students who like it better.

One student who does like the school diagnosed students' problems as such: "They come here expecting utopia. You know, this school is supposed to be a big, innovative thing — new, different, all that. Then they come here and they're disappointed that it's not Walden III. But they forget that they have as much a role in making it innovative as the staff does."

UWGB is growing and changing. But it isn't a perfect human institution. It's got its problems. But it also has potential, which few other institutions have. It's got potential for change but, more imporant, its students have the potential for changing the world.

At the end of the day, I hopped into a yellowed Yellow Cab and was on my way home. I thought I'd try again.

"I don't know much about it," this driver said. "But a college is a college. Isn't it?"

I turned around to notice a dark trail of combustion coming from the rear of his cab.

The Highland Echo

Maryville College — Maryville, Tennessee

JOHN POWELL, Editor
NANCY RANKIN, Managing Editor
BOB EICKELBERG, Business Manager
DR. CAROLYN BLAIR, Faculty Adviser

THE HIGHLAND ECHO is published by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

A review

Cast commended in last play

By Carla Hulce

The College Playhouse presented its spring production, Anton Cekhov's "The Cherry Orchard,' a drama of pre-Revolutionary Russia last weekend.

Although plays of greater technical merit have been seen recently on the Theatre stage, the cast must certainly be commended for its valiant effort in trying to perform what is undoubtedly a difficult work with some of the emotion Chekhov wrote into the script.

Thomas Williamson, as Feers, the butler, turned in a splendid performance as a memory-laden relic of the past. His portrayal was one of the few in the play in which the actor's own personality was submerged in that of the character; With many of the other roles, the actors' true selves shone through only too clearly.

As Madame Ranevsky, Diane Wood gave a reasonably good interpretation of the character, although she might have been more effective if she had been less in touch with reality and less conscious of the events taking place on her estate. Also, one wonders if she is not becoming somewhat typecast in the most depressed ad depressing roles.

Mark Stoub, performed with his usual excellence in the role of Uncle Leonid; the part of a senile or insane person is no doubt one of the most difficult to play, but he carried it off with what seemed to be the greatest of ease.

As diametrically opposed characters, Steven Ayers and Philip Gibson seemed to be, respectively, the most obnoxious and the most pathetic persons in the play, Ayers as the grasping peasant-turned-bourgeois, and Gibson as the perennial student with an almost revolutionary flavor. Technically, Gibson's performance was the better of the two, as he, too, lost himself in his role, thus giving it a realistic quality and putting it across to the audience much more clearly than many others.

While the case is much too large to mention individually, some credit must be given to Suzanne Drees, who was above average as Anya, but who might have done better in the role of Madame Ranevsky; Nancy McCleary, who, although typecast, always provides excellent comic relief and a tough of pathos, if one can see the depth of the character behind the clownish facade; Sharon Murphy as a somewhat miscast but hardworking and talented ingenue; and Paul Hollingsworth, also a combination of the comic and pathetic as Semyon.

As rising and possible promising young actors, Ruthanne Hill, Wayne Dansbury, and John Marrs show some evidence of talent, particularly the latter, and will certainly improve when they overcome their obvious nervousness and learn to become the role they are playing instead of adapting the character to themselves.

While 'The Cherry Orcahrd' is undoubtedly an excellent drama of great quality, it did not seem to be the right play for Maryville College; perhaps that is due to the difficulty of understanding and interpreting the Slavic nature and emotion and taking on roles completely foreign to non-Russian personalities.

Walkers for development head out for a very wet twenty miles

Walk for Development is success

By Debby McClain

The first Blount County Walk for Development on Saturday, May 13, was termed a great success. Despite the pouring rain, Jet Hill, that huge mud puddle, and the unforgettable pimiento cheese and jelly sandwiches, 115 out of the total 135 walkers finished tne entire 20 mile hike. Thanks to the 135 walkers, an approximated $3,500 was raised.

The following are some interesting statistics from the walk. Debbie Harrison, age 8, daughter of Chaplain and Mrs. Richard Harrison, was the youngest person to finish the walk. The oldest hiker who crossed the finish line was City Councilman Harold Copeland. Maryville High School basketball and football coach James Campbell raised the most money, totalling $157.00. And last, but not at all least, Richard Reid Haviland, a UT graduate student, ran the entire 20 miles, starting at 8:30 and finishing at 11:15 a.m.

Working at the various checkpoints were MC students Jan Bukoveski, Chris D'Aquila, Jean Fiedler, Phyllis Garner, Sarah Hardrath, Chuck Hill, Bill Martin, Debby McClain, Linda Weisenburger, and Carol Wylie. Todd Trumbore operated a van between the checkpoints delivering sandwiches. Those working with the American Red Cross were Lois Allen, Phyllis Conrad, Mary Harmon, Ann Holmes, and Bruce Stewart.

Maryville College students who walked were: David Blough, Alice Caldwell, Jean Davis, Sue DeRemigi, Hardy DeYoung, Rachel Donaldson, Judy Evans, Melissa Fearing, Rich Feist, Janice Foxworthy, Pam Goshorn, Richard Livernoise, Caroline Munn, Jean McArthur, Louise McNair, Geneva Parker, Judy Penry, Anna Ruth Prockazka, Doug Rugh, Ginny Rust, Barba Sanderson, Lucy Schindler, Sue Sterling, Doris Todd, Coralie Usrey, Carol Veltman, Robert Wertime, and Andrew Yankama. Those participating in the walk from the faculty and administration included Art Hafner, Dick Harrison, Lauren Kardatzke, Robert Kennedy, J. W. Nichols, Bob Ramger, Dr. Bill Richardson, and Dr. David Young.

Faculty explores drug issue at MC

In what has been termed a drug culture, should a college faculty be concerned with drug use on campus? What are the moral and legal issues involved? What effect does the use of drugs have on classroom performance? Is it possible to maintain a favorable environment for learning when drug use is extensive? Is education the key to the solution?

There were among the questions discussed by the Maryville College faculty at its regular monthly meeting on May 10. Although no accurate figures were available regarding the percentage of drug users on campus, the opinion was that even minimum use warranted serious concern. Questions were raised as to the legality of using medical tests to identify drug users.

It was pointed out that with drug use in the high schools reaching alarming proportions, colleges must be even more alert to the problem. Since a college like Maryville is not prepared to serve as a rehabilitation center, the question becomes whether it has an obligation to find help elsewhere for the hard drug user.

Discouragement was expressed over the failure of education to deter drug use. As one faculty member observed, "Most of those who use drugs are aware of the consequences but choose to ignore them." Out of the dicsussion, however, came evidence that attempts at education and counseling have been and will continue to be made.

The confidential nature of the counseling might have led to the conclusion that little had been done, but it became clear that members of the administration and faculty, as well as the counseling team from UT, had been working with individuals who earnestly want help. It was also pointed out that consultations had been made with representatives of the TBI Narcotics Division.

The most hopeful sign noted was the number of both students and faculty who had expressed concern, and it was suggested that a concerted effort be made to enlist others in caring about the problem and caring about the people involved.

At the close of the discussion, the faculty concurred in the proposal of one member that this be regarded as only the beginning of full, free, and informed discussion of the drug problem, as all begin to work tegether toward the best solution for the individual and the best solution for the institution.

Band to give pops concert this Sunday

The Maryville College Concert Band will present a pop concert this Sunday afternoon, May 21, immediately after dinner at the FAC Amphitheater.

Director Dan Stallings calls it a pop concert because of the light classical music to be performed. He emphasizes there will be nothing "heavy," such as symphony. Rather, he said, the program will consist of "popular band numbers."

The informality will be enhanced by audience participation in parts of the concert, which Mr. Stallings says will be "all in fun."

Mr. Stallings also announced that two student directors will assist in conducting certain selections: Lana Henderson will conduct an arrangement of "Black is the Color of my True Love's Hair," and Dale White will direct Gustav Holst's "Suite for Military Band."

Summer school registration begins

The Maryville College Admissions office is now accepting applications for the summer term, according to Summer School Director Arthur S. Bushing.

Maryville's three three-week sessions make it possible for teachers needing course credit for certification to meet the requirements and still have most of the summer free.

Two biology courses will be taught at the MACCI Field Biology Station on Norris Lake, and one art and one health and physical education course will be taught at the college's Environmental Education Center at Tremont.

The first session is June 5 through June 23. Classes will meet five days a week for two 70-minute periods.

The college is offering Blount County teachers a $25 tuition grant for the summer session.

Seniors to present CIV

The Senior Class will present CIV for Wednesday, May 24. It is entitled "The Last Wednesday." This production will carry the standard CIV credit for everybody.

Look out! The losers in the Tug of War are headed for a cold, wet, and very muddy bath in last Sunday's May Madness

May Madness means much mud

By Wiley Rutledge

What is it, you ask? Why are all those kids so muddy? Well, that's just the after effects of a famous MC tradition known as May Madness. Few people know the history of this great event, but after many hours of painstaking research, I have managed to divine some answers.

Instead of boring you with a lot of dates and names, I'll just give you some idea of what went on during May Madness, say, 1920. The weekend got off to a smashing start with a rousing performance of a Greek tragedy (in Greek, of course). That was Friday night. Saturday night the students got to go on dates. They usually went to an exciting place like the library to discuss some equally exciting topic such as the development of the monarchy in England. After that, they all went and had ice cream. They stayed out very late; anyone getting in before 9:30 was considered a prude.

Sunday was the fun day. That was the day that they had the same kind of fun we have throwing people in mud holes. Only instead of throwing people in mud holes, they used to force people to dance at dinner. That was the worst fate of all.

Now we have some idea of what May Madness was like 50 years ago. I guess they had fun.

SPORTS

Baseballers have rough going at end

The baseball team found the going rough in the last several games and finished with a disappointing 9-7 record.

The Scots split a doubleheader with Temple, losing 8-7 in 8 innings and winning the nightcap 14-4. In the opener Earl McMahon had 2 hits and drove in three runs for the losers. The Scots started early and then coasted to the win with Glenn Doig pitching for the Scots. Jim Lester had 5 runs in with a single and a grand slam home run.

Tuesday, the Scots ventured to Knoxville to encounter Tennessee. The Vols had too much hitting power and Joe O'Brien overpowered the Scots as the Vols won 9-1. Larry Stpehens scored the only run after a double, a ground out and a sacrifice fly by Joe Kozel.

The LMU game was postponed and no date could be set as was the Tusculum game.

Thursday, the Scots went to Bryant. With Joe Kozel pitching the Scots won the opener 11-0. Earl McMahon had 3 hits and 3 runs batted in. Dan McKinstry and Leon Hart also contributed 3 hits. In the second game 5 errors proved to be too much for the Scots to overcome. Bryan took the nightcap 2-1. Leon Hart had two hits and drove in Dan McKinstry with his second single.

Friday Emory and Henry dealt the Scots a 5-3 setback. Mental errors by the Scots and good clutch hitting by Emory and Henry provided the difference. Dan McKinstry led the attack with 3 hits and Jim Lester drove in 2 runs with a single.

The outlook for next year is bright. Four Scots concluded their careers — Larry Stephens, Joe Kozel, Dusty Miller, and Dan McKinstry. The Scots have replacements for these people. If everyone works together and several fine recruits appear on the scene, the baseballers could have a fourth winning season in 1973.

Mr. Foster to attend conferance

Lloyd Foster, Director of Maryville College Environmental Education Center at Tremont, has accepted an invitation to attend a conference in Resident Environmental Education sponsored by the American Camping Association, the National Education Association and the National Park Service.

Several picnics held for end of year

The end of the year has brought traditional farewell picnics with it. The History Department planned one for seniors last Saturday. Rain forced it to be held at John Sevier Picnic area. About twenty people showed up.

Tonight the Sociology Department is having their picnic. Majors are invited to come and bring a friend.

The most elaborate picnic is planned by Miss Ware and the dining hall staff. At 5:00 Saturday, they will assemble at the picnic area in the college woods to enjoy the steaks provided by Miss Ware. This picnic will be the first for the dining hall for several years. About twnty-five people are expected.

Thinclads travel to TIAC as season ends

The Scot thinclads traveled to Murfreesboro over the weekend of May 5-6 to compete in the college division of the TIAC state track meet.

In the field, Rick Livernoise out tossed opponents to take first place. His winning throw was 44' 11". Mike Hass hurled the javelin 180' to win a second place in the meet.

In the running events, Tom Piper was the sole runner from Maryville to place. Piper took fourth spot in the 440 yard run. His time was 50.3 seconds.

The Scots accumulated ten points to finish ahead of Bryan and Milligan.

The state meet marks the end of the 1972 season. For dual meets, the Scots were two for one. They were second in two triple meets. The men that lettered this year include: Mike Hass, Rick Livernoise, Doug Robinson, Chip Pusey, Tom Piper, Eddie Hill, John Powell, Budy Lewis, Jeff Hamilton, Bill Postler, and Andy Weissing.

Red-white game to be held tomorrow

Spring practice for the Maryville College gridders will be concluded with the annual Red and White game Saturday, May 20. The scrimmage wil be played like a regular game, pitting the number one offense against the number one defense. Head Coach Lauren F. Kardatzke was pleased with the progress of the 1972 Scots this spring. Kardatzke feels the Scots are better defensively than last year, and also cited an improved offense. Quarterback Joe Costner, flanker Randy Minor, and linebacker Dave Clinton are some of the featured players among the thirty-six man squad. The game will start at 2 p.m. with no admission charge.

College seeks standard committees

Lancaster, Pa. - (I.P.) — A plan to standardize committee appointment at Franklin and Marshall was circulated recently by the ad hoc Committee on Student Membership.

The Committee listed eight guidelines that should be implemented. They are:

1.) the continuation of having at least one student member per committee per year:

2.) that committees be balanced by class where possible:

3.) that committees be balanced for academic division when possiblee:

4.) that the Comittee on Committees place a woman on every committee–the woman not necessarily being a student;

5.) that a black student be placed on Student Rules, Student Conduct, and the Academic Status Committees;

6.) that these guidelines should apply to appointment on subcommittees and ad hoc committees;

7.) that every effort be made to select students who are interested in committee work; and

8.) that the Committee on Committees should be sensitive to students who, by virture of their unique experiences (e.g. transfer students, foreign students) are able to provide a significant input into committee work.

The committee also recommended that a Committee of Minority Affairs should be formed.

Southern Association studies MC

A nine-member team from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools will arrive on the Maryville College campus Sunday to begin a three-day survey for the purpose of continued accreditation of the college. Joining them will be a representative of the National Association of Schools of Music who will study the college's music program.

Each member of the delegation will be assigned one area for special review although the team will jointly prepare the final report of their findings. The areas covered in the 238-page report prepared for them by the college are purpose, organization, administration, educational program, financial resources, faculty, library, student personnel, physical plant and special activities.

The material in the self-study report is based on work of subcommittees in each area. Students as well as faculty and administrative officers worked on the committees. The final report was prepared under the supervision of the Steering Committee consisting of Dr. Malcolm M. Willey, chairman; President Joseph J. Copeland; Dr. Joe Gamble, representing the Board of Directors; Ward Brooks, co-chairman of the All-College Council; Raymond I. Brahams, assistant to the president; Dr. Carolyn Blair, Dr. Wallace Lewis and Robert Ramger from the faculty.

Members of the visiting team have expressed a desire to visit classes and talk informally with faculty and students. They also will visit residence halls and meet with faculty members.

The final report of the team will go to the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association. Final action will be taken by the Association at its fall meeting.

Maryville College was last visited by an accrediting team of the Southern Association in 1961. Such visits are regularly scheduled every ten years.

Members of the team are: Dr. Francis Bonner, Vice President and Dean, Furman University; President Howard J. Cleland, Belhaven College; Harry L. Beck, Thomas Moore College; Mrs. Anna J. Cooper, Salem College; J. A. Branch, University of North Carolina; Dr. J. H. Ostwalt, Davidson College; and Dr. Albert G. Huetteman, Otterbein College.

Grades determine future

Ann Arbor, Mich. - (I.P.) — The future of today's college student depends heavily on whether or not he "makes the grade."

He works (though not necessarily learns) for a mysterious set of coded letters to be assessed by potential employers and graduate schools, even insurance companies and creditors.

"Grades offer few benefits to either the teacher or learner," contends 'Stanford C. Ericksen, director of The University of Michigan Center for Research on Learning and Teaching.

He challenges the responsibility or the right of a school to provide "encapsulized evaluations" of a student's achievement to outside institutions.

If a graduate school or employer requires appraisals of students for their own specific purposes, they, not the colleges from which the students graduate, should be given the burden for establishing the criteria for these evaluations, he states in a recent CRLT "Memo to the Faculty."

"Grades classify; they do not evaluate specific educational achievement. Unfortunately the distinction between evaluation and grading is too often obscured in the administrative shuffle, and what is irretrievably lost is the criteria used to determine the grade in the first place."

"Evaluation — which may take the form of a conference between student and teacher, or written comment on an exam paper — is indispensable to the learning process. This form of appraisal directs and confirms the student's effort and helps him to develop a framework for assessing his own goals."

Ericksen proposes that a student's transcript consist of a list of courses in which he has performed adequately, plus brief description by instructors of the student's aptitudes, weaknesses, and progress.

A complete copy of the CRLT "Memo to the Faculty" No. 46 on Grading vs. Evaluation is available from the Center for Research on Learning and Teaching, 109 E. Madison St., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48104.

Remember the one you love with flowers from
HARTMAN'S FLOWERS
204 Washington
Phone 982-7500

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES
Announces A New Two Hour Trail
(for experienced riders only)
SPECIAL RATES FOR PARTIES
Large cabin available for Weekend Parties. Transportation furnished from Maryville College for cabin rental or overnight trips.
For information call Townsend 448-6411.

free copies of one of the world's most-quoted newspapers.
The Christian Science Monitor. Facts. Ideas. Solutions. That's what the Monitor is all about.
To prove this to yourself, send us the coupon. We'll send you the free copies without obligation.
(Please print)
Please send me some free copies of The Christian Science Monitor.
Name
Address
City
State Zip
Z4SEA
THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR
P.O. Box 125, Astor Station
Boston, Massachusetts 02123

1972 - 1973

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, No. 1 | Maryville College Maryville, Tennessee | Sept. 8, 1972

Dorms: for more than sleeping

by Sarah Winbigler

Even on a small campus such as Maryville's, college life can be an initially bewildering experience for freshmen. For this reason, the dorm structure at Maryville is designed to make the transition from high school to college, from home to dormitory, as easy and comfortable as possible.

The quad system itself is designed to bring freshmen immediately into a small subgroup within the dorm, a subgroup within which, hopefully, the student can feel at ease. Quite a few upperclassmen live in "freshmen" dorms, and this helps to ease the isolation which freshmen sometimes feel.

Each quad in the girls' dorm comes equipped with a senior counselor and, usually, two sophomore aides. These girls are elected in the spring of the previous year by that year's senior counselors, the dorm parents, and the Dean of Women.

A resident advisor, the rough equivalent of a senior counselor, is also provided for each of the quads in the freshmen boys' dorm. R. A.'s are elected at the same time as senior counselors by the previous year's R.A.'s, the dorm parents, and the Dean of Men.

Despite fervent action on the part of the women students last year, women's residence halls are still locked every night — at 11:00 Sunday through Thursday and at 1:00 on Friday and Saturday nights. For the first time, however, keys to the dorms will be available to all women students without the previously required parental permission. First term freshmen must check out their keys through their senior counselors; all other women have the option of paying a $5.00 deposit and keeping the keys in their possession at all times.

Each dorm has its own government, set up according to the needs of the dorm. All dorms have elected officers who are responsible for drawing up many of the rules under which the dorm will operate and seeing that these rules are enforced. They also help to work out problems that arise within the dorm.

Residence halls at any school are a very important and formulative part of the student's experience. Conversely, the dorm can be only as active and pleasant as its inhabitants. A dorm that is able to function as a unit has a tremendous potential for making changes and improvements in college life.

Editorial

Attitudes in action

As incoming freshmen and new students, your ears will be filled within the next few days by the ringing tones of persons both official and unofficial welcoming you to the wonderful world of college and encouraging you to develop the "right attitude," whatever that mght be. And since everybody's doing it, the Echo might as well add its four cents worth--four because we always have twice as much to say as anybody else.

To take a slightly more serious tone, which we sometimes do, we would like to suggest that as new members of our well publicized "community," you really should develop a healthy attitude toward, and interest in, the place where you will, hopefully, be spending the next few years. Now here's where our idea of the proper attitude differs from the one you'll be hearing about. Read on.

All too often we are told that things can't always go the way we want them to, or that we just take the bad with the good. This may be perfectly true, but is there some sacred commandment which says that we must always accept gracefully what we find intolerable at the worst or just plain unpleasant at the best? Not that we ever ran into. So now you have learned the first cardinal rule of survival at Maryville or any other college--FIGHT! If you don't like someting, speak up. Those who passively accept and offer no opinions have nothing to complain about--they created their own situation. Conversely, we do not advocate violence in any form, nor do we support needless and endless bitching abut trivial matters too deeply ingrained into MC's tradition to be remove with anything short of dynamite. Cases in point are CIV, soon to become your favorite Wednesday morning activity, and compulsory physical education, a personal gripe of the editor's, due to a total lack of coordination. Such issues are not harmful to our basic needs, and, believe it or not, student opinion actually has been taken into consideration with regard to these matters. The time to speak out is when you feel that the student voice has not been heard, or if heard, has been ignored.

Which, at long last, brings us to the crux of the matter. In our opinion, the newspaper is the voice of the students, although in the past some on campus have felt the Echo has been produced by a minority for a minority. We hope that will not be the case this year--at least, that is not our intention. We wish to offer ourselves as a sort of soap box for anyone with a burning desire to speak his or her mind on any issue of relevance to the campus. So speak up, speak out, write in, and make yourselves heard. If the Echo is to be a paper for all students, it must hear the opinions of all students. We thank you.

The editor speaks for the Echo as a whole, not for the staff as individuals, and her opinions are her own, so if you don't like them, please don't condemn the entire staff. Complain to the editor by mail or in person. We welcome criticism. We also welcome letters to the editor, and guest editorials are possible if the Echo feels that the issue to be discussed merits such space.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58 Maryville College Maryville, Tennessee

Editor - Carla Hulce
Associate editor - Patti Shelton
Faculty Advisor - Dr. Elizabeth Fowler

Business Manager - Steve Gilmore
And a cast of thousands

The HIGHLAND ECHO is printed by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

A THREE-MONTH LOOK AT CREEPING BUREAUCRACY

By Ron Hendren

WASHINGTON—Soon now hundreds of young students who poured into Washington three months ago for a stint as summer interns in various branches of the federal government will return to their classes at colleges and universities across the land.

As has happened at the end of other summers, many will leave minus the change-the-world-in-a-day enthusiasm they brought with them. And some will leave thoroughly disillusioned with their employer, the federal bureaucracy which has come to play so important a role not only in the lives of young people but in the day-to-day affairs of all Americans.

A part of students' disaffection can be chalked up to youthful idealism, overblown expectations about doing substantive work, and lack of experience in dealing with the countless, interconnected wheels that grind away ever so slowly to make our government work.

But their frustrations should not be dismissed out of hand on these grounds. There are very real problems with the government's intern programs, problems which unfortunately are in many ways representative of the waste and inefficiency that plague the federal bureaucracy.

As one student put it about her "summer of incredible boredom": "I was not placed in an office in any way related to my college major. No attempt was ever made by my superiors to give me any projects—no matter how unimportant—I wasn't even given clerical work to do!" While in all fairness it is not likely that a large percentage of interns feel quite that strongly about their experiences, her statement is nonetheless indicative of the absence of guidance and lack of opportunities for meaningful contributions which hamper the intern programs.

The hiring of over-qualified people to do clerical and related tasks is a major cause of much of the frustration. (Interns in some offices, for example, are expected to be "gofers"—go for coffee, deliver messages, or take mail to the post office.) Not that it is in any way commendable to be above menial chores—every job has them and they are good for self-discipline—but it hardly benefits either employee or employer to restrict qualified workers solely to that which is boring, if not demeaning.

In many offices, it is fair to say, girls get the worst end of the deal. It is somehow expected that they, less than males, resent doing menial tasks. Former Senator Joseph Tydings (D-Md.), whose office hired only young women for summer positions, even prepared a letter sent to all male applicants which said, in effect, that males would be unhappy doing the same menial chores which females of equal ability and intelligence could be counted on to perform. The women's liberation movement notwithstanding, the time has come to dismiss once and for all the myth that women are not as qualified as men to think and to carry out substantive assignments.

But the problems run considerably deeper than the intern program itself, the hiring of over-qualified people, the "gofer-ism", the discrimination against females, and all the myriad criticisms which have become commonplace to hear this time of year.

The fact is that the bureaucracy has become so complex, so big, that it is not uncommon to find full-time employees who feel much the same way as do the more vocal interns. The government has so sprawled itself across the land, so inextricably entwined itself around the affairs of citizens, that it is almost impossible to move Washington in any one direction at any velocity detectable by the naked eye.

In many cases programs have been overlapped from department to department, three people have been hired to do the job of one, authority has been so dissipated that it takes a committee to make the simplist of decisions, and so on. The most casual glance at the average federal employee's job description proves virtually mind-boggling in the degree to which it confirms this situation.

Everyone realizes what is needed: a step-by-step overhauling of the Civil Service Commission and federal hiring practices and procedures at the outset, and ultimately a streamlining of the entire executive branch of the federal government. It would take years, to be sure, but the task isn't impossible given courage and the best management minds the country can produce. And to be equally sure, it is long overdue. The entire nation, including a number of frustrated summer interns, would be grateful benefactors.

Vol. II No. 8
For subscribers only

©Copyright 1972 by
WASHINGTON WEEKLY, Inc.
All rights reserved.

NOTICE: Due to organizational problems the next issue of the Echo will not appear until September 22.

Some aspects of life at Maryville College may have been overlooked due to oversight on the part of editors or reporters. We apologize for this and would like to hear about any omissions.

Where is justice?

It is a sad but true fact, so the Florida General Telephone service tells us, that only one paper clip in five fulfills its destiny! According to United Press International, a survey of 100,000 paper clips revealed that 14,163 were twisted during telephone calls while 17,200 were used as make-shift suspender hooks. Only about 20,000 actually got to clip paper, and many thousands wound up with no destiny at all — getting dropped on the floor to be swept away. We suggest that sometime during this busy week all MC students take a few moments to think of the shattered hopes and dreams of the paper clip.

Letters to the editor must be signed and delivered to Box 2820 by noon on Monday.

Musical opportunities for MC students

by Charles Craven

The Maryville College Fine Arts Department sponsors three major performing musical organizations. Although many students who join the organizations are music majors, membership is very much open to non-music majors as well.

Rehearsal schedules are designed to insure maximum musical achievement without making unreasonable demands on one's study schedule. Both the band and the choir call for 4½ hours of rehearsal per week, with the orchestra calling for 3½ hours per week. Note that none of the organization's rehearsal schedules conflicts with the others, to allow students to be active in more than one organization.

Highlander Marching and Concert Band

The Highlander Marching Band performs at all home football games. When the football season closes, the Marching Band becomes the Concert Band, which usually schedules three concerts during the winter and spring terms.

In its productions and concerts, Director Dan Stallings says the band "strives to be a little different." The "differences" include such things as premiering specially written music, performing a pop concert out-of-doors, featuring singers, ballet dancers, and other artists in performances, and occasionally involving audience particpitaion in the program.

The band schedules a tour once a year during spring vacation, and has traveled in Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, and other states. This year, the band plans to travel as far south as Orlando or St. Petersburg, Florida.

This fall begins the band's sixth year under the direction of Dan Stallings), who has had over eighteen years of experience in band direction. Other members of the band's staff include Lynn Brown, president, David Barker, drum major, and Gay Winfield, head majorette.

The band rehearses frm 4:00 to 5:30 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Band membership is open to any interrsted student who is reasonably adept at playing a band instrument. Students who are interested should come to the first rehearsal on Wednesday, Sept. 13, at 4:00 p.m. in the band building (behind the Fine Arts Center).

College Choir

The Maryville College Choir is a concert choir which has, under the leadership of Dr. Harry H. Harter, gained a widespread reputation for being "a superior choir, always associated with the finest in choral music." It has been acclaimed as "one of the outstanding college musical groups in the country."

The choir gives a concert tour annually during spring break. Over the past 20 years the choir has traveled well over 50,000 miles and has appeared in more than 200 cities east of the Mississippi River, including a 1967 performance in Carnegie Hall, New York. This year, the choir plans to head northwest, with stops in such states as Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, and Ohio.

The choir is limited to about sixty members, and membership is through individual auditions. The times and dates for the auditions are:

Monday, Sept. 11 - 3:30-6:00 p.m. - Sopranos

Tuesday, Sept. 12 - 3:30-6:00 p.m. - Altos; 7:00-8:00 p.m. - Basses; 8:00-9:00 p.m. - Tenors. The final audition and blending sessions will be on Wednesday, Sept. 13, immediately after Academic Convocation, at 9:30 p.m.

Membership in the choir calls for a firm commitment to a regular rehearsal schedule of 4½ hours a week. The schedule is:

Tuesday: 4:00 - 5:30 p.m.
Wednesday: 6:30 - 8:00 p,m.
Thursday: 4:00 - 5:30 p.m.

College-Community Oratorio Chorus

The Oratorio Chorus is a large chorus composed of the College Choir as the nucleus, plus any interested students, faculty, and community residents. Since 1933, formed Handel's Messiah anthis chorus, along with the College Orchestra, has pernually. Rehearsals for this year's production will begin on Monday, Sept. 18, at 7:00 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall. They will be held on each Monday evening thereafter until the performance on November 12. Those interested in participating should attend the first rehearsal.

In addition to the Messiah, the Oratorio Chorus participates in other select oratorios. This year, plans have been made for the chorus to travel to Dallas, Texas, this spring to perform Richard Yardumian's oratorio The Story of Abraham with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra on May 3 and 5. Travel expenses have been provided.

College-Community Orchestra

The College-Community Orchestra, which is made up of both college students and musicians from the community, is under the direction of Lee Kull. Mr. Kull is widely known for his experience in performing as a soloist and with select ensembles. Before coming to Maryville, he was a member of an ensemble which performed in Carnegie Hall, New York. In addition, he has been featured as a soloist in such cities as Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Toledo, Ohio, and Knoxville, Tennessee.

The orchestra plays in the annual production of the Messiah. It also gives two concerts. One of the concerts this year will feature two short operas. The other one will include student performers in recital.

The orchestra rehearses on Monday evenings from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m., and on Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 8:00 p.m.

Those who are interested in becoming orchestra members should see Mr. Kull in the Fine Arts Center for an audition as soon as possible.

The speech-theatre department also has many opportunities for expression in acting as well as technical work. Under the directon of Tom Jones and a new member of the staff, Mr. Beasley, try-outs will be conducted Sept. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the theater for "My Fair Lady," the first production of the year. Anyone interested is urged to try out for any of the fine arts activities.

LEARNING

by Wiley Rutledge

Everyone knows that when we come to college our purpose is to learn. We usually succeed in this endeavor, though not always in the manner intended. This column is primarily addressed to the freshman class, with the idea of helping this learning process along.

No doubt by now you ill have been told many things about your future at MC but the reason behind many of these statements is often obscure — not through any wish to deceive the students, but rather because the faculty and administration rightly fear a mass exodus to Siberia if freshmen should find out the reason we do things as we do. For example, by now you will probably have gathered that many students do not complete their four years at Maryville College. As at other schools, many flunk out, mnay transfer. But the majority of those who do not graduate have simply fallen asleep in CIV, never to rise again.

Then, of course, we all hear about our president, Dr. Joseph J. Copeland. There is a rumor that he hides in his office all day, but I know for a fact that this is not true. Every three days or so he appears to remind us that we are a community and that he is proud of that fact. Then he goes back to watching "My Three Sons."

And you'll hear all about what a great time you're going to have at MC. This is true, if you know how to have a big evening. If you can't make it to Easy-Curb or Knoxville, your best bet is to go out onto the baseball field and listen to the crickets. Very stimulating.

Speaking for myself (I do that a lot), we're glad to have you here and we wish you the best of luck!

Campus societies

Admittedly, Maryville College offers limited social opportunities. However, for the student who enjoys an active social life and one which accomplishes something at the same time, MC has four societies to choose from. Maryville's societies are unlike sorority-fraternity organizations on other campuses in that you, the student, select the group to which you wish to belong. Of course we still have rush and initiation days and all the fun that goes along with this type of fellowship.

The four societies actually form two groups of two brother-sister organizations. Chi Beta and Kappa Phi are one such group and Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma compose the other. Whether you choose to join a society or remain a GDI, The society activities in the fall are geared to include everyone in the fun.

Variety of sports offered

by Phyllis Garner

The beginning of a new academic year means more than classes and books. It also means the opening of another year of collegiate sports.

Already the Scot footballers have been hard at work, hoping for another winning season. But as football season ends and inclement weather drives sports fans indoors, Maryville's basketball and wrestling teams start warming up, preparing for their respective seasons.

Then, with the coming of the spring, our athletes once again take to the outdoors. A variety of track, tennis, and baseball teams offer a game for everyone's taste. However, if you don't enjoy just watching or you don't have the time or talent to make varsity, be of good cheer. For you there is an exciting program of intramurals for both women and men.

In the fall, men's flagball provides very spirited competition. Women participate in soccer and field hockey. During the winter months, men's intramurals turn toward basketball and wrestling again. Spring means swimming, softball and powderpuff football and, of course, the famous after-dinner buck-buck games.

Co-ed sports are very popular at MC and lists will go up in the dorms all during the year allowing you to sign up for any sport. The societies sponsor their own teams but independents also form separate teams.

If you're interested in sports, either as a spectator or participant, Maryville College offers something for everyone.

Interested in dance? If you have studied dance previously and-or are male, Mrs. Cheryl Van Metre of Maryville conducts ballet classes locally.

Everybody's talking about pollution.

Woodsy Owl has 104 ways to stop it.

Sure.

We all know how awful pollution is. And we all know that we have to start soon if we're going to save America. But where do we start? And how?

Some of the answers are right on this page. Woodsy, the nation's antipollution owl, came up with 104 things that you and your family and neighbors can do. Today.

Tear out this page. Read it. Remember it. And make sure that everybody gets a good look at it. Even tack it up on a bulletin board. Remember. It's up to all of us to fight for our environment. We only have one earth. Let's make sure it's here for our children, and their children to enjoy.

No. 1 Learn these Woodsy Owl "Hoots," tell others about Woodsy Owl, and encourage them to help in our fight against pollution.

No. 2 Collect cans, bottles and papers and take them to the nearest recycling center. If there is no recycling center near you, contact your local city or county offices and encourage the establishment of such centers.

No. 3 Encourage Public Service groups to arrange for the collection of trash in your home town for recycling.

No. 4 Separate your household trash. Smash cans and put in one box; bottles in another; papers in another. This makes recycling easier.

No. 5 Don't throw away old clothes and furniture. Give them to someone who can use them or repair and sell. Every thing that doesn't land in the trash pile means that much less to be burned or disposed of in some way.

No. 6 Start an "ecology cupboard" in your home. Store reusable items like string, paper, boxes, cartons, plastic containers, ribbon, yarn. Reuse them before discarding. Be sure storage is neat and safe.

No. 7 Encourage companies to discover ways to reuse or safely dispose of plastic products. Right now, the only way to dispose of plastic is by incineration. This adds to our air pollution problems.

No. 8 Encourage companies to raise the bottle-deposit sum to encourage the return of bottles.

No. 9 When possible, ride your bike or walk to meetings, school, work, etc.; encourage others to do the same.

No. 10 Form car pools and share the ride to work, school, meetings, etc.; encourage others to do the same.

No. 11 Press for action by automobile manufacturers to produce a smog-free engine.

No. 12 Ask for low-lead or no-lead gasoline for your car.

No. 13 Keep your engine properly tuned (approximately every 10,000 miles). Encourage others to do the same. This cuts down on exhaust emissions and helps reduce air pollution.

No. 14 Keep boat engines properly tuned and encourage others to keep theirs tuned also. An improperly tuned boat engine causes more petroleum wastes to go into the water and air.

No. 15 Encourage your fishermen friends to pick up their old fishing line (or someone else's). If left on the ground it can kill or injure birds and small animals.

No. 16 When you take photographs, pick up used film packs. The packs form litter and some chemicals in the packs can poison animals.

No. 17 Encourage everyone to "Take only pictures...Leave only Footprints."

No. 18 Put metal tabs from drink cans and plastic carriers for six-packs in trash cans. They are hazardous to animals as well as being a litter problem.

No. 19 Keep your transistor radio volume set moderately. Noise is a form of pollution too.

No. 20 Encourage local officials to reduce noise pollution along freeways and heavily travelled streets by proper tree and shrub plantations.

No. 21 Encourage everyone, including local park officials, to plant just one more tree or shrub. Trees play a major part in purifying air; the oxygen they release dilutes pollution in the air. Trees also help regulate temperatures; tree transpiration cools the air like a gigantic air conditioner.

No. 22 Ask Mom, when she does the family wash, to measure detergents carefully, using only enough to get clothes clean.

No. 23 Place small pieces of leftover soap in a piece of Mom's discarded nylon hose; give it to a child to bubble up their bath. This uses up bits of soap, recycles the piece of nylon hose and cleans the younger generation, all at the same time!

No. 24 Run your dishwasher only once a day, or less, depending on size of your family. This helps to conserve water.

No. 25 Put a brick in your tank! A brick in your toilet tank reduces the amount of water used to flush.

No. 26 Turn water faucets off firmly to stop leaking and conserve water.

No. 27 Don't leave garden hoses and faucets running for long periods of time. Leave lawn sprinklers on just long enough to water grass thoroughly but not long enough for water to run-off down the street.

No. 28 Don't throw trash in streams, lakes, rivers and oceans; it belongs in a trash can, not in our water supplies.

No. 29 Don't hide your trash in the snow. When the snow melts in the spring, you'll be the cause of sight and water pollution.

No. 30 Are there adequate litter containers in your city parks, schools and nearby recreation areas? If not, discuss the matter with public officials; offer to help obtain used oil drums (Service stations will often donate drums); clean, paint and decorate them with Woodsy's slogan "Give A-Hoot...Don't Pollute."

No. 31 Keep beaches, parks and roadsides clean. Urge your friends to do the same.

No. 32 Organize "Hooter Patrol" and, with the aid of the members, look for pollution problems in your area. Then take action to stop these problems.

No. 33 Don't spray paint on rocks, fences or buildings. This causes sight pollution and makes a countryside or city street ugly.

No. 34 Picking plants and wildflowers leaves the land bare, ugly and subject to erosion. Leave them there for all to share!

No. 35 Read instructions and contents carefully before buying any kind of pesticide.

No. 36 Use chemical pesticides sparingly. Follow directions carefully.

No. 37 Pull your lawn weeds out by hand. This is good, healthful exercise and eliminates the need for applying herbicides.

No. 38 Dispose of excess pesticides and their containers according to instructions on the label or advice of County Agents. Keep 'em out of drains and water.

No. 39 Average air fresheners and deodorizers are a lot stronger, chemically, than their names imply. Open windows and doors to let in fresh air; this will do much to rid your home of offensive odors.

No. 40 Several bowls of vinegar placed in a smoke-laden room will clear the air quickly. Any liquid has smoke-absorbing qualities. A drop of cologne in water will help too.

No. 41 Do you see something ecologically unsound? Write to the company, calling attention to the pollution they are causing... this can help.

No. 42 Filter-tip cigarettes can be harmful to cesspools and even the largest city sewage processing plants. Put them in ashtrays, not drains and toilets.

No. 43 Some dyestuffs do not break down biologically and should be regarded with a wary eye. White tissues and paper do not contain dye.

No. 44 Be an ecologically aware shopper. Don't buy goods whose by-products or residues result in unnecessary trash.

No. 45 Support adequate local anti-litter and pollution laws and their proper enforcement.

No. 46 Public officials can help encourage interstate cooperation to control water, air and land pollution on a regional basis.

No. 47 Accumulated wire coat hangers can be tied in bundles and returned to your cleaner for reuse. If you throw them out they add immensely to the garbage problem.

No. 48 Clean, clear and disinfect sinks and drains with ordinary table salt. Salt is not toxic, and it has antiseptic and disinfectant properties, as well as abrasive, cleansing ones.

No. 49 Help decrease the mountains of garbage we generate each day by using cloth napkins.

No. 50 Protest overpackaging of fresh foods to store managers.

No. 51 Make sure your car has the required smog device and have it checked regularly.

No. 52 If you put your garbage on the street for collection, make sure the container is spill-proof. If you live in buildings with incinerators, follow instructions so you don't litter incinerator rooms.

No. 53 Organic materials like cooking fat clog plumbing and septic tanks, causing sewage overflow. Put them in your garbage pail...not your sink.

No. 54 Return nutrients to the soil. Start a compost pile with leaves and grass clippings. Never burn leaves and trash.

No. 55 Smokey Bear is so right! Be careful with matches... fires cause air, water and sight pollution.

No. 56 Use a hand mower if your lawn is small. Keep gasoline operated tools in top condition so noise and exhaust fumes are minimized.

No. 57 A littered picnic area is spoiled for everyone. Dispose of your trash properly and pick up discards left by others.

No. 58 Your house should be well insulated and tree-shaded to minimize fuel consumption in winter and air conditioning loads in summer. This helps to keep power loads down and helps stop pollution.

No. 59 Don't use washers and dryers during peak electrical load hours (5-7 pm). The strain at your local generating station may add to air pollution.

No. 60 Use low wattage bulbs in lamps not used for reading and turn out lights not being used to conserve power.

No. 61 Carry a litter bag in your car and boat. Bring it home and dispose of it properly, after your trip.

No. 62 Encourage local newspapers and civic club publications to publish facts on progress being made to help stop pollution. Help keep everyone informed.

No. 63 Don't sound your horn unless safety dictates. Keep your muffler and tailpipe repaired. This will help reduce noise pollution.

No. 64 Set up a "cleaner environment corner" in your school or city library. Include books, magazines, reprints and pictures on ecology, as well as Woodsy Owl materials.

No. 65 Help create community interest in schools. Focus on litter problems and efforts to combat it. Student governments can set up good housekeeping rules for school use and enforce them. Establish a school environment improvement club or committee including faculty and students.

No. 66 Proper engine maintenance to reduce smog and litter prevention instruction can be integrated into driver training. Suggest this to your school.

No. 67 Encourage teachers to write or contact local offices of agencies with active anti-pollution programs for information.

No. 68 Promote a teenage "Cleaner Environment" campaign to help clean up all kinds of pollution.

No. 69 Ask national organizations and corporations for information and assistance. Many have experience in environmental improvement programs and are willing to help.

No. 70 Examine your place of work; if you find pollution problems caused by your production, take steps to reduce or eliminate them. Make sure there are adequate trash receptacles on the premises.

No. 71 Encourage installation of scrubber systems on stacks to eliminate noxious emissions into the air.

No. 72 Encourage installation of modern, adequate waste disposal equipment on local industry operations.

No. 73 Be sure contaminated water and sewage is not discharged into local rivers, lakes and streams. Seek the installation of adequate water treatment plants.

No. 74 Talk to religious groups. Stress the spiritual value of nature and man's dependence on it for his very existence.

No. 75 Encourage the production of ecology films for school distribution.

No. 76 Encourage companies to locate new facilities so that employees can use mass transit systems or help their employees form car pools.

No. 77 Help restore natural beauty to areas where raw materials have been stripped.

No. 78 Seek adoption of safeguards to prevent oil spillage from tankers and offshore drilling. Help in the clean-up effort wherever spillage occurs.

No. 79 Discourage the erection of signs that contribute to sight pollution.

No. 80 Seek elimination or control of horn blasts, factory whistles or other loud sounds that add to noise pollution.

No. 81 Contact airline companies and encourage the installation of smog-free engines for their planes.

No. 82 Encourage development of packages that are reusable, recyclable or otherwise easily disposable.

No. 83 Encourage beautification of office and plant facilities where you work.

No. 84 Seek cooperation of public officials to make sure public facilities don't pollute in violation of codes already in effect.

No. 85 Encourage public officials to develop fair standards for all so that companies without pollution device controls do not gain unfair competitive advantage over companies that have these devices.

No. 86 Ask public officials to support basic research programs required to control pollution and promote recycling.

No. 87 Suggest incentives for companies to install pollution abatement devices.

No. 88 Attend local government meetings (city councils, boards of supervisors, etc.) and ask about their plans to control pollution; offer your assistance.

No. 89 Support measures to improve our environment and reduce pollution...even if it costs money...and it will!!

No. 90 Work with official city beautification committees. If none exist, help create a citizens' committee thru support of Chamber of Commerce, women's and service groups, PTA and youth organizations.

No. 91 Organize a community conference and discuss positive approaches to pollution control. Invite public officials, representatives of labor and industry as well as other interested groups and individuals. Get all the facts and initiate action programs.

No. 92 Survey community opinion to determine how much support there is for cleaner environment programs. If there isn't enough...educate the people for their support.

No. 93 Be sure your community takes advantage of grants provided by (HUD) U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development for urban area beautification programs.

No. 94 To decrease sight pollution, urge city officials to provide and maintain better, benches, bus shelters, lamp posts, street signs and trash containers.

No. 95 Urge public officials to adopt a sensible ordinance to govern installation of commercial and industrial signs (including billboards).

No. 96 Encourage local home builders to develop a program of leaving as many trees as possible when they develop a subdivision.

No. 97 Encourage aesthetic plantings around freeways and public buildings to include plants and trees that have a higher resistance to air pollution.

No. 98 Enlist the help of local news media to help in pollution control efforts. State purpose clearly to elicit strong editorial support. Present all facts and avoid one-sided statements.

No. 99 Teach your children a reverence for life; inspire them with a knowledge of Nature. This will motivate them to work for and demand a cleaner environment throughout their lives.

No. 100 There is no season for pollution, it occurs every day, all year. Do something each day to fight pollution. Encourage others to do the same!

No. 101 If you own a trail bike, learn where the proper trails are located and use them! Tires that go off the trail cause erosion. Erosion pollutes, killing fish and plants.

No. 102 Encourage your local trash collection company to collect cans, bottles and papers in separate containers for recycling. This will also help reduce the solid waste problem.

No. 103 Encourage your telephone and power companies to place their utility lines underground.

No. 104 Work with department stores and telephone companies to help collect old directories and catalogs for recycling.

Give a hoot! Don't pollute.

PSC

Journalism on campus

by Patti Shelton

Last year Maryville College experienced several apathy-overcoming occurences, not the least of which was the Great Yearbook Scandal. Somtime in 1971 the Communications Committee, through some unknown process, selected an editor for the Chilhowean. This new editor lived off campus and wasn't around a great deal, thus it was winter term 1972 before anyone realized that due to unlimited confusion most of the scheduled yearbook deadlines had not been met. Chaos prevailed. I mean, what is spring on a college campus without a yearbook?

Fortunately there are some brave souls left in the world and Freddie Rhodes is one of them. Freddie took over as Chilhowean editor and he, along with a dedicated and tireless staff, worked many hours putting together the yearbook we will receive this fall.

The Chilhowean this year does not look like the conventional yearbook of other years, but we can offer no apologies for this because considering the length of time this staff had to accomplish a great amount of work, we're darned lucky to have a yearbook. Freddie and his staff did a really great job, a job that nobody else wanted at that time so it seems only fair that when they get busy on the '72-'73 yearbook they should have everyone's cooperation. New people are always needed to work on the Chilhowean, so if you have had yearbook experience and would like to work, contact Freddie Rhodes, Box 2643.

Speaking of new people, the Echo staff could always use a couple of those, too. We particularly need experienced typists, proofreaders and lay-out people but if you want to do reporting, we also welcome that. Also our business manager, Steve Gilmore, desperately needs some staff for designing and selling ads. So, if you have experience or just a burning desire to smell printer's ink and get your hand caught in the paste-up machine at the Maryville-Alcoa Daily Times, contact either Patti Shelton or editor Carla Hulce, Box 2820.

Science for the masses

by Linda Lou Blomeke

If you're planning on a science major or you're simply interested in pottering around with ecology or the physical sciences, Maryville College is the place for you. Sutton Science Center houses the various science departments, including the Biology, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics departments.

The Biology department is held together by Dr. A. Randolph Shields and Mr. Robert Ramger. Another important member of the staff is Lloyd Foster. Mr. Foster directs activities at Tremont, Maryville College's Environmental Education Center, located just inside the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. The center at Tremont is used for classes intended to provide an understanding of ecological principles. Tremont also makes a wonderful spot for conferences and picnics.

Back at SSC, the Chemistry department is enchanced by the efforts of Dr. David P. Young, who has written numerous articles and a book which has been published under the title A New World in the Morning. Chemistry students are helped along by several computers and a spectrometer, which assists in determining the structure of molecules.

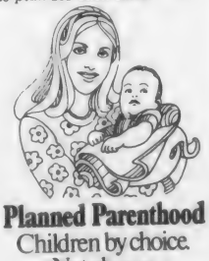
Dr. William H. Dent and Dr. John Nichols have made Maryville's Mathematics department a good one for students who excell in math, and upstairs are the offices of Dr. Norman Love and Dr. Thomas Ferrell, our two physics experts. Dr. Love enjoys working with computers and helps students who have a similar interest.

An important part of the science program at Maryville is MACCI (Mid-Appalachia College Council, Incorporated). This council, composed of twelve colleges, has established a Field Biology Teaching and Research Center on Norris Lake. Dr. Shields is the director of this center which holds classes during the summer. This past summer, there were three sessions which included instruction in geology, plant taxonomy, Forest Ecology and Limnology.

Maryville College is indeed fortunate to have such excellent facilities and instructors. New students should take some time to investigate the opportunities for science study and even upperclassmen might find that Sutton Science Center has much to offer if they will only look.

there's lots of living and loving ahead

Why cut it short?



American Cancer Society

A child is not just an extra mouth to feed.

It's another pair of feet to shoe. Another body to clothe.

A whole other life to be provided for.

That's why it's important to plan for each child.

Planned Parenthood

Children by choice. Not chance.

For further information, write Planned Parenthood,

114 Dameron Avenue N.W.
Knoxville, Tennessee 37917
Phone: (615) 524-7407

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | Sept. 22, 1972 | No. 2

New academic dean kicks off year

Wiley Rutledge

The academic convocation held last Wednesday marked a unique beginning to the 1972-73 year, and certainly the most unique feature of the entire service was the address given by Dr. Blair, Academic Dean.

In her address, Dr. Blair used the book Jonathan Livingston Seagull as a catalyst to challenge students to think for themselves. She pointed out that in a world where we are increasingly getting our values from outside sources, it is imperative that we take time to know what we are.

Dean Blair used the example of her own yard to illustrate the necessity to valuate everything we hear. She related how a dog and some neighborhood children had been very destructive, the dog by strewing garbage all over the place, and the children by picking all the cherries on her tree while they were still green. To her great dissappointment, she found it necessary to build a fence. When a young neighbor happened by while she was working in her yard one day, she noticed his disappointment at the fence and, informing him that it was not directed against him, she invited him in through the gate. He solved her problem by pointing out that it is fine to have fences as long as there are gates. This was a main theme of the address. Fences are required to keep out the bad, but gates are just as necessary to let in the good.

A second anecdote related by Dr. Blair greatly enhanced the main point. When confronted with a student who was confused by the fact that all her friends had different philosophies of life, she asked, "What do you think?" She did not point out the issue to show her own wisdom, but simply to challenge us. That she did.

Convocation was also the occasion of Maryville College's presentation of the honorary degree of Doctor of Sacred Music to composer Richard Yardumian in recognition of his many contributions to the world of music. His efforts include the oratorio "The Story of Abraham," which had its world premiere at Maryville College on May 18 of last year. Often called "the new Bach," Mr. Yardumian's music has had critical as well as audience acclaim through the world.

Both Dr. Blair's speech and the obvious audience enthusiasm for the granting of Mr Yardumian's degree contributed to an entertaining and thought-provoking opening ceremony which, hopefully, portents an eventful and highly successful academic year.

Adoption through audition

By Charles Craven

After having individual and ensemble tryouts, the Maryville College Concert Choir now welcomes eighteen new people into the organization.

The soprano section has six new members: Mary Apetz, Chris D'Aquilla, Pam Gnagy, Angela Peterson, Linny Tucker, and Louie Turner.

Six new faces are also seen in the alto section: Kathy Bushing, Sally Gillespie, Celeste Gourdin, Vaughan Kennedy, Missy Mitchell, and Jan Roper.

The tenors have added two new men: Dan Bergner, and Bill Gaffney.

Tom Bledsoe, Jeff Davidson, Bob Ponton, and Lee Schilling are the four new basses.

In a little over a week from now, the new choir members will be officially welcomed into the choir through the fall picnic and the informal and formal initiations. The stated purpose of the initiation is that the new members "feel the ties and bonds involved" in being choir members, though they may wonder about this during the early hours of the day!

The new choir will make its first appearance at a special vespers service on Sunday evening, Oct. 1. In addition to rehearsing music to be performed at this service and on tour, the choir is now working on a newly written musical work by Lalo Schifrin and Ray Bradbury entitled, "Madrigals for the Space Age." It is being sponsored by the Appalachian Regional Convention of the Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia musical fraternity. After being performed in Knoxville at The University of Tennessee on Oct. 11, it will be performed as a CIV here on Wednesday evening, Oct. 12, at 8:15 p.m.

Two successes for summer playhouse

Kathy Meier

Each summer Maryville theater productions are open to both towns-people and college students under the direction of Tom Jones. The Playhouse strives to involve as many people as possible, especially children. During the summer of '72 two plays were produced that attracted a wide range of participation.

The first, "Li'l Abner," appealed to everyone with its familia and hilarious dialect. The hero, Abner Yokum, and Daisy Mae, were played by Maryville High students: Brad Hodson and Jenny Cunningham. Mammy and Pappy Yokum were played by Carol Burns and Jimmy Delozier. The college students involved were: Paul Hollingsworth as Lonesome Polecat, Steve Ayers as Marryin' Sam, Tom Williamson as Senator Phogbound, Howard Welsh as General Bullmoose, and Kay Hurlbut as Appassionata Von Climax :in the June 30 performance, Melissa Collins played the latter role. The cast was rounded out by a lively chorus who danced to choreographer Cheryl Van Metre's directions.

The second pay of the summer had a much larger cast due to the sixty-seven children called for in "The King and I." Carol Fisher, and M.C. graduate played the part of Anna. The King was portrayed by Carl McDonald with David Widner appearing as Louis, Phil Gibson as the Kralhome, Jo Sluss as Tuptim, Ernest Greeno as Luntha, Jean Schoff as Lady Thiang and John West as Prince Chulalongkorn.

Obviously the MC summer theater was exciting both by choice and by chance.

Alumnus to speak at recognition CIV

Linda Lou Blomeke

The CIV for Wednesday, September 27, will be in the form of a Convocation, sponsored by Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society. Each year this society honors the recipients of scholarships based on academic achievement.

The guest speaker at this Convocation will be David Powell, a 1967 graduate of Maryville College. At the present time, Mr. Powell is a doctoral candidate and teaching assistant at the University of Tennessee. His teaching areas include freshman composition, black literature in America, and an honors film course. He is also in the process of preparing a special course on the self.

Mr. Powell has published a short volume of poems entitled My Watermelon Man. This collection can be found in our library and the poems are most enjoyable. While a student at Maryville College, Mr. Powell wrote a collection of short stories for his independent study and contributed poems and other articles to the Highland Echo.

In 1966, Mr. Powell was named runner-up in the Hallmark Poetry Contest, and while at U.T., he has been awarded the John C. Hodges Award for Creative Teaching.

On Wednesday, Mr. Powell will speak on the topic "Salmagundi as a Way of Life." Anyone who is interested in creative writing is invited to meet with Mr. Powell in the Fine Arts Center Lounge immediately after CIV.

Forum offers opportunity

Michael Montgomery

Competitive public speaking is no group activity — its essence is seen in individuals directly competing with one another for success and reward.

With individuality as its basis of operation, the MC FORUM is promoting participation in intercollegiate speaking contests, coordinating and assisting students desiring to compete on the tournament circuit, and providing access to regional competitions throughout the year. This season's initial trip will be to Boone, North Carolina, on November 3-4.

What speaking activities are involved? Humorous speaking, interpretive reading (of poetry and prose), extemporaneous and persuasive speaking, group reading, solo and duet acting, and many additional events are regularly scheduled.

Through its loose structure FORUM sponsors rather than regulates. Each individual is permitted great freedom to design his own presentation within the context of the nature of the event.

FORUM functions as a service for MC students by enabling any person with an interest in speaking competitively to open an avenue of self-development, achievement, and gratification (in terms of winning awards). Each person is given the opportunity to develop his own ideas and skills and the chance to choose and pursue his own goals.

Participation is voluntary and is conditional on no requirements — except thorough preparation of one's presentation. FORUM handles all expenses - transport, lodging, meals, entrance fees, etc.

Persons interested or curious should direct their inquiries to Mr. Blair Beasley, second floor Theatre or Box 2814.

GRE dates announced

PRINCETON, N.J. — Educational Testing Service announced today that undergraduates and others preparing to go to graduate school may take the Graduate Record Examinations on any of six different test dates during the current academic year.

The first testing date for the GRE is October 28, 1972. Scores from this administration will be reported to the graduate schools around December 4. Students planning to register for the October test date are advised that applications received by ETS after October 3 will incur a $3.50 late registration fee. After October 10, there is no guarantee that applications for the October test date can be processed.

The other five test dates are December 9, 1972, January 20, February 24, (only the Aptitude Test is administered), April 28, and June 16, 1973. Equivalent late fee and registration deadlines apply to these dates. Choice of test dates should be determined by the requirements of graduate schools or fellowship sponsors to which one is applying. Scores are usually reported to graduate schools five weeks after a test date.

The Graduate Record Examinations include an Aptitude Test of general scholastic ability and Advanced Tests measuring achievement in 19 major fields of study. Full details and registration forms for the GRE are contained in the 1972-73 GRE Information Bulletin. The Bulletin also contains forms and instructions for requesting transcript service on GRE scores already on file with ETS. This booklet is available on most campuses or may be ordered from: Educational Testing Service, Box 955, Princeton, New Jersey 08540; Educational Testing Service, 1947 Center Street, Berkeley, California 94704; Educational Testing Service, 960 Grove Street, Evanston, Illinois 60201.

Cast chosen for "My Fair Lady"

Nancy McCleary

Playhouse opens its 1972-73 season with the Lerner and Loewe musical, "My Fair Lady." This Broadway show, which featured such well-known songs as "I Could have Danced All Night; On the Street Where You Live; The Rain in Spain and Wouldn't It Be Loverly," opened in 1955 starring Julie Andrews and Rex Harrison in the title roles. Adapted from George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," "My Fair Lady" was one of the longest-running shows on the New York stage.

Maryville's production will be directed by Professor Thomas Jones and Tom Williamson. The production features Christy Rogers as Eliza Dolittle and Howard Welsh as Henry Higgins. Supporting roles include Robert Hutchens as Alfie Dolittle; Steve Yuhasz as Mr. Pickering; Steve Ayers as Freddy Eynesford-Hill; Nancy McCleary as Mrs. Pearce and Kay Hurlbut as Mrs. Higgins.

"My Fair Lady" will be presented on October 26, 27, 28, and 30th. There will be an extra production done on Saturday, November 4th, in conjunction with Parents' Weekend.

Tickets will be available in the theatre office prior to the production dates. They will also be sold at the door the night of each show.

If you are interested in working backstage or as an usher contact Diane Wood, the stage manager, or Sue Drees in the theater office.

For an enjoyable evening in London, 1912, buy a ticket for "My Fair Lady." We'll see you there!

Help wanted

The Highland Echo desperately needs typists and ad salespersons. If you would be willing to help type during D hour on Mondays or sell ads at any time, please contact Box 2820.

guest editorial

Noise pollution at CIV

Lynn Brown

During the Academic Convocation this last Wednesday evening there was conspicuous noise coming from the back of the hall reminiscent of past CIVs. Such has always perturbed me, particularly so when the speaker is interesting and eloquent as was the case that evening. Considering this is also the feeling of more than a few other students, I would like to offer some possible actions which might be taken so that as the year progresses, and as CIVs become sometimes less inspiring and more routine than this convocation, the din may be diminished to a level of minor distraction. 1. Install closed circuit television and transmit CIV to classrooms where teachers could discipline pupils in small groups. 2. Assign seating in the chapel, perhaps spaced as for testing and have instructors interspersed for control. 3. Change policy and drop CIV. After all, students have so many better things to do at a liberal arts college than getting a broad education. 4. Try to somehow impress upon MC students that there are times for a bit of self-discipline. The terribly funny remarks, rude comments or noises may not be taken as Marks of Sophistication of trying to listen! All of the above would have the added advantage of saving the speaker some embarrassment. Any of the first three plans could be carried out with some success. The fourth???

guest editorial

XX Olympiad: A Modern Tragedy

Wiley Rutledge

Manassass, Va., Sept. 6 — In his statement today announcing that the Olympic games would continue in the wake of yesterday's attack on the Israeli team, International Olympic Committee President Avery Brundage said in effect that the Arab terrorists' actions would not be allowed to kill the Olympic spirit. Despite the politics and nationalism that have recently invaded the games, and despite the quality (or lack of it) of some of the judging in Munich, the Olympic spirit is alive in the comradeship that develops among the athletes of the many nations. This spirit has been dealt a severe blow by yesterday's events, and the significance of these events extends far beyond Munich and the XX Olympiad.

The events of yesterday mean that not even the Olympics, traditionally a symbol of peaceful sportsmanship, are immune from the senseless violence that has invaded our world. Whoever is directly responsible for yesterday's tragedy is not known, but the fact remains that we, all of us, must bear some of the guilt. We condone violence as a means of achieving political ends. When the ends of a particular group happen to coincide with what we feel they should be, we not only condone violence, we encourage it. And now the Olympics have fallen victim to our sickness. The last place where there was a spirit that might stop this thing has been attacked by it. The spirit will return to the Olympics. I pray we catch that spirit. If we don't, there may be little hope for any of us.

Letters to the Editor

Rush letter criticized

Dear Editor:

During the summer, most of the freshmen girls received a letter from the Rush Chairmen representing Theta Epsilon. The letter has to be seen to be believed. Obviously, the authors really put themselves out to shoot down Maryville College. There are probably some kids who would get a charge out of this kind of letter, but the freshmen girls I've talked to didn't find the letter "cute," nor did they appreciate reeiving its depressing view of life at Maryville on the eve of their departure for a first year at college.

Sure, there are plenty of things that could be improved upon here at Maryville, but these things have no place in a letter supposedly meant to welcome new students and encourage their participation in campus activities. I'm sure that if the administration knew that this type of letter was being sent out they would probably have second thoughts about giving out the names of new students early in the summer. This wouldn't really be fair to other organizations who use more taste and who no doubt even proofread their letters before they mail them.

Linda Lou Blomeke

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

By Ron Hendren

THE FIRST VOTE, THE BEST VOTE, AND THE LAST WORD

WASHINGTON — Of all the political absurdities which have emerged from the camps of both major political parties in this Presidential election year, one which must surely rank near the top is the Republican's goal, proclaimed at Miami Beach, of winning the youth vote.

No other block of potential voters garnered so much attention from the President and his advisors at Miami as "those of you who will be voting for the first time this November." That's the way Mr. Nixon put it, followed by his fervent hope that those in the 18-to-24 age bracket could later say that "your first vote was your best."

If being best means being Republican — and it seems reasonable to conclude that is what the President had in mind — it just isn't likely to happen, even if American involvement in the Indochina war is concuded before the election. And that is the one issue which, if resolved in time, might swing a significant number of you youth votes to the Republican column.

The fact is, according to every major poll, that the preponderance of those registering for the first time to vote in a national election are reegistering as Democrats. A newsweek poll conducted by George Gallup several weeks ago indicated that 48 per cent of new voters would sign on as Democrat while only 22 per cent would go Republican. That estimate is now proving conservative.

But party labels don't mean much among most young voters, and the factors deciding where the youth vote will go this year will likely be issues and personalities. True, those young people gathered in Miami Beach to support Pesident Nixon seem Republican enough. From their ivy league suits and villager dresses to ther enthusiastic always-on-cue huzzas, they indeed presented a spectacle of which their Republican parents and Republican grandparents and Republican great-grandparents could justifiably be proud. But studies show that young people who vote the way their parents do are oddities or collectors' items, depending of your perspective. In any case, they are rare.

And the President was certainly within his prerogatives to suggest that his toe-every-line cheering section represented "the best of American youth." But he is way off base indeed if his campaign for re-election intends to stem, even in part, from the fantasy that the sons and daughters of the upper-middle-class who serenaded him in Miami are representative of the 25 million eligible new voters this year.

In the last week of a recent five-week voter registration drive in the President's own home ground-Southern California — 12,664 new voters were registered. Of these, more than 9,000 were in the 18-to-22 age bracket. All but five registered as Democrats. Now, Mr. Nixon has consistently experienced certain troubles in his home of the nation's pulse. But five new Republicans out of 9,000 new votes should be cause for at least a minimum of concern and re-evaluation at the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

At the same time, by no means is the 1972 youth vote in Senator McGovern's pocket. Much both about him and positions on key issues remains cloudy to date. Moreover, registtration is one thing and voting is another. Polls and census studies indicate that while some 65 percent of the newly-enfranchised 25 million will register before November, only 41 percent are likely to take the trouble to vote.

Although voting should be high among students, this group represents only about seven million of the new crop of voters. Biggest by far are the nearly 14 million wage-earning young people, and these pose the pollsters' trickiest question. No one knows how many of the "non-students", as the voter registration people term them (a thoughtlessly demeaning phrase no one in his right mind would have approved), will actually make it to the polls.

For my money, I believe that a high percentage of youths who take the trouble to register and vote, and that they will for the most part vote Democratic. Part of this conclusion is based on the impressive goals consistently being met by the various voter registration drives, efforts which are likely to be equally effective come November and the drive to get out the vote. Moreover, the issues and personalities of 1972 are as clear-cut and meaningful as they have been since 1964. The sharp divisions they reflct, I believe, will overcome the cynicism about all politicians which has rightly been called the only common political thread among young people.

And the youth vote will be important. Youth specialist Steven V. Roberts of the New York Times has predicted that if half of the 25 million vote in November, and if two-thirds of these vote Democratic, President Nixon could lose eight states he carried in 1968, among them California, Illinois, New Jersey and Ohio. Should that happen, he will likely lose the election.

A far-fetched speculation at this state of the game, to be sure, but hardly more far-fetched than the Disneyland fantasy which masqueraded in the guise of a convention in Miami. If the Republicans persist in campaigning from the wonderland stage they have set, the President's hope about the first vote being the best could prove to be the hardest words any politican in recent times has been forced to eat.

Vol. II No. 9
For subscribers only.

©Copyright 1972 by
WASHINGTON WEEKLY, Inc.
All rights reserved.

The perils and pitfalls of registration

Fred Strohl

There has been some question over whether or not Maryville College students may vote in primary and general elections in the City of Maryville. Tennessee Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Roberts wrote the following letter to the County of Blount with regard to this question:

"You have asked this office for an opinion concerning the entitlement of students at Maryville College to register and vote in Blount County.

"As the situation now stands, durational residency may not be considered in excluding them, however, they like any other person, must be a bona fide resident of the county in order to register and vote there.

"Our courts have held that legal residence for voting purposes, and domicile, are the same."

The State of Tennessee does not have a residency requirement as such. The Blount County Election Commission says that it will register students if they can prove that they plan to live in Maryville longer than the nine-month school year.

The Election Commission will register new voters Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the County Courthouse. Any questions with regard to the registration process should be directed to the Election Commission office.

Kiwanis travelogues to be shown

Nan Bostock

The Maryville Kiwanis Club will sponsor a series of film-lectures beginning on Sunday, September 24, at 2:00 p.m. in Wilson Chapel. The first film, "Bolivian Adventure" with Rowain Wilhelmsen, will be complimentary but admission will be charged for the other films in the series. These will be shown Oct. 22, Dec. 3, Jan 21, Feb. 18, March 18, and April 8.

The aim of the travelogues is to present top rate entertainment for all ages. Maryville College students as well as the community at large are welcome.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58 No. 2 Sept. 22, 1972

editor — Carla Hulce
associate editor — Patti Shelton
faculty advisor — Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
business manager — Allen Bunge
lay-out editor — Sarah Winbigler

The HIGHLAND ECHO is printed by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

Letters

continued from page 2

Response to convocation address

Dear Ms. Editor:

If the address by Dean Carolyn Blair at the opening convocation is to be the place from which we build this academic year, then it is obvious that we are beginning at great heights indeed. She has offered us at least a pair of ideas that will stimulate for a long time; namely, Jonathan Livingston Seagull and the fence-gate analogy. It is the latter that I would like to direct three comments, not to refute her remarks, but rather to try to probe them further for deeper meaning and direction.

First, I can agree with the need for fences to protect personal integrity, but I am curious as to the function of the gate. How much does a fence keep out the unexpected? It is not true that even though it has a gate, it must be closed most of the time to protect the integrity of the fence and of the person? I am troubled as to what is to be done about those who are intrigued by what they see in another's garden of values and standards but who are too timid to open the gate themselves or even to stand at the fence until invited in. Are not some of us too busy tending our own gardens to notice that others want in? Gates work both ways — they keep things and they let things out, and it would seem to me that we need to dialogue considerably on what they really mean. In my view, I would rather build gates with fences in them, than fences with gates.

Second, I am not sure Carolyn gave enough importance to the risks of confrontation or the vulnerability of being human. In a sense, the title "Becoming What You Are" implies an achievement of something already there, (the purpose of the college defined 153 years ago). Yet, there is another sense in which becoming represents growth as a dynamic process of becoming something tht you are not but that you can be. The first sense of becoming too often gets translated as a call for a return to the safety of the past and the great peaks known so well in history. My question is how does one open himself to the present or the future when he doesn't know if it will ever turn into a new peak? Or stated in terms of the second sense of growth, it seems to me we must continually risk the past in order to create the future. Becoming to me implies a process of going where you have never been. More cryptically, I would rather become what I am not than what I am.

Third, I wonder if talking about building personal fences (even with gates) is a proper analogy in view of the human planetization that is taking place today on our globe (see the new magazine WORLD by Norman Cousins).

In sum, Carolyn has done it again; she has given this community some challenging insights to ponder. If we can take up her challenge, some of us might become J. L. Seagulls in our own right. Unfortunately, though, there remains a seed of doubt that I can't quite shake off. And that is whether or not the College will let us do so if it has the right to opt the center and define the purpose that has always been there. What, I ask all budding seagulls, would be wrong with creating a new purpose? That I propose is the real challenge of becoming.

Thank you Carolyn — I am looking forward to the next time!

Shalom,
David P. Young

An open letter to Dave Young

Dear Dave:

Your letter and the numerous other responses to my speech encourage me to think that through CIV, the Echo, and other channels, we might begin talking to one another about what matters most to us. That is the reason I am asking for space to comment on the points you have raised. Your slightly different slant has set me off again.

First regarding fences and the question as to whether some ofus are not too busy tending our own gardens to notice that others want in: Is this not the situation that exists now? And would not the consciousness of the relationship between fences and gates lead us to a solution of what we recognize as a serious problem in human relations? Iam suggesung only that eacn person be aware of what he is doing, not simply living by impulse or doing what is easiest.

The Indian poet Tagore says it well: "We cannot truly live for one another if we never claim freedom to live alone, if our social duties consists in helping one another forget that we have souls. To exhaust ourselves completly in mere efforts to give company to each other is to cheat the world of our best...."

Second, on becoming "What I am not" rather than "what I am": I have to take my stand with the Delphic Oracle. I am a firm believer in the "Know thyself" principle, but it cannot be separated, as the Greeks well knew, from its corollary: "Become what you are." Implicit in this view is the idea expressed in J. L. Seagull that one's true nature lives "as perfect as an unwritten number, everywhere at once across space and time."

I am sure differences of opinion exist on this point, but all of my own experience and reading have convinced me that each individual life has its own purpose, and life itself becomes a process discovering that purpose and living accordingly. What could be more dynamic? I would go even further to say that much of our misery and failure stems from trying to become what we are not. In Death of a Salesman, considered by many to be the great American tragedy, Willy Loman's son Biff summarizes the cause of the tragedy very simply as he says at his father's grave: "He had the wrong dream....He never knew who he was."

The indivudal is not bound as to how he becomes what he is. THAT is where his creativity comes into play. Neither is the institution bound as to the steps it takes to become what is it. I hold that the very impulse that gave birth to Maryville College determined the directin: The desire to provide an education-with the context of a christian community, which in itself determined a direction toward the liberal arts, Christianity being a religion that aims to set one free.(Who was it who said: "Jesus was the one really free man that ever lived"?

It was a very different mpulse from that which gave birth to an institution like U-T. Maryville and UT are not alike and should not want to be alike. Each has its unique functon to perform. Our present Statement of Purpose makes clear that Maryville does not ask for conformity simply an understanding basic assumptions that permit the establishment of a center, or heart which is essential for life and growth

I tried to emphasize in my speech that the methods by which the purpose is achieved have changed and will continue to change. That is where you and I come in. But if we should decide to abandon the concept of the Christian community and the liberal arts, we need to understand that we are thinkingin terms of a new institution; and many colleges, including my own alma mater, have gone that route. I prefer to help find ways of enabling us to become what we were originally conceived to be, which to me is the same thing as becoming what we are.

Here I have used more space than I intended to request of the Echo, and Ihave not addressed myself directly to your third point. Let's pick that one up later and keep the dialog going.

Gratefully,
Carolyn Blair

P.S. I have just discovered that my neighbor's catalpa trees, towering high above my fence. have scattered their unsightly brown leaves over my yard, leving me with a week end of raking ahead. On moonlight nights in the spring, these same trees filled with large white blossoms were a source of inspiration. Analogy?

Staff needed

By now most of you have seen the results of the brave efforts made by Freddie Rhodes and his great staff to get out a Chilhowean. The staff did a fine job and now they need help in putting out an even better yearbook for the '72-'73 academic year. ANYONE interested in working on the Chilhowean staff please contact Freddie at Box 2643. This year's annual can really be something to remember if plenty of people are willing to devote a little time so please pitch in and help, now.

Vespers will be held in the Theatre on Sunday, September 24, at 7:00 p.m. The worship leader will be Doug Chase. The theme "The Struggle to be Human" will include slides of last year's January Meetings.

How a theatre-arts major took a course in poultry diseases

By Erma Q. Zingdip

During the five hours I stood in the registration line the other day, I suddenly realized human beings, being only human, make mistakes — like going to college.

I learned this (the only thing I have learned by the way) in my first encounter with my academic advisor a few weeks ago. Ah! The academic advisor who is supposed to "aid the student with the ordinary problems of course selection and individual activities."

It all started with the three days of unsuccessful attempts to reach my advisor by phone. I finally did get an appointment to set up my second semester schedule with him. Thinking how well my first semester had gone and being, therefore naively optimistic (or stupid) about my second, I entered his office full of typical innocent freshman expectations.

It was after he introduced himself as John Smith and told me if I ever wanted to reach him to call the department office because he had an unlisted number, that I began to wonder if he had trouble with crank calls or something.

As he flipped through four drawers of folders of the students he supposedly is "well-aquainted with and can most effectively counsel in times of personal need," my advisor casually asked me how I like college.

"Oh, it's great!" I bubbled enthusiastically. "All the courses are fabulous and exactly what I'm interested in. Now for next semester I was thinking of taking modern creative writing, interpretive speech, fundamentals of acting, introduction to drama —"

"Wait just a moment, please." I had the feeling he wasn't too pleased with my enthusiastic bubbling. "Your folder here says you haven't fulfilled any of your core courses yet."

"My core courses?" I asked, totally dumbfounded. With a sadistic gleam beginning in his shady eyes, he chanted, "They are the required courses in your curriculum."

"Now let's see," he said. "You have a life science requirement to fulfill. The only courses left are ichthyology; individual and group behavior of honeybees; and advanced vertebrate zoology. "Of course," he added "those are all 300 level courses but you should get started on your core courses right away."

After I recovered from the unpleasant reflection that I had barely passed my one and only earth science course in high school, I warily asked, "Don't you have antyhing a little less scientific? My science background is not very well-developed" — which was putting it mildly.

"Well I can see if we can get your into protozoan and arthropod parasites..."

"Oh thanks — but I — do I really HAVE to take one of those?"

His kindly-advisor expression doing its best to encourage me and instill a little confidence, he replied, "Yes."

"I'll — uh — take the honeybees," I stammered nervously. One course and already I could tell next semester wasn't going to be any dream come true.

"Now," Mr. Smith verbally pounced upon my nervous system — (I think he was getting personally involved in my state of mind), "what about your foreign language requirement?"

AHA! I exulted silently. That's one they won't get me on. "I have taken," said I triumphantly, "three years of French in high school, so all I need here is one semester — right?"

"Wrong," my helpful friendly adviser advised. "First you have to take a placement test to find out where your capabilities lie. But that really makes no difference because all of the French courses are filled," he added.

"Then what do I do?" I asked a lot less confidently.

"Simple my child — you take another language," he said. "How about Yoruba — or Serbo-Croation?"

His voice I began to notice, was a ridiculous falsetto that sounded a lot like Mickey Mouse — come to think of it his ears didn't do much for him either.

"I didn't," said I cautiously, "even know those languages existed!"

"Interesting, isn't it?" he said. "So we'll put you down for Serbo-Croation 204. The introductory courses — 201, through 203 — are all filled, but you're a bright student and I'm sure you'll do just fine in 204. Now what about your social science core course?"

"I don't know," I said, losing patience. "I spend only 24 hours a day on campus and two thousand, four hundred and fifty dollars a year to get my education. YOU tell ME about my social science course!"

The sadistic gleam returned, accompanied now by a sadistic grin. My advisor looked me calmly in the nose and announced, "You shouldn't have waited so long to get this done, child. Most of the courses you need are filled. But we'll do the best we can."

Dreading what horrors were probably yet to come, I got up composedly, walked to the door and sent a rather loud piercing shriek echoing down the hall. That over, I walked back to my seat and opened my mouth to ask a simple question. No words came out.

Secure knowing I could no longer interrupt to protest my advisor plunged in. "Well, we'll just sign you up for phenomenology; ornamental iron and art metal; diseases of poultry; and to bring it all together, gross anatomy."

I couldn't even cry.

He was writing busily. All of a sudden he looked up. "Say, by the way, what curriculum are you in?"

Blindly staring at the ceiling, I whispered, "Theatre Arts."

Teachers' exam to be given

PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY, September 11. College seniors preparing to teach school may take the National Teacher Examinations on any of the four different test dates announced today by Educational Testing Service, a nonprofit, educational organization which prepares and administers this testing program.

New dates for the testing of prospective teachers are: November 11, 1972, and January 27, April 7, and July 21, 1973. The tests will be given at nearly 500 locations throughout the United States, ETS said.

Results of the National Teacher Examinations are used by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and by several states for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges also require all seniors preparing to teach to take the examinations. The school systems and state departments of education which use the examination results are listed in an NTE leaflet entitled Score Users which may be obtained by writing to ETS.

On each full day of testing, prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations which measure their professional preparation and general educational background and a Teaching Area Examination which measures their mastery of the subject they expect to teach.

Prospective teachers should contact the school systems in which they seek employment, or their colleges, for specific advice on which examinations to take and on which dates they should be taken.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers, and information about the examinations, as well as a Registration Form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

SPORTS

Scots win opener

Phyllis Garner

The victory bell rang Saturday as the Scots opened their football season with an exciting 27-26 defeat of Hampden-Sydney. Winning what was considered their most stringent test, MC players started their march through what could be an undefeated season.

The first score came early in the first quarter when Bill Coghill intercepted a Joe Costner pass and scampered for a Hampden-Sydney touchdown. The extra point attempt failed but Maryville trailed 6-0.

Later in the same quarter Maryville marched down to the one yard line. A Costner handoff to Robert Callaway collected six points. Lynn White added the extra point for a 7-6 score, Scots' favor.

The Tigers bounced back with another interception, this one picked off by Sid Kirstein, who ran 66 yards for a touchdown. After an unsuccessful two-point conversion attempt, HS again led, 12-8 this time.

The only score in the second quarter came from the Scots. A ten-yard pass on fourth down delivered by Costner to Randy Minor made the score 13-12 and the attempted two-point conversion failed.

The third quarter honors went to H-S. Cashing in on the Scots' field mistakes, the Tiger defense gave their offense something to work with. Quarterback Jim Nelson hit Mike Thompson with a 20-yard TD to give the Tigers a 19-13 edge afer the extra point. Later in the third quarter a four-yard run by Tom Tucker and another point made the score 26-13 H-S.

Up to this point the Scots had been playing better football but it seemed there was no way out of the box they were in. But early in the fourth quarter the Scots got a couple of breaks and the fumble recovery by Jack Boone began to turn the tide.

The first of the fourth quarter scores came when Joe Costner threw a 55-yard pass into the waiting arms of Mike Butler. Butler's excellent speed carried him into the end zone well ahead of Tiger defenders. After the extra point the score stood 26-20 for the Tigers.

Only moments later Costner again connected with a TD pass to Butler, tying the score. Roger Sonneborn again added the extra pont and the Scots led at last. The Tigers made one last effort with only minutes left in the game. The Scot defense held them back and when the contest ended the 27-26 score still stood.

Much should be said about the Scots' defensive team. Holding the Tigers to six yards rushing they certainly proved their worth. The offensive line also did a fine job opening up holes for running backs Bill Baggett and Robert Callaway.

Winning teamwork — MC Quarterback Joe Costner (12) hands off to Bill Corbett (45) while Bill Baggett (41) fakes off defenders as the Scots clicked to pull out their season opener against Hampden-Sydney last Saturday afternoon.

	Maryville	H-S
First downs	14	8
Total rushing yds.	158	6
Total passing yds.	187	181
Passes	25-11-3	26-12-0
Punts	7-38.7 avg.	9-34.2 avg.

This week the Scots travel to Danville, Kentucky, to take on the team from Centre College.

The Maryville College Highlander Band is planning a retreat to Laurel Lake this weekend. Lynn Brown, president of the band, says that all prospective members of the Band are invited. Buses will leave the band room area on Saturday afternoon at approximately 1:30. Planned activities include swimming, volleyball, softball, and hiking, to name a few. The band will return to Maryville College on Sunday afternoon.

Where is Camelot?

"In Search of King Arthur," the interim enjoyed by twenty students in 1970, will be repeated in 1973, according to Mrs. Herma R. Cate and Dr. Elizabeth T. Fowler, leaders of the proposed study-tour. Next year the group plans to add to the itinerary a three-day trip to the Continent where the French origins of the Arthurian legend will be traced. Other highlights of the interim include several days in London attending plays and seeing points of literary and historical interest an eight-day trip to "King Arthur country" in Wales, Cornwall, and Devon, and visits to Canterbury, Cambridge, Hampton Court, Stonehenge, Bath, Wells, Oxford, Stratford, and Coventry.

Students who are interested in travelling abroad at some time during their college career might consider the King Arthur interim in 1973.

candles | incense
posters | macramé
POTPOURRI
114 W. Broadway
984-3960

Jarman
SHOES FOR MEN

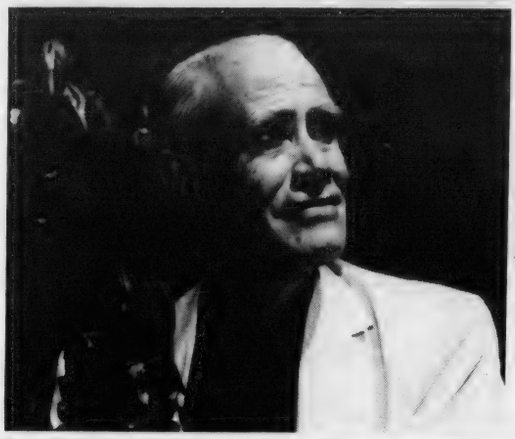
Ginger & Brass
Black & Grey
$21.95

Brown Leather
& Beige Suede
$21.95

Southern shoes
Midland Center Open 9:30-9

COVER GIRL

Grey Suede
Blue Suede
Brown Suede
$15.99



Blue Suede & Leather
Brown Suede & Leather
$17.99

Southern shoes

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | Sept. 29, 1972 | no. 3

John Jacob Niles shows expertise

by Patti Shelton

The second appearance of John Jacob Niles at CIV was an even more exciting event than his last performance three years ago. Niles, a well-known and well-traveled entertainer, is perhaps one of the last of that vanishing species — the true American folk singer. Listening to him is like journeying into a simpler and infinitely more lyrical land of yesterday.

Niles' repertoire included his familiar "I Wonder as I Wander" and "Black is the Color" as well as a full rendition of the Old English ballad, "Matty Groves." Following a standing ovation, he performed a unique version of "Amazing Grace" as an encore. On several songs, Niles invited the audience to sing with him and the invitation was never refused, a sign of his rapport with the audience. His songs tell stories of a land and a time we remember only in our dreams but we respond just the same.

Niles' voice, as he caresses those occasional clear, high notes, cannot help but touch the listener and perhaps make one wish he could have heard it twenty years ago when all the notes were that clear. This CIV may have been a little overlong for some but the spirit and the undiminished love of life and music in John Jacob Niles' performance will always make him a welcome guest at MC.

Danforth fellowships to be awarded

Inquiries about the Danforth Fellowships, to be awarded in March 1973, are invited, according to Dean Carolyn Blair, the local campus representative.

The Fellowships, offered by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri, are open to men and women who are seniors or recent graduates of accredited colleges in the United States, who have serious interest in college teaching as a career, and who plan to study for a Ph.D. in a field of study common to the American undergraduate liberal arts curriculum. Applicants may be single or married, must be under thirty years of age, and may not have begun any graduate or professional study beyond the baccalaureate at the time application papers are filed.

Approximaely 100 Fellowships will be awarded in March 1973. Candidates must be nominated by Liaison Officers of their undergraduate institutios by November 1, 1972. The Foundation does not accept direct applications for the Fellowships.

Danforth Fellows are eligible for four years of financial assistance, with a maximum annual living stipend of $2,700 for single Fellows and $2,950 for married Fellows, plus tuition and fees. Dependend allowances are available. Financial need is not a condition for consideration.

Danforth Fellows may hold certain other fellowships such as Ford, Fulbright, National Science, Rhodes, etc. concurrently and will be Danforth Fellows without stipend until the other awards lapse.

The Danforth Foundation, created by the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth in 1927, is a philanthropy concerned primarily with people and values. Presently the Foundation focuse its activities in two major areas, education and the city. In these areas the Foundation administers programs and makes grants to schools, colleges, universities and other public and private agencies.

Maryville's quota this year is two nominees. In addition, the College is allowed to nominate one recent graduate (not a senior). Those interested should talk with their department chairman. Further information is available on the Senior Bulletin Board in Anderson Hall.

Vespers goes world-wide

Maryville College vespers will celebrate World-Wide Communion Sunday with a festival service of the Holy Communion on Sunday, October 1 at 7:00 p.m. in the chapel. The Reverend Doctor Roderic Murray, Rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, will conduct the communion service and will also speak. The Maryville College Concert Choir, under the direction of Dr. Harry H. Harter and organist Dr. James A. Bloy, will lead the music. Students from various countries will participate.

A special invitation is given to faculty and students of all church backgrounds to celebrate this occasion together so that it may be a truly unifying experience for all of us on the campus.

ACC debates alcohol issue

by Kathy Meier

Most of the business on the agenda of the September 20 meeting of the All College Council dealt with the organization of the various committees. Memberships lists were checked and additions and deletions of members were made. A meeting of the committee chairmen and ACC officers was arranged for September 21.

Several of the committees have gotten off to a good start. The Social and Recreational Committee has already met and has aranged dances and movies for the entertainment of the student body. The Community outreach Committee held a retreat last Saturday to plan its activities, and the Religious Life Committee has begun work of January Meetings.

Other business discussed by the Council included Maryville's participation in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities and the continued improvement of CIV.

When the floor was opened for new business, Lance Dunaway brought up the question of drinking on campus. His opinion was that the lowering of the legal drinking age to 18 made Maryville's restrictions on liquor obsolete, and that each student should have the right to make his own decisions in this matter. Other Council members replied that many students wanted to be free from the disturbance, noise, and other irresponsible actions that accompany drinking on campus. President Copeland posed the question of why students who had chosen to come to Maryville and who have accepted the laws of the community would also choose to drink. It appeared that many Council members thought that consumption of liquor and a belief in the values and ideals of the College were incompatible.

When confronted with the fact that rules against the consumption of alcohol on campus are flagrantly and openly violated by many of the student and yet the rules are not enforced, Dr. Blair and President Copeland replied that it is the responsibility of each member of the community to see that the rules are enforced.

The discussion ended in a stalemate, and Dr. Lewis reminded the Council that any change in policy would have to be investigated by the Community Standards and Residence Life Committee, then passed by the entire Council before being put before the Board of Directors.

No other new business was brought up, and the Council was adjourned.

Float a loan- but don't float alone

Once again the time is almost here for everyone to combine ideas, talents, imaginations, manual labor, and a lot of "No-Doz" into the making of the annual Homecoming floats. For many people, the construction of floats brings back many memories of friends working together, a great sense of satisfaction, and endless hours of sticking wads of tissue paper into the holes in the chicken wire. Well, at least you get to see a Tennessee sunrise. But, overall, float-building is an exciting and integral part of the Homecoming festivities. And on Friday night, October 13 (appropriately timed, perhaps?), everyone will get a chance to let himself go.

This year the Social Committee is sponsoring the production of the floats. They will help pay for the floats and will award cash prizes to the first, second, and third place winners. Because of the necessity of having as many floats and participants as possible, this year the float competition will not be limited to designated organizations (societies, etc.). Anyone can form his own committee and every group entering is eligible to win. The winning organization could put its prize money towards something socially oriented, a television for example.

To aid the float-workers, there will be a "Goodie Wagon" providing refreshments that night. Participants are needed for this activity also. If you are interested in working on a float or the "Goodie Wagon," please contact Rick Ziegler ("Bear") - Box 2099, or Dottie Hamor by Friday, September 29, to submit committee names.

So help make Homecoming '72 an unforgettable event by coming out to produce some creative and imaginative floats. Fun is guaranteed for all and participation is urgently needed. It won't be just "another Friday night."

Speech-Theatre enlists Beasley

Michael Montgomery

The perennially active MC Theatre has added an important new source of energy and ideas this year. The engaging of Mr. Blair Beasley for a faculty position in the Speech-Theatre Department will bring, as Mr. Beasley believes, a "new balance" and a more diversified point of view to this college's theatrical program.

Experience in and the study of all facets of theatre work combine with a freshness of outlook to make Mr. Beasley a man of expertise and vitality. Directing, he admits, is his favorite activity, but there will be no area within the scope of the Speech-Theatre Department's activity that will not receive his interest and the benefit of his multiple talents.

Mr. Beasley expects to share directing and technical duties with Mr. Tom Jones, chairman of the department, who has directed and produced virtually every play at MC for many years. They will form a "partnership" tc supervise the many functions of the theatre's program and the department's operaton.

Besides directing a play winter term (Eugene O'Neill's, A Moon For The Misbegotten), Mr. Beasley is coaching the FORUM team of public speakers and working to open the Studio (or Experimental Theatre to any student(s) with individual ideas about producing his or their own show. In this regard Mr. Beasley stresses his view that "learning situations for students outside the classroom" are an important part of the theatre program. The availability of the Studio Theatre to anyone (already two student-produced presentations are scheduled), whether speech-theatre major or not, he emphasizes, should interest those not regularly working in theatre activities.

A native of Raleigh, North Carolina, Mr. Beasley, along with his wife Dottie, arrived in Maryville during mid-summer. He originally attended Pfeiffer College, where he recieved his Bachelor of Arts degree in English. After a brief career in high school teaching, he matriculated at the University of Mississippi where he was granted a Master of Arts in theatre in 1965.

In 1966 he returned to teaching and spent the next four years as an instructor in speech, theatre, and acting at Catawba College, Salisbury, North Carolina. There he undertook many directing assignments, among the most successful of which were, he believes, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" and "The Boydfriend." In 1970 he once again assumed the role of a student, this time at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. His intention was to reflect upon his first-hand experiences, in the theatre and to prepare himself for future undertakings. In June, 1972, he was awarded the Master of Fine Arts degree in directing and acting. Shortly afterward followed his move to Maryville.

guest editorial

ACC defended

Wiley Rutledge

We have on this campus a rather unique system of government called the All College Council. In the three years that I have been here, it has been maligned as a buck passing organization that never does anything. Granted, it has faults. Any system of government does. But before we write it off, let's look at some of the positive things in the ACC.

First, it is the only school governing organization that I have ever seen that puts faculty, student, and administration on the same level. Many students say that this is not enough. But we have to bear in mind that faculty and administration have to live and work here just as much as we do. They have a right to be heard and needed. If we listen only to the students, that is not freedom, that is a caste system of goverment.

Secondly, there is the complaint that the ACC doesn't ever do anything. I would remind people that such things as visitation were instituted by organizations like the ACC. Also, the fact that there are other interests in this college and the fact that the ACC is not the ultimate authority must be borne in mind. The ACC is only a small part of a large system that includes alumni, administration and the board of directors, not to mention students and faculty.

This is only a brief defense of what the ACC is and does. We have two choices — we can either dump it and start from scratch or we can improve the good and reform the bad. If you don't want the ACC, get rid of it. If you do want it, help it, don't complain about it.

Student reviews David Powell's poetry

by Linda Blomeke

When I was instructed to look back thrugh some old issues of the Echo to see if I could discover some of David Powell's early poetry, I accepted the assignment as just another time-consuming job. It did take some time to discern the whereabouts of the College's collection of old Echo's, but after I found the volumes, I decided that the quest was well worth my efforts.

The poetry published in the Echo covered a variety of topics, but I especially enjoyed reading the following three poems. I hope that you'll enjoy them also.

November 9, 1963

"Security"

We live in a marshmallow world
Of cream and marshamallow pie
And the people we meet
Are marshmallow sweet
And the sky is a saccharine sky.

Soft is the life in our whipped-cream world
Softer than marshmallow eggs,
Gentle the girls
With the sponge-rubber curls
And the boys with the styrofoam legs.

Languid and long are the pastel days
And warm are the peaceful nights.
The world holds no fears
Til our twilight years
When sleep is a passive fright.

November 27, 1963

"Living Water"

God's streams drain the mountain of life
Who can number the multitudes that drank thereof?
God's brooks flow with swift compassion
Who can discover the source of their joy
—The springs that conceive in Truth?
Yea, who cleanses in their waters
Or eats of the fruits that God's streams nourish?
Who dares to wander their valleys?
None save Love.
Whom I seek.

Untitled

You are the heart and lifeblood of my finest moments.
Stop beating for me only and I will chill in the icy wind of the world.
Stop loving me and I will be as nothing...
...nothing in eons of endlessness
Stop pulsatng in me and a great love will die...
and part of me will die.
I am no longer mine.
I am yours.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 3 Sept. 29, 1972

editor — Carla Hulce
associate editor — Patti Shelton
faculty advisor — Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
business manager — Allen Bunge
lay-out editor — Sarah Winbigler

The HIGHLAND ECHO is printed by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

on nixon...

"By George, I think he's got it!"

Suicide poetry

By Erma Q. Zingdip

I am alone.
The night has come -- suddenly, irrevocably and I feel that it shall be this way through all eternity.
Perhaps there was a time when there was light.
But my despair remembers no beginning-- it recalls no time when it was not.
There is blackness all around, and the only sound is the low, sad music of a guitar.
Silence covers everything like a blanket, and my heart cries out for relief...
I am alone.
I touch my fingers to my cheeks, and I realize that I am weeping
Once I laughed--but only grief remains.
But why am I crying?
I cry because my heart is lonely and because my future holds no more than utter emptiness.
I cry because I need to love and to be loved, buy my love is met with indifference.
My life is only despair and loneliness--nothing more, nothing less.
I sit in the empty church.
It is dark here,
and cold.
It smells musty--as if unoccupied for a long time.
There are candles here,
And their flickering makes changing shadows on walls.
Somewhere a longe guitar is playing a sad and haunting song.
It dies away....
I am alone.

Williard House hosts tea

On Sunday, September 24, the Willard House hosted an afternoon tea for the Dean of Women, Miss Frances E. Massey, and housemothers Miss Mary Keister and Mrs. A. C. Davis. The tea began promptly at 2:00 with a tour of the former 1890 president's home guided by Eleanor Murrah, Nancy Moschini and Kathy Mayurnik. Refreshments were enjoyed as Kay Hurlbut served the coffee and Sue Drees served the iced tea. A delightful assortment of cookies and petit fours were served to the guests by Sherry Daniels and Betsey Joyner. Music was provided by Brenda Weiss and her stereo. During the tea Cindy Stiff and Pat D'Alba thoughtfully took photographs of the memorable occasion. Delightful conversation was enjoyed by all the guests. Unfortunately Mrs. Tom Harrison, Miss Margaret S. Ware, Terry Holley, Mary McCord and Barbara Zartmen were unable to attend. A grand old time high!

Help wanted

The Highland Echo desperately needs typists and ad salespersons. If you would be willing to help type during D hour on Mondays or sell ads at any time, please contact Box 2820.

Letters to the editor

Heads roll once again

To the Editors:

It bergan with Grover Foley, then Dale Bunse, then Lucy Proffitt, and now, Donald Stine. Who's next? Who will be the next professor to resign from Maryville College? Some of Maryville's top instructors are leaving, taking with them immeasurable knowledge and experience, and depriving our students of instruction by bright, competent, and willing professors.

The logical question: why? Why are these talented people leaving the Maryville fold? The answer to the logical question, is, unfortunately, not quite so logical. Some say that these people feel intellectually stifled at MC. Some say that these people hold views radically contrary to those of the Administration. Some say that these people have just quit the fight with students. All agree on one point however: the loss of brilliant professors is critical to any institution of learning.

Students must be surrounded by varying, and especially, conflicting opinions to be stimulated to think for themselves. When one opinion or the opinion of one group prevails among others and is enforced to prevail, then popular apathy and intellectual atrophy prevail coequally with the enforced opinion. People, on the whole, will not produce creative thought unless encouraged to. And, as is obvious, to decide what is right and true for oneself is some of the most creative thinking that one can pursue. And, as again is obvious, to be stimulated to think and compelled to think by intelligent people is some of the best encouragement one can receive.

Where does this leave Maryville College? In a curious, and potentially dangerous position, I should think. If the college continues to drive away brilliance in the name of "community," then we are headed down a one-way street with a dead-end: intellectual stagnation and unmotivated students. Perhaps we have already arrived. Dr. Copeland, Administration, Faculty, I, as I'm sure do many others, humbly request that you continue no longer to permit certain professors to be coerced, either by themselves or by outside forces, to leave Maryville College. The price is too high, and as students, we can't afford it.

Again, as always,
Gilbert A. Nicholas

Theta Epsilon makes rebuttal

To the Editor:

We, the members of Theta Epsilon, would like to express our concern as to the misunderstanding of our rush letter. In the letter it was said a freshman will need "luck" if she is to have a good social life. Of course, if she leaves the dorm only for classes and meals there will be many lonely weekends. The letter tried to indoctrinate the freshmen to the idea, your social life is what you make it. The societies provide an opportunity for new students to meet more people and enjoy organizational outings.

Theta realizes that in order to avoid further inversions of intent it has become necessary to elucidate the real issues, so grossly mis-interpreted. We therefore, direct this clarification to the letter in last week's Highland Echo and to any freshman whose expectant wave of anticipation was allegedly transformed into a deluge of depression.

It would seem from the author's reaction that Theta Epsilon's Rush Chairmen have quite purposely and somewhat effectively frauded the institution of Maryville College. These observations, however correct or incorrect one chooses to judge them, still remain incongruent with the actual intentions and resultant content of the letter. Let us examine this point more closely.

The letter infers that major institutional changes were propounded in this letter. Admittedly, there are several nebulous phrases which could have unwittingly suggested such an attitude, due merely to a "failure" to communicate a casually humorous reflection of campus life. But these very few observable misinterpretations hardly warrant either an apology or a retraction. We should instead be mature enough to realize what caused the distorted communication: first of all, such such misundertandings merely stem from diverse nuances of humor; and secondly, whatever dissimilarities exist regarding forms of expression, we should be able to recognize the original attitude which gives birth to that particular mode.

In order to eliminate any further confusion concerning the

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

The $10 billion treasure chest

WASHINGTON — At the same time that Congress is moving to enact revenue sharing legislation that will provide $5.5 billion to help alleviate the financial bankruptcy which is choking our cities and states, nearly twice that amount in money already appropriated is being held reserve by the Office of Management and Budget.

Much of this $10-plus billion is (or was) destined to aid cities and states in regional development projects, urban mass transit, water and sewer grants, rural electrification development, and the like.

Now, as a result of the impounding, critical needs such as water and sewage treatment are not being adequately met, and with each passing day of delay the costs for providing these necessary services go up along with the price of everything else.

The surprising thing is that Congress has never acted to prevent impounding, a power which has been misused by President-Republicans and Democrats alike-since World War II. As recently as September 8, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), himself a former Presidential candidate, introduced legislation requiring detailed reports on all impounded funds. His modest proposal was rejected, apparently on the somewhat defeatist reasoning that the House wouldn't go along with it anyway, so why bother and possibly jeopardize revenue sharing in the process.

Such an attitude will hardly discourage the OMB from continuing and even stepping up its impounding activities.

Among the funds currently being held captive are:

–$300 million for urban mass transit;

–$122 million for airport and airway facilities;

–$105 million for model cities;

–$40 million for Appalachian regional development;

–$50 million for water and sewer grants;

–$107 million for rural electrification;

–$21 million for educational support for the National Science Foundation.

These funds were scooped up by the Treasury without so much as a by-your-leave from Congress. It was done without notification and without publication in what Humphrey called "a type of line-item veto on congressional appropriation."

Thus the will of Congress is thwarted and its authority-in this case the responsibility to appropriate public finds-is further eroded. The pendulum of power, already heavily weighted in favor of the executive, swings even further in that direction, and Congress comes off as a loser unwilling to live up to its Constitutional obligations.

But the real losers are those residents of cities and towns who continue to suffer from lack of adequate water and sewer facilities, dilapidated housing, critical power shortages, and sub-standard schools. Both the President and Congress must share responsibility for this situation-the former for using the people's money to build an executive treasure chest, and the latter for letting him get away with it.

continued from page 2

issue of "shooting down Maryville College" I must emphatically say that the Rush Chairmen would have chosen a much more direct and appropriate medium than that of an informally written, collective invitation from a campus society.. if in fact, they did want to "really put themselves out" to do such a thing.

Suffice it is to say that however poorly written the rush letter might have been, it must certainly be evident that it exhibits no indication of unfairness. Furthermore, it seems that the author's comparison regarding good and bad taste is in itself unfair; since every open organization on campus did not even take the intitiative to write invitational letters to all new students we are left with mere speculation and an incomplete control from which to make comparisons. Surely good taste is not to be equated with inactivity?

Theta Epsilon

Are all interims created equal?

To The Editor:

Interim is only a few weeks away. For most of us, this will mean an on campus interim, no matter how exciting (or how dull) that may be. For the few of us who can afford it, this interim will present the opportunity to travel, thereby guaranteeing interests.

There is clearly an inequity here. Few students can afford the price of any off campus interim at all, and fewer still can pay for one that is going overseas. We are here to educate and be educated. This includes the opportunity to travel. To deny a student this is to close a possible pathway to the education he came here to get.

There is presently a plan before the interim committee to have each student pay $50 extra tuition a year which will be credited toward an off campus interim. All of the ramifications have not been worked out yet, and this would be a little late for upperclassmen, but it deserves a look. If we can help a student pay tuition, we can help him pay for an off campus interim.

Wiley Rutledge

on the mc cord scandal...

"His actions were not on our behalf, nor with our consent. If our understanding of the facts is accurate, we will, of course, discontinue our relationship..."

— Chairman, Republican National Committee

Kennedy speaks at rally

by Art Fowler

Maryville College was well represented in the standing-room-only crowd of Democrats at the Civic Auditorium in Knoxville last Saturday when Senator Edward M. Kennedy made a fervent plea for party unity. Introduced by former Senator Albert Gore as a "future President of the United States," Kennedy endorsed the local and state Democratic candidates and threw his wholehearted support behind Senator George McGovern.

Taking the offensive, Kennedy suggested that President Nixon, instead of listening to the telephone conversations of Larry O'Brien and George McGovern, ought to listen to the American people. Kennedy also reminded the capacity crown of loyal Democrats that Nixon's 1968 campaign promise to end the war was still unfulfilled.

Between 25 and 30 Maryville College Students complete with campaign stickers, McGovern posters, and "First Time Voter" buttons, returned to the campus after the rally, while more affluent Democrats attended the $100-a-plate fund-raising luncheon at the Senators' Club which likewise featured Senator Kennedy as guest speaker.

Freshmen acclimated to MC government

Freshmen were oriented last Friday in the system of governance of Maryville College. Using the format of the academic orientation, small groups met in the various lounges on the campus with one or two All-College Council members as leaders. Printed guides were distributed to the students attending the orientation sessions. Among the topics discussed were the concept of participatory governance, the committee structure, elections, the judiciary, and town meeting.

An opportunity was given to freshmen to serve on the committee of their choice. Additional copies of the Governance Manual are available in the various dormitories on campus, according to Dr. Wallace Lewis, coordinator of the committee which set up the orientation. Other members of the committee were All-College Council members Todd Trumbore, Vaughan Kennedy and Dr. David Young.

Photo exhibit receives criticism

by Phil Gibson

Assistant Communications director Rich Mahler had beed exhibiting a selection of photography and painting in the Fine Arts Center Gallery September 11-30. The exhibit consists of 81 objects. principally photos, with a few paintings thrown in for a bit of variety.

Mr. Mahler seems to be quite taken with high contrast photos. Especially in his self-portraits he has a facination reminiscent of that of Rembrandt, giving his subjects the impression of a glimpse of light in a black shadow world.

His people always seem to be alone in the wilds and lost in themselves. Often his subjects are surrounded by a hint of the depth of nature, signified alternately by isolation in a gulf of dark or a fuzzy background of spherical shapes. They all seem to be sober, as if life were a wholly serious and vindictive business.

His photos of kittycats, of which there are seven, seem to lack innovations. These are the same light diffusion affirmations of the feline female one has seen for quite some time. They are fine for kitty portraits, but seem to lack the character that is necessary for good animal studies.

Mr. Mahler's pictures of the vegetable world are often monsters emerging from a void. The black background and stark white of blossoms suggest a sly, menacing movement toward the viewer. One of them even winks if one stares at it long enough.

The "Domestics and Rustics" studies, as I choose to call them, interst me most. They are straighforward views of the starkest nature, even though some of them seem a bit trite. The outdoor objects would benefit from a rustic human spliced into the composition somewhere; one or two suffer from a lack of focus.

The paintings in the exhibit feature bold colors in almost petal-like abstract formations. Aside from two readily-identifable subjects, the paintings remind one of something Shakespeare once said about life being a "tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

Having viewed the exhibit late, there were no programs to follow as to the titles, subjects, or feeling of the artist. One had to formulate suitable titles as one proceeded through the display. Here are a few of my personal subtitles: "Man in the Golden Helmet," "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau," "Invisible Ink," "Scooby Doo Goes to Russia," "Stonehenge," "Jiggs," "Little Miss Muffett," "Raid's Here," "Shot Heard Round the World," "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard," "The Eyes Have It," "White is Pleasant."

The truly good in art is that which can lend flight to such imagniation. If a layman looks into a photo or painting, and seens only a cat, or a pin, or a blob of color, then the artist has failed in his attempt at communication. If the work stimulates a mood, causes concrete assocations, leads to new insight, or causes self examination, then the artist has succeeded in touching the mind of his critic. Mr. Mahler has the ability to communicate.

Art display provokes thought

by Kathy Meier

While fumbling through the stacks in the library, fuming under the constant pressure that is often part of Academia, I happened to glance at the display of watercolors by Lynne Faust Cross. I forgot the depressing worries of the day and entered a beautiful child's memory world where the sun always rises over velvety green field, flowers, and singing birds. The world of imagination is also the neighborhood of fantasy castles of purple stone and under-sea gardens.

The artist blessed with such superior vision can see enchantment in the simple objects one touches every day. A cup, a bowl, a vase becomes a receptacle of beauty and serenity. Through her watercolors Lynne has allowed poor earth persons to see how the world looks when it is illuminated by a halo of love that radiates warmth.

Weekend football

Scots dazzle Centre 42-7

Saturday the Scot football team made it two in a row. In thier first away game, the Scots sounded trounced Centre College 42-7. This victory makes their season record 2-0.

Unable to penetrate the tough Maryville defense and dazzled by the explosive Scot offense, Centre quickly fell behind and stayed there for the remainder of the game.

The first Scot score came early in the first quarter after a fumble recovery by Larry Frye on the 23 yard line of Centre. Moments later a pass from Joe Costner to Randy Minor put Maryville on the scoreboard. Glenn White added the extra point to make it 7-0.

Later in the same quarter a 4-yard run by Robert Callaway upped the tally six more points. White again booted the ball to make the score 14-0.

Still in the first quarter Costner connected with another TD pass, this one a 46-yarder to Mike Butler. White added the extra point, and the Scots' lead widened 21-0.

In the second quarter the Scots made another score. Bill Baggett, who turned in an excellent rushing performance, took the ball in from the one. Glenn White made the score 28-0. So it stood at the half.

In the third quarter Maryville scored twice more, once set up by Jeff Hamilton's 17-yard runback of an intercepted pass.

Once again Costner connected with a pass to Minor for a Scot TC and White made the conversion. Later a screen to Rodney Stephens produced a 67-yard gain. Then an 11-yard pass to Don Scott added still another TD. White again connected. The score stood 42-0.

Centre finally scored on a one-yard run late in the third quarter. When the game ended, Maryville had it, 42-7.

Both offensive and defensive squads turned in excellent performances. The stellar backfield once again came through with a fantastic game.

They were helped by the great work of both first and second string offensive lines. Dan Bleveins and Larry McDowell were standouts, not to mention Bill Nuss, Donnie McDaniels and others.

The defense led by Phil Zeiglar and David Clinton did another terrific job. In the first two games only 70 yards rushing has been given up by them, and only 10 points scored on their time. Two freshmen, Schamsky and Hicks show great promise for the years to come.

Glenn White, our freshman place kicker has made all his conversion attempts good and deserves much credit. Robert Callaway added to his punting average 44-yarder. In short, the Scots were hot.

Statistics	Maryville	Centre
First downs	31	16
Yds. Passing	290	143
Yds. rushing	243	63
Punts	1—44 avg.	8—33 avg
Penalties	8—99	8—99

Today the Scots ship off to Georgetown, Kentucky for tommorrow's game with Georgetown.

Election activities on campus

by Fred Strohl

Activities are now being planned with regard to the part that Maryville College will play with regard to the 1972 Presidential election. Senior Tom Kleppe is directing the campus activities for President Nixon's campaign, while Mrs. Ann Harrison, the wife of Chaplain Harrison, is directing the effort for Senator McGovern.

Tom Kleppe reports that there will be strong efforts made on behalf of voter registration, which has a deadline of October 7. Canvassing of the students and other special projects are also planned by the Nixon people.

Mrs. Harrison reports that Maryville College students are already working with local Blount County Democrats in the McGovern campaign. They are helping to man the office, located on Harper Street, and plan door-to-door canvassing. Art Fowler is in charge of this activity. Mrs. Harrison also reports that Bob Gillespie has literature, pins and posters available.

Dr. Charles Merrill, headmaster of the Commonwealth School of Boston, will be the guest speaker at the first quarterly meeting of the Faculty Club. The dinner meeting is scheduled for Tuesday evening, October 24, at seven o'clock in Pearsons dining room.

MC drill team marches on

by Nan Bostock

Maryville's drill team, the Scotch Brigade, will have its first performance at the Homecoming game Saturday, October 14th. The team this year includes a lot of new members from tryouts last spring and this fall. New members are: Diane Chuisano, Jane Duffy, Maureen Meade, Mona Miller, Neva Parker, Jeannie Shermen, Pam Phillips, Kathy Belcher, Kristine Rutledge, Captain Vickie Clower, and alternates Lynn Houlberg and Dawn Sterling.

Hard line veterans include Patrada Thisyamandol, Beth Tibbetts, Debbie Horne, and co-captains Barb Belt and Morna McEver.

Stallings sponsor sleep-in

by Fred Strohl

The Maryville College Band held a different kind of retreat last week-end. Orginally, the plans were to spend Saturday and Sunday at Laurel Lake. As it was, the Band did go to Laurel Lake on Saturday afternoon, engaging in volleyball, swimming, frisbee tossing, and enjoying a meal. However, the girls had spotted some mice in their quaters and wanted no parts of sleeping there.

It was decided that everyone would sleep under a nearby pavilion. Officials of Laurel Lake said that could not be done and that the sleeping facilities provided had to be made use of. The provoked disenchantment among Band members, and brought forth the suggestion that everyone spend the night at Mr. Stallings were quite willing to have their guests.

A fun time was had by all as everybody slept on the floors in different rooms of the house. On Sunday morning, hotcakes and bacon were served for breakfast.

Everybody had a good time and certainly, it will be a moment not many who were there will forget.

Circle K revives recycling

Circle K is beginning its recycling program again this year by placing containers for glass, bottles, and any objects of such a nature on the stairwells of each dorm.

It should be noted that these containers are for glass only. The Chaplain's office is handling paper, and anyone who has been saving paper should take it to his office.

The Circle K containers will be picked up weekly by members of the organization.

Pigskin perplexity; or, halfbacks and other strangers

by Laura Hutchens

Now, I want to make this perfectly clear, I'm not athletic but I DO like sports. Perfectly clear? Take football (For all you English 105 students, this article is written from the general to the particular), I've always liked football but I've never professed to understand it.

The main thing about football that confuses me is the line of scrutiny. What is it? As best I can figure it out (now, correct me if I'm wrong), it's where the two teams line up and they mark the spot with the football.

Now this much I understand, but why do they keep moving it: Up and down, back and forth. It won't stay put! Of course, every time the line of scrutiny is moved, the players gather around in a circle and try to figure out where they're going to put it next time. I think this is called a caucus.

line of scrutiny is upset and some convict (who has been running after the players trying to play drop the handkerchief) had to pick up the football and move it! Now how do you like that ?

Furthermore, some of this convict's prison buddies on the sidelines pick up thses sticks with a chain between them and follow that guy! Have you ever?

Another aspect about the line of scrutiny that I don't understand is the quarterback (why do they call him a quarterback, anyway?). He stands behind the line of scrutiny and take the ball. But as soon as the quarterback gets the ball, he gives it to the other player and sometimes he gets mad and throws it at 'em. Now, if he doesn't want the football, why does he ask for it in the first place?

Here is my theory, the answer is guilt. He really wants the football but he feels guilty about moving the line of scrutiny and he tries to pack it off on somebody else. So much for the QB.

And the other team, they're very sensitive about the line of scrutiny. A soon as somebody moves it, they go into fits. They chase the poor guy with the football all over the field, jump on him, beat his face, etc.

I just cannot understand all this commotion over the line of scrutiny. There probably is some logic in it but it escapes me completely.

As I said, I've always LIKED football.....

M Club plans intramurals

by Carol Johnson

After much discussion, M Club ed to discontinue organizin g women's intramurals games by societies. Only any group of girls may sign up as a team, a society can form its own team, or an individual may sign up and then be assigned to a team, by the events manager of the sport in which she is interested.

Soccer is the sport of the moment, with games to be held on September 26 and 28 and on October 3 and 5. The games are permanently scheduled for Tuesdays and Thursdays at 4:00 p.m.

Other intramural activities for this fall include field hockey, volleyball, and a cycle race. Anyone interested in participating should look for the posters and sign-up sheets in the dorms, posted about a week before each event is scheduled to begin.

COVER GIRL

— Brown Suede & Beige Leather
$13.99

— Brown Suede & Beige Leather
— Grey Suede & Leather
$16.99

— Blue Suede
— Brown Suede
$20.99

Southern shoes

Midland Center Open 9:30-9

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 4 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | Oct. 6, 1972

POW bracelets available to students

By Sarah Winbigler

As the controversy over the Vietnam insanity rages on, there is one issue on which nearly everyone agrees: the American prisoners of war have become the ultimate loser in the war, and they deserve a better break than they are presently receiving. Many Americans are trying to make this "better break" become a reality by giving wrist-service to the POW movement– they are buying and wearing faithflly bracelets bearing the names of American POW's.

The idea first began in 1967, when five UCLA students became concerned about the plight of the POW's and formed a group called VIVA (Voices in a Vital America). At that time, the rest of the nation was relativey apathetic about the movement, and the group did not begin to gain momentum until 1970 when the POW issue began to receive national attention.

It was in 1970 that VIVA hit on the idea of selling bracelets, each one inscribed with the name of a known American POW and the date of his capture. Those who bought the bracelets resolved to wear them until he prisoners whose names they bore were accounted for.

It has been two years since the fist bracelets were ordered, and in that time a total of 1,500,000 bracelets have been sold by VIVA alone.

Persons owning bracelets of prisoners ho have been released can return them to VIVA and receive a new POW bracelet free of charge.

In addition to VIVA, a group called Concern for Prisoners of War, Inc. also sell the bracelets. Both groups sell nickel bracelets for $2.50 and copper ones for $3.00. The bracelets are their only means of support.

Anyone interested in buying a Bracelet, in receiving more information, or in contacting the family of the POW whose bracelet they wear can con. ct VIVA, 10966 LeConte Avenue, Los Angeles, California, 90024 or Concern for Prisoners of War Inc., 861 Sixth Avenue, San Diego, California, 92101.

Library expands periodicals list

Miss Jane Savage, head librarian, announces that the library is now subscribing to several new periodicals.

Many of these magazines deal with issues and problems that have recently been recognized. One new magazine is Ms., edited by Gloria Steinem, a well known figure in the Women's Lib movement. Another new periodical that is also newly established as a magazine is World, a literary magazine edited by Norman Cousins, who formerly edited The Saturday Review. A third new periodical is The Futurist, a magazine that makes predictions concerning changes the future may bring, along with ideas as to what can be done to prepare for them.

In addition to not knowing about the new periodicals, many students may not be aware that the library subscribes to several magazines that are so popular that they are kept in the stacks and must be asked for at the desk. Among these magazines are After Dark, American Heritage, Camera, Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, McCall's, Madamoiselle, Playboy, The Drama Review, Sports Illustrated, U. T. Daily Beacon (as of this week).

Dr. Gale Rhodes receives grant

Dr. Gale Rhodes of the Maryville College Chemistry Department has been awarded a $300 grant for the development of a laboratory project in biochemistry. The award was made by the American Chemical Society Division of Chemical Education and EI DuPont de Nemours & Company and is part of a program designed to fund the development of new programs in chemical education.

The laboratory project, which involves the study of the origins of biological molecules, will be developed during the fall and interim terms and used in u biochemistry-cytology course during the winter term.

Theatre offers season tickets

Season tickets for all dramatic productions to be presented on the Maryville College campus are now on sale. Holders of these tickets are entitled to see the four major events and student productions being presented this year at a considerable saving.

This year's Playhouse program includes such well known plays as the long-run musical hit, "My Fair Lady," being presented on October 26, 27, 28 and 30; Eugene O'Neill's "A Moon for the Misbegotten," on March 1, 2 and 3; the spectacular performance of Sir Laurence Olivier in "Othello," by William Shakespeare; and the delightful comedy by Leonard Gershe, "Butterflies Are Free," on May 17, 18 and 19. All of these special events plus the student plays can be seen for $6.

"My Fair Lady," by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe, is the opening play of the season. It will mark the end of the sale of season tickets. They will be on sale in the Theatre Office at the College. Individual tickets will also be on sale at the door on the nights of the opening production for $2.00.

At 8:15 p.m. on October 26, 27, 28 and 30 the play, "My Fair Lady," will be presented in the Theatre. Achieving the most striking popularity of any stage attraction of the mid-twentieth century, "My Fair Lady" ran in New York for six-and-a-half years continuously. As with any good song, all the famous songs of "My Fair Lady" appear to sing themselves.

Henry Hawes in the Saturday Review has said, ". . . an intelligent wedding of musical-comedy and musical-play techniques enchantingly performed. It is not only the best new musical production of the season. It is — and this is more pertinent than superlatives — an enormously eupeptic treat."

MC performers to premiere "Madrigals"

Dr. Harry H. Harter, director of choral music at Maryville College, and assembled forces of about 70 other performers are entering final rehearsals for the regional premiere of Lalo Schifrin's "Madrigal for the Space Age" At the Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Fraternity regional convention at the University of Tennessee October 10-11. The Maryville College community will be treated to a repeat performance of the work in a special Community Issues and Values program at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, October 1.

The performances will feature the Maryville College Concert Choir with Robert John Bonham, pianist, Blair Beasley, narrator, and the Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet, Mrs. Cheryl Van Metre, choreographer and dancemaster. The performances will be conducted by Dr. Harter.

Lalo Schifrin was commissioned last year by the Sinfonia Foundation to compose an original work to be performed for the twelve 1972 regional conventions in the organization's twelve geographic division. The Theta Omicron chapter of Ph Mu Alpha is to host the Appalachian Regional Convention at the University Inn in Knoxville, with he premiere highlighting usual convention activities.

Based on a text by Ray Bradbury, "Madrigals for the Space Age" calls for mixed chorus, narrator and solo pianist. Mrs. Van Metre has arranged the special choreography for the Tennessee performances. The work requires between 15 and 20 minutes for performance.

The name of Lalo Schifrin is familiar to most musicians as the composer of many move and television scores, among them the music for "Cool Hand Luke," "The Cincinnati Kid," "Mannix," "Medical Center," and "Mission Impossible."

Although best known as a composer for the electronic media, Schrifin is a respected and prolific composer of art music. His serious catalog includes "Rock Requiem," "Jazz Mass," a string quartet and numerous chamber works.

Reaction to "Madrigal" among the performing singers has been varied, but the consensus of opinion seems to be that a lot of hard work will pay off in a performance in which all will be pleased and proud.

"Think-in" to begin Sunday

Dr. David R. Cartlidge, of the MC Philosophy and Religion Department, will be the leader of a THINK-IN at the New Providence Presbyterian Church beginning on Sunday, October 8 (four Sunday nights). The overall theme will be "Politicians, Prophets, and Priests." An effort will be made to explore the role of a prophetic church in society in an election year.

The format each Sunday evening will be a presentation by Dr. Cartlidge, breaking into small groups for discussion, and returning to interact with the speaker. On October 8 the meeting will begin with a covered dish supper at 5:15 and on succeeding Sundays will begin at 6:00 p.m.

College students are encouraged to attend and transportation will be provided. Meet at the chapel on October 8 at 5:00 p.m. (there will be plenty of food) and on succeeding Sundays at 5:45 p.m.

Edgar Walker, former faculty member, dies

By Charles Craven

Professor Edgar Roy Walker, who taught mathematics and physics at Maryville College from 1909 to 1955, died Friday, Sept. 29, at Blount Memorial Hospital following a broken hip. He was 89. He was the father of Dr. Arda S. Walker, chairman of the history department.

Colleagues and former students of Professor Walker remember him as being one of the stabilizing influences of Maryville College, one who believed in the College and what it stood for enough to give his life to it. His former students remember him for the genuine interest he took in students, along with his patience with them and his willingness to relate to them.

Until shortly before his death, Professor Walker was a very active member of the Highland Presbyterian Church, where he was an elder. Also, he was very much interested in farming and in growing flowers, having grown up on a farm in Blount County.

Professor Walker's wife, who died last June 13, taught speech at Maryville, where she and her husband met. After marrying, they became house parents of Carnegie Hall, a position they held for several years.

Services were held last Sunday at 3:00 p.m. at Highland Presbyterian Church.

guest editorial

Complaining is not constructive

Wiley Rutledge

There seems to be a popular pastime on this campus known as complaining. This is indulged in by people who have nothing better to do and who can see nothing good about the college.

We have it pretty good here compared with a lot of places. We have a schedule that allows much more time for activities than most schedules (many people I've talked to from other schools are amazed that we only take three courses at a time), and there is a certain amount of freedom to choose what we're going to take. The core and major requirements do take up a lot of the schedule, but they don't take nearly all of it.

We have visitation. What we have may be somewhat behind northern or western universities, but it is infintely progressive compared with other small, church related colleges similar to ours.

There is a lot of petty politics here, there is a lot of bureaucracy and nothing seems to get done. But that is the case everywhere. After a two-year association with Yale Medical School, I have found that the situation regarding politics and waste is in many ways much worse there than it is here.

There are several thigs wrong with Maryville College. There are also several things right with it. I would not have the complainers leave. That is the antithesis of what this college stands for. I would have them recognize when they complain that there are good things about MC and work to change what needs changing, rather than just talking about it.

Deadline, prizes set for annual poetry contest

KANSAS CITY, MO.— The Kansas City Poetry Contests are a combined effort to discover poems of excellence. Deadline for entering the $1,600 competition is Feb. 1, 1973.

Top prize in the tenth annual event is the Devins Award of $500 cash and consideration for publication of a book-length poetry manuscript by the University of Missouri Press. The Devins Award s open to all poets.

Hallmark Honor Prizes of $100 each will be awarded to six poets for individual poems. Only full-time undergraduate college students are eligible for the Hallmark awards.

Kansas City Star Awards of $100 each will go to four poets for single poems, without regard to age or residence within the United States.

H. J. Sharp Memorial Awards of $25 each will go to four high school pupils from Missouri or a bordering state.

Poets with national reputations will judge the contests.

Winners will be announced April 2-6, 1973 at the final program of the 1972-73 American Poets Series conducted by the Kansas City Jewish Community Center.

For complete contest rules, send a stamped, self-addressed business evelope to Poetry Contest, P.O. Box 5313, Kansas City, Mo. 64131.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 4 Oct. 6, 1972

editor — Carla Hulce
associate editor — Patti Shelton
faculty advisor — Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
business manager — Allen Bunge
lay-out editor — Sarah Winbigler

The HIGHLAND ECHO is printed by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

on the war...

"I really like the thought, but we're going to have to do something about the wording."

Dining hall woes return to campus

FOOD! Why must we complain about it? Last year it was the quality of the food, this year it's the meal tickets; and, although the quality hasn't changed much (worsened if anything), the idea of having meal tickets only irritates the situation. This time tht Administration cannot allow the blame to be placed on Miss Ware as they have in the past. The fault, in this case lies with Administration itelf.

To begin with, the tickets are a botner. Many people do not carry these cards all of the time (where are the girls supposed to keep hem? In their bras? And not all the guys carry their wallets due to lack of money. And futhermore, these same poor guys and girls are depending on the dining hall to survive). Also, as these tickets are unlaminated they tend to rip, tear, crease, crumble and generally deteriorate quite rapidly.

At present, there are no students on campus who do not pay for meals. Doctors' statements are no longer valid reasons for being excused from payment. This poses an interesting question: Why, then, do we have meal tickets? Granted, there are a few students (less than 12, excluding married students and Maryville Residents, according to Dean Elia) who live off-campus and do not pay for food, but haven't there always been a few?

Until last year meal tickets or ID cards were not required to dine. However, last year, due to the fact that there were students living on-campus who were excused from paying for meals for one reason or another, the use of ID cards was justifiable. That situation does not exist this year. Again, why do we have meal tickets?

There is no real reason. As usual, Maryville College is wasting time-and-money to protect itself from an enemy which does not exist. Let's have an end to this tomfoolery. Perhaps we students should stage something like the draft card burnings of the 60's...(Would you care to light the match, Miss Ware?)

Concerned,

Darcey Phillips 006

Gil Nicholas 615

YVRP organizes on campus

Guerri Simmons, a student at the University of Tennessee who is serving as the Tennessee State Chairman for the Young Voters to Re-Elect the President, appeared at the Student Center on Tuesday evening, September 26, to speak to students who are working locally in the Nixon campaign this Fall. Simmons said that he feels tht the President can get 80 per cent support from the Maryville College student body.

According to Simmons, Senator George McGovern's claim on strong youth supports"is a myth." He said that Nixon has conficence in young people and that he will get substantial youth support.

Tom Kleppe, who is leading the Nixon drive at Maryville College, as well as being Chairman of the East Tennessee Young Voters to Re-Elect the President, says that activity is planned on the Maryville campus this Fall. Bumper-sticker days and football blitzes will be the main projects, according to Tom.

Last Thursday, several students went to Knoxville for the opening of a Youth for Nixon headquarters near the U.T. campus. Pam Powell, who is the National Chairwoman of the Young Voters to Re-Elect the President, was there for the festivities and met the students who were on hand.

Letters

Professor reacts to letter

Dear Editor:

The spirited defense of justice in the cited cases of briliant professors who have resigned leaves me somewhat bewildered. Certainly I commend the student who took up the cudgel in their behalf, secretly envy the charisma of the resignees, and pity the impoverished institution.

But where does that leave the rest of us?

Some of us will just plug along, enjoying more academic freedom here than in many state schools. Some of us will enjoy the student-teacher relationship — and maintain the distinction in roles. Some of us will continue to be challenged by eager young minds. All of us — the remnant — will devote our sincere, yet pitiable, efforts to keeping this 154-year-old institution from collapse and decay.

Timidly,
A. Lesser Proff

Angered artist reacts to review

Dear Mr. Gibson

Your critique was intersting. I always appreciate the viewpoint of the layman particularly when clothed in the literary garb of an authority on the visual arts. Perhaps some background material would have made your observations more valid than amusing and some knowledge of the technical might have led you to realize that there are nothing there which was not deliberate (else it would not have been there). It is the responsibilty of the artist to communicate, but equally the responsibility of the viewer to educate himself. Failure to see what the artist intends is as often due to the ignorance of the viewer as failure of the creator. To enter an exhibit in a subjective frame of mine, with the determination to infuse all that the eye beholds with the limited resources of instant reaction, reduces an experience to an orgy of the ego. It encourages me to spend 500 hours putting an exhibtion together.

My Photographers are as trite as the scenes which make up our daily lives, the contribution of triteness being entirely as we view them. As to my painting, I take comfort in the certainty that there are infinitly more idots writing than paint- I usually prefer to be a member of the minority, the discomfort wards off complacency. An understanding of abstract painting and photography requires some knowledge of abstraction, particularly the basic tenet that there is value in pure design, composition, and color, and added dimension in no reliances on subject matter.

I am sorry that a program was not available to you (a stack was supplied with the request that they be replaced for the next person). The titles you came up with were sufficiently trite,I think. If I communicate, valid or not, at least there is hope.

H. Rich Mahler, III

P.S. For once, the arts have at least been reviewed or criticized!

Dear Mrs. Hulce:

As I read through Mr. Gibson's review of Mr. Mahler's show, I formulated a suitable title for the writer: Uncomprehending. As I finished the article, I formulated a suitable title for the content: Incomprehensive.

Mr. Mahler can indeed communicate. Mr. Gibson cannot.

Yours,
Marty Cureton

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

How to write your congressman

WASHINGTON — "Dear Senator," the letter began. "What are we going to do about pornography? It has even crept into my favorite television programs, and I'm so embarrassed. Please, Senator, tell me what I can do about pornography on TV."

The Senator's eyes flashed mischievously as he dictated one of the shortest congressional reponses on record: "Dear Madam: Turn it off. Sincerely, Stephen M. Young, USS."

Until his retirement in 1970, Stephen Young (D-Ohio) was known throughout the Senate and indeed around the world for his cryptic responses to constituents who wrote what he considered stupid letters.

During his career, Young, like other representatives of populous states, received thousands of pieces of mail each week. As a result, stupid letters were not hard to come by, and Young's collection of replies is now considered classic. (One of his favorites waw "Dear Sir: Some idiot is going around putting your signature on insulting letters, and I am advising you so that you can take steps to protect your good name.")

But Senator Young's reputation notwithstanding, constituent mail is taken seriously by most members of Congress, and during a national political campaign is as good a time as any to let your officials know your views.

There are a few simple do's and don't's which will make your letters, telegrams and phone calls more effective.

First letters. They should be short and to the point, always on one page and generally covering no more than one subject. Do expect a reply signed by your representative but don't be surprised if he personally never sees either your letter or his reply. Remember, legislators (Senators especially) receive hundreds and in some cases even thousands of pieces of mail each day. To answer each one personally would be an impossible task. It should be enough for you to know that most legislators view their mail as an important barometer of public opinion. As a result they pay attention to it and your letter makes its mark along with all the othrs.

Telegrams are often even more effective. For one thing, their cost forces you to be concise and for another the Senator will realize you felt strongly enough to make an investment larger than the price of a stamp.

You should know that there are special rates for telegrams to the President, To Congressmen, to Senators or to other important government officials. While a regular 15-word telegram message would cost $5.45 you can wire your representative in Washington a message of equal length for $1.25 ($1.00 for telegrams to your state government officials). Check with your local Western Union office for details, but in all cases remember to ask for the special rates.

Telephone calls are acceptable, but it's better to put your view in writing. If you do telephone, don't expect to speak to the Congressman or Senator himself. Ask for one of his legislative assistants and above all be succinct. Remember, it's costing you money on both ends: for he phone call in the first place plus taxes to help pay that assistant's sa;ary. While some efforts have been made to provide for toll free phone calls to the President and members of Congress, don't bet on it happening soon. The costs for staff to handle the increased load would be astronomical.

But no matter the medium you choose, communicate. It's worth the trouble because your voice will be heard. And that is the essence of representative government.

NATO awards to be given

Applications will be accepted until November 1, 1972 for junior lectureships in American studies in France, Italy and Spain for the academic year 1973-74. Applicants should be advanced graduate students or persons who have recently completed the Ph.-D., preferably in American literature, American history, or government, but also in economics, geography, psychology, or sociology. Good knowledge of French or Spanish is required for appointments in France or Spain. Additional information and application forms are available from Committee on International Exchange of Persons, 2101 Constitution Ave., Wash., D.C. 20418.

The Committee is also accepting applications from American citizens until December 1, 1972 for North Atlantic Treaty Organization awards and for Southeast Asia Treaty Organization awards. Grants are intended for scholars of established reputation with projects of direct interest to NATO or to the Atlantic Community as a whole, or concerned with social, economic, political, cultural, scientific and educational problems of Southeast Asia or the Southwest Pacific areas. NATO grants are tenable for two to four months in one or more of the European NATO countries, while SEATO grants are for periods of four to eight months in Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, Philippines or Thailand.

See the bulletin boards in Anderson Hall for additional details.

Ants are said to outnumber all other land-dwelling animals.

Henderson is frosh president

The Class of 1976 have elected their Class officers for this year. The election was held Friday afternoon, Sept. 29. The winners were Emerson Henderson, President; Mike Johnston, Vice President; and Carl Schindler, Secretary-Treasurer.

Emerson Henderson comes from Covington, Georgia, a suburb of Atlanta. He plans to major in Political Science and enjoys reading and listening to jazz. As President, Emerson says he hopes that the Freshman class can sponsor several social activities on campus this year. He feels that there is much talent in the class and also that it is important that everyone work for class unity.

Mike Johnston is from Morehead, Kentucky and plans to have an individual major in education along the lines of television for children. Mike's pet peeve is student apathy and says that he wants to do all he can to make sure that the Freshman class does not become apathetic.

Carl Schindler is from Huntsville, Alabama. At this time, he is not sure what his major will be, but is sure what he wants for his class. Carl agrees with Emerson and Mike on working for class unity and preventing apathy.

Community Outreach

Opportunity to become involved in community service has been given to every student on the Maryville College campus. Students recorded their interest in specific projects on sign-up sheets posted at various places on the campus. Those who failed to sign up but still wish to demonstrate their concern for others may contact Mrs. Herma Cate or Carol Wylie, the co-chairmen of the Community Outreach Committee, or the following individuals:

Sue Sterling - Parkside; Harriette Berg-babysitting; Jean McArthur and Randy Minor-volunter services; Barbara Sanderson-visitation; Arthur Fowler-tutoring; Philip Dreety-arts and crafts; Sue Sterling and Charles Hill-music and special programs.

An addict confesses, or Wintuk in the Wheaties

By Erma Q. Zingdip

For months I tried to quit smoking. I quit every night at midnight — I also started again every morning at 7:00 a.m. People told me all I needed was a substitute for smoking — something constructive. I tried everything — chewing my fingernails; chewimg gum; chewing erasers; chewing tacks ... Nothing worked. Finally I found a solution. I learned how to crochet.

Learning how to crochet was a snap. It was learning how to stop that nearly destroyed me. All my friends agreed that crocheting a scarf was a fine idea, so my senior counselor taught me how to crochet.

I finished the scarf in two days. The rest of the week I spent so much time on an afghan you would have thought I was in competiton with six old ladies from Vermont.

I couldn't seem to stop myself. By the end of the week I was sick from relaxation. There were deep, dark circles under my eyes, my upper lip twitched uncontrollably and there were calluses on both thumbs and forefingers. I cried a lot from exhaustion, but I was driven by some mad inner desire to crochet fifteen toilet tissue covers shaped like the Lincoln Memorial by the end of the week.

My roommate was the first one to suggest I needed professional help. 'You've gone beyond the social aspect of crocheting." she said. "Let's face it. You have a problem and you're going to have to taper off. From here on out no more yarn." I promised but I knew I couldn't keep my work.

My addiction eventually led to dishonesty, lying cheating and selling family heirlooms to support my habit. I was always being discovered. Hermione found skeins of yarn in bud vases, cereal boxes and under my mattress. One night my roommate woke and found me crocheting in the dark. She snapped on the light and said quietly "Tommorrow, I'm enrolling you in "Crocheter's Anonymous.' Something has to be done and you obviously can't do it yourself."

She was right of course. "Crocheter's Anonymous" pointed out the foolishness of my compulsion to crochet all the time. They eventully weaned me off yarn and interested me in a new hobby — painting.

Would you believe it? I did eight water colors at the first week, fifteen charcoal sketches the second and by the end of the month I will have a racked up twenty-three oils...all on stretched cnvasses!

Vespers during the Sundays of October will take the form of short services of praise through song, scripture and prayer. Music of various types will be used, folk song, breass ensemble, organ, and others.

This Sunday, October 8, Merida Kearns-Preston will lead the worship with folk song hymns and guitar music. We will meet in he Little Chapel at 7:00 p.m. Come, bring your voices, and celebrate with us.

Weekend football

Scots scorch Georgetown

Last Saturday in Kentucky, the Scots handed their Georgetown hosts a smashing 36-6 defeat. With this win under the MC Football.

Last Saturday in Kentucky, the Scots handed their Georgetown hosts a smashing 36-6 defeat. With this win under their belts, Mayville's footballers boast a 3-0 record.

The scoring began quickly with a 72-yard as delivered by Joe Costner to Mike Butler. Glen White put through the extra point, and the Scots led 7-0.

White soon took scoring honors again. Only moments after his extra point, he made good a 39-yard field goal to give Maryville a 10-0 edge.

Next it was the defense's turn to put some points on the board. Mike Threlkeld picked off a pass from Georgetown's Jim Taylor. Not content to merely have possession, Threlkeld sped 35 yards, collecting six more points. White made it 17-0 with his kick.

Not to be outdone by their defensive teammates, the Scot offense upped the score again; Costner tossed a ten-yarder to Mike Butler who made it good for six. After White's conversion, Maryville held a commanding 24-0 lead.

After all this action by the Scots, Georgetown finally managed its first, and last, score of the game Taylor flipped a short pass to Bob Jones for the touchdown. A two-point conversion attempt fell through, and the score stood 24-6.

Tight end Don Scott shared honors with Joe Costner for the final two scores. Costner hit Scott from the Georgetown 12, and the tally stood 30-6 at the half.

In the third quarter, Scott again hustled into collect a TD pass from Costner, and Maryville won handily 36-6.

Thanks to the Scots' superiority, many reserve players have been able to participate in the action. One man to watch is freshman Andy Banas, who as done a fine job relieving Costner at the quarterback position.

The defense once again turned in a fine performance, really stifling the Georgetown running game and holding down scoring. Paced by David Clinton, the defense ripped off seven interceptions and four fumbles.

However, Maryville's pass receiving squad suffered a great loss Saturday. Senior Randy Minor will apparently be out for the rest of the season with a broken wrist.

Minor, one of the top-ranked receivers in the nation, will be sorely missed in the line-up. However, he depth of the Scots' receiving ranks should maintain their momentum.

Of course, too much cannot be said about Joe Costner's passing record. In the Georgetown game, he made good 4 TD passes: this brings his 3-game total to 11. The other statistics speak for themselves.

	Maryville	Georgetown
First downs	26	16
Yards rushing	132	43
Yards passing	337	182
Passes	23-48-5	11-41-7
Punts	7-39-7	5-40-0

The Scots make one more road trip, this one to Randolph-Macon, before Homecoming activities next week.

Murray leads vesper service

World-Wide Communion Sunday was celebrated Sunday evening, Oct. 1, at the Wilson Chapel. Holy Communion was served, with Dr. Roderic Murray of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Maryville serving as Celebrant and Preacher.

In his sermon, Dr. Murray stated that although he was a Episcopalian preaching at a Presbyterian college, Christian faith is an important tool in both religions. He also said that it was his opinion that everyone needs a sense of the transendance, a convicton between a person's spirit and that of God. He feels that only the Church is committed at this time to keep the idea of the transendance alive in human life.

Music was provided by the Maryville College Concert Choir, under the direction of Dr. Harry H. Harter, and Dr. James Bloy as organist.

Colpitts to give junior recital

Tonight at 7:00 in the Fine Arts Center musical hall, Jim Colpitts will present his junior piano recital. The program will range in style from baroque to modern.

Planned for the performance is Mozart's "Sonata No. 6 in D Major (K 284)," a piece in the baroque style. Also on the program will be three pieces by Brahms, which are late romantic and two pieces of Messuaen from "Vignt Regards Sur l'Enfant — Jesus." The last is modern and creates such effects as bells, a xylophone, trombones, and birds.

Dale White, Dr. James Bloy, and the Maryville College Brass Quintet will assist in the recital.

What is an Avroc
Aviation Reserve Officer Candidate

He is a young man destined to fly the Navy's new and most sophisticated aircraft. As a student you can't tell him from any other, he attends no ROTC or drill meetings, and the choice of dress is his. But, he has a future, he has a guaranteed 8-week summer job between his junior and senior years earning him $700.00. After he graduates and gets his commission he goes through flight training earning $847 per month, and 3 years from the date he joined back during his pay jumps to $992 per month and this is in addition to a quarter of million dollar post graduate education in aviation.

If you were born to fly and this sounds like you, stop by and see the Navy Officer Information Team.

Ask about our free airplane rides.

on the silent majority...

"The silent majority has just spoken it's first word."

Cast chosen for "My Fair Lady"

Rehearsals Now Underway for Maryville College Production of "My Fair Lady"

The mid-twentieth century's most popular musical comedy, "My Fair Lady," which is to open the 1972-73 Maryville College Playhouse season is now well underway in rehearsal for its Thursday October 26th opening in the College Theatre. Director Thomas E. Jones, Director of Theatre at the college, Dan Stallings, musical director, and CherylVanMetre, choreographer, are now busy at work getting ready for opening night. Due to the tremendous popularity of the show, the play will be performed October 26th through 28th and also on Monday, October 30th. The performance time will be 8:15 p.m. and tickets can be purchased by either writing Maryville College Playhouse, Box 2825, Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee 37801 or by calling 982-2911.

The leading roles are to be played by Howard Welsh and Christy Rogers, who will be portraying Henry Higgins and Eliza Doolittle respectively. Other major roles are played by Steve Yuhasz, Pickering; Robert Hutchens, Doolittle; Nancy McCleary, Mrs. Pierce; Freddy, Steve Ayers; Kay Hurlbut, Mrs. Higgins; Tina Bergner, Mrs. Eynsford - Hill; Dan Moore, Harry; and Paul Hollingsworth as Jamie. Tom Williamson is lending a hand as assistant-director. The remainder of the cast consists of Fred Harris, Alan Furth, Steve Long, Brad Hodsun, Nancy Bostock, Wayne Dansbury, Victoria Bernal, Belinda Chiddie, Patricia Jones, Susan Henderson, Eleanor Peowie, Elizabeth Brockway, Kathy Meier, Kaye Sanders, Elizabeth Moore, Cathy Henderson, Nancy Herrel, Melissa Mitchell, and May Apetz.

Bernard Shaw, author of fifty plays, as many long prefaces, some eight or ten books on economics, and untold numbers of essays and articles, was obviously a man who liked and knew how to handle words. It might be deduced from the Maryville College Playhouse production of "My Fair lady" which is based on Shaw's comedy "Pygmalion", that when Shaw was a young man he had dismayed and bored quite a few young ladies with his flow of works, very much like Higgins played by Howard Welsh in the musical.

Shaw kidded his own loquacity in the play "Misalliance" written four years prior to "Pygmalion," when he gave to "Misalliance" the subtitle of "A Diquisitory Play" and called it "A Debate in One Sitting." His herioins in this play was continuoisly restless at the talk-talk-talk of her father and his friends, and when an attractive young man turned up and began to express some intersting opinions, she furiosly cut him on to size by saying, "Oh, you're another talker" to many critics this was Shaw reproducing an incident (or many incidents?) from his youth.

"My Fair Lady attained its world-wide popularity by not being "a disquisitory play," but in one of its loveliest song, lyricist Alan Jay Lerner was obviously joshing the old master's loquacious dealing with young ladies impatient of his talkativeness — the song being "Show Me," sung by Eliza, Played by Christy Roger, which has the out of patience heoirne warlbing such lines as

"Don't talk of stars
Burning above;
If you're in love,
Show me!
Don't talk of June!
Don't talk of fall!
Don't talk at all!
Show me!"

This is what the Maryville College Playhouse is planning to do with its production of Lerner and Loe's "My Fair Lady." Tickets for the October 26, 27, 28, and 30th performances may be obtained by sending $2.00 per ticket to Maryville College Playhouse, Box 2825, Maryville College, or by calling 982-2911.

The Outreach Committee has ced interest questionnaires in the dormitories which students are urged to fill out and return to Box 2807. This will help the committee to discover ways in which students would be willing to volunteer for work in the community.

Help wanted

The Highland Echo desperately needs typists and ad salespersons. If you would be willing to help type during D hour or Mondays or sell ads at any time please contact Box 2820.

there's lots of living and loving ahead

Why cut it short?

American Cancer Society

A child is not just an extra mouth to feed.

It's another pair of feet to shoe. Another body to clothe.

A whole other life to be provided for.

That's why it's important to plan for each child.

Planned Parenthood
Children by choice.
Not chance.

For further information, write Planned Parenthood,
114 Cameron Avenue N.W.
Knoxville, Tennessee 37917
Phone: (615) 524-7487

Regular meetings of the Community Outreach Committee are scheduled for the second Tuesday of each month at 6:30 p.m. Brief meetings will be called from time to time during the break.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 5 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | Oct. 13, 1972

Homecoming begins today

By Fred Strohl

Maryville College's 1972 Homecoming weekend begins tonight, with a full slate of activities planned for both tonight and tomorrow. Rick Ziegler, who is in charge of social activities this year, announces that action will get underway tonight with a pep rally at the football field at 7:30.

At the pep rally, the five finalists for the title of Homecoming Queen will be announced. Election of the ten semi-finalists was held October 2, with the following seniors being nominated: Cathy Bates, Vicki Clower, Nan Cureton, Pam Faulkner, Nancy Gamble, Vaughan Kennedy, Martha McCoy, Kathy Mayurnik, Eleanor Murrah, and Delores Ziegler.

At 8:30, the movie "The April Fools" will be shown in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. The price will be 75 cents per person.

Tomorrow the annual Homecoming parade will get underway at 10:30 a.m. It will start at the campus golf course, proceed up Washington Street, then over Broadway through downtown Maryville. From there, the parade will go down Cates Avenue to Court Street, and up Court Street to the College.

Cash prizes for the best three floats entered in the parade will be awarded by the judges. First place is worth $100, second is $50 and third is $25.

The football game will begin at 2:00 tomorrow afternoon, and the Homecoming Queen will be crowned at half time. After the game, there will be a barbeque held next to the field.

To conclude Saturday's activities, a dance will be held in the physical education building. The band to be featured is Rich Mountain Tower, with festivities beginning at 8:15 p.m.

Vespers for Sunday evening, October 15, will take the form of a hymn sing with the hymns accompanied by a brass ensemble composed of Dale White, Robert Millner, Ruth Mary Weston, Ellen Myers, and Dan Stallings. The Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia group will sing. Prayers will be led by Dr. Bloy from the music faculty.

ACC prepares for Board visit today

In the October 5 meeting of the All College Council, the newly elected president of the freshman class, Emerson Henderson, was welcomed. He will be representing the freshmen on the Council for the rest of the year.

Next in order of business was a discussion of the freshmen orientation to the functions of the ACC. These meetings were rather poorly attended, and Dr. Lewis suggested that apathy was due to poor publicity and poor timing.

The Council then discussed ideas that would make the introduction of the ACC more meaningful to the freshmen. Dr. Ramger suggested inviting the freshmen to attend an ACC meeting and see Maryville governance in action. Other members proposed having ACC orientation earlier in the year. No decision concerning 1973 orientation was made, however.

The Academic Life Committee has been working industriously and reported several changes in course offerings. The sociology department will be offering two new courses: one on community problems, which centers on the Maryville-Alcoa area; and the other is concerned with mass communications and replaces anthropology in the academic year 1973.

The Committee also suggested that no make-up interim be offered, but that a student needing an interim could simply take an extra course offered during any of the ten week terms.

This suggestion was made in an effort to give the student more choice, since only one make-up interim has been offered. The Committee is also debating whether or not to lengthen spring break, to reduce the number of courses needed for graduation, and is discussing the plight of seniors who lack the required number of CIV's for graduation. They also named Emily Hager Davis and Ken Ainslie as Danforth scholars.

The most important topic brought up was the meeting between the Board of Directors and the ACC, to be held on October 12 and 13. The junior class, represented by spokeswoman Trish Lloyd, made the suggestion that the Board members and student body meet in an informal way.

President Copeland declared that along with discussing "today's student," the Board would also review the College's finances.

He explained that endowments to the College have not increased at the same rate as expenses, and went on to add that the College needs to cut down on expenses by using its facilities more efficiently and at the same time to increase income.

These ideas could be implemented by cutting down on maintenance expenses, reevaluating scholarships, and recruiting more students.

Editorial

Apathy seen in failure to register

The October 7 deadline for voter registration has come and, sadly enough, gone again. We say sadly because the question of how many of our community failed to register continues to haunt this office.

We do not intend to expound upon partisan politics at this point, having neither the space nor the inclination. The issue at hand is the failure of too many people to care enough about either party or the democratic system in general to take five minutes and register to vote.

Five short minutes — in some small way they affect the next four years, four years we must all live with. At this point no one knows what those years will be like, but however they turn out, those of you who failed to register have no right either to complain about them or to bask in their glory, for you had nothing to do with helping to make them.

While often one small voice, or one small vote, may not seem very important, it is all those small voices which affect the future of this country and the world. If every citizen felt that his vote meant nothing, our national leaders would soon be elected by a minority, by those who cared enough to express an opinion. Are you part of the new silent majority?

Voters examine the issues

For the benefit of first-time voters at Maryville College, the Highland Echo has compiled a series of excerpts from the Democratic and Republican platforms adopted at their national conventions in July and August, respectively.

Statements of policy regarding specific issues are put in parallel columns so that voters may compare the stands of the two major parties and decide which party offers the program which coincides most nearly with the voters' own wishes.

On some issues a remarkable similarity may be noted between the two declared platforms; on other issues the difference is clear. Certainly all voters will keep in mind the fact that no presidential candidate will be able to do all that is promised; but the direction can be determined and the course at least charted.

Some issues will be included in this week's Highland Echo; other issues will be discussed in next's week's Echo.

Next week: Labor relations, busing, rural life, gun control, defense, Vietnam, amnesty.

Democratic

WELFARE REFORM

The next Democratic Administration must end the present welfare system and replace it with an income security program which places cash assistance in an appropriate context with all of the measures outlined above, adding up to an earned income approach to ensure each family an income substantially more than the poverty level ensuring standards of decency and health, as officially defined in the area. Federal income assistance will supplement the income of working poor people and assure an adequate income for those unable to work.

THE ECONOMY AND JOBS

Full employment - a guaranteed job for all - is the primary economic objective of the Democratic Party. We are determined to make economic security a matter of right. This means a job with decent pay and good working conditions for everyone willing and able to work and an adequate income for those unable to work. It means abolition of the present welfare system.

The nation achieved its economic greatness under a system of free enterprise, coupled with human effort and ingenuity, and it must remain. There must be an end to inflation and the ever-increasing cost of living. A first priority of a Democratic Administratcon must be eliminating the unfair, beaucratic Nixon wage and price controls.

HEALTH CARE

We endorse the principle that good health is a right of all Americans. To achieve this goal the next Democratic Administration should: establish a system of universal National Health Insurance. This program should be federally financed and federally administered.

ABORTION

(Rejected pro-abortion plank, remained silent on this issue.)

Republican

We continue to insist, however that there are too many people on this country's welfare rolls who should not be there. With effective cooperation from the Congress, we pledge to stop these abuses.

We flatly oppose programs or policies which embrace the principles of a government-guaranteed income. We reject as unconscionable the idea that all citizens have the right to be supported by the government, regardless of their ability or desire to support themselves and their familes.

We stand for full employment - a job for everyone willing and able to work in an economy freed of inflation, its vigor not dependent upon war or massive military spending.

We will continue to pursue sound economic policies that will eliminate inflation, further cut unemployment, raise real incomes, and strengthen our international economic position. We have already removed some temporary controls on wages and prices and will remove them all once economic distortions spawned in the late 1960's are repaired.

Our goal is to enable every American to secure quality health care at reasonable cost. To reduce the cost of health care, we stress our efforts to curb inflation in the economy. To assure access to basic medical care for all our people, we support a program financed by employers, employees and the Federal Government to provide comprehensive health insurance coverage. We oppose nationalized compulsory health insurance.

(Rejected pro-abortion plank, remained silent on this issue.)

The Highland Echo

Vol 58, no 5. Oct. 13, 1972

editor — Carla Hulce
faculty advisor — Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
business manager — Allen Bunge
lay-out editor — Sarah Winbigler

The HIGHLAND ECHO is printed by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

THE ALL NIGHTER

Wiley Rutledge

11 PM–Well, here I am. Got a big test tomorrow. Yessir, really gonna study for it, really gonna know my stuff. After all, I gotta pull my average up somehow.

1 AM–Guess I'd better get some more coffee. I never knew I could get this tired. It sure doesn't feel like this at one on Saturday morning.

3 AM–Beginning to have a little trouble seeing the paper. It's almost impossible to read what's down there. What course am I studying for, anyway?

5 AM–Boy, college sure is a drag. I never figured I'd have to stay up and study like this. Seems to me if they wanted us to stay up all night, they wouldn't put beds in our rooms.

7 AM–Well, I guess I'd better get some sleep. I mean, after all, not much point in falling asleep during the test.

1 PM–Good morning, world! Boy, I'm sure gonna do great on that test. I really remember everything. Say, wait a minute. What time is it, anyway? One in the afternoon! My test was C hour! Well, I'll just go talk to the teacher. Talk to the teacher? Oh, boy...

Interim: four weeks of play time?

It's Interimtime again. People will be scrambling to register for the Interim of their choice. Will you choose one that intrigues you, one that inspires you, one that will be a play-course, one that will be a back-breaker?

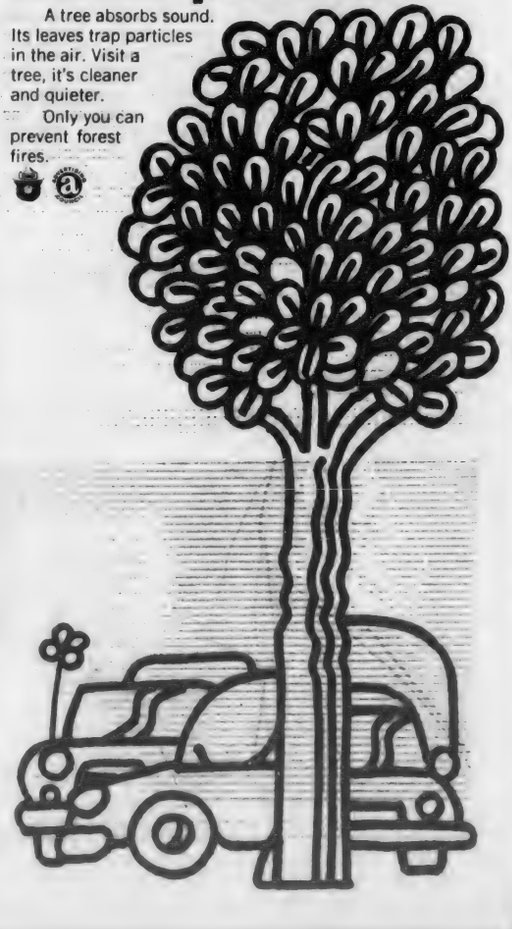
Interim is the best OPPORTUNITY for a learning experience at Maryville. OPPORTUNITY is the correct way in which to regard Interim, because, more than any other study experience, Interim at MC is as wonderful a time for discovery as you make it.

Some of the most back-breaking courses turn out to be the most rewarding. Initial shock may tend to paralyze you, but, if you persevere and adopt a positive attitude toward individual scholarship, someday you will look back and appreciate the growing you did.

Granted, some Interims revert to play-party games in which the instructor and student dance an intricate waltz of "you can't find out how much I don't know." Is such decadence the result of a poor system or a poor attitude?

I think the true inequality of Interims is due to a concerted effort on the part of both some instructors and some students to avoid learning. Some people I know pore over the Interim offerings in the hope of finding one that will involve no work at all. A three-week vacation in the fall is nice; it's a beautiful time of the year.

But what are we here for? To avoid learning? Perhaps that question is more serious than you think. Sometimes it seems as if all we are interested in is producing some sort of ephemeral "Community." I always thought that a college was a community developed from a single focus — a dedication to learning. Have we perhaps lost our focus by consciously striving to mechanically attain some sort of social "Community"?



Interim, being possibly the only course in this college in which a student is evaluated solely on his own accomplishment with no prerequisites, is a chance for us to begin to think about why we are here. Interim can be a unique learning experience only if we have not lost our sense of purpose as a college.

Interim term is a time for all of us to come a little closer together. We will all be on the same road to learning, confronting ourselves. The appearance of a positive attitude toward scholarship could be a much deeper binding force for Maryville College than the showers of rhetoric and jargon about a "Community" filtering down from neat-looking theories. Our common purpose should not be the forcing upon us of a theoretical "Community," but the formulating of an environment dedicated to the search for Life through learning. The "community" is inevitable.

It's more than a tree. It's anti-pollution.

A tree absorbs sound. Its leaves trap particles in the air. Visit a tree, it's cleaner and quieter.

Only you can prevent forest fires.

Portrait to be unveiled

On Saturday, October 14, a portrait of the late Mrs. Pearl Cathey will be shown for the first time in the lounge of Dorm I.

The artist, Ethel Ann Scruggs Mara, graduated from Maryville in 1970. She did the painting as a commemoration of Mrs. Cathey, who was Dorm I's first head resident. Before the construction of Dorm I, she was head resident of Pearson's Hall.

Everyone is invited to come to see the painting; the artist will be present from 1:15 to 1:45 to talk to those who are interested.

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

Pollution: more headlines than progress

WASHINGTON — Like its principl spokesman in the senate, Edmund S. Muskie (D-Me.), the drive to conquer pollution has experienced a meteoric rise to oblivion.

It was predictable enough: All the symptoms was there, from over-exposure in the press to well-informed zealots who brought more emotion than facts to their arguments. As a result, the headlines are all but over and many of the pollution problems remain virtually untouched.

The increasing difficulty we are experiencing in disposing of solid wastes provides the most evident example that pollution has not subsided along with the headlines.

Americans now discard over 250 million tons of trash annually, better than 2,000 pounds for every citizen, and the amount is expected to double by 1980.

Our methods of coping with this man-made mountain continue to be astonishingly insufficient. Nearly seven months ago I reported that 94 per cent of our nation's open dumping systems were inadequate. Unfortunately, that figure is still accurate today. Moreover, three-fourths of our municipal incinerators are not only inadequate, they are among the worst air pollution offenders.

In some urban areas the problem is already critical. In New York City, for example, trash disposal (when you can get it at all) costs twice what it does in most other parts of the country. And in the next two years the nation's largest city will have used up all its available land fill space. What then? Today's technology dictates additional, expensive processing plants, and that will raise disposal costs further.

Faced with 250 million tons of trash, you would think we might take a hard look at such items as disposable cans and bottles. Mother Earth needs roughly 100 years to decompose completely the average can. As for throw-away bottles, they become permanent fixtures, forever embedded in a thousand forgotten land fills at best, or obstructing roadways and stream beds at worst.

And yet, only one state-Oregon-has taken steps to discourage throw-away containers, and the federal government has barely begin to study the subject seriously.

Recycling, not only of bottles but of virtually all our trash, may be one answer. In New York City alone it is estimated that $34 million worth of scrap could be retrieved from the municipal waste flow each year.

Another possibility is burning trash at heats so intense that virtually no pollution results, and then utilizing the resulting energy to produce, for example, electricity.

Both of these approaches are technologically feasible today. Indeed, recycling has been going on for better than 50 years, and in fact nearly half of our country's supply of copper is recovered from scrap. Likewise, 30 per cent of all aluminum, 20 per cent of all paper and 18 per cent of all zinc.

However, because it is not always economically desirable to recycle, government encouragement will likely be needed before this approach can provide a significant contribution to reducing the trash mountain. As for high-intensity burning, that too is expensive.

The first prerequisite, of course, is increased public awareness, not through emotion-packed charges and countercharges but through a continued patient and reasoned presentation of the facts. As Mark Twain wrote, "Habit is habit, and not to be flung out of the window by any man, but coaxed downstairs a step at a time."

Our habit of being careless with trash has had decades in which to become firmly entrenched. It will have to be coaxed. That may be harder and less dramatic than headline splashing, and certainly it's not nearly so much fun. But it is the only effective way to accomplish a job which must be done.

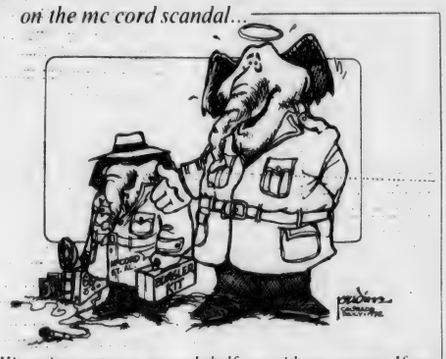
©Copyright 1972 by
WASHINGTON WEEKLY, Inc.
All rights reserved.

Young and Stewart reshape man

A scientist and an ethicist face the future in the Continuing Education seminar entitled "A New World in the Morning? The Promise and Threat of Reshaping Man." Dr. David Young, author of the book which provides the title for the seminar, will no doubt point out what man can do in the future with regard to the biological nature of man. Mr. Claude Stewart, who combines the seemingly disparate disciplines of biology and ethics, will consider what ought to be done in the area of reshaping man.

It should be noted that in a seminar of this type, Maryville College is in the avant garde of institutions dealing with the ethics involved as a result of scientific discoveries. Science has made giant strides in many areas — space, medicine, mechanics to name a few — but the question "what ought we do" has not been researched adequately.

Dr. Young and Mr. Stewart will furnish new insights on new problems in the seminar designed for alumni and interested students next Saturday morning.



The Echo accepts Letters to the Editor provided they are signed and submitted to Box 2820 by noon on Monday. No anonymous letters will be published.

Professors to discuss politics

Are you still not sure whom you will vote for on November 7? Do you want your prejudices confirmed? Do you want reasons for the "hunches" you will probably follow anyway? Then attend the Continuing Education seminar conducted during Homecoming by Dr. Robert Braid and Dr. Wallace Lewis. Dr. Braid brings to the confrontation the background of a military education and the scholarship of a political scientist; Dr. Lewis brings the experience and scholarship of the historian.

What they have to say about Election '72 should be challenging and intelligible and should help answer the question, "What happens when you get a choice not an echo?"

on the mc cord scandal...

"His actions were not on our behalf, nor with our consent. If our understanding of the facts is accurate, we will, of course, discontinue our relationship..."
— Chairman, Republican National Committee

McGoverners plan strategy

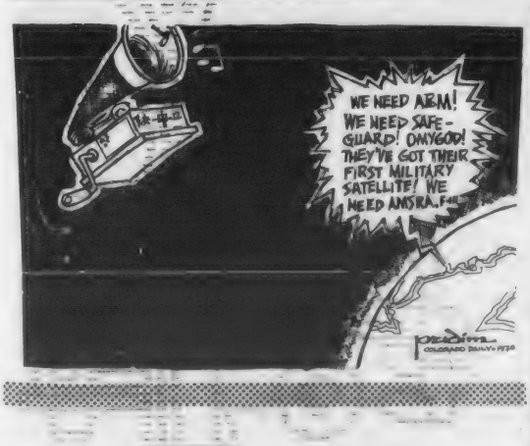
by Arthur Fowler

Students for McGovern met last Tuesday night in the Student Center lounge to become acquainted with the local Democratic personnel and to identify the on-campus supporters of the Senator.

Campaign posters, buttons, stickers, and leaflets defining McGovern's stand on particular issues were made available to the students who came to work and to be counted in the present Democratic bid for power.

Since registration of would-be voters has now closed, efforts will be concentrated on getting out the vote. Absentee ballots will be the mode of voting for many Maryville College students, but some have registered in Blount County. Plans for transportation when needed will be made, and the education of voters on the issues will be continued.

John Weston, a Maryville College student, is co-chairperson of the McGovern Campaign of Blount County, while Mrs. Richard Harrison is the treasurer.



YVRP plans campaign

George Goedeke, Maryville College Chairwoman of the Young Voters to Re-Elect the President organization, has announced the appointment of twelve students as floor canvassers for the fall campaign.

The students are Vaughan Kennedy, Mary Anne Ewing, Ruth Lufkin, Karen Platt, Clyde Byars, Dave Haimbach, Jim McEachern, Linda Kauffman, Maria Harden, Bill Silvernale, Steve Worrel, and Chuck Segwick.

These students will have the responsibility of drumming up support for the Nixon campaign on their assigned dormitory floors.

The Young Voters to Re-Elect the Prsident have also announced that they will hold bumper-sticker blitzes at the home football games from now until Election Day. This will entail campaign volunteers requesting permission from fans attending the games to put a Nixon bumper-sticker on their car.

Help wanted

The Highland Echo desperately needs typists and ad salespersons. If you would be willing to help type during D hour on Mondays or sell ads at any time, please contact Box 2820.

New religious activities begin

The religious activities calendar for Maryville College will be augmented by the addition of two new times for services, beginning next week. On Wednesday mornings before breakfast, there will be a short service of Holy Communion in the Little Chapel at 7:00 a.m. Some students find this a very good time for some quiet thought and worship, and this service is an attempt to provide a vehicle for this. The communion service on October 18 will be conducted by Dr. Roderic Murray.

On Thursday mornings at 8:40 a.m. a twenty-minute chapel service will be held. Many faculty members and students have regretted the lack of a regular week-day service in the college schedule. This service may help partially to fill this vacuum. Dean Carolyn Blair will conduct the service on Thursday, October 19. All students and faculty are urged to make use of these services, as well as the Sunday vesper services.

For the immediate future the schedule of services at Maryville College will be as follows:

Sunday — 7:00 p.m. — Vespers — Little Chapel (main chapel on first Sunday of each month)
Wednesday — 7:00 a.m. — Holy Communion — Little Chapel
Thursday — 8:40 a.m. — Chapel Service — Little Chapel

SPORTS

Randy-Mac snaps winning streak

Phyllis Garner

Saturday the Maryville football team fell victim to Randolph-Macon in a highly controversial contest. This 18-12 defeat dashed the Scots' hopes for an undefeated season, leaving them with a 3-1 record.

The scoring opened with a Maryville touchdown. A long march down the field ended with a 6-yard pass from Joe Costner to right end Don Scott. Maryville led 6-0.

Randolph-Macon attempted to tie the score, but was forced to settle for a field goal. Yellowjacket Larry Wallace put through the 20-yarder, but the Scots were still in command, 6-3.

Then Costner fired a 57-yard bullet to speedy Mike Butler, who cashed it in for a Scot TD. As late as the end of the third quarter, Maryville retained an impressive 12-3 edge.

However, in the fourth quarter things changed greatly. A pass from Jay Tingle pulled the Yellowjackets within two points of the Scots, 12-10.

With only seconds left in the game, Tingle hurled a long ball in one last grab at victory. Defensive back Mike Threlkeld was in great position to intercept the football. However, he was nudged by receiver Larry Wallace, who made it a touchddown. A two-point conversion finalized the score at 18-12.

The last play was, of course, the center of the controversy over the accuracy of the officiating of the game. No penalty flags were thrown, and Randolph-Macon was awarded the game. Tears were shed, Yellowjacket jeers were thrown, and tempers exploded.

But even after the fury subsided the controversy remained. Coach Kardatzke had several comments to make about it. Although the Scots were not as sharp as they had been on previous outings, he feels they really deserved the victory.

Coach K, who is rarely critical of official decisions, said, in part, "I really feel we were cheated out of this one. I'm really sorry for the boys. I'm proud of the way they played."

Indeed, he should be. In this, their third consecutive road game, the Scots gave Randolph-Macon a hard time.

Running back Bill Baggett turned in 99 yards to take game rushing honors.

The offensive line did a fine job, allowing Costner to make good 18 completions, two of them netting touchdowns.

The defense, faced with their most formidable opponent in three weeks, held the Yellowjackets to 18 points, eight of those being questionable.

But, questions and all, the game is history, the books are closed on it. The victory officially belongs to Randolph-Macon. There is, however, one optimistic note that should be made. A perfect season, although certainly desirable, is not a prerequisite for a berth in a bowl. Assuming that the Scots win the remainder of their games, their bowl chances are still good.

Game statistics:	R-M	MC
First downs	15	14
Passing yds.	110	200
Rushing yds	177	119
Passing	9-21-0	18-33-3
Punts	9-30.0 ave	7-32.5 ave

This weekend, as a part of homecoming activities, the Scots entertain Emory and Henry. The Maryville team seeks to avenge a 28-12 loss to the Wasps last year.

GRE dates announced

PRINCETON, N.J. — Educational Testing Service announced today that undergraduates and others preparing to go to graduate school may take the Graduate Record Examinations on any of six different test dates during the current academic year.

The first testing date for the GRE is October 28, 1972. Scores from this administration will be reported to the graduate schools around December 4. Students planning to register for the October test date are advised that applications received by ETS after October 3 will incur a $3.50 late registration fee. After October 10, there is no guarantee that applications for the October test date can be processed.

The other five test dates are December 9, 1972, January 20, February 24, (only the Aptitude Test is administered), April 28, and June 16, 1973. Equivalent late fee and registration deadlines apply to these dates. Choice of test dates should be determined by the requirements of graduate schools or fellowship sponsors to which one is applying. Scores are usually reported to graduate schools five weeks after a test date.

The Graduate Record Examinations include an Aptitude Test of general scholastic ability and Advanced Tests measuring achievement in 19 major fields of study. Full details and registration forms for the GRE are contained in the 1972-73 GRE Information Bulletin. The Bulletin also contains forms and instructions for requesting transcript service on GRE scores already on file with ETS. This booklet is available on most campuses or may be ordered from: Educational Testing Service, Box 955, Princeton, New Jersey 08540; Educational Testing Service, 1947 Center Street, Berkeley, California 94704; Educational Testing Service, 960 Grove Street, Evanston, Illinois 60201.

POLITICAL SCIENCE 201 QUESTIONNAIRE

1. Are you a faculty-staff member? ———
2. Are you a student? ———
3. What is your present class? ———
4. Will you be able to vote in the November 7 election? ———
5. What state do you plan to vote in? ———
6. If you plan to vote in Tennessee, what county do you plan to vote in? ———
7. If you are registered to vote in another state, do you have an absentee ballot? ———
8. If you will be able to vote in November, who do you plan to vote for? ——— Do you plan to vote? ———
9. Which party do you think has been damaged the most: the Republican Party due to the Watergate incident, or the Democratic Party due to the Eagleton Affair? ———

PLEASE RETURN THIS QUESTIONNAIRE TO THE BOX IN THE POST OFFICE BY OCTOBER 20.

The girls' shoes boys look at.

Hush Puppies BRAND SHOES

There's a lot to see in new Hush Puppies® shoes. Scene-stealing suedes and smooth leathers. Eye-opening shapes that tell him great things about you. They're sporty but feminine. And while they look costly, prices are budget-style. Very attractive. After all, Hush Puppies will be Hush Puppies® And boys will be boys.

$16.99

SOUTHERN SHOES

Midland Center Open 9:30 - 9:00

An unexpected child can really rock the cradle.

Photo by Rudolph Legname

Don't get us wrong.

We think children are priceless, too.

But if a child happens to be unplanned, it could mean financial pressures.

You see, a child is not just an extra mouth to feed. It's a whole other life to be provided for.

And that takes money.

Fact is, the cost to raise a child to age 18 ran around $25,000 (more for some, less for others, dependent on family income) in the mid-60's. And what inflation will do to the cost in the future is anybody's guess!

But no matter what the amount is, it's easy to see that the cost of rearing children is an economic reality one can't ignore. That is, if each child is to get what he or she deserves.

Which is why we advise every couple to plan how many children they want. And when they want them: when they can be a welcome addition rather than an accidental burden.

Because, as we all know, it's awfully hard to give with a full heart when one's pockets are empty.

Planned Parenthood

Children by choice. Not chance.

For further information, write Planned Parenthood, Box 431, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Planned Parenthood is a national, non-profit organization dedicated to providing information and effective means of family planning to all who want and need it.

advertising contributed for the public good

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 6 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | Oct. 20, 1972

Christy Rogers as Eliza and Nancy McCleary as Mrs. Pearce in "My Fair Lady"

Theatre places tickets on sale

Tickets have now been placed on sale for the Maryville College Playhouse's production of "My Fair Lady." This musical play has had superlative praise and broken records for popularity throughout most of the world. The production of "My Fair Lady" will open at the Maryville College Playhouse Theatre on October 26, 27, 28 and 30, with curtain time being 8:15 p.m. each night.

This is the musical by Alan Jay Lerner, with music by Frederick Lowe, based on George Bernard Shaw's witty fable "Pygmalion," that tells about a gutter girl turned into a beautiful woman by a cocky phoenitcs professor to win a bet — which first entranced audiences in New York during an unprecedented run of six and a half years beginning in 1956, and then took a grip on the hearts of theatre goers in every major city of America, Europe, South America, South Africa and such scattered points as Tokyo, Tel Aviv and made them all exult with laughter.

Howard Welsh, a senior Speech major at the College, will be seen here as the short tempered, self centered bachelor professor, who will sing of his passion for good diction in the famous "Why Can't the English Teach Their Children How to Speak?" and "I'm an Ordinary Man" (who doesn't want to "let a woman in his life") and "Why Can't a Woman Be More Like a Man?" To Mr. Welsh, who has appeared in a number of musicals on the campus such as "Man of La Mancha," "Hello, Dolly," and "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," in which he played Schroeder, falls another famous song hit, the grudging surrender to romantic feelings, the tuneful "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face."

Christy Rogers, another Speech major, will portray Eliza Doolittle, the role made famous by Julie Andrews. In this Cinderalla-like role Miss Rogers will have the chance to sing such notable songs as "The Rain in Spain" and the exhilarating "I Could Have Danced All Night," and to bite out aciduous "Just You Wait" (her longing for revenge on the teacher who so mercilessly presses her nose to the grindstone) and the imperious "Show Me," demanding an end of fruitless talk, and finally her lyrically sarcastic song of defiance, "I Can Do Without You."

Robert Hutchens, a graduate student from UT who has much experience in the area and appeared at Hunter Hills, Carousel and been active in Maryville Summer Playmouse in such shows as "Hello, Dolly," "The Boy Friend," and the lead in "The Music Man," will have the role of the slum girl's dissolute father who will sing the show much-favored Cockney songs with their heartiness of merrie England — "A Little Bit of Luck" and "Get Me to the Church on Time."

Seniors select Who's Who

Ten members of Maryville College's senior class have been chosen this week for the 1972-73 Who's Who. They were chosen on the bases of scholarship, leadership, and post-graduate potential by fellow seniors, the faculty, and the administrative staff of the college.

The honorees are:

Cathy Lynn Bates; Sociology, Louisville, Kentucky.

Mark Wellington Brookes; Physical Education, Haddam, Conn.

Nancy Katherine Gamble; English, Maryville, Tennessee.

Lydia Alice Hook; Psychology, Knoxville, Tennessee.

Martha Jo McCoy; History, Kingsport, Tennessee.

Randall Gene Minor; Political Science, Jacksonville, Florida.

Freddie Wayne Rhodes; History, Columbia, Tennessee.

Patti June Shelton; Political Science, Adamsville, Tennessee.

Dale Allen White; Music, Wayne, Pennsylvania.

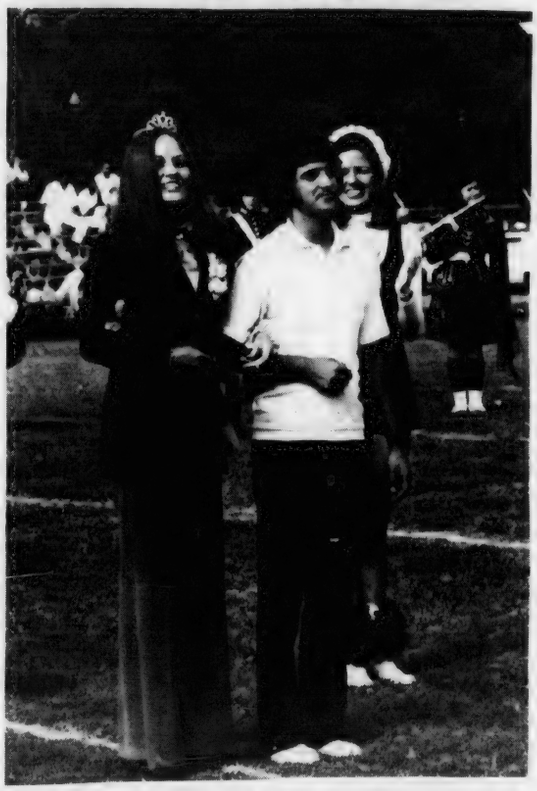
Delores Jane Ziegler; Music, Maryville, Tennessee.

The third and last of three showings of the 30-minute color film n Senator George McGovern will be Friday afternoon, October 20, at 3:40 in the faculty lounge of the Student Center. Faculty and students are urged to attend.

Homecoming fills weekend

Maryville College Homecoming 1972 began with a pep rally at 7:30 p.m. Friday. The remainder of the night and the wee hours of Saturday morning were spent in feverish construction of floats. The finished products of the night's vigil were displayed in the Homecoming parade through Nowtown beginning at 10:30 a.m. The organizations participating in the float competiton were Class of '76, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia and Delta Omicron, Willard House, Crawford House, Kappa Phi and Chi Beta, and Theta Epsilon.

Two continuing education seminars met from 9:00 to 10:30 Saturday morning. Dr. David Young of the Chemistry Department and Claude Stewart of the Philosophy and Religion Department led a seminar entitled "A New World in the Morning? The Promise and Threat of Reshaping Man." Dr. Robert Braid of the Political Science Department and Dr. Wallace Lewis of the History Department conducted a seminar entitled "Election '72 - What Happens When You Get a Choice Not an Echo?"



Highlight of the weekend was the football contest on Saturday afternoon which saw the Scots squash the Wasps of Emory and Henry 49-12. The Scots dominated the game from the first, scoring two quick touchdowns and then continuing to roll up points, capitalizing on Emory and Henry's numerous mistakes.

Halftime festivities began with the fine performance of the Highlander Band, majorettes and drill team. President Copeland and Lindy Harris, 1971-72 Homecoming Queen, crowned Delores Zeigler Homecoming Queen for 1972-73. The members of her court are Cathy Bates, Nancy Gamble, Martha McCoy, and Kathy Mayurnik.

Crawford House won First Prize of $100 in the float competition, with Willard House capturing Second Prize and Freshman Class securing Third Prize. Davis Dorm (Dorm II); was selected as being the best decorated dorm.

Injured end Randy Minor was honored during halftime with the presentation of the game football from the Georgetown game, in which he was instrumental in walloping the Georgetown team 36-6.

Following the game students, alumni and guests enjoyed a barbeque supper. The Homecoming weekend concluded with a dance Saturday night featuring Rich Mountain Tower.

Delores Ziegler, homecoming queen

Next CIV to feature Mrs. Gore

The CIV schedule for next week offers a unique, and, in this case, unexpected opportunity for MC to hear two opposing political viewpoints back to back. As part of a series in which the CIV committee has attempted to present current issues to the campus. Ms Pauline Gore will speak on Wednesday at the regular CIV time.

Unfortunatey, the Echo was unable to obtain any great amount of information on Ms. Gore prior to printing deadline. She is the wife of Albert Gore who served as the senior Senator from Tennessee (D) for many years and was defeated by Bill Brock (R) in 1970.

Ms. Gore is also a noted lawyer and, in addition to speaking for the 1972 Democratic candidates, he will explain something about her position as corporation counselor.

Bonham presents recital tonight

Robert John Bonham, pianist and assistant professor of music, will present a recital tonight in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall at 8:15 p.m.

Mr. Bonham grew up in India, where his parents were medical missionaries. There he attended the Woodstock School, where he received outstanding achievement awards.

His Bachelor of Music degree is from Phillips University, and his Master of Music degree is from the University of Kansas. Among his teachers were Madame Angelica Morales of Sauer, Alexander Fiorillo, and Lili Kraus.

For the past six years Mr. Bonham has taught piano, music history and styles at Maryville. He has also worked with children at the College's Environmental Education Center at Tremont, leading them to discover music in the environment.

Recently he served as a visiting consultant at an environmental awareness workshop sponsored by Eastern Kentucky University. In addition, he presented a recital at Milligan College as part of the college's 1972-73 Concert Series.

Mr. Bonham's program will include the Bach Italian Concerto, the Mozart D major Sonata, K. 576, the Schubert Fantasy in C (The Grazer Fantasie), the Bartok Improvisations, the Chopin B minor sonata, and a work by Roger Hannay (of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill), "The Episodic Refraction," for piano and tape.

Langston donates Pearsons gift

The Maryville College Administration has announced, and the College's Board of Directors has acknowledged, the receipt last Friday of a generous gift from Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd H. Langston of Rumson, New Jersey. The gift is of farm property near Atlanta, Georgia, and is valued at $150,000. It will be used to help pay for the reconstruction of Pearsons Hall.

Dr. Langston, a 1913 graduate of the college, was for many years for the secretary for Standard & Poor. Mrs. Langston, currently a member of Maryville College's Board of Directors, was formerly the academic dean for the Katharine Gibbs School. Presently they are retired and reside in Rumson.

Editorial

Inward reflection : a vital part of homecoming

The great Homecoming weekend has once again visited our generally sedate campus, with the effect of transforming some students and faculty, not to mention alumni, into pom-pom waving, float-building, cheering children. Is this what we want to come home to?

Speaking for myself, such activity has not been the high spot in my college career, and it is not what I want to find, should I happen to pay a visit to Maryville sometime after graduation.

Homecoming should be a renewing of old friendships, becoming, at least for a few days, a part of campus life again, although, once we leave, we can never really come back.

A weekend such as Homecoming gives us a chance to try to recapture what might be called "our lost youth," something that we lost in leaving college. We can forget what goes on in the cold, hard world and just for a moment be students again.

If cheering on the home team is what it takes for most people to get back nto college life, then let football go on, with all our blessings. But coming home to Maryville for me will be a much greater experience, hopefully bringing some inward peace and a vague and fond remembrance of what it was all about.

College names Couzens to admissions position

Matthew C. Couzens has been ssistant Director of Admissions at Maryville College. Couzens comes to Maryville from Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J., where he served as Assistant to the Director of Admissions.

A native of Boston, Couzens attended Browne and Nichol School in Cambridge and Mount Hermon School in Northfield. He received a B.A. in sociology from Rutgers where he is now completing work for a master's degree in education.

While he was an undergraduate student at Rutgers, Couzens was a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, co-chairman of the Rutgers-Douglass service board, captain of the hockey team, and participated in rugby, track and soccer.

In his position as Assistant Director of Admissions at Maryville, Couzens will work closely with the Dean of Student Relations and the admissions counselors in seeking out and recruiting students for Maryville College.

Commenting on the appointment, President Joseph J. Copeland said, "Maryville College is fortunate to find someone with Matt Couzen's background and ability to fill this important position."

Mrs. Couzens (Donna) is a graduate of Douglass College where she majored in home economics. The Couzens have one daughter, Kathryn, born August 27. They are now at home in Maryville.

Worship expands

On Sunday, October 22 at 7:00 p.m. Sue Sterling will lead the Vespers service of songs and prayers.

On Wednesday, October 25 at 7:00 a.m. Dr. Roderic Murray will conduct the Holy Communion service.

On Thursday, October 26 t 8:40 a.m. the Chapel Service will be led by Victor Schoen.

The Echo accepts Letters to the Editor provided they are signed and submitted to Box 2820 by noon on Monday. No anonymous letters will be published.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 6 Oct. 20, 1972

editor — Carla Hulce
faculty advisor — Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
business manager — Allen Bunge
lay-out editor — Sarah Winbigler

The HIGHLAND ECHO is printed by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

"Madrigals:" meeting of medias

"We search and find:
The Universe has not beer waiting
On our entrances and exits.
It celebrates us not or weeps at our demise..."
Ray Bradbury. From the test of "Madrigals For The Space Age."

At last week's CIV the audience was conducted on a tour of the Space Age when they watched the program "Madrigals For the Space Age," - a work by Lalo Schifrin and Ray Bradbury that was commissioned in 1970 by the Sinfonia Foundation for premiere at Phi Mu Alpha's 1972 Regional Convention to inagurate the observance of the fraternity's Diamond Anniversary Year, 1972-73.

Only raves can be given to all participants in this program. The Maryville Concert Choir, directed by Harry H. Harter and accompanied by Robert Bonham, were as usual, great. Although some of the sound and words were lost because of their positon on the stage, they took the unusual music of Schifrin and set a perfect background for the dancers and the narrator.

Mr. Blair Beasley, new faculty member in the Speech-Theatre department, was the tour guide. With his voice he took us through Space – "Dark rock on flint on stone..The empty Universe..."

Kudos for the evening to to CherylVanMetre, choreographer and David Barker, light designer. Mr. Van Metre and her troupe of dancers never cease to amaze me. The dancers and Mr. Barker's beautifully synchronized lighting were the most impressive segment of the evening.

If you did not attend last Thursday's CIV you probably missed one of the most unique CIV's this year–not only because of its length, (twenty-five minutes) but its message and entertainment value.

"So ...we must hear ourselves.
Make answer, touch and give
The gifts of fire that in our warm bloods live...
Knowledge is our burden, but our grace,
And making it a joke, we move in Space."

Platform committee discusses election

The first CIV in November will provide MC students with an opportunity to hear and debate the prominent issues in this year's elections. Dr. Robert Braid's political parties class has set up a platform committee with Lorrie Willey as chairman. The members of the committee represent both parties and will present the issues from the point of view of their particular candidate.

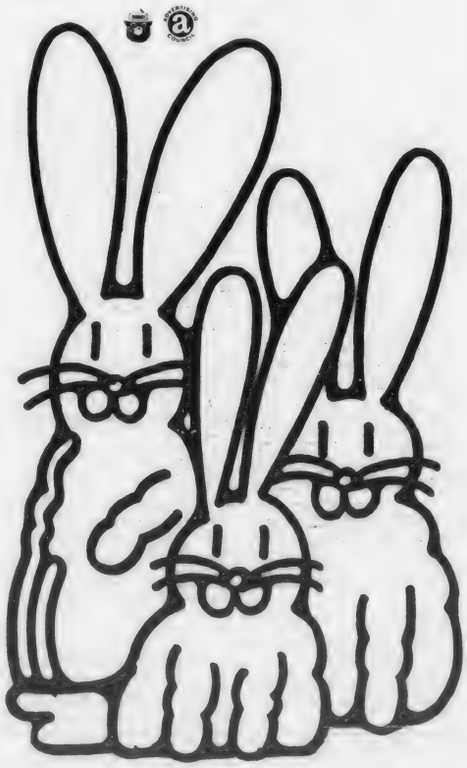
Prior to this CIV the committee will hold meetings on campus to determine which issues should be discussed and to what extent an issue should be dealt with. The success of venture depends greatly on the interest of the student body in knowing who and what they are voting for. If there are subjects which you feel should be brought up, bring them to the attention of the committee. This program will also give the students an opportunity to speak up at CIV concerning the issues raised. Become involved in this phase of political education so your first vote will count for something besides which lever is closest to your right hand.

Involvement: necessary, worthwhile investment

With every Presidential election year comes the question of voter registration, and with the question of voter registration comes the question of apathy. Those of us in an academic environment face this question in two ways; our involvement in the academic community and our greater involvement in the world as a whole.

There have been some students at Maryville who have been actively involved in this election, or in campus activities, or both, and while I may not necessarily agree with them, I applaud their involvement.

There are, unfortunately, many more students who do not take the time or the trouble to even get interested, much less involved, in what's going on.



There is, of course, the issue of time. We are here primarily as students, teachers, or administrators, and our first responsibility must be to those jobs.

But involvement can surface in many ways; a well timed letter to this paper (we do print them), talking to other people, or in an election year, quietly supporting your candidate by perhaps wearing one of his campaign buttons.

When involvement really takes as little time as that, there is really no excuse for not getting involved. I am not as active as I should be, none of us are. But we all have an obligation to strive to become more involved.

Forest fires burn more than trees.

They kill life. Of all kinds, of all ages. When fire sweeps through a forest, it spares nothing.
And nothing is all that remains.
Only you can prevent forest fires.

Only you can prevent forest fires.

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

U.S. may finally ratify genocide treaty

WASHINGTON - Year after year for nearly a quarter of a century now, the United States Senate has avoided even voting on ratification of the United Nations Genocide Convention, the 1948 treaty which provides for the prevention and punishment of the international crime of genocide.

Although the United States pushed hard for the original resolution adopted unanimously by the United Nations General Assembly and now ratified by 75 countries, we are also the most prominent U.N. member which has failed to approve this declaration of basic human justice.

The treaty was first sent to the Senate by President Harry S. Truman on June 16, 1949; it hs been languishing in the Foreign Relations Committee for 24 years, held up principally because the America Bar Association has until now refused to support it.

But a recent A.B.A Journal article by former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg and Columbia Univesity law professor Richard Gardner strongly attacked the organization's long-standing opposition to the treaty. That article, coupled with renewed support for ratification from the President and the efforts of a bi-partisan group of influential senators (led by Javits, Proxmire, Church and Scott), has raised cautious hopes that the matter might be brought to a vote this year.

Not unti the end of World War II did the international community discover the full measure of depravity which ruled the mind of Hitler and the actions of his Nazi regime. When allied troops marched into Germany and the world could no longer ignore the Nazis' methodical attempt to destroy an entire people, support for a genocide pact for the first time solidified within the international community.

Although there has never before or since been a crime so heinous in nature and so incomprehensible in dimensions as the slaughter of the Jews, nevertheless recent events in Bangladesh and Uganda show that genocide remains an international problem of serious dimensions. And for the United States to continue ignoring its responsibility to join the civilized world in ratifying the genocide treaty raises questions both here and abroad about our commitment to human justice at its most primary level.

Those doubts, which have lingered now for nearly 25 years, should not be permitted to continue any longer.

Voters examine the issues

For the benefit of first-time voters at Maryville College, the Highland Echo has compiled a series of excerpts from the Democratic and Republican platforms adopted at their national conventions in July and August, respectively.

Statements of policy regarding specific issues are put in parallel columns so that voters may compare the stands of the two major parties and decide which party offers te program which coincides most nearly with the voters' own wishes.

On some issues a remarkable similarity mav be noted between the two declared platforms; on other issues the lifference is clear. Certainly all voters will keep in mind the fact that no presidential candidate will be able to do all that is promised; but the direction can be determined and the course at least charted.

Republican

LABOR RELATIONS

We regard collective bargaining as the cornerstone of the Nation's labor relations policy. The government's role is not to encroach upon this process but rather to aid the differing parties to make collective bargaining more effective both for themselves and for the public. We will continue to search for realistic and fair solutions to emergency labor disputes, aided by two basic principles: first, that the health and safety of the people of the United States should always be paramount; and second, that collective bargaining should be kept as free as possible from government interference.

BUSING

We are committed to guaranteeing equality of educational opportunity and to completing the process of ending de jure school segregation.

At the same time, we are irrecocably opposed to busing for racial balance. Such busing fails its stated objectives–improved learning opportunities – while it achieves results no one want–divison within communities and hostility between classes and races. We regard it as unnecessary, counter-productive and wrong.

RURAL LIFE

We pledge to intensify our efforts to: achieve a $10 billion annual export market by opening new foreign markets, while continuing to fight for fair treatment for American farm products in our raditional markets; keep farm prices in the private sector, not subject to price controls; support family farms as the preferred method of organizing agricultural production, and protect them from the unfair competition of farming by tax-loss corporations and non-farm enterprises..We will not relax our efforts to increase net farm income, to narrow the spread between farm and non-farm income levels, and to pursue commodity programs that will enable farmers and ranchers to receive fair prices for what they produce.

GUN CONTROL

We pledge to intensify efforts to prevent criminal access to all weapons, including special emphasis on cheap, readily-obtainable handguns, retaining primary responsibility at the state level, with such federal law as necessary to enable the states to meet their responsibilities. We pledge to safeguard the right of responsible citizens to collect, own and use firearm for legitimate purposes...We will strongly support efforts of all law enforcement agenicies to apprehend and prosecute to the limit of the law all those who use firearms in the commission of crimes.

AMNESTY

Here and now we reject all proposals to grant amnesty to those who have broken the law by evading military service. We reject the claim that those who fled are more deserving, or obeyed a higher morality, than those next in lie who served in their places.

Democratic

LABOR RELATIONS

We pledge continued support for our system of free collective bargaining and denounce any attempt to substitute compulsory arbitration for it. We, therefore, oppose the Nixon Administration's effort to impose arbitration in transportation disputes through its last-offer-selection bill. The National Lab of Relations Act should be up-dated to ensure: repeal of section 14 (b), which allows states to legislate the open shop and remove the ban on common-sites picketing; and effective opportunities for unions, as well as employers, to communicate with employees, without coercion by either side or by anyone acting on their behalf.

BUSING

We support the goal of desegregation as a means to achieve equal access to quality education for all our children . There are many ways to desegregate schools; transportation of students is one tool to accomplish desegregation. It must continue to be available according to Supreme Court decisions to eliminate legally imposed segregation and improve the quality of education for all children.

RURAL LIFE

We will replace the 1970 Farm Act, when it expires next year, with a permanent law to provide fair prices to family type farm and ranch operators. This law will include loans and payments to farmers and effective supply management to raise family farm income to 100 per cent of parity, based on he 1910-14 ratios. We will resist a price ceiling on agriculture products until farm prices reach 110 per cent of parity, based on the 1910-14 ratios. We will end farm program benefits to farm units larger than family-size; and we will work for production adjustment that will assure adequate food and fiber for all our peple, including low-income families and individuals whose purchasing power is supplemented with food stamps.

GUN CONTROL

There must be laws to control the improper use of hand guns. Four years ago a candidate for the Presidency was slain by a hand gun. Two months ago, another candidate for the office as gravey wounded. Three out of four police officers killed in the line of duty are slain with hand guns. Effective legislation must include a ban on sale of hand guns known as Saturday night specials which are unsuitable for sporting purposes.

AMNESTY

To those who for reasons of conscience refused to serve in this war and were prosecuted or sought refuge abroad, we state our firm intention to declare an amnesty, on an appropriate basis, when the fighting has ceased and our troops and prisoners of war have returned.

Young speaks to college chemists

Dr. David P. Young, chairman of Maryville College's Department of Chemistry, spoke to the South Central Independent College Association of Chemists at Lincoln Memorial University recently on "A New Dawn in Science Studies at Maryville College."

Dr. Young said the new science program at Maryville is designed for students with a commitment toward getting involved in the measures necessary for improvements in the quality of life in our society.

"Maryville College's mandate," he said, "is to bring the student into contact with that information necessary to devise a cogent and challenging framework of change and possibility."

Dr. Young said the ultimate goal of an education is to be in better position to be involved and to act.

"To deal with our scientific and technological problems requires the poet or businessman as much as the basic scientist," he said.

Dr. Young said the basic goal of Maryville's science programs is to create a vehicle for the communication necessary for this task.

Easing beauty's burden- hints for unfortunates

By Erma Q. Zingdip

The other night I read one of the saddest stories I've run across in a long time. Jacqueline Bisset, the beautiful actress in "Airport," said that "being beautiful is hell."

She also said that all the great part were going to ordinary, plain girls with flat chests, stringy hair and mournful expressions. Couldn't you just cry?

I know what she is talking about. It is simply miserable being just another pretty face with no one to whistle at you, blow horns when you cross the street or try to rip your clothes off in a theater lobby. You have to tell yourself that some are born with a Dresden face and a breath-taking body and others are just born lucky.

I overcame my handicap well, so I thought I ought to give Jacqueline some advice on how to live with her beauty.

First, you must develop a philosophical attitude — just paste a picture of a movie star on your refrigerator and say to it every day, "Take away your greasy hair, bags under your eyes, no-bosom and your guitar and what have you got? A person just like me."

Then you have to get used to standing in a corner at parties while men crowd around the uglies and hear your brother say, "Give Sis a chance. She may look beautiful, but underneath she has a rotten personality. After you're with her for a while, you won't even notice her flawless skin, her sparkling green eyes and her pageant-built body."

You have to adjust to mothers who keep nagging, "Why don't you do something with your hair–like not combing it? You don't try. You could look tacky like the rest of the girls if you'd give up lipstick and go barefoot."

Men being the way they are, you're going to have to fight your way up the ladder of success. The best jobs will go to thin, shapeless, starved, homely girls because they're the kind men want around just to dress up the office.

It won't be easy, Jacqueline. You'll have to be smarter, brighter and more alert than your homely sister to make your mark. But remember, "Beauty is only skin deep, but homeliness goes all the way to the bone."

If you notice, men always go out with the homely, unkempt, shapeless girls, but when it comes to marrying, they always pick a beautiful, well-stacked girl to settle down with. There is no handicap too big to overcome.

SPORTS

Scots flatten Wasps, score homecoming win

Saturday the Scots made mincemeat of the Emory and Henry Wasps, shoving a 49-12 defeat in their faces.

A combination of talent and good breaks made it possible for the Scots to up their record to 4-1. Emory and Henry is now 3-3.

The first play of the game set the mood for the afternoon romp. A block by Rodney Stephens set up a 97-yard runback by fleet-footed Mike Butler.

Two plays later runningback Bill Baggett crashed in from the one for six points. The extra point failed, but Maryville led, 6-0.

Moments later, Joe Costner connected with Mike Butler for a touchdown. A faked extra point turned into a two-point conversion. Leon Hart took the snap from Bill Nuss and threw it to Robert Callaway in the end zone. The margin widened, 14-0.

Another pass to Butler was good for six points. Scoring this time from the four, the Scots scooted the score up. Glenn White's extra point made it 21-0.

Still another time before the half ended, Costner chalked up another TD pass, throwing to Dean Harden. White made his second extra point of the day to make the score 28-0. This is how it stood at the half.

The third quarter belonged entirely to the Scots. Several Wasp bumbles deep in their own territory set up the scene for Maryville's offensive unit to take over. Before the quarter ended, the Scots had scored three times.

The first of these three came on a one-yard plunge by Callaway. White made the conversion and the score was 35-0.

The next trip into the end zone was a solo flight by quarterback Costner — a 28-yard run. White booted yet another extra point; 42-0.

Still another Costner pass brought the final Scot score. The toss to Dean Harden was good for twenty-five yards and six points. As the third quarter ended the Scots still had the Wasps blanked, 49-0.

At this point, Coach Kardatzke pulled out his first string and allowed reserves to play the remainder of the game. During this final period Emory and Henry scored their only points.

The Wasps' first connection came on a one-yard run by John Bartee, their leading ball carrier. Quarterback Greg Harvey attempted a passing conversion, but was hampered by Scot defenders.

Final scoring came on a Harvey pass to Dan Frye. This seven-yarder made the score 49-12. Another pass attempt was broken up. Maryville won convincingly, 49-12.

Maryville's defense was really on its toes through the game, pouncing on Wasp field mistakes. Hart and Mike Threlkeld both claimed Harvey passes. Steve Prochaska led the way in fumble recoveries, grabbing two. David Warwick and Jack Boone also turned in good days, just to mention a few more.

It was also quite evident just how valuable an experienced offensive line really is. Anchored by four-year starter Dan Blevens, ours really did a great job, protecting the quarterback.

Costner, by the way, made good his seventeenth touchdown pass in five games, completing 17 of 32 attempts.

Mike Butler turned in another fine game, catching six passes and piling up return yardage. Dean Harden, playing tight end, made several brilliant catches, two of them good for touchdowns.

Phil Zigler suffered an injury to his knee in the game. Torn cartlidge may have him sidelined for a week or so, hopefully no longer.

Game Statistics

	MC	E&H
First downs	12	19
Yards Passing	222	220
Yards Rushing	84	114
Passes	17-36-4	17-35-2
Punts	8-32.4 ave.	8-32.0 ave.

This week the Scots entertain Bridgewater College.

Action during Saturday's homecoming game

GRE dates announced

PRINCETON, N.J. — Educational Testing Service announced today that undergraduates and others preparing to go to graduate school may take the Graduate Record Examinations on any of six different test dates during the current academic year.

The first testing date for the GRE is October 28, 1972. Scores from this administration will be reported to the graduate schools around December 4. Students planning to register for the October test date are advised that applications received by ETS after October 3 will incur a $3.50 late registration fee. After October 10, there is no guarantee that applications for the October test date can be processed.

The other five test dates are December 9, 1972, January 20, February 24, (only the Aptitude Test is administered), April 28, and June 16, 1973. Equivalent late fee and registration deadlines apply to these dates. Choice of test dates should be determined by the requirements of graduate schools or fellowship sponsors to which one is applying. Scores are usually reported to graduate schools five weeks after a test date.

The Graduate Record Examinations include an Aptitude Test of general scholastic ability and Advanced Tests measuring achievement in 19 major fields of study. Full details and registration forms for the GRE are contained in the 1972-73 GRE Information Bulletin. The Bulletin also contains forms and instructions for requesting transcript service on GRE scores already on file with ETS. This booklet is available on most campuses or may be ordered from: Educational Testing Service, Box 955, Princeton, New Jersey 08540; Educational Testing Service, 1947 Center Street, Berkeley, California 94704; Educational Testing Service, 960 Grove Street, Evanston, Illinois 60201.

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES

on Highway 73 in Townsend

ANNOUNCING VERY SPECIAL RATES TO M.C. STUDENTS

on overnight pack trips & ½-day rides.

Open weekends and weekdays by appointment.

CALL 448-6411

Butler displays pass-catching style

MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE

presents

The Century's Greatest Musical Hit

MY FAIR LADY

Adapted from Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion

Book and Lyrics By ALAN JAY LERNER

Music by FREDERICK LOEWE

October 26, 27, 28 & 30

8:15 p.m. $2.00

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 7 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | Oct. 27, 1972

Science-technology class explores survival issues

Patti Shelton

The first time I was invited to Dr. Young's Science and Technology class, which, by the way, does not meet if only the class members are present, I thought, "Right, I'm really going to go to an extra class!" But being at least part masochist, I relented. Prep for the discussion involved introducing me to some ideas from "Limits to Growth, A Report for the Club of Rome's Project on the Predicament of Mankind" and reacting to these statements and plans. I managed to retain the usual cool, intellectual objectivity reserved for world crisis throughout the prep session. Then I went to the class.

By the end of that hour and ten minutes not only was my objectivity completely blown but my mental hand was hovering over the panic button. We discussed the immediacy of the dangers of over-consumption and non-renewable resources and we attempted an attack on the sacred citadel of human values, an attempt which threatened the hell out of the humans sitting at that table. Optimism was not the order of the day, yet rational thought compelled me to admit that I wasn't ready to give up — yet.

In the intervening weeks between that first session and my next visit my fantastic repression mechanism allowed me to think of our discussion only rarely, although I did begin to read "Limits to Growth" for myself. The next time I went the discussion was to be on three science fiction works: Huxley's "Brave New World" and "Tower of Glass" and "The World Inside," both by Robert Silverburg. How bad could that be? Ha!

The ideas introduced this time were no less disturbing, if a little less immediate. As before I was struck with the instructor's efforts to encourage us to see that change will take place and on us rests the responsibility of the nature of this change. We looked at those books not as modern horror tales but as possible blueprints for viable alternative life-styles. We discussed power and control and those who will have the power to control. This time the thoughts were not so easily pushed from mind as I left the room. The ultimate confrontation was yet to come.

The next two books to be discussed by the class are B. F. Skinner's "Beyond Freedom and Dignity" and "Without Marx or Jesus" by Jean-Francois Revel

Dr. Young felt that if they were to go on discussing man's plight and future the class must first deal with their own view of man. Meanwhile, back in the real world, technology let us down and the power in Sutton went out thrusting all of science into darkness. Dr. Young's class met, with the aid of six small candles and a large red scented one, to discuss views of Man.

Dr. Young began by throwing out some ideas on Man by writers and philosophers. Then the students took over. We talked about words that are significant in a view of Man, words like change, freedom, truth, conflict and about absolutes, individual and collective. For the first time, perhaps, many of us were confronted with our attitudes and appraisals of the people around us, and, ultimately, of ourselves.

This class could have been an exercise in rhetoric of the harbinger variety — it wasn't. It was a means through which a few people became aware of the great challenge life is and will continue to be. Perhaps the course as a whole is threatening but it is not despairing; it is motivating and vital. The class usually meets on the regular D hour schedule, Room 115 Sutton, although there are time and location changes occasionally. They will be discussing Skinner, Revel and Mankind for the next few weeks so if you're interested in being exposed to a lot of new ideas and some old ones revisited talk to Dr. Young or the students. Members of the class are: Ted Stewart, Bryan Finklestein, Neva Parker, Tom Martin, Todd Trumbore, Steve Mallinson, Chuck Sedgwick, Doug Griest and Paul Lefkowitz.

Old harp singers perform Sunday

The Knox County Old Harp Singers will be at Maryville College Sunday, October 29, for a sing. The program will be in the lobby of Wilson Chapel and will begin at 2:00 p.m. Old Harp singing, prevalent today in East Tennessee, Virginia and Kentucky, is part of America's folk music heritage. Many of our most popular folk hymns such as "Amazing Grace" originated from this type of singing.

People often wonder where the name "Old Harp Singers" came from since no harp or other instrument is used during the singing. Generally the name came from the song books they used, "The Sacred Harp" and "The Harp of Columbia," which was published in Knoxville in 1849. Both books are still used and are continuously being revised. The main characteristic in Old Harp song books is no key signatures. The shape of the note signifies the pitch.

Old Harp singers always are seated in a square with the conductor standing in the center. As the singers become experienced they are called on to conduct, and often more than one person conducts a song. Come along and sing with them.

Community Outreach

Opportunity to become involved in community service has been given to every student on the Maryville College campus. Students recorded their interest in specific projects on sign-up sheets posted at various places on the campus. Those who failed to sign up but still wish to demonstrate their concern for others may contact Mrs. Herma Cate or Carol Wylie, the co-chairmen of the Community Outreach Committee, or the following individuals:

Sue Sterling - Parkside; Harriette Berg-babysitting; Jean McArthur and Randy Minor-volunter services; Barbara Sanderson-visitation; Arthur Fowler-tutoring; Philip Dreety-arts and crafts; Sue Sterling and Charles Hill-music and special programs.

Ms. Gore speaks at CIV Wednesday

Last Wednesday's CIV represented another step in the CIV committee's effort to present the MC students with the issues in this election year. Ms. Pauline Gore, wife of former Tennessee senator Albert Gore and member of Nashville and D. C. law firms, spoke in behalf of the Democratic party's candidates and presidential candidate Senator George McGovern.

Ms. Gore began her speech by stating that all social reforms enacted in the U.S. have been proposed under Democratic administrations, usually with great opposition from GOP leaders.

She progressed from this statement to an attack on the "clouds of doubt" surrounding the campaigns this year. Citing the era of Joseph McCarthy as a parallel, Ms. Gore deplored the use of slush funds for campaign sabotage, the secrecy surrounding campaign funds and most all, the continuing expenditures for military build-up, particularly in the case of Vietnam.

Following Ms. Gore's brief talk the usual time was given over for questions. Unfortunately there seemed to be few students interested in questioning the speaker about issues; most seemed to prefer to use this time to air their own artisan beliefs. Ms. Gore closed the CIV by appealing to the young voters present to follow their own consciences in their choice of candidates.

Ms. Gore fielding questions at CIV

Platform committee discusses election

The first CIV in November will provide MC students with an opportunity to hear and debate the prominent issues in this year's elections. Dr. Robert Braid's political parties class has set up a platform committee with Lorrie Willey as chairman. The members of the committee represent both parties and will present the issues from the point of view of their particular candidate.

Prior to this CIV the committee will hold meetings on campus to determine which issues should be discussed and to what extent an issue should be dealt with. The success of venture depends greatly on the interest of the student body in knowing who and what they are voting for. If there are subjects which you feel should be brought up, bring them to the attention of the committee. This program will also give the students an opportunity to speak up at CIV concerning the issues raised. Become involved in this phase of political education so your first vote will count for something besides which lever is closest to your right hand.

Pearsons report heard by few

Michael Montgomery

The College's first townhall meeting of the year was called for last Wednesday and was presented following CIV that morning. The session was sparsely attended.

ACC co-chairwoman Alice Hook called the meeting to order and announced that on the agenda were three items: a report to the community on the progress of Pearsons Hall reconstruction, an announcement of the addition of freshman members to many All-College Council comittees, and a summary of the activities of Board of Directors' activities.

Presenting the Pearsons report were Vaughan Kennedy and Todd Trumbore, two student members of the ACC. They outlined the structure and new facilities of the remodeled building, in which air conditioning will be installed.

While describing the potential use of second-floor suites for married students and the partitioning of the dining hall in order to utilize the back portion of it as a banquet room in the future, they explained that the basic structure of the building was being repaired and that massive remodeling was not being done.

It was mentioned that the first floor lobby, while receiving its own lady's room, would be designed to be suitable for student art and other exhibits.

The living capacity of the dormitory, whose fourth floor will not be restored, will be about 74 persons. Construction work will be completed, according to Dr. Copeland, "well before school is out" next spring.

Concerning freshman involvement in ACC committee, Ms. Hook stated that, following orientation, many of the new students requested to work on the various committees.

The summary of Board activities was presented by Dr. Copeland. After personally commenting on each of the eight new Board members, he listed what occupied the Board's time:

(1) Dean Blair's report of Instructional Programming Committee considerations and other academic matters;

(2) Projection of enrollment at the college for the next three years (full-time enrollment to be 770 in '73 - '74, 845 in '74-'75, 912 in '75-'76) and decisons to maintain the college's current admission standards;

(3) Approval of a new $5,775,000 three-year development plan for the college to retire present debt and upgrade the academic life of the college;

(4) Approval of the 1972-73 budget of $2.890,000;

(5) Approval of a new deferred-gifts program;

In regards to the ombudsman proposal submitted to the Board, Dr. Copeland announced that the Administrative Council of the Board, which handles matters in the interim between general Board meetings, would consider the matter in the near future.

Editorial

Meal card issue accents ACC flaws

Often we hear complaints that the form of government we have chosen to use on this campus, the All-ollege ouncil, fails to incorporate student wishes into its decisions, or that it fails to do anything at all.

Therefore it was with a small sigh of relief that we received the news that the A, fearing student revolt (i.e., the burning of meal cards), had abolished the practice of presenting flimsy little tickets in order to receive food.

A sigh of relief, yes, but only a small one, because it seems to us rather unfortunate that student voices are heard only when they threaten violence (of a sort), or in matters of little importance to our general welfare.

Perhaps we are selfish in our desire to be heard; perhaps we do not know all the facts in every case, and are, therefore,not competent tojudge the wisdom or error of every decision made by the A.

But if the complaints are endless, and continually growing more vocal, is it not possible that there might be some basis for such happiness.

Once again we ask that student voices be heeded on matters that concern us all as a "community" not ust on trivial matters, and not only when we threaten to forego reasoning for direct and immediate action.

Changes in food services ignored

Sarah Winbigler
Linda Lou Blomeke

Once again, the Highland Echo is carrying complaints from students concerning the food service at Maryville College. These complaints raged all during last year and indeed, student dissatisfaction with food seems to have become a Maryville tradition.

Although some of these complaints may still be valid, a great many changes have been made, and these improvements have gone largely unnoticed or at least seemingly unappreciated by students. It is the purpose of this article to bring these changes to the students' attention.

The change which has proved to be most convenient for students but which was conversely become more of an inconvenience for the kitchen staff is the extended breakfast hour. This enables more students to enjoy a leisurely breakfast, yet it places a strain on the already overworked kitchen staff who must rush to have lunch prepared by 11:45.

Breakfast has also become more costly to prepare now that a larger number of students are taking advantage of it. In addition, a greater variety of foods is being served at breakfast which adds to the expense. The staff must also be paid for working longer hours.

Contrary to popular belief, Miss Ware was willing to implement these changes long ago but could not do so because of a lack of funds.

In an effort to please more students, new methods of food preparation have been put into effect. Most of the meats are being grilled rather than steamed, and this makes their preparation more time consuming. Different types of steaks are also being tested.

An especially nice touch which has been added tomeals this year is the raw vegetable trays. Students obviously appreciate this service — over a bushel of raw carrots are consumed per day. In another attempt to satiate the students' appetities, each person is allowed to take three milks at lunch.

In return for these services, the kitchen staff is asking for some cooperation from students. The staff asks that students be more considerate with the use of glasses at dinner. Instead of taking a new glass with each refill of tea, it would be helpful if the student would reuse his original glass.

Now that constructive changes in both the quantity and quality of food are being made, perhaps it is time for a change in students' attitudes. Before complaining about the food, students should take into consideration the problems involved in preparing food for a larger number of people.

Students must also realize that the money that have paid for board goes for salaries, equipment and materials as well as for the food itself.

Miss Ware has taken many gripes and complaints and is doing her best to satisfy students. Why not take a minute to complement her when you have enjoyed a meal? Everyone needs some encouragement and support sometimes.

guest editorial

Library hours pose problem

Michael Leaf

The current Library situation on this campus needs to be altered slightly to better serve the interests of the students. The main avenue of reform should come in the number of hours the library is open on weekends.

The weekday time schedule of our library is satisfactory. The hours are open enough so that all students can go when they so desire. However, the student who wants to go to the library on the weekend, particularly Sunday evening, is confronted by the closing time of five-thirty.

Sunday activity in the library is hectic, to say the least, and the four-and-a-half hour time limitation does not help the situation. But the question is raised, who will staff and run the library in these extra open hours? Where will the money come from to pay for this added staffing and operational cost. The answers seem obvious to me.

Students could be trained to run the library in these extra hours. They are quite capable of handling the situation. As for the money, the people working in the library would be paid like the personnel who work in the kitchen. There are many students on this campus who are in need of a job. Monies could come from the Treasure's office, like it does for all other campus-related jobs.

The problem is here, and a solution can be made. Will positive steps to be taken, or will this become just be another unheard request? To quote W. C. Fields: "There comes a time when you must take the bull by the tail and face the situation."

Leonard the leaf: a fable

By Erma Q. Zingdip

I was walking by Sutton Science Center the other day when I noticed a small impression of a leaf in one of the squares of concrete. It entranced me, so I tried to find out the story behind that small impression.

I asked the dogwood down the street if she knew anything about it. "Well, his name was Leonard. He was quite famous several years ago but I guess everyone has forgotten him." I asked her to tell me the story of Leonard.

"Leonard was a small leaf — in fact — unusually small. Leonard was born prematurely in March after his mother was in a hit and run accident with Frost. Leonard never was a very healthy green, he didn't photosynthesize well and he wasn't able to do the other things the big leaves were able to do.

I remember the day a talent scout named Wind came blowing into town. He was looking for someone to star in "O'Henry's The Last Leaf. Leonard was perfect for the part and that fall, after saying goodbye to everyone, he departed for Hollywood.

Leonard was a huge success and was even nominated for a special Oscar. Maryville College decided to have a celebration in his honor, so they decided to have him speak at a CIV. The very next Wednesday the whole community — after attending their A hour Classes — convened in the chapel. Leonard gave a fine speech and was given an honorary doctorate of biology.

In the tradition of Graumann's Chinese Restaurant, Maryville College poured a sidewalk and Leonard left his body print. I don't hear from him much but Mrs. Elm down the street said that he has been appointed to a special committee on the environment by the President."

"Now there is a fine story of success," I said. "Do you think there is a moral to be found in Leonard's story?"

"Of course, my child," the dogwood replied. "There is a moral in every story. I think Leonard would tell us 'Dare to strike out on your own and you might leave a lasting impression as I did.' Now if you will excuse me, I have a new family of robins moving in next spring and I must go clean out nest 3B."

SNEA hears TEA consultant

By Debbie Graham

The Maryville College Chapter of the Student National Education Association had Mrs. Charlene W. Collier as its guest speaker at its meeting on Wednesday, October 25, in Davis Hall lounge. Mrs. Collier is the Tennessee Education Association consultant to Student TEA and FTA (TEA is a statewide organization of professional teachers). The speaker explained her role as consultant, the activities TEA carries on to help teachers-in-training, services the classroom teachers receive as members of TEA and other topics related to her position.

If you are now in, or interested in majoring in secondary or elementary education, the Student NEA invites you to attend its monthly meetings. This organization for pre-professionals tries to participate in such programs as individual tutoring, being aides to Boy and Girl Scout troops, helping the student in education come in contact with children before actual student teaching and various other teaching-related activities. If this sounds interesting to you, please contact Debbie Graham, Box 2298, Claudia Pancoast, Box 2427 or Dr. Margaret Sherer, Box 2813.

— on ecology...

"I see we're down to the Twentieth Century."

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 7 Oct. 27, 1972

editor — Carla Hulce
faculty advisor — Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
business manager — Allen Bunge
lay-out editor — Sarah Winbigler

The HIGHLAND ECHO is printed by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

MC participates in Unicef drive

It is almost time for the annual UNICEF drive in Blount County. This year, under the leadership of Coralie Usrey, co-chairman of the Worship and Special Meetings Committee, Maryville College students will have an opportunity to participate in this Halloween event designed to gather money to help with food and medical supplies for needy children in the world.

There will be a sign-up sheet in the dining hall for volunteers who would be willing to help canvass on area of the city. Following the canvass, there will be hot chocolate and fellowship for all.

Jesus festival to be held today

For those looking for a different kind of religious experience, it can be found this afternoon at Courthouse Park. That will be the site of an all afternoon Jesus Festival that will begin at 1:30 and last until dark (about 8:00).

The festival will feature music provided by students, both from the college and the community, and various speakers from churches in the area. There will be food and beverages available at the park, and those attending are guaranteed a unique experience.

The Echo accepts Letters to the Editor provided they are signed and submitted to Box 2820 by noon on Monday. No anonymous letters will be published.

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

1972: new high in political low blows

WASHINGTON — It may be that the full scope of the intelligence activities carried out by employees of the Committee for the Re-election of the President will never come to light. Certainly, the details of the Watergate caper and related incidents are not likely to be sorted out prior to the election. And since the finality of the ballot box seems somehow to render unimportant even the stormiest of campaign antics, perhaps nothing much will ever come of the whole affair.

More, however, is to be hoped for. The activities with which the Republicans have been charged — and the Administration's own investigators apparently have confirmed that at least some of those charges are justified — are of a distinctly illegal shade. What is worse, some of those activities seem to have been carried off by, or at least with the knowledge of, rather high officials in the Republican scheme of things.

Politics, we all know, can be a dirty business. And precisely because we have come to expect questionable conduct during campaigns, there is a tendency to brush the whole matter aside as unworthy of serious attention.

It is a tendency we should resist. The Fair Campaign Practices Committee, which has been investigating complaints about dirty politics for 18 years, announced the other day that it handled more complaints in the first five weeks of this campaign than during any comparable period in its history.

"If the present trend continues," said committee chairman Charles P. Taft, "we will have a new high in political low blows during 1972."

If we are to believe Taft — and to date no one has challenged the impartiality of his committee — then one of two things has happened. Either we have become better at detecting bad politics, or we must be resigned to the fact that there is more of it today than four, eight or 12 years ago.

Of course, part of it may be that it's somehow in vogue to level charges. If you are accused of bugging, let's say, the tactic is a.) deny it happened, b.) deny knowledge of it if it did happen, c.) call it a cheap political shot and d.) accuse the opposition of larceny — all in the same indignant breath. A more-or-less calculated confusion reigns and no one knows what to believe. If the truth ever does come out, it's not until after the election, and that spells "too late."

But this year, with its overall increase in corrupt campaign practices in general and the Watergate affair in particular, provides an opportunity to crack down on the whole nasty business, if not through the ballot box then in the courts. It is an opportunity we should avail ourselves of. If we don't, by the time our next Presidential election year arrives we may find we will need a grand jury just to referee the campaign.

Futuristics: one chance for survival

By David P. Young

The future of the past is in the future.
The future of the present is in the past.
The future of the future is in the present.

John McHale

The study of the past and present are integral parts of our educational system. However, in view of the fantastic ability of our accelerating increase of knowledge in all areas to change man and his institutions, educators are beginning to recognize that the study of the future is an area that must receive increased attention. The emergence of the ecology-environment issue and the travel-communications shrinkage of the world have focused an old point on the human agenda; namely, finding out what we want to have and what we want to be.

We have reached great heights in our scientific and technological knowledge, and as a result are emerging onto a stage of development in which we can achieve physically what we want on an unprecedented scale. But there is far more to humanity than its physical side. New paths of relationships are being developed as man's efforts are no longer those of isolated tribes, or rambling rural communities or separate concentrations of city dwellers; they are truly global.

In a literal sense we are faced with future choice as one of the key building blocks of the planetization now occurring. Thus, the study of how to choose a future, as well as how men chose in the past and are choosing in the present, must become a triad concern of modern education.

But the future does not belong to any one area of man's knowledge. It is a blend of them all. The invention of the future will not be a technical feat; it will be a social phenomenon of an unprecedented magnitude. The promise of the future lies in the dynamic exploration of human consciousness and creativity, which at its very roots will no doubt change the image of man, if not, indeed, man himself.

The Study of Futuristics:

There have been a number of words or phrases suggested for the emerging discipline dealing with the study of the future. Some representatves are alleotics (study of change), mellolgy (study of the future), futurism, futuristics, futurology, posthistory, future studies and futures study. I am choosing to use the word futuristics with the following working the development and use of methodologies for making statements about (1) what is change, (2) what might occur and (3) what ought to happen.

In an expanded version, the study of futuristics involves a focus of concern that:

— raises the question of where new knowledge is taking us and what we might do about it, — looks at the alternatives in an attempt to assess the impact before it happens and to monitor it as it happens, — develops new strategies for what has not yet happened, and

— deals with the synergism of the whole man, centers on the achievement of the best moments of being human.

Abraham Maslow, the noted but late psychologist, once wrote: "...we are now responsible for our own evolution. We have become self-evolvers. Evolution means selecting and therefore choosing and deciding, and this means valuing." In a nutshell, the uniting theme of futuristics is valuing." In a nutshell, the uniting theme of futuristics is valuing. The line of sight is toward the question: What can a human being become? To deal with such a question must certainly involve knowing where we have been, but in our world of "choosing and deciding," we nust know what we value as we attempt to answer the question of what to become.

What does this have to do with Maryville College?

It seems to me that the answer is obvious-plenty. Even a cursory reading of the purposes and objectives in the college catalog will illustrate that the central concern is education of and for the whole man. My interest here, though, is to suggest that we are not now doing an effective enough job of raising the issues of the future so that the notion of choice and values might become a more visible and integral part of what we are doing together.

It seems to me that from a curriculum point of view the study of futuristics should revolve around an interaction between departments rather than the creation of a new Department of Futuristics. The study of the future could profitably involve strategies which interlock existing courses of study. It should not operate in a vacuum as a separate entity, although certainly entire courses could be devoted to the subject.

To finally arrive at my main concern: Who out there is interested in the goals of futuristics? I would like to know two things: (1) specifically what is being done in courses and departments now that relates to the future and (2) what interest is there in a more visible discussion of the issues of the future? If you want to respond to either, please do so in person or writing (Box 2894). From this can come a better understanding of what might be possible for us. If the answer to both questions is nothing, then perhaps it would be fair to say that no one really cares about the future. But I doubt it.

Shalom,
D. P. Young

Daily worship now available

Vespers for Sunday, October 99, will be composed of a hymn sing accompanied by a brass ensemble whose members are Dale White, Robert Millner, Ruth Mary Weston, Ellen Myers, and Dan Stallings. The service will be held in the Little Chapel at 7:00 p.m.

On Wednesday, November 1, at 7:00 a.m., Dr. Roderic Murray will conduct a service of Holy Communion.

Chaplain Richard L. Harrison will lead the morning worship service on Thursday, November 2, at 8:40 a.m. Both this service and the Communion service will be held in the Little Chapel.

Voters examine the issues

Democratic Platform

VIETNAM

The majority of the Democratic Senators have called for full US withdrawal by October 1, 1972. We support that position. If the war is not ended before the next Democratic Administration takes office, we pledge, as the first order of business, an immediate and complete withdrawal of all US forces in Indo-China. All military action in Southeast Asia will cease ...

Disengagement from this terrible war will not be a "defeat" for America. It will not imply any weakness in America's will or ability to protect its vital interests from attack. On the contrary, disengagement will enable us to heal domestic diversions and to end the distortion of our international priorities which the war has caused.

A Democratic Administration will act to ease the hard transitions which will come with an end to this war. We pledge to offer to the people of Vietnam humanitarian assistance to help them repair the ravages of 30 years of war to the economy and to the people of that devastated land.

AMNESTY

To those who for reasons of conscience refused to serve in this war and were prosecuted or sought refuge abroad, we state our firm intention to declare an amnesty, on an appropriate basis, when the fighting has ceased and our troops and prisoners of war have returned.

DEFENSE

We propose a program of national defense which is both prudent and responsible, which will retain the confidence of our allies and which will be a deterrent to potential agressors.

Military strength remains an essential element of a responsible international policy. America must have the strength required for effective deterrence.

Specifically, a Democratic Administration should:

Stress simplicity and effectiveness in new weapons and stop goldplating and duplication which threaten to spawn a new succession of costly military white elephants;

Reduce overseas bases and forces.

These and other reforms and budgeting based on present needs, coupled with a prompt end to US involvement in the war in Indochina, the military budget can be reduced substantially with no weakening of our national security.

We pledge reconversion policies and government resources to assure jobs and new industrial opportunities for all those adversely affected by curtailed defense spending.

The next Democratic Administration should reduce US troop levels in Europe in close consultation with our allies, as part of a program to adjust NATO to changed conditions.

Republican Platform

VIETNAM

We will continue to seek a settlement of the Vietnam war which will permit the people of Southeast Asia to live in peace under political arrangements of their own choosing. We take specific note of the remaining major obstacle to settlement — Hanoi's demand that the United States overthrow the Saigon government and impose a Communist-dominated government on the South Vietnamese. We stand unequivocally at the side of the President in his effort to negotiate honorable terms, and in his refusal to accept terms which would dishonor this country.

We believe that the President's proposal to withdraw remaining American forces from Vietnam four months after an internationally supervised

continued on page 4

Samuel Robinson funds available

Announcement has been made of the current Samuel Robinson scholarships which are available to any student of a Presbyterian-related college who memorizes the Shorter Catechism and writes a 2,000-word essay.

Thd deadline for the completion of this work is April 15. It could mean an extra $300 for the next academic year. Anyone interested should see the chaplain for the details.

SPORTS

Maryville drowns Bridgewater 34-7

Saturday night the Maryville football team waltzed to another lop-sided victory, drowning Bridgewater, Virginia, 34-7. Their season record now stands at 5-1.

In this game, highlighted by a well-balanced offense and a strong defense, the Scots once more proved their excellence. The night air was cold, but they were not.

The point tally began early when running back Robert Callaway took the ball into the end zone from seventeen yards out. Glenn White's conversion attempt struck the goal and was repelled, but the Scots led 6-0.

Still in the first quarter, the Highlanders scored again. End Dean Harden hauled in a Joe Costner aerial, collecting six more points. This time White's attempt was good. At the end of the first period the score stood 13-0.

In the remainder of the first half, both teams connected. Bridgewater took the first score. Quarterback Mike Arnette dumped a seven-yard pass to split end Larry Maxey to get the TD. Place kicked Carl Burkey made the score 13-7.

Then Maryville took over the field of play. Costner again hit Harden for a touchdown, this time from the Bridgewater ten. Leon Hart, who usually holds for White, made a successful running attempt good for two points. At the half, Maryville held a 21-7 edge.

The only score of the third quarter was by the Scots. Once more Costner found Harden and a score resulted. This seven-yard pass play was followed by a Glenn White conversion. The Scots held a firm 28-7 advantage.

The offensive highlights of the final quarter centered around the last Scot score. A nifty run by Callaway was good for a sizable gain. Only seconds later freshman quarterback Andy Banas threw a touchdown pass to Mike Butler. The kick by White failed, but the lead widened.

In the remainder of the contest, Bridgewater attempted to get an attack mounted, but they were hampered by the efficiency of the Scot defense. Final score: Maryville 34 - Bridgewater 7.

Robert Callaway turned in a sparkling performance, gaining 117 yards rushing. Coming through on pitch-outs as well as draw plays, he averaged over ten yards a carry. Callaway also booted some impressive punts in the game.

The Scot receivers also did a bang-up job. Senior Dean "Harpo" Harden shared honors with Costner for three TD's. Mike Butler added another from Banas, and Don Scott made several remarkable grabs.

Stellar quarterback Joe Costner once again dished out the kind of play he is noted for. Saturday's TD strikes make his 6-game total 20. Aside from four interceptions he was good for 22 of 42 attempts for 222 airborne yards.

In the final quarter Andy Banas did an excellent job relieving Costner. In this game, Banas completed the first touchdown pass of his collegiate career.

The defense, too, had a good game. David Clinton, Dan LeBar, and Steve Prochaska were three of many shiners. Constantly inhibiting quarterback Arnette, they held Bridgewater to 192 yards total offense.

Maryville dwarfed its opposition statistically as well as point-wise.

	MC	BW
First downs	25	9
Yds. rushing	259	118
Yds. passing	234	77
Passes	45-23-6	23-10-1
Punts	3-37 avg.	13-31.6 avg.

This week Franklin College of Indiana entertains the Scots.

Basketball team begins practice

By Fred Strohl

The Maryville College basketball team has begun practice in preparation for the 1972-73 season, which gets underway for the Scots on Tuesday evening, November 28, against Lincoln Memorial University in Harrogate, Tennessee.

Seventeen boys are out for the team this year, which includes four returning lettermen who Coach Baird hopes will form the nucleus in improving last season's record of 8-16.

"We've been working hard since October 16," said Coach Baird. "We practice two hours a day for six days a week."

The four returning lettermen for this year's team include Mike Butler, Gary Childress, Phil Graham, Scott Ross, and Randy Schauer.

In addition, John Weston, who played two years ago, but could not last year because of an auto accident, is back this year.

One additional returnee from last year's team is Rod Jackson. Seven freshmen are out for the team, as well as three transfer students.

At this point, the only real question marks are Gary Childress, who had off-season knee surgery performed, and the ability of John Weston to come back after laying off all of last season.

The Scots' first home game of the season is scheduled for Tuesday evening, December 5, against King.

YVRP plans new activities

By Fred Strohl

Barbara Goedeke, Chairwoman of the Maryville College Chapter of the Young Voters for the President, announces a list of activities planned by that organization during the coming week Saturday evening beginning at 5:30 p.m., a telephone blitz will be held at the Blount National Bank Building. Fifty names will be randomly chosen off a page in the phone book by each caller and telephoned. A Republican rally will be held in the Physical Education Building on Monday night beginning at 6:00. Senator Howard Baker, R of Tennessee, who is running for re-election, will be the featured speaker. A chicken dinner will follow. The Blount County Young Republicans will meet in the basement of Byrne Drug Store in Maryville on Tuesday starting at 7:30 P.M., while the Young Voters for the president will meet in the Student Center on Wednesday at 6:15 P.M.

New disease runs rampant

Wiley Rutledge

Many students engage in pr marital interdigitation but fe realize the danger of such thing The first danger is that if yo partner has any kind of co tagious disease (especiall yellow fever or malaria) you' likely to catch it, especially if yo interdigitate between 2 a.m. an 1:14 p.m.

The second danger is to yo psyche. Many people have go bananas (literally) from in terdigitating, and imagined tha they were bananas.

The next danger is from yo parents. If they find out you' been interdigitating, they won know what you're talking abou and they'll assume the wors That always leads to violen action.

But the worst danger to you is that you probably don't kno what I'm talking about. So loo up interdigitation in your Fun and Wagnalls (or Merria Websters), find out what in terdigitation is and make yo own judgment about whethe what I'm saying is true.

Voters examine the issues

(Continued from page 3)

ceasefire has gone into effe through Indochina and a prisoners have been returned as generous an offer as can b made by anyone–by anyone, tha is, who is not bemused wi surrender–by anyone who seek not a fleeting peace at whatev cost, but a real peace that will b both just and lasting.

AMNESTY

Here and now we reject a proposals to grant amnesty those who have broken the law b evading military service. W reject the claim that those wh fled are more deserving, obeyed a higher morality, tha those next in line who served their places.

DEFENSE

We believe in keeping Americ strong.

We believe that the firs prerequisite of national securit is a modern, well-equipped a med force.

We draw a sharp distinctio between prudent reductions defense spending and the mea ax slashes with which som Americans are now beguiled b the political oppositio Specifically, we oppose plans stop the Minuteman III an Poseidon programs, reduce th strategic bomber force by som 60 per cent, cancel the B- bomber, reduce aircraft carrier from 16 to 6, reduce tactical a wings by a third and unilaterall reduce US forces in Europe b half.

We will maintain a nuclea deterrent adequate to meet threat to the security of the US of our allies.

We will help other nation develop the capability defending themselves.

We will faithfully honor all our treat commitments.

We will act to defend our in terests whenever and wherev they are threatened.

But where our vital interests treatment commitments are n involved our role will be limite

We will continue to pursu arms control agreements–but w recognize that this can be su cessful only if we maintai sufficient strength and will fail we allow ourselves to slip int inferiority.

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES

on Highway 73 in Townsend

ANNOUNCING VERY SPECIAL RATES TO M.C. STUDENTS

on overnight pack trips & ½-day rides.

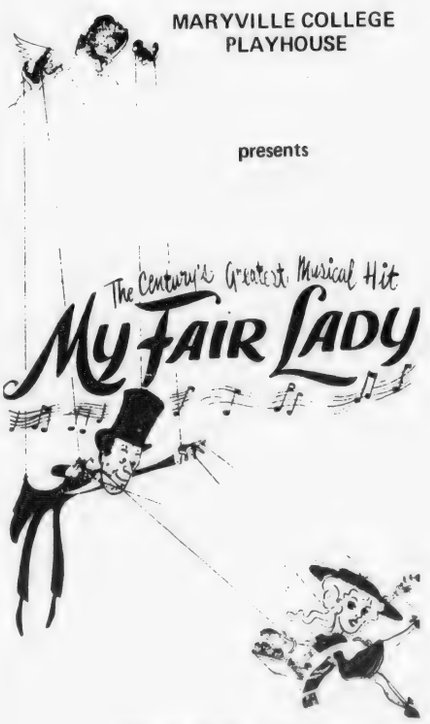
Open weekends and weekdays by appointment.

CALL 448-6411

The Leader

BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK

MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE



Tallest And Closest To The Campus

MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE

presents

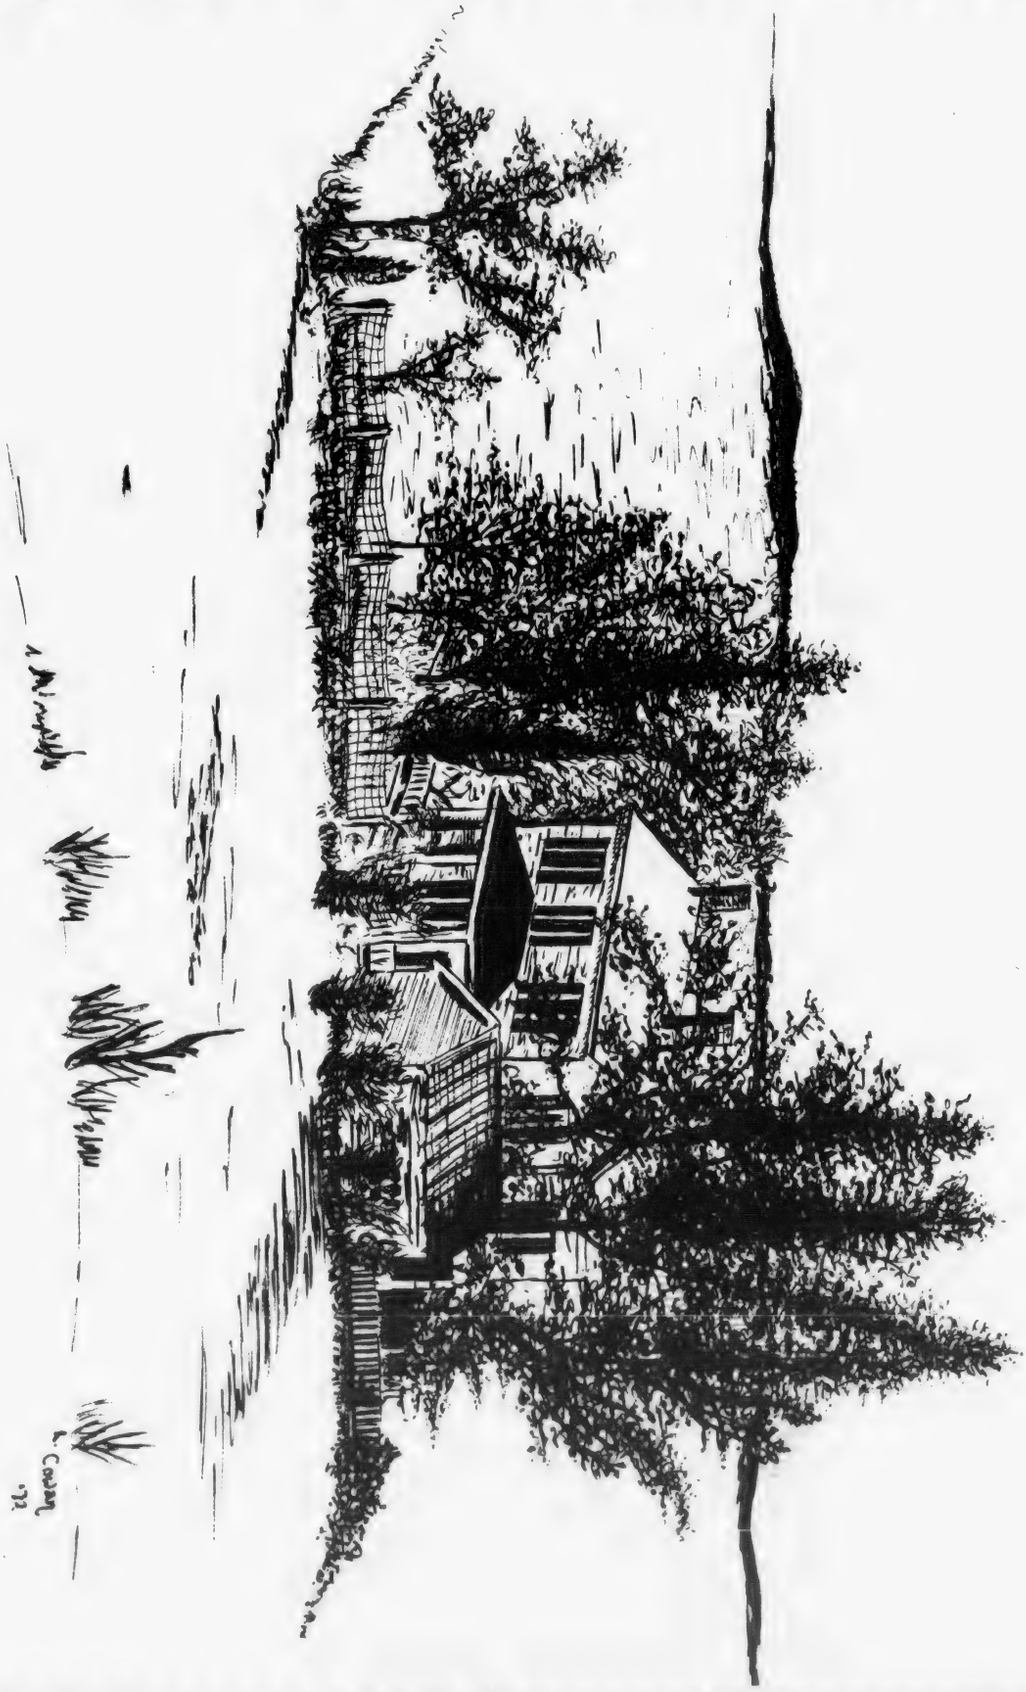
The Century's Greatest Musical Hit

MY FAIR LADY

Adapted from Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion

Book and Lyrics by ALAN JAY LERNER

Music by FREDERICK LOEWE



October 26, 27, 28 & 30

8:15 p.m. $2.00

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 8 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | Nov. 3, 1972

Special election issue

Editorial

Jesus is the answer

Many people today are looking for peace and a real meaning in their lives. This is not a new thing. It has been done for hundreds of thousands of years. Socrates did it, Plato did it.

All of our great philosophers have looked for ways for man to achieve peace. None have ever found a permanent one.

Why is that? Simply because they do not deal with the basic problem; the reason man does not have peace. The reason is that man is sinful.

Whatever sin means to you, man has it. God created man and then gave him a very direct, explicit commandment. Man disobeyed it.

Since then man has had a sinful nature that he cannot overcome. That is because of his own guilt. Deep down inside, man cannot live with himself. He is guilty about what he is, and he suffers for it.

God could have left us in this state, but He didn't. He sent His son, Jesus Christ, to die on the cross so we might have peace.

All that we have to do is believe and ask Christ into our hearts. That may be too good to believe, but it is true.

Christ is not just another philosopher. Either He was truthful all the way or He was a liar all the way, and if He was a liar more good has been accomplished with a lie in the last 2,000 years than with all the truth that has ever been told.

No other religious founder claimed to be God. No other founder changes lives and brings peace like Jesus does. He said: "These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." (John 16:33). Why not invite Jesus into your heart and experience His peace?

by Wiley Rutledge

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Some Maryville College students express their concern for others by participating in the community efforts to collect for UNICEF or the United Fund or the Walk for Development.

Some feel deeply about the presidential election and spend their Saturdays distributing campaign literature, telephoning on behalf of their candidate, even washing windsheilds for votes.

Still other students meet in groups to witness to their faith–on Tuesday nights, Wednesday and Thursday mornings. Some still meet regularly for study and worship in local churches on Sundays.

Tutoring, counselng, listening are less organized ways of showing concern for others.

If you aren't doing any of these things–or some other things just as meaningful but not specifically mentioned–the prophets of doom may indeed be right: compassion, the desire for justice, social concern are dead. Having given up on the "system," let's settle down to our private world and wait for the bang or the whimper!

Name withheld by request

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 8 Nov. 3, 1972

editor — Carla Hulce
faculty advisor — Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
business manager — Allen Bunge
lay-out editor — Sarah Winbigler

The HIGHLAND ECHO is printed by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

"My Fair Lady" captivates

Over the past weekend Maryville College Playhouse presented the popular Broadway musical "My Fair Lady" to near capacity audiences. An additional performance has been added to the production, on Saturday, November 4th, at 8:15 p.m.

Few musical comedies in recent years have been so eagerly awaited as "My Fair Lady" and this proved to be the case this past weekend here in the Maryville-Alcoa community.

The play, a musical adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion", delighted even dedicated Shavians with an extraordinary mixture of wit, movement, color and melody.

Produced by Thomas E. Jones, director of Theatre at the college, with book and lyrics by Alan Jay Lerner and music by Frederick Loewe, "My Fair Lady" is a joyous experience, brimming with song and laughter, and sending its audiences into riotous applause.

The songs have a delectable humor of their own, preserving the flavor of 1912 London and injecting an aura of romance as well. Perhaps the most descriptive adjective came from Variety, which announced that the score was "glove-fitting." And indeed it is, as this presentation, produced by Maryville College Playhouse, proves.

"My Fair Lady" is a beautiful, expansive, tuneful and hilariously funny play. Its sumptuous sets designed by Mr. Jones and executed by Mr. Blair Beasley, technical director of the college theatre, the costumes designed by Rosalin Bennett and Mrs. Ruth Gray have a charming pre-World War I style, and the pace is swift and witty.

But what makes the show so delightful, in addition to the superb score, is the work of its three principal performers, co-stars Howard Welsh and Christy Rogers, and Robert Hutchens.

Mr. Welsh, long a favorite with Maryville audiences with appearances in "Lil Abner," "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail," and "Man of La Mancha," brings to the part of Professor Henry Higgins all of crisp vitality of his work on the dramatic-musical stage.

Mr. Hutchens, one of the bulwarks of the Maryville-Alcoa as well as the Knoxville stage, takes over the role of Alfred P. Doolittle and makes it entirely his own in a rich, rowdy impersonation. Mr. Hutchens received mast enthusiatic applause each night for his singing of "With a Little Bit of Luck" and "Get Me to the Church On Time."

Miss Rogers, caught between two of the most expert actors in the Playhouse, and between the crackling high comedy of Mr. Welsh and the robust two comedy of Mr. Hutchens, presents one of the most winning portraits imaginable.

She brings Eliza to vibrant life in a succession of songs, dances and heart winning scenes. So triumphantly does she sweep audiences along with her that, when she fninally conquers the pronunciation of "the rain in Spain," a glorious gasp of pleasure and relief echoes through the theatre.

The splendid dances and musical numbers which form so large a part of "My Fair Lady's" charm were staged by Cheryl Van Metre. Mrs. Van Metre has devised the choreography for all the Playhouse and Summer Playhouse productions over the past few years.

The musical director for "My Fair Lady" was Mr. Dan Stallings, director of the band at the college and was highly praised for the excellent sound of the orchestra in the production.

The performance Saturday will be at 8:15 p.m. and tickets can be purchased at the box office or can be reserved by calling 982-2911. This production is one you will not want to miss, so get your tickets now.

guest editorial

"Does it really matter whom we choose to love. . . ?"

Cherrington '74

We are here in an effort to find ourselves, but how can we if we're not free to be open in discussing our ideas and our values with others?

This academic atmosphere has been permeated by a black cloud that chokes a person whenever he opens his mouth to talk about sexuality.

Our peers tell us to be ourselves but they are shocked if we happen to "come-out" and admit homosexual feelings to them. How can we be ourselves when we are told that we are sick, when we are thought of and refered to in stereotyped terms as effeminate, limp-wristed, giddy child molesters.

Those attitudes are ridiculous as well as nauseating. Is it any wnder why we have to wear so many masks and hide behind facades?

We aren't sick; we are beautiful people who don't fit stereotypes because we are all individuals who have differing interests, attitudes, and values. being gay is only part of my personality.

The narrowmindedness extends into the business world. We have a helluva time finding respectable jobs because of the stereotypes that run rampant. We are discriminated against finding decent places to live. Getting insurance is also a feat in itself.

All this run-a-round and crap because we want to be ourselves. All this because of Judaic-Christian hemophobia.

What gets me is the Church's traditional attitudes toward gays. It has refused to admit the existence and the validity of a total love between two people of the same sex.

All I ask is "Why?" Why is it immoral for two men or two women to want themselves physically as well as intellectually with each other?

Love cannot be heterosexually straight-jacketed because it cannot be defied within the contest of sexual expression. Love can and does transcend sexual expression.

Two people can love each other without expressing that love sexually. It becomes impossible to say that two men or two women cannot love each other.

We cannot say that sexual expression, be it homosexual or heterosexual, is either lustful or the physical expression of love because only the two people involved know whether or not they really care for each other.

Sex is both creative expression and communication. It is good when it is either and better when it is both. Sex can also be aggression, and it usually is when those involved don't view each other as equals.

People are sexual objects, but they are subjects, and they should be capable as beings of appreciating each other as both object and subject.

Carl Whitman in his Gay Manifesto, published in the Los Angeles Free Press, noted that "Nature leaves undefined the object of sexual desire. The gender of that object is imposed socially. Homosexuality is not a lot of things. It is not a makeshift in the absence of the opposite sex; it is not genetic; it is not the result of a broken home.

Homosexuality is the capacity to love someone of the same sex. Period.

Gay Liberation in no way threatens Women' Liberation or any other movement that sincerely seeks to free others from unfairly enforced behavioral roles. Homosexuality is neither better or lesser than heterosexuality, nor is bisexuality (so-called) in a way similar to "gence sitting" as it were, but merely the capacity to love either sex. Exclusive sexual role-laying, whether homo or hetero, is not bad in itself, except when such roles are accepted out of fear of the same or opposite sex. The truly liberated gay must accept and indeed encourage the truly liberated straight."

Gay Liberation isn't freedom to hang out our hang-ups, but a chance to lose them. Oppression has led gays to form their own little world of language, gestures, clothes, heroes, and lifestyles.

What is needed is not the right to behave in such a manner more publicly, but to be able to choose not to behave in any particular way at all, except by free choice.

In this way Gay Liberation liberates us all. It is not just straight society, but society as a whole that has oppressed everyone with roles; male-female, dominant-passive, top-bottom, and gay-straight.

We all stand to gain. Gay or straight. Freak or "straight." Black or white. Genital male or female "Chick." Nigger. Queer. The terms are all the same. Sexism equals racism. Think about it.

Some of us have come-out within smaller groups of people. I'm tired of laughing instead of asking those people who make fun of us why they ridicule. Is it because they cannot reconcile their definitions of masculinity and femininity with reality and turn to us as a scapegoat?

The respect that people should have is not a utopian ideal. It is possible to respect each other here and now in this reality. Why can't we respect each other for our similarities and our difference?

The oppressive black cloud is here; it is real. Some people will deny its existence. These people are either extremely naive or they refuse to see it. The cloud will remain as long as we remain silent.

It is slowly taking on the qualities of a thunderhead; the longer we remain silent the blacker it becomes. Let's seed the cloud with understanding by sharing our attitudes and values with each other.

We cannot find our way very easily in a storm. Only in the light of peace and love can we learn where we are and find out where we are going. Only in an enlightened atmosphere can we truly be ourselves.

"Does it really matter whom we choose to love so long as we are loving?"

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

The old Nixon: an extemporaneous glimpse

WASHINGTON-The "Old Nixon" surfaced for a few moments the other day when the President addressed a gathering here in Washington of families of prisoners of war.

On the spur of the moment Mr. Nixon decided to replace the scheduled speaker, his chief foreign policy adviser Dr. Henry A. Kissinger. Aparently the substitution was made so hastily that even the Secret Service did not have time to do their normal advance work.

Certainly, precious little advance thought went into the President's eight-minute extemporaneous speech, for he took the opportunity once again to launch a needless attack on critics of his Vietnam policy, those editors, commentators, businessmen and others who opposed the U.S. mining of North Vietnamese harbors. He asserted that these opinion leaders gave him "precious little support" adding that "The most heart-warming thing to me was that those who had so much at stake, those who had suffered so much, the great majority of those whose husbands and loved ones are POWs or MIAs, stood by that decision, and I thank you very much."

All in all, the performance was negative and defensive, not the sort of speech which might legitimately be expected from an incumbent Chief Executive who holds an unprecented 28 percentage point lead over his opponent with less than a month left before election day.

He also took the opportunity to press his hard line against men who avoided Vietnam duty, saying that "those who have deserted America will pay a price for thier choice." He did not elaborate on what he has in mind, but any way you cut it, the policy does not sound like one calculated to bring together a nation deeply split, as it has been for years, over a war nobody understands.

For once in his, life indeed perhaps the first time, Mr. Nixon does not have to worry about playing the role of the underdog. His lead is so wide there should be no need for bitterness toward any of those who, rightly or wrongly, but nonetheless sincerly disagreed with his policies. In fact, if the lead proves to herald a victory of the magnitude now being predicted, the President will have a rare opportunity to do exactly what he has said many times is his dream - to bring us together. He would do well to concentrate now on his plans for making that dream a reality.

Unfortunately political victories of such wide margins have proven to be mixed blessings, both for the victors and the country. It was on the heels of such a victory that President Johnson, hearted by what he viewed as an enormous personal mandate, spurred American involvement in Indochina against considerable advice to the contrary.

Should Mr. Nixon receive a comparable majority, we can only hope he will realize that the vote in 1972 as it did in 1964 reflected more doubt about the alternative than confidence in the incumbent. Sad to say that hope is more fervent than realistic, as his remarks to the POW families only too well attest.

Shape up before you ship out. . .

By Erma Q. Zingdip

In the throes of a winter depression cycle, there is nothing that will set you off like a group of fashion authorities who want to know, "Is your figure ready for a bikini this summer?"

I got a flash for you, Charlie. My figure wasn't ready for a bikini last summer. Very frankly, I've hit a few snags.

You see, for years I have built my figure on the premise that "fat people are jolly." I have eaten my way through: pleasant, cheery, sunny, smiling, gay, spirited, chipper, vivacious, sparkling, happy,and sportive and was well on my way to becoming hysterical. Now I find that a group of experts say this is a myth. "Fat people aren't jolly at all. They're just frustrated and fat." You'd have thought they would have said something while I was back on pleasant.

There was a time when I had a twenty-three inch waist. I was ten years old at the time. As I recall, my measurements were 23-23-23.

My boyfriend, of course, has tried to shame me into losing weight by sending me letters with pictures of Ann Margret enclosed. He hasn't tried that routine, however, since our trip to a shopping center last spring that coincided with a personal appearance by Mr. Universe.

Mr. Universe worked in a fitted black T-shirt and shorts. If muscles ever go out of style he could always get a job on the beach kicking sand in the faces of ninety-seven-pound weaklings and yelling, "Yea, skinny!" He thumped onto the platform and my jaw dropped.

"For crying out loud, close your mouth," whispered by boyfriend. "You look like someone just dropped a bar bell on your foot."

Did you ever see so many muscles in your life?" I gasped. "That T-shirt is living on borrowed time. And listen to that. He says it just takes a few minuted a day to build a body like his. Hey now he's touching his ear to his knees. Can you do that?

"What in heaven's name for?" he sighed. "There's nothing to hear down there. Besides I'd be embarrassed to look like that. My suits wouldn't fit right. And I couldn't bear having all those people staring."

"You're really sensitive about all this, aren't you?" "I certainly am not," he said. "It's just that I'm not a beach boy."

"I'll say you're not a beach boy. Remember when that kid wanted to borrow your inner-tube last summer at the pool and you weren't wearing one?"

"Are we going shopping or aren't we? he growled.

"Now until you admit that you can't kick seven feet high, throw a football seventy-five yards and jump over an arrow you're holding in both hands."

"Okay, so I'm not Mr. Universe."

"Then you'll quit sending those horrible pictures?"

"Yes. You know, in my day I used to have a set of pretty good arm muscles. Here, look at this. I'm flexing. Hurry up! See it? How's that for a muscle?"

Personally I've seen bigger lumps in my cheese sauce, but when you've won a war, why mess around with a small skirmish?

Vespers

The next first Sunday vesper service will feature the Rev. Gerald Cooper, pastor of New Prospect Presbyterian Church in Knoxville. Jerry is a Maryville College graduate and holds the BD degree from Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Kentucky.

He formerly served on the staff at New Providence Presbyterian Church where he was the director of outreach.

His message will be a challenge to college students to become involved in the life of the church and community. The MC Concert Choir will participate in the service which will be held in the chapel at 7:00 p.m. Sunday, November 5.

Circle K goes coed

The MC Circle K Service club will be kicking off its membership drive today with an important difference. This year the female sector of the campus will be invited to join as well as the males.

Circle K's project base will be "broadened' in order to incorporate programs that will be conductive to a coed club. All females who join the club will have full membership rights and will be able to hold a local club office.

The membership drive will unfold in the following way. For the next few days Circle K men will be round telling interested persons what the club is all about.

An invitation to the entire campus and a more detailed description of what Circle K is and does will be stuffed in mailboxes on Monday. Tuesday night at 7:00 in the FAC lounge a smoker will be held in order to acquaint you with the club.

If at that time you are interested in joining, you will be asked to work on a project in order to become acquainted with other members and the work that we do.

On Sunday night, November 12 (after the Messiah), all members and their dates (male or female) will be our guests at a free chicken cookout.

Plan now for next interim

What are you doing for your interim?

How many times have you been asked that question since the listing was posted? As you selected your interim, were you aware of the possibility of individualized interims?

A student can not only plan an interim for one person, but several students can get together, propose an interim, approach a faculty member whom they would like to work with, and submit the proposal to the Interim Committee for approval. Next year these possiblilities should be kept in mind, for the interim is largely what you make it.

In looking forward to next year, students should keep in mind the fact that at least one opportunity for foriegn travel will be available.

Negotiations are under way with travel agents and airline agents to secure the lowest possible rates (with adequate accommodations) for the 25-day interim to England and France, "In Search of King Arthur."

Included in the itinerary for 1973 are many of the places connected with the sixth century "leader of battles"–the birth place at Tintagel, the legendary castle of Camelot, the Round Table at Winchester, the burial site at Glastonbury.

A feature of the interim in 1973 will be the search for continental roots of the Arthurian Legend as the group travels across the channel to France.

Young Republicans sponsor rally

By Fred Strohl

The Blount County Young Republicans sponsored a rally at the Maryville College Physical Education Building on Monday night.

Senator Howard Baker, Republican of Tennessee, who is running for re-election this year, was the featured speaker.

Other Republican candidates speaking at the rally included Carl Koella, candidate for the Tennessee Assembly; Tennessee Senator Tom Garland, candidate for the Tennessee Public Service Commission; and Congressman John Duncan, who is unopposed in his re-election bid for the second Congressional district seat in Tennessee.

The Senator said that "the young people of Tennessee are the most intelligent in the nation."

He pointed out that the major difference in this year's Presidential campaign betwen the two candidates is that "Republicans are convinced that the future of the U.S. is ahead of her, not behind her."

M club party

The women's "M" Club of Maryville College wishes to invite any and all girls who are interested in participating in women's intramurals and those who are interested in becoming members of "M" Club to an informal dessert party at Willard House at 9:00 p.m. on Thursday, November 9.

This is a good time to find out about the 400 points necessary to become a member of "M" Club.

Debate team travels today

The Maryville College FORUM will be sponsoring a trip this weekend to Boone, North Carolina. Six Maryville students will compete in various speaking events in the 32nd annual Appalachian Mountain Forensic Tournament on November 3-4.

Mr. Blair Beasley, the faculty sponsor of FORUM, will direct the expedition. The students entrants are Nancy McCleary, Kaye Sanders, Janet Vail, Esther Yardumian, Robert Cox, and Michael Montgomery.

The Maryville College FORUM remains open for any student who desires to compete in publich speaking. Contact Mr. Beasley, second Floor Theatre, for plans of future trips.

SPORTS

Scots lose heartbreaker to Franklin

Saturday, in Franklin, Indiana, the Scots suffered a major setback. The Franklin Grizzlies handed them a 47-27 defeat, and Maryville is now 5-2, while Franklin is 6-1.

Although the Scots consider Franklin to be their toughest opposition to date, the contest was hardly one-sided.

The Maryvillians were plagued by mistakes for which they paid dearly. In the first quarter Maryville made three of these miscues — two fumbles and one interception — and Franklin cashed in on them.

The score stood 21-0, Franklin's lead before the Scots could make a point. Throughout the rest of the game Maryville was forced to play catch-up, a hard game to win.

The first three scores centered around Franklin's Tom Bass. The first two were short runs and the third a pass to Waggoner. In each case, placekicker Guyer made good his conversion attempts. Franklin then led 21-0.

Robert Callaway and Joe Costner put the first Scot points on the board. Costner flipped a pass to Callaway good for five yards and six points. Glenn White booted the extra point.

Then Franklin took over again. Grizzly Gonzenbark took the ball in from the five to make the score 27-7. A two-point conversion attempt failed.

Ron Doyle, the Franklin quarterback, collected the next two scores himself. Two short runs and their respective conversions widened the edge to 41-7.

In the last part of the game, Maryville staged a comeback, but the margin was too great to overcome. Both the offense and defense sharpened up and played very well.

In this part of the contest, Joe Costner threw to Mike Butler for three touchdowns. The first was from the thirty-five, and the next from the thirty-four. Both times White added the extra point and the score was 41-21. The last Scot score came in the form of a four-yard pass, again to Butler.

In the final part of the game, Edmunds, a Grizzly defender, picked off a Costner aerial and ran it back eighty yards for a TD.

The Grizzlies' game was centered around their rushing attack, the weight of which was earned by quarterback Ron Doyle. Doyle, who usually has a great passing game, was able to stick to the ground for most of the game.

On the other hand, Maryville's offense took to the air. Costner threw for 452 yards and four TD's. He did, however, suffer three interceptions.

Fifteen of Costner's thirty-one completions were snared by Mike Butler. A senior, Butler was good for 244 yards.

In the second half of the game the defense really toughened up, doing a fine over-all job, and definitely putting the lid on Franklin's offense.

Statistics

	MC	Frank.
First downs	24	17
Yards rushing	80	259
Yards passing	452	129
Passes	31-64-3	11-19-1
Punts	7-32.7 avg.	6-40.8 avg.

This week the Scots play host to the team from Millsaps College.

WORSHIP SCHEDULE

Vespers, Sunday, November 5 - 7:00 p.m. in Wilson Chapel. The Rev. Gerald Cooper, pastor of New Prospect Presbyterian Church in Knoxville - The MC Choir will sing.

Communion - Wednesday, November 8 - 7:00 a.m. in the Little Chapel. The Rev. Troy Hasty, pastor of the First Christian Church in Maryville, will lead the service.

Worship - Thursday, November 9 - 8:40 a.m. in the Little Chapel. Boydson Baird will be the worship leader.

Maryville College cast a ballot

This week's CIV was a student program designed to present the issues of the two national parties and their presidential candidates. The purpose was to expose the students tothe issues and then to formulate a Maryville College platform. Those attending CIV were given ballots on which were printed the issue to be discussed, the names of those presenting the planks and the names of the two major presidential candidates. After each plank was presented the students could mark their-preference and debate from the floor.

The platform committee represented the political parties class and advocates of each of the parties. Unfortunately lack of time prevented all the planks from being presented and there was some problem with curbing discussion on the more controversial planks such as defense spending and the Viet Nam war. However, this panel did present a good opportunity for some students to air their views about the election issues. The Echo will publish the results from the ballots in next week's issue.

John Weston makes his point clear

Echo presents literary issue

Attention all you frustrated artists, poets, and journalists! The students's literary edition of the Highland Echo is coming soon, hopefully during interim, and contributions are needed desperately.

This non-news issue will take the place of the regular Echo, which will not be printed during the four-week interim term, due to technical difficulties and the obvious fact that the entire staff is in desperate need of a long rest.

At this time plans are being made to publish a second literary edition during the winter term, if enough students seem to be interested in submitting material, and if there still seems to be a need for an outlet of this sort.

If you wish to see your working print, please submit any original poems, drawing, or short short stories to Box 2613 before November 15, but please note that any work submitted is subject to editorial approval.

Delta sets up booth Monday

For the convenience of students who may be traveling over the upcoming holiday breaks, Delta Airlines will have a reservationist and a ticket agent available in the Student Center lobby Monday, November 6, from 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m.

Please feel free to take advantage of this service which is meant to help make holiday travel a little easier for students who often find making reservations and finding flights difficult.

The Administration wishes to warn any and all students against buying merchandise of any sort from persons who lately have been invading campus dormitories. This warning especially applies to those persons who have been selling magazines, claiming they are eligible for large cash prizes if they can sell a certain number of subscriptions.

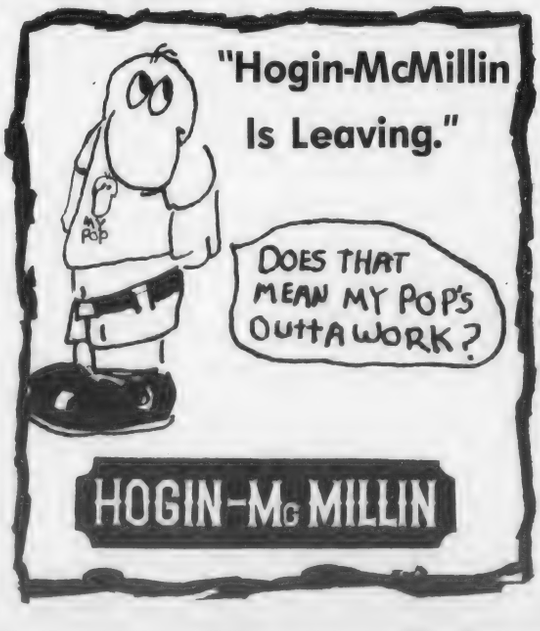
According to Dean Don Elia, at this time no person has been granted authority by the Administration to sell merchandise of any nature on campus, so please do no accept any claims of this nature, and ask any peddler who approaches you to leave the premises.

Game seats reserved

The Physical Education Department has asked that all Maryville College students sit in the stands from the 50-yard line toward Court Street at any future home games.

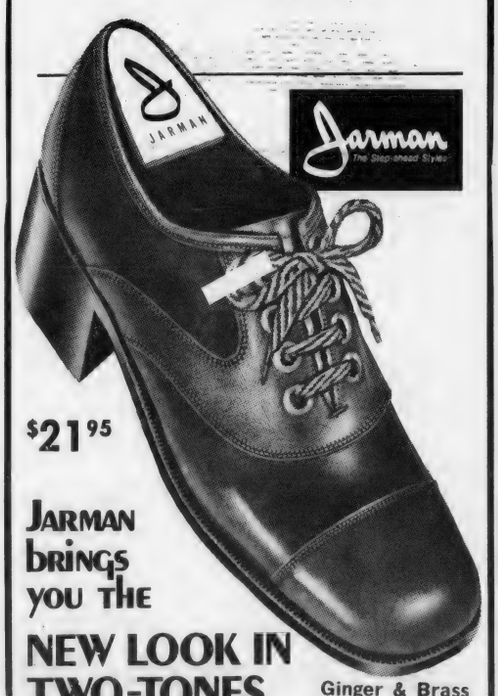
The seats from the 50-yard line toward the Physical Education building are reserved for fans with season tickets, some of whom were deprived of their seats at the last home game, so let's be a little more considerate at this week's game.

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES



on Highway 73 in Townsend

ANNOUNCING VERY SPECIAL RATES TO M.C. STUDENTS



on overnight pack trips & ½-day rides.

Open weekends and weekdays by appointment.

CALL 448-6411

Southern shoes

$21.95

JARMAN BRINGS YOU THE NEW LOOK IN TWO-TONES

Ginger & Brass
Black & Gray

It's two-tone time in our town — and Jarman two-tones simply offer more for your money. As handsome — and easy-wearing evidence — we present this brass-eyelet straight tip. (We also have other Jarman two-tones you'll like.)

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, No. 9 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | Nov. 10, 1972

Messiah heralds religious season

Handel's Messiah, a long standing tradition at Maryville College, will be performed at Wilson Chapel, Sunday, November 12, at 3:00 p.m.

Unfortunately, this has become such a tradition that much of the significance of this particular piece of music has been lost. An oratorio, in the true sense, is very much akin to an opera in that it involves characters, plot, narration and action. It differs only in that the production is not staged theatrically, being far more musically oriented.

Messiah, as an oratorio, is an exception. It has no characters, narration or plot, and it bases its text Messiah, as an oratorio, is an exception. It has no characters, narration or plot, and it bases its text and unity around the Biblical prophecies of the coming of Christ, His life, and the afterlife.

These three sections make up the three part form of the work. It is interesting to note how much of the text, all of which points to the message of Christ, is taken from the Old Testament.

Handel completed the entire work in 24 days, August 22 through September 14, 1741, and it was premiered in Dublin in that same year with the composer conducting as he played the harpsichord.

His choir consisted of only 26 singers, including soloists, and an orchestra of 35 pieces. Since that time it has had perhaps more performances than any other large piece of music in history.

So, for the fortieth time, the Messiah will be presented at Maryville. Its first performance in 1933 entailed 100 community and college voices accompanied by a single piano.

It has since expanded to include a full orchestra, organ, and harpsichord. This year marks the twenty-fifth presentation under the direction of Dr. Harry Harter, and the fourth year the orchestra has rehearsed under Mr. Lee Kull.

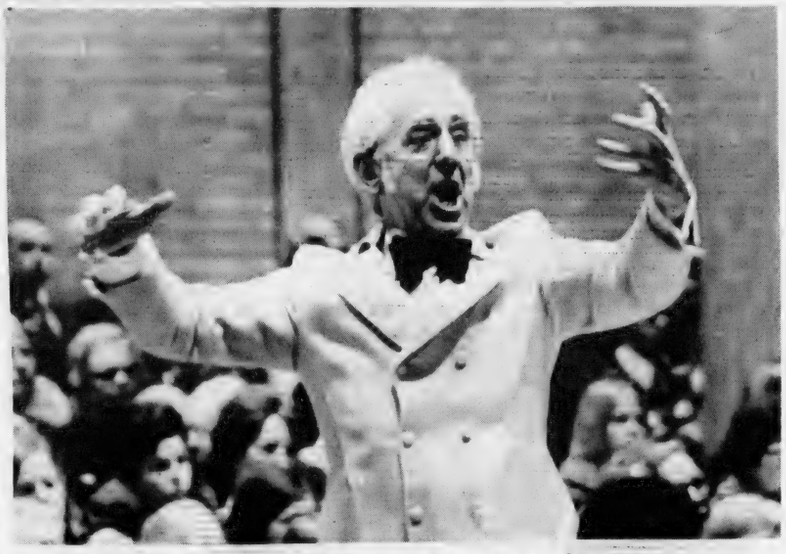
A new addition is Mr. Allan Hoke who will be playing the harpsichord, taking the place of Mrs. Sallie Schoen, who is on sabbatical. It would have been her fifteenth year accompanying.

Mr. Hoke is hardly new to the Messiah as a non-orchestral performer, however, being a graduate in music from Maryville, and now, having earned is master's degree, is Director of Music at New Providence Presbyterian Church.

New to the performance wll be Mr. Robert Bennet, who will sing the opening Recitative, "Comfort Ye," and the Air, "Every Valley Shall be Exalted."

Mr. Bennet comes from Tifton, Georgia, and has studied at Duke University and Cincinnati College Conservatory of Music.To mention just a few of his accomplishments, he has been the leading tenor with both the Boston Opera and the Fleusberg Opera in Germany, and has toured with the Metropolitan Opera.

Other soloists are:



Sopranos-Tina Bergner: three Recitatives and the Air, "How Beautiful are the Feet;" Lana Grubis; Air, "Rejoice Greatly;" Louie Turner; Air, "Come Unto Him;" Melissa Fering: Recitative, "And Suddenly There was With the Angel;" Jean Tiffany; Recitative, "Thy Rebuke;" Pam Faulkner: Arioso, "Behold and See;" Dana Rule: Air, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."

Altos-Kay Hurlbut: Recitative, "Then Shall the Eyes," Air, "He Shall Feed His Flock;" Merida Kearns-Preston: Recitative, "Behold, a Virgin," Air, "O Thou that Tellest;" Delores Ziegler: Air, "He was Despised."

Tenors-Robert Bennet; Dr. Dan Kinsinger: Recitative, "He was Cut Off," Air, "But Thou Didst Not Leave His Soul."

Basses-Fred Frost: Recitative, "Thus Saith the Lord," Air, "But Who May Abide," Recitative, "Behold, I Tell You a Mystery," Air, "The Trumpet Shall Sound;" Howard Welsh: Arioso, "Darkness Shall Cover the Earth;" Wayne Davis: Air, "The People That Walked."

Trumpet-Dale White

Dr. Harry Harter, Messiah director

ACC ponders upcoming changes

Last week's ACC meeting opened with an evaluation of the informal meeting held at Mr. Layman's home in October. Reports were so favorable that the Council agreed to include more such meetings throughout the year.

Next on the agenda was a report on the Town Hall meeting. A proposal to make Pearsons Hall a coed dorm was discussed, but no decision was made. The Ad Hoc Committee also evaluated four bids for the replacement of the dining hall furniture. The upper floors will soon be ready for the Committee's considerations on furnishings, also.

Reports from the Academic Life committees followed. The Instructional Programs Committee recommended to the Council that the number of courses required for graduation be reduced from 43 to 40, including the three CIV credits.

The reasons listed by the committee for this recommendation were:

(1) the proposal would reduce pressure, (2) it would help those under the load of independent studies, (3) students would be able to graduate early, and (4) those students who fail courses would be able to keep up with their class without having to attend summer school.

The committee also stipulated that students taking four courses should pay a special fee and that those taking only one course should be charged less.

This recommendation was passed by the ACC and is now before the Board of Directors. If passed, the 40 course requirement will go into effect for the Class of '77.

The second proposal from academic life concerns music majors. The committee requested that ensembles such as band, choir, and orchestra carry course credit. A student participating in an ensemble for three years would receive two credits after is first year of apprenticeship.

The band and orchestra will operate under this principle, and marching band participants may substitute band for a P.E. course during the fall term.

The Council also passes this measure and it is now before the Board. This committee also informed the Council of a fifth year internship program at Tremont in Environmental Education.

The Religious Life Committee made the next report Chaplain Richard Harrison commented on a new calendar of worship events designed by Rich Mahler. These calendars will be posted on various bulletin boards around campus.

On the first Sunday of every month there will be a vespers service featuring the College Choir and a guest speaker. A Wednesday morning communion service is designed to involved staff and faculty as well as students.

Chaplain Harrison also reported on the plans for January meetings. The theme for the 1973 Meetings is "There is hope, but..." The committee also plans to produce celebration of Life, a folk rock composition. The composer will be on campus for the occasion.

Seminars revolving around the theme are also planned. The Religous Life members also have a community service program including tutoring, working for the Bloodmobile, and UNICEF.

President Copeland told the Council about a projected long range planning team composed of representatives from staff, faculty, and student body to help Maryville keep up with a rapidly changing world.

This team would work for 18 months to two years. The faculty and Council are asked to submit the names of hard working members of the College community, especially freshmen.

Mr. Layman made an announcement to the Council concerning the use of College facilities, particularly the gym, by outside groups, such as the Walland basketball team.

He explained that the fact that a group is holding a program on the campus does not mean that students and faculty can gain free admission.

In conclusion, the Council asked that the committee chairmen put notices of their meeting times and places on the ACC bulletin board in the Post Office, so that all interested may attend.

Duncan upholds party platform

The war in Indochina was the primary issue discussed at last Friday's CIV where second district congressman John Duncan appeared to speak in behalf of the Republican party. Congressman Duncan's address consisted almost entirely of an attack on Senator McGovern's voting record. Calling McGovern's anti-war position the "biggest fraud of this campaign," Duncan cited dates and the numbers of the bills on which McGovern had voted supporting the American involvement in Vietnam and he charged that McGovern only became a dove under the Republican administration. The congressman also accused McGovern of being a political opportunist, changing position as public favor demands.

The war remained the dominant theme as the speaker answered questions from the audience. Questioned on his own record concerning the war, Duncan replied that he had never pretended not to support the American war effort. When asked about his position on women's right, Duncan said that he had supported the equal rights bill.

Echo presents literary issue

Once again all artists, poets, and authors are urged to submit their work to the students' literary issue of the Highland Echo, which, as announced last week, will be published at some point during the interim period.

At this time plans are being made to publish a second literary edition during the winter term, if enough students seem to be interested in submitting material, and if there still seems to be a need for an outlet of this sort.

If you have a burning urge to see your efforts in print, please submit any original poems, drawings, or short short stories to Box 2613 before November 15. This is the Echo's last regular issue, so you won't be reminded again. Any and all work must be signed, although, upon request, names can be withheld and pen names substituted.

Nixon wins campus election

The results are in from the Maryville College platform committee and they are as follows:

Presidential election: Nixon over McGovern by five votes

Plank

Economy - Democratic, 129; Republican, 100; Abstain, 43

Busing - Republican, 158; Democratic, 85; Abstain, 28

Defense - Democratic, 145; Republican, 89; Abstain, 38

Vietnam War - Democratic, 121; Republican, 107

The marijuana reform plank captured the largest majority with 130 for legalization, 53 against, 35 uncertain and 44 abstentions.

Editorial

Echo takes rest, offers thanks

As announced in last week's issue, where it may been missed by some, the Highland Echo draws to the close of its first term of publication with this edition. Without seeming to take on an unwarranted note of pride, we think that some congratulations for the staff are in order.

As with any organization with a definite purpose, the Echo could not be published without a vast amount of cooperation and even more patience on the part of its staff. It has taken some time and a great deal of effort to become a team, but at this point we seem to be on our way. For this, I, only one cog in a bigger machine, wish to thank all those people who have given up their time and energy to write, type, sell ads, and perform various other types of what persons not involved in this group might consider slave labor.

The Echo is essentially a student newspaper, although we do try to serve the non-student population as well, and getting it out each and every week is simply a matter of doing the best we can with what we have to work with, to coin a phrase.

So please, have a little sympathy for the staff, because they're doing more behind the scenes than any of you unlucky enough to never have been budding journalists can ever imagine.

We're looking forward to a nice long rest, yes — can you imagine, four weeks without deadlines, waxing machines, and printers —, but we're also looking forward to getting back to the business of supplying all of you with the latest news come January.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

What has happeed to the "Daily" Campus News? There is no way that the newly devised "weekly" Campus News can take its place. Last year some spirit was brought into the Campus News. It had personality. The publication was drafted daily with pertinent facts along with occasional general trivia, and reflected the character to the college community. It let the students, faculty, and administration know about immediate up-coming events.

Now there is the Weekly Campus News. What are its assets? I fail to see any. But its disadvantages are many, for example,

(1) coming out either on Thursday or Friday, which takes away some responsibilities of the Highland Echo;

(2) not providing the community with an up-to-date schedule of affairs;

(3) being put in more than 850 mailboxes, which is probably much more expensive than putting up 25 daily copies at random around the campus (and that budget must be continually watched).

(4) coming out in a stale and formal style. Now few people even take the time to read it closely. Skimming is all it's worth.

The Maryville College Community is in dire need of some personality. Last year's Campus News provided that flavor. This year, what do we have? In my opinion, nothing. It is time to review the "new format," drop it, and return the old.

Janet Vail

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 9 Nov. 10, 1972

editor — Carla Hulce
faculty advisor — Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
business manager — Allen Bunge
lay-out editor — Sarah Winbigler

The HIGHLAND ECHO is printed by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

Society initiations provide laughs

Thursday, November 2 marked Initiation Day for three of MC's four societies, the three being Theta Epsilon, Alpha Sigma, and Kappa Phi. Chi Beta's intitation was held Friday, October 29.

The members of Kappa Phi began their day with an early morning breakfast at the Traveller's Restaurant followed by the informal initation throughout the day with the pledges carrying the traditional Kappa Phi paddles.

That evening the members and pledges met at the Student Center and entertained with a formal ceremony with Bruce Semple as the guest speaker.

Immediately following the formal ceremony, the pledges participated in a treasure hunt, with unexpected surprises(...?) in store for several students. Later that night, the Phi's serenaded the girls' dorms.

The new members of Kappa Phi are Bill Bridge, Barney Harriman, Gene Herron, Doug Leonhardt, Fred Strohl, Chris Baugham, Robert Ponton, and Ben Cole.

Chi Beta sponsored a different kind of initiation this year, with the major activities being held off campus. During the day, on campus, the pledges received points for collecting items in a scavenger hunt with cook most of the day.

At 7:30 that night the members and pledges held a Halloween party at the Davy Crockett Cabins, preceded by a Kangaroo Court interrogation and other traditional initiation activities.

A contest for the most original costume was held, with the lovely and talented Sujean Bradley taking first place. The heartiest congratulations are in order. Judy Penry did an excellent job playing taxi. Chi Beta's new members are Kathy Devey, Chris Nassir, Kathy Kirkhart, Sheryl Lay, Kis Rutledge, Pam Thomson, Cathy Henderson, and Chris Timko.

The pledges of Theta Epsilon experienced a busy, action-filled day as a part of their initiation. Their day began at 6:30 a.m. with a few short laps around the post office, followed by a unique breakfast hour, and in general, a choatic lunch hour and break between classes. This year they were dressed up as Indians.

Mary Ann Ewing enjoyed a delightful dip in the fish pond, and Jan Schanck displayed her talent as a peppermint twist dancer, while Nessa Pettigrew performed a wonderful rendition of "The Meatball Song" to an appropriate big sister (in fact, it was almost quite gross).

Robyn Leng made her debut in Sutton Science Center while Jane Duffy attempted to remain friends with her roommate. The other ledges included Eileen Morris, Helene Hanchett, Linny Tucker, Joy Gomillion, Liz Haemmel, and Jeannie Sherman.

That evening, the usual initiation activities were held and were followed by a reception in the Willard House for all pledges and members.

The men of Alpha Sigma had their initiation traditionally interacting with the Thetas. The day's activities began at breakfast and continued through lunch hour, with the usual initiation taking place at night.

The excitement was highlighted by Moochie Pierce's musical abilities exemplified by his version of "Hound Dog", Craig Larsen's munchkin imitation, Gary Elrod's transportation of the chair, and Mark Hall playing a fine feathered friend (he was really out on a limb).

Mike Ehasz was this year's disabled pledge, and Steve Wolfe was responsible for Miss Ewing's delightful dip in the fish pond. Many of the pledges provided Babara Belt with much literary inspiration.

Alpha Sigma's other new members are Steve Barnes, Wayne Davis, Scott Poland, and Clyde Byars. The night before initation day all the pledges and member serenaded the girls' living quarters.

And after it was all over, the showers seemed to be a popular habitat for another.

guest editorial

Insult not synonym for defense

There has been in the recent campaign a tendency to insult one's opponent rather than present a defense of one's own position. This is more than regretable; it is dangerous.

In any political campaign there are issues. The parties take their stands on the issues and spend the campaign explaining and defending this positions. But when defense becomes a synonym for insult; we have reached a point where we need to go back and examine where we are and what we are doing.

This mudslinging has not been confined to one party or the other. Neither the Republicans nor the Democrats have a corner on it. In fact, it seems that neither can do better.

By the time this is published the election will be over. Who you voted for doesn't matter, because no matter who it was, he has been a part of the muddiest campaign in a long time.

Interim features lessons bagpipe

You've always secretly thought it would be sharp to play some far-out instrument like the bagpipes, but the contraption looked too hairy to approach.

Now two pipers confess all: it ain't that hard. You don't have to be musical to get down just nine notes.

It won't even cost you anything for lessons from Don Gilmore and Susan Henderson (what philanthropy!), and the band has some pipes for the class to use.

However, you will have to buy a book and a practise chanter. A practise chanter is the beginning instrument for the pipes that looks sort of like a recorder.

Long before you learn any fancy gracenote business you'll be able to play folk songs, Rufus Harley-type soul music, and hymns by ear on this simple, primitive woodwind.

The class will begin during interim, but even those who plan on joining the group after Christmas should place an order now.

The book and practise chanter are $19.00, and Don and Susan (Box 2326) need your deposit by Friday, November 17.

Forum returns from contest

The Maryville College FORUM speech team returned to the college last Saturday after competing all day Friday in the Appalachian Mountain Forensic Tournament at Appalachian State University, Boone, North Carolina. No trophies were brought home, but the team received several superior rankings and one member, Janet Vail, was a finalist in Poetry Interpretation.

In a field of schools which often were much larger in size than Maryville and including many state universities, the Maryville College force held its own. Under the active and intense leadership of Blair Beasley, the FORUM sponsor, Maryville's speech organization has initiated a new season with a well-prepared program and encouraging results. Mr. Beasley expressed his pleasure with the team's overall performance. Sparked with momentum, the team awaits its next competition in the near future.

Weekly vespers

In lieu of the usual Sunday vespers, Handel's Messiah will be presented on Sunday, November 12, at 3:00 p.m. in the Wilson Chapel. This is the fortieth annual production of the work at Maryville College.

A Bible Study will be held on Tuesday, November 14, at 9:00 p.m. in the Little Chapel.

Holy Communion will be offered on Wednesday, November 15, at 8:00 a.m. The Rev. Buford Kaylor, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Maryville, will conduct the service in the Little Chapel.

The Thursday worship service will be held on the 16th at 8:40 a.m. in the Little Chapel. Mrs. Pam Rowett, secretary in the Administrative Office, will be the worship leader.

Catcher Skip Jutze of Mineola, N.Y., was the top player in the American Association this year. He played for Tulsa. In September he was brought up to the St. Louis Cardinals.

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

Richard Nixon: the men behind the man

WASHINGTON — In one way - re-elected or not and like it or not - Richard Nixon will surely be remembered as one of the most effective Presidents since Roosevelt.

In four years he has (1) apparently come very close to achieving peace of his sort in the Vietnam conflict which has plagued this country for twelve years; (2) thawed relations with Red China, America's bitterest and most feared enemy for the last quarter of a century; and (3) at the same time eased tensions with Russia, whose leaders aren't even speaking with the Chinese, and who, along with the Chinese, have been directly aiding the North Vietnamese.

Those three accomplishments in themselves mark Nixon as a man of considerable talent, a diplomat to be reckoned with in the affairs of the world.

On the other hand, Nixon has proved astonishingly inept here at home. He has cloistered himself in the White House, surrounded by one of the most brazen and high-handed collection of knuckleheads, klutzes and even crooks to be assembled at one time in the White House in this century. And what is equally remarkable, he refuses to rid himself of the bums, even when faced with irrefutable evidence of their disservice to him and to the democratic process.

Less fortunate still, the President's poor judgment about personal advisors extends as well to his choice for judges and cabinet members, for he has:

— appointed a Chief Justice of the Supreme Court who apparently tries to tell the Speaker of the House of Representatives what laws should and should not be passed.

— appointed a Secretary of Agriculture who within months after his confirmation perpetrated the Great Grain Robbery of all time, and exhibited his scorn for the small farmer whose interests he is supposed to represent.

— appointed a Secretary of Commerce, now his campaign finance chairman, who collects millions of dollars from undisclosed sources, funnels thousands through obscure Mexican bank accounts and defunct corporations, supports a spy operation from a small fortune stashed in his office safe, and has the unmitigated gall to maintain that the whole affair is completely proper.

The mind boggles. Washington hasn't witnessed anything like it since Ulysses S. Grant floundered in the near total corruption of his staff and friends 100 years ago. But the country re-elected Grant, and Nixon, with a 25-point lead, seems headed toward his four more years as well.

If so, we can only hope he will have the good sense to clean house after the victory celebration is over, and find some advisors who will help him devote serious, innovative attention to the problems here at home which have gone begging for the last decade.

But it's a hollow hope, not voiced with much assuredness, for the only people who seem to have Mr. Nixon's ear are those who ought to be kicked out on theirs

Scots regain cool, humble Millsaps

Saturday on Honaker Field the Scots bounced back from their loss to Franklin defeating Millsaps of Jackson, Mississippi, 47-14.

Although the score indicates a one-sided game, this was not the case. In the first half of the contest, the Scots just weren't together. Millsaps looked fairly sharp, but they just couldn't score, credit due to Maryville's defense.

However, in the latter part of the game Maryville toughened up and looked more like the talented team they are.

This victory for the Scots makes their record 6-2. In this win, they snapped the Majors' three-game winning streak, putting their season mark at 3-4.

Maryville opened the scoring early when Joe Costner threw a 13-yard TD pass to Dean Harden. Glenn White's extra point attempt was good and the Scots led 7-0.

In the second quarter both teams tallied. Costner hit Mike Butler with an eight-yard pass play for six points. The extra point attempt was unsuccessful, and the score was 13-0.

The Majors put points on the board when Dale Keyes handed off to Hughs for a one-yard plunge into the end zone. Doug Brindley added the point after to make it 13-6 at half time.

In the third quarter, the Scots exploded, putting twenty-one points on the board. Costner hit Butler from fifteen yards out for a TD. Leon Hart threw to Dean Harden in the end zone for the two-point conversion. Maryville's lead widened 21-7.

The next scoring play was a pitch-out to fullback Robert Callaway. The four-yard run added six points to the score. White's kick was unsuccessful.

Once again in this quarter the Scots made points as Bill Corbett ran in from the five. White connected this time, and the margin grew 34-7.

In the opening of the fourth quarter, Maryville fans had a scare; Costner was shaken up on a pass play. Although he left the field on his own power, Joe sat out the remainder of the game.

Freshman quarterback Andy first play he hit Mike Butler for a 32-yard touchdown pass. Glenn White's extra point made the score 41-7.

During this final quarter Millsaps made its second and final score. Dale Keyes found his receiver Aldy wide open, and fired the ball to him. This strike was good for thirty-two yards and a touchdown. Brindley again added an extra point, but Maryville still held a commanding 41-4 lead.

The final score came when Clarence Higgs blocked a Keyes punt. Higgs then pursued the ball and managed to get it across the goal line. The final score was Maryville 47, Millsaps. 14.

Quarterback Joe Costner threw 3 TD strikes Saturday, bringing his season total to twenty-seven. Costner was 18 for 36, passing for 188 yards.

The Scots' back-up quarterback Andy Banas did another excellent job in relief. He was four out of ten, netting a touchdown.

Mike Butler was the Scots' key receiver Saturday snaring eight passes for 77 yards. In this game,

Butler picks off another pass

Calloway races for goal during Saturday's game

Butler passed the 1,000 milestone in reception yardage.

Dean Harden pulled in a TD pass and a conversion reception. Tight end Don Scott added strength to the line and made a remarkable sideline reception.

Running backs Bill Baggett, Bill Corbett, and Robert Callaway carried the rushing attack. Callaway also handled punting chores, getting away all his kicks under heavy pressure.

Offensive center Bill Nuss made his first reception of the year, grabbing a pass deflected by a Major defender. This was good for a one-yard gain.

On defense, the Scots did a good job jumping on Millsaps' hobbles. Larry Frye, Steve Prochaska, and David Clinton each recovered fumbles. Jeff Hamilton made a good runback of an interception, and Leon Hart intercepted a pass in the end zone.

Linebacker David Warwick played a good game, breaking up several passes. Randy Minor returned to the line-up in the defensive secondary. His wrist still not fully healed, he made several good attempts at interceptions.

Game Statistics

	MC	Mill.
First Downs	23	20
Yds. Rushing	200	138
Yds. Passing	250	250
Passes	44-22-1	46-21-2
Punts	6-33.6 avg.	9-26.1 avg.

Tomorrow on Honaker Field the Scots play host to Southwestern College from Memphis, Tennessee. This is the Scots'last game of the season.

Antioch offers counseling

Yellow Springs, O. — (I.P.) — There are many supportive services for students at Antioch College along with psychological supports, and even alternative ways of providing student counseling.

Whatever the way, though, there is a problem common to all communities, not just colleges, of providing enough help to meet the need. What follows is a description of an experiment the authors, Roy Persons and Carl Clark, Counselors at Antioch, have undertaken to use student counselors as a way of multiplying sources of help.

Beginning in 1970-71, the Antioch Counseling Service embarked on an educational program for developing selected undergraduates into functioning psychotherapists both within the Service and in other settings. By the end of 1971 the student therapists had completed about a thousand hours of individual therapy.

They had conducted group therapy sessions, encounter groups, groups for staff employees, and marathons and had handled emergencies. They has also taught courses, served as consultants, and presented a colloquium at a convention. The program was initiated with several basic assumptions and convictions:

(a) that lengthy postgraduate professional training was not necessary for a person to function as a psychotherapist; (b) that people with personal characteristics such as interpersonal sensitivity, warmth, strength, and so on could rapidly develop therapeutic skills; (c) that trained peers could be just as effective, if not more effective than professionals; (d) that psychology as a profession had been derelict in offering skill courses to undergraduates; and (e) that B.A.-level practitioners were one of our potential resources in the mental health crisis.

Developing a training program for peer therapists appeared to be not only a method for answering the requests of students needing psychological services but one more flexible, more in touch with the students, and more student-oriented. The program for out therapists-in-training was not developed with the philosophy of teaching them ways of doing therapy, of having them adopt a theoretical position.

They did not want to produce a "trained" therapist, but instead student's developing his own personal skills. Their assumption was that the essence of becoming a good therapist was developing a style that was true to one's own personhood rather than learning a theoretical approach from one of the schools of therapy.

The students selected were people whom one of the staff had personally known and had recommended. The eight interns ranged from sophomores to seniors, three were married, six were women and two men, and five were studying psychology. The training program consisted of ten to twelve hours of seminars and conferences weekly, individual supervision, readings in psychotherapy, tapes and films on therapy, workshops, and a personal growth group for our trainees.

The seminars dealt with theory as it relates to a current problem, with ethics, with intervention techniques, with learning how to relate to others in an honest, emphatetic fashion, and with consultation (as well as emergencies) and personal issues.

Initially the students did co-group or co-individual therapy with one of the counseling staff members with concurrent supervision. The next step in the progression was to have two of the trainees work together with the guidance staff member. Finally the more experienced trainees now either work alone or with one of the less experienced trainees. The trainees have dealt with the full range of severity of personal problems and have conducted groups for students who were not looking for help with problems, but who were seeking personal growth and greater emotional closeness to others. The interns received either academic credit, pay, or both for participating in the program.

The students began by working with their fellow Antioch students. All of the clients were asked if they would participate with an intern, and for the entire year fewer than ten students were unwilling to do so. By the second quarter of the program other places began requesting the trainees to work and train in their settings.

In addition to working at Antioch, the trainees currently train and work one day a week at the psychiatric unit of Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, assist at the Dayton Free Counseling Service and at the Adolescent Unit of the Ohio State Medical Center, and work with people in Yellow Springs who cannot afford therapy from private practitioners.

When the trainees ended counseling with a student, the student was asked to complete a questionnaire evaluating the experience. The overwhelming majority of students thought that their time with the trainees had been meaningful and helpful. A representative client response to part of the questionnaire was this:

"I was a little skeptical of people that were not professionals being skillful enough to help me. I had been to a shrink before and thought that a trainee would not be as helpful. I was wrong, and I found out that being a professional shrink makes no difference. The basic knack and-or motivation for counseling is of primary importance and the degree is a very secondary thing."

Own your own profitable vending business. $200 to $600 monthly earnings possible in your spare time (day or eve.). No Selling. If selected, you will be servicing company established locations. OUR COMPANY IS A SUPPLIER OF NABISCO SNACK ITEMS. (secured by machines and merchandise) good character, dependable auto, and 6 to 9 spare hours weekly. Income starts immed-immediately! We supply product, machines, locations, expansion financing, buy back option, and continuous professional guidance. If you are sincerely interested in applying for this genuine opportunity toward financial success, please call or write for personal interview in your area to:

Mr. P. H. Kennedy Sr.
4002 Meadows Drive
Indianapolis, Indiana 46205
Telephone: 317-545-7861

Follow your heart to

TON Jewelers
113 E. Broadway
Maryville, Tenn. 37801
982-0141

HOUSE OF DIAMONDS
DIAMONDS REMOUNTED

"EASY CREDIT TERMS"

WEDDING GIFTS
ROLEX WATCHES
BULOVA WATCHES
PERSONAL GIFTS

C. R. TIPTON, OWNER

Ask about our new ..... RING OF RADIANCE that will increase the visual size of a center diamond 2 times.

College students — come by and pick up your free gift!

CLOSE-OUT SALE
ALL MERCHANDISE ON OUR BROADWAY LEVEL EXCEPT MAGAZINES, BOOKS, CARDS, FILM, FLASHBULBS, CANDY, GUM, TOBACCO
25% OFF NOV. 11 to 17
30- 30% OFF NOV. 18 to 24
35% OFF NOV. 25 to DEC. 1
40% OFF DEC. 2 to 8
45% OFF DEC. 9 to 15
50% OFF DEC. 16 to 24
WATCH FOR GRAND OPENING OF THE NEWEST DISCOUNT PHOTO STORE
FOTO FAIR
PARK DRUG STORE 106 EAST BROADWAY

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES
on Highway 73 in Townsend
ANNOUNCING
VERY SPECIAL RATES
TO M.C.
STUDENTS
on overnight pack trips & ½-day rides.
Open weekends and weekdays by appoint-ment.
CALL 46-6411

shop at
POTPOURRI
for the latest in posters
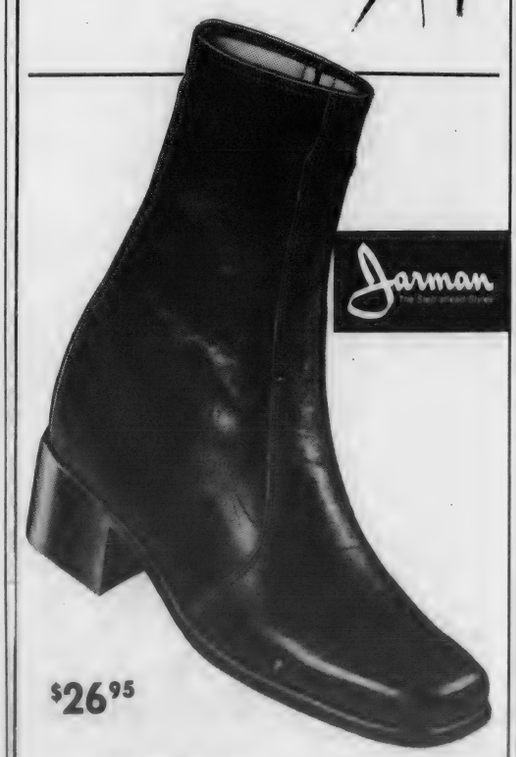
candles
black lights
incense
patches



Southern shoes

A New High in Fashion... Jarman's DRESS BOOT

Here's another Jarman entry in the fashion sweepstakes — and this boot has all it takes to be a winner! It's crafted of soft-as-butter leather, has convenient zipper and resilient tricot lining. Try this winner and you'll want to buy a pair to wear with your suits and blazers.

$26.95

Brown Leather
Black Leather

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 10 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | January 19, 1973

Comp class to discuss technical writing

Clifford A. Burchsted, Senior Engineering Specialist at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, will discuss technical writing on Tuesday, January 23, in the Advanced Composition class at Maryville College, according to Professor Elizabeth T. Fowler.

Subjects to be discussed include writing scientific standards, editing technical reports and papers, interpreting scientific information, and vocational opportunities for students interested in both science and writing. A registered professional engineer, Mr. Burchsted has been with Union Carbide Company at Oak Ridge since 1952 and since 1962 has been engaged in the nuclear air cleaning program. As speaker, writer, advisor, and consultant, Mr. Burchsted is concerned primarily with the safety standards for nuclear power plants. He is the author of 12 technical reports, 18 technical papers, and a handbook for preparation of technical reports.

A question-answer period will follow Mr. Burchsted's presentation. Anyone interested in more effective scientific writing is invited to meet the members of the Advanced Composition class next Tuesday. The place is Anderson 316 and the time is E-hour.

Saturday projects to aid community

A part of the January Meeting calendar, a variety of off-campus work projects has been set up for this Saturday afternoon, January 20. The project will offer campus volunteers an opportunity to help out in the local community. All the projects will operate from two through four o'clock and will originate from the College's chapel courtyard.

Among the activities will be:

1) Assisting the Blount County FISH organization pick up donated furniture to be distributed later to those in need;
2) Setting up a library at the local Boys' Club building;
3) Painting the newly-established Senegalese-Ibo Community Center in Alcoa;
4) Visiting the elderly at Asbury Acres and at Parkside Housing Project;
5) Cleaning, scrubbing, extending a helping hand.

All transportation to and from will be provided. In case of rain, all the activities will continue as planned.

Resistration before Saturday afternoon is not necessary. However, the College Chaplain's office will provide the opportunity for persons at any time. The Chaplain's Office will also supply additional information on any of the work projects.

January meetings to continue

The crowded calendar of activities in conjunction with Maryville College's annual January Meetings program will extend through Sunday evening, January 21. This year's theme, "There Is Hope but . . .," will serve as the focus for most of the activities.

The weekend calendar includes:

Friday afternoon, January 19

1:30 Faculty-Led Seminars Concerning the theme.

1. "Heavens on Earth: Promises and Fallacies of Hope" – Marjorie Kratz, Arda Walker, Wallace Lewis, Russell Parker – Thaw Hall 216.
2. "Tuning In to the People Around You" – Donald Elia – Fine Arts Center Lounge.
3. "A Symbiotic Relationship Between Man and the Computer: Is It An Answer?" – Norman Love – Sutton Science Center 113.

4:00 Jessee Owens, former Olympic track champion, will meet in the Health & Physical Education Building with anyone interested in seeing him.

Friday evening, January 19

7:00 A Program of Appalachian Music with Lee and Jean Shilling singing and playing a hand-crafted dulcimer. (Back by popular demand from last year.)

9:00 Movie "Cool Hand Luke" in the College Theatre. No admission charge. Following the movie, refreshments will be available along with opportunities for rap sessions.

Saturday, January 20

9:30 a.m. An art workshop lead by Bill Swenson in the Fine Arts Center.

2:00 Off-Campus Work Projects

5:30 Supper in the homes of Maryville College faculty and staff personnel.

9:00 Country Hoe-Down and Square Dance at Health & Physical Education Building. David Cartlidge at the callin' block.

11:00 p.m. – 1:00 a.m. Rock Concert and Dance featuring SAGE, a top local band presenting Rusty Chambers on drums.

Sunday, January 21

morning-Everyone is encouraged to attend the church of his choice.

7:00 p.m. Communion Vespers culminating January Meetings. The service, conducted by Dr. Joseph Copeland, Rev. Richard Harrison, and Rev. Claude Stewart, will feature the College's Concert Choir. Other participants include Coralie Usrey, Matthew Couzens, Jay Davies, Emerson Henderson, Gary Thibodeau, and Phil Ziglar.

Interim opens eyes

By Sarah Winbigler

By now winter term has set in, and thoughts of all but the best interims have been tossed aside in the confusion of getting down to work again.

My own interim is still alive and well in my mind, and I have been asked (at gunpoint, of course) to share my adventures. For the first time, I took advantage of the provision for independent interims, and November 27 found me departing with great joy (and many butterflies) for Vienna, Austria, where I was to learn to play the recorder.

In retrospect, I must confess that the entire project began as sort of an "end-of-the-term-let's-think-of-something-entertaining" idea. Since my brother is currently studying the recorder in Vienna, accomodations and lessons were no problem. I had never played a wind instrument before and was intrigued by the idea, and I was especially intrigued by the prospect of seeing Europe for the first time.

I found a willing and helpful sponsor in band director Mr. Dan Stallings, so the only remaining hurdle was to have my proposal approved by the Interim Committee. Those were not days of rampant optimism: my standard reply to those who commented, "Maybe your interim will be approved" was "Maybe the sun will fall out of the sky!"

Much to my surprise and delight, the Committee did approve my proposal, making my faint hope into a reality. After securing a passport, a plane ticket, and invalid International Health card validating an unnecessary smallpox vaccination, and a fresh supply of dramamine, I went forth to explore the world.

In many ways it was a difficult step to take. I spoke not a word of German, and I was pretty much on my own, fully aware that the consequences of whatever happened would be on my head. The flight itself was a bit unnerving-my heartbeat accelerated every time we hit an air pocket.

Once in Vienna, I began making the adjustment to a totally different way of life. Those first few days were miserable – I couldn't understand a word anyone said, the food was the strangest I had ever eaten, the city was large and frightening, and worst of all, recorder-playing was turning out to be an insurmountable task.

But after a few days, my provincial little mind began to seem a little shabby as I explored magnificent cathedrals, palaces, and museums.

I was fascinated by the people and their culture. I realized what a mistake it was to go to Vienna without learning to speak German – it prevented me from really getting to know the people. Despite the language barrier, however, I learned a great deal about the simple, uncluttered lives of the Viennese, and the relaxed life style appealed to me greatly.

My "landmsrk moments" during the first few weeks included my first solo trip into the city; my first attempt to make a purchase in German; the day I became hopelessly lost in downtown Vienna; and the day I managed to produce my first steady, even tone of the recorder.

Let me interject here that learning to play the recorder was an uphill battle all the way. I had anticipated no trouble – I couldn't see how such a small instrument could present any problems at all, and I had expected to become something of a virtuoso by the end of the first week. Alas, at the end of the first week I was still trying to muster enough coordination to blow and keep all the holes covered at the same time. Eventually I did improve enough to have several short pieces to present to Mr. Stallings on my return.

In addition to Vienna, I also visited Venice and Florence before my return home on December 27. It was hard to leave, and I spent a large portion of the flight home trying to think of some justification for another trip.

Putting into words what I gained from the experience is extremely difficult. Of course, I learned to play the recorder, and that, technically, was my goal, but there was much more. I gained a deeper appreciation of history, an increased love for art and music, and above all, a profound affection and respect for different people and their culture.

Plan now to find King Arthur

Did you enjoy your 1972 Interim? What are your plans for next year's Interim? Would you be interested in an overseas experience?

Mrs. Herma Cate and Dr. Elizabeth Fowler are completing plans this week for another "In Search of King Arthur" tour in 1973. Several junior and senior students who participated in the King Arthur Interim in 1970 remember the delightful old hotels and delicious meals enjoyed during the eight-day land tour of rural England. One major change is being made in the 1973 plans: a three-day excursion to the continent will be included to search for roots of the medieval adaptations of the Arthurian legend in northern France.

Among the places to be visited in England are Canterbury, Dover, Rye, Hastings, Portsmouth, Southampton, Salisbury, Stonehenge, Oxford, Coventry, Stratford, Wales, Tintagel, St. Ives, Land's End, Cadbury, Glastonbury, Wells, and Bath. Five days will be spent in London.

Dates of the trip are November 27-December 20; the cost will be between $670 and $685, New York to New York. The group will be limited to twenty-five. Already more than twenty have expressed their desire to be included in the group. If you think you might go, why not see Mrs. Cate or Dr. Fowler in Anderson Hall and indicate your interest?

Antioch offers counseling

Yellow Springs, O. — (I.P.) — There are many supportive services for students at Antioch College along with psychological supports, and even alternative ways of providing student counseling.

Whatever the way, though, there is a problem common to all communities, not just colleges, of providing enough help to meet the need. What follows is a description of an experiment the authors, Roy Persons and Carl Clark, Counselors at Antioch, have undertaken to use student counselors as a way of multiplying sources of help.

Beginning in 1970-71, the Antioch Counseling Service embarked on an educational program for developing selected undergraduates into functioning psychotherapists both within the Service and in other settings. By the end of 1971 the student therapists had completed about a thousand hours of individual therapy.

They had conducted group therapy sessions, encounter groups, groups for staff employees, and marathons and had handled emergencies. They has also taught courses, served as consultants, and presented a colloquium at a convention. The program was initiated with several basic assumptions and convictions:

(a) that lengthy postgraduate professional training was not necessary for a person to function as a psychotherapist; (b) that people with personal characteristics such as interpersonal sensitivity, warmth, strength, and so on could rapidly develop therapeutic skills; (c) that trained peers could be just as effective, if not more effective than professionals; (d) that psychology as a profession had been derelict in offering skill courses to undergraduates; and (e) that B.A.-level practitioners were one of our potential resources in the mental health crisis.

Developing a training program for peer therapists appeared to be not only a method for answering the requests of students needing psychological services but one more flexible, more in touch with the students, and more student-oriented. The program for out therapists-in-training was not developed with the philosophy of teaching them ways of doing therapy, of having them adopt a theoretical position.

They did not want to produce a "trained" therapist, but instead student's developing his own personal skills. Their assumption was that the essence of becoming a good therapist was developing a style that was true to one's own personhood rather than learning a theoretical approach from one of the schools of therapy.

The students selected were people whom one of the staff had personally known and had recommended. The eight interns ranged from sophomores to seniors, three were married, six were women and two men, and five were studying psychology. The training program consisted of ten to twelve hours of seminars and conferences weekly, individual supervision, readings in psychotherapy, tapes and films on therapy, workshops, and a personal growth group for our trainees.

The seminars dealt with theory as it relates to a current problem, with ethics, with intervention techniques, with learning how to relate to others in an honest, emphatetic fashion, and with consultation (as well as emergencies) and personal issues.

Initially the students did co-group or co-individual therapy with one of the counseling staff members with concurrent supervision. The next step in the progression was to have two of the trainees work together with the guidance staff member. Finally the more experienced trainees now either work alone or with one of the less experienced trainees. The trainees have dealt with the full range of severity of personal problems and have conducted groups for students who were not looking for help with problems, but who were seeking personal growth and greater emotional closeness to others. The interns received either academic credit, pay, or both for participating in the program.

The students began by working with their fellow Antioch students. All of the clients were asked if they would participate with an intern, and for the entire year fewer than ten students were unwilling to do so. By the second quarter of the program other places began requesting the trainees to work and train in their settings.

In addition to working at Antioch, the trainees currently train and work one day a week at the psychiatric unit of Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, assist at the Dayton Free Counseling Service and at the Adolescent Unit of the Ohio State Medical Center, and work with people in Yellow Springs who cannot afford therapy from private practitioners.

When the trainees ended counseling with a student, the student was asked to complete a questionnaire evaluating the experience. The overwhelming majority of students thought that their time with the trainees had been meaningful and helpful. A representative client response to part of the questionnaire was this:

"I was a little skeptical of people that were not professionals being skillful enough to help me. I had been to a shrink before and thought that a trainee would not be as helpful. I was wrong, and I found out that being a professional shrink makes no difference. The basic knack and-or motivation for counseling is of primary importance and the degree is a very secondary thing."

Own your own profitable vending business. $200 to $600 monthly earnings possible in your spare time (day or eve.). No Selling. If selected, you will be servicing company established locations. OUR COMPANY IS A SUPPLIER OF NABISCO SNACK ITEMS. (secured by machines and merchandise) good character, dependable auto, and 6 to 9 spare hours weekly. Income starts immed-immediately! We supply product, machines, locations, expansion financing, buy back option, and continuous professional guidance. If you are sincerely interested in applying for this genuine opportunity toward financial success, please call or write for personal interview in your area to:

Mr. P. H. Kennedy Sr.
4002 Meadows Drive
Indianapolis, Indiana 46205
Telephone: 317-545-7861

Follow your heart to

TON
Jewelers
113 E. Broadway
Maryville, Tenn. 37801
982-0141

HOUSE OF DIAMONDS
DIAMONDS REMOUNTED

"EASY CREDIT TERMS"

WEDDING GIFTS
ROLEX WATCHES
BULOVA WATCHES
PERSONAL GIFTS

C. R. TIPTON, OWNER

Ask about our new ... RING OF RADIANCE that will increase the visual size of a center diamond 2 times.

College students — come by and pick up your free gift!

DAVY CROCKETT STABLES
on Highway 73 in Townsend
ANNOUNCING
VERY SPECIAL RATES
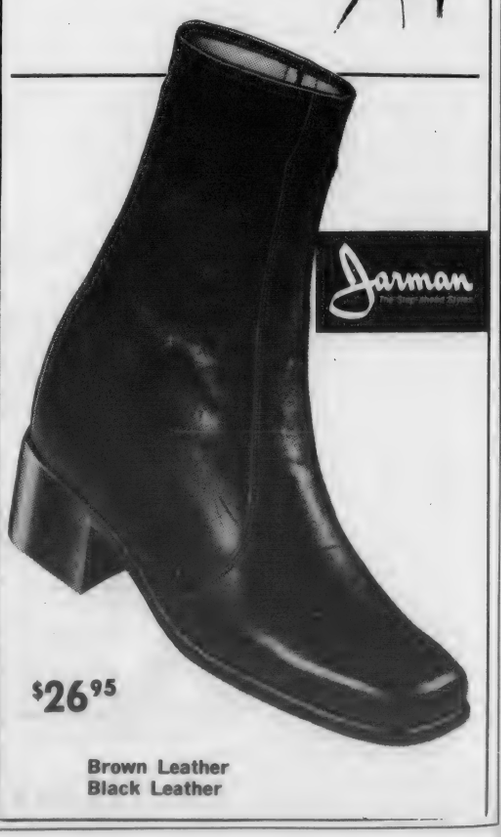
TO M.C.
STUDENTS
on overnight pack trips & ½-day rides.
Open weekends and weekdays by appointment.
CALL 45-6411



CLOSE-OUT SALE
ALL MERCHANDISE ON OUR BROADWAY LEVEL EXCEPT MAGAZINES, BOOKS, CARDS, FILM, FLASHBULBS, CANDY, GUM, TOBACCO
25% OFF NOV. 11 to 17
30- 30% OFF NOV. 18 to 24
35% OFF NOV. 25 to DEC. 1
40% OFF DEC. 2 to 8
45% OFF DEC. 9 to 15
50% OFF DEC. 16 to 24
WATCH FOR GRAND OPENING OF THE NEWEST DISCOUNT PHOTO STORE
FOTO FAIR
PARK DRUG STORE 106 EAST BROADWAY

shop at
POTPOURRI
for the latest in posters
candles
black lights
incense
patches

Southern shoes
A New High in Fashion...
Jarman's DRESS BOOT

Here's another Jarman entry in the fashion sweepstakes — and this boot has all it takes to be a winner! It's crafted of soft-as-butter leather, has convenient zipper and resilient tricot lining. Try this winner and you'll want to buy a pair to wear with your suits and blazers.

$26.95

Brown Leather
Black Leather

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 10 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | January 19, 1973

Comp class to discuss technical writing

Clifford A. Burchsted, Senior Engineering Specialist at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, will discuss technical writing on Tuesday, January 23, in the Advanced Composition class at Maryville College, according to Professor Elizabeth T. Fowler.

Subjects to be discussed include writing scientific standards, editing technical reports and papers, interpreting scientific information, and vocational opportunities for students interested in both science and writing. A registered professional engineer, Mr. Burchsted has been with Union Carbide Company at Oak Ridge since 1952 and since 1962 has been engaged in the nuclear air cleaning program. As speaker, writer, advisor, and consultant, Mr. Burchsted is concerned primarily with the safety standards for nuclear power plants. He is the author of 12 technical reports, 18 technical papers, and a handbook for preparation of technical reports.

A question-answer period will follow Mr. Burchsted's presentation. Anyone interested in more effective scientific writing is invited to meet the members of the Advanced Composition class next Tuesday. The place is Anderson 316 and the time is E-hour.

Saturday projects to aid community

A part of the January Meeting calendar, a variety of off-campus work projects has been set up for this Saturday afternoon, January 20. The project will offer campus volunteers an opportunity to help out in the local community. All the projects will operate from two through four o'clock and will originate from the College's chapel courtyard.

Among the activities will be:

1) Assisting the Blount County FISH organization pick up donated furniture to be distributed later to those in need;
2) Setting up a library at the local Boys' Club building;
3) Painting the newly-established Senegalese-Ibo Community Center in Alcoa;
4) Visiting the elderly at Asbury Acres and at Parkside Housing Project;
5) Cleaning, scrubbing, extending a helping hand.

All transportation to and from will be provided. In case of rain, all the activities will continue as planned.

Resistration before Saturday afternoon is not necessary. However, the College Chaplain's office will provide the opportunity for persons at any time. The Chaplain's Office will also supply additional information on any of the work projects.

January meetings to continue

The crowded calendar of activities in conjunction with Maryville College's annual January Meetings program will extend through Sunday evening, January 21. This year's theme, "There Is Hope but . . .," will serve as the focus for most of the activities.

The weekend calendar includes:

Friday afternoon, January 19

1:30 Faculty-Led Seminars Concerning the theme.

1. "Heavens on Earth: Promises and Fallacies of Hope" – Marjorie Kratz, Arda Walker, Wallace Lewis, Russell Parker – Thaw Hall 216.
2. "Tuning In to the People Around You" – Donald Elia – Fine Arts Center Lounge.
3. "A Symbiotic Relationship Between Man and the Computer: Is It An Answer?" – Norman Love – Sutton Science Center 113.

4:00 Jessee Owens, former Olympic track champion, will meet in the Health & Physical Education Building with anyone interested in seeing him.

Friday evening, January 19

7:00 A Program of Appalachian Music with Lee and Jean Shilling singing and playing a hand-crafted dulcimer. (Back by popular demand from last year.)

9:00 Movie "Cool Hand Luke" in the College Theatre. No admission charge. Following the movie, refreshments will be available along with opportunities for rap sessions.

Saturday, January 20

9:30 a.m. An art workshop lead by Bill Swenson in the Fine Arts Center.

2:00 Off-Campus Work Projects

5:30 Supper in the homes of Maryville College faculty and staff personnel.

9:00 Country Hoe-Down and Square Dance at Health & Physical Education Building. David Cartlidge at the callin' block.

11:00 p.m. – 1:00 a.m. Rock Concert and Dance featuring SAGE, a top local band presenting Rusty Chambers on drums.

Sunday, January 21

morning-Everyone is encouraged to attend the church of his choice.

7:00 p.m. Communion Vespers culminating January Meetings. The service, conducted by Dr. Joseph Copeland, Rev. Richard Harrison, and Rev. Claude Stewart, will feature the College's Concert Choir. Other participants include Coralie Usrey, Matthew Couzens, Jay Davies, Emerson Henderson, Gary Thibodeau, and Phil Ziglar.

Interim opens eyes

By Sarah Winbigler

By now winter term has set in, and thoughts of all but the best interims have been tossed aside in the confusion of getting down to work again.

My own interim is still alive and well in my mind, and I have been asked (at gunpoint, of course) to share my adventures. For the first time, I took advantage of the provision for independent interims, and November 27 found me departing with great joy (and many butterflies) for Vienna, Austria, where I was to learn to play the recorder.

In retrospect, I must confess that the entire project began as sort of an "end-of-the-term-let's-think-of-something-entertaining" idea. Since my brother is currently studying the recorder in Vienna, accomodations and lessons were no problem. I had never played a wind instrument before and was intrigued by the idea, and I was especially intrigued by the prospect of seeing Europe for the first time.

I found a willing and helpful sponsor in band director Mr. Dan Stallings, so the only remaining hurdle was to have my proposal approved by the Interim Committee. Those were not days of rampant optimism: my standard reply to those who commented, "Maybe your interim will be approved" was "Maybe the sun will fall out of the sky!"

Much to my surprise and delight, the Committee did approve my proposal, making my faint hope into a reality. After securing a passport, a plane ticket, and invalid International Health card validating an unnecessary smallpox vaccination, and a fresh supply of dramamine, I went forth to explore the world.

In many ways it was a difficult step to take. I spoke not a word of German, and I was pretty much on my own, fully aware that the consequences of whatever happened would be on my head. The flight itself was a bit unnerving-my heartbeat accelerated every time we hit an air pocket.

Once in Vienna, I began making the adjustment to a totally different way of life. Those first few days were miserable – I couldn't understand a word anyone said, the food was the strangest I had ever eaten, the city was large and frightening, and worst of all, recorder-playing was turning out to be an insurmountable task.

But after a few days, my provincial little mind began to seem a little shabby as I explored magnificent cathedrals, palaces, and museums.

I was fascinated by the people and their culture. I realized what a mistake it was to go to Vienna without learning to speak German – it prevented me from really getting to know the people. Despite the language barrier, however, I learned a great deal about the simple, uncluttered lives of the Viennese, and the relaxed life style appealed to me greatly.

My "landmsrk moments" during the first few weeks included my first solo trip into the city; my first attempt to make a purchase in German; the day I became hopelessly lost in downtown Vienna; and the day I managed to produce my first steady, even tone of the recorder.

Let me interject here that learning to play the recorder was an uphill battle all the way. I had anticipated no trouble – I couldn't see how such a small instrument could present any problems at all, and I had expected to become something of a virtuoso by the end of the first week. Alas, at the end of the first week I was still trying to muster enough coordination to blow and keep all the holes covered at the same time. Eventually I did improve enough to have several short pieces to present to Mr. Stallings on my return.

In addition to Vienna, I also visited Venice and Florence before my return home on December 27. It was hard to leave, and I spent a large portion of the flight home trying to think of some justification for another trip.

Putting into words what I gained from the experience is extremely difficult. Of course, I learned to play the recorder, and that, technically, was my goal, but there was much more. I gained a deeper appreciation of history, an increased love for art and music, and above all, a profound affection and respect for different people and their culture.

Plan now to find King Arthur

Did you enjoy your 1972 Interim? What are your plans for next year's Interim? Would you be interested in an overseas experience?

Mrs. Herma Cate and Dr. Elizabeth Fowler are completing plans this week for another "In Search of King Arthur" tour in 1973. Several junior and senior students who participated in the King Arthur Interim in 1970 remember the delightful old hotels and delicious meals enjoyed during the eight-day land tour of rural England. One major change is being made in the 1973 plans: a three-day excursion to the continent will be included to search for roots of the medieval adaptations of the Arthurian legend in northern France.

Among the places to be visited in England are Canterbury, Dover, Rye, Hastings, Portsmouth, Southampton, Salisbury, Stonehenge, Oxford, Coventry, Stratford, Wales, Tintagel, St. Ives, Land's End, Cadbury, Glastonbury, Wells, and Bath. Five days will be spent in London.

Dates of the trip are November 27-December 20; the cost will be between $670 and $685, New York to New York. The group will be limited to twenty-five. Already more than twenty have expressed their desire to be included in the group. If you think you might go, why not see Mrs. Cate or Dr. Fowler in Anderson Hall and indicate your interest?

Editorial

Where do we go from here?

By Patti Shelton

The question of whether college life prepares the student for living in society or is itself a microcosm of that society is a much-discussed issue at Maryville.

Probably there is no answer to that question. Rather, one must examine the life-style of a college to determine how accurate a reflection it is of the values and beliefs of the outside world.

Today it is no longer simply a matter of finding one's niche at the termination of the college years. It has become a matter of survival for the entire culture.

In Beyond Freedom and Dignity, B.F. Skinner says that in the end a culture is judged only by its ability to survive. If this is true, our culture has reached the critical point in over-concumption and under-replenishing and a student is justified in asking whether Maryville College, or any other similar institution, is committed to instilling survival values.

Survival values consist of a respect for the earth, an awareness of its limitations, and a determination to be as gentle to it as possible. Survival necessitates commitment to these values and, as a friend of mine has observed, this commitment in turn necessitates sacrifice.

Maryville College is full of "haves." Although the majority of students here are far from wealthy, poor people simply do not attend this school. Thus we are accustomed to lights, water, and paper in infinite supply; yet these are the very resources we are consuming at an appalingly fast rate and replacing at an appallingly low one.

If the techniques and values of survival are to be instilled into our society at large, it is imperative that they begin to be taught here and now.

The transmission of these values can only come about when the administration of this college makes a commitment to caring enough about ecology, population, and energy crises to sacrifice a few students, if necessary, who are unwilling to accept these values.

This commitment may mean hardship for faculty and administration as well as students. But first and foremost it means acceptance of a new life-style at MC: one of concern and awareness — of survival.

A challenge term is born

In 1970 a group of graduating seniors prepared an in depth evaluation of the academic program at Maryville. One of the ideas they generated was that of a term called the Walden Option. They wrote: "The 'Walden' term is one in which an inidividual can reach out, try to find himself, and share with his fellows."

Beginning in October a small group began to amplify and develop this idea into an experiment renamed the Challenge Term. Approval for this exploration in the winter term was granted by the Instructional Program Committee and the All College Council at the end of the Interim. The central purpose of the Challenge Term is to provide an educational option in which students assume the major responsibility for motivation and growth so that they challenge themselves in a supportive environment to stretch and explore as they never have before. The emphasis is being placed on self-motivation and self-definition of learning goals which is a part of the catalog statement on purposes and objectives: "(The student) is free to ask questions, to doubt, and to evaluate as he searches for his own answers and attempts to establish his own identity and his own assumptions."

The Challenge Term calls for commitment to two contracts — one on an individual basis concerning the goals, methods and evaluation procedures to be used for an area of study defined by the student and one on a group basis concerning the exploration of experimental education and the relationship of a group experience to the learning process. The individual has freedom based on self-directed goals, whereas the group will strive for a discipline that relates to the universal Everystudent role being exchanged for one in which commitment to values and positions is openly confronted. The individual contracts will be evaluated by a panel of three (at least two faculty) and the group contract by a panel of three faculty and each person in the group.

The Challenge Term experiment represents the planting of another seed in the area of individualized options at Maryville. For it to be a success we will have to be in contact with the campus community, so we'll be looking at you and invite you to look at us too. Our meeting place will be in the library in the room to the far right as you enter through the front door.

Summing it all up: Jonathan Livingston Seagull is flying on the Maryville campus!

The Challenge Term Gang,

Deborah Mattson
Beverly Branham
Lynn Mitchell
Phil Gibson
Tom Bledsoe
Tricia Lloyd
Chris Baughman
Alan Furth
Dave Young

guest editorial

What value January Meetings?

By Wiley Rutledge

At this point in time, the Maryville campus is in the middle of that annual thing known as January Meetings. These meetings were dubbled "mid term" vacation by a friend of mine as a joke, but as I applied some thought to what this man had said, I began to realize that he wasn't joking.

If one looks around the campus the week before January Meetings, the term "mid term vacation" takes on a stark reality. Stop four people on the street and at least two of them will tell you that they will be gone for the week-end of the meetings. One other will probably tell you that he would leave, but he is compelled to remain on campus for some reason. In the face of this two questions present themselves: Why do the students leave and how can we keep them here?; and is there any value to January Meetings?

In answer to the first question, there is really very little that can be added to the situation as it stands now. The students leave because it's easier to go home than it is to stay and be challenged. There is little that can be done about this, and it is not my purpose to moralize to these students. We could keep them here if we could find a way to compel them to stay, but that would destroy the purpose and spirit of January Meetings, and I would rather not have the meetings than have them and compel people to go to them.

Is there value to January Meetings? The answer to that is an unqualified Yes. Those who attend are challenged to reexamine their values, whatever they are, and they are better for it. It is a unique opportunity to think and learn without the usual pressures that come with academic life. January Meetings have a great value. We cannot keep the people who leave from leaving, but we can keep the entire campus from suffering because of a delinquent few.

"Dear Erma. . ."

Erma Q. Zingdip

Editor's Note: In order to provide a full spectrum of important information for intelligent, serious readers, The Highland Echo in this issue presents an intelligent, serious, important, informative column. It deals with vital topics of the day and answers your questions about serious, important subjects. If you are serious enough to like this intelligent column, send us your important, thought-provoking questions next week. This time we're printing our own questions because you didn't send us any.

The Editors.

Dear Erma,

When I picked up my phone I don't get a dial tone. Is this a sign that wire-tapping is going on and if so, to what government agency should I write to have it corrected?

George McGovern
Watergate Building
Washington, D.C.

Dear George,

Your problem may be that you are picking up the entire phone. Telephone authorities suggest you try lifting only the receiver and leaving the cradle and dialing apparatus dormant on the table. If this doesn't work, chances are you have a make-believe telephone. See a good psychiatrist.

Dear Erma,

In the past fifteen years I have embezzled over $20,000 from the company I work for (Tiny Tot Tinker Toy Co.). Some of it I spent putting my children through college, but the rest was spent on loose women. I am so ashamed. What can I do?

Edgar B. Jennings
610 E. James St.
Creighton, Mass. 89360

Dear Mr. X,

Don't worry, your secret is safe with me.

Dear Erma,

I understand that Mick Jagger of the Rolling Stones is 46, wears a wig, is married and the father of twelve children, and a used car salesman. True?

Grew P. Bopper

Dear G.P.,

False. Mick Jagger's hair is his own.

Dear Erma,

Who said, "Sunrises are terrible because you have to get up to watch them"?

Quenton Quote

Dear Q.Q.,

I did. You like it?

Confidential to Nude in Nantucket:

No, it is none of your neighbor's business if you walk around nude in your own home. Just remember to wear an apron when frying bacon.

NEWS IN THE ECHO

Tues. Jan. 23

INTRODUCTORY LECTURE: TM — 8:00 p.m FAC Music Hall. Joan Stallings, lecturer.

ART IN THE NEWS:

Roberto Escobar's painting will be on display in the FAC Gallery until Feb. 1.

FACULTY NOTE:

The Faculty Club will meet on Feb. 6, not Feb. 13, at the Green Meadow Country Club. Dr. James Bloy will speak.

KIWANIS TRAVELOGUE:

"Taiwan — Hong Kong — Singapore," Eddie Chu. Wilson Chapel, 2:00 p.m.

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

An end to a two-bit war

WASHINGTON — If Richard Nixon doesn't achieve his "peace with honor" in Vietnam sometime in January, he may well have had his last chance to do things his way, because Congress, at long last, is really fed up.

The end of 1972 marked this nation's thirteenth year at war in Southeast Asia, years of countless broken promises leading to an ever-deepening sense of anguish at the futility of it all.

Now, even men of the President's own party, Senators like William Saxbe (R-Ohio), are questioning the Chief Executive's sanity at resuming the bombing of North Vietnam, killing hundreds, perhaps thousands, of innocent civilians, wrecking homes, farms and hospitals, even endangering some of our own prisoners of war in the heart of Hanoi — all without a single briefing for any member of Congress and all without a single military objective.

I, for one, will no longer give the President the benefit of any doubt in judging his Vietnam policies. For years, while steadfastly opposing the basis of our involvement in Indochina, I have nonetheless argued my position calmly and with reason, holding on to the slim hope that the President and Dr. Kissinger were indeed close, as they have said on many occasions, to achieving peace.

No longer. This is a two-bit war run by two-bit politicians, and President Nixon's recent electoral sweep notwithstanding, Congress simply must cut off appropriations for Vietnam if the struggle persists even one day beyond January 31. After all, Mr. Nixon's 49-state mandate came virtually on the eve of the administration's firm pledge that "peace is at hand" and that only a few minor details remained to be resolved.

Almost by the time ballots were counted those hopes were smashed with the announcement that peace was not so near after all and with the resumption of the most brutal, intensive bombing attacks in the history of man. All of this came about without a word from the President, and one of two conclusions must be drawn: either he and Dr. Kissinger are monumentally inept or they are guilty of gross fraud against the American people and the entire world.

No matter which conclusion you choose, the course for Congress is the same: cut off the funds and end the killing. That course, which Congress has repeatedly rejected, may now be possible. Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Montana) says he thinks an end-the-war resolution is likely to be introduced early in the session, and that he feels it has a better-than-ever chance passing.

At this point, we had all better hope so: That better-than-ever chance is beginning to look like our only chance.

Personals

Heading the list of alumni visitors at Maryville College last weekend was Mr. Freddie Rhodes, who is on furlough from Missionary Duty in Lower Patagonia visiting Miss Kathleen Meier of Smyrna, Georgia.

Also visiting were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weisgerber from Highlanderville, South Dakota, Miss Carol Beatty of Cincinnati, Ohio, Miss Martha Walcutt of Copperhill, Tennessee, Miss Katherine Russell of Colts Neck, New Jersey, and Mr. Joseph Bilella of Vatican City, Italy.

Mr. Stanley Jack of Tullahoma, Tennessee, has returned to Maryville, his "little bit of heaven-on-earth," after his Fall Term abroad at Middle Tennessee State University at Murphreesboro.

Miss Deborah Mattson of Falls Church, Virginia, has recently returned from the hospital and is receiving visitors in her apartment in Carnegie Towers.

Mr. Kyle S. VanLandingham of Fort Pierce, Florida, and Mr. Carl Hafner of Maryville celebrated their silver roommate anniversary last week.

This week the Sunday Social Hour spotlight rests upon the Open House held in the home of Mr. Stanley Jack.

Mr. Jack, who resides at Suite 12, Carnegia Plaza, opened his door to all comers from the hours of 1:26 p.m. to 2:57 p.m. The relaxed atmosphere of the event was enhanced by Mr. Jack's homey myriad of refreshments cated by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, Incorporated. Mr. Jack also served cola beverages and roasted nuts to his guests.

Entertainment for the early afternoon social consisted of the familiar talk of good friends — little was said, but much revealed.

Although attendance at the gala event was not as great as in years past, all in attendance agreed it was the unquestioned social event of the season.

Gala affair honors Scarlett

Miss Scarlett O'Shara of Memphis, Tenn., who was married to Mr. Ashley Nilkes of Washington, D.C., on Jan. 15 at Fraternity Presbyterian Church, was party honoree on Jan. 13.

Mr. Nilkes' intimate friend, Fred was host of the evening affair.

The soiree was at the Regency House where the basic decorating scheme is Artec in flavor. Floors are covered in rust shag carpteing which nicely highlights the walls which are done in restful mauve. Furnishings reflect the best of the simple but elegant school of interior decorating.

"Mr. Sunshine" chairs graced the kitchen-bar area while the living area sported barrel-shaped chairs and a cozy couch designed for the uttermost in seated comfort. Color contrast in the suite is achieved through the tasteful introduction of gold and brown accent pillows into the basic color scheme.

The most striking of the features of the upper level proved to be the indoor balcony a la Romeo and Juliette, and the outdoor recreation facilities. Mr. W. Dansbury and Miss N. McCleary, guests of the honoree, were quite taken with the aquatic equipment, while Miss K. Bentzel and Miss K. Platt enjoyed the roaring fire provided in the living area at no extra charge.

A charming variety of international beverages form such exotic locations as Lisbon, Portugal; London, England; Moscow, Russia; Edinburgh, Scotland; and Shelbyville, Tenn., was served by a Hollywood, Calif., starlet recently in after her latest screen success. Culinary delights tended towards the crunchy in texture and varied from spicy to bland in taste.

Party entertainment was graciously provided by WEZK Miss Dietrich, and Miss K. Meier's amazing chair trick.

The Regency suite spiral staircase is always a center of interest, the centering their movement around it.

In addition to the aforementioned revellers, the guest list included: Dr. and Mrs. Harry H. Harter, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Van Metre, Mr. P. Gibson, and a number of Maryville's most elegant social set.

Library makes schedule change

The staff of the College Library is always doing its best to serve the needs of the college community. However, there are several current projects which should be brought to the attention of all.

Two changes in the library are quite apparent. The periodical area has been rearranged to make locating bound volumes less complicated and to make the library more attractive.

The library has also altered its hours, staying open on Sunday nights until 9:00 P.M., and closing at 6:00 P.M. on Fridays.

Periodical librarian Mrs. Choi Park is currently involved in rearranging the basement area on order to open it to all students and faculty. To facilitate this change, a bindery machine has been ordered and should arrive soon.

The room at the north end of the library which formerly held Dr. Case's independent study office will house Special Collections. These valuable old books and periodicals will be kept there for better security.

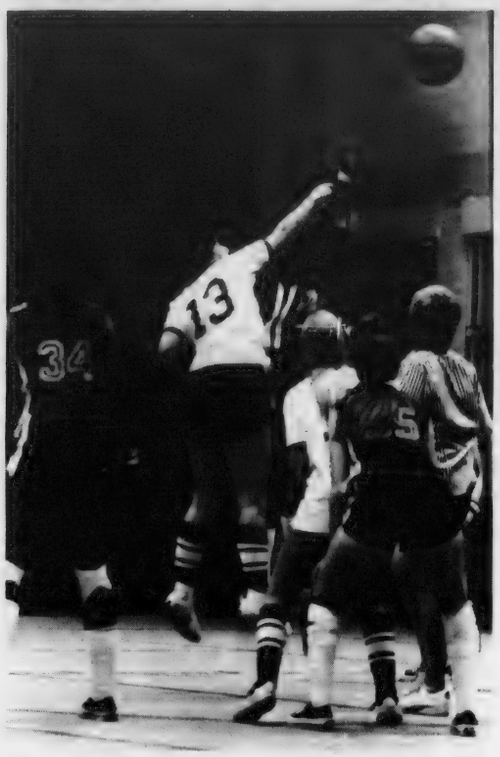
The library staff welcomes any suggestions students or faculty members might have which would help the library better serve its patrons.

Alpha Sigma holds elections

On January 9 the members of Alpha Sigma met in their weekly meeting to elect new officers who will serve through the winter and spring terms. President Denny Slosser opened the elections by asking for nominations for the office of president.

The outcome of the elections is as follows: President, Jim ("Frog") Burkins; Vice President, Wayne L. Davis; Secretary, Mike Ehasz; Chaplain, Steve Barnes; Treasurer, Bill Silvernale; Athletic Director, Jon Wright; and Program Directors, Moochie Pierce and Scott Poland.

Two receive football honors



Two members of the Scot football squad have received post-season honors this year. Mike Butler was given honorable mention in the NCAA College Division All-American selection. Butler ended his college career ranking high in national statistics for wide receivers.

Quarterback Joe Costner, after a season of remarkable feats, was listed in the same poll to the second team. Like Butler, Costner is a senior.

Mat club

Attention: all girls!

Do you like wrestling? Want to help support our team? Then become a member of the Maryville College wrestling Mat Club. There is a lot of enjoyment and hard work involved, but it will not require much time, and the team needs your support. An organizational meeting will be held at 10:00 A.M. Tuesday, Jan. 23 during break in the first gym. If you can't make the meeting, contact Coach Elia.

Girls basketball team competing

A new athletic activity is making waves on the Maryville College sports scene. A women's basketball team has been organized and is being coached by Ms. Betty Werner of the physical education department.

As the club is new and opponents are difficult to find, the Scotties' schedule is rather limited. To date they have scrimmaged with the MC faculty men and Marshall University. In actual games they have played Belmont and Hiwasee Colleges. However, in these four outings the girls have been unable to claim a victory.

Starting members of the team include Carol Rankin and Terrie Topham, the guards; Bonnie Cassidy and Jean Erhardt, forwards; and center Melinda Lucas. Currently on the injured list is Carolyn Graham.

Other members of the team include Sujean Bradley, Lynn Earnhart, Sue Mahaffey, Nanette Garner, and manager Shada Overton.

Music-theatre plays to be presented

By Charles Craven

Two musical plays, one Irish and one Italian, will be presented on February 9 in the Maryville College Theatre by the Fine Arts Department. A repeat performance is scheduled for February 10.

The first music-theatre production will be "Riders to the Sea," a tragic Irish play by J.M. Synge, which has been set to music by the English composer Ralph Vaughan Williams. The second will be an Italian comedy called "Gianni Schicchi" (pronounced "Johnny Skeekee") by Giacomo Puccini.

This presentation will involve combined sections of the Fine Arts Department – voice, instrument, and drama. Both plays will be sung in English, and will feature several singers, including our Affiliate Artist, Philip Steele; and Dr. Dan Kinsinger, professor of voice. Dr. Harry H. Harter will be the musical director.

The plays will be staged by Professor Thomas E. Jones, head of the speech-theatre department, and will be accompanied by the Maryville College-Community Orchestra, with Professor Lee Kull conducting.

Coed volleyball a success

Football may seem to have become America's favorite sport, and although the Super Bowl didn't exactly go unnoticed on the campus of Maryville, there's another sport that would probably rate No. 1 on an MC popularity poll: Volleyball.

And so began Interim '72 which could be appropriately entitled: "Coed Volleyball '72". Approximately one hundred and five members of both the faculty and student body combined participated this year. Organizing to form fifteen separate teams, each team ranged anywhere from six to twelve players. Each team was composed of an equal number of make and female players. Fortunately, no student or faculty member had to be disqualified for failing to meet this requirement. The teams each played several times a week and the "single eliminations" system.

Several outstanding teams were Team 13, Team 2, Team 10, Team 5 and Team 8 (featuring Sujean Bradley in her final performance). Team 15 captured the championship, playing Team 8 in the final playoff. It was hard work, but with determination, fairly decent senses of humor, coordination, behavior modification, and accurate mathematical calculations, Team 15 won in a best-out-of-three match, each game totalling fifteen points.

The winning team was composed of Judy Penry, Nancy Gamble, Barb Kerr, Ms. Werner, Lois Cowan, Dr. Waters, Dr. Dent, Dr. Nichols, Freddie Rhodes, and Doug "Secret Weapon" Cox. The teams had no captains but a certain member of Team 15 did an excellent imitation of one and the rest of the team would like to express its appreciation.

All in all, everyone who participated in last Interim's Coed Volleyball Tournament seemed to enjoy themselves and it helped to make those four weeks enjoyable and exciting. However, there is no truth to the rumor that scouts for the 1976 Olympics were present during the Tournament.

The spotted grouper, a bass-like resident of tropical waters, first developed about 150 million years ago.

The most primitive mammals are the egg-laying echidna and the duck billed platypus.

Matmen blitz Bradley 60-0

The winter sports season is now in full swing, and Maryville College wrestling is very much a part of it. So far the Scots have participated in eight contests and have emerged victorious three times. Four matches were lost, and one, with Georgia, was a tie.

Saturday the Scots broke their record for a match score, blitzing Bradley College 60-0- a perfect match. Five of Bradley's members were out with the flu, and the five who did show up were no match for the powerful Maryville matmen.

The Scots have already been plagued with injuries. John Poore and Jim Batchler suffered twisted ankles which sidelined them briefly. Roger Reiter, who won sixth place in the Southern Open in early season, and sustained an injury there, is still unable to compete. Ed Johnson is also out for the season.

The line-up this year is slightly different from last year's, with the addition of several new faces and shifts of old ones.

Roy Adleman is trying to go down to the 118-pound class to avoid forfeiting the match in that weight. Paul Naylor, who wrestled 118 last year, is now in the 126 slot.

Moving up a weight division, John Poore will see action in the 134 division, and Doug Cunningham will assume the 142 class assignment.

Steve Kitchen holds down the 150-pound division, and Brad Kehler wrestles at 158.

Matt Pacifico returns in the 166 class, and Wayne Risko breaks into the line at 177 pounds. Jim Batchler is again doing duty in the 190-pound division. Glenn Dolph is presently working out at heavyweight. The team is coached by Don Elia.

Poore pins opponent

Tusculum downs Scots 54-49

By Fred Strohl

The Maryville Scots basketball squad lost their seventh game of the season Saturday night as they fell to Tusculum College, 54-49. For the Scots, it was another frustrating loss, as they have yet to win a game this season.

It appeared at halftime that the Scots might be able to turn the tide in this game because of the fact that they led at halftime, 27-15. It was a close contest that saw Maryville lead through most of the half.

The second half saw the Scots shooting go a bit cold, which proved to be the difference as the Pioneers took the lead for good in the last few minutes of the game.

Captain Randy Schauer led the Scots' scoring with 19 points. Robert Sobas of Tusculum led their scorers with 17 points.

Maryville vs. Tusculum Scoring

Tusculum		Maryville
Heffernan	4	Banas	2
Houser	12	Butler	2
Minton	15	Graham	12
Monroe	2	Guillaume	6
Scott	2	Lambert	2
Sobas	17	Schaurer	19
Stokely	2	Talbott	6
	54		49

Graham goes for basket

Engaged Girl Party-Welcome Wagon Tuesday, January 23, 7:30 p.m. To be held at Holiday Inn, Alcoa. All engaged girls invited, also mothers fiances - free gifts. Bridal fashion show - door prize. Refreshments to be served. For further information phone Mary Shumate at 983-3374.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, No. 11 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | Jan. 26, 1973

Cease fire initialled; men will come home

An end to the war in Vietnam was announced last Tuesday evening, January 26, by President Nixon. The President announced that the cease-fire treaty between America, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong will be signed in Paris tomorrow, January 26.

The President said that the treaty to be signed will include the following provisions:

- that an initial cease-fire will go into effect tomorrow at 7:00 p.m. EST
- that all U.S. troops will be withdrawn within 60 days
- that all prisoners of war will be returned within 60 days
- that South Vietnam will be permitted to decide its own future without interference
- that although North Vietnamese troops will stop fighting, they will not withdraw from South Vietnam
- that an internationally supervised cease-fire will follow.

"Celebrate Life!" at MC

Last week on the nights of January 17, and 18 the Speech Theatre Department along with the Chilhowee Choral Society and the Alcoa High School Chorus presented a unique blend of rock music and dramatic readings called Celebrate Life. The production presented the story of Jesus, a popular theme lately as is seen through similar productions of Superstar, Godspell, Natural High and others. The difference here lay in the emphasis on the music and in the personalities of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John skillfully portrayed by David Styles, Neil Bingham, Mark Mertz and Bill Beasley. They spoke the scripture as if they were sharing the Word for the first time, as one would share good news with a friend. The chorus, made up of over a hundred voices, was impeccable in diction and very smooth in blend. The variety of music and demands on them to set different moods revealed their versatility. I would have enjoyed more spirit on their part in movement and facial expression as the music often called for animation.

The dancing added a great deal. Both Reba French and Janet Cunningham expressed beautifully the contrasting emotional points in Mary's life: the joy of motherhood, and the sorrow of her son's death. Tom Williamson's choreography provided a comical rendition of the three kings sparking up that particular point of the story.

The only technical point that I feel detracted from the overall effect was in the lighting. It was far too dark and the colors were hard on the eyes. It seemed to be the result of poor planning organization.

The message that was presented was familiar. It has been related so often in the same way that people have come to learn not to pay it any attention. You know the routing: Call to Worship, Hymn, Scripture, Hymn, Sermon, Hymn, Offering, Hymn and Benediction. Ragan Courtney, the librettist and an inspiring Christian in his own right, strove to portray Jesus in a way that people would listen and know that the Truth can set you free. "This drama said everything I could have said." Yes, it did. Thank You.

He is Alive!

Choir sings this Sunday

The Maryville College Concert Choir, under the direction of Dr. Harry H. Harter, will sing this Sunday morning, January 28, at the First Christian Church in celebration of the church's 60th anniversary.

The choir's performance will take the place of a sermon, and will include "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes" by Freed, "Christus Factus Est" by Anton Bruckner, "The Best of Rooms" by Randall Thompson, "Amazing Grace" arranged by Dr. Harter, "Love in Grief" by F. Melius Christiansen, "O Praise Ye God" by P.I. Tschaikowsky, and Dr. Harter's arrangement of the Twenty-Third Psalm.

The church is located on Court Street just off the college campus behind Carnegie Hall. The service is at 10:30 a.m.

The choir's next appearance will be at a special vespers service on February 4.

Town hall meeting discusses changes

At the Town Hall meeting, held in the dining hall last Wednesday at 10:30, three issues were discussed: recent academic changes passed by the All-College Council, tentative plans for Pearsons Hall, and the Challenge Term headed by Dr. Young.

In the area of the academic, Chairwoman Alice Hook reported that the number of courses required for graduation, beginning with the Class of 1977, will be reduced to 40, including CIV. The purpose is to give the student more leeway so that he may take a 2-course load without later having to take four courses or attend summer school.

She announced also that a student may take CLEP (College Level Examination Program) exams to accelerate his passing core courses. If a student scores 85% or above on a CLEP exam, he is given credit for a core course; if he scores 65% to 84%, he is given a waiver of a core requirement.

Jesse Owens speaks to MC students.

CIV speaker to appear on TV

By Charles Craven

Faubion Bowers, a well-known writer, lecturer, teacher, traveler, and linguist who will be our CIV speaker on February 14, will appear on nationwide television this Sunday, January 28.

Mr. Bowers has written many boods dealing with the arts and humanities. He has contributed to many nationally known magazines as well as the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

The "Camera Three" program on which he will appear will be devoted to Indian dance. It will be on CBS television this Sunday morning, January 28, at 11:00 a.m.

Next came an announcement that study carrels are now available on 2nd floor Fayerweather. The Learning Resources Committee, with Carol Newill as co-chairman, is working out arrangements. She will soon announce details about making applications for carrels.

The last item of academic life concerned next year's calendar, which will differ only in that the Interim term will be three weeks long, and that January meetings will be moved to February 6-10.

Dr. Copeland, speaking of the physical plans for Pearsons,

(continued on page 2

Theta installs officers and plans formal

On January 23, Theta Epsilon held their formal installation of officers. Barbara Zartman, ex-president, officiated at the traditional candlelight service.

The newly elected officers are: President – Terry Holley; Vice-President – Mary Louise Gross; Secretary – Barbara Belt; Treasurer – Darcey Phillips; Program Chairman – Robyn Leng; and Publicity Chairmen – Mary Ann Ewing and Nessa Pettigrew.

Theta Epsilon and Slpha Sigma will sponsor doughnut sales on January 30, a Tuesday night, and February 11, a Sunday night. Winter term's major activity, for the two societies, will be a formal affair on Valentine's Day at the Hyatt Regency in Knoxville.

Special Farewell Issue

Editorial

Who's minding the infirmary?

The health services on this campus leave something to be desired. Granted, there are a great many hypochondriacs around; there are also a great many students with real health problems.

With the addition of a new nurse some of the burden has been lifted, but there are still several inadequacies. Dr. Proffitt is a busy man with his own private practice, thus it is perhaps understandable that he cannot devote as much time to the students as we may feel necessary. The problem, however, becomes acute when other doctors in town show a decided reluctance to treat college students, suggesting that we stick with our own physician.

There is, and probably always will be, a great deal of bitching about the medical care concerning mistaken diagnoses, inadequate treatment, and unconcerned handling of the patients. Yet I believe the fault does not lie with any incompetence on the part of our staff, nor does it lie primarily with lack of time. Rather, it is a case of communication problems (sound familiar?).

The students would like to know exactly what Dr. Proffitt and the nurses at the infirmary consider their responsibilities to be, beyond the office hours. And what are our responsibilities as patients who do not pay directly for their services?

The last problem is one that may be impossible to deal with in the MC "community," and it, too, is one of communication. Although there is a public health center in Maryville, how much better if the students felt free to go somewhere on their own campus for birth control counseling, treatment of venereal disease, and similar problems. Perhaps some sort of joint program involving our psychological counceling staff and our health services staff could be worked out.

Simply because we are a small college does not mean we have to be lacking in medical care — or does it?

Letters to the editor

To Whom It May Concern,

My mother is at Asbury Acres and I visited her yesterday. As I approached the premises, I noticed a snowman in the front, and as I went in and looked out at the fountain, there was another one. On questioning who made them, I was told a group of Maryville College boys came over and did it. I wish to express my appreciation to these boys for such a treat for these elderly people. They have enjoyed them so much. One commented that she was so sorry to see them melt because they had been such a source of joy. Will you please express my thanks to the boys not only for this, but to the students as a whole, for the many things they have done. For the people over there. It gives us encouragement for our youth when we see their consideration for other people.

Yours truly,

Mossie Taylor
Knoxville, TN

Dear Daughter,

Hurt. . . puzzled. . . concerned. How can I best describe my feelings when I heard about the lovely party given in your honor last week?

First of all, I felt hurt over receiving no invitation and not even being included in the planning of the ultimate in out-of-town entertainment. I'll admit being father-of-the bride has been a traumatic experience — and will continue to be until all the bills are paid. But you know very well I've tried to go along with all your plans for your wedding. So I guess I can calk up this hurt feeling to pre-nuptial jitters. On the other hand, you may well have had my psychological and physical well-being in mind, as one of your bridesmaids confined to me. She said you knew I was always "turned off" by Aztec decor and was allergic to hard, bland snacks. I wonder, though, if you just didn't want to hear my lecture on creativity again. Maybe Suzie Belle will be more inclined to listen.

After I got over being hurt, I was puzzled. Of course I know that "consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds," but how does the ringing challenge you expressed so ably in your last letter to adopt a more abstemious life style and engage in serious soul-searching square with your own lavish expenditures? Also I wonder if the best man has forgotten his soap box oration last year about neglecting LaMar Mem's desperate needs in favor of planting a bed of Peace roses (cultivated at $1.65 per hour to bloom intermittently in East Tennessee where the seven-sister Victory variety grows wild?

And, most importantly, I am deeply concerned. Will Uncle Bill and Aunt Frederika be pleased when they realize our family isn't so poverty stricken as we led them to believe? I'm sure they wanted you to have a nice wedding, and they were willing to call their donations a wedding gift, but I wonder how free-hearted they will be when Suzie Belle gets married?

That's all. I've got it out of my system. Somehow if I don't get these pent-up emotions released, my ulcers act up. Perhaps now I can experience what you so often refer to as "catharsis."

Much love,

Dad

(continued from page 1)

said that the dining hall will include a private dining room with a separate entrance, available to faculty and community groups. Other plans for the main dining hall include having the carpeted area set off by a plant divider to provide a more leisurely atmosphere for eating. The second and third floors, he said, will contain double rooms and suites of two, three, and four rooms, some with baths and kitchenettes.

A staircase, to be located outside the blocked-in dining hall window, will provide an additional covered entrance to the dining hall, the upper floors, and the basement laundry room.

Jane Beth Markley discussed the ways in which the ad hoc committee on Pearsons Hall have considered using the building. Tentative plans call for having men on the second floor and women on third, although no final decisions have been reached.

The committee has also been writing up a plan for food services, and is attempting to secure an equitable service similar to the set-up the college now has without raising tuition costs. The committee has suggested that the new food service provide a salad bar for light eaters, a variety in the main dish of meals, and a wider variety of drinks from dispenser machines.

Dr. Copeland commented that the entire rebuilding project is costing approximately $18 to $19 per square foot. Had the college built a new building, the cost would have been around $30 per square foot, he said. He added that the building is due to be completed by the first of June.

The last item on the agenda was Dr. Young's discussion of the concept and idea of the Challenge Term, which he heads. The idea is for students to define, initiate, and direct work on a contract basis. Anyone interested is invited to attend the group meetings, he said, which are held in the library every day except Wednesday. After some questions, the meeting ended at 11:20.

Interim opens eyes

By John Ballard

The end of the first term rolls around and most students are looking forward to the Thanksgiving break. But what about after the break? This question smacked me as I thumbed through the various pages of the interim catalogue delighted with some (which I hadn't the money for) and bored with others. I realized that the thought of spending another interim on campus while some students left was not my entire idea of a memorable experience at M.C. This is not to say that the interims on campus are not fascinating and stimulating.

Therefore I conjured up an independent interim off campus which would cost nothing, be located in a habitable area, and one that would stimulate both the mind and the senses. I realized that some type of transportation would probably be necessary, and set about to find my interim of elysium containing all of the above ideas.

In the process of tossing over ideas about whether or not to study in some foreign lands, for instance Morocco, Jamaica, France, or Turkey, I noted the cost of the trips to these lands, and quickly discarded the thought. So where could one go?

And then I ran across some buried papers on Tremont's curriculum. I knew that I really would love to be somewhere in the out of doors working with children, and I decided to investigate.

After talking with Lloyd Foster, the director of the Environmental Education Center, and with Dean Blair, the three of us managed to evoke an interim which would not only give a student a break from the campus, but one for which the college would transfer the student's board money to Tremont if he worked full time; furthermore, there was no extra charge for room, and transportation was available if necessary.

A proposed interim to be called "The Tremont Environment" was written up, submitted to the Interim Sommittee of the ACC, and passed. Now, reflecting upon that interim, I can truly say it was a memorable experience. However, this is not the only way in which Tremont, which, by the way, is self-supporting, is able to cater to the M.C. students, who could be the backbone of the program.

The Volunteer Instructional Program (V.I.P.) is designed for the students who wishes to spend nine months or more in the area of environmental education. Students work for room and board and receive a certificate stating the nature of their work when they leave. Several M.C. graduates have been, and are currently involved in this type of program. Tremont draws attention from the surrounding communities, and from other colleges, whose students do their practice teaching for education at the Center.

If these formal and lasting programs do not interest you, take a look at the Center as an area of research during summer school courses taught there, or as a resource center for a course in environmental biology or as a basis for an

continued on page 3.

Let's play trivia

by Erma Q. Zingdip

1. What was the name of the jeep in Roy Rogers?
2. What was Sky King's niece's name?
3. An old Abbott and Costello routine — "who's on first; _____ on second and _____ on third." Complete it.
4. What was the name of the Virginian's horse?
5. Famous feud — Jack Benny and ?
6. What company sponsored "Jack Armstrong, The All-American Boy?"
7. The Host of the T.V. game show, "You Bet Your Life" was?
8. Who were Lucy and Ricky's neighbors on "I Love Lucy?"
9. Who was Yogi Bear's cohort?
10. What was the cow's name on "Howdy Doody"?

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

The $10-billion treasure chest (part II)

By Ron Hendren

WASHINGTON – Last October (in a column entitled "The $10 Billion Treasure Chest") I reported that the President had impounded more than $10 billion in funds appropriated by Congress, money destined primarily to aid cities and states in regional development projects, urban mass transit, water and sewer grants, highway construction and rural electrification development.

I noted then that the practice of impounding – a power which has been misused by Presidents, Republicans and Democrats alike, since World War II – thwarted the will of Congress and further eroded its already weakened powers, in this case its Constitutional responsibility to appropriate public funds.

Until now Congress has reacted rather passively. But last week Senator Sam J. Ervin (D-N.C.) introduced legislation which would go a long way toward preventing unauthorized impounding. The bill, S. 373, is co-sponsored by 45 other senators and thus is pretty much assured of Senate passage, even though hearings are yet to be held.

Ervin's proposal would require the President to notify Congress each time he impounds appropriated funds, and unless the legislative body specifically approved the action within 60 days, the impoundment would cease and the money would be allocated as originally intended by Congress. Similar legislation is pending in the House.

Ervin, respected as the Senate's expert-in-residence on the Constitution, intends to hold hearings on his proposal in late January and early February before the Subcommittee on Separation of Powers, of which he is chairman. He says he hopes the bill will be ready for consideration by the full Senate "before the heat of summer has beset the Nation's Capital."

As Ervin noted when he introduced S. 373, the issue is not one between a wasteful Congress and a thrifty President, as the Administration would paint the picture. The real issue is the far more basic question of who controls the purse strings. The Constitution gives Congress the clear and undisputed responsibility of allocating public funds. And yet the President, through selected impounding, can cut back or completely eliminate those programs which he does not favor, without financial consideration, without regard to need, and without consulting Congress.

Thus it is no accident that many domestic programs have been cut back drastically since the President's re-election in November. And even if Ervin's proposal passes, we can look for more of the same. But at least his bill brings the issue into public focus for the first time in many months, and if it passes the President will finally have to justify his actions if he expects Congress to approve additional impounding.

Syndicated 1973
by Washington Weekly, Inc.
All rights reserved.

continued from page 2

independent study, especially in the areas of history and education.

Current programs that involve students in work at Tremont are the campus-sponsored Circle K, with their outings and work to improve the Tremont environment; and the Tremont sponsored Student Cooperative Fire Crew, who are in essence the "Smokey's of the Smokies." Also in the area of undergraduate psychology, practical experience is available from time to time in working with groups from Eastern State Psychiatric Hospital. Elementary education majors who wish to do practice teaching in the out of doors for one week or more are able to do so through the Center's NEED program, as did two of last year's graduates.

There is no end to the functions of Tremont for the M.C. student. The Center is always open to suggestions for new curriculum and courses involving students; for instance, practical experience in cafeteria and camp management, and in maintenance work is available. Also, for any student who wishes to work at Tremont learning the program, arrangements can be made during the school term.

The atmosphere is a stimulating one, without the day to day worries of on-campus work. If you are interested in further information about Tremont, contact Mr. Foster or Andy Miles at the Center, or Dr. Shields on campus. Learn more today about your off-campus college!

Worship Schedule

Vespers – Sun., Jan. 2 – 7:00 p.m. – Little Chapel. Representatives of the Mormon Church will show a film, "The Bible and the Book of Mormon." Discussion will follow.

Bible Study – Tues., Jan 30 – 9:30 p.m. – Little Chapel.

Communion – Tues., Jan. 30 – Little Chapel. Rev. Leland Gilmore, Highland Presbyterian Church, will conduct the service.

Worship – Thurs., Feb. 1 – 8:40 a.m. – Little Chapel.

BLOODMOBILE

The Red Cross Bloodmobile is coming to campus on Monday, February 5 from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. The World Concern Committee and Circle K are co-sponsoring the project this year and it is their goal to get 150 donors. Experience shows that it takes about 200 pledges to achieve this as a number of people will be rejected for various reasons. As of Monday, January 22, 124 pledges had been received.

You need not have filled out a pledge card in order to give blood. Simply come to the Health, Physical Education Building any time between 11:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. on February 5. If you are between 18 and 66 years old and weigh over 110 lbs. you are eligible to be a donor.

Students are urgently invited to help in archaeological excavation in England next summer. Deadline for applications is February 1. Write now for further details to Ian Lowson, 539 West 112 Street, New York, N.Y., 10025.

Fine Arts department presents musical plays

As announced last week, two one-act musical plays will be presented by the Fine Arts Department, one Irish and one Italian. They will be performed on February 9 and 10 in the Maryville College Theatre.

The Irish play, entitled "Riders to the Sea," is a tragedy by J.M. Synge, which has been set to music by the English composer Ralph Vaughan Williams. The plot centers around an old woman who loses her husband and two sons.

The Italian play "Gianni Schicchi," (pronounced "Johnny Skeekee") is a comedy involving a sly character who impersonates a rich old man in order to change his will to benefit not only the old man's family, but himself as well. The role of Gianni Schicchi will be sung by our Affiliate Artist, Philip Steele.

In addition to Mr. Steele, the productions will also involve combined sections of the Fine Arts Department – voice, instrument, and drama. Both plays will feature several other singers who will be brought together by Dr. Harry H. Harter. They will include Dr. Dan Kinsinger, professor of voice, two music graduates of Maryville College – Don Brakebill and Conrad Eaddy, and Maryville College students.

The plays will be staged by Professor Thomas E. Jones, head of the speech-theatre department, and will be accompanied by the Maryville College-Community Orchestra, with Professor Lee Kull conduction.

Admission is $2.00.

Students, faculty, members of the community and the College Affiliate Artist will participate in a music-theatre production to be presented by the Maryville College Fine Arts Department February 9 and 10.

The Fine Arts Department, under the direction of Dr. Harry H. Harter, will be involved in all facets of the production of two musical plays. The first play will be "Riders to the Sea," a tragedy by Irish playwright J.M. Synge, set to music by English composer Ralph Vaughan Williams. Following will be a light comedy the Italian composer Giacomo Puccini, "Gianni Schicchi" (pronounced "Johnny Skeekee").

Artists featured in the production will include: Affiliate Artist Philip Steele; Dr. Dan Kinsinger, associate professor of music; and two members of the Maryville College class of 1953, Don Brakebill, music director for Alcoa City Schools, and Conrad Eaddy, music director at First United Methodist Church, Kissimee, Fla.

Thomas E. Jones, assistant professor of speech-theatre, will be in charge of stage direction and set design. Artists will be accompanied by the Maryville College-Community Orchestra under the direction of Lee Kull, assistant professor of music.

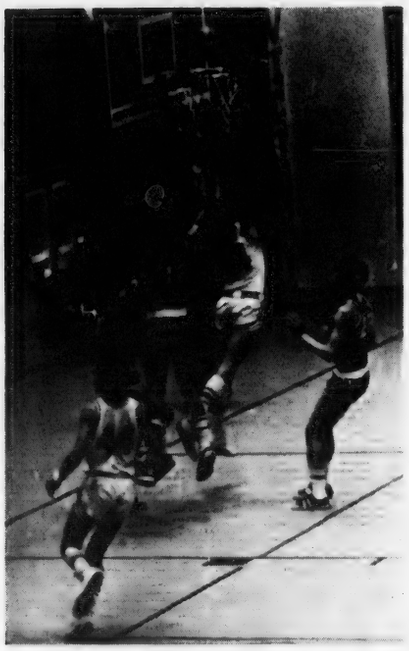
Admission will be $2.00, and reservations are available at the College Service Center (982-7800) or at the Fine Arts Center (982-9132). Performances will be at 8:15 p.m. in the College Theatre.

VESPERS

Come to the Mormon Vespers Meeting Sunday, January 28, 1973 at 7:00 p.m. in the Little Chapel. There will be special musical selections and a film about the Bible and the Book of Mormon. Topics being discussed are the organization of church and Mormon doctrine, followed by a question and answer period. Everyone is invited.

Theatre plans busy season

The theatre has a busy schedule this term. Two major productions – "Moon for the Misbegotten" by Eugene O'Neill and "Mary, Mary" by Jean Kerr will be produced along with two operas, "Riders to the Sea" and "Gianni Schicchi." Playhouse is also sponsoring a Children's Film Festival every Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p.m.



The two operas are the first on the agenda. They will be presented Feb. 9 and 10.

The next slated production is "Mary, Mary," directed by Nancy McCleary. A comedy about two of the formerly married that fall in love again, this play will be seen on Feb. 16 and 17.

"Moon for the Misbegotten," directed by Blair Beasley, will be presented March 3 and 4. Melissa Collins and Terry Noack portray the leads, Josie Hogan and James Tyrone, in O'Neill's tragic story.

To revisit your childhood, attend the Saturday matinee. The Children's Film Festival began with "March of the Wooden Soldiers," starring Laurel and Hardy and will continue with other great films including Walt Disney's "Kidnapped." See a good film for only thirty-five cents.

Kenny Talbot (20) and Randy Lambert (44) go up for points against Covenant.

Wrestlers on winning streak

The MC wrestlers, under the direction of Don Elia, are gaining momentum as the season progresses. Last week the Scots faced three opponents and easily defeated each team. They earned a 30-15 triumph over Campbell College, blitzed Furmen University 37-6, and took a 22-12 score over Western Carolina University. Their season record is now 8-4-1.

Roy Adleman, a 118 lb. sophomore, emerged victories in each of his matches, claiming a decision, a superior decision, and a pin at Furman.

In the 126 weight class, Paul Naylor struck gold three times, decisioning every man he faced. Rounding out the light weight, John Poore brought home 2 decisions and a pin for the week's work.

In the 142 class, team captain Doug Cunningham equaled Poore's 3-match record. Steve Kitchen and Brad Kehler each won three decisions.

Matt Pacifico won decisions in two of his matches, but was defeated at Western Carolina. In the 177 position freshman Wayne Risko captured two pins and a decision.

Jim Batchler won a superior decision against his Furman University opponent, but lost in the other two matches. Robert Shunsky received an injury in his Furman match and lost by default.

Saturday the Scots travel to Clemson, S.C. The next home match is Jan. 30 against the University of the South.

Quitting

by Wiley Rutledge

Last Saturday, this country inaugurated Richard Nixon for the second time and began the second four years under his administration. Some of us supported him in his first administration. Others did not, and the sad thing about many of them is that they will remove themselves from any kind of activity and retire into a kind of verbal sniping without making any kind of effort or sacrifice to bring about what they want.

This is a tragedy because if people would stick with a group or an organization when it doesn't measure up to what they think it should be, they would do it a lot more good than if they run away from it and begin attacking it so that all can hear. This does not mean that anyone should be satisfied with something that does not measure up to its potential, but it does mean that instead of abandoning it and loudly attacking it so that nothing good is accomplished they should stay with it and try to change it.

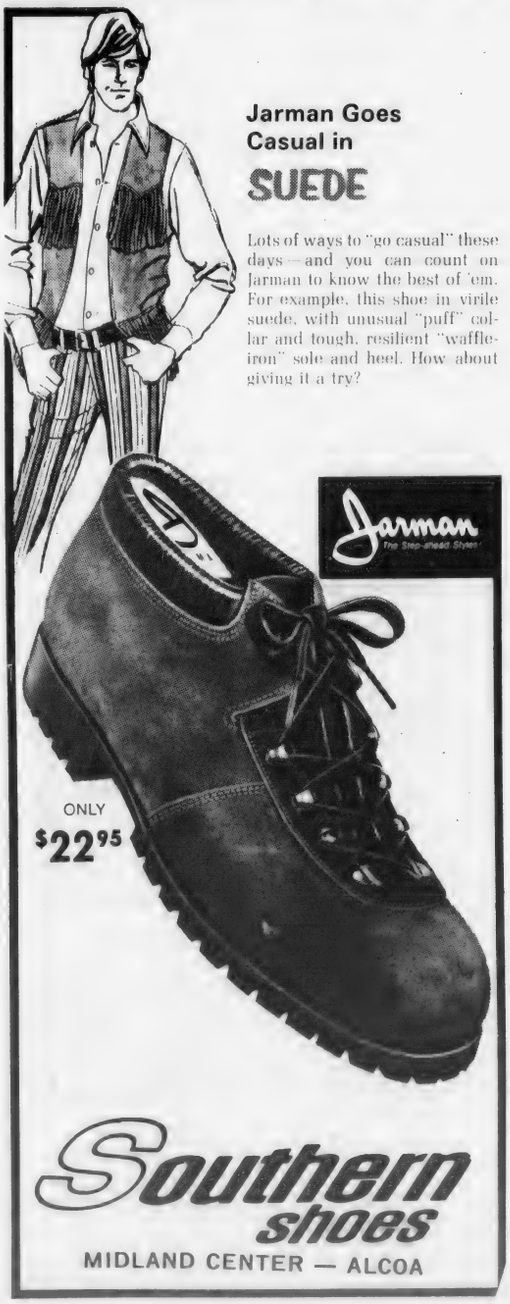
A word here about criticism. I am not advocating by what I have said that we should not criticize. On the contrary, when something is dreadfully wrong, we should criticize in order to correct it. But there is a difference between sound, constructive criticism and verbal sniping that only tears down and offers no solutions. Criticism is vital, but it is not to be abused.

There also comes a point that something becomes so intolerable that we cannot in good conscience stay within it. That is when we must emulate Luther and say "Here I stand" to explain our action.

But until that point comes, we should try with every means available to reform whatever is wrong if we really love the institution. We should criticize, but soundly and constructively. We should talk to the leaders and offer sound suggestions for reform. If we really love the organization, we will want to see it become what it should be, and if we don't have love we've wasted our time, haven't we?

A handball team is born

Although most people on campus don't know it, Maryville College has a handball team. Classified as an extra-mural sports club, the team is in its second year under Dr. Lawerence Boroviak.



The team's record for this season is 1-3. Winning only against Morehead State, the young team has lost twice to UT and once to Memphis State.

Friday night Dr. Boroviak's team meets the University of Kentucky Wildcats in the College Field house.

Winter Band Concert To Be Presented

The Maryville College Concert Band will present its annual Winter Concert next Friday night, February 2nd, at 8:15 P.M. in Wilson Chapel. The concert will also serve as a C.I.V. Several selections for the program include "Prologue from Westside Story,' Variants On A Medieval Tune," and "Music for A Festival," among others.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 12 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | February 2, 1973

Long range plans for MC to be made this weekend

A 15-member team, representing the Board of Directors, administration, alumni, local community, and student body, will meet at Maryville College February 2-3 to make long-range plans for the college.

In announcing the meeting, President Joseph J. Copeland said, "Planning is the art of determining our own destiny and assuring that it is significant."

There is nothing good in higher education which can not be made better and more productive through defined planning and efficient management, and very little bad which can not be overcome with proper planning and wise management, he said.

Representing the Board of Directors are: Ed Best, Douglas Langston, and Dr. William Walker. Administration: Dr. Copeland; Raymond I Brahams, assistant to the president; Dr. Carolyn Blair, Dean; Frank Layman, treasurer. Faculty: Dr. David Young, chairman of the chemistry department; Dr. Jim Bloy, professor of music; and Dr. Tom Puroff, assistant professor of education. Students: Ruth Mary Weston, sophomore from Maryville; Jim Lester, sophomore from Mountain Brook, Ala.; and Mike Minnix, junior from Hershey, Pa. Community members: Mrs. John (Helen) Kerr and Tutt Bradford.

Mr. Best, a 1936 graduate of Maryville, has served on the Board of Directors for 16 years. He is a budget analyst with TVA. His son, Edwin Jr., is also a Maryville graduate.

Mr. Langston, a newly elected member of the Board, is an executive with American Airlines. He and his family live in Hopewell, N.J.

Dr. Walker, who has served on the Board for 12 years, is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Owensboro, Ky. His daughter, Gayle, is a graduate of Maryville, and his son, Bill Jr., is a freshman at the College.

Mrs. Kerr, whose husband is with ALCOA, is a Maryville graduate. Their son, John, is also a Maryville graduate, and daughter, Barbara, an honor student, is a freshman.

Mr. Bradford is publisher of the Maryville-Alcoa Times.

Peter Vial and Cyndi Jones in "Mary, Mary"

"Mary, Mary" to premiere Feb. 16

Jean Kerr's delightful comedy, "Mary, Mary" will be produced in the theatre on February 16th and 17th at 8:15 p.m.

Bob McKelloway, a New York publisher, who has recently divorced his wife, Mary, has tax problems so Oscar, his lawyer, has asked Mary to return and help sort out the mess. Bob finds he still has a few "twinges" when it comes to Mary and so the scene is set for a marvelously funny comedy of errors. Providing more fuel for the fire, are Tiffany Richards, Bob's current girlfriend and Dirk Winston, an actor who falls for Mary.

Patricia "Dew" Joyce is Mary McKelloway, who has smart answer for everything. (Mary: "My God, these are dried apricots! Bob: What did you think they were? Mary: Ears!) Peter Vial takes on the role of Bob McKelloway – the sincere but inept husband. Cyndi Jones plays the New York socialite Tiffany Richards; Neil Bingham is Oscar Nelson and Mark Mertz becomes the handsome Dirk Winston.

Directing the play is Nancy McCleary, a junior drama major. She has designed an independent course, Advanced Directing. Assisting her is Karen Platt.

If you like to laugh see "Mary, Mary" on February 16th and 17th at 8:15. People falling out of windows, getting locked in closets, feeding wheat germ to fish and taking sleeping pills by mistake should provide enough laughs for a great evening of entertainment.

Music plays to be presented

Philip Steele, lyric bass and Maryville College affiliate artist, will return to the Blount County area for two special performances of Puccini's musical play, "Gianni Schicchi," to be presented with "Rider to the Sea" February 9 and 10 in the College theatre.

The action of "Gianni Schicchi" takes place in the bedchamber of rich old Buoso Donati, who has just died. While his body still lies under a sheet on the four-poster bed, the greedy relatives gather together, not to mourn, but to see who will share his enormous wealth. The relatives are chagrined to learn that his entire wealth is to go to the monks of a nearby monastery.

Not to be outdone, the relatives obtain the help of a man known for his ability to swindle, Gianni Schicchi.

The Fine Arts Department, under the direction of Dr. Harry H. Harter, will present the two musical plays. Thomas E. Jones, assistant professor of speech-theatre, will be in charge of stage direction and set design. Lee Kull, assistant professor of music, will direct the College-Community Orchestra.

Tickets are $2.00 and reservations may be made by calling 982-7800 or 982-9132.

Six compete in state speech contest

Six Maryville College students are preparing to compete in the 1973 Tennessee Intercollegiate Forensic Association Championship Tournament next weekend. Motlow State Community College, in Tullahoma, will host the event on February 8-10. Mr. Blair Beasley, instructor in speech and theatre at MC, will accompany the team as coach and chauffeur. Mr. Beasley will participate in the tournament as an official judge.

Four of the students will make their debut in intercollegiate competition at the tournament. They are: Shahbaz Ahmed, sophomore; Willie Blair, senior; Lance Dunaway, senior; and Mike Johnston, freshman. Janet Vail and Michael Montgomery, the other contestants, are three-year veterans in competitive speaking.

Among the individual events they will enter are persuasive speaking, poetry interpretation, extemporaneous speaking, and prose interpretation. There will be no participation in the debating portion of the tournament – Maryville College has been unable to field a debate team this year.

Further trips are planned to Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, Kentucky, in early March, and to Georgia Southern College, Statesboro, Georgia, in April. The team functions under the auspices of the FORUM organization, which sponsors debating and public speaking activities for the College. All students are still invited to participate with the team at subsequent tournaments. FORUM weekly meetings are held at four o' clock on Wednesday afternoon in Theatre Room 204. Coaching is always available. FORUM's sponsor is Mr. Beasley, whose office is located on the second floor of the Chapel.

Worship schedule

Vespers – Sunday, Feb. 4 – 7:00 p.m. – Wilson Chapel. Rev. Frank Gordon, Shiloh Presbyterian Church, Knoxville will speak on the subject "What is Man?" The MC Choir will sing.

Bible Study – Tuesday, Feb. 6 – 9:30 p.m. – Little Chapel

Communion – Tuesday, Feb. 6 – 10:30 p.m. Little Chapel Rev. Buford Kaylor, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church will conduct the service.

Worship – Thursday, Feb. 8 – 8:40 a.m. – Little Chapel Mrs. Lynn Ann Best will be the worship leader.

Editorial

Resignation answer to Echo situation

Rumors concerning the fate of the Echo have been flying furiously for over a week now, and the time has no doubt come to set all your minds at rest.

As you will read elsewhere in this issue, I have officially resigned my position as editor. This does not mean that the Echo will fold as a publication, as the production of a newspaper does not depend on only one person.

Applications are now being accepted for a new editor or editors, who will serve for the remainder of this year, and for next year also, and we urge all interested and/or experienced persons to apply.

Business aside, I must again state, as in earlier issues, that a newspaper, and particularly its editor, has a responsibility to those persons which it serves, in this case the student body for the most part. For this reason, out of a sense of duty, I feel that I must explain, at least in part, the reason for my resignation.

I do not know whether any Echo editor has ever resigned in the past; in any case, my decision would not be influenced, nor my opinion swayed. My decision to resign was almost entirely personal; I do not feel that I have been forced out of office, either by one person or by a committee.

I am of the opinion, however, that when a majority is dissatisfied with the work of a person in office, two choices are open to that person: to stay and fight an uphill battle, or to let another, perhaps a more capable person, take over. This last choice was mine.

To many this may seem like quitting, but I am of another opinion. If I feel that I have done my best, and my best is not satisfactory, then I must turn my energies elsewhere, and this I have done.

And so, somewhat saddened and disappointed in myself, and by the thought that things could not have been worked out somehow, I bid a fond farewell to those long nights of writing headlines, to three bottles of Excedrin each month, and to all the other joys and agonies of the editorship. To my successor I can wish only luck and a good deal of patience, and I look forward to returning to the simple yet satisfying post of staff writer.

Show concern by giving blood

By Wiley Rutledge

This may be defined as something of an appeal. Last year you may remember that I wrote an article that tried to show people that there is nothing to be afraid of in giving blood. Now that the planned visit of the bloodmobile has been postponed until next Monday, I am going to make a more serious attempt to convince you to give blood.

The need for blood has been discussed and discussed to the point that the only thing that I can add here is that I have some knowledge of how accute the need is. I have some connections with the Yale-New Haven medical center, and through these connections I have learned that the need for blood is just as desperate as we're being told it is.

There are many reasons that people do not give blood, and most of them make no sense at all. The most common one is the old chestnut, "I don't have time." In a few cases this is true, but for the majority that phrase is merely a betrayal of our lack of concern. If we are so occupied by our own petty affairs that we can't afford an hour to help someone else, we'd better take a hard look at ourselves. Maybe we don't care as much as we say we do.

The second major reason that people don't give blood is a much more reasonable one; they are afraid of needles. There is nothing that can be said for them except to point out that after the first few seconds the needle cannot be felt. Overcoming fear is something each individual must do for himself.

The last major reason people don't give blood is that they are afraid that their blood is not pure. That is checked both at the bloodmobile, and later at a laboratory, and if for any reason the blood should be rejected, it is.

There is no real reason not to give blood. Let's show we do care and turn out for the bloodmobile on Monday.

Echo to continue with new editor

The Highland Echo will continue as a student publication at Maryville College despite the resignation of the editor.

At the Communications Committee meeting last Thursday Carla Hulce agreed to continue as editor until a replacement can be secured, and a sub-committee was appointed to write guidelines for the staff to prevent future misunderstandings about duties of the staff and disposition of funds.

Further developments in the current controversy include

- a decision to advertise for new Echo personnel;
- a rallying of all staff members to the defense of the Echo;
- a determination by the staff to improve the journalistic quality of the Echo by taking more advantage of available help;
- the drawing up of guidelines by the Echo for submission to the sub-committee.

Students and faculty heretofore apathetic toward the Echo have indicated their firm belief that the student voice, "however feebly expressed at times," must be heard. Yet the "responsibility of the press must be recognized as the other side of the First Amendment coin," according to sponsor Dr. Elizabeth T. Fowler.

The Communications Committee of the All-College is comprised of Janet Vail and Mrs. Clyde Ussery, co-chairmen; Freddie Rhodes, Charles Craven, Carla Hulce, Professor Blair Beasley, Professor Andy Klein, Mr. Brick Brahams, Fred Strohl, and Dr. Fowler.

Applications being accepted for editor

Applications for the post of editor of the Highland Echo are now being accepted by the Communications Committee, and all interested and/or experienced persons are urged to apply.

A meeting for all applicants will be held by the Communications Committee as soon as all applications have been received, hopefully within the next week.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 12 February 2, 1973

editor — Carla Hulce
faculty advisor — Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
business manager — Allen Bunge
lay-out editor — Sarah Winbigler

The HIGHLAND ECHO is printed by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

"What is man?" to be vespers topic

At First Sunday vespers on Sunday, February 4, at 7:00 p.m., the Reverend Frank Gordon, pastor of Shiloh Presbyterian Church in Knoxville will speak on the subject "What Is Man?"

Mr. Gordon was born in Wilmington, Deleware, where he attended grammar and high school. He graduated from Lincoln University in Pennsylvania in 1939 and from the Lincoln Seminary in 1942. He did graduate work at Temple University. He was awarded the DD degree at Tusculum College in Greeneville, Tennessee.

Mr. Gordon held pastorates in Springfield, Missouri and Macon, Georgia, before coming to Knoxville. From 1953 to 1961 he taught religion and ethics at Knoxville College. In June he will have served the Shiloh Church for 21 years.

Mr. Gordon was president of the Tennessee Conference of NAACP branch for five years. Under Governor Clement he served in the Tennessee Commission of Race Relations. For three years he was a member of the United Presbyterian Church's Commission of Race Relations.

Mr. Gordon is active in the Boy Scout program and the YMCA. He is a member of the Goodwill Industries board, Child and Family Services board, and Board of Directors of the Conference of Christians and Jews in Knoxville.

Mr. Gordon has served as moderator of the Presbytery of Union and is currently chairman of presbytery's Committee of National Missions.

The Maryville College Concert Choir will sing, and the public is cordially invited to participate.

Help plan next January meetings

While January Meetings are still fresh on our minds, the Worship and Special Meetings Committee, which spent the first four months of the current school year preparing the recent Meetings, would like to have anyone's suggestions for a theme for next year and speakers who might be engaged next year. Please give your ideas to Coralie Usrey, Box 2750, Dr. Bloy, Box 2805, or the Chaplain, Box 2807 or in the Chapel, within the next couple of weeks.

Check into seminary Monday

Arvin Secton, a representative from Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Louisville, Kentucky, will be on campus Monday, February 5 and would like to meet with interested in learning more about Louisville Seminary or in discussing seminary education in general. Contact the Chaplain's Office for an appointment.

Band presents concert tonight

The Maryville College Highlander Band under the direction of Dan B. Stallings will present their winter concert in Wilson Chapel at 8:15 p.m. tonight, Friday, February 2.

Mr. Stallings has been the band director since 1967 when he and his wife, Joan, who helps on clarinet when needed, came to Maryville from Colorado. He noted that the band has a diversified repertoire which keeps the players interested and gives them good musical background and experience.

This concert will emphasize contemporary music, including works of Dello Joio, Bernstein, Weinberger, and Hansen.

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

Obituary for war on poverty

WASHINGTON – Even as the body of Lyndon Baines Johnson lay in state in the Austin, Texas library which bears his name, his successor in the White House made clear his intentions to abolish the Office of Economic Opportunity, the war room of Mr. Johnson's battle against poverty.

It was ironic that the news of OEO's demise should come at the time of Lyndon Johnson's death, but the news itself was no surprise. The organization's life has been as stormy as was the Johnson Presidency.

Head Start was perhaps OEO's best known creation. A program to aid under-privileged pre-schoolers, it was the mainstay which assured the agency's continued funding by Congress in the midst of failures on other more turbulent fronts, failures like the Job Corps, which created expections both in Congress and among its participants which the program's administrators knew it could not fulfill.

Therein lies the real cause of OEO's failure and the failure of the "war on poverty" itself: expectations were government had no intentions of fulfilling, indeed, which it knew would be impossible to meet.

The existing programs administered by OEO will be divided among various federal agencies, the bulk of them going to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Predictably, the organization's controversial legal services program is not among those proposed to be transferred, and presumably the President will again push for the creation of a separate legal services corporation, more directly under his control.

R. Sargent Shriver, the Democratic candidate for Vice President in 1972, is OEO's best known former director. Known on Capitol Hill as a "super-salesman", Shriver was able to wrangle funds for the agency's programs but failed to deliver the results he so eloquently promised.

He is likely to join the large group which will no doubt oppose the dismantling of OEO when Congress considers the President's fiscal year 1973-74 budget proposal, scheduled to be presented this week. The Administration exudes confidence that the President's proposal will carry in Congress: We don't intend to do away with OEO programs, they say, merely transfer them to the appropriate agencies for administration.

What they fail to add is that hidden away in the cavernous bowels of HEW, programs which now operate under the flag of the Executive Office of the President will have little muscle of their own to use in fighting for survival at the departmental money trough. Thus, good programs in time will stand a better-than-fair chance of perishing along with the bad.

There's a word for it. It's called backlash. It's what happens when expectations consistently exceed, and by astonishing margins, that which is delivered. So it was with OEO.

Volume II Number 30
For subscribers only.

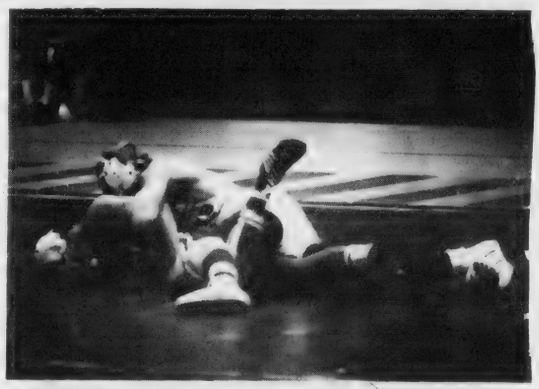
Syndicated 1973 by WASHINGTON WEEKLY, Inc. All rights reserved.

Matmen dominate three-way meet

Tuesday night the MC wrestling team won two victories in a triangular meet, upping their season record to 11-4-1. The Scots downed the University of the South (Sewanee) 33-12, and Southern Tech 36-6. In the three-way match Sewanee also claimed one victory, a 39-9 win over Tech.

Sophomore Roy Adleman began the competition, winning a 14-3 superior decision over Sewanee's Mike Maxom. Later, he pinned Tech's Don McNeil in 1:06.

In the 126-pound class, Paul Naylor claimed two victories, decisioning Tech's Ted Soures 8-2 and Ken Seese of Sewanee 8-4.



John Poore pinned both of his opponents for the evening. Cleve Dryden of Tech fell only one minute into the match. In the next round Poore nailed Sewanee's Bo Taylor to the mat at 4:11. This year Poore is undefeated in regular season competition.

Mark Baxis stepped into the line-up at 142 and walked away with two victories. He won his first from purple-suited Bill Manning 5-0, and an additional third-round triumph over Wayne Wilcher or Tech.

One of the evening's highlights was a swift pin by 150-pound Steve Kitchen. The 25-second victory over US's Bob Hoffman is the third fastest in MC's 44-year wrestling history. Added to this victory was an earlier pin of Tech's Jay McClure in 5:41.

In his 158 slot, Brad Kehler won two decisions, defeating Wayne Eleton of Tech 8-0 and David Held of Sewanee 6-3.

In his first match of the evening, Matt Pacifico sustained a shoulder injury which forced him to withdraw from the competition. Hopefully, Pacifico will return to the line-up shortly.

Kehler decisions Tech opponent

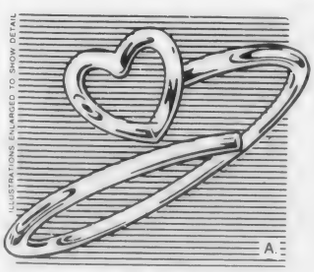
Freshman Wayne Risko continues to impress his observors, as well as his opponents. Tuesday night Risko claimed his sixth and seventh pins of the season, nearing the record of eight set by John Poore. His pins for the evening were tabbed on Tech's Mike Speed at 1:53 and US's Steve Bishop at 1:43. Risko also leads the squad in team points scored, boasting 58.

Glenn Dolph went down to the 190 weight class for this competition. In his first match, against Charles Kerr of Tech, Dolph claimed a 6-1 advantage. However, in his second bout, he fell victim to Sewanee's Phillip Elder.

In the heavyweight position, two MC performers shared the spotlight. Jim Batchler earned a 5-2 decision over Steve Higgins of Sewanee, while the third round saw the regular season debut of Roger Reiter at heavyweight.

Reiter, who had been side-lined with a leg injury since the Southern Open in early December, wrestled aggressively against Tech's Ray Percy and won 4-0.

Tonight the Scots host Morehead State in the College fieldhouse, and tomorrow night entertain Eastern Kentucky University.



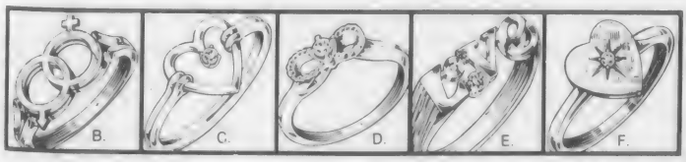
★★★★★★★

Bloodmobile on campus Monday

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Health, Physical Education Building between 11:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. on Monday, February 5. The latest count of pledges is 164. You need not have filled out a pledge card in order to give blood. Remember BLOOD IS LIFE – PASS IT ON.

★★★★★★★

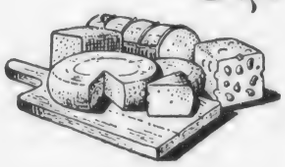
Open 9 To 5:30 Daily, And Friday Nights 'Til 9



Youthful! Joyous! Loving! The newest geometrics, to be worn singly or in multiples, that express your love and affection for that special girl, simply and sincerely.

A. OURS EXCLUSIVELY! Mini heart on golden spiral band.....$9.95
B. Man/Woman Symbol $19.95
C. Heart with Mini Diamond.....$24.95
D. Infinity Symbol with Diamond.....$19.95
E. Love Script with Mini Diamond $19.95
F. Solid Florentine Heart with Diamond.....$29.95

Our Petite Finger Rings Are Golden Treasures.



JEWEL BOX

Midland Center, Alcoa

USE OUR REVOLVING CHARGE PLAN, CUSTOM CHARGE PLAN, LAYAWAY OR YOUR FAVORITE BANK CARD

The Cheese Shoppe

Midland Center

984-6511

129 Different Cheeses

HOURS:
Monday - Friday
10 - 9
Saturday, 10 - 6

HOT SANDWICHES

HOAGIE	1.25	CHICKEN SALAD	.65
REUBEN	1.25	TUNA SALAD	.65
ROAST BEEF	.95	KOSHER HOT DOG	.35
TURKEY	.95	HOT DOG	.35
CORNED BEEF	.95	KNOCKWURST	.40
PEPPERED BEEF	.95	PIMENTO CHEESE	.65
PASTRAMI	.95	AMERICAN CHEESE	.65
COOKED HAM	.85	SWISS CHEESE	.65
SPICED HAM	.75	CHEESE SPECIAL	.85
COOKED SALAMI	.85
KOSHER SALAMI	.85
GENOA SALAMI	.95	CUP OF POTATO SALAD	.30
LIVER SAUSAGE	.75	CUP OF CHILI	.15
BOLOGNA	.75	SANDWICH WITH CHEESE	.10 extra

DRINKS

MILK	.22	ORANGE	.15
CHOCOLATE MILK	.22	ROOT BEER	.15
COFFEE	.10	GRAPE	.15
ORANGE JUICE	.20	TAB	.15
COKE	.15	FRESCA	.15
SPRITE	.15	SARSAPARILLA	.15

ALSO PARTY NEEDS:

MEATS, CHEESE, CRACKERS, & DRINK MIXERS

The Cheese Shoppe
MIDLAND CENTER
984-6511

HOURS: Monday - Friday, 10 - 9 – Saturday, 10 - 6

Will deliver at 9:15 p.m. if ordered before 9:00 p.m.

Basketball team loses twice

The Maryville College basketball team lost two more games last week at the hands of Emory and Henry, 86-68; and Birmingham-Southern, 75-47. The Scots' season record at this point is 1-13.

In the game against Emory and Henry that was played on Thursday night in the Phys. Ed. Building, a rough game took place that saw 58 fouls called. There were obvious additional violations that were not called by what the crowd felt was shoddy officiating. Maryville Coach Boydson Baird was slapped with two technical fouls. As far as the game was concerned, the Scots never were able to get into the thick of the battle. Freshman Kenny Talbott, who has become the Maryville scoring star, led the Scots in scoring with 16 points. Bobby Hicks was the leading scorer for Emory and Henry as he also scored 16.

On Saturday night, the Scots met a strong Birmingham-Southern team that went into the game undefeated. The Scots started the contest playing a slow-down-type game, but could not hold the Panthers. Talbott again led the Scots' scoring attack with 10 points, while Greg Robinson led the Panthers with 16 points.

The Scots have one game scheduled for this week. That will be against the University of the South at Sewanee on Saturday night.

Birmingham-Southern
Cowgill	6
Robinson	16
McWeay	9
Creaser	10
Love	0
Boydstun	6
Kearse	9
Urling	14
Fields	2
Ricketts	3
Totals	75

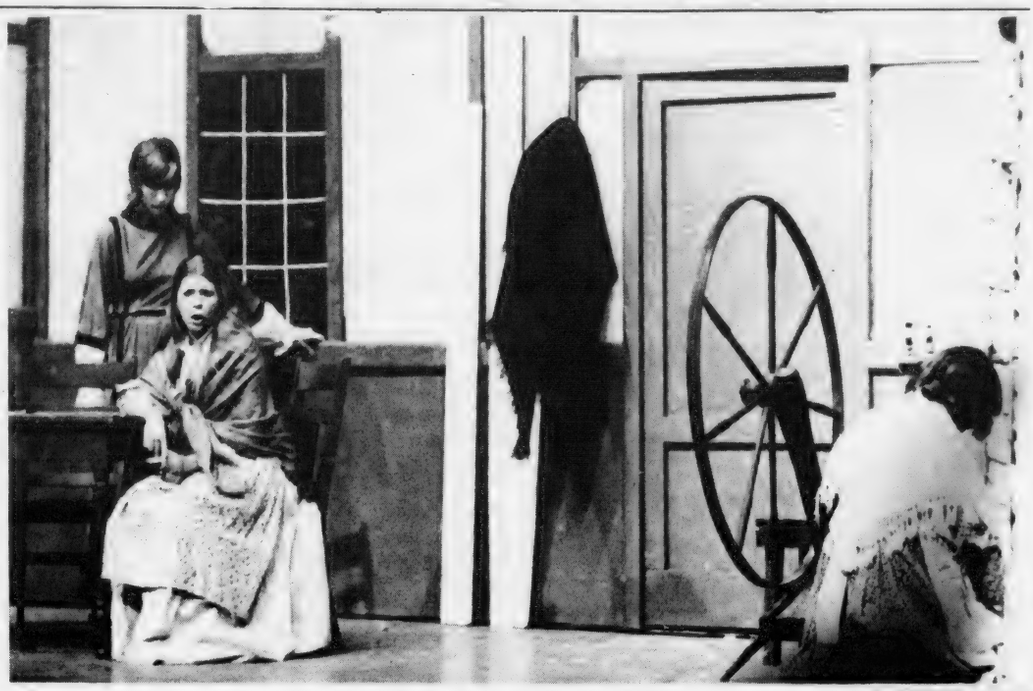
Maryville
Graham	7
Lambert	7
Talbott	10
Schaurer	8
Ross	2
Banas	5
Morton	2
Guillaume	6
Totals	47

Handball team wins victory

Last Friday night the Scot handball team won their second victory of the season, defeating the visiting University of Kentucky 3-2. Both of MC's singles players won, but the Wildcats' doubles team took the final match.

The Scots' A player, Mike Wenkstern, soundly defeated his opponent, Lee Clymer, in two games, 21-7 and 21-4. Paul Lefkowitz, playing in the B position, also took a victory. Coming from behind, he won over Chuck Penn 16-21, 21-12, and 21-16. UK's doubles team, consisting of John Ruth and John Arem, turned back Scots duo Bill Corbett and Paul Viggiano.

The team's season mark is now 2-3, but the men hope to better that record on their road trip to Memphis State in mid-February.



"Quack box" appears today

This afternoon the Echo will place a complaint box, to be known as the "Quack Box," in the Post Office, near the mail counter. This box is for legitimate bellyaches, and it is hoped that some discretion as to language will be used. If no gripes come in, the staff must assume that all is well, which may be something for someone to complain about.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, no. 13 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | February 9, 1973

Music-theatre premiers tonight

Several MC students will perform major roles in two musical plays, "Riders to the Sea," and "Gianni Schicchi," to be presented tonight and tomorrow night, February 9 and 10.

In "Riders to the Sea," the lead roles will be played by several voice students, including Christina Bergner, Fred Frost, Kay Hurlbut, Merida Kearns-Preston, Jane Pierce, and Mary Kaye Sanders. In "Gianni Schicchi," voice students who will assume lead roles are Wayne Davis, Pamela Faulkner, Fred Frost, William Gaffney, Delores Ziegler, and Lana Grubis.

The two one-act productions will provide an international flavor which will begin in Ireland with Ralph Vaughan Williams' musical version of an Irish play, "Riders to the Sea." From Ireland the listener is taken to Florence, Italy, by Jiacomo Puccini's comedy, "Gianni Schicchi."

In addition to these music students, two 1953 MC graduates will return to take lead roles in the plays: Conrad Eaddy of Kissimmee, Florida, and Donald Brakebill of Maryville, Tennessee. Mr. Eaddy is Minister of Music at a Methodist church in Kissimmee. Mr Brakebill directs the Alcoa High School Chorus and the newly formed Chilhowee Choral Society, and teaches voice in Maryville.

Philip Steele will sing the lead role in "Gianni Schicchi." Mr. Steele, a well-known face at Maryville College, is our Affiliate Artist.

Passion play to hold auditions

Acting auditions for the Smoky Mountain Passion Play will be held Saturday, February 17 at the Maryville College amphitheater between 10:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Indoor facilities have been reserved in the event of inclement weather.

Students will participate from Middle Tennessee University, Tennessee Technological University, Maryville College, the University of Tennessee, Carson Newman College, Tusculum College and East Tennessee State. High School students and adults of the area are also invited to take part.

The drama, which will portray events of the last week in the life of Christ on earth, will be enacted by 35 selected performers. The play features 59 speaking parts. The Passion Play will also include 20 singer-actors. Auditions for the singer-actors will be held at a time and date to be announced later.

ance preparation will be necessary for all those auditioning. Details are printed on the registration forms which may be obtained from the Passion Play Administrative Office, 210 East Harper Avenue in Maryville. Registration forms may also be picked up at the Blount County Chamber of Commerce and the Greater Knoxville Chamber of Commerce.

The Smoky Mountain Passion Play ground-breaking ceremony was held December 3 in Townsend near the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Construction of 2,000 seat facility will be completed in the Spring.

College receives Gulf Oil grant

Maryville College has received a capital grant of $5,000 from the Gulf Oil Foundation to be applied to the reconstruction of Pearsons Hall, destroyed by fire last February.

The grant is part of more than $2.5 million that Gulf will distribute this year to students and institutions of higher education for a variety of purposes.

Prints to be sold Monday

A special one-day presentation of original lithograph, intaglio, serigraph and woodcut prints will be held Monday 12 Gebruary from 1 to 7 p.m. in the Fine Art Center Lounge, Maryville College. The public is invited to view this unique collection of the Lakeside Studio from Lakeside, Michigan, and to meet their representative, David Berreth, who will be happy to answer questions both historical and technical. All works to be displayed are available for purchase.

The work to be exhibited here, valued at over $100,000, contains prints by old master and modern master artists such as Albrecht Durer, Jacques Callot, Georges Rouault and Pablo Picasso. Also there will be prints by contemporary artsits Leonard Beskin, Garo Antresian, Mark Tobey, Sid Chafetz, S.W. Hayter, and many others including Albert Christ-Janer and William Walmsley from the Tennessee area.

Prints by Rudy Pozzatti, Sigmund Abeles and Misch Kohn, to name only a few artists, have been printed and published by Lakeside; a total of nearly fifty editions have been completed so far. The studio also offers a summer course for professional printmakers. This course is directed each year by various noted artists and professional printers. Included on the property is a 50-room hotel which was once a popular resort and now provides living quarters for visiting artists, educators, curators, and gallery directors.

The Lakeside Studio collection of over 1000 original prints tours the country each year, visiting major museums and universities.

Editorial

Carnegie council possible solution to complaints

By Wiley Rutledge

Over the last two years, several complaints have been ledged with the administration and others relating to the conditions in Carnegie Hall. Last week these complaints resulted in the formation of a committee made up of residents of Carnegie which exists for the express purpose of taking the students' complaints to the administration. Dr. Copeland has promised action on any complaint which comes through the committee.

This is a positive first step. The griping that has gone on in Carnegie has, in many cases, been justified. But because it was griping, it has accomplished very little. Now a committee has been formed of people who are close to the source of the problem. This is good, but it carries some obligations with it.

The administration must make good on its promise. It may not be that every problem presented by this committee can be solved immediately, but if that is the case, the administration must show that it is taking positive steps toward dealing with the problem. The students have put their trust in the administration. Now it must prove itself worthy of that trust.

The students have the obligation of taking their problems to the committee. The list of committee members has been posted in Carnegie, and the residents should work with and through them. Aimless griping doesn't improve anything and it creates a lot of antagonism.

Both the residents of Carnegie and the administration have the obligation to work together for the satisfaction of all concerned. The dormitory exists for the students and it is up to everyone concerned to make it the kind of dorm that will satisfy the residents.

Students wanted for archaeological work

Students are urgently invited to help in archaeological excavations in England this summer. Deadline for applications is April 1.

City center redevelopment, new road-building programs, and rapidly changing land use are threatening the disappearance of prehistoric graves, Iron-age settlements, Roman villas, fascinating relics of mediaeval towns, all over Britain.

American students free from mid-May, and with previous archaeological experience, are invited to join an international team on a dig of the important Anglo-Saxon site at Spong Hill where the 1973 excavation hopes to find new evidence of the early pagan settlements. Experienced helpers will receive free board for helping in this important work. Similar help is also required on work on a mediaeval manor near Chester.

Other students without experience are invited to join the British Archaeology Seminar at Lincoln College, Oxford, organized by the Association for Cultural Exchange. Eix academic credits can be earned from participating in this low-cost program which ends by three weeks' participation on digs in different parts of England and Scotland.

These include the Association's own mesolithic dig on the island of Oronsay in the Hebrides which last summer was visited by Queen Elizabeth, Prince Charles,and Princess Anne. Cost, inclusive of Trans-Atlantic travel by scheduled jet, is 790.

Write now for further details to Ian Lowson, 539 West 112th Street, New York, N.Y. 10025

Band performs varied program

The Maryville College Concert Band under the directionship of Dan B. Stallings, associate music professor in the Department of Fine Arts, presented its Winter Concert Friday night at Wilson Chapel.

Leading the night off was music from Johannes Hanssen's Valdress March, and a folk song suite from Ralph Vaughn Williams – the march Seventeen come Sunday, the intermezzo My Bonny Boy and the march Folk Songs from Somer Set. The first half ended with a Polka and Fugue from Jaromir Weinberger's opera Swanda the Bagpiper.

Leonard Bernstein's prologue to West Side Story and Variants on a Mediaeval Tune from Norman Dello Joio restarted the performance. The night ended with a contemporary tune from Dan Emmett, Fantasia on Dixie.

Many a southern heart was moved by the last number; however the audience failed to be moved to its feet as the concert ended. The performance counted as a CIV.

Members of the Maryville Community also participate in the Concert Band. The band's next performance will be its Spring Concert.

Affiliate artist performs tonight

By Patti Shelton

What does Philip Steele do when he's not performing as an affiliate artist? Officially, even when not visiting Maryville, Mr. Steele is an ambassador for the college; first and foremost, however, he is a professional singer. Between his last stay at MC and his current visit Mr. Steele has been very busy coaching and auditioning. His recent activities include an audition for Opera America in Dallas, for which he was recommended by the Kansas City Opera Company, and a period as guest artist for Brooklyn College performing in a production of Bethoven's Fidelio.

In addition to his role in the opera tonight, Mr. Steele will continue to sing and talk to civic groups in this area while he is affiliated with the college. He will also be traveling in other parts of Tennessee as an aid to recruitment for MC. He will be performing at high schools and junior colleges, particularly in the Chattanooga area. Although he was a soloist with the Yardumian Oratorio last spring, Mr. Steele will not accompany the choruses to Dallas in May but will be in Chattanooga doing Merry Wives of Windsor.

This August will mark the end of Mr. Steele's time as an affiliate artist. He is pleased with his experience at Maryville, referring to it as "one of the smoothest run appointments in the program." After leaving MC, Phillip Steele will return to his home in New York and continue coaching and auditioning. Undoubtedly many of us will hear of Mr. Steele and his sonorous lyric bass again as he goes on in classical singing, which he calls "one of the most difficult and competitive jobs in America today."

Alumnus donates cartoon collection to library

The MC library has recently acquired a collection of original political cartoons and political novels which will be on display until next Friday. The donor of this unique collection is Mr. David King, retired professor of political science at the University of Akron and a Maryville graduate.

Mr. King and his wife, also an MC alumnus, live in Maryville now and attend many of the college activities such as concerts and plays. Mr. King's donation includes many of the old Thomas Nast originals as well as several classics novels such as Mark Twain's Gilded Age.

Thanks to Mr. King's generosity, the campus will soon be able to enjoy American history with a lighter touch.

String quartet appears Tuesday

The Concord String Quartet will present a concert at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, February 13 in the Music Hall of the Maryville College Fine Arts Center.

The quartet, which has played extensively in the East, with tours in the Midwest and West Coast, has been featured at such places as Princeton, Yale, Dartmouth, the SUNY system, University of Cincinnati, University of Southern California, Mills College and the New Schools for Social Research.

It also has been quartet-in-residence for the Marathon concerts at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

The program will include selections by Juan Arriaga, Bela Bartok, and Beethoven.

Tickets are $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for children. Reservations may be made by calling 982-7800 or 982-9132.

Kappa Phi holds officer elections

The Kappa Phi Society of Maryville College held its election of officers for the Winter and Spring terms last Thursday night. The new officers are Jim Covington, President; Gene Herron, Vice President; Fred Strohl, Secretary; Al Bunge, Treasurer; Chris Baugham, Sex Chairman; and Ben Cole, Bartender.

The Highland Echo

editor — Carla Hulce
faculty advisor — Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
business manager — Allen Bunge
lay-out editor — Sarah Winbigler

The HIGHLAND ECHO is printed by the Maryville-Alcoa Newspapers, Inc. weekly throughout the collegiate year.

One blue and gold basketball practice jersey in the gym locker room. If found, please contact Box 2607. Reward offered! Sentimental value.

FOUND

Gold Plates containing Records of Christ in the Americas.

For further information contact: 984-6762 before 10:00 A.M. or after 10:00 P.M.

With Ron Hendren

A YOUNG VIEW OF WASHINGTON

Bare bones budget: story of bombs vs. books

WASHINGTON — With the unveiling of President Nixon's "bare bones budget" as Senate Minority Leader Hugh D. Scott (R-Pa.) termed it, the stage has been set for one of the most historic and farreaching confrontations between Congress and the White House is recent years.

Eight pages of the President's budget message were filled with the names of programs he plans to reduce or terminate. They read like a history book of Democratic administrations since Roosevelt, for the programs Mr. Nixon plans to scrap are primarily legacies from the New Deal, Fair Deal, New Frontier and Great Society of Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy and Johnson.

According to the President's view, people programs (such as federal grants to elementary and secondary school libraries) should not be funded by federal tax dollars. As these programs are phased out, his projected savings grow from $6.5 billion in the current fiscal year to $21.7 billion in Fical Year 1975.

At the same time, however, the President has called for an increase of $4.7 billion in the Defense Department budget, an amount which exceeds the total budget of the Office of Education.

While Mr. Nixon's message of frugality was delivered in the spirit of holding down taxes, interest rates and inflation — goals to which every politician and citizen aspire — that spirit was tainted with the harsh reality that Mr. Nixon, places domestic problems low on his totem pole of priorities.

A keystone in the White House strategy for winning the budget fight will be to secure the support of the nation's governors, mayors and other state and local elected officials. The golden carrot on the end of Mr. Nixon's stick is the promise of greatly increased revenue sharing, and already some of the country's most influential mayors are publicly licking their chops. The President apparently believes that with their support and by holding down taxes, he will be able to carry the day against Congress and the special interest groups which benefit from federal domestic spending.

What Congress will attempt to show, on the other hand, is that those special interest groups include the poor, the elderly, children in public schools — indeed, nearly all Americans. For example, the proposal to phase out library grants has already been termed "a disaster for our chools, which would set elementary library . . . development back ten years," by the president of the American Association of School Librarians. In plainer language, those grants have for years meant that children and adults in communities all across the land have had ready access to books. Without the aid, the story will rapidly change. Without books, what happens to education?

And federal grants to libraries represent just one of the myriad of programs which the President proposes to end. Whether he will be able to have it his way depends in large part upon the determination of Congress to fulfill its Constitutional mandate to allocate federal funds. And if Congress' will in the months ahead is no stronger than it has been in the past, the picture will be grim indeed.

Volume II Number 31

Syndicated 1972 by Washington Weekly, Inc. All rights reserved

Dribblers drop two more games

The Maryville College Basketball team lost two more games last week, falling to Birmingham-Southern on Thursday night, 106-66; and Sewanee on Saturday, 92-48. Both games were played on the road, and both are examples of the frustrations that the Scots have had to live with all season long.

However, Coach Boydson Baird was pleased with the two performances of team Captain Randy Schaurer, who had his best week yet. Schaurer scored 22 against Birmingham-Southern, and 16 against Sewanee.

In the game against Birmingham-Southern besides Schaurer, the other leading scorers for Maryville were Freshmen Bruce Guillaume with 12, and Kenny Talbott with 11. Freshman Andy Banas and Sophomore Scott Ross each contributed 10 against Sewanee.

The Scots have two games on tap this week, and both will be at home. Clinch Valley will be the opponent tomorrow night, while Lincoln Memorial University will challenge the Scots on Thursday night. The final home game of the season will be played against Sewanee next Saturday.

Fouls: Birmingham-Southern 22, Maryville, 20.
Technical: Maryville
Halftime: Birmingham-Southern, 31-16.

In bread making, salt slows and stabilizes the fermentation of yeast and also strengthens the gluten in the flour.

ACC

The All-College Council entered three main items at their meeting last Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 31, although it did not make any changes or approve any decisions.

First, it welcomed Jim Batchler, a sophomore who is a new member of the ACC. He replaces Amy Dickerson, who did not return to school this term.

Second, it heard a report concerning January Meetings read by Coralie Usrey and Chaplain Harrison. After pointing out that the Meetings had improved this year, they questioned the earlier suggestion of the Instructional Program Committee that the long weekend be eliminated by suspending classes only on Wednesday. As the Worship and Special Meeting Committee was not prepared to present a recommendation, the Council took no action.

Lastly, it heard Dr. Copeland give a summary of his recent trip to the Association of American Colleges, held in San Francisco Jan. 14-16. At that meeting, issues critical to Maryville College were discussed. These same issues were also considered by the Long Range Planning Committee, which had its first meeting last weekend. This committee contains representatives from the Board, Faculty, Administration, Alumni, and Community. It also contains two student representatives: Mike Minnix and Jim Lester.

"Any freshman can!"

By Dr. Erma Q. Reuben

My freshman year was carefully planned. My courses were all selected with a very definite aim in view-no classes before eleven in the morning or after two-thirty in the afternoon. On that rock was my education built.

My freshman year a student could take any course in the catalogue, providing no two came at the same hour. The only things he was not supposed to mix were Scotch and gin. This was known as the elective system.

My freshman year was the most productive — so for you, dear freshman, I have inventoried everything I learned my freshman year.

First Term

1. Eight hours of sleep is not necessary.
2. Charlemagne either died or was born or did something with the Holy Roman Empire in 800.
3. Almost everything you need to know about anything is in the encyclopedia.
4. A good initation of the measles can be effected by stabbing yourself with a whisk-broom.

Second Term

1. You can sleep undetected in a lecture course by wearing sunglasses and swearing you have pink-eye.
2. Six hours of sleep is not necessary.
3. Alka-Selzer taken before retiring makes you feel better upon arising.

Third Term

1. Elizabeth I was not above suspicion.
2. You don't have to be fully dressed if you wear a maxi-coat to A-hour.
3. The Alka-Selzer you left in your cup over Spring Break makes a neat mold which might be the cure for cancer.
4. Your studies don't have to interfere with your education.

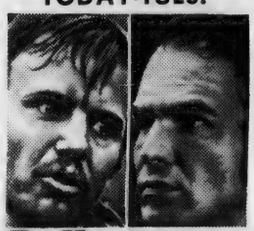
There are certain things I got tired of hearing the first day of class my freshman year. I'm sure you will remember them. . .

— "If you don't know the answer to this equation $(\frac{x2-x3}{\sqrt{6}} \div \frac{3\sqrt{273}}{\pi 2r^2}) - (\frac{x^2 \cdot 2mc}{13p} + \frac{r3 \div m}{r\ 3m})$ within 10 seconds, you'll probably flunk this course."

— "We'll be doing quite a lot or reading in this course, i.e., War and Peace, Gone With The Wind, 3 novels by Hemingway, 5 of Faulkner's, and the Holy Bible."

— "Hi! These are the last English words you'll hear spoken in here. Comprendez-vous?"

— "Oh, was that the final bell? Well I'm sure you won't mind if I keep you just a few extra minutes."



DON'T FORGET!

Theta-Sig Donut Sale

Sunday night, February 11

NOW SHOWING
Cinemette South Theatre
Dogwood

TODAY-TUES.

Deliverance
A JOHN BOORMAN FILM
Starring JON VOIGHT · BURT REYNOLDS
PANAVISION® · TECHNICOLOR®
From Warner Bros.
A Warner Communications Company
R
Shows 7:00 & 9:00

Parkway

TODAY-SUNDAY

"Diary Of A Telephone Operator"
(R)
Shows 7:00 p.m.
ALSO
"One On Top Of The Other"
Shows 8:45

Capitol

TODAY-SUN.

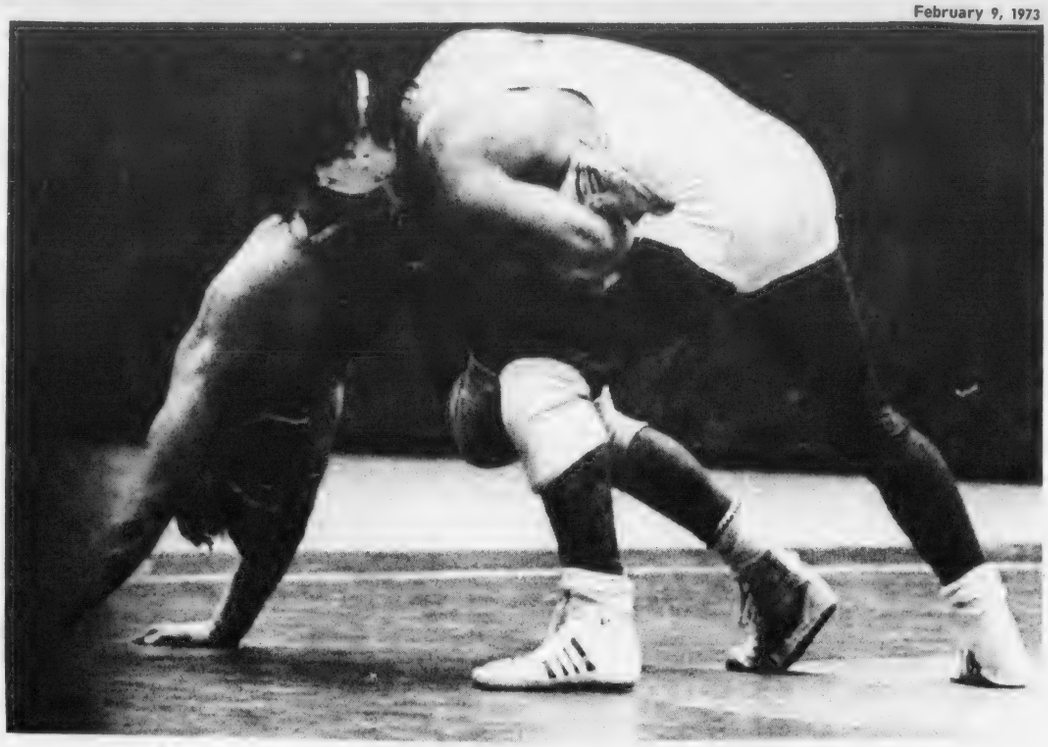
Walt Disney's
DUMBO
TECHNICOLOR
©1972 Walt Disney Production
AND
the legend of
WALT DISNEY presents LOBO
TECHNICOLOR
©1962 Walt Disney Production
Shows 7:00 p.m.

Matmen finish season in style

Last week the MC grapplers wrapped up their regular season, boasting a record of 13-4-1. Friday night the Scots tagged a 28-9 loss on Morehead State, and Saturday struck Eastern Kentucky with a 28-16 scar on their record.

Friday night Roy Adleman came from behind to pin his 118-pound opponent, Mike Deaton, in 7:00. However, EKU's Bill Fromann reversed the tide Saturday, pinning Adleman in 3:33.

Paul Naylor lost his MS match on riding time, as George Clayton squeezed out a 5-4 decision. Saturday night Naylor returned to the win column, registering a fall in 7:29 over Steve Vespe of EKU.



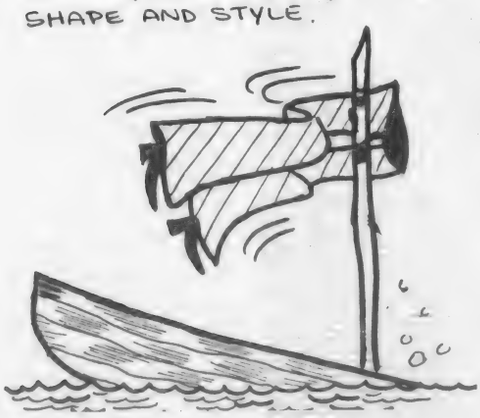
Morehead State forfeited the 134 class and John Poore collected six more team points. Saturday night, however, Poore lost a 10-7 decision to Bob Roach.

Nick Rzymek, MS's tall, strong 142 pounder, decisioned Doug Cunningham 7-1, but Cunningham returned to win his match Saturday. He edged EKU's Mike Mussmann 3-1.

In a very exciting match, Steve Kitchen downed Morehead's Brian Keefe 4-3 in the 150 pound division. Saturday Kitchen won by default when EKU's Stan Whittlessey sustained an elbow injury.

Brad Kehler earned a superior decision of 17-7 over Chuck Freels of Morehead, but fell a 6-3 victim to Marvin Alstott in the EKU competition.

MC's 167 pound Matt Pacifico took a 9-2 decision over Chip Allen in the Morehead contest. Pacifico finished the season by pinning Eastern's Ken Bostlemann in 2:35.



Friday night Wayne Risko handed Morehead's Steve Morgan a 5-2 defeat. In his match against EKU, Risko grabbed an 8-4 triumph over Chris Reeder.

Filling the 190 pound slot, MC's only senior, Roger Reiter, decisioned Al Jordon 4-3. Saturday night, in his last regular season match, Reiter earned a 3-3 tie. Wrestling this time as a heavyweight, he barely missed pinning Randy Rudolph, who held a marked weight advantage.

Jim Batchler also faced a weight advantage in his heavyweight bout. Jerry Anthony of Morehead finally took a 8-4 decision over Batchler. Saturday night, as a 190 pounder, Batchler battled Jo Neff to a 7-7 tie.

Today and tomorrow the Maryville matmen are at the University of the South in Sewanee, competing in the SEIWA Championship Tournament.

S. O. S.
SAVE! OOPS! SAVE!
ON PANTS FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY! IN EVERY SIZE, SHAPE AND STYLE.

1819 E. Broadway
Maryville ph. 984-OOPS

Cover Girl Shoes.
They make heads turn.

Yes, we have Cover Girl's Spiffy Spectators — Blue-White
Blk.-White
$19.99

Southern shoes
MIDLAND CENTER — ALCOA

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 58, No. 14 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | February 15, 1973

Escobar Exhibit Reviewed

The art exhibit by Roberto Escobar which was on display in the Fine Arts building left me with various impressions. He show obvious talent, but, in my opinion, also some slight weaknesses.

As an overall exhibit, the display was well-presented. There was variety, not only in scens depicted, but also in the medium used – oil, charcoal, ink, acrylic, and so forth. I felt it would have been more interesting if Escobar had included more charcoal and ink drawings, as he presented only one of each of those. Scenes ranged from still-life nature settings to abstract color swirls: seasons, seashore, outer space, human faces, man-made structures. Colors used were of the entire spectrum, though basic patterns could be seen in the artist's choice of color.

On the whole, I felt Escobar was most successful in using the bold contrasting colors; and in using only two or three colors, not in blending. I was particularly impressed with the icy, cold "Silver Thaw" of white trees and moon against a cool blue sky. Another picture of similar interest was "Cosmos." Here Escobar contrasted the black background of the sky with light-colored planets and rocky substance. To further emphasize the bold contrast, the frame contained a wide strip of red to set off the blackness of the universe. However, the spherical planets seemed to be too distinctly outlined, and this drew some of the attention away from the overall painting.

The fall scenes of Nature were quite pretty, and the use of various greens, yellows, oranges and browns portrayed the realistic feeling of autumn. The scenes depicted were very similar, however, and seemed to show a lack of imagination on the part of the artist. Rather than taking one scene from a mountain side, another along a stream, and so on, nearly every fall scene was of trees along a roadway. I felt the painting of Abram's Falls was perhaps the best of these.

Escobar displayed four separate paintings of a boat (or boats) on the sea. Two were apparently beach scenes, with shore and palm trees. "Luquillo" and "Rendezvous" seemed to typical. The colors used were used well in the sky and reflection on the water. But in "Rendezvous" the boat seemed too well-defined, and stood out against the sky in a gaudy way. I found "Repose" to be the most pleasing of these scenes, as it had the softest colors and blend.

I felt Escobar's weakness was found in his abstract paintings. These seemed to simply done, and appeared too common-looking. These seemed to be merely various colors swirled onto the canvas. The only two of the six which particularly interested me were "Abstract No. 2", which, again, used the simple contrasting of white and dark grey, and "Abstract No. 4," which, composed of yellow and red, resembled a very hot fire. The other combinations appeared dull and shabby.

Some of the scenes – "King Lear's Daughters," "Absorption", "Progression" and "Image," showed the artist's use of imagination. The scenes were not particularly striking or fascinating, however. "Image" was distracting in that it tended to draw my attention to the smaller replica of the painting. There I had a natural desire to compare the smaller image with the larger to see how precise the detail was. Finding some minute flaw in detail changed my impression of the entire work.

The ink sketch of the dog, "Mac", was impressive because of its simplicity. Though the detail was sketchy, the texture of the paper and the pattern of the lines seemed to realistically portray the color and texture of the dog's coat.

The exhibit as a whole was interesting. The repetition of subject (boat scenes, fall scenes) served as a basis for comparative observation. Some of the works were better than others, but the talent of the artist, Roberto Escobar, is evident.

Community Projects Resumed

On Saturday afternoon, February 17, a variety of community-based work projects will be conducted. All interested persons, students or not, are invited to participate. The projects will operate in the manner of those run during January Meetings.

The projects scheduled for next weekend are:

1) Assisting the local Boys' Club in organizing a library;
2) Picking up unwanted furniture and other household items to be made available to those in need. The Blount County FISH organization will run this.;
3) Cleaning up and painting in the homes of local residents unable to do this themselves.

All the projects will originate from the Chapel Courtyard at two o'clock. Transportation will be provided. All projects will be completed by five o'clock.

CRAWFORD

by Stanley Jack

A musical organization which deserves serious future campus attention is CRAWFORD. This progressive musical group intends to be regarded as more than just a skillful party band or a clique of weekend "rock and rollers." Five students currently form Crawford, the name which they prefer to call themselves. They are Sean Sullivan, Richard Battaglia, Randy Hunter, Danny Whiteside, and Mike Panepento.

All are well-experienced individually on their respective instruments and showed themselves to be skilled at a recent rock concert performed here at Maryville's Wilson Chapel. Richard and Sean have been playing together in bands since their high school days in New Jersey, and last year, they performed at MC with some of their friends from Jersey under the brand name of "Yoke". They were often heard out of the windows of upstairs Fayerweather practicing.

Randy, Danny, and Mike are music majors here at school. Randy is a voice major, studying with Dr. Harter has ambitions to continue music study after leaving MC. Danny has an inclination toward electronic music and is currently mastering the ARP, an instrument similar to the MOOG syntesizer of Walter Carlos' "Switched on Bach." Mike is a professional night club drummer from Upper New York State, who has toured with the company of "Jesus Christ Superstar." He is currently under scholarship and performs with the MC Highlander Band.

Crawford's plans for the future are to work up additional sets of songs and to begin performing locally. They intend to stay within the progressive rock mainstream with emphasis on the "goodtime" band sound. If you like rock music, whether their performances are heard on stage or at a dance or each musician is heard individually, it would certainly be worth your while to listen to Crawford.

EDITORIALS

When Apathy Reigns

People enjoy reading inflammatory statements. And there are many which could be made about Maryville College, many factual statements which would get people to talk, to think, to discuss, to complain. But little more gets accomplished after that period of discussion and complaint. Why is this? Why won't people get out and do something about that which they are concerned? This has been the question on the minds of various Maryvilleans, notably, a member of our own staff, Wiley Rutledge, who has written a series of editorials on this very subject. This editorial is in response to Mr. Rutledge and his articles.

People, especially at MC, it seems, are not really concerned about that which they complain. They are, as has been said so many, many times before, "apathetic." Yet, the question which I mean to pose is quite simply this: is apathy all that bad?

It is somewhat apparent that, for Maryvilleans anyhow, apathy has not been all that detrimental. Quite to the contrary, we seem to have discovered some type of "negative Utopia" where the population of a mere 800 people are so diverse, where the government and its subjects are so far removed, where the administration, the faculty, the staff, and the students are so impossibly walled off from one another, that all have ceased to care about anything which affects anyone but themselves. But, this has not in any way affected the institution of Maryville College.

The institution still perks right along at the speed it did in the 60's. And this is, in fact, the source of the apathy.The students have mobilized, perhaps even progressed, value-wise, more swiftly than the institution. And they view the institution as a bog, rather than as a vehicle, for progress, that is, their own progress. Thus, they choose to ignore the dictates, decisions, and rules, without fear of redress, of what seems to be for all intents and purposes, an impotent institution. Perhaps, this is in return for the institution's own ignorance of their desires, I'm not sure. But one thing is for certain: this syndrome is self-perpetuating, and it seems as though much of the campus is under its influence. The complaining of students and its accompanying inaction has not ceased, and the complaining of the institution about that inaction has not ceased. And it is quite obvious that everyone is quite happy with the situation as is at present. However, only a fool would believe that the apathy which has arisen from this student-institution impasse is good. It stifles and, ultimately, halts any type of progress that we might make as a group.

Where does that leave us? Who will make the first move? The students or the institution? Or will anyone move? Will we remain in this position for years to come? Or will Jesus Christ himself come to save us all?

Frankly, I don't know, and I don't really care. I just wanted to complain.

Today's issue has been submitted by Gil Nicholas as a trial issue in support of his application as editor of the Highland Echo. Trial issues will also be submitted on the next three Fridays by other applicants. The new editor of the Echo will be announced during the first week of spring term.

STAFF

editor – gilbert allen nicholas
business manager – allen bunge
faculty advisor – dr. elizabeth fowler
lay-out editor – sarah winbigler

BLACK NATIONALISM WEEK

February 12-17 is usually designated as Black History Week in the United States. Throughout this week there will be various programs and events that will focus on a very valuable portion of history that belongs not only to 23½ million Afro-Americans but also to America itself.

It was Carter G. Woodson who felt the need to form the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History in 1916. Woodson, one of the leading black educators of his time, saw that not just the black man, but America itself was being deprived of some of its richest written history which was not being recorded because its makers were black people.

Thus Woodson felt that, since the disease of racism continued to prohibit the inclusion of these black accomplishments and events into American history books, a week of study should be set aside to focus on them. This would make certain that no longer would ignorance rob our historical annals of a complete study of our nation.

It must regretfully be admitted that even today we still find that our history books lack the relevant segments of the past in relation to America's black population, the nation's largest majority, barring none. Thus, until wrong is corrected, the celebration must go on.

Maryville College will also celebrate this event throughout this week. The guiding theme for this year is "Various Expressions Through the Black Experience." Wednesday and Friday nights will be the two times this week that have been designated for related activities. To mention a few events, all of which will take place in the Black Culture Center in Fayerweather Hall – there will be music, poetry, prose, and choral readings, all relating to the expression of black history, on Wednesday night at 8:00 p.m.

Added events are scheduled for Friday. An art exhibit of the work of Terry Collins, recent Maryville College graduate, will be on view from noon until evening in the Center. On Friday night at ':00 a discussion group will feature Mr. Collins and Rev. Carl Liggins of Alcoa. Liggins will discuss "The Black Church in Relation to the Black Race."

by Willie Blair

MC Education Not Measured In Big $ Potential

by Kenneth Ainslie

When someone tells you that your $12,000 and four years at Maryville College are for 'a better paying job', you can chalk him up as a dupe with his head in the past. Today's education, especially for the liberal arts student, is only indirectly related to the job world, and it is quite time for everybody, including parents, employers and students, to realize and admit this. The once miracle-working degree no longer promises a glory road to big business success. In fact, that may have been only a myth in the first place.

Of course there was once a day when new creative and progressive ideas were in demand, and employers dashed to the graduating lines to get their share of the cream of the crop. But now, with every Joe Blow carrying his sheepskins into the personnel offices, we either have to take another step up in the arms race to higher education, or face the realization that professional know how is not the primary item we're purchasing when we come to Maryville College.

At least in this aspect, Maryville College is much more attuned to its times that are many of her students. The college knows, perhaps from long hard experience, that its history majors won't necessarily be living by their knowledge of historical data, her education majors won't necessarily be teachers, and her biology majors won't necessarily be earning their keep working with plants and animals. What is more, most of us will never see the inside of a research laboratory and will have no specific use for technical training of any sort.

Let's face it. The education that we are buying at Maryville isn't designed for the primary purpose of pushing us into higher prestige jobs. It has a much more basic purpose (which we fight at every opportunity), that of showing us the great variety of alternatives open to us in our pulsating, progressive world. And with our education, we will hopefully be able to maneuver as fluidly as possible within the infinite combinations of possibilities in that world.

Our education, then, is not so much for our professional ambitions as it is for our inner awarenesses. Getting purposes mixed up creates a lot of needless frustration and wasted energy for the student. Whether we are working, or watering the garden, or reading a novel, or drinking our morning coffee, or sunbathing, we have an opportunity to express ourselves and to relate as individuals to our surroundings. It is these moments when we are expressing ourselves, asserting our uniqueness as humans and as individual persons, consciously stepping into the full adventure of being alive, that we will reap the real benefits of our time at Maryville College. No one will ever ask you to recite the dates of Elizabeth I's reign or to give the conjugation of the verb 'aimer'. But by knowing these things and how they fit into the intricate pattern of the whole world activity, every moment's experience gives us a richer, more valuable meaning. Novels become more fully alive when we can relate to their historical frame of reference, and seeing wild rabbits and hummingbirds in the back yard is more rewarding when we are aware of the fuller expression of their habits. We can better see where we fit into the great, exciting events happening around us.

And suddenly our world isn't so small and unimaginative. The adventure of living becomes our adventure. Everything is a part of a great system with infinite combinations, no one of them 'wrong'. We can be alive to and comfortable with differences in customs and ways of doing things. With this kind of background to live and decide from, the working and non-working hours become exciting, valuable moments of which we cannot get enough. Awareness rings in the words of Edna St. Vincent Milay, who pleaded "World, world, I cannot get thee close enough!". With an awareness like this, gained slowly and sometimes painfully, we will not have to worry about being prepared for a job. We will have gained versatility, adaptability, and the capacity for fully chosing our expression. The job openings will be there for the open alive person who is aware to the hugeness of the world around him and his uniqueness is it. He will have no trouble finding his place and his proper expression.

For the moment it is time to relax and enjoy the now. Learning, studying questioning are not 'chores'. They, too, are adventures of man's unique expression. Only by enjoying this moment, getting into it and being alive to it can we possibly get the full value of our $12,000 and 4 years. And it is not time wasted.

"Misbegotten" MC

ne of the first producations in the outheast of Eugene O'Neill's last lay, "A Moon for the Misbegotten," ill be presented by the Maryville ollege Speech-Theatre Department larch 1-3.

he play continues the story of the yrone family, particularly the elder on James, that O'Neill made amous in "Long Days Journey Into ight." It has been hailed by critics s "another beautiful play by ugene O'Neill" and "a compelling eice for the theatre."

he production is being directed by lair Beasley, a new member of the peech-theatre staff at the College. easley has had much experience ith O'Neill's work having recently irected "Long Days Journey Into ight" at the University of North arolina at Greensboro. Jose uintero, who directed the original roduction, had high praise for easley's handling of this most ifficult play.

easley is being assisted by Jill ihalow, and Wayne Dansbury is erving as technical assistant. homas E. Jones, director of the heatre, has designed the setting and ill serve as technical director.

ncluded in the cast are: Melissa ollins, Larry Dimmick, Thomas illiamson, Terry Noack, and Steve uhasz.

ickets are available at the aryville College Playhouse, Box 825, Maryville, Tennessee 37801 982-2911). Performance time is :15 p.m.

Introduction to Theatre 101

By Patti Shelton

have come to act as a bridge etween theatre majors and the rest f the world. Some of my best riends are theatre majors, thus I feel hat there are a great many misunder-tandings about them. I admit that nce, when people said theatre ajors were a little strange I agreed; ow I still agree, but I understand hy.

here I was, a political science major, ar removed from the footlights, hen one of my friends decided she ould direct a play. I knew that I ad never set foot on a stage, why I elt this inner compulsion to emonstrate my ignorance to the rest f the world I will never know – but did. Reporting for work at 9:30 in he morning, I spent the better part f the next three hours wandering round begging people to tell me hat to do, nodding intelligently hen someone told me what to do, nd then proceeding to discover that did not have the vaguest idea how o do whatever it was. At one point I hought I had discovered the way to ake my stand for women's beration: I would help one of the uys carry a platform up from the op to the stage. After dropping the amn thing (which weighed at least 00 pounds) six times in three feet, I ecided to move on to better, though opefully not bigger, things.

Continued on Page 4, col. 3

ACC: Pros and Cons

During the last few days, I have been asking people on campus what they thought of ACC, with particular emphasis on whether they thought it was a success or a failure. In roughly breaking down what I came up with, I found that about half were positive toward ACC, 20% were negative, and the rest had no opinion. I will give three representative reactions which show the general trends I found.

One student I talked to was negative toward ACC because she felt that it is a rubber stamp for Dr. Copeland. Her opinion was that Dr. Copeland dictates policy to the ACC, and ACC policy is really Dr. Copelands's policy.

A second student was very positive toward ACC. Her feeling was that ACC is a democratic system, and like any other democratic system it takes time to work. The students see it as a failure, she said, because it does not give them what they want immediately. She believed that ACC is essentially a success.

An unusual and interesting opinion came out of the very first student I talked to. His feeling was that students don't know enough to intelligently comment on ACC. Most students, he said, are so apathetic that they can't comment on ACC, and the ones that do know anything about ACC don't care anyway.

Whatever the reaction, two feelings were almost unanimous. One was that we can't do any better than ACC, and the other was that ACC is good because it brings faculty and students together.

Here Comes Mary, Mary

"Mary, Mary," a Jean Kerr comedy, will be presented in the Maryville College Theatre at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday, February 16 and 17.

The action in "Mary, Mary" centers around Bob and Mary McKelloway, a couple who have been separated for almost nine months and find they must meet again to straighten out income tax problems. When Mary comes to New York to talk to Bob, she finds that he has become engaged to a Tiffany Richards, a wealthy health food nut.

The situation if further complicated when Bob and Mary discover they still care for each other, though both are too stubborn to admit it.

There are more romantic mix-ups when an over-the-hill Hollywood actor and wartime buddy of Bob's comes to town and falls for Mary.

"Mary, Mary" is a student production, directed by Nancy McCleary, a junior theatre major. Assistant director is Karen Platt, and stage manager is Diane Wood.

Bob McKelloway will be played by Peter Vial; Mary McKelloway by Patricia Joyce; Oscar Nelson by Neil Bingham; Tiffany Richards by Cyndi Jones; and Dirk Winston by Mark Mertz.

Admission is $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students through high school.

An Offer You Can't Refuse

By Erma Q. Zingdip

I have just finished The Godfather, Honor Thy Father, and The Valachi Papers. I am an expert on the Mafia. I thought I would inform all of you about this scourge of society (you kids from Jersey don't have to read any further).

Organized crime is a blight on our nation. Last year organized crime was directly responsible for more than one hundred murders, and the mafiosi participated indirectly in several hundred more, either by lending the killers carfare or by holding their coats. Other illicit activities include gambling, narcotics, prostitution, hijacking, loansharking, and transporting Kate Smith across state lines for immoral purposes.

A little knowledge of the history of the Mafia is needed before you can understand the complexities of the Cosa Nostra. I have capsulized the history of organized crime in the United States.

In 1923 Thomas (the Butcher) Contelli and Luigi (the Tailor) Santini attempted to organize disparate ethnic groups of the underworld for a Friday night card club. This was foiled by Alberto (Little Linguini) Costello who assassinated Leonard (The Kid) Lipsky (he was holding two pair) by locking him in a closet and sucking all the air out with a straw. This was the beginning of a blood bath that was only halted for the Knights of Columbus meetings on Wednesday nights. The toll of dead included Lucky Lorenzo, Tony (Rabbi Sharpstein) Vitale, Dominick (The Herpetologist) Lasagna, Little Petey (Big Petey) Mione, and Elizabeth Mendlesohn who was not a mob member but was unlucky enough to be walking her german shepherd by the Seven Seas Diner when the Galliano brothers decided to hit.

The mob structure is like any government or large corporation – or a group of gangsters for that matter. At the top is the capo di tutti capi, or the boss of all bosses. Meetings are held at his house and he is responsible for supplying the cold cuts and ice. Failure to do so means instant death (which, by the way, is the worst penalty and most members prefer to just pay a fine). Under the boss are his lieutenants, each of whom runs one section of town with his "family." Mafia families do not consist of a wife and children – they are actually groups of men whose main joy in life comes from seeing how long certain people can stay under the East River before they start gurgling.

Initiation into the Mafia is quite complicated. If the proposed member passes the test he is welcomed into the brotherhood. From that moment on he is not permitted to eat bagels, to amuse his friends by imitating a chicken, or to kill anyone named Vito.

Me and My BIC Pen

by Sue Leibundguth

Me and my Bic pen have a love affair of sorts.

Together we've coursed through many notebooks, research papers, psychology journals, and blue books,

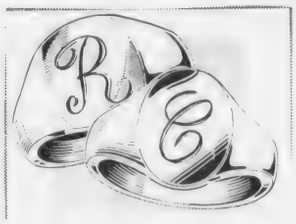
But not once have I regretted the calloused finger

That bears the weight of my verbose pen.

Body in hand we tirelessly record the monotone voice that outlines world history into comparments of continuity and change,

And absentmindedly mingle dates and doodles

In the margin.



As conspirators we spread an endless supply of blue lines over blank pages, jogging memories and prompting new thoughts

Until either my mind or my pen

Runs dry.

No. 28, Randy Schaurer puts it up for the Scots and No. 12, Phil Graham puts it up again.

SIGNET RINGS FOR GUYS & GAI

SPECIAL ONE WEEK ONLY
ENTIRE STOCK OF SIGNET RINGS 75% OFF

★ ALL $20.00 RINGS - $5
★ ALL $30.00 RINGS - $7.50
★ ALL $40.00 RINGS - $10.00
★ ALL $50.00 RINGS - $12.50

JEWEL BOX
MIDLAND CENTER
Engraving & Sizing Extra

Scots Basketball

The Maryville College Scots' basketball team had one of its better weeks of the 1972-73 season last week as they won one, and came close to winning another. They lost by 4 points to Bryan College on Thursday night, 81-77, while putting it all together against Clinch Valley as they won 75-67. The Scots season record is now 2-18, but this team has greatly improved since the start of the season.

The game with Bryan saw an exciting second half develop after somewhat of a one-sided first half that saw the Lions lead 47-37 at half-time. The Scots did come back in the second half to make a ballgame out of it, and came very close to winning, but the Lions were able to hold on even though they knew they had been through a tough one. Randy Schaurer continued his impressive play as he led the Scots' scorers with 25 points. Phil Graham scored eleven, while Keith Crane and Kenny Talbott added ten each.

Saturday night's victory was an impressive one. The score reads closer than the style of play. The Scots outplayed the Cavaliers as Schaurer again paced the scoring attack with 24. The crowd on hand at the P.E. Building was pleased with the performance, as well as Coach Baird.

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Theatre 101

Continued from Page 3

It was well after lunch time when I discovered my true calling in the theatre: I was very good at following the budding director around and supporting her every time one of the construction crew brought bad news, of which there seemed to be an awful lot. By nightfall, I was tired but happy; I had learned a lot – I thought. Then I discovered that one day of back-breaking, nerve-wracking work does not a stage set make. The next day always dawns, bright, clear, and exhausted. So it was back to the theatre, which, I must say, had somehow lost a lot of glamor in the past twenty-four hours.

Ah, but this time I knew exactly what to do, so, wielding my paint brush with great aplomb, I climbed the step ladder to paint the top of the flats, looked down, and got a severe case of deathly fear which locked me in a stooped position, gripping the ladder with ten fingers and seven toes (three toes were useless, having been attacked by a 300 pound platform the day before). After the rest of the crew talked me down, I decided to stick to ground level work and proceeded to cover my body and all the surrounding bodies, with the most gruesome shade of brown paint available.

Amazingly, everyone else working on the set seemed to know what they were doing, so it got built and tonight is opening night; presumably they have all recovered from my "educational experience." And like I say, although I still agree when someone says theatre people are strange, I have come to understand that it is probably the non-theatre people who make them that way.

Parkway
JOE KIDD
CLINT EASTWOOD
ALSO
RATED (R)
GROUNDSTAR CONSPIRACY

FAMILY MOVIE
WILDERNESS JOURNEY
A Rainbow Adventure Film Produced by Chuck Keen
G a heart warming story for the whole family.
more than spectacular SCENERY and WILDLIFE!
a young indian boy JONIKO challenges the ALASKAN WILDERNESS to save the life of a friend.
STARTS TOMORROW
FOUR DAYS ONLY
CAPITAL
THREE (3) SHOWS WKDYS.
FIVE (5) SHOWS SAT.
Product of American National Enterprises

WOMENS BASKETBALL

by Phyllis Garner

The Maryville College women's basketball team is on the move. T greatly improved Scots have won of their last three games.

On January 31, they entertained in the College fieldhouse, but lost the event, 70-50. However, the ga was hardly a run-away.

UT led by 18 at half-time, but ca back from the locker room ice co The Scots slowly closed the gap, with four minutes to go, trailed b only five points.

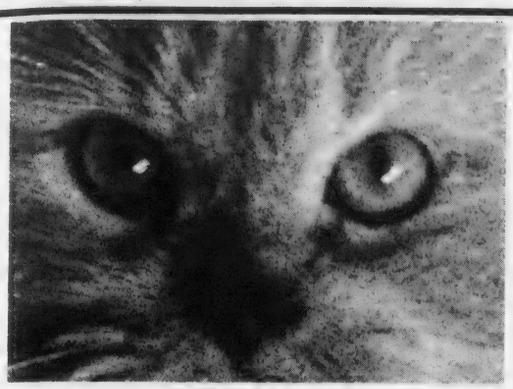
First victory seemed within reach but then disaster struck. Four of Maryville's five starters fouled ou and shorter women replaced them UT's height advantage gave them board strength to pull away again The final score was 70-50.

Melinda Lucas led all scores with as Terry Tophan added 17. UT's stars were Gail Dobson, with 19, Lynn Pimperton, with 18.

On February 10 the Scots took t second road trip of the season, travelling to Johnson City. At 11 a.m. the Scots faced Milligan Coll and secured a 58-36 victory.

Maryville went ahead in the open rounds, and remained out front throughout the contest. At half-t Betty Werner's team led 24-11, a went on to win by 22 points.

The game was oficiated by un- sactioned referees, and few fouls were called. Action was rough un the boards and several players sustained minor injuries.



Melinda Lucas led the scoring aga pouring in 23 points, and Terry Tophan had 11. Chris San Revich Milligan in points.

Coach Werner is pleased with the progress of the women, on indivi as well as group level, and feels th have a bright future.

The Scots are presently preparing the District Tournament, which w be at ETSU February 23 and 24.

The Highland Echo

Volume 58 No. 15 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | February 23, 1973

SEE ME!

Rehearsal for Moon Almost Over

By Patti Shelton

"Maybe my love could still save you, Jim. If you only wanted it badly enough." Josie Hogan spoke softly to the drunken figure sprawled across her lap. Tears don't come easily to a woman like Josie, and they didn't come now, but love and pain and life made her face haggard and her eyes immeasurably sad.

The story of Josie's ill-advised love for the alcoholic and deeply troubled Jim Tyrone, and his for her, is the central theme in MC Theatre's next production, O'Neill's A Moon for the Misbegotten. Throughout this drama other strands are woven: Josie's relationship to her less-than-honest father and to her brothers who have escaped the barren Connecticut farm, and Jim's ever-present memories and guilt. Eugene O'Neill was never one to mince emotions. His plays are intense, sorrowing dramas taken from his own life, remembrances of his alcoholic brother and his morphine-addict mother. A Moon for the Misbegotten was a vindication for O'Neill, a testimony to his love for his brother, whatever he may have been. This is a darkly powerful play, one which stirs the mind as well as the emotions.

Moon will be presented in the MC Theatre March 1-3, at 8:15 p.m. The roles of Josie Hogan and Jim Tyrone are played by Melissa Collins and Terry Noack. Tom Williamson is cast as Phil Hogan, Larry Dimmick as Josie's youngest brother, Michael, and Steve Yuhasz as the Hogan's wealthy neighbor who wants to get Phil and Josie off their farm. This play represents the first major production directed by Mr. Blair Beasley, the most recent addition to the MC Speech-Theatre department.

Committee Proposes Legalize Drinking in College Campus

By Willy Vidal

The Community Standards and Residential Life Committee after "careful consideration" on the drinking question will present its findings and recommendations to the All-College Council at its meeting February 28th for discussion. The Council's open meeting is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. in Room 304 at Anderson Hall.

The report expresses the personal experiences of the committee members, which led to " a consensus belief, unchallenged by any other member, that a very substantial number of students regarded the college prohibition against drinking as unwise and invalid and, consequently, chose in a surreptitious fashion to disregard it".

Members of the committee went about gathering their information by informal conversations with "responsible individuals" of the college community. The findings of these conversations were:

- a majority of students do drink, although not all the campus frequently
- R.A.'s don't feel they should check rooms or turn in people who aren't hurting anyone with their occasional drink
- R.A.'s are willing to deal with disturbances in the dorm
- Also a few people were not in favor of alcohol on campus
- the conversations revealed the widespread belief that the consumption of alcoholic beverages on campus by many – and possibly most – students occurs repeatedly and that this widespread violation of the college rules goes unpunished.

In looking toward a possible solution to the problem – if such should exist, the committee viewed the current situation as "intolerable in that the college community appeared unable and extremely reluctant to enforce the clear-cut standards expressed in the catalog." It goes on to say that "if the present policy were enforced, across the board, the penalties and possible expulsions would possibly create a crisis. Too many students simply do not accept this particular college standard and, if this policy

Continued — Page 4

Lucien Stark Tonight

Lucien Stark, professor of music and chairman of the piano department at George Peabody College, will be presented in a guest recital at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Maryville College Music Hall.

Stark holds a Bachelor and Master of Music degrees from Drake University and a Doctor of Musical Arts degree from the University of Michigan. He has done piano study in Munich with Friedrich Wuehrer, at the Paris Conservatoire Nationale with Vlado Perlemuter, and at the Juillard School of Music with Sascha Gorodnitzki.

His Maryville recital will feature: Fantasia in C Major, Haydn; Sonata in B-flat, Opera Posthumous, Schubert; La Chouette Hulotte, Messiaen; and Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Handel, Opera 24, Brahams.

Pearsons Hall To Open Coed

By Willy Vidal

One year ago last February, Pearsons Hall lit the Maryville skyline in a night few who saw it will forget. After over a year of work, Pearsons Hall will again accomodate students this summer.

Following a report from the Residence Hall Life Committee, the All-College Council has approved a coed arrangement in Pearsons. Under the proposed arrangement, all second floor rooms will be assigned to men students and all third floor rooms will be assigned to women students. The committees report allows for the possibility for campus housing for married couples by allowing flexibility in planning with possible space for couples on both the second and third floors.

The report recommends that rates for double occupancy be priced at $400 per student while single occupancy be priced at $550 per student. The committee report, however, did not project private room assignments since Pearsons will be "premium" space, the rationable being to provide maximum access to student. Under the flexible report, many options are available; ranging from a maximum of 76 occupied bed with an income of $32,100 (based on the suggested scale) to 35 occupied beds at an income of $21,700. The projected plan allows for 64 occupied beds at an income of $27,800.

The Residence Hall Life Committee further recommended and the All-College Council approved that the auxiliary use of Willard House (women) and Crawford House (men) be continued if financially feasible.

Limited coed assignments in Dorm III and Carnegie will be continued. An evaluation of the resident hall program, particularly the total coed residence hall in the Winter Term of 1973-74 was suggested, before policy is set for 1974-75.

Highland Opinions

Conflicting Schedules Need To Be Revised In School Calendar

How often do we wish that Fine Arts programs didn't clash with Athletic programs, and vice-versa, making it possible to attend both? For example, how many of us wanted to attend the recent Band concert only to find we had to choose between that and a wrestling match scheduled at the same time?

At present, all events are planned through Dean Massey who co-ordinates the college's master calendar. She attempts to avoid conflicts, but she can only advise and recommend. Thus, a number of conflicts are the result.

To help alleviate this problem, we believe that an Inter-Activities Scheduling Committee be formed, composed of departamental heads and students, and including a Student Activities Director. This committee could co-ordinate the college calendar so as to eliminate these conflicts. Not only that, when heads are put together in this way, unity will be promoted within the school as a whole by doing away with competition among departments for student support.

More people would be able to attend functions if they did not conflict with each other. It is common knowledge that most people attend only the programs that their major or special interests dictate. It is also true that many students are non-committed – they seldom if ever attend any school activities.

With conflicts eliminated, more people will be able to attend more functions. Hopefully, the non-participants would be stimulated to attend these events by hearing about them from fellow students and faculty members.

It is our belief, that a Liberal Arts College, like Maryville, should enable the college community to grasp at a wide variety of diverse events, without causing confusion, indecision, or competition as to which event to attend.

★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor,

It has come to the attention of an ever-increasing number of individuals in the Maryville College community that a serious problem exists on our campus – stealing. Scarcely recognizable at times, the crime assumes many guises: borrowing with no intention of returning, lifting (shop or otherwise), cheating, appropriating (or mis-appropriating), ripping off, or exonimic equalization.

How widespread his practice really is needed careful investigation. The afore-mentioned concerned individuals conducted an informal survey, in lieu of a questionnaire, campus-wide or random sampling. To be as accurate as possible, the survey was conducted among those most likely to know about the problem, those who practice the art in any of its manifestations. The results are conclusive: a majority of students (and some of the faculty and staff) do steal. What, then, should an enlightened community do? Several proposals were carefully considered before this report was completed. One was the strict enforcement of all laws prohibiting stealing. Quite obviously if this plan were carried out, a major crisis would result. Another possibility would be careful guarding of personal property, but such measures would not protect intangible things like reputations or even ideas. And to think that the slow process of education and example would be effective is just naive.

Clearly the only possible solution is the repeal of all laws inhibiting the free exercise of self-expression – in short, the dropping of our time-worm policy of honesty. After all, the Ten Commandments are not only outdated with their predominantly negative approach, but they are also totally unrealistic in contemporary American society. Maryville College is designed to prepare young people for this large society in which "ripping off" is no longer questioned – airplane manufactureres, the Pentagon, oil companies, even elected city and county officials do it all the time. We concerned individuals therefore urge the immediate repeal of our antiquated prohibitions against stealing. Further, by lowering our ideals we can actually encourage our students to steal in moderation and in dormitories and from friends – and suffer no guilt feelings.

This realistic approach would be hailed enthusiastically by parents, alumni, and prospective students – to say nothing of the current students who have been chafing under an intolerable burden long enough – and Maryville College would be acting in conformity with the rest of American society, which has been our goal for nearly 14 years.

Hopefully yours,

Al C. Consortium, Chairman
Concerned Individuals Committee

Censorship: Grave Crisis?

By Willy Vidal

An increasing amount of concern in the College Scene U.S.A. is the alarming number of censorship cases with which the campus press has encountered.

This tragic regression in our Democratic society has been spawned by national opinion of the Press. The editor of the Los Angeles Times was found in contempt of court for failing to give confidential information. He ended up with a stay in the county jail.

In Florida, The Alligator winner of The All American and Pacemaker Award and student paper at the University of Florida has fallen to transgression of the First Ammendment's freedom of the press.

The University or student press, historically the voice of peaceful and intelligent expression has been crippled too long. First, by an alienated student body which believes it is not getting its money's worth. Secondly, by adverse reaction among some colleges in which an enlightened press has tried to motivate or appeal to the "silent majority" in the college community – the student body.
By this "enlightenment" I do not mean to imply such subject matter which are best handled by Playboy or Penthouse, but those which are relevant and pertinent to the school community.

The first job of any newspaper is to inform its readers of the facts – this is the basic principle of a news story. It should also motivate and stimulate opinion and provide aforum for diverse views.

As a Constitutional Liberty the Power of the Press takes with it the responsibility of watch-dog of Democracy. Let's respect these noble ideals upon which our country was founded. At the same time, we recognize that "Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," do not mean slander, libel, or the reporting of misleading information.

Simply, the Highland Echo is the voice of Maryville College, let's not tape the mouthpiece of the school – we're not going to yell Fire! in the crowded hall.

More Letters — Page 3

Today's issue has been submitted by Will Vidal, applicant for the position of editor of the Echo. The issue for next Friday, March 2, will be prepared by Robert Erwin, and that of March 9 by Lyn Stanley. The announcement of the choice for the new editor will be made during the first week of spring term.

Vol 58 No. 15

Editor-in-Chief . . . . . Willy Vidal
Cartoonist . . . . . Richard Watters
Layout Editor . . . . . Sarah Winbigler
Staff . . . . . Charles Craven
. . . Patti Shelton, Tom Fox, Wiley Rutledge
Photography . . . . . Pat Smith
Faculty Advisor . . . . . Dr. Elizabeth Fowler

EDITORIAL POLICY

The opinions and comments appearing in this paper are not necessarily those of the Administration, Faculty, Students, or Echo Staff of Maryville College, unless otherwise stated.

VIETNAM:

Salved Consciences And Unhealed Wounds

With Ron Hendren

Syndicated 1973 by
Washington Weekly, Inc.
All rights reserved.

WASHINGTON — Even as the first American prisoners of war landed on home ground, the Nixon administration announced plans to save $160 million by cutting benefits for amputees and other disabled Vietnam veterans.

Within hours after the Veterans Administration announced its intention to cut, by as much as 60 percent, the benefits for 200,000 physically disabled Vietnam soldiers, two of the country's major veterans organizations virtually declared war on the President. Congress, led by Senator Vance Hartke (D-Ind.), chairman of the Senate Veterans Committee, was also prepared for battle.

Faced with the threat of a new war at home, President Nixon quickly ordered the VA to abandon its plan, and at least one top official of that agency, Olney B. Owens, chief of the benefits division, was axed in the process.

Hartke was equally quick to commend the White House for the reversal, and added, "I don't think the President knew about it (the VA plan)."

Whether he did or not may prove moot in the long run. Months ago I wrote (in a column entitled "Vietnam: It Could Happen Again) that when the United States finally did extricate itself from Indochina, the first order of business would be to cleanse the national conscience, and that the quickest way to clense likely would be to forget.

The thwarted attempt by the VA to abandon its responsibilities to Vietnam veterans (in the case of some, even before they returned home) was a strong step in the direction of forgetting, both about the war and those, even among our own, who suffered as a result of it.

There are other indications equally disturbing. Although Dr. Henry A. Kissinger has concluded the first step in agreements with our former enemy for the reconstruction of North Vietnam, the President's failure to consult with Congress on the matter of funds virtually insured a Hill battle over that issue. Thus reconstruction, as promised by Mr. Nixon, is endangered by his own attitude of contempt toward the legislative branch which must vote the money.

Third, there is the matter of amnesty, about which the administration has shown no more charity than the VA would have shown toward veterans, had it been permitted to have its way. Instead of laying the groundwork for eventual repatriation, the administration, most forcefully through the Vice President, seems to be pouring more concrete upon its already cemented policy of forgetting but not forgiving those who, for whatever reasons, chose not to participate in the Indochina conflict. Such a policy, for which there is little precedent, historic or moral, is further indication of the administration's attitude of forgetting the wounds of war but not attempting to heal them.

Volume II Number 33
For subscribers only.

Carrier-based planes saw intensive action during the Vietnam War.

Mary, Mary Reviewed

By Charles Craven

"Mary, Mary", a comedy by Jean Kerr, was presented last Friday and Saturday nights, February 16 and 17, in the Theatre.

The play was directed by Nancy McCleary, a junior from Tolono, Illinois, and was thus a test of her ability at stagecraft. Also, as it involved much work on the part of several students, it was also a test of her ability at managing and obtaining work from fellow classmates, who supplied her with a cast, stage and house managers, construction and lighting crews, and personnel for costumes, publicity, and the box office.

Considering all things, Miss McCleary's success in fulfilling these goals was outstanding. The most obvious example of success was in her cast of Peter Vial, Dew Joyce, Cyndi Jones, Neil Bingham, and Mark Mertz. For most of the performance, these actors did an admirable job of presenting a divorced couple, plus the couple's lawyer and friends.

Peter Vial and Cyndi Jones, playing the divorced man and his new fiancee, conveyed a temperamental and wishy-washy but likeable publisher, and a spoiled, upper class snob. For the most part, they realistically portrayed their parts and were enjoyable to listen to, though they were not as vivid in the opening lines as in most other parts of the play.

The play featured the return of two former MC students to the stage: Neil Bingham, who played the good natured, aging lawyer, and Mark Mertz, who assumed the role of Dirk Mertz, who assumed the role of Dirk Winston, an actor and an old friend of the divorced man, who attempts to become an even closer friend of the divorcee. Mr. Bingham and Mr. Mertz displayed two opposite characters: one a well-meaning, docile gentleman, the other a strong-willed, rash egotist.

The performance's real "shot in the arm" came with the role of Mary, played by Dew Joyce. Through her expressiveness, her realistic interpretation and rendition of a woman with the perfect answer for everything, and her involvement with her part, Miss Joyce endeared herself to the audience.

In sum, the cast sold well what the play had to offer — laughs. It was purely a play for relaxation and entertainment; two worthwhile goals for a cast to fulfill, which can be especially appreciated at the middle of Winter Term.

more LETTERS:

Dear Editor:

Through the interim, Communicating with the Deaf, I became able to make myself understood through signing and fingerspelling. This experience has been one that will remain with me as a highlight in my life. A world without sound is hard for the hearing to imagine. The world of the deaf is neither as silent nor closed off as I had thought. The deaf are by no means slow or ignorant, they merely do not have the ability to hear. If you have ever been in a foreign country and been unable to speak the language, you know of the frustrations this lack of communication creates. This is a similar situation with a deaf person in a hearing world.

At first it was difficult for us to learn this language so new to us, but because of the dedication of our instructor Mrs. Ann Pryor, we managed to get through the manual alphabet. Latter we were able to add a few signs to our conversation. Within a matter of weeks we had gained a basic vocabulary. We had to make our new vocabulary workable on the first weekend we spent at Tremont with the TSD students. (Tennessee School for the Deaf). So Mrs. Pryor gave us a pat on the back and a shove out the door and said, "Good Luck!".

Ice-breaking was difficult. The first few attempts at clumsy fingerspelling on our part and lightning fast on theirs made the interim all the more rewarding. After 1,000 volley ball games, 500 hands of rummy, and Willies' jokes during dinner the ice no longer existed. Our worlds became one in the effort to understand and enjoy friendship.

Don't be satisfied with your one world, become part of another. A few of us from the interim gather together every Tuesday night at 7:30 in Sutton to review and learn more signs. Any one interested, please attend, the rewards are so great.

Thank you for one of the greatest expreiences of my life.

Sincerely,

C. Ballard

HELP WANTED
$100.00 weekl . possible addressing mail for firms - full and part time at home - Send stamped self-addressed envelope to: HOME WORK OPPORTUNITIES, Box 566 Ruidoso Downs, New Mexico 88345

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 573-4758

BUDDY'S BAR-B-Q PIT
Featuring Hickory-Cooked Pork, Beef, Ribs And Char-Broiled Steaks And Hamburgers.
FREE 15¢ DRINK
WITH ANY PURCHASE
WITH THIS COUPON
Use our convenient Drive-In Window for pick-up orders.
373 HANNUM STREET, ALCOA

Alcohol — from Page 1

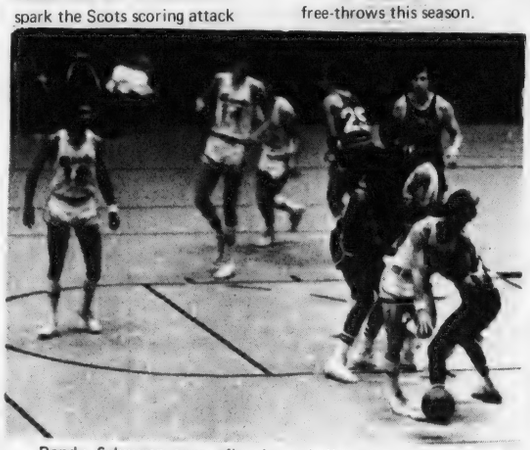
were stringently enforced, would elect to move to what they would regard as more congenial environments. We thus seemed forced to the conclusion that in view of the preponderance of student sentiment in favor of abolishing the drinking prohibitions and the disposition of many college community not to enforce the current policy, Maryville College would be best advised to alter its stand on alcoholic beverages".

The Community Standards and Residential Life Committee after recognizing all the conceivable solutions and recognizing that a "current problem exists on the college campus" recommends that "this college abolish its prohibition on consumption of alcoholic beverages on campus and substitute a realistic policy which would permit consumption in moderation but punish consumption in excess. In so doing we would be acting in conformity with the rest of contemporary American Society."

The committee further recommended that in order to avoid initiating a "furor" and a "public relations black eye, we quietly drop our forthright prohibitory statement in the catalog and substitute the following: Historically, in preparing its students for responsible positions in American Society, Maryville College has sought to encourage the highest personal standards of conduct among its community members. Aware of the College's responsibilities to both its own members and the greater American Society of which the institution is a part, Maryville College is committed to the enforcement of all civil laws governing the relation between individuals and the city and between individuals and the state."

Roger Reiter: 2nd Place winner in Southeastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association (SEIWA).

Scots Basketball Season Coming To End



By Fred Strohl

Maryville College's basketball team won their third game of the season last Tuesday night as they defeated Centre in a thriller, 80-78, however they lost their next three to L.M.U. 85-75, Sewanee 85-66; and Covenant, 71-68.

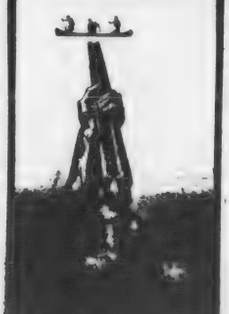
Keith Crane was the leading scorer for the Scots in the Centre game as he scored 22 points, Randy Shaurer added 18 in a contest that was not decided until the end. Against L.M.U., the Scots had a rough first half, but played an improved game in the second half. Schaurer scored 20 points. Kenny Talbott injured his ankly during the ballgame, and had to leave. X-rays proved to be negative, but Talbott was ordered not to work out for a week.

The game against Sewanee on Saturday night was a close affair until the end. Much fouling occured by both sides as 54 personals and four technicals were called. Andy Banas came off the bench to spark the Scots scoring attack with 19. Schaurer had 18.

The latest N.C.A.A. College Division Basketball statistics show Schaurer leading with the best free-throw percentage in the nation. He has made 89.95 per cent of his free-throws this season.

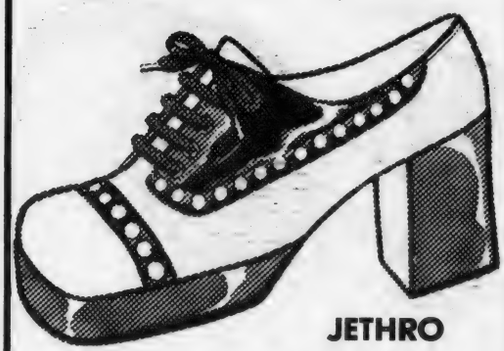
Randy Schaurer goes after loose ball while teammates Phil Graham and Randy Lambert look on.

Support Soccer



Join The Team!

NOW SHOWING
Cinemette South Theatre
Dogwood



3rd Big Week!

TODAY-TUES.
What did happen on the Cahulawassee River?

Deliverance
A JOHN BOORMAN FILM
JON VOIGHT BURT REYNOLDS
"DELIVERANCE"
R

Cover Girl Shoes.
They make heads turn.

JETHRO
WHT & BLK
WHI & BLU
$19.99

Yes, we have Cover Girl's Bold Bottoms

KINKS
WHT & BLACK
WHT & BLUE
$19.99

Southern shoes
MIDLAND CENTER — ALCOA

CHALLENGE TERM STIMULATES MC

Winter term is almost over and for most of us that means exams, papers and anticipation of spring break. For the people involved in challenge term it means time for evaluation – panel and personal.

In talking to the CT students, it is easy to see the special relationship that has grown up within the group. They spend a great deal of their time together and they have a common commitment which makes for much greater emotional involvement than in regular classes.

Most of the students seem to feel that this educational experiment is good. They have faced problems with motivation yet they have continued steadily in both their group and individual studies.

Their reasons for participating in challenge term are varied. Some wanted to be free from the regular curriculum, some had subjects they had wanted to study for a long time, and a few were motivated by association with the Science Thought course and/or Dr. Young.

The program isn't free from problems. One of the students finds he cannot communicate his growth to one of his panel. One student no longer has a full evaluation panel. Another said, "There are bad things about the term, but I don't want to talk about them right now."
Inevitably, there is a certain closed atmosphere about the group. But they are not intentionally exclusive. Without cutting themselves off from the rest of the campus, they have nonetheless formed a small island of innovation.

Their room in Thaw Hall is electric. Posters, writings on the blackboard, and assorted paraphernalia proliferate. Stimulating the minds is the name of the game and they play it through a joint study of experimental education (including visits to other schools) and individual sharing of their particular studies.

Most of the students are pleased with their evaluation panels and with Dr. Young's guidance. The majority feel that the experience has certainly been worth the sacrifice (an extra year of college for some) and do not look forward to returning to the "rigid curriculum" of regular classwork.

Evaluation is a somewhat touchy subject to CT people. The Instructional Programs Committee sends representatives to each group meeting to appraise their progress. The three-man panels must look at three months' worth of concentrated work and determine whether it is in fulfillment of the contracts and worth course credits. The individual must evaluate his own growth and the growth of the group, never an easy thing to measure. It is very valid to wonder how many conventional classes could stand up to this type of surveillance/evaluation.

One student expressed what seemed to be a general feeling when he said, "We sort of feel like the poor step-child of the college. We get all the left-overs." It is certainly true that, for all its innovative nature, CT has not received much attention from the campus. The reasons for this are anybody's guess. One student pointed out that challenge term involves a great deal of personal commitment, discipline, and motivation. If these factors play a part in the lack of interest in experimental education at MC, maybe we could all use a little evaluation.

The Highland Echo

Vol. 58, issue 16 | Maryville College | March 2, 1973

COSTNER, BUTLER HIT BIG TIME

Two of Maryville's prominent footballers Joe Costner and Mike Butler, have just signed contracts to play professionally with the Chicago Bears of the National Football League. These two seniors were instrumental in the team's final success this season. Due to the talent they exhibited on the field and the excellent support they received from their teammates, Joe and Mike contributed greatly to the final ranking of Maryville College as the number one school in passing among the N.C.A.A. College Division teams.

Costner succeeded in completing 173 passes with a total of 31 touchdowns. Because of the fine record he compiled, Costner was ranked second in passing and second in total offense for the nation.

Mike Butler was ranked fourth nationally among small college receivers. He was Costner's prime receiver and was able to pull down sixty five passes during the season for a total of 1113 yards and 17 touchdowns.

The effort that these two players exerted on the field was not in vain. Joe Costner was honored by being chosen as a Little All-American and Mike Butler received Honorable Mention.

Mike is a native of Pompano Beach, Florida and currently lives here in Maryville. Joe a Maryville High School graduate, has lived here all his life.

Costner and Butler eye contracts

CIV is landmark

Last week's C.I.V. ought to be noted as one of the finest presentations yet to be offered this year. The theme of "Let's Communicate With a Deaf Person", which was one of pure human compassion, was dramatically presented, not only by the M.C. students who participated in the interim, but also by students from the Tennessee School for the Deaf. The C.I.V left long lasting and vivid impressions on all present.

CLEP is adopted

Maryville College now offers credit through the College Level Examination Program. CLEP, recognized as a means of determining what a person has learned through non-traditional ways, offers to older people and to high school students with exceptional records the opportunity for acceleration. For satisfactory performance on CLEP tests, students may receive up to 10 course credits toward graduation, the equivalent of a year's study.

General examinations are available in the humanities, mathematics, natural sciences, and social sciences-history. Over 30 subject examinations cover such areas as English composition, general chemistry, general psychology, and college algebra. New examinations are being developed as the need arises, the latest being four subject examinations related to the field of medical technology. Those interested in receiving CLEP credit should confer with the College Registrar.

Dorm notes change

by Wiley Rutledge

A few weeks ago, a house council was formed in Carnegie Hall. Since that time, the council has taken action on several things, and made some recommendations. In order to find out what the council is doing and where it is going, I talked with Bruce Semple, head resident of Carnegie Hall.

Mr. Semple first informed me of some of the recommendations the council had made. The long range plans included new dryers, asphalting the parking lot behind the dormitory, and installing carpeting on the upper floors. In the more immediate future, the council is hoping to make itself more public, perhaps opening its meetings, and it has recommended that Carnegie by sprayed when the weather warms up.

In response to a question about the council's functions, Mr. Semple told me that it was formed primarily as an organization to report day to day maintenance problems. A student who has a problem reports it to a council member, this council member takes the complaint to him, and he takes it to maintenance. All complaints go to maintenance through the head resident. In the cases of extreme emergency, he explained, residents take their problems directly to him.

The volume of complaints within the dormitory has not increased, the head resident said, but they are getting to him more quickly. He cited this as a primary reason for the quick action on many of the complaints. He stressed that the maintenance people were very cooperative, responding to a problem as quickly as they could. They have a list of primorities and many complaints are handled on a first come – first served basis, but the response has been much faster.

Mr. Semple told me that the Administration had been very cooperative, and had not laid down any guidelines for the students on the council to follow. He stated that the Administration was glad to see the students take an active part in the dormitory, and he stressed that the attitude is not one of apathy, but one of deep concern.

As we closed the interview, Mr. Semple expressed the hope that the council would continue past the end of the year. He saw the major responsibility for the success of the council as resting with the students and their concern. He applauded the way the council has worked so far and stated that as long as the students were interested such a council could succeed. But he added that that kind of concern is necessary for success.

EDITORIAL

This year has seen the long awaited end of American troop involvement in Viet-Nam. The final withdrawal marks a historic juncture in American attitudes and policy. Most debates over the years have conceded that time was on the side of the North Vietnamese government. In the end it was the force of time and its economic impact which brought America to the bargaining table. Equally important however, was the tide of public opinion which became increasingly strong as the morality and justification of the apparently endless conflict came under closer scrutiny.

Our disengaguement without a solid military victory is a departure from long attended foreign policy. Hopefully the re-evaluation which this war has pressed will force America to consider new moral standards as well. Viet-Nam has caused us to face a multitude of problems which will undoubtedly linger on long after the war is officially over.

Salient among the problems to be dealt with it the question of amnesty. If indeed the values of American society have been jostled by the war then how are we going to deal with the men who made a moral choice concerning an immoral war? An enlightened attitude as reflected in the great human cry to end the war ought to adopt itself readily to the plight of thousands of self-exiled Americans. What if during the course of the current negotiations we decide to help rebuild the devastated cities of North Viet-Nam? . . . . . how can we reconcile such actions with a continued rejection of our own citizens' appeal for amnesty.

Amnesty was an important issue in the recent Presidential election. Nixon's overwhelming victory was a harsh rejection of McGovern's plan to end the war and deal with draft evaders. The problem will not die so quickly. The problem of amnesty is one of the lingering problems which has grown out of the war and like it or not time is now on the side of those alienated Americans.

IN REPLY:

Dear Mr. Webster:

I greatly appreciate your active interest in the school's paper. As an interim editor putting out a trial issue perhaps it is not my job to respond to your criticism of previous issues. It does occur to me however, that it is the right of the editor to choose the news items which are to make the paper distinctive. Mr. Hendren's column is distinctive and reflects a point of view which is quite effectively suppressed by the local media. "A Young View of Washington" in no way purports to be an entirely objective interpretation of the current administration's policy. Echo readers are intelligent and capable of discerning just which news items are going to influence their opinions, of this I am confident.

In reference to your question of the column's syndication; it is syndicated weekly by Washington Weekly Inc. at a cost of approximately $2.50 per week.

Sincerely,

Robert M. Erwin

STAFF

editor — rob erwin

faculty advisor — dr. elizabeth fowler

business manager — allen bunge

lay out editor — sarah winbigler

Letters :

Our library, of necessity, is supposed to be a place where one can sit and study without any annoying interruptions. The rows of shelved books and many tables and chairs create an atmosphere of quietude. But once one finally settles at a table and spreads out a multitude of volumes and notecards, it seems the noises begin. Sitting absolutely still is not necessary in order for one to hear the distractions. Above the steady whir and occasional clanks of many electric fans, the continous loud bangs from those ancient radiators reverberate throughout the library. Unison is not their game: they bang at eneven intervals, so one never knows when to expect the radiator's next barrage.

Through the whirring and clanking the telephone gaily rings out. One can be sure that three or four loud jangles will sound before anyone answers the phone.

Effective studying is hardly possible in our library when one knows he can count on the aggravating, disrupting noises found there. Those noises, mixed with ruffling papers, dropping books, whispering, and nose blowing, make reading and research almost an impossibility. Can anything be done to stop the banging of the radiators and the unnecessarily loud ringing of the telephone?

Ruffled Resident

Dear Editor:

It is my hope that in the future reporters will check with committee chairmen before reporting on committee reports and proposals. In the last issue of the Echo, Willy Vidal reported on two proposals to A.C.C. from the Residental Life Committee: one concerning alcohol, the other Pearsons. He obtained written copies of both proposals which is good. A good deal of excellent coverage was given to both proposals: However, both proposals had changes made since those copies were made. The Pearsons proposal was acted upon and accepted by the A.C.C.. However, the recommended prices that Willy quoted were stricken by A.C.C. from the proposal because this is an area of administrative decision not of the committee. Also, Willy failed to mention the various different accommidations in Pearsons, including suites, apartments, and rooms with kitchens and baths, a very important aspect of the committee report. I hope the Echo keeps us the good coverage but please be sure to have all the facts before going to print.

Sincerely,

Jane Beth Markley

Dear Editor,

The recent Red Cross Blood Mobile visit to Maryville College netted 123 units of blood.

Many students were unable to give because of recent illness. The response was excellent in everyway.

On behalf of The Blount Red Cross Board I commend all students, faculty, and staff who had a part in this volunteer effort.

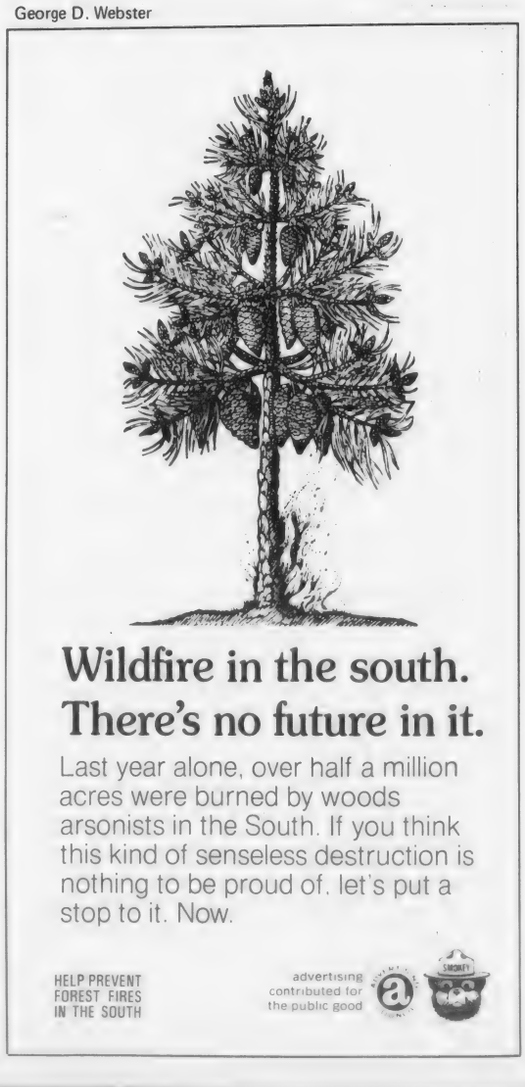
Sincerely,

Robert D. Proffitt, M.D.

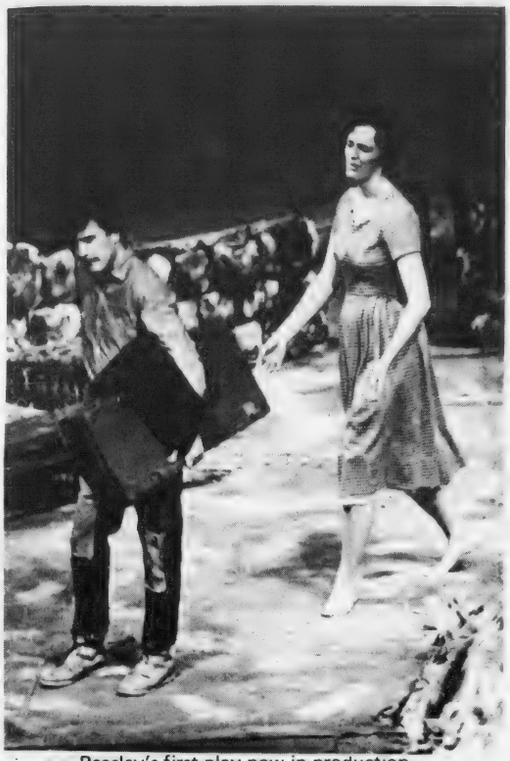
Sirs:

I read with interest the three most recent editions of The Highland Echo that have been forwarded to me which include in each such edition a so-called syndicated column by Ron Hendren.

I used to be a writer for The Highland Echo. I note that this column only presents a fringe point of view which is contrary to that of the President of the United States in each of the columns. Of course, it is interesting to note that one of his columns dated January 19, 1973 has already proved to be erroneous since the war in southeast Asia has now been concluded with honor.



It is also noted that this columnist refers to the President as a "two-bit politician." I suppose that the columnist is still upset that his candidate did not win the election in November.



My real objection to all of this is that it presents a biased, unrealistic point of view and conceivably could give the impression that it is accurate.

Does The Highland Echo pay for this column and if so, how much and to whom?

Very truly yours,

George D. Webster

Beasley's first play now in production.

THEATER OFFERS ENTERTAINMENT

Eugene O'Neill's "A Moon for the Misbegotten" was performed last night in the MC Theatre, with second and third performances scheduled for tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 p.m.

"A Moon for the Misbegotten" is highly autobiographical. According to director Blair Beasley, the play could be called "Part Two of O'Neill's exorcism of his own life." Part one is "Long Day's Journey into the Night," where O'Neill relates his tragic and unfortunate family upbringing, caused by his father, a miser; his mother, a drug addict; and his brother, an alcoholic. O'Neill himself had problems with alcohol and tuberculosis.

Looking back on his first play, O'Neill felt guilty over his harsh treatment of his brother, and felt compelled to write a play dealing expecially with his brother James, only showing more of his love and kindness. "A Moon for the Misbegotten" is the result.

O'Neill's plays uses a unity of time, place, and action, and are thus remiscent of Greek tragic writers. They are also powerful and haunting. Mr. Beasley quotes a critic and director of O'Neill's plays as saying, "Once you have touched the man, once you have touched genius – it will never let you go."

James Tyrone (Eugene's brother) is played by Terry Noack. Other roles include Josie Hogan, played by Melissa Collins; her younger brother Michael, played by Larry Dimmick; Phil Hogan, played by Thomas Williamson; and the Hogan's neighbor, played by Steve Yuhasz.

Tickets may be purchased at the Speech-Theatre office, or at the door.

tourney

The Maryville College Forensic Team left yesterday for Eastern Kentucky University to compete in the Bluegrass Invitational Forensics Tournament. The team will return tomorrow.

The team is composed of Shahbaz Ahmed, Lance Dunaway, Michael Montgomery, Kaye Sanders, and Janet Vail.

Thomas E. Jones, Assistant Professor of Theatre and Speech, is accompanying the Team.

MC Students honored

Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society, with admission requirements similar to those for admission to the national society, Phi Beta Kappa, has elected eight new members. Kenneth Aimsley, Cathy Bates, Thomas Bennett, Randall Blair, Emily Davis, Carl Hafner, Alice Hook, and Martha McCoy have all met the high standards required. Students must have a minimum G.P.A. of 3.33 and have been in attendance here at least five terms. A total of thirteen students may be elected this year and further nominations are expected at the end of this term.

We need you.

National Center for Voluntary Action

Recruiting Key to MC Future

by Lorrie Willey

Maryville College is a small institution, 682 students to be exact. The Admissions Office hopes to gradually increase M.C. enrollment in the future. For next year, they plan to increase the student body by 50. When discussing techniques for increasing enrollment, a great deal of emphasis needs to be placed on recruiting, which is under the command of the Director of Admissions and the Admissions Office.

High Schools are focal points for recruiters, who are also refered to as admissions counselors. Many shcools are considered "sending schools", which simply means that every year M.C. receives a number of applications from certain high schools. When the Admissions Office receives many letters of interest from a specific area, it is fairly certain that a recruiter will be sent there to speak to the interested and, hopefully, prospective students.

Junior Colleges are also a prime spot for recruiting new students. Becuase of the increase in the number of these institution, M.C. recruiting has also expanded. Now, the admissions counselors and the assistant director of admissions travel to all the two year colleges in Tennessee and North Carolina, to 70% of them found in New Jersey, and to almost all located in Florida. Junior College graduates are usually more alert when chosing a new school and this makes a harder job for the recruiters. There are two main reasons for this; first, a student who has been in school for two years has gained a better understanding of their eventual goals, and, secondly, when reading a catalouge, the junior college graduate can "read between the lines" and really understand what is written. The reason for interest in the junior college student is quite apparent; these graduates have already established themselves in the college environment and will probably prove to do well at another school.

What do recruiters say to students? It must be noted that the admissions counselors are themselves M.C. graduates and have an ernest interest in getting more students to enroll at their alma mater. When speaking with students at various schools and levels, the admissions personnel always discuss the entrance requirements. It is interesting to add here that according to the Admissions Office, the entrance standards at Maryville College have not been lowered in the last few years. S.A.T. scores, A.C.T. scores and class ranking are still very important when considering a student's application. The recruiters realize that M.C. can not offer everything to everyone so they do not sway students with a hard sale pitch; instead they interest themselves with the students feelings, ambitions, and needs by speaking candidly and honestly.

It is quite clear that the admissions counselors do have a tough job. They are on the road approximately three out of four weeks and when they return to home base, the counselors are busy showing prospective students the campus or working on their individual projects. A campus tour includes visiting all the academic departments and lunching at the dining hall. Projects are createted by each recruiter. For example, last weekend, Sarah Miller organized and directed a "Going to College" Seminar for local high school students. When traveling to various schools the recruiters must prove that they possess knowledge of all M.C.'s facilities and academic departments.

The Admissions Office is also in the process of creating a "Student Admissions Committee". This committee would have the responsibility of notifying currently enrolled students who are from areas where there are some interested students. The M.C. student would be asked to get in touch with these students during their vacations and talk to them about college life. The Admissions Office feels that this would be benefical for the school because the applicant could speak with more ease to a M.C. student from their home-town who might possess many background similarities.

Recruiting is necessary if a school wishes to increase enrollment, as is the case here. Hopefully, the recruiters and admissions personnel will be successful in finding more and more students to enroll at M.C., which the Admissions Office feels is a strong institution with good facilities and fine ideals.

Science tests set

The Science Department of Maryville College is sponsoring Science Day for East Tennessee High Schools on Saturday, March 10, featuring a competitive science exam on chemistry, biology, and physics.

Winners of the exam will receive a $500 tuition scholarship to Maryville College for each of four years. Students who place in the top ten will receive special awards whether they go to Maryville College or not.

Each high school has been asked to send two students to participate in the competition.

CAMPUS NOTES

March

2, 3 Play – Moon for the Misbegotten, Theatre, 8:15, $1.50 Students and $2.00 adults

4 TV show – "Focus Maryville College", 7:00 p.m., Ch. 26

5 Guest Concert, Peabody Choir, Music Hall, 8:15, FREE

6 Performing Arts Series, Douglas Masek, saxophonist, Music Hall, 8:15, FREE (bring I.D. cards)

Santana – Civic Auditorium, 8:00, $4.00, $5.00, and $6.00

7 C.I.V. – Dr. Sam Keen, Consulting Editor of "Psychology Today", will speak on "Stories, Myths and Personal Identity"

Movie – Cabinet of Dr. Caligari, Theatre, 8:15, $.75

9 Fifth Dimension – Stokley Center, 8:15, $4.00 and $5.00

Also – this Sat. dance Lloyd Lounge, 9:30, 75 cents

SPORTS

Scots finish up

The Maryville College Basketball team finished its 1972-73 season Monday night with a 66-65 overtime victory over Bryan College at Bryan. It was the fourth victory of the season for the Scots as they completed their schedule with a record of 4-22.

The Bryan game was close all the way as the two teams were tied at 61 after regulation time had expired. Freshman Mike Morton came off the bench to spark the Scots scoring as he was responsible for all five of their over-time points. Freshman Andy Banas, who played impressively the past few weeks, was another one to come off the bench to provide the scoring punch as he led all scorers with 24 points. Keith Crane added 13.

Earlier last week, the Scots completed their home schedule by bowing to Lee College, 91-73. It appeared that the Scots might be able to pick up another victory in this one as they played a strong first half, and led at halftime, 43-40. Lee was sparked in the second half, however, as Center Larry Carpenter went on a scoring splurge with 36 points. Another Freshman, Randy Lambert, led the Scots scoring attack with 17 points. Captain Randy Schaurer had 13, while Senior Phil Graham, playing his final game at home, scored 10.

The 4-22 record may look discouraging to some, but Maryville's basketball team did improve as the season progressed. Most of the 1972-73 squad will return next season, and with the experience that they have gained, Coach Boydson Baird can expect to have a much vastly improved team.

Women plan spring sports

In the women's intramural program, basketball has now ended. It was a lot of fun for all those involved, despite having only three teams which held up for the entire period of activity. Now a double-elimination badminton tournament is underway, with seventeen participants.

Sunday, February 18, M-Club sponsored an afternoon social to recruit new members. The girls played volleyball and later had refreshments. The point-system was explained, and plans were discussed for spring activities.

This week, M-Club will have a full schedule. Most of the members, and several perspective members, will be busy this up-coming weekend hosting the 1973 Women's Intercollegiate State Basketball Tournament in the MC gymnasium. The girls will be acting as hostesses for the six visiting teams, which represent West, Middle, and East Tennessee. Two girls have been assigned to each team, and will make themselves abailable to the team and coach throughout the tournament to answer any questions and assist in any ways needed. The tournament will run from Friday morning through Saturday afternoon.

Following spring break, new intramural activities will begin, including raquetball, table tennis, and softball, among many others. For further information or to obtain sign-up sheets, see Miss Werner in the P.E. Office, or contact any M-Club member.

Scots End Season

Last weekend the Maryville College Women's Basketball Team wrapped up its first season of intercollegiate play. The Scots traveled to ETSU to participate in the district tournament.

Friday morning MC faced UT in the first round, and lost 69-57. The competition was keen and the score ran close through most of the game.

In the opening minutes Maryville went ahead 6-0, and the score was tight in the first quarter. However, the Scots went cold in the second period and UT led 39-20 at half time.

MC came back strong in the third quarter and tied the score. However, in the fourth the Scots slid behind again. Melinda Lucas, Jean Earhardt, and Carol Rankin fouled out. The final score was 69-57.

High scorer for the game was Lucas, with 27; and Bonnie Cassidy pumped in 15 more. Lynn Pimputon and Nancy Bowan led UT's attack, both hitting double figures.

Later the same day Maryville faced homestanding ETSU and fell 54-36. The Scots were again plagued by cold shooting and foul trouble.

Melinda Lucas drew four fouls in the opening quarter, and was forced to take the bench. Without her scoring and rebounding ability MC fell behind.

The Scots again made a comeback in the third quarter. Lucas returned to the line-up and the team's shooting percentage improved. However, the momentum ran down by the fourth quarter and ETSUwon, 54-36.

Lucas again led Scots scores with 16, Cassidy added 8, and Suejean Bradley 7.

These two tournament games brought an end to the Scot's primiere season; an amazingly good one. Although they won only one district game, the women established themselves firmly in the minds of their competitors.

For the season, Lucas led team scoring, averaging 22 points per game. Cassidy averaged 7.5, and Terry Tophan 7.

Coach Werner is quite happy with the way the Scots have played. She feels they have made remarkable progress and shown great potential.

The team itself is very pleased with their intercollegiate participation, and hope that they have next year to look forward to.

MC hosts tournament

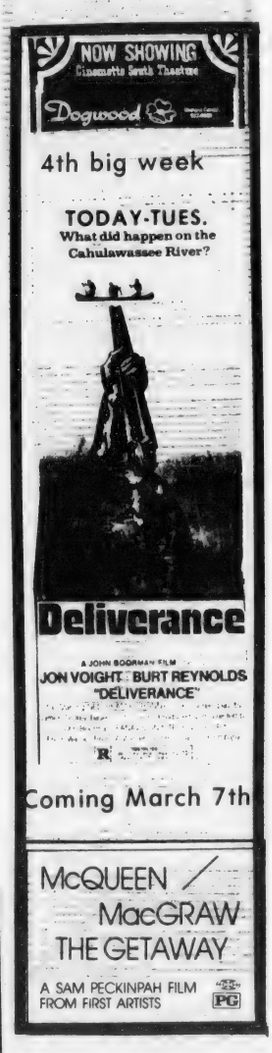
Maryville College is hosting the Third Annual Tennessee Collegiate Women's Sports Federation Basketball Championship on March 2 and 3 at the Fieldhouse.

Six teams representing the three districts in Tennessee will be competing for a berth in the Regional Tournament. Defending champion, UT at Martin, is expected to retain its title, but strong Tennessee Tech and Lambuth College will be trying to gain the title also.

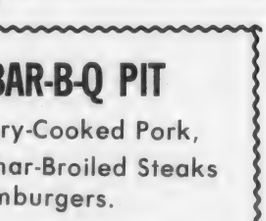
Other teams participating are UT at Knoxville, who won the Eastern District title; and runner-up ETSU and Middle Tennessee State, runner-up in the Middle District.

Competition will begin Friday at 9:00 a.m. as UT at Knoxville plays Middle Tennessee State University, and Lambuth takes on ETSU. Futher games the same day are scheduled for 2:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. The Championship round will be Saturday at 10:00 a.m., and the consolation match at 3:00 p.m. Admission for Saturday's games is $1.00; Friday's games are free.

Visitors tour MC campus



Last Friday afternoon, February 23, the Admissions Office hosted a "Going to College Seminar" for high school students from the local area. Forty-seven students, representing 9 different schools, along with two guidance counselors and several parents, came for the program, which began in the chapel immediately following lunch. After an encouraging welcome from Dr. Copeland, Mr. Beasley pointed out differences between a small college and a university in the topic, "Which Way to Higher Education?". Dr. Ramger's topic was "Creativity in College", in which he told our guests about several MC interim projects and possibilities for individualized majors. Later in the afternoon, a seminar, entitled "What Can You Do with a College Degree Today?", was led by Mr. Stallings, Dr. Fowler, Dr. Rhodes, Dr. Shields, Dr. Walker, and Dr. Harris. Tours of the campus were then given by several of our students.



We in the Admissions Office wish to express our gratitude to all of you who had a part in making this day a success.

We feel our guests had an enjoyable afternoon, and at the same time, gained insight into the world of higher education.

Admissions for '73-74 is looking up. If anyone has ideas for letting high school students know about Maryville, please let us hear from you. Filling the dorms in future years will be easier through utilizing the combined efforts of the entire college. Anyone interested in contacting prospective students during spring break should stop by the Admissions Office. Your assistance will certainly be appreciated.

There are twelve or so carrels available for students use in Fayerweather Hall. If you think that you would like one of these, pick up an application form at Mrs. Rowett's desk in the President's Office in Anderson Hall, or from Dean Blair. Then, applications will be considered and carrels will be assigned.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

BUDDY'S BAR-B-Q PIT
Featuring Hickory-Cooked Pork, Beef, Ribs And Char-Broiled Steaks And Hamburgers.

FREE 15¢ DRINK
WITH ANY PURCHASE
WITH THIS COUPON

Use our convenient Drive-In Window for pick-up orders.
373 HANNUM STREET, ALCOA

theHighland ECHO

Vol. 58, No. 17 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 9 March 1973

Mr. Wonderful!

Saturday, April 7 is the big day for the annual Fred Hope Fund Carnival. Dr. Alton Tabereaux, appointed this year's co-ordinator by the World Concerns Committee, announces that the gala event will be held in the Chapel-Theatre complex from 5:30 – 10:00 p.m. Plans are underway to have a variety of game and activity booths sponsored by various clubs and organizations on campus. Mr. Robert Bonham will be the musical director for the various types of musical talent that will be displayed during the evening. Mr. William Swenson will help assemble an arts and crafts section of art objects for sale.

A special feature of this year's carnival will be the crowning of "Mr. Wonderful." Anyone interested in entering this male "beauty" contest can do so by getting 12 female signatures and sending them to Box 2879 by March 26. Voting will take place at the carnival itself. The Community Outreach Committee will operate a hot dog stand. The Faculty Wives are baking cakes for a cake walk. It has been rumored that some kind of pie throwing contest with key faculty targets will be a part of the action.

All the proceeds from this year's carnival will go to an orphanage in Nicaragua. Fred Hope was a graduate of Maryville College who many years ago inspired the college to begin a fund in his memory which would be used to further international understanding. Here is an opportunity to have some fun and do something important at the same time.

The Maryville College Concert Choir

Choir to Sweep Midwest

by Charles Craven

The MC Concert Choir has established the itinerary for its spring tour and is completing plans for 43 of its 59 members to take a chartered bus during Spring Break to cities in six states. Included are Ashland, Kentucky; St. Louis, Missouri; Chicago, Illinois; Richmond, Indiana; and Cincinnati, Ohio.

Under Dr. Harry H. Harter, the MC Choir has built an enviable reputation among college choral groups in the country. It has been chosen as one of the official broadcasting choirs of the United Presbyterian Church and has also performed for network radio and television on the Protestant Hour, the Voice of America, the "Great Choirs of America" series, and other programs. Its recordings have been used in North and South American hospitals as music therapy.

In the past 25 years that Dr. Harter has been its director, the choir has traveled over 50,000 miles to appear in well over 150 cities east of the Mississippi River.

The program will include sacred music of the Lenten and Easter season by both master and contemporary composers. It will begin with a group of twentieth century choral selections, including "Prelude for Voices," which takes its powerful text from Thomas Wolfe's play "Look Homeward, Angel." Following is a work for chorus and stereophonic tape recorder, entitled "A Time to Every Purpose," and a new arrangement by Dr. Harter of the spirited "Walk Him Up the Stairs" from the musical "Purlie."

Part two of the three part program includes mostly 19th century choral works by composers such as Bruckner, Tschaikowsky, and Randall Thompson.

Highlights of the third part include "Kling Klang," a musical portrayal of church bells calling people to church; "Crucifixus," a musical sketch of the Good Friday Crucifixion drama; and "All Breathing Life Sing and Praise Ye the Lord" by J.S. Bach.

The MC Concert Choir leaves for their midwest sweep of six states on Wednesday, March 14. They end their tour in Ashland, Kentucky on March 26.

A complete itinerary is available at the Post Office, Fine Arts Center, and Anderson Hall Offices.

Vacation Escapades

by Patti Shelton

Far from being an escape from learning, spring break is actually just another phase in our higher education. Tearing ourselves away from MC is painful, but we must sacrifice for knowledge.

Take Dave Buckwalter for example. He is giving up a magnificent room in Carnegie Hall to travel to Arkansas for a study of the native art of fishing. Then he'll go to Colorado to study the effects of skiing on curly hair.

Rob Kaniper and Rich Seipel are also going to Colorado. They hope to capture some specimens of real air for Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" museum in Gatlinburg.

I know a housemother who says she's going into the hospital over break. Of course everyone knows she's actually taking Red Cross karate lessons and planning to re-read, "There Was an Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe."

Some people are – strange but true – going home for break. Many of them already have Things-You-Have-To-Do-When-You-Get-Home lists their parents mailed special delivery. Presumably, a few plan to study the effects of ten day's constant contact on familial affection.

The course of study for homeward-bound students depends largely on the geographic location of their house. People from Florida will take classes in "Hiding from those 200 kids you've never spoken to who found out you have a house on the beach," and "Gourmet Cooking with Sand and Baby Oil."

Then there are the kids from Jersey who plan to make a joint report on organized crime at the first CIV of spring term. We assume that their required reading of The Godfather, The Valachi Papers, and Buddy Pierce's special studies have been completed by now.

continued on page 4, col. 1

ACC Delays Action on Alcohol Issue

The All College Council held its last meeting of the Winter term on Wednesday, February 28, tossing about the present controversy on the possession and consumption of alcohol on the MC Campus.

The council discussed a report submitted by the Community Standards and Residential Committee, chaired by J.B. Markley, concerning the possible proposals to this issue and the effects alcohol would have on the college community and the reaction by the outside community. Many questions were answered, and yet many were avoided. No action was taken in any direction.

The ACC will hold its next meeting on Wednesday, March 28, 1973. The alcohol issue is planned to be discussed at still further length during this meeting.

Hague Skis into Print

Brad Hague, a junior Biology major, made the print indirectly this week in Sports Illustrated (March 5, 1973) for his efforts in the Southern Intercollegiate Ski Championships at Beech Mountain, North Carolina on February 13-14. He was referred to as "the lone skier from Maryville College" in an article entitled "Slushing through Dixie."

Brad, who has been sking in competition for five years, placed seventh in the giant slalom and fifth in the downhill out of a field of thirty-two men and six women – representing eleven different schools.

Another MC student, Amy Wood, was also highlighted in the article by Gyilym S. Brown as the "shivering and wet" girl friend in the cheering section.

Brad has also to his credit this season two silver and one bronze metals from racing comptition in Gatlinburg, Tennessee.

Book Sale

The Eleventh Annual Book Sale, sponsored by the Maryville Branch of the American Association of University Women, will be held this Friday and Saturday, March 9-10, in the Community Room of the Blount National Bank. The hours are 9:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. on Friday, and 9:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Saturday.

Books of all kinds are donated and sold; games, puzzles, records, maps, atlases, tapes, tape recorders, etc. All proceeds are used to provide scholarships to women for advanced study.

editorial

. . . Baloney

The ACC is wasting its time discussing the present alcohol controversy. The present policy is working fine for everyone concerned now. There must be something of more concern to the future of this college than the question of possession and consumption of alcohol on campus.

The students here at Maryville have succeeded well enough in past years not to warrant such a drastic change in policy today. Informal get-togethers are held every weekend on this campus now without any problems. The flow of alcohol is free enough under the present policy to not even think about a change — much less enforcement!

Until recently, the administrators have been able to keep themselves above all the evildoings of today's college students by looking the other way. This ignorance or quest for naivete has kept everyone of concern happy and content with present school policy. Now the administrators are in a state of shock at the idea of facing a change in the complexion of this Christian institution by permitting alcohol on campus. Everything was all right before, why change now?

When the administrators are able to make the students appear happy and content, then the alumni are happy. While writing out the checks payable to Maryville College, the alumni always like to remember those days when they were students. As you and I both know, this college can only operate when the income continues to flow, and this makes everyone happy. The alumni aren't able to see the need for a restatement of school policy if everyone is so happy.

Everything says that we are happy today. We have our parties, the administrators are looking the other way and smiling, and the alumni keep us going with their support. BALONEY!

Now is the time for the students, the ACC, and the alumni to make the necessary adjustments in the alcohol policy. Either make the change now, or enforce the present policy. An unenforced regulation is only a lot of hot air, and there is too much hot air around here today.

Letters to the Echo

MC Enjoys Due Process?

To the Editor:

This letter of complaint pertains to the policies of Maryville College in regard to traffic and parking regulations. Although many of the laws or regulations are necessary, I have found that the methods of enforcement seem to be carried out in an inconsistent and sometimes unfair manner. Before going any further, I would like to clarify my statements by saying that I place no blame on the Campus police. They are only performing their duties, and seem to do an adequate job at most times.

As many students know, there are several non-registered cars parked off-campus in order to avoid the registration fee of $20.00. The regulations make it clear that it is unlawful to operate or park the car on college property. Fines are to be decided upon by the automobile Committee. The problem which evolves from these laws is the student receives two fines for the same violation. He has violated the law which says he may not operate the vehicle on this college's property and must pay a one dollar fine. I believe the college has the right to do this, but their $10.00 fine for non-registration is outrageous. The car is the student's property, and I can not see the fairness or legal means by which the college can enforce this rule.

Another problem results from argumentation of this principle. When discussing the matter with one of our officials in Anderson, he told me to take the problem to a member of the automobile Committee. (This was logical and reasonable). In asking the names of some of the members, this official had the audacity to admit that he was on the committee. When asking for permission to discuss this matter with him personally, I was told there wasn't anything to question in regard to the regulations.

Several of my friends have encountered the same problems in dealing with this person. Such incidents as student paychecks having deductions for traffic violations, have been reported to me.

I will close by asking you to keep this question in mind. Does the college establish these laws for our protection and to better the campus community, or is it a convenient way of raising revenue to compensate for the ever-increasing costs of maintaining the small private college of America?

Victim.

Response to letter requested

To the Editor:

I am asking your cooperation in printing this letter so that I may reach the general student population.

I am attempting to accumulate some meaningful data for a serious study on American communes. To that end, I wish to reach as many communes as possible.

I will be grateful if students, graduate and undergraduate, who are living in communal situations, will write me indicating willingness to receive a questionnaire and/or to be interviewed. Size of commune is unimportant; 3 or 4 people, up to any number.

Mae T. Sperber
26 West 9th Street, 9E
New York, New York 10011

My Choice?

To the Editor:

Like Interim Editor Robert Erwin, I appreciate George Webster's interest in the Echo (March 2). Small, geographically isolated colleges are often susceptible to literary and intellectual exchange that approaches incest, and comments from off-campus sources should always be welcomed.

continued col. 4

Today's issue has been submitted by Lyn Stanley as a trial issue in support of his application as editor of the Highland Echo. The new editor will be announced publicly during the first week of spring term.

STAFF

Editor — Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Faculty Advisor — Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Business Manager — Allen Bunge
Lay-out Editor — Sarah Winbigler

s. crane

did you say bologna?

Mr. Webster's recent letter seems to beg for a response. As a former Echo writer, Mr. Webster should realize that personal opinion seldom governs definition. Mr. Hendren is a syndicated columnist, and what is published weekly in the Echo under his name is a column, regardless of the point of view it presents. It is no more a "so-called" column than is Hendren its author's so-called name.

This definitional dig is apparently the prelude to a suggestion that the Echo should not regularly publish a viewpoint "contrary to that of the President of the United States," and therefore "biased" and "unrealistic." That such an attitude should fail to register a concerned reaction to the MC campus is frightening, but predictable.

Do you advocate, Mr. Webster, following the example of the present administration in corrupting the provisions of the First Amendment and in suppressing publication of biased viewpoints (i.e. viewpoints other than those of Mr. Nixon)?

At what point in this country's history did the opinions of one political figure become the enforced model for those of the citizenry? Even if I make the "wrong" choice, Mr. Webster, let ME decide who emerges from the American political jungle of half-truths, double-talk, and lies with the closest approximation of truth.

David L. Cureton

Peabody College Choir

Monday night, the Peabody College Choir performed a concert in the FAC Music Hall. The concert was sponsored by the Maryville chapters of Delta Omicron and Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia.

play reaction

A Success

by Kathy Meier

Last week M.C. playgoers experienced a rare treat — professional theater. The achievement of "professionalism" can only be accomplished when the actors, director, stage manager, even the nameless, faceless helpers approach their tasks seriously and strive toward their conception of the ideal in performance.

Blair Beasly and the crew of Moon for the Misbegotten took a giant stride toward perfection. For many of us who remember Melissa Collins as Lucy in "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" and as a hard working stage manager and assistant director, it was a pleasure to see her acting once more. Her interpretation of Josie was sympathetic and powerful; her fluency in the dialect was astounding. It was equally enjoyable to see Tom Williamson cast in another serious roll, giving him occasion to display both his comic and dramatic facets of his talent.

Terry Noack has appeared on the stage before, usually in performances by the Van Metre School of Dance. His dramatic ability seems to develop as rapidly as his dance acumen. Another,Larry Dimmick dealt compently with his brief role as Michael. The cast was rounded out by Steve Yuhasz as Harker, who interpreted the part perfectly.

The whole cast did a good job at emphasizing the intensity of Moon for the Misbegotten and its rather spectacular Freudian overtones, i.e. Jim and Josie's relationship. The play itself seems to grow unweildly as O'Neill makes his point over and over, going back, again and again, to Jim's drinking and craziness and to Josie's cheerful promescuity. The moon light scene was particularly hard to manage with its repetive movements and speeches. Paradoxically enough, Moon also contains some of the best structural devices such as Jim's unpredictable, sudden periods of remembering painful events.

The themes of alcoholism, lack of viable sexual relationships, mixed guilt and love for mother figure have all been connected by biographical critics to actual events in O'Neill's life. This playwright's life has always

continued on page 4, col. 2

Maryville Menu

March 9	Junior Recital, Dana Poore, Time: 7:00 p.m.
	The Alpha Omega Players will present Aria Da Capo by Edna St. Vincent Millay and The Last Word by James Broughton at New Providence Church. Time: 8:15 p.m. Prices; $1.00 and .50 cents.
	Movie – Daddy's Gone a Hunting, MC Theater. Time: 8:15 p.m. Price: .75 cents.
March 10	Guy Lombardo, Knoxville Civic Auditorium. Time: 8:15 p.m. Prices: $6.00, $5.00, $4.00, and $3.00.
March 11	Maryville College Concert Choir, Second Presbyterian Church, Knoxville. Time: 4:00 p.m.
	Vespers in Little Chapel. Time: 7:00 p.m. After Service, Mr. Donald Olsen will lead a seminar
March 13	Hadyn's The Creation. U.T. Music Hall. Time: 8:15 p.m.
March 19	The National Ballet's Sleeping Beauty, Knoxville Civic Auditorium. Time: 7:30 p.m. Prices: $6.00, $5.00, and $4.00.
March 27 28	Godspell, Knoxville Civic Auditorium. Time: 8:15 p.m. Prices: $6.50, $5.50, $4.50, and $3.50.

1973 MC Tennis Team
Left to right: S. Vessels, S. Rael, T. Willis, S. Marchese, S. Brown, L. Blackwood, A. and C. Larsen. Absent: R. Gaunt.

Dear Erma. . .

Maryville College's answer to Hedda Hopper and Louella Parsons strikes this week. For all the news from Tinseltown, send your questions c/. Dear Erma, Highland Echo. Again this week, we are printing our own questions because you didn't send any. For shame. – the editors

Dear Erma,
Is it true that the Smothers Brothers look alike?
Fred Friendly
CBS President

Dear Fred,
To a certain extent. People who know them say Tom looks more alike than Dick.

Dear Erma,
What famous recording star has this motto: "Sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will never hurt me."?
Kitty Litter

Dear Kitty,
David Cassidy.

Dear Erma,
What is the name of Burt Reynolds' mother?
Denah Shore

Dear Denah,
Would you believe Mrs. Reynolds?

Dear Erma,
Aw, come on now, what is the name of Burt Reynolds' mother?
Ditto

Dear Ditto,
I asked Burt about it, and he said as far as he knew, all he ever called her was "Mother."

Dear Erma,
Where is the one spot in the United States where I can go and be sure of seeing the greatest number of celebrities?
Candy Jar

Dear Candy,
Try the Republican National Convention.

Dear Erma,
Do you think if I wrote Neil Diamond, he would tell me how much money he makes from a single performance?
Aspiring young singer

Dear Hopeful,
Probably not unless you told him how much you make mowing the lawn and cleaning out the garage.

Guess Again: What famous sister of the star of an Academy Award picture is dating the first cousin of that sexy Italian actor who married his third wife again after her fourth husband died in an automobile accident?

Senior of the Week

This week the Echo features Martha McCoy. Hailing from Kingsport, Tennessee, Martha is a senior History major. She was recently elected a member of Alpha Gamma Sigma, MC's honor society. Her other activities and honors include: cheerleader, staff of the Chilhowean, a nominee for Homecoming Queen, Davis senior counselor, member of Theta Epsilon, a member of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, and recipient of the Verton M. Queener Scholarship Award.

Who will be next?

Martin to Travel

Spring break affords innovations to professors as well as students.

Miss Martin, one of the Spanish professors, will travel to South America as part of a study tour sponsored by the American Association of University Women. During her stay, she will visit Rio de Janeiro; Brazil; Buenos Aires, Argentina; Lima, Cuzco; and Machu Ricchu, Peru. The highlight of the trip will be a visit to the Inca civilization.

Miss Martin has always wanted to become familiar with the South American countries and their people through personal contact. Upon returning to the classroom, she will be better able to explain South American cultures to her students.

Tennis Team to Tour South

Maryville College's tennis team, under Coach Lauren Kardatzke, is headed for Georgia and Florida over spring break in an effort to tune up for the regular season.

Beginning with Shorter College on March 15, the team will play seven colleges in ten days on their sweep through the South. The schedule includes Shorter College, Columbus College, Kalamazoo College (Mich.) – also on tour, Eckerd College, St. Leo College, Valdosta State College, and Mercer College. While in Florida, the team will spend three days at the Circle F Dude Ranch Camp in Lake Wales as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Fischbach, class of 1936.

Nine players are currently competing for the seven available spots on the tour. Back from last year's team are Tony Willis, Skip Vessels, and Steve Rael. Newcomers include Leland Blackwood, Sutton Brown, Alan Furth, Richard Gaunt, Craig Larsen, and Sue Marchese. Sue is the first girl to try out for the team since Penny Ferguson played for Maryville College four years ago.

Coach Kardatzke says practice is going very well. He urges everyone to take note of the team's tour schedule so if possible they can come out and give the team support.

Maryville College's first home match will be Wednesday, March 28, 1973, versus Lincoln Memorial University.

Tennis Team Itinerary

March 15	Shorter	Rome, Ga.
March 16	Columbus College	Columbus, Ga.
March 17-19	No Matches	Lake Wales, Fla.
March 20	Kalamazoo	St. Petersburg, Fla.
March 21	Eckerd	St. Petersburg, Fla.
March 22	St. Leo	St. Leo, Fla.
March 23	Valdosta	Valdosta, Ga.
March 24	Mercer	Macon, Ga.

Scot Hardballers

As collegiate baseball season draws near, the MC's hardballers are busy in preparation. Practice has been in progress now for several weeks.

Coach Boydson Baird is cautiously optimistic about this season. He feels that, with luck the Scots should enjoy their fourth straight winning season.

Rob Randall and Glenn Doig return to the mound to lead the pitching squad. They will be delivering the ball to Dave Clinton, who will handle the duties behind the plate.

Leon Hart and Brad Hague return to their positions at first and third. Hopefully, Mark Brooks, who has been bothered by a knee injury, will again guard second. The starting shortstop is at present unknown.

Returning outfielders are Paul Viggiano, Jim Lester, and Earl McMahan, who can double at first.

New Scots include pitchers David Spradlin, Jon Wright, and Ric Ruffner. Adding depth to the infield are Tom Kleppe, Rodney Fuller, and Paul Schoultz.

Schaurer Top Scorer

The official statistics for the Maryville College basketball team have been compiled, and show Captain Randy Schaurer, a Junior, led the 1972-73 Scots in scoring with 384 points. In addition, he was the leading foul shooter on the team with 89.6 percent of his attempts being successful.

Kenny Talbott, a Freshman who was injured the last two weeks of the season, still was able to lead the team in the highest field-goal percentage at .470. Talbott also lead in rebounds with 158.

The stats show that of the 26 games that the Scots played, enroute to a record of 4-22, the team scored 1,732 points. They hit on 39 percent of their fieldgoals, and 69 percent of their free-throws.

Individualized Major?

The Maryville College's curriculum does not always offer a student the kind of major they want or need for their undergraduate work. In order to cope with this void, MC offers a way for a student to design his own curriculum, the individualized major.

The procedure for planning an individualized major is in seven steps. These include:

1. The student must prepare a formal statement indicating why they desire an individualized major rather than one of the standard departmental majors.
2. The formulated proposal of study must be submitted to the head(s) of the department(s) in which most of the study is planned to be done.
3. After the department head(s) have discussed and approved the course of study, the student must submit it to the Registrar. It is then submitted to the Committee on Individualized Majors for consideration.
4. After the curriculum has been approved by the committee, the Chairman, department head(s) and the student will appoint a faculty advisor.
5. Alterations of the initial program must be submitted to the faculty advisor and the Registrar.
6. The senior interim will be worked out with the faculty advisor, but it need not be taken under that professor.
7. The students advisor is responsible for organizing or arranging the comprehensive exams and the Undergraduate Record Examinations.

Any student who is interested in an individualized major may get more information from the Registrar's Office. If anyone has further questions as to the organization of the individualized major, you can speak to Dr. Fowler, Chairman of the Committee on Individualized Majors. Proposals must be turned in immediately.

continued from page 1, col. 2

Vacation

Quite a few MC students will be taking a special course under Dr. Harter which requires strenuous physical and mental preparation and includes lessons in "Sleeping on a Bus No Matter What Happens," "Sleeping on a Church Pew Before a Concert," and "Sleeping Standing Up When Your Section Isn't Singing." A follow-up study will be available to this group spring term, called "Writing Thank-you Notes When You've Lost Your List of Hosts."

Of course spring break isn't all work. Students may, if they wish, schedule time for coed visitation, refreshments, and outside reading. But remember, you're in college to learn, so — stretch out on the sofa, pick up your ZAP comic, and underline, underline, underline!!!

—NOTICE—

Mr. Darryl Moore of The Varsity Company will be holding two interviews on Monday, March 12, in Anderson 206, one at 1:10 p.m. and one at 2:30 p.m. The Company plans to select from five to ten students from Maryville. Average savings last summer was $1500. If you think you would be interested in selling books for Varsity, plan to see Mr. Moore next Monday. You must be able to work away from home.

A representative from Jolly Green Giant will be at the Employment Office (across from the Court House) on March 29. Mrs. Dorothy Wallace needs to have some idea as to how many may be interested. For more information, see her today.

MEN'S INTRAMURALS

As Spring vacation nears, Winter intramurals draws to a close. This year the men's competition has been as varied as it has been fierce.

Already completed is the ping pong tournament, in which J.W. Nichols defeated Jim Colpits for the championship. David Buckwalter and Larry Bass were also semifinalists.

Also recently ended is the basketball competition. In the final game, the Seniors overtook the Dark Horses to earn the crown. The third place team this season was the Inners, followed in fourth by the Hackers.

In raquetball singles, Bill Baggett was victorious over Larry Boroviak in gaining the title. Consolation matches are continuing.

The co-ed raquetball championship is still up for grabs. The top teams are Grahm-Ramger, Schoultz-Scott, Ernhart-Baggett, and Caputa-Costner.

Also still in play is the chess tournament. This week, Lynn Brown and Richard Smock advanced to the finals, degeating Sutton Brown and Charles Alsmeyer, respectively.

But as these activities terminate, planning and practice for Spring intramurals. Action next term will center around the softball competition of some nine teams already.

Anyone interested in participating in these activities, or in initiating other spring competition should contact Gary Thibideau.

continued from page 2, col. 4

Play Reaction

been a gold mine for critics of this type. It should be said that however useful a tool biography becomes, it "serves history not itself." In the final analysis, O'Neill's characters transcent time limitations and become universal archtypes.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

CREATIVE PORTRAIT WORKSHOP
Here is the opportunity of a lifetime! A "Creative Portrait" Session in "Mod-Decor" Portraiture. Today's teens want something of their own; a type of portraiture that portrays them as they really think and feel. YOU ARE INVITED TO TAKE PART. NO CHARGE OR OBLIGATION. CALL 982-6703 FOR INFORMATION ON TIME, SPECIAL ATTIRE, SPORTS EQUIPMENT, AND HOBBY PROPS.
LEE WILKINSON, PHOTOGRAPHER
WILKINSON STUDIO
2308 NEW WALLAND HWY. MARYVILLE, TENN.

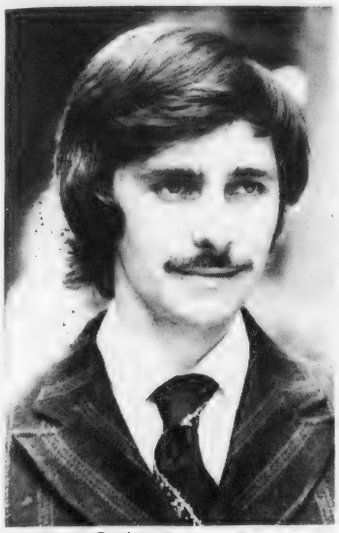
BUDDY'S BAR-B-Q PIT
Featuring Hickory-Cooked Pork, Beef, Ribs And Char-Broiled Steaks And Hamburgers.
FREE 15¢ DRINK
WITH ANY PURCHASE
WITH THIS COUPON
Use our convenient Drive-In Window for pick-up orders.
373 HANNUM STREET, ALCOA

Cover Girl Shoes.
They make heads turn.

Zeppelin
— Blue
— Brown
$18.99

America
— White Patent
$19.99
Southern shoes

NOW SHOWING
Cinemette South Theatres
Dogwood
TODAY-TUES.
McQUEEN / MacGRAW
THE GETAWAY
A SAM PECKINPAH FILM
FROM FIRST ARTISTS
PG
Shows 7:00 - 9:10



Capitol
WED.-SAT.
ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN WONDERLAND
A RAINBOW ADVENTURE FILM PRODUCED BY JOSEF SHAFTEL
TODD-AO 35

STARRING Peter Sellers
Featuring Fiona Fullerton as "Alice"
It's unforgettable fun for adults and children alike as the world's third best selling novel explodes to life....
Shows 5:00 - 7:00 - 9:00
ALSO
Rated (R)
Product of American National Enterprises Inc.

Parkway
TODAY-SUN.
"Pictures Are Wild In The Street"
ALSO
"Wild Angels"
(R) Color

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 58, No. 18 | Maryville College, Maryville Tennessee | 6 April 1973

Mr. Robert Bonham

Dr. David Young

MC EDUCATORS HONORED

Eight Maryville College teachers have been nominated Outstanding Educators of America for 1973. They are Dr. Arda Walker, Dr. David Young, Mr. Robert Bonham, Mr. Harry Price, Dr. Elizabeth Fowler, Mr. Thomas Pureff, Dr. Ester Stine, and Dr. David Cartlidge.

Outstanding Educators of America is an annual awards program honoring distinguished men and women for their exceptional service, achievements, and leadership in the field of education. Nominees are chosen by officials of the college or university, and are chosen on the basis of their talents in the classroom, contributions to research, administrative abilities, civic service, and professional recognition.

ACC REVIEWS VISITATION PROGRAM

The All-College Council held its first meeting of the spring term on Wednesday afternoon, 28 March 1973, in discussion of a report on the present visitation procedure and its problems.

The "Review of Visitation Program," submitted by the Community Standards and Residential Life Committee, was thoroughly discussed. The review revealed to the Council several basic weaknesses in the present procedure, including some physical deficiences and a deterioration of student attitude toward the present procedure. Dr. Joseph Copeland said that it is quite obvious that the present program is "not a perfectly functioning system." The Council accepted the recommendations of the review after considerable deliberation by consensus for incorporation into a report for the Board of Directors.

The Council also discussed and approved by consensus the Communications Committee recommendation that imbursement of the Echo business manager be determined by the Student Aid Committee.

Other business included a progress report on the Fred Hope Carnival, and an adoption of a visitation procedure for Pearsons Hall next year.

ACC Elections Set

Today (April 6) is the last day for nominations for ACC to be made. All nominations must be turned in at Post Office by 4:30.

All nominees will be introduced to students on 11 April at CIV. The election will be held 13 April. The entire campus will vote for faculty, student, staff, & administrative members of ACC for next year. The voting will take place on Friday during break, 10:30-11:00, in the Student Center and during the noon and supper meals outside the dining hall. All students must present their ID in order to vote.

Fred Hope Carnival Plans Complete

The annual Fred Hope Carnival will be held in the Chapel-Theatre complex from 5:30-10:00 p.m. tomorrow. All proceeds from this year carnival will go to an orphanage in Nicaragua to aid children who were victims of the Nicaraguan Earth Quake.

After graduating from Maryville College in 1906, Fred Hope became interested in missions and organized fund-raising campaigns for work in China and elsewhere. After working one year at the mission offices in New York and attending seminary, he left for a mission in Elat, Cameroon, Africa.

Fred Hope was not a preacher: he was a doer for people. He built schools, churches, and various industrial plants, as well as, introducing modern farming to Africa.

In recognition of his work in Africa, the college, which he had served as trustee, honored Fred Hope with a doctorate. In addition, the college began a fund in his memory which would be used to further international understanding.

This year a variety of games, events, and activity booths sponsored by various clubs and organizations on campus are being offered. A special event will be the naming of "Mr. Wonderful." Several names have been submitted and will be voted on at the carnival itself. Other events will include: faculty-stud duels with water balloons and shaving cream; junk car smash; cake walk; pie throwing; live entertainment; and clowns, bands, and shows.

The Realities of a Choir Tour

by Patti Shelton

The Maryville College Concert Choir is back from "sweeping the Midwest"—although chairwoman Hurlbut was actually the only one with a broom. Naturally, there are many unfounded rumors about the tour flying around the campus and I'd like to put a stop to them.

First of all, Mary Kay Sanders has not been signed to play for the Chicago Bears although she did show great promise on the parking lot in Galesburg, Illinois.

It is also untrue that Lana Grubis was arrested as a pusher in Loveland, Ohio. I'm sure everything will be cleared up as soon as we discover exactly

Continued on page 4

Free Concert

Blackearth Percussion Group to Perform

For a funfilled evening of FREE entertainment, you shouldn't miss the professional new music ensemble to be heard here soon at MC. The ensemble is called the Blackearth Percussion Group and will perform at 8:15 p.m. on 10 April in the Music Hall. There will be no admission charge for students with I.D. card.

The Blackearth consists of four young men interested in raising the performance level of avant-garde music and to deepen its understanding by the public. These four men are Richard Kvistad, Allen Otte, Christopher Braun, and Garry Kvistad. Their programs include non-traditional type music, such as contemporary styles, works including electronic music, theatre and multi-media productions, graphic notation with improvisation, serial music, jazz and audience participation.

Richard Kvistad has played with the Pittsburgh Symphony, American Wind Symphony and the Chicago Lyric Opera Orchestra. He also teaches in the public school system. Kvistad hopes "to bring a strong and direct message to (his) fellow man" through the work of his group.

Otte has played with the Toledo Symphony Orchestra and other professional groups. He enjoys performing with Blackearth because all four musicians are committed towards similar goals.

Braun is the youngest member of Blackearth and became very interested in jazz and contemporary music after studying drums.

Gary Kvistad had had formal training in traditional music and has performed with the Grant Park Symphony Orchestra, Eric Leinsdorf, Gunther Schuller and other well known groups and conductors. Due to his interest in electronic music and film-making, his techniques are incorporated into the groups' performances. Gary is also the originator of Blackearth. When he first developed the group he wanted to follow his own musical statement without adhering to the firmly established trends of other music organizations.

Northern Illinois University, Dekalb, Illinois is the present home of the Blackearth Percussion Group. They will be here at MC April 10 at 8:15 p.m. in the Music Hall. Why not take advantage of this free performance and come listen to this unique group?! It's something you won't want to miss and it's FREE!

New Editor WANTED

Applications are now being accepted for the Editor of the 1973-74 Chilhowean. Anyone may apply for this position from any class. If interested, please see Mrs. Clyde Ussery in the Communications Office now.

EDITORIAL

There are Prisoners in Canada, too!

How can a nation end a dishonorable war with an honorable peace? This is the question that loomed in the minds of many American's after President Nixon's announcement concerning the conclusion of the Vietnam War.

Mr. Nixon's announcement came after months of negotiations which brought to a close a war which has been more highly disputed than any other in U. S. history. It was a war whose own veterans have denounced it, a war which the American people despised, and a war which was never even formally declared by Congress. Against this background, how can Mr. Nixon now speak convincingly of "honor?"

Thousands died on the battlefields, and thousands more cannot return for another reason—they are still being punished for publicly declaring what most of us knew to be true: that the war itself was wrong.

There are 65,000 of these "forgotten prisoners," not the "few hundred" that Mr. Nixon mentioned. These men had a very difficult decision to make, and such actions as the abolishment of the draft and the end of the end of the war seem to be indications that the country now agrees with their attitude toward war. The question remains, why are 65,000 men being punished for their protection and foresight?

Until Mr. Nixon faces up to this question, until he admits that U. S. involvement in the war was a mistake, and until not only the prisoners in Vietnam but the prisoners in Canada are returned as well, his talk of "honor" will fall on many deaf ears.

Letters to the Echo

Open Letter to the Students

To the Student Body:

As the new editor, I earnestly urge each and every student of this campus to participate in voicing their opinions, thoughts, and sentiments through the Echo.

It will be editorial policy to publish any letter to the Echo which justly and amply handles a topic. The topic is your choice; the Echo is your sounding board; and I must make the decision to print your letter. Develop your thoughts.

There is the fact that I, as editor must know who is writing the letter. But it is not necessary to print your name.

The success and the future of the Echo is not only my responsibility but it is also the responsibility of this "community" of students, faculty, and staff members, even with all their differences and similarities of attitudes.

I will be as open and honest about the issues, academic dilemmas, and problems of this campus as my own conscience will allow. I will say what is on my mind. Will you?

I remain. . .

Lyn Stanley
Editor

A Question of Priorities for MC

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to comments that I have heard being kicked around a bit by several members of the administration and staff. It is simply in regard to "change" at Maryville College, Many high-ups, it appears, are of the notion, one can't live with the rules of the college, then one doesn't belong here. Even if one tries to change the rules, one can't because that just isn't the way the college has done things in the past. Members of the ACC know perhaps a bit more about this, since two council members expressed the aforementioned notion in a discussion of the performance of the Visitation system. It seems to me that perhaps some people had better reorder their priorities.

What does this college hold sacred? The education of today's student or clutching to modes of life which are inapplicable to our present situation? I sincerely hope that the former assumption is correct. If it is not, and this institution does indeed consider the rules of the past more important than the education of the present, then maybe we as students better reconsider our situation. In all sincerity, who could live under those conditions? In closing, I urge those who believe that the institution is more important than the student to struggle more earnestly with the problem of "change" within the "democratic" system, instead of resorting to this reactionary rhetoric to which may of us have been subjected.

Soar on,
Gilbert A. Nicholas
Jr. Class Rep., ACC

STAFF

Editor – Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.

Lay-out Editor – Sarah Winbigler

Faculty Advisor – Dr. Elizabeth Fowler

Business Manager – Allen Bunge

SPEAKING ACADEMICALLY

by Carolyn Blair

The new editor of the Echo is out to prove his broadmindedness by offering a few inches of his valuable space each week to a dean. While he has placed no restrictions on subject matter, he doubtless expects something within the confines of the academic. I welcome the opportunity, partly to pacify the frustrated journalist lurking deep inside me, partly to comment on what is happening academically at Maryville and elsewhere.

Often as I read of experiments going on at other colleges, I would like to discuss them with others. Frequently I receive questions or suggestions for changes that should interest the community as a whole. Again, in spite of all attempts at communication, I discover an ignorance about important features of our academic program. Through this column therefore I hope to be able to explain, to clarify, and, more important, to stimulate discussion and debate.

Questions during the past week about the individualized major have provided me with a starting point for this week's column. Although the Catalog covers the purpose and requirements of the individualized major, it does not answer specifically the question I hear most often: "If I am thinking about an individualized major, what is the first step?"

The best place to start is with the Registrar's Office, asking for the mimeographed material on procedure. Department chairmen and members of the Individualized Major Committee, of which Dr. Fowler is chairman, are also supplied with this material, but the Registrar's Office is probably the most convenient source. The sheet you will receive there carefully outlines seven steps, beginning with the preparation of a formal statement of rationale.

Occasionally I talk with a student who seems to be trying to avoid some of the requirements of a standard major or prefers a smorgasbord approach. If the individualized major is to have strength, the motivation must be positive, not negative. That is, it should be linked with vocational aims or provide a means for integrating two or more disciplines in which you have particular interest.

Suppose you want a career in physical therapy. Begin with a check of catalogs of schools offering graduate training in physical therapy. The UT Catalog, for example outlines both required and recommended undergraduate courses for its Pre-Physical Therapy Curriculum. All of these courses are available to you here under an individualized major program.

You may be interested in city planning, hospital administration, technical editing, or other vocations for which there are no specific undergraduate majors. Here again consulting graduate school catalogs, talking with people in the field, and getting the advice of faculty in closely related areas will enable you to build a strong individual program.

Although we do not have a major in Christian education, you can prepare for a church vocation with an appropriate combination of courses in such disciplines as religion and philosophy, psychology, sociology, the fine arts, education, and recreation. The Catalog description of the three science programs designed as focal points for individualized majors lays the groundwork for you in those areas, but leaves room for individual choices and emphases.

Before you allow yourself to feel limited by Catalog listings, remember the individualized reading courses, the two courses in independent study, and the opportunities for field work and independent research during the Interim. With imagination, ingenuity, and careful planning, you can write your own ticket for the future.

Echo has new editor

Lyn Stanley has been selected by the Communications Committee to be The Highland Echo's new editor. This decision was reached shortly before spring break.

A sophomore from Highstown, New Jersey, Lyn is an English major and president of Circle K. In addition to some experience on his high school paper's sports staff, Lyn has just completed a course under Dr. Fowler on advanced composition with particular emphasis on journalism.

As editor, Lyn declares the Echo's purpose to be "an open student publication which will only voice what the students will have it voice." To help the staff be as representative as possible, Lyn is increasing its members. He says he is "looking for new, versatile people," and that if anyone is interested, "all one has to do is see him. We will always need new tallent."

Mann Presents Recital

A Maryville College graduate, mezzo-soprano Margaret Mann, returned to the College to be presented with pianist Sallie Schoen in a guest recital on 30 March.

Miss Mann, who is a native of West Virginia received the Master of Music degree from Northwestern University.

She has sung roles in such operas as Madame Butterfly and Menoitti's The Consul and Amahl and the Night Visitors.

During the 1972 season, Miss Mann was an apprentice artist with the Santa Fe Opera Company. As a recent vocal winner of the Society of American Musicians contest, she is to be sponsored by that froup in a debut recital in April.

China Expert To Speak At CIV

Dr. James T. C. Liu, Professor of East Asian Studies at Princeton University, will speak at the CIV program at 9:20 a.m., Wednesday, 11 April in Wilson Chapel. His address will deal with contemporary China.

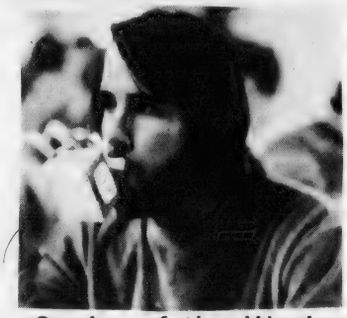
Dr. Liu has recently visited mainland China.

A native of Shanghai, China, Dr. Liu came to the United States in 1948 and he has been active in the fields of history and education in this country for the past twenty five years. His special historical interest is in the Sung period in China, the period before the Mongols. His books on this period include Reform in Sung China and Ou–hang–Hsiu. As an educator, Dr. Liu has served on the faculties at the University of Pittsburgh, Stanford, and Princton.

Dr. Liu took part in the International Military Tribunal in Tokyo, 1946-8, which was the Asian counterpart of the Nuremberg "war crimes" trail.

Most recently, he has received a senior fellowship grant to do research on the Sung period in China from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Dr. Liu will be accompanied on his visit to Maryville by his wife, Dr. H. C. Wang Liu, and expert in Chinese sociology, and their daughter Karen.



Ainslie Added to MC Faculty

Ken Ainslie, a recent graduate of MC, is now teaching Sociology courses for the college. Ken was entreated by Dean Blair and Mr. Olsen of the Sociology Department to teach Siology 201 during spring term. In addition to this course, he is also the advisor for six independent studies.

Immediately after graduation, Ken began work under a government grant to conduct research on the causes of student drop-outs at MC. The program is a sociological-oriented survey on some of the aspects of academic dismissals, transfers, and other miscellaneous problems in relationship to student drop-outs.

Ken regards this teaching experience as worthwhile preparation for graduate school and as an excellent opportunity for him to both teach and learn the subject matter. When asked for his initial reaction, his feeling was one of fright.

He feels that there are no formalities in the distinction between instructor and student in his class. "It's just Ken!," he says. He is striving to make it a good course with hopes that everyone involved will obtain an adequate general concept of Sociology.

Senior of the Week

This week the Echo features Carl, "Buddy," Pierce. Buddy is a Political Science major from Rehobeth Beach, Delaware. He has been active throughout his college career in the intramural programs, Alpha Sigma, and is the President of the graduating class this year. Congratulations Buddy for your efforts as a student here at MC.

Who will be next?

Maryville Menu

April 7 STUDENT RECITAL: Music Hall, 11:00 a.m.

FRED HOPE CARNIVAL: Chapel-Theater complex, 5:30-10:30 p.m.

ROCK CONCERT & DANCE: 9 miles off Broadway down Montvale Road. Features "Deliverance." 7:00 p.m., $1.50.

April 8 FACULTY RECITAL: Dr. James A. Bloy, organist. St. Andrews Episcopal Church, following a 4:00 p.m. Evensong.

VESPERS: Brief worship service led by Doug Chase, followed by Don Elia's seminar from January Meetings, entitled "Turning In to the People Around You." Little Chapel, 7:00 p.m.

April 10 PERFORMING ARTISTS CONCERTS: The Blackearth Percussion Group. Music Hall, 8:15 p.m. Free with I. D. card.

April 11 COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Dr. James Liu, China expert. Wilson Chapel, 9:20 a.m.

DR. JAMES T. C. LIU will elcture Non-Western classes in the Music Hall, 8:00 a.m.

April 12 JUNIOR RECITAL: Linda King, Pianist, assisted by Dana Rule and Jane Pierce, duet. Music Hall, 7:00 p.m.

ALPHA GAMMA SIGMA RECEPTION FOR DEAN'S LIST: FAC lounge, 6:30-8:00 p.m.

April 13 MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE: Othello, a film starring Sir Lawrence Olivier. Theatre, 8:15 p.m., $2.00.

AT AREA THEATERS:

Dogwood: John Wayne in Train Robbers (through Tuesday, April 10).

Capitol: Antony Quinn in Across 110th Street (through Tuesday, April 10).

SPORTS

Baseball Season Gets Underway

The Maryville College baseball team started their 1973 regular season schedule this week with two double-headers. Early season flaws were responsible for the fact that the Scots could only show a record of 1-3, as they were swept by U. T. Chattanooga, and split with Bryan.

Monday's games at Chattanooga saw the Scots make a total of seven errors as the Scots lost 4-3 and 7-4. Earl McMahan and Paul Vigiano scored back-tp-back runs for Maryville in the first game, with Vigiano scoring again later in the game, but Rob Randall was unable to contain the Mocassins' attack. In the second game, the Scots scored three runs in the third inning as Jim Lester, Leon Hart, and Jon Wright scored, but Chattanooga's four runs in the same inning spoiled Maryville's chances.

The double-header, played at Maryville on Tuesday, saw Dave Spradlin pitch a strong first game as he gave up only two hits and struck out 11. The only two runs the Scots needed were scored by Hart. The second game was a high scoring affair as the Scots lost 7-6. Lester and McMahan scored two runs apiece along with one by Paul Shultz. In addition, Dave Clinton became the first Scot to homer this season when he connected with a long shot to centerfield in the third inning. The big point in the game for Bryan came in the fifth inning when they scored three runs. The Scots were able to come back with two later on, but the damage was done.

This week's schedule includes a double-header against U. T. Chattanooga tomorrow at 2:00 p.m., a game at U. T. Knoxville on Tuesday, and two games against Shippenburg next Thursday and Friday.

Tracksters Win Opener

The Maryville College harriers, led by the impressive early season performances of shotputter Rick Livernoise, freshman miler John Marley, and javelin thrower Mike Haas, scored a 66-43 home victory Tuesday afternoon over a visting Knoxville College.

The meet was highlighted by strong first place performances in events including the 440, 880, mile and three mile runs, as well as the javelin throw, shot put, discus and high jump.

In the running events, the Scot tracksters had fine wins recorded by freshman Ernie Popp in the 440, veteran Doug Chase in the 880, Marley in the mile run, and in what appeared to be a virtual dead heat in the three mile run between distancemen Rocky Brown and Buddy Lewis, the former was credited with the win.

In the field events, it was double winner Livernoise who led the way as he captured both the shot put and discus throw, while Haas and Jeff Hamilton collected victories in the javelin throw and high jump competition respectively.

Other Notable second and third place finishes were turned in by freshmen Mike Osborne and Tom Orr in the broad jump, Doug Robinson in the shot put, and Hamilton and Osborne again in the 220 yard dash.

In their next outing the Scot trackmen will be traveling to tangle with the Tigers of Sewanne on April 11th.

Netters Begin Campaign

The Maryville College tennis team opened its season Wednesday, 28 March, with a solid 9-0 thrashing of Lincoln Memorial University on the Scots' home court. Coach Kardatzke then optimistically packed his crew off to Emory & Henry College Friday, 30 March, only to suffer a 4-5 loss.

M.C. easily handled the LMU team, winning all six singles and all three doubles matches. Only Steve Rael was hard-pressed. LMU's Rusty Easterday forced Rael into three sets before succumbing.

Emory & Henry posted Maryville's first regular season loss. Steve Rael and Sutton Brown were the only Scot winners in singles play. Maryville's doubles teams of Vessels-Rael and Brown-Gaunt defeated their E&H opponents, but it was not enough to salvage a victory.

M.C.'s tennis team returned from their spring tour sporting a 3-3-1 slate. The netmen toppled St. Leo College (8-1), Mercer College (6-3), and Kalamazoo (forfeit). Three losses came at the hands of Columbus College (2-7), Eckerd College (4-5), and Valdosta State College (0-9). A match versus Shorter College was rained out.

Steve Rael, Craig Larsen, and Sutton Brown tied for the lead in singles victories on the tour with three each, while the doubles teams of Brown-Gaunt and Willis-Larsen captured three wins apiece.

Engaged Girl Party

What: Engaged Girl Party (Welcome Wagon)

When: 9 April 1973, (Monday Evening) 7:30 p.m.

Where: Holiday Inn Restaurant-Alcoa

For Further Information you May Call: Mary Shumate, Hostess 983-3374

ACC OMBUDSMAN TO MEET BOARD

Last fall, a petition requesting that a direct line of communication between the students and the board of directors be established was signed by over one-half the student body and presented to the board. The directors referred it to the All College Council where it was decided to schedule time during the spring board meeting for a presentation by a representative of the students.

The student members of the ACC selected Patricia Lloyd to be this representative. Her role is to give the board an idea of what MC students are concerned about, relative to any and all aspects of the college. This is the students' chance to have their creative ideas taken directly to the place where final dicisions are made. Anyone who has a thought, suggestion, complaint, proposal, question, etc. that they would like communicated to the board of directors, contact Patricia in Davis dorm or Box 2423.

Choir Tour

continued from page 1

what those "aspirin" were that made Judy Loeffler act so strange.

It has been said that Anna Louise Turner and Robert Ponton are planning to collaborate on a sequel to Xaviera. This is not true: they never could agree on what would go into the first chapter.

Not for an instant did the choir contemplate changing its name to the Little Italy Singers, even after our seventh meal of lasagna. However, we did consider becoming a "chamber" music group after the third time the toilet of the bus backed up.

Contrary to popular opinion, Fred Foust did not receive the Philip Steele award because of his resemblance to our affiliate artist. Fred's hair isn't dark enough.

The most unfair story going around is that the Silver Eagle was infested with lizards this year. There was only one lizard and he sat quietly on Kenneth Atchley's lap for the entire trip. Or Kenneth sat on his lap, or something. . . .

Actually, it was all a rumor that the choir went on tour. We really spent two weeks in Argentina looking for the Kleenex factory. Right, Robert?

Rhodes To Study At Duke

Dr. Gale Rhodes, assistant professor of chemistry, has been invited to attend a summer course in Nuclear and Electron Magnetic Resonance at Duke University. He is one of 20 college educators who are being sponsored by the National Science Foundation this summer.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

Guidance Personnal to visit MC

The Admissions Office has planned two Guidance Personnel Conferences, for which high school guidance counselors from various parts of the eastern United States will be guests on campus. These two conferences are to be held the weekends of April 12-14, and April 26-28.

The following high schools will be represented for the first conference (April 12-14), and we encourage you to check this list for your hometown alma mater: Parkway West High, Ballwin, MO; Miami Killian High, Miami, FL; Pompano Beach High, Pompano Beach, FL; Montgomery Blair High, Silver Spring, MD; Washington-Lee High, Arlington, VA; New Trier East High, Winnetka, IL; North Hills Sr. High, Pittsburgh, PA; Westmont Hilltop Sr. High, Johnstown, PA; Annandale High, Annandale, NJ; Hialeah-Miami Lakes Sr. High, Hialeah, FL; South Broward High, Hollywood, FL; Dover High, Dover, NJ; Piper High, Sunrise Village, FL; Monessen High, Monessen, PA; Burlington Township High, Burlington, NJ; and Millburn Sr. High, Millburn, NJ.

The counselors' schedule for the weekend will include a chance to talk with students on Friday, from 11:10 a.m.-12:30. Anyone interested in talking with a counselor is invited to be at the student center at this time.

NOW OPEN
IN MIDLAND CENTER
The Sound Post
Maryville-Alcoa's First Audio Speciality Store Offering Sales, Service, And Installation Of Quality Stereo Components. 984-6960
SANSUI JBL FISHER DYNACO SUPEREX SONY

What are you doing after school?

There are plenty of jobs in the want ads. Unfortunately, almost all the good ones ask for experienced help.

So you ask yourself, how can I get experience if no one will ever hire me? One answer lies in today's Army.

We'll hire you at a good salary to start.

Name your choice of training.

Your food is free.

Thirty days' paid vacation.

No doctor or dentist bills.

Now the facts are before you.

Want to know more?

See your nearest Army Recruiter. . .
Joe Medlin Or Dave Cagle
Doug Shewmaker
217 E. BROADWAY, MARYVILLE 982-5515

Today's Army wants to join you.

ACC FACES DILEMMA OF VOTE

In its second regular session of the Spring term on Wednesday afternoon, 11 April 1973, The All College Council considered the recommendation by the Community Standards and Residential Life Committee on Alcohol, a proposal of two new majors and a mathematics core requirement, and heard a progress report on the Walk-for-Development by Reverend Harrison.

On the alcohol proposal, the Council found itself in a dilemma of voting for this issue. As Dr. Richardson pointed out early in the meeting, the council must "look at the total picture." In discussing this issue, the Council had before them excerpts from a government report entitled Drug Use In America: Problem in Perspective. Dr. Copeland summed up the Council's problem entirely when he stated that he was "at present baffled."

The discussion was rigorous, lengthy, and finally resulted in the Council moving to form a small committee, which is to be totally representative, of the Council to study the implications and implementations of the present standard as stated in the College regulation, the proposal as submitted in concurrence with civil laws, and any possible alternatives to the alcohol question. This solution was reached by consensus of the Council with the explicit aim to work for a solution with the utmost speed.

The Instructional Program Committee submitted two majors and the Tremont major met no oposition. The math core requirement, which can be substituted for two of the present foreign language requirements, was passed also.

Reverend Harrison gave a report on the Walk-for-Development scheduled for 12 May 1973. He earnestly urged the Council to participate in the Walk.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 58, No. 19 | Maryville College, Maryville Tennessee | 13 April 1973

Mr. Dean Rusk

Rusk Speaks to MC

Dean Rusk, former Secretary of State and currently a professor of law at the University of Georgia, pronounced in CIV on Friday, 6 April 1973, that today's generation of students have no place to hide from the problems of today. He advocated that "action on all levels" must be inspired by active student insistence to solve the many problems.

Mr. Rusk commented on many of today's trends of progress, problems, and issues before opening himself up to the questions of MC students.

Immediately students asked him questions on his views on giving aid to the North Vietnam, the question of amnesty, and the possibility of any kind of future involvement in Southeast Asis of Americans.

On the question of amnesty, he said with a touch of humor that there will be an action taken which "some will call amnesty."

MC receives bequest

Maryville College has received a bequest in excess of seventy thousand dollars from the estate of Zanna Staater. The bequest is to establish the Staater Family Memorial.

CARNIVAL IS A SUCCESS

by Mike Montgomery

A constant and eager crowd braved the drizzly weather last Saturday evening

A constant and eager crowd braved the drizzly weather last Saturday evening to attend the Fred Hope Carnival held in the area of the college chapel. The crowd, ranging from MC students to local citizens and schoolchildren, played, watched, laughed, and enjoyed all the fun. The college's students, faculty, and staff volunteered their self for the many activities. Most importantly, a significant amount of money was raised for an overseas orphanage. Despite the weather, the Carnival was a success by any account.

The Carnival's proceeds, totaling about one hundred dollars, will be added to other contributions to the Fred Hope Fund and donated to a Nicarauguan orphanage to care for recent earthquake victims. The fifty dollars raised by the Carnival's concession stand will be used for local community-help projects.

The Fred Hope Fund will continue to accept donations for the next few weeks. Collection boxes have been placed in the library, the post office, and Anderson Hall.

The most popular activity of the evening was the traditional Cakewalk, called by Chemistry Professor Dr. Tabereaux. The cakes were donated primarily by faculty wives.

Voting for the "Mr. Wonderful" contest was intensive throughout the evening. Seventeen males entered the contest and the winner, announced and kissed by Homecoming Queen Delores Ziegler at Wednesday's CIV, was Dr. Robert C. Ramger of the Biology Department.

Student-faculty duels with water pistols, shaving cream, and water-jet surgical tubing offered entertainment similar in manner to medieval bear-baiting. The duels were sponsored by Alpha Gamma Sigma, the college's honorary scholastic society.

Musical entertainment was offered by Crawford, a rock band composed of MC students, and by Jim Colpitts, senior music major, on the jazz piano.

A variety of other booths, including Chi Bets's "Dart Your Favorite Professor," balloon shaving, and special events, such as magic shows and puppet shows, also comprised the Carnival. Helium balloons were available and a roving clown hawked grab bags.

According to Chaplain Dick Harrison, who helped organize the Carnival, the attendance and overall success for the evening was much greater than last year.

SURVIVAL KIT IS REAL

In Beyond Freedom and Dignity, B. F. Skinner says that survival is the only value a civilization will be judged by in the end. We can't deny that survival is the ultimate goal, yet the quality of the survival should be of great concern.

Most of you found little slips of (recycled) paper in your post office boxes this week asking questions. Undoubtedly most of these slips wound up in trash cans. So it goes. But what they are asking is what kind of life do you want.

As Americans, we consume more of the world's resources than any other people. As middle class users we consume more of our nation's resources than most other people. Sacrifice is an alien word to most of us. Yet we will—not possibly but definitely—have to choose between immediate voluntary decreased consumption or future compulsory deprivation. By the year 2000,

Americans will be using 900 billion

continued on page 4

ACC Elections are TODAY

ACC ELECTIONS ARE BEING HELD TODAY' VOTE NOW TO VOICE CHOICE OF WHO REPRESENTS YOU! IF YOU DON'T KNOW WHO IS RUNNING' GLANCE AT THE THUMBNAIL SKETCHES ON PAGE 4. YOU MAY VOTE IN THE STUDENT CENTER DURING BREAK, 10:30-11:00, AND OUTSIDE THE DINING HALL DURING THE NOON AND SUPPER MEALS.

Othello to appear

At 8:15 p.m. on 13-14 April 1973, the film Othello will be presented in the Theatre. The film stars Sir Laurence Olivier.

The film's purpose was to bring Sir Laurence's performance in the National Theatre of Great Britain to a wide audience. Olivier commented on the process by which this film was made by stating: "This is not a photographed stage performance. It is a film of performance, shot against backgrounds offering as little distraction as possible from the intentions of Shakespeare—or our performance of them." To maintain the dramatic flow of performance the film was photographed by three cameras.

Tickets are available for both performances at the Theatre office and at the door. Admission is $2.00 for adults.

Best to Speak

Mr. Edwin J. Best, a member of the Maryville College Board of Directors, will speak at the CIV program on Wednesday, April 18. He will deal with the topic, "Who Was Here Before You Came—the Pre-History of East Tennessee."

A resident of Maryville, Mr. Best is employed by the Tennessee Valley Authority as a budget analyst.

Other organizations Mr. Best is involved in are the East Tennessee Historical Society, the Tennessee Archaeological society, and the American Ordianance Association. He is also a Lieutennant Colonel in the ordinance corps of the U. S. army reserve.

from the editor's desk

Get Back To The Basic MC

It is time for Maryville College, and every other liberal arts institution for that fact, to settle down to instructing today's student in the simple and fundamental disciplines of study. Once a student masters the discipline of his own mind, then there is virtually no problem, no situation, or no job in the outside world to which he cannot adapt himself.

MC has a tendency to drift away from these simple, but yet so important disciplines of study with many of their new, progressive majors. Just recently, the Instructional Program Committee proposed a Recreation major to be considered by the All College Council. As usual, the ACC passed this new major without any problem. Granted there may be a demand for such a major, but Maryville College is not the place for a person who needs such a highly specialized education to work on a playground.

Another fine example of this drift is the many new majors incorporated into MC's curriculum last year—for instance, the Program in Behavior and the Program in Science, Values, and Society. These new majors are justified to someone everyday, but what it amounts to is that the progressive outlooks and trends at MC are merely selling points to education. This is a business, but it is also a business of supplying the tools of learning to a student who wants an education.

There is no better way to learn how many behaves than through his literature and his history. But if today's student finds himself unable to conform to the liberal arts disciplines, then there is always the route of an Individualized major.

The problem arises with this drift in the student's own mind. More often than not, a student will pursue these other routes because he is looking for a way out of a disciplined major, or he is not sure of his own mind.

These are real problems to a college student, but the college should not let the student slide off to the side until he can make his mind up. Whether the student will admit it or not, he sometimes needs a word of advice.

Maryville College should lay the foundations of disciplining the mind through a strong liberal arts program—which they are doing through many of the core requirements. A strong liberal arts background, as Dean Rusk pointed out, is the best preparation for the future.

Lay the foundations, then integrate the mind with the studies of man, his behavior, his society, and his values.

Letters to the Echo

Stine is an Outstanding Educator

To the Editor:

Unless I have received incorrect information, both Don and Esther Stine are included in the Outstanding Educators. I was dismayed to find that Don Stine's name was not mentioned. Even though Don is no longer teaching here at Maryville, I would hope that he could be recognized as an Outstanding Educator, since he was nominated while teaching here.

This being on my mind, I communicate it to you.

Shalom,

Dr. David Young

C. O. to Amnesty

To the Editor:

In reference to the editorial of 6 April 1973, I would like to make a few brief comments. Though I believe that most Americans can sympathize with the view that all should be done "to bring us together" after the conclusion of the Vietnam War, I wonder how far these Americans are willing to go in order to bring harmony to the U. S. A. The question of amnesty for war-time deserters or draft-dodgers to me raises a fundamental point. Do we still hold respect for the law as a worthy ideal. Those seeking amnesty made their decision not to serve with what some would call a high degree of courage. I say make them face the penalties they assumed with an equal degree of courage. If we do allow these people to go away unpunished, then how can we expect others to hold respect for the laws? President Nixon has said that to grant amnesty to these evaders would be to make the deaths of U. S. servicemen be sacrificed in vain. Whether or not one agrees with this is a personal matter. I think, however, that most people in the United States need no soul-searching to see that those who decide to violate draft laws deserve not a free ticket back home but instead deserve the penalties they have courageously earned.

Conscientious Objector to Amnesty

As editor, I want to personally apologize that there was no by-line on last week's editorial. The editorial entitled There are Prisoners in Canada, too! is to the credit of Sarah Winbigler.

editor-raymond 1. stanley, jr. — lay-out editor-sarah winbigler faculty advisor-dr. elizabeth fowler — business manager-allen bunge writers—n. bostock, c. boughman, c. craven, c d'aquila, s. douglas, l. hanson, p. hicks, r. kaniper, b. lewis, m. montgomery, w. rutledge, p. shelton, f. strohl

Comps are here!

Comprehensive Esaminations for all graduating seniors will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, 17-18 April, beginning at 1:30 p.m. each afternoon. On Tuesday, seniors will meet in the Chapel where the Undergraduate Record Examination (URE's) will be administered in all disciplines for which the URE is available. Each senior should come prepared with two No. 2 sharpened pencils and his social security number.

On Wednesday afternoon the examinations will be administered by the departments in the place specified by each. Any senior with question about the arrangements should consult his department chairman.

SPEAKING ACADEMICALLY

On Rusk and Attrition Rate

by Carolyn Blair

The visit of Dean Rusk to the campus last week will surely remain for those who heard him a highlight of the year. A man of his stature seems to call forth the best in us. The CIV audience was responsive, and the questions were thoughtful, providing a focal point for some of his most provocative remarks. If the last question, regarding the kind of education one needs today, had been planted, it could not have provided a more effective device for bringing it all together.

Dr. Rusk's testimony to the value of a liberal education as the best preparation for the future gains significance when one realizes that he himself is the product of a small liberal arts, church related college. Unfortunately Maryville cannot claim him as she can his brother and sister, but we share much with Davidson, the college he did attend, besides our Presbyterian heritage.

Although this is not the time to move into that open-ended question of what a liberal education is or of what it means to have strong roots in the Christian tradition, I cannot resist pointing to Dean Rusk as an outstanding example of the fusion of a disciplined, informed mind with moral commitment. Maryville has produced more than her share of such people in the past, and I see many more every day in the embryonic stage.

These people understood well, I think, the point of Rusk's use of the quotation from Omar Bradley: "The time has come to chart our course by the stars and not by the light of each passing ship." What a world of difference it would make on this campus if we all understood the significance of those words and acted accordingly.

But on to a specific matter I promised to deal with this week: Following his graduation in December, we asked Ken Ainslie to conduct a study for the Admissions Office to help determine why students leave Maryville. Because of the increasing attrition rate over the country and the prevalence of transferitis, much literature is becoming available on the subject.

In the course of his research, Ken found a questionnaire that is being tried at other colleges. He and Judy Evans, a junior sociology major who has chosen to work in the same area for her independent study, asked for and received permission to use the questionnaire here. In brief, it is designed to measure the student's response to his environment and to indicate sources of conflict or strain.

In addition, Ken will be distributing a questionnaire to a random sample of students. I want to urge all students who receive these questionnaires to cooperate fully so that we can have an accurate picture of student attitudes. The more complete the response, the better basis we will have for making such changes as seem to be needed.

Survey To Be Given

Approximately 500 Maryville College students are being asked this week to participate in a study which examines a question of significance to colleges and universities across the nation, that of student awareness of self and college environment.

In a study supported by a government grant for institutional research, Maryville College is examining the relationship between student perception of college environment and attrition rates. Students, selected by random sample techniques, will be asked to complete a comprehensive questionnaire which measures their relationship with the total Maryville College academic community. The results of this questionnaire will be compared with results of a similar study being administered to recently withdrawn students. From this research the college will gain useful information on student perception of his relation to the college community, as well as information on student attrition trends.

The 20 week study, conducted by Ken Ainslie, is patterned after similar studies conducted by the U. S. Government and by other researchers in response to a growing need for better understanding of attrition patterns and of student-college interaction patterns. A correlary study of college freshmen's environmental perception is being carried out simultaneously as an Independent Study by Judy Evans, and will supplement the data gained in the larger study.

Questionnaires for both studies will be distributed through the dormitories and in campus mailboxes, and will require immediate attention for their successful use in the study. Information from this study will help the office of student realtions, the Admissions Office and other Maryville College program planners to better understand needs and viewpoints of students, and thus improve policy regarding admission, services offered and programs instituted at Maryville College. The study is scheduled to be completed by late summer.

Ainslie Conducts Study

On Wednesday, April 18th, all Maryville College freshmen will be asked to complete a questionnaire as part of a study on student perception of the college environment. The study is being conducted as an Independent Study in sociology by Judy Evans and is part of a larger study investigating the arrtition patterns at Maryville College.

All freshmen will be able to pick up their questionnaires from their senior counselors and R. A.'s, and are asked to return the completed forms to their counselors by Friday, April 20th. Freshmen not living in the dorms will receive a questionnaire in their post office boxes, to be returned to the post office. Each person's cooperation is essential for the success of the study.

The M. C. Admissions Office as well as other departments, will take part in evaluation of the questionnaire results to determine trends in student perception of self and college environment and hope through this to gain constructive insignt into the needs of the student in a college environment.

The Questionnaire for this study was developed by Dr. Lawrence A. Pervin of Princton University to satisfy the need for measuring student perceptions of student-college relationship, and has been used in similar studies on other college and university campuses. When combined with information gained in the larger study of student attrition and student satisfaction, this study will provide Maryville College with a valuable understanding in an area that has previously been neglected. . .that of student-college interaction.

Senior of the Week

This week the Echo features Jay Lentz. A native of Louisville, Tn., he is a Biology major and a member of Beta Beta Beta. Jay has been a member of the championship Senior flag football and basketball teams this year, and is also a photographer for the Chilhowean. He is the co-chairman of the Instructional Program Committee and is one of the Chapel residents this year.

Work Applications Now Due

Work applications for the 1973-74 school year are now being accepted in the Admissions and Student Help office. Students who already have a school job just reapply for their same job next year. Applications received this Spring will be considered before later ones.

Kull to present recital

Lee Kull, assistant professor music at Maryville College, principal violist with the Knoxville Symphony, and conductor of the Maryville College-Community Orchestra, will appear in a violin recital at 8:15 p.m. Saturday, 14 April in the College Music Hall.

He will be assisted by Sallie Warth Schoen, pianist and associate professor of music at Maryville, and Phyllis Steen, principal celloist with the Knoxville Symphony and member of the music faculty at Tennessee Technological University.

While an undergraduate at the University of Texas, Kull was a member of a viola ensemble that played at Carnegie Hall. He has studied with Paul Doktor, William Primrose, and William Kroll. He has presented recitals in Texas, at Peabody College, Maryville College, Chatham College, and Toledo, Ohio.

SPORTS

Tennis Team Loses on the Road

Maryville College's tennis team played three games on the road this week, losing to Western Carolina and U. T. Chattanooga before picking up a win versus Milligan College. The team's regular season record now stands at two wins and three losses.

Away versus the Western Carolina Catamounts on 3 April 1973, Maryville players Tony Willis, Craig Larsen, and Sutton Brown captured victories in singles play to tie the score at 3-3. However, a Catamount sweep of doubles play brought the victory to Western Carolina, 6-3.

A powerful U. T. Chattanooga team blitzed the Scot netmen 9-0 in Chattanooga, Friday, 6 April 1973. Skip Vessels and Craig Larsen each forced their opponents to play three sets before bowing.

Coach Kardatzke's team broke its losing streak on the road Monday, 9 April 1973, defeating Milligan College 8-1. Scots Willis, Vessels, Larsen, Rael, and Brown toppled their opponents in singles play. Rich Gaunt suffered the only Maryville loss. M. C.'s doubles teams of Willis- Larsen, Vessels-Rael, Gaunt-Brown swept their matches for the final 8-1 score.

Sutton Brown leads the Scot tennis team to date with a 4-1 record in singles play.

Maryville is going to experience a first in a one night, all female ping pong intramural activity on Tuesday 17 April 1973, in the Gym. Miss Werner, the organizer of this event, has scheduled this one night affair of singles and doubles matches to begin at 7 p.m. Remember girls, all entries are due today.

Scot Hardballers

The Maryville College Baseball team split the two games that they were able to play this past week as they defeated Lincoln Memorial University, 9-5, while losing to Tennessee, 26-4. Saturday's scheduled doubleheader at home against U. T. Chattanooga was rained out.

The Scots had a tough time against the Tennessee Vols on Wednesday. Four pitchers saw action including Randall, Dave Spradlin, Glenn Doig, and Rick Ruffner. One bright spot for Maryville was a home run by Dave Clinton in the eighth inning, giving Clinton two round-trippers for the season.

continued on page 4

Young, Tabereaux Publish Articles

Dr. David Young, one of MC's own outstanding educators, has an article appearing in the April issue of Chemistry in Britain entitled Second Thoughts at Maryville.

In the article, Dr. Young feels that the basic assumptions in the Keller plan of teaching, a system of preplanned written information to be absorbed as a basis for collegiate instruction and learning, need changing.

Dr. Young says he favors lectures that open up an involvement dialogue with students. The open dialogue will help stimulate even greater teacher and student involvement in the learning process.

Dr. Alton T. Tabereaux, assistant professor of chemistry, has published an article this month in the Journal of Inorganic Chemistry. The article was also presented as part of the Southeast Regional Meeting of the American Chemical Society in Birmingham, Alabama during November 1972.

The research was conducted by Dr. Tabereaux at the Department of Chemistry of the University of Virginia. He was a post doctoral research associate for a year before coming to MC.

Maryville Menu

April 13	MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE: Othello, a film starring Sir Laurence Olivier. Theatre, 8:15 p.m., $2.00.
April 14	MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE: Othello. Theatre, 8:15 p.m.
	FACULTY RECITAL: Lee Kull, Violinist. Music Hall, 8:15 p.m.
April 15	VESPERS: Chapel, 7:00 p.m.
April 17	BIBLE STUDY: Little Chapel, 9:30 p.m.
	COMMUNION: The Rev. Buford Kaylor, Pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, will preside. Little Chapel, 10:30 p.m.
April 18	COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Mr. Edwin J. Best will speak on the pre-history of Tennessee. Wilson Chapel, 9:20 a.m.
April 19	WORSHIP: Little Chapel, 8:40 a.m.
April 20	COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Good Friday Film, The Gospel According to St. Matthew. Wilson Chapel, 8:15 p.m.

Baseball

This week's schedule has the Scots facing Shippensburg State in a single game this afternoon at 2:45. Tomorrow, the Scots play a double-header at home against Covenant, and a single game against Milligan at home on Monday.

Voice Competition this weekend

Maryville College is being represented this weekend, 12-14 April, in the Southern Regional meeting of the National Association of Teachers of Singing by thirteen students.

The Southern meeting, consisting of schools from Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, is being held at Belmont College in Nashville.

Competition will be among one hundred eighty-six students for voice recognition and cash prizes. Representing MC are Delores Ziegler, Dana Rule, Pam Faulkner, Lana Grubis, Jean Tiffany, Tina Bergner, Merida Kearns-Preston, Kay Hurlbut, Mary Kaye Sanders, Louise Turner, Jane Pierce, Fred Frost, and Bill Gaffney. In addition, Peggy Leatherwood, Melanie Kohn, and Nancy Lay are along with the MC representatives as accompanists.

ACC NOMINATIONS

CANDIDATES FOR ALL-COLLEGE COUNCIL– 1973-74

Administrative Officer

Raymond I. Brahams–Administrative Assistant to the President; B. A., Maryville College; M. A., University of Colorado; Responsibilities: general administrative duties as assigned by the President, deferred giving program, coordination of long range planning effort; previously served on All-College Council for three years.

George A. Kramer–Dean of Student Relations; Professor of Education; A. B., Rutgers University; D.Ed., Rutgers University; Vice Privost and Dean of Admissions, Rutgers University and State University of New Jersey; Teacher of history and English in New Jersey secondary schools.

Viola Lightfoot–Registrar; B. A., cum laude, Maryville College; additional work at University of Tennessee; L. H. D., (Honorary) Maryville College; ACC Committees; Instructional Program Committee, Teacher Education Council, Academic Standards for Faculty and Students.

William S. Richardson–Director of Development and Alumni Relations; (Assistant Professor of Chemistry), B. A., Huntington College; Ph.D., University of Alabama; NDEA Graduate Fellowship; Chairman of Intercollegiate Activities; Publications Committee; All-College Council; Alcoa Kiwanis.

Staff

Rich Mahler–Associate in Communications; B. A., Maryville College; Scholarships and awards in art and photography; Teaches photography; Freelance for students and individuals.

Mrs. Elizabeth Welton–Elementary and secondary schools in Illinois and Kentucky; Business experience; stenographic and secretarial positions with attorneys, bankers, exporters, etc.; Volunteer work with Girl Scouts, civic fund raising such as Red Cross, Heart Fund, March of Dimes.

Faculty

Dr. Tom Puroff–Assistant Professor of Education; Ed.D., University of Tennessee; Citation from Governor, Honduras, C. A., for prison rehabilitation program; Phi Delta Kappa, Sigma Delta Pi, Outstanding Educators of America; Committee work: Teacher Education Council, Long range planning.

Claude E. Stewart–Instructor in Philosophy and Religion; B. A. Carson-Newman College; B. of Divinity, Harvard Divinity School; Candidate for doctorate in theology Harvard; Currently working on C. I. V. Committee.

Dr. Charlotte Beck–B. in Music, University of Tennessee; M. A. in English, UT; National Teaching Fellowship; Chairman of Independent Study Committee; Financial Aid Committee.

Dr. Wallace Lewis–Associate Professor of History; Ph.D., University of Iowa; Committee work: Elections Committee, Judicial, Financial Aid, Self-study steering; Currently on ACC.

Dr. David Young–Chairman, Dept. of Chemistry; A.B., Park College; Ph.D., University of Kansas; All–College Council, Learning Resources Comm., Community Standards and Values Comm.; The Challenge Term.

OVER 15 YEAR GROUP (2 of 3 to be elected)

Dr. James Bloy–Professor of Music; Dr. of Sacred Music from Union Theological Seminary in New York City; Worship Comm., Interim Comm., CIV Comm.

Arthur S. Bushing–Associate Professor of English and Director of the Summer School. M. A., University of Tennessee. Also studied at Stanford University, State University of Iowa, and Duke University. Has served previously on ACC; was Co-Chairman of Learning Resources Comm.; currently a member of the Academic Standards Comm.

Dr. Arda Walker–M.A. University of Tennessee. Ph.D.; University of North Carolina with work at Columbia University, George Washington University and the University of Paris. Five years' work as Economist and Marketing specialist with the Department of Agriculture; a number of scholarships and six published articles plus numerous governmental reports and pamphlets. Came to Maryville College as teacher of economics and statistics; served on committees: Social, Independent Study, Faculty and Student Standards, Forensics, All-College Council and others.

Students

FRESHMEN (Two of these names will appear on the ballot following the run off election, 1 to be elected)

Emerson Henderson–Covington, Ga., Freshman Class president, Elections Comm.

Craig Larson–Westfield N. J., Tennis Team.

Ed Peterson–Pittsburgh, Pa., Religion, Dean's List

Bill Walker–Owensboro, Kent., English, Dean's List, ACC Comm.

SOPHOMORE (2 of 4 to be elected)

James Batchler–Amelia, Ohio, Wrestling Team, ACC.

Melanie Kohn–Columbia, S. C., Music, Delta Omicon.

Jerry Spicer–Englewood, Ohio, Basketball team.

*Martha Browne–Reymoldsville, Pa., Elementary Education, Soph. Aide, Messiah, Community Chorus.

*Anna Ruth Prochazka–Colonial Heights, Va., Elem. Education, Chi Beta, M-Club, Soph. Aide, House Chairman of Dorm I.

*One of these names will appear on the final ballot following the runoff election.

JUNIORS (3 of 5 to be elected)

Steve Ayers–Worthington, Ohio, Speech, Playhouse.

Wayne Kramer–Pittsburgh, Pa., Religion, Soph. Class V. President, Dean's List, Intramurals.

Jane Beth Markley–Knoxville, Tenn., Chairman of Community Standards Residential Life Comm., Junior Counselor.

Gilbert Nicholas–North Plainfield, N. J., Psychology, ACC, Editor of Campus News, Pi Delta Phi, Psi Sigma Mu

Sarah Winbigler–Jackson, Miss., Social Comm., Academic Standards Comm., Junior Counselor, Layout editor of the Echo.

Survival

continued from page 1

gallons of water a day, among other appalling figures.

Yes, of course technology will come up with marvelous ways to prolong planetary life just as medical sciences has found ways to prolong human life. But what about the quality of that life. What good is a steak in every home if that home is forty stories up because of the noxious air outside and the teeming population below?

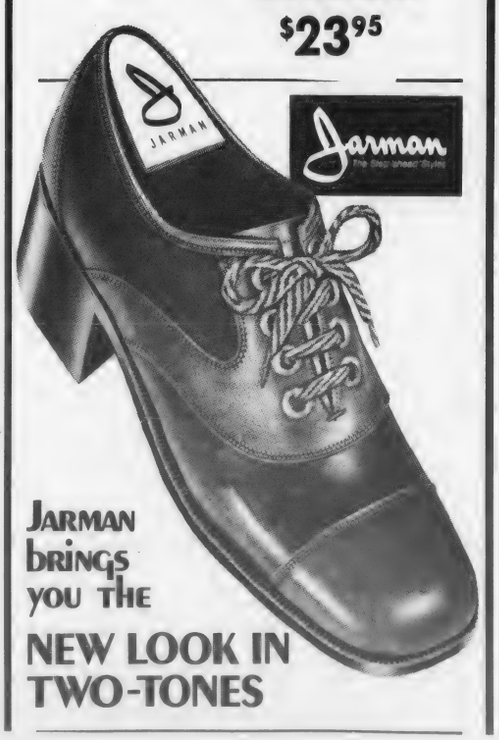
Quality of life is what it's all about. Individual effort multiplied by many individuals makes a difference. The survival kit is only a beginning, we hope. If you're interested in doing anything about these problems, or even talking about tem, contact Patti Shelton or Tom Martin so we can all educate ourselves together.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

Vail and Beasley attend Convention

During the first week of this term Janet Vail, a senior, and Blair Beasley, Instructor of Speech and Theatre Department attended the 28th Biennial National Convention and Tournament of the Pi Kappa Delta Forensic Honorary Society in Omaha, Nebraska.

Over 800 students participated in 9 categories of debate and individual events representing 152 colleges and universities. Janet entered Oral Interpretation including prose, poetry and dramatic readings, and in Oratory Speaking.



In the 1930's, Maryville was the first chapter in Tennessee to become a member of the Society which has become the largest forensic organization in the nation. To be eligible for entry into the local chapter, a student must participate in a certain number of rounds of debate or individual events recognized by the National Convention in either competition or outside-of-classroom presentations.

Attention Student Authors

The New Writer, a magazine devoted exclusively to quality short stories by student authors and offering a paying market for novices, will be published this fall in New York City.

The magazine, while focusing on fiction, will also include as open forum for reader's view, interviews and profiles of teachers and students, and articles by instructors and notables in the literary field.

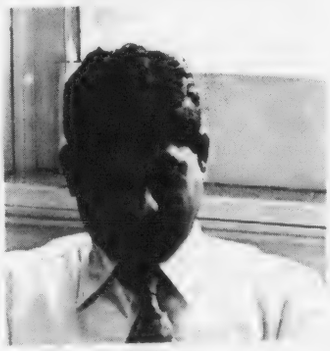
Information concerning subscriptions and rules for submission of manuscripts may be obtained by writing to the publishers of The New Writer at Workshop Publications, 507 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10017.

Southern shoes
$23.95

JARMAN brings you the NEW LOOK IN TWO-TONES

free copies
of one of the world's most-quoted newspapers.
The Christian Science Monitor. Facts. Ideas. Solutions. That's what the Monitor is all about.
To prove this to yourself, send us the coupon. We'll send you the free copies without obligation.
(Please print)
Please send me some free copies of The Christian Science Monitor.
Name
Address
City
State Zip
Z4SEA
THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR
P.O. Box 125, Astor Station
Boston, Massachusetts 02123

the Highland ECHO



Vol. 58, No. 20 | Maryville College, Maryville Tennessee | 20 April 1973

Date Set for Walk

Have you ever wanted to march in a parade down Washington Avenue and Broadway? Has it ever occurred to you how much fun it would be to raise money be walking? Would you like to get involved in hiking so that others may have food? Would you like to know what it feels like to be walking for mankind in Maryville at the same time that young people will be walking in cities across the country and in other nations? If your answer to any of the above is yes, then you are a candidate for the Blount County Walk for Development which will take place on Saturday, 12 May, beginning at 7:00 a.m. from Wilson Chapel.

The idea of the walk project is a simple one. Each walker must secure at least one sponsor (the more sponsors, the more money) who will agree to pay so much a mile. Along the hike are various checkpoints where the walkers card is validated to show how far he walked. These checkpoints also serve as rest stops and refreshment stands—free. All monies raised will go toward development projects at home and overseas. Forty-two and one half per cent of this year's money will be used to purchase a new van which will be used to meet human need in Blount County through such agencies as Girls' Club, Senegalese-Ibo Community Center, Senior Citizens, and FISH.

Interest is building for college participation in the May 12 walk. Phi Mu Alpha has challenged Delta Omicron to a contest to see who can raise the most money. The Community Outreach Committee of the ACC has likewise challenged the World Concern Committee. It has been rumored that the basketball team is getting organized to compete with the wrestling team in a similar contest. Jud Stone is considering doing the walk on his unicycle. Jim Colpitts is going to run the walk for development. Chaplain Harrison and his entire family will walk as will the David Young family. Dave plans to carry Emily on his back and is looking for additional sponsors to make it worthwhile. Dr. Copeland has indicated that he will consider walking but needs sponsors. If you want to join the great hike, pick up your sponsor sheet at the Chaplain's Office and go to work lining up sponsorship-friends, relatives, businessmen and even faculty.

Dr. K. Chandra Sekharan

Chandra Joins MC

Dr. K. Chandra Sekharan, a native of Madras, India, has joined the faculty of the Economics Department of MC for spring term. He is teaching two courses—Principles of Economics and Macroeconomic Theory.

Dr. Sekharan has taught for the past five years at several American colleges—Middle Tennessee State University, West Georgia College, and the University of Tennessee (where he received a Ph.D. in Economics last fall). Presently he continues teaching part-time at UT.

Later this year Dr. Sekharan hopes to return to India and secure a position on the faculty of Madras University, where he did his undergraduate work. His wife, a doctor of home economics, is currently on the faculty at that school.

the class that got away

by Patti Shelton

I've never worried too much about the male-female ratio on this campus. I mean when you're an intellectual concerned only with things of the mind—why bother with men? However, something recently came to my attention which I must admit disturbs me a little.

You see, way back last fall I planned to take Recent European History under Dr. Lewis this term. Then when I found I could take a speech course instead, well, I mean who can handle a history course spring term. So I made a schedule change.

Now I learn that the history class consists of seventeen male students and one male instructor. An 18:1 ratio is not to be sneered at, especially when you pass it up for a speech class that is fifty percent female.

Still, I managed to overcome my chagrin enough to ask Dr. Lewis about this unusual situation. When I asked what they did in class, he simply smiled in reply. However, several people have commented

continued on page 4, col.

Dr. John H. Fisher

Fisher to Speak

John H. Fisher, a John D. Hodges Professor of English at the University of Tennessee, will speak at CIV on Wednesday, 25 April. His program will be part of the Alpha Gamma Sigma recognition ceremony, and will deal with the topic Excellence and the Counter Culture.

Dr. Fisher is a native of Kentucky, having been born in Lexington. He graduated from Maryville College in 1940, and received his Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1945. His honorary degrees are the L.H.D. awarded by Loyola University of Chicago, and the Litt.D. from Middlebury College. Both of these degrees were awarded in 1970.

Dr. Fisher has taught at New York University, Duke, Indiana, Yale, Southern California, and Michigan. His scholarly interests are in medieval literature and the English language, and he has several books and articles in that area.

He has been a consultant to the United States Commission for UNESCO, and chairman of the conference of secretaries of the American Council of Learned Societies. He helped organize the Modern Language Association in 1948. He is serving as vice president of this organization in 1972 and 1973, and will serve as president in 1974.

Apply NOW for Annual Editor

Applications are now being accepted for the Editor of the 1973-74 Chilhowean. The deadline has been set for all applicants on Tuesday, 24 April 1973. All applications are due to Mrs. Clyde Ussery in the Communications Office NOW!

Fourteen Students Honored

Thirteen seniors and one junior were elected to membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma, the Maryville College honor society, this year. The seniors are: Kenneth Ainslie, Cathy Bates, both sociology majors; Thomas Bennett, an English major; Randall Blair, a math major; Emily Hager Davis, a psychology major; Alice Hook, a psychology major; Carl Hafner, Lance Dunaway, Vaughan Kennedy, and Patti Shelton, political science majors; Martha McCoy, a history major; Morna McEver, a sociology major; and Ron Salage, a biology major. The junior elected was Steve Douglas, a history major.

Requirements for Alpha Gamma Sigma for seniors are a 3.33 cumulative grade point average, and be in the upper ten percent of the class. Election is also based on such thing as service. Juniors must be elected unaminously, and although there is no specific grade point required, Dr. Elizabeth Fowler, President of the society, told this reporter that she could remember no junior being elected with less than a 3.8.

Winbigler New Co-chairman

ACC election final results were posted late last week. The results are as follow: Seniors-Wayne Kramer, Gil Nicholas, and the new co-chairman, Sarah Winbigler; Juniors-Jim Batchler and Anna Ruth Prochaska; Sophomore-Emerson Henderson; Staff-Mr. Richard Mahler; Administrative Officers-Mr. Rayond I. Brahams, Jr., Dr. George A. Kramer, and Dr. William Richardson; and Faculty-Mr. Claude Steward, Dr. Charlotte Beck, Dr. David Young, Dr. James Bloy, and Dr. Arda Walker.

Statistical results show that this year's election envolved forty-seven percent of the freshman class, fifty-three percent of the sophomore class, sixty-two percent of the junior class and forty-five percent of the senior class. Other statistics show that sixty-seven percent of the administration voted, while only thirty-five percent of the staff and forty-one percent of the faculty placed their ballot.

Other members on the All College Council for next year Joseph Copeland, Dean Carolyn Blair, and the secretary Dr. Russell Parker.

from the editor's desk

It goes without question that the idea of Resident Assistants in the freshmen men's dorm is a sound concept, but it is ridiculous to have them in either Carnegie or Memorial.

The Residents Assistants serve absolutely no function in these upper-class dorms. In most cases, there is an element of immediate control over noise and other disturbing aspects of dorm life by one's neighbors, not by the R. A.

The older dorms on this campus—which the men are subjected to reside in—do not physically lend themselves to the R. A. and quad system concept. Dorm I, Davis, and Dorm III are built with this idea in mind and make for a reasonably efficient system of control over students, but it does not work equally as well in these older dorms.

The only thing these positions do is drain unnecessary funds from Maryville's budget. There are many places around these older dorms where the one thousand dollars or so each year per dorm could be spent with alot more effectiveness.

For instance, there is a definite need for some improvements in the parking facilities behind Carnegie and adjacent to Memorial. The men in these dorms who operate cars on campus pay the same ridiculous parking fee each year as anyone else on this campus. The upkeep of a car is virtually impossible due to the dust, the mud, and the gravel lot.

Another spot in these dorms where a little consideration is needed is in the bathrooms. A small expenditure could place doors on the toilet stalls. The crudeness of sitting in a open stall could easily be solved by allocating some funds—even the men in Carnegie have some ideals.

These are only a few places where the Resident Assistant expenditure could be spent for a more worthwhile purpose than merely giving a hand-out to a few students.

editor-raymond 1. stanley, jr.
faculty advisor-dr. elizabeth fowler
lay-out editor-sarah winbigler
business manager-allen bunge

writers—n. bostock, c. boughman, c. craven, c d'aquila, s. douglas, l. hanson, p. hicks, r. kaniper, b. lewis, m. montgomery, w. rutledge, p. shelton, f. strohl

photographer—t. fox

Academically Speaking

On the Chemistry Curriculum

by Dr. Gale Rhodes
edited by Chris D'Aquila

New alterations and opportunities are beginning to be introduced in the Chemistry major curriculum under the supervision of Dr. Gale Rhodes and Dr. Alton Tabereaux. Some of these changes will include a review of the chemistry major requirements, job counseling and a new program geared to the department's facilities.

The job counseling program will involve Chemistry majors at the end of their junior year and the beginning of their senior year. This will include aid in preparation of resumes, student awareness of available employment and professional opportunities, and advice on how to present your qualifications not only before prospective employers, but before faculty and admissions personnel in graduate and medical schools. The program is intended to help Chemistry majors be prepared to take advantage of what the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education recently described as a rapidly improving job outlook for graduates in chemistry, natural science and engineering in the late 1970's and 1980's.

Instrumental orientation is already under way. This program hopes to make all students aware of the department's equipment and capabilities and offers Chemistry majors a chance of meeting together monthly, allowing them a chance to become familiar with instruments they will be using in course-work. This increases the Chemistry major's knowledge of the available information and allows them to assist non-chemistry majors in safe and proper utilization of equipment in carrying out lab assignments.

Finally, the requirements for the chemistry degree will be made more flexible; for instance, the present catalog description of the curriculum calls for six courses in math and physics. While it is obvious that a strong background in these areas is essential to preparation in chemistry, it will be possible for the Chemistry major to use some of these courses for broadening his interests to include other science areas, such as biology, computer programming and psychology.

Letters to the Echo

The Chills of a Wet Shower

To J. C.,
c/o The Highland Echo Editor

I hope you slipped into a nice, warm bath tub this past beautiful Monday morning. I, and my fellow Carnegie dorm mates, enjoyed nice cold showers for the third time this term—so far that is. I knew you would love to hear this great news, but the only problem is that most of us HATE COLD SHOWERS.

Sincerely,

A Chilly Dream

Settle the Alcohol Issue Now

To the Editor:

At its meeting of 11 April 1973, the Maryville All-College Council finally took a stand on the alcohol issue here on campus. The ACC recognized that it is the responsibility of this year's council to make a decision to enforce, moderate, or remove the current regulation prohibiting the possession and or consumption of alcoholic beverages on the Maryville College campus. To postpone until next year any action on the subject would only mean a completely new investigation by the next All-College Council.

A sub-committee has been appointed to draw up a proposal including the "implications and implementations" of both sides of the issue. To this sub-committee I plead, don't bury yourself in the verbiage of the last proposal submitted to the ACC. Make it clear to the council what you consider to be the pros and cons of both legalization and non-legalization. Spell out once and for all what the restrictions on alcohol will be if it is legalized and what the penalties will be if alcohol is still to be prohibited on campus. Draw up guidelines for the administration of the proposal and for the punishment (if any) of violations of the proposal.

At this time Maryville College students are freely ignoring the present ruling on alcohol because they consider it to be an unnecessary cramp on their life style. Few, if any, worry about any possible consequences if they are caught because they know nothing will happen to them. They will be much more willing to obey M. C. regulations when they know for sure what the official school policy is and what the consequences will be when, not if, they are caught in violation of the regulation. This includes breaking of the rules established if consumption of alcoholic beverages is permitted in moderation.

Please, spell it out, once and for all.

Steven C. Douglas

A Challenge To Consider

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in reference to an athletic incident that occured during a routine practice session last Thursday afternoon. I will not go into any specific details at this time as to what actually happened, but I will say that the incident resulted in the barring of one particular athlete from all further athletic competition for the remainder of the scholastic year.

The actual incident was centered around an argument that arose between the coach and the athlete in question. The result of the dispute was an open display of Physical violence on the part of the coach in question and the eventual banning of the athlete.

The question that I now bring to your attention is this: Must a "properly educated instructor" resort to acts of violence as a means of settling conflicts between himself and his athletes; or is the quality of coaching athletics at Maryville College on a semi-human level? I don't want to be misunderstood, and I feel that in general, the coaching staff her at Maryville, although somewhat understaffed, can hold their own against its competition. But if an athletic coach is going to conduct himself in such a manner contradictory to the purpose of athletics themselves; then is this man fit to be in the "respected" position he is in.

The point that I must now stress is this: If an athlete is willing to devote every ounce of his energy, talent and dedication to the sport he is involved; then is it not right to expect to get the same type of devotion and dedication in return. A true athlete learns to respect his coach and the authority that he holds. But when a coach conducts himself in such a manner as to promote dissagreement, dissention and frustration between himself and his athletes; then definite steps must be taken to prevent this type of conduct.

In conclusion I am asking for a response from the party in question, in order to settle all further disputes and to re-establish the authorotative control that is rightfully his.

Name Withheld

Was That Art?

To the Editor:

There is no excuse for a senior art major, who is supposed to exhibit all the skills she has mastered during her four years in college, to put on such a pathetic art show! Not only was this art show an insult to the other art majors, but also to the innocent public expecting to see the best works of an artist. Her sketches were out of perspective, unimaginative, lacked creativity, and gave the impression that they required very little time. The presentation of her art work was a poor aspect of her exhibit.

The frames, if you want to call them that, were cut out of alignment and the staining job looked half finished. This art show lacked effort, interest, quality and individuality. I feel this was a bad reflection not only upon the art department and art majors but also on Maryville College.

Name Withheld

Rehearsals for Spring Production in Full Swing

Rehearsals are underway for the Maryville College Playhouse Spring production, Butterflies Are Free, the long-run Broadway comedy concerning the romantic complications in the life of a young man who happens to be blind. The play will open on 17 May and play for three performances through 19 May.

Leonard Gershe's comedy is essentially a "Boy-meets-girl" affair, except that here the boy is an overprotected, affluent youth who leaves his comfortable and safe suburban home to try to make his own way as a singer in New York's Greenwich Village. He finds himself involved with a zany young kook with no inhibitions about sex. Their attraction is quickly translated into physical terms and all would be fine if it were not for the unexpected arrival of the boy's shocked mother.

Betsy Moore (Jill Tanner) will portray the sexually liberated and liberal young divorcee who finds herself attracted to her sightless neighbor without any sense of pity.

Robert March (Don Baker) will be seen as the cheerful young blind boy whose other senses are sharp and perceptive. The thing most distant from his mind is self-pity.

Janet Walker (Mrs. Baker) will play the young man's mother, a writer of children's books by profession and a woman who is use to getting her own way in all matters.

Carl Swenson (Ralph Austin) is a young rebel of the off-Broadway avant-garde who has his designs on the girl. The play will be produced and directed by Thomas Jones, with Blair Beasley directing the technical aspects.

Senior of the Week

This week the Echo features Patti Shelton. Hailing from Adamsville, Tennessee, she is a senior Political Science major who was just recently elected to Alpha Gamma Sigma, MC's own honorary society. Patti excels as a feature writer for the Echo, and is presently a senior counselor in Davis. Among her other interests, she has been active on ACC sommittees, Pi Gamma Mu, and is a member of the College Choir.

Civic Ballet Presents Romeo & Juliet

The Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet will present "Romeo and Juliet" next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights at 8:15 p.m. in the College Theatre.

The work is a full-length ballet accompanied by music of Prokofiev. It is choreographed by Cheryl Van Metre, Artistic Director of the Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet. She has also choreographed over 15 musicals for Maryville College.

Seven Maryville College Students will participate in the performance. Tom Martin will act the lead role of Romeo. Other students involved are Gordon Adler, Bill Gimbrede, Bob March, Terry Noack, Tom Williamson, and Steve Yuhasz.

Admission will be $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students. Tickets will be available at the door.

Maryville Menu

April 20	TENNIS: MC vs. David Lipscomb. Tennis courts, 1:15 p.m.
	COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Good Friday Film, The Gospel According to St. Matthew. Wilson Chapel, 8:15 p.m.
April 21	TENNIS: MC vs. King. Tennis Courts, 1:15 p.m.
April 22	EASTER SUNRISE SERVICE: College Choir and Band to perform. College Woods Ampitheatre, 5:55 a.m.
	EASTER COMMUNION VESPERS: Fine Arts Center Amphitheatre, 7:00 p.m.
April 24	BASEBALL: MC vs. LMU. Baseball field, 2:45 p.m.
	KNOXVILLE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA CONCERT: Features the Atlanta Civic Ballet. Knoxville Civic Auditorium, 8:15 p.m. Students $1.50.
	BIBLE STUDY: Little Chapel, 9:30 p.m.
April 25	COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Alpha Gamma Sigma Recognition of New Members. Dr. John H. Fisher, Professor of English at the University of Tennessee will speak on "Excellence and the Counter Culture." Wilson Chapel, 9:20 a.m.
April 26	WORSHIP: Mr. Harry Price will lead. Little Chapel, 8:40 a.m.
	MARYVILLE-ALCOA CIVIC BALLET: Romeo and Juliet. Theatre, 8:15 p.m. Adults: $2.50, Students: $1.50 at the door.
April 27	TENNIS: MC vs. North Georgia. Tennis Courts, 1:15 p.m.
	MARYVILLE-ALCOA CIVIC BALLET: Theatre, 8:15 p.m.
	SENIOR RECITAL: James Colpitts, pianist. Music Hall, 8:15 p.m.

Ernest Popp and Mike Osborne stride on to first place victories in last Saturday's meet against Bryan College.

Tracksters Stride On

The Maryville College track team has fared well in it's latest competition. Last Wednesday, the Scots traveled to Sewanee College where they placed second in a triangular meet along with Bryan College. In that meet, the host team came out victorious by collecting 65 points, followed by the Scots with 42 points, and Bryan College took the short end of the contest with 38 points.

Weightmen Mike Haas and Rick Livernoise turned in sterling performances by capturing victories in the javelin throw and shot-put, respectively. However, since those were the only two victories the Scot harriers could manage to get, second and third place finishes accounted for the majority of their points. Some important second and third place finishes were recorded by John Marley—mile run, Mike Osborne—120 yd. high hurdles & 440 yd. hurdles and Jeff Hamilton—high jump.

On Saturday afternoon the Scot tracksters played host to Bryan College in a dual meet. This time the Scot thinclads fared exceptionally well by scoring an impressive 78½-65½ victory over their opponents. Paced by Mike Osborne and Jeff Hamilton, both of whom captured two individual firsts and were also members of winning relay teams, the Scot tracksters tallied 8 victories in all.

The vicotries were recorded by Rick Livernoise—shot put, Mike Haas—Javelin, Ernie Popp-440 yd. dash, Scott Cook—pole vault, Hamilton—high jump and 220 yd. dash, Osborne—120 yd. high hurdles and 440 yd. hurdles, and the 440 yd. relay team—Hamilton, Eddie Hill, Scott Poland, Popp, and mile relay team—Osborne, Hill, John Marley, Popp. The Maryville trackmen now boast a 3-1 record as a result of their latest performances.

In their next outing, the Scot trackmen will be traveling to Knoxville College on April 25.

Netmen Lose Two

The Maryville College tennis team dropped its season's record to four wins and eight losses this past weekend, losing to both Tennessee Wesleyan College and Centre College by scores of 6-3 on Maryville's home courts.

A Friday the thirteenth jinx broke the Scot's one game winning streak. Tennessee Wesleyan captured the top four singles positions and numbers one and two doubles. Sutton Brown and Rich Gaunt, playing five and six respectively, won their singles matches and combined for a victory as a doubles team. The final score was 6-3 in favor of Tennessee Wesleyan.

Saturday, 14 April 1973, the Maryville College Scots played host to the Centre College tennis team. Steve Rael excited the home crowd with a tense, hard-fought victory. Craig Larsen, too, put up a stubborn fight in a three set win (7-6, 3-6, 7-6).

Coach Kardatzke's team plays host to David Lipscomb College this afternoon at 1 p.m. Tomorrow, 21 April 1973, King College will be on campus to challenge the Scots.

Scots Announce Football Schedule

Maryville College coach Lauren Kardatzke has announced the 1973-74 Scot football schedule. The nine game slate includes four home games and five away games for the gridders.

Entertaining the same teams as the '72-'73 Scot team, Maryville College hopes to improve on its 7-2 record of last season. M.C. will seek to avenge its two loses versus Randolph-Macon and Franklin by meeting these clubs on Honaker Field, where the Scots went undefeated last year.

"Unofficial" Scots Lose

by Steven C. Douglas

Soccer, gone from the Maryville College campus since 1963, has been revitalized by M.C. students. Last Saturday, 14 April 1973, the "unofficial" Maryville College Soccer Club hosted a varsity soccer team from Covenant College. Led by co-captains John Ballard and Dan Bergner, the inexperienced Scots played a fast-moving, exciting game in what turned out to be a losing effort. Covenant booted five goals past goalies Dave Schwind and Steve Leng to post a 5-0 victory.

The new soccer club had its beginnings last November during interim. Players got together on Sunday afternoons on the field in back of the gym just to kick the ball around. Interest continued to grow until finally the team wanted to really get organized. Sophomore Geoff Lang was elected president and given the task of trying to obtain official sanctioning of the club by Maryville College.

Since February, the club has been in contact with the All College Council subcommittee on athletics, Dr. Boroviak, and Dean Blair. Hopefully by September the club will be firmly established so that it will be able to engage in a full schedule of games.

Not content to stand still while negotiating with the ACC, President Lang, on his own initiative, began contacting other schools about the possibility of play this spring. Covenant College accepted the club's invitation to play. Two other schools, Carson-Newman and the University of Georgia, have indicated an interest to play the Maryville Club. Details are still being worked out.

With the Covenant game scheduled, Lang had to find a field to play on and officials for the game. The Health and Physical Education Department consented to let the club play on their intramural field. Dr. Young, a soccer enthusiast and former player, agreed to refree the game. Young dug deep into his closet and found team jersies left over from the last Maryville College Soccer Club (1962-63). Thus when the new club hit the field last Saturday, it fully looked the part of an official Maryville College team.

The Covenant game drew a large number of fans to support the Maryville team. Despite the team's losing effort, the fans thoroughly enjoyed the action. Both players and fans are now looking forward to future soccer competition here on the Maryville College campus.

Hardballers begin to ROLL

The Scots' baseball team won three of the seven games that they played this week as they have now reached a record of five wins and eight losses for the season. This past week, the Scots lost three games to Shippenburg State, 2-0, 10-8, and 9-4; defeated Covenant twice, 12-0, and 7-4; and split a double-header with Milligan, losing the first game, 8-6, before coming back to win the nightcap, 9-1 and ending a 15 game winning streak by the Johnson City college.

This week's schedule has the Scots travelling to Chattanooga tomorrow afternoon for a double-header against Covenant. They will be at home Tuesday against Lincoln Memorial University. Next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, they will be on a three-day road trip in Chattanooga against Temple.

ATTENTION STUDENT TEACHERS

Students who plan to student teach in elementary or secondary schools during the 1973-74 school year (fall, winter or spring) must file a formal application with the Department of Education by May 1. Application forms may be obtained in Thaw 204 or 205.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

ACC: Clarifying the Details

Editor: The following is a clarification of the proceedings of the All College Council concerning the programs and proposal submitted by the Instructional Program Committee in its last regularly scheduled meeting on 11 April 1973.

The All College Council approved two new programs and a proposal for a change in the core requirements submitted by Dean Blair for the Instructional Program Committee

The two new programs include a new major in Recreation and the Tremont Experience.

The proposal approved by the Council was an alteration in the present core requirements. The requirements will now include mathematics as an option to replace the foreign language requirement with certain 2-course sequences in math.

Easter at MC

This weekend, Maryville College will celebrate Easter with several events, a film for CIV credit, Sunrise Services, and communion vespers.

The film for CIV credit, "The Gospel According to St. Matthew," will be shown Friday night at 8 p.m. in the Chapel.

The producer of the film, an Italian Marxist, was in a town where Pope John XXIII was goint to visit. The film maker was in his hotel room with nothing to do, so he decided to read the Bible that was in the room. He read the Book of Matthew and was moved to make a film based on it, dedicated to the pope.

Sunday morning at 5:55 a.m. at the amphitheater in the college woods, Sunrise Services will be held. Before the services, members of the band will march around the woods playing. At the services Dr. Copeland will deliver the sermon. The college choir, under the direction of Dr. Harter, will perform traditional Easter hymns, such as "Christ the Lord is Risen Today," and other works, like Richard Yardumian's chorale, "Arise, Shine, Thy Light is Come, " and "Resurrection," a Ukrainian spiritual.

That evening, Communion Vespers, using rocks and balloons, will be held at the Fine Arts Center amphitheatre at 7 p.m. Communion will be conducted by Chaplain Harrison. The worship leaders are Doug Chase, Rachael Yankama, Belinda Chiddie, Michael Minnis, Kathryn Bushing, and Stan Jack. Merida Kearns-Preston and Sue Sterling will play the guitar.

the class that got away

continued from page 1, col. 2

that E hour in Thaw Hall is different these days. From behind the closed doors of Thaw 215, muffled laughter may be heard, accompanied by whistles, catcalls, and music. Obviously the history class requires a great many visual aids.

It has also become quite noticeable that Dr. Lewis' students never cut class and are terribly attached to their textbooks which are covered in plain brown wrappers.

I would never suggest that there is anything strange about Dr. Lewis' history class and I'm emjoying speech so I can't complain. And yet—sometimes when I pass Thaw 215, I sigh. . .

Art on Display

These senior art students will have their Senior Art Exhibits on display in the Fine Arts Center this term: Dan Gilmore, 16-28 April; Barbara Zartman and Betty Goshorn, 30 April-12 May; and Lynne Cross and Libby Robertshaw, 14 May-2 June.

Also, the following students will be displaying prints in the MC library: Kathy Snatchko and David Buckwalter, 23 April-4 May; Doug Rugh, Barbara Belt, and Cynthia Jones, 7-18 May; and Pam Phillips and John Lutsch, 21 May-1 June.

The average Navy Pilot isn't.

No man who has mastered the flying skills it takes to fly and land on a ship at sea can be called an average pilot. And the sense of accomplishment and satisfaction that he enjoys are also above average. Which is only right. For the man who would go places as a Naval Aviator must pass through the most challenging and demanding training program to be found anywhere.

From Aviation Officer Candidate School through Flight Training to the day his golden Navy Wings are awarded, he is tested; driven; pushed and tested again. And for good reason. The Navy has learned that without the will to succeed, no man can be successful.

Which brings us to you. Do you have what it takes to fly Navy? Send in this coupon and find out. Or talk with your local Navy recruiter. Or, call him at 800-841-8000. Even if you've never flown before, if you've got the desire, you're halfway there.

SEND TO:
NAVY OFFICER PROGRAMS
1830 WHITE STREET,
KNOXVILLE, TENNESSEE 37916

Gentlemen:
I like it. Please send more information on what it takes to be a Naval Flight Officer.

Name_____ Age_____
Address_____
City_____ State_____ Zip_____
Current College Year_____

Be a success in The New Navy.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 58. No. 21 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 27 April 1973

Board Meets This Weekend

On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, 25-27 April the Maryville College Board of Directors will hold its second meeting of the 1972-73 school year on campus. A definite agenda for the meeting had not been set by Tuesday, but it was certain that the Board will deal with many issues affecting both this year and next.

As well as hearing reports from Dr. Copeland, Dean Blair, and the Long Range Planning Committee, the Board will deal with such issues as Degrees in Course, Honorary Degrees, and Alumni citations. It will also be concerned with the budget for next year and the situation of Pearsons.

The Board will also have lunch in Pearsons on Thursday, 26 April and have a dinner and evening session with the All College Council on that day. That dinner and evening session will center on areas of religious, academis, and social, cultural and recreational life. The Board will also hear from Trish Lloyd, who will be reporting the views of students.

The next regularly scheduled Board meeting will be 4-5 October 1973.

a new perspective on the theater

In the last few weeks perhaps you have observed writhing bodies or heard screams coming from the basement of Margaret Lloyd Hall, the Theatre Colonnade or any other horizontal plane. No, this is not a meeting of the Theta Epsilon Society nor is it the Seniors bewailing Comps' In truth, it is a step toward an Experimental Theatre. Too long have you, the average theatre-goer, been exposed to Conventional Theatre. Throughout the year, several attempts have been made to dispel this. This term, a group of students have gotten together to explode the myth that all real theatre must be restricted to the main stage. Presently in production are two experimental one-acts. Hello Out There, directed by Clyde, will be performed 2 May at 8:15 p.m. Following this show, a week later an experiment in the Theatre of Cruelty will be done. Marat-Sade, under the direction of Murf, will attempt to combine the theatre arts, the worlds of song and dance, and the unheard of realms of electronic music. It is the expressed desire of those involved that the Maryville campus become more aware of the fact that experimental theatre is limited only by the imagination.

Delores Ziegler

Ziegler, Colpitts Present Recitals

Delores Ziegler, a voice major, will present her senior recital Saturday, 28 April, at 8:15 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall. Among the works she will perform are, a duet from Verdi's Aida with Dr. Kinsinger, an aria from Bach's Magnificat, and two arias from Carmen. Accompanist will be Melanie Kohn.

Delores, who came here originally from Atlanta, is a member of Delta Omicron, a music society, the Maryville College Concert Choir, a soloist for Messiah, and her husband, Rick, is dorm parent at Davis Hall.

James Colpitts, pianist, will be presented in his senior recital at 8:15 p.m., April 27, in the Music Hall at Maryville College.

The program will include "Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue in D Minor," BWV 903, J. S. Bach; "Sonata in F Minor," Op. 57, Beethoven; "Etude Tableau in E-flat Minor," Op. 39, No. 5, Rachmaninoff; and "Sonata No. 2 in D Minor," Op. 14, Prokofieff.

Mr. Colpitts is a student of Mrs. Sallie W. Schoen.

Special ACC Committee Meets

This year's most actively debated issue, the College's policy on alcoholic beverages, received a new emphasis last week when an ad hoc ACC committee began meeting. The committee, composed of several ACC members, has met several times in private session in an effort to hammer out a compromise to a proposed change in the College's official policy on alcohol.

Following the deadlocked debate at the April 11 ACC meeting concerning restatement of the policy proposed by the Community Standards and Residential Life Committee, the ad hoc committee was formed. Its purposes, as outlined at that ACC meeting are to bring to the ACC "the implication and implementation" of 1) the present policy, 2) the policy propsed by the Community Standards and Residentail Life Committee, and 3) alternative policies, with the objective that the present arrive at a conclusion this year.

The new policy statement proposed to the ACC had been under formulation for five months by the Community Standards and Residential Life Committee. That statement would drop the flat prohibition against the use of alcohol on campus and would sanction consumption in private. The ad hoc committee intends to call upon individuals and groups concerned with the issue during their considerations throughout this term.

Clements to Speak

Johnny Clement, former football coach at William & Mary and North Carolina State, will be the CIV speaker on 2 May. Clements will speak at the All-Sports banquet the preceding night. His topic of discussion is not yet known.

Plan Now For The Walk

"The Blount County Walk for Development, scheduled for Saturday 12 May is operating on a shoestring," insisted Chaplain Harrison, "so all of the monies raised in the walk will go directly to the projects intended." Various businesses are donating cardboard for the posters and funds for the literature. Churchwomen United and the Chilhowee Club are providing sandwiches and the Red Cross and Rescue Squad are making first aid equipment available. Each walker is asked to get his own sponsors and no money raised in the walk itself will go for prizes and other incentives. The motivation for the walk will be to serve mankind at home and abroad.

Fifteen percent of the funds will go to the parent organization, The American Freedom from Hunger Foundation, a non-profit, non-partisan agency that helps to plan and foster development projects.

42.5% of the funds will go to Blount County and be used in purchasing a community van that will be used in serving a variety of needs. Plans now are to have the van owned by the Girls' Club and to have representatives of FISH, Child and Family Services, YWCA, Senior Citizens, Senegalese-Ibo Community Center, MC Outreach Committee, and Boys' Club name drivers who will be insured against liability. The van will be scheduled through the Blount County Chamber of Commerce and stored at the Maryville Police Department.

Forty-two and one half percent of the funds will be divided equally among three overseas projects: (1) Nigeria-This is a project to build three rice mills in three rural towns providing more revenue for local farmers, more employment, and a better diet. (2) Thailand—This will help to fund a rural reconstruction movement that trains village people in agricultural production and cooperation, as well as health, Family planning, literacy, and community action. (3) Mexico-This project is designed to bring health, new energy, and nutritional information to Indian tribes living in remote villages where 60% of the children die of malnutrition.

The Walk for Development will begin from the Maryville College chapel at 7:00 a.m. and wind its way through the various neighborhoods of Maryville, Alcoa, and Blount County (20.5 miles). Senator Howard Baker has sent a letter of endorsement for the walk and its projects. To show their support

continued on page 4

Admissions Counselors Visit MC

If you see some unfamiliar faces on campus this weekend, they will likely be those of high school guidance counselors from Florida, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, New Jersey, Missouri, Illinois, and Kentucky. Students will have opportunity to talk with these counselors during the lunch hour Friday in Pearsons.

Their program is to include a student panel discussion Friday morning, a campus tour, an afternoon trip to Tremont/Cades Cove, the Romeo and Juliet Ballet, and meals with students and faculty in Pearsons Hall. It is the aim of the Admissions Office that by having the counselors here on campus they will learn what Maryville is all about, and will thus be able to more effectively counsel their students concerning our college.

Work Applications Now Due

Work applications for the 1973-74 school year are now being accepted in the Admissions and Student Help office. Students who already have a school jobmust reapply for their same job next year. Applications received this Spring will be considered before later ones.

SPEAKING ACADEMICALLY

Why Are You Doing What You Are Doing?

by Doug Cox and Dave Young

Doug Cox and I have an idea we'd like to poke you with. Has it ever occurred to you that virtually the only option open to an undergraduate is passage through a departmental structure and pattern of courses? Granted there are many different departments, but when compared it turns out that they all operate with the same general style—only the subject matter changes. A priori this is not bad, but when you stop to think about the different styles, modes of expression and abilities of students, it is manifestly absurd to think that all their diverse needs could be met with a single educational structure and system of operation. Our poke at you is to suggest an alternative to the departmental approach. We are calling it the Program Concept, and we'd like to see it tried at Maryville College. (Note: we are talking about something different than the Programs for individualized majors).

In a nutshell the concern of the Program Concept is that education must be centered on the use of knowledge, as well as its production. Increased attention must be paid to how knowledge affects the personality of the knower and what the able, vigorous, creative person does with his knowledge, not what he remembers.

There are two legitimate yet conflicting demands placed on undergraduate education: (1) that of depth education in a specific area and (2) the development of a broad, yet integrated view of the world. We are not suggesting the dismantling of the departmental structure; it is not only valuable but essential to the highest goals of education. However, we most certainly and seriously are suggesting that the departmental approach only gives lip service to the second demand above. Or to put it in sharper terms, we are asking in what ways do departmental courses really respond to the question: Why are you doing what you are doing? Our answer is—very little. . .because the basic aim of departmental education is to respond to specialist oriented goals.

The Program Concept learning situations would be group centered around an issue, but would involve attention to the development of goals and growth both for the individual and the group. It would necessitate some time spent being actually involved in working in the issue area, e. g., working in a hospital, living in a ghetto, etc.—whatever is appropriate.

The study-action of the Program Concept would spring from the following educational guidelines:

(1) be issue-oriented rather than subject mater (i. e., urban growth, privacy and society, biomedical ethics, ghetto education),

(2) be possibility oriented toward the future,

(3) seek to foster problem-solving and problem-finding attitudes and abilities,

(4) think in terms of synthesis and integration of value and information perspectives,

(5) deal explicitly with communication of emotional realities as well as cognitive skills, and

(6) seek a holistic rather than a reductionist viewpoint.

We are not naive enough to argue that these kinds of concerns are not present to some degree in departmental education as it now stands. But we are bold enough to assert that in practice our present structure does not deal with the total impact of these expectations in its day to day and term to term operation.

The idea of the Program Concept has recently been written up in detail in an effort to secure grant funds to support their being put into action. If you're interested in exploring these ideas (or showing us the error of our ways), poke back at us; we both live in Sutton. If you don't poke, then we will conclude that Why are you doing what you are doing? is because you like what you are doing. And there's nothing wrong with that. We just see it differently. Poke.

from the editor's desk

A Little Care Helps!

It is really a pleasure to see that some administrative gears can turn on this campus. On Wednesday afternoon, I had the pleasure to tour Pearsons Hall with some ACC representatives and Mr. Hugh Crawford. It is quite obvious that under Mr. Crawford's direction an excellent job has been done in bringing the remodeling of Pearsons to near completion.

There is considerable evidence throughout Pearsons that Maryville College has made wise investments in its renovation program. It has been estimated that MC saved some five hundred thousand dollars by working within the old shell of Pearsons. The quality of the renovation was not spared in any way for the sake of economy.

The new Pearsons will perhaps be the most liveable building on campus with it practicality of design. The living arrangements provide great flexibility through the options of adjoining rooms, private baths, and kitchenettes. Many other provisions have been made to make Pearsons not only flexible and practicable, but also safe.

I hope the same care which has been taken in the renovation of Pearsons Hall will be taken in the selection of the dorm parents, the new food services, and the students who will reside in this dorm. If the same care is taken, then Maryville College might experience the ideal of community for the first time in quite a while.

editor-raymond l. stanley, jr.
faculty advisor-dr. elizabeth fowler
lay-out editor-sarah winbigler
business manager-allen bunge writers—n. bostock, c. boughman, c. craven, c d'aquila, s. douglas, l. hanson, p. hicks, r. kaniper, b. [illegible], montgomery, w. rutledge, p. shelton, f. strohl

[illegible] fox

Markley Awarded Summer Position

Jane Beth Markley, a junior mathematics major from Concord, Tennessee, has been awarded a summer appointment at Oak Ridge National Laboratory as a Research Trainee.

She will participate in a ten-week Undergraduate Research Training program which provides students opportunities for independent study, research, and development under the guidance of a senior staff member.

Appointments are awarded on a competitive basis to college juniors majoring in the physical, life, and environmental sciences, engineering, and mathematics.

Letters to the Echo

A Case of Harassment

To the Editor

Why have the qualifications necessary for employment as a Maryville College policeman sunken to such depths? It seems obvious that the standards used to hire officers MacLemore and Hearst are no longer in manners pertaining to the situations at hand, the other night watchman acts in a biased and grudge-holding fashion. He has even been noted to make such exclamations professing his future actions as,"Give me enough rope and I'll hang you." Instead of providing help and protection, this officer delights in antagonizing the students who pay him. The officer's language and exposition reminds this writer of a mere little man who uses his badge to carry forth his tainted ideas of justice. Why must Maryville College be plagued with such an individual who uses his power in such ways?

While we have two officers who command respect through their actions, we also have an officer who appears to be the exact opposite. This reader finds it hard to imagine why Maryville College would hire such a person, let alone give him any position of authority!

Signed,

The Victim

Violence Tears Up Community

To the Editor:

One of the letters to the editor last week decried the use of violence as employed by one of the athletic coaches in a disagreement with a student. It is somewhat obvious that violence in any form is intolerable and unnecessary, and is quite detrimental to whatever community spirit that may exist on this campus at present.

This brings to mind a situation which currently exists in one of the dormitories on campus. One of the Head Residents has been accused time and again of using physically abusive measures in dealing with residents of that dorm, and even in dealing with residents of other dorms who have come to spend time at that dorm. This situation has been allowed to fester for too long a period, and it is time that action was taken.

Nowhere in the student handbook does it specifically empower the Head Resident to employ corporal punishment as a means for solving dorm problems. If situations cannot be resolved by the Head Residents, then the students involved should be referred to the Deans of Student Personnel, and ultimately to the Judicial Council. Taking the law into one's own hands is a quick method for solving things, but unfortunately, it is not compatible with a democratic system of government. The effects of this Head Resident's actions could be felt very strongly if the parents of students involved found out about this situation. Suits for damages could prove detrimental to our already grim financial status.

Thus, to faithfully play our parts as citizens of this community, we must not let this situation go unnoticed, and if guilt can be successfully proved to the Judicial Council, then let the actions take their due course. It is certainly not healthy

continued on page 4

Tom Martin and Sarajune Owen are seen here in Act II.

Civic Ballet Presents Romeo & Juliet

Romeo and Juliet, a memorable work of Shakespeare, has lived through the ages. Most everyone has come in contact with this famous work at one time or another. It is read for English classes from highschool through college. The theme of Romeo and Juliet reappears many times over in other writings and dramas. Perhaps a more modern and familiar version would be that of West Side Story.

A few years ago, Romeo and Juliet was made into a movie; however, if you would truly like to see this Shakespearean work come to life right in front of you, the ballet, Romeo and Juliet, that is being presented by the Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet is a must.

The ballet is a marvelous medium which dramatically expresses the true depth involved in the drama. It is also a medium which not many people come in contact with anymore.

The full length ballet is very dynamic and a beautiful piece of art accompanied by the music of Prokofiev. It has been choreographed be Cheryl Ven Metre, Artistic Director of the Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet.

The performers exhibit such an enthusiasm for their individual roles, that one cannot help but become involved. Each role is portrayed at its best and each dancers personal involvement is obvious.

Curtain time is at 8:15 tonight, April 27 and tomorrow April 28. Be sure to see this beautiful work of art. Admission will be $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students. Tickets will be available at the door.

Independent Interims?

A wide range of projects for Interim 1973 is planned by faculty members, but projects may be devised by individual students. Application for Independent Interims are included in the pamphlet listing tentative interim projects. These are to be turned in to box 2863 by May 15.

According to guidelines set by the Interim Committee, Junior and Senior individualized interims may be based on or off-campus. Freshmen and Sophomore topics must be on-campus or locally-based.

Preparation for the interim begins as a student formulates his interest according to the application form. If the topic is accepted by the Interim Committee, a summer reading program and specific requirements are set as prerequisites. For off-campus interims, students must notify a competent faculty contact and an organization qualified to supervise his program. At the end of the term, the student returns to campus for a formal presentation of the project.

Participation in Independent Interim projects has increased in proportion to the desire for individualized instruction.

Cheerleaders Workshop Scheduled

A cheerleading workshop is being held April 24th till May 2nd from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. each day in the gym. Any men or women interested in trying out may attend the workshop or contact Carolyn (Trigger) Graham at Box 2543 or Terrie Topham at Box 2638. Attendance at the workshop is not mandatory. The tryout date is May 3rd at 4:00 p.m. in the gym.

Senior of the Week

This week the Echo features Dan Gilmore, an Art major and resident of Maryville. His college career at Maryville was interrupted while having to serve in the army, which took him to Germany where he met his wife Kathy. Dan also has studied at the Corcoran School of Art and the University of Cincinnati. He has had a one man art show in Charlotte, N. C. During the summer, he paints portraits at Gatlinburg. Dan is described as an artist who has captured "the softness of nature," "the excitement of life," and "the pleasure of living."

Hardballers Up Season Record

The Scots' baseball team evened their season's record at 8-8 this past week by winning all three of the games they played, scoring a total of 56 runs in the process, while yeilding only ten. The results included a sweep of a doubleheader at Covenant on Saturday with scores of 20-1 and 18-2, and a 14-7 victory over L. M. U. on Tuesday.

In both Covenant games, the opposition jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first inning, but the tough Maryville bats came back to make a farce out of the action. Mark Brooks hit his first homer of the year in the first game, along with four R. B. I.'s for the contest. Winning pitcher Rob Randall contributed four R. B. I's also, as he evened his record at 2-2. Randall gave up only three hits, one of which was a homerun, and struck out 11. The offensive heroics continued in the second game as Leon Hart, Earl McMahan, and Tom Kleppe each drove in three runs. Jim Lester and Paul Viggiano each stole three bases. Dave Spradlin won his second game of the year as he struck out nine. Doug Leonhardt made his first appearance ever as a Scot when he pitched the last inning.

Tuesday's game against L. M. U. was another easy win, although the Lions did score three runs in the first inning. The Scots came back to score three in their half of the first, and were unstoppable after that. Glenn Doig was the starting pitcher for the Scots, went four innings before being relieved by Randall, who won his third game of the year. Dave Clinton had three R. B. I.'s, while Lester and Viggiano drove two across. In addition, Jim Lester hit a controversial homer in the sixth inning. It was controversial because it rolled to the hedge by Court Street. L. M. U. claimed it was a ground-rule double, but the umpire ruled it a homer in an argument that lasted five minutes.

Bradley Wins

Thursday of last week was the night of an unusual event in Maryville women's intramurals—a one-night ping-pong tournament. Sujean Bradley carried the singles match while the Shada Overton—Terrie Topham team was victor in the doubles match.

Sujean Bradley defeated Lida Hoskins for first place in the singles, giving second place to Lida. Shada Overton received third place in the singles when she defeated Charlene Reams, who was then in fourth place.

The final competition in the doubles match was between the team of Shada Overton and Terrie Topham and that of Sujean Bradley and Judy Penry. The former team's victory made first place for it.

MC Athletes Honored

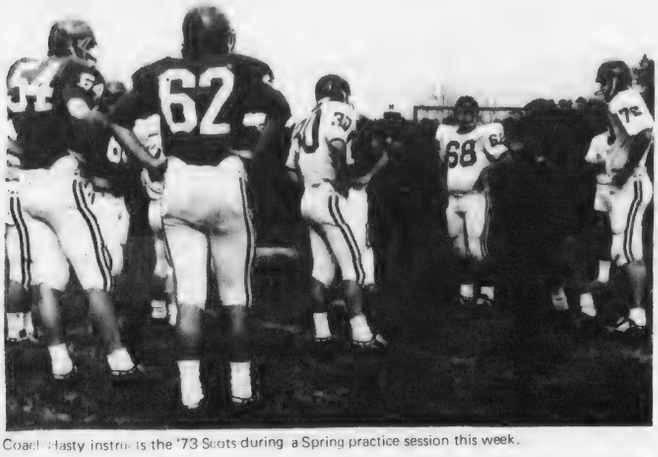
Seven Maryville College students have been chosen to appear in the 1973 edition of Outstanding College Athletes of America. These students are: Randy Schaurer, Rob Randall, Carol Rankin, Terrie Topham, Melinda Lucas, Joe Costner, and Carolyn Graham.

Announcement of their selection was made by the Board of Advisors of Outstanding College Athletes of America, an annual awards volume published to honor America's finest college athletes.

Athletic directors and coaches from individual colleges and universities across the nation nominated the winning athletes on the basis of their abilities—not only in athletics, but in community service and campus activities.

Craig Larsen

Scot Netmen Win



The Maryville College tennis team, under coach Lauren Kardatzke, upped its season record to six wins and nine losses this past week by virtue of victories over Transylvania College and King College, while losing a match to David Lipscomb College.

Thursday, 19 April 1973, the Scots traveled to Lexington, Kentucky to challenge Transylvania College. M. C. was in sharp form as she captured a 7-2 victory, her fourth road win of the year. Singles winners for Maryville were Vessels, Larsen, Rael, and Gaunt. Tony Willis and Sutton Brown suffered losses. Maryville swept the doubles play.

David Lipscomb College came to the Scots' home courts Friday, 20 April 1973. Lipscomb reversed Maryville College's success of the previous day with a 7-2 victory over the Scot netmen. Craig Larsen was the only Maryville singles winner. Sutton Brown and Rich Gaunt continued their success as a doubles team with another victory, running their doubles' record to nine wins against only four losses.

Coach Kardatzke's team picked up a win Saturday, 21 April 1973, as King College failed to appear for their scheduled match.

The Maryville College tennis team can be seen in action this afternoon at 1:30 p.m. as the Scots play host to North Georgia College.

Coach Hasty instructs the '73 Scots during a Spring practice session this week.

Spring Practice Begins

The Maryville College Scot football team began spring practice this past Monday, 23 April 1973, under the direction of head coach Lauren Kardatzke and his assistants Gerald Hasty, Mike Dalton, Bob Berrong, and Dan Webb.

Coach K and his staff are faced with the dilemma this spring of rebuilding the Scot's offensive unit. They will be hard pressed to replace quarterback Joe Costner and receiver Mike Butler, both outstanding last season.

The M.C. defensive squad will be back virtually intact. Coach Kardatzke says next year's success depends on a strong showing by the defense in early games until the offense can gain the necessary game experience and confidence vital to a winning season.

Spring practice will run from 23 April to 26 May, with the annual red and white game scheduled for Saturday, 26 May 1973, at 2:00 p.m.

Maryville Menu

Friday, April 27

TENNIS: Maryville vs. North Georgia Tennis courts, 1:15 p.m.

MARYVILLE-ALCOA CIVIC BALLET: Romeo and Juliet. Theatre, 8:15 p.m. Adults: $2.50, Students: $1.50.

SENIOR RECITAL: James Colpitts, pianist. Music Hall, 8:15 p.m.

Saturday, April 28

STUDENT RECITAL: Music Hall, 11:00 a.m.

TRACK: Maryville vs. Milligan College. Honaker Field, 2:30 p.m.

SENIOR RECITAL: Delores Ziegler, mezzo-soprano. Music Hall, 8:15 p.m.

MARYVILLE-ALCOA CIVIC BALLET: Theatre, 8:15 p.m.

Sunday, April 29

VESPERS: Our Nigerian students will lead. Little Chapel, 7:00 p.m.

Tuesday, May 1

STUDENT RECITAL: Music Hall, 7:00 p.m.

BIBLE STUDY: Little Chapel, 9:30 p.m.

COMMUNION: The Rev. O. L. Gilmore, pastor of Highland Presbyterian Church, will conduct the service. Little Chapel, 10:30 p.m.

Wednesday, May 2

COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: The program is sponsored by the Department of Health and Physical Education. Wilson Chapel, 9:20 a.m.

TRACK: Maryville vs. Centre College. Honaker Field, 3:00 p.m.

PLAY: "Hello Out There," directed by Clyde Byars, freshman. Studio Theatre, 8:00 p.m.

Thursday, May 3

WORSHIP: Dr. Arda Walker will lead in the service. Little Chapel, 8:40 a.m.

BASEBALL: Maryville vs. Clinch Valley. Baseball field, 2:45 p.m.

COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Program on the Blount County Walk for Development, featuring the film, "Miles to Go." Wilson Chapel, 8:15 p.m.

Friday, May 4

SENIOR RECITAL: Pamela Faulkner, soprano. Music Hall 8:15 p.m.

Thinclads Fall

The Maryville College track team despite the efforts of freshman sensation John Marley dropped their first dual meet of the season last Thursday afternoon to a visiting Mars Hill College by the score of 89-54.

The Scots, who were never really in the contest from the outset, managed however, to collect 7 individual victories, but lack of depth kept them from scoring any further. Marley, who collected two of Maryville's 7 victories, ran to impressive 4:35 and 15:47 clockings in the mile and three mile runs respectively. Other Scot vicotries were recorded by double winner Mike Osborne in the 120 and 440 yd. hurdles, Ernie Popp in the 440 yd. dash, Mike Haas in the javelin throw, and Scott Cook in the pole vault.

In their next meet the Scots will be playing host to Milligan College tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Echo Letters Continued

to permit a person of this type to remain in a position of power if he is going to misuse his authority so blatantly. Let the victims please come forward and have this problem over and done with.

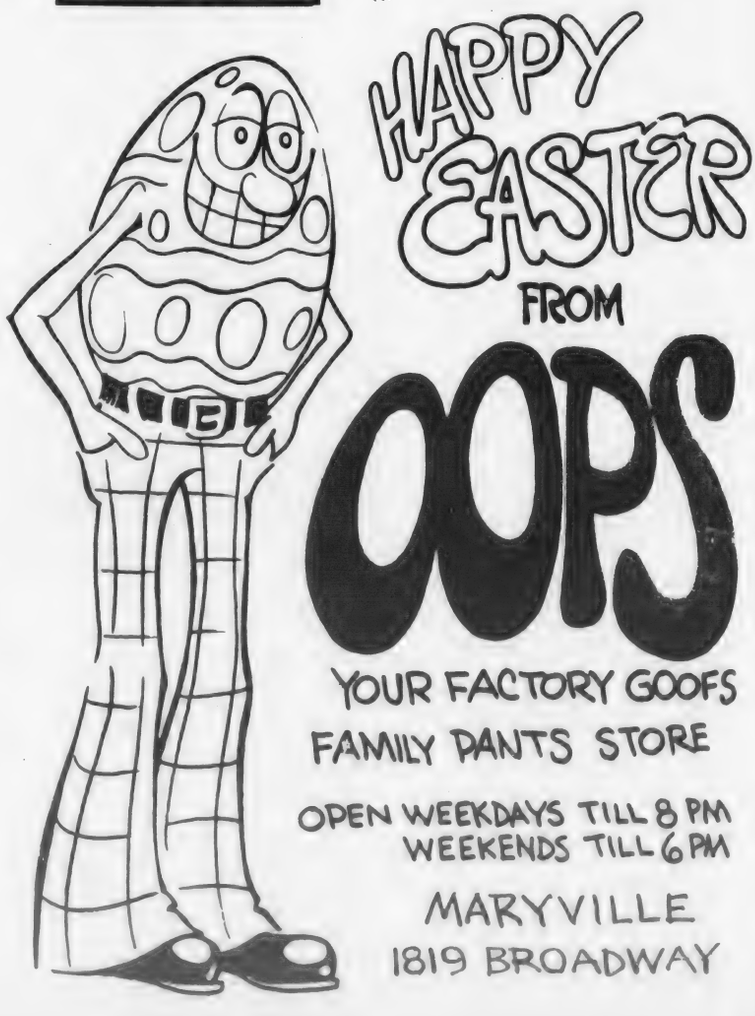
Name Withheld

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

Job Opportunities

Sales work in Blount County for Commonwealth Life Insurance Company. Prefer graduate, married, older (25 or more). Contact Mr. James R. Henson, Sales Manager, 7114 Kingston Pike, Knoxville, Tennessee, phone: 584-9169.

Summer Jobs in Austria



Any student wishing a summer job in the country of Austria should apply now. Paying student jobs are available on a first come, first served basis to any student aged 17 through 27.

Applications are available in the Dean of Men's and Dean of Women's Office.

Walk

continued from page 1

for the walk, the Fine Arts faculty postponed the music competition previously scheduled for May 12 to the following week. Dr. Carolyn Blair plans to walk. Other faculty who plan to join her include: Copeland, Dent, Hafner, Harrison, Love, Nichols, Olsen, Ramger, Rhodes, Richardson, Tabereaux, and Young. The Social Committee of the ACC has listed the walk as the "opening gun" of the May Madness weekend and are urging students of all shapes and sizes to participate. Sponsor sheets and maps are available in the Chaplain's Office.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 58, No. 22 | Maryville College, Maryville Tennessee | 4 May 1973

Community Chorus Presents King David

Eight soloists, a narrator, and a one hundred and fifty voice chorus will present King David this Sunday evening, 6 May, at 8:15 in the Chapel.

King David is a symphonic psalm in three parts, written in 1921 by Swiss composer Arthur Honegger. It spans the Biblical account of David beginning with his boyhood slaying of Goliath, and continuing through his reign ad King, ending with his death.

The large chorus will be composed of the Doyle High School Chorus, under the direction of John Ribble, and the Maryville College Concert Choir plus the Oratorio Chorus, directed by Dr. Harry H. Harter.

The program will feature several present and former Maryville College students as soloists. They will include: Ibbie Ann Laster- a 1967 graduate, Fred Frost, Bill Gaffney, Lana Grubis, Randy Hunter, Merida Kearns-Preston, Dana Rule, and Delores Ziegler. Kay Hurlbut will speak the part of The Witch.

John Ribble, a 1958 graduate of MC, who presently directs several choral groups at Doyle High School, will be the narrator. As a student, Mr. Ribble was the narrator in the first production of King David at Maryville College in 1958.

The work will be accompanied by Dr. James Bloy at the organ, and Sallie Warth Schoen at the piano. Dan B. Stallings will direct the wind and percussion instruments. The entire production will be directed by Dr. Harry H. Harter.

Mr. Don Carter

Carter Speaks to MC

Next Wednesday, 9 May, at 7:00 P.M., our CIV speaker will be Don E. Carter, executive editor of The Macon Telegraph and The Macon News. He will speak on the Government and Freedom of the Press, in Wilson Chapel.

Mr. Carter's early journalistic experience was with The Atlanta Journal, where he was city editor for eight years. Later he moved to The Wall Street Journal to become the first executive director of its Newspaper Fund, a foundation established to encourage better talent for journalism. When executives of The Wall Street Journal in 1961 decided to start The National Observer, Mr. Carter was chosen as its founding managing editor.

Next Wednesday, 9 May, at 7:00 P.M., our CIV speaker will be Don E. Carter, executive editor of The Macon Telegraph and The Macon News. He will speak on the Government and Freedom of the Press, in Wilson Chapel.

Circle K Attends Convention

Five members of the Maryville College Circle K Club attended the seventeenth annual Kentucky-Tennessee Circle K District Convention this past weekend in Gatlinburg. Delegates to the convention included club president Lyn Stanley, district treasurer Randy Minor, secretary Steve Douglas, and Circle K coeds Dawn Sterling and Cathy Henderson.

This year's convention was based on the theme of Education Through Communication and Interaction. Leadership seminars were held throughout the weekend on such subjects as community action, campus service, environmental action, and on Circle K's role as a fund-raiser for Multiple Sclerosis.

At the Governor's banquet on Sunday morning, MC's Randy Minor was praised for his "outstanding efforts and dedication" as district treasurer for the Circle K year just completed.

Elections Held

Tuesday night, 1 May 1973, the Maryville College Circle K held its annual officer elections. Lyn Stanley was re-elected president for the 1973-74 club year. Two freshmen, Tom Fox and Gwen Guba, were elected vice-presidents. Steve Douglas was elected to serve a second year as secretary-treasurer.

It was coffee time for the Board during their Spring meeting.

Board Decides Finances

In its spring meeting, held on campus 25-27 April, the Maryville College Board of Directors adopted a tentaive 1973-74 budget of $2,769,000.

Budgets for education and general budgets were set at $1, 843,000, student aid at $134,5000, and auxiliary enterprises at $737,500.

According to the admissions, the number of students accepted for enrollment for next year is slightly higher than the number that had been accepted at this time last year.

According to a report heard by the board, Pearsons will be completed for an open house during commencement week-end, 2-4 June, and will be used this summer.

The Board spent an entire evening with the All College Council, which reported and made recommendations on the religious, academic, and social, cultural and recreational life at MC. A report was also made by Trish Lloyd, representing a cross section of student opinions.

Drill Team Try-outs Scheduled

Drill Team tryouts will begin on Monday, 7 May 1973, at 4:00 p.m. on the golf course. Anyone interested should contact Vicki Clower at Box 2159. All practices will be held at 4:00 p.m. on the golf course. All girls be there Monday for the first session.

PLANT A TREE

There will be a campus-wide "plant-in" this Saturday, 5 May, to celebrate Eargh Day. There will be about fifty trees to plant on campus and they will be available outside the post office between 10:00 and 2:00 on Saturday. Shovels and a few instructions will also be provided. Come on over and plant a tree, and do your bit to help the environment!

MC Presents Marihuana Report

Is marihuana the evil drug that destroys your mind by its intoxicating chemicals?

Maryville College researchers Frank Hall, Andrew Klein, and Jerry Waters disclosed revealing data on some of the long term effects of marihuana at the April 1st meeting of the Eastern Regional Division of the Tennessee Academy of Science.

A Maryville College contingent of Dr. Alton Taberaux, Andrew Klein, Frank Hall, Alice Hook, Dave Marsden, Gil Nicholas, and Donald McDaniel attended the meeting that included papers and representatives from colleges all over the East Tennessee region.

Mr. Hall said that his 18-24 year old subjects showed no appreciable effect of over two years of usage of the controversial drug. Twenty of the fourty subjects in the study had used marihuana six or more times a month. The other twenty subiects had never used the drug. None of the participants had used any drugs. All the subjects were of similar socio-economic backgrounds.

Both groups were given standard coordination, memory, and motivation tests and both groups were found to be equivalent in all areas of performance.

continued on page 4

Letters to the Echo

A Matter of Personal Involvement

To the Editor:

As the year quickly draws to an end, once again students are considering their futures, both at Maryville College and in pursuing the careers which presumably follow. Those who will return to Maryville in the fall must once again evaluate the hypocritical and discriminatory policies of this obsolescent institution, policies which have been conceived and ratified by a political system which is in no way imitative of a democracy, and which are enforced by an Administration, which, in the opinion of many, is categorically inept, inefficient, and inadequate. And once again, underclassmen must consider the education which Maryville provides, education by a seemingly spineless faculty which speaks of "challenge", but which avoids curricular change and personal confrontation with much the same alacrity as it grovels beneath the perilous power of our esteemed president and his Anderson Hall echo chamber.

The students are now becoming increasingly aware of how they have been misled and deceived by Maryville College, of how the sweet words of phony liberals and transparent Christians mean so very little when they are forced to accept the fact that the payment of $2550.00 per year to Maryville College is a privilege, a privilege which buys nothing more than an education which places little value on intellectual integrity and a living environment which is probably the ultimate in substandard existence.

If this college, in utmost good faith, wishes to perpetuate the existing standards to which it so urgently clutches, then in this time when students must make important decisions about the future, perhaps they should consider these questions:

If they find the standards here intolerable, as many do, will they heed the bombastic advice of various administrators and leave here? Or will they stay to impress upon this institution the fact that it must change or die? There are no alternatives!

It seems to be a matter of personal involvement, of caring. If you care, then you will stay to face the job ahead: making Maryville College yield to the needs of the students, needs which have been for so long ignored.

Sincerely,
The Dynasty

To the Editor,

In last week's issue a letter entitled "A Case of Harrasment" appeared, charging one of our campus policeman of antagonizing the author of the letter. We should like to explain the situation in greater detail. The author of the letter, hereafter "The Victim," was using the calculators in the computer room of Sutton Science Center after hours one night last week. He did not have a SSC "Late Permit Card" with him. The officer involved was closing the building, and told "The Victim" argued that he had work to do and could not afford to leave. The officer explained that his orders were to clear the building of unauthorized persons. "Victim" became belligerent; officer threw him out. The Victim was aware of the rules concerning after-hours use of the building. The officer was not using "his badge to carry forth his tainted ideas of justice." In our opinion, the officer involved is a responsible and capable employee of Maryville College, and was merely carrying out his duties. "Victim," please refrain from harassing and bearing false witness against campus personnel towards whom you carry a grudge.

Love,
Pat Smith
Doug Roth

Comps Can Be Enjoyable

To the Editor,

It all began with a note on my desk. "Mr. Flurkey: Go immediately to the men's locker room, P.E. building, locker 611." The lock's combination followed---- dpy, att, wgr.

Knowing that this was part of my assignment for comps, I was quite surprised; but off I went. Usually old shoes, socks, or jocks are kept in P.E. lockers, so quite naturally I assumed I was to be given the arduous task of analyzing the material comprising one of the above.

Upon finding locker 611---immortal forevermore---and opening it, what did I behold? It was the old Mission Impossible Self-destruct Tape Recorder Trick. There in the locker was a tape recorder and file folder. Naturally I opened the folder and what to my surprise but a playboy bunny fold out hopped out---Miss April to be exact. Alias Granny Higgenbotham Case.

Returning to Sutton Science Center, I played the cassette tape. "Good Afternoon, Mr. Flurkey" echoed in my ears. My mission, should I "decide to graduate" , was to determine the nature of ingredient 107 in Granny Higgenbothams Fortified and Supplemented Health Bread. It seems that certain people had taken ill after eating some of her bread. In the true Phelps, whoops, Flurkey fashion, I decided to accept the mission.

So here I am composing a letter for the Echo while working on comps. Why? Because this Comprehensive Exam has been a challenge for me. I have to demonstrate my knowledge of chemistry and be able to back it up with experimental proof. Even if I don't succeed, I have learned that the planning and method for solving a problem are often more important than the results.

I thank the professors involved who thought up this unusual comp, not only because it is uniquely different in its outlook and prupose, but because it is entirely individualized and self-motivating. I never though comps could be so enjoyable, yet painful and frustrating at the same time. I will never forget this comp. By the way, if this article self-destructs, we're all in trouble!

Bill Flurkey

Editor--Raymond L. Stanley, Jr. Lay-out Editor--Sarah Winbigler
Faculty Advisor--Dr. Elizabeth Fowler Business Manager--Allen Bunge
Writers--N. Bostock, C. Baughman, C. Clark, C. Craven, C. D'Aquila, S. Douglas, P. Hicks, R. Kaniper, B. Lewis, M. Montgomery, W. Rutledge, P. Shelton, F. Strohl
Photographer--T. Fox

Academically Speaking

On Math Inovations at MC

by Bill Dent and J.W. Nichols

There have been several developments in the mathematics department this year which should be of interest to students and faculty. Our service course in Statistics - Math 209 - has been expanded and reorganized. There is now a two-course sequence, Math 208-209. Math 208-Finite Mathematics - covers elementary probability, matrices, and linear programming and has no prerequisites. Math 209 - Statistics - is an introductory statistics course designed for students in the Social and Behavioral Sciences. This course replaces the Psychometrics course that was taught in the Psychology Department. In this course we try to familiarize the students with both machine and computer calculations. The prerequisite is Math 208.

Another development, approved by the board last week, was a proposal to change the core requirements in order to create more flexibility in the core. The proposal reads as follows:

Any student may have the option of replacing the core requirement in Foreign Language by any one of the following 2-course sequences in Mathematics.

Mathematics 102-103. Calculus 1 and 11.

The first two courses in Calculus. Required of all Biology, Chemistry, Physics, and Mathematics majors and recommended for some Economics, Social Science, and Psychology majors.

Mathematics 208-209. Finite Mathematics-Statistics

Mathematics 208 covers elements of Probability, Linear Programming, Vectors and Matrices. Mathematics 209 is an introductory course in Statistics with emphasis towards Psychology and the Social Sciences. Both courses are required of Psychology, Sociology, and Economics majors and are recommended for all Social and Behavioral Science students.

Mathematics 208-Science 208. Finite Mathematics-Computer Programming

Science 208 is an introductory course in Computer Programming. Both Basic and Fortran Languages are studied. This course is open to all students and has no formal prerequisites.

Mathematics 206-207. Mathematics for Elementary Education Majors.

These are content courses in Mathematics designed specifically for Elementary Education majors. We recommend that this sequence be counted as fulfilling the core requirement if and only if the student is graduating with a major in Elementary Education.

Each of these are two course sequences with no prerequisites, with possibly one exception. If a student does not score well on the Placement Exam given at the beginning of the fall term, he may be required to take Math 101 (Pre-calculus math) before starting the Math 102-103 sequence.

We think that these changes will help make mathematics more accessible to students who normally would not be enrolled in our courses.

Pearsons Opens for Fall

At their recent meeting the Board of Directors approved on an experimental basis the use of Pearsons Hall as a coed residence hall for the coming uear. The second floor is planned for men students and the third floor for women.

Much flexibility has been provided in the building as well as many attractive features such as private baths, kitchenettes, and sitting rooms. Each room has individually controlled air conditioning, and the building is carpeted throughout.

As a result of the designed flexibility in the building, the following types of living units are available on both floors: Double rooms without any extras, bedroom with adjoining bath and kitchenette, suites of three rooms consisting of two double bed rooms with a sitting room between. There is on each floor one unit consisting of a sitting room, bedroom, bath, and kitchenette. These two units are presently planned for married student couples.

The base rental rate for Pearsons will be $450 as compared to $400 in the three new dorms. This is the rate for a double room with double occupancy and no extras. Tor an extra such as a private bath and kitchenette or sitting room, the occupants would each pay $50 for the uear, as would a three-room suite with the "extra" of the sitting room. The kitchenettes are provided solely as an extra and do not constitute an alternative to eating in the college dining room.

A room in Pearsons nears completion.

These attractive options in Pearsons will be open first to seniors, then to juniors, and then sophomores in their room drawings scheduled for next week.

Room Assignment Schedules Announced

Again this year seniors will have the first opportunity for drawing for a room assignment, and all housing options are open to them.

There will be no guaranteed singles in Davis or Dorm 1 until after freshman room assignments have been made in the summer.

All persons signing up for rooms must have the receipt for the $50 advance deposit with them.

Married couples who might be interested in the two apartments allocated for couples should see Dean Massey or Dean Elia in the Office of Student Personnel.

Male

Room drawing will be held in the dorm where you expect to live next year.

Senior Men -

Tuesday, May 8, 11:00 p.m.

Junior Men -

Wednesday, May 9, 11:00 p.m.

Sophomore Men -

Thursday, May 10, 11:00 p.m.

Senior men wishing to draw for Pearsons meet at 11:00 p.m. Monday night, 7 May, in the gym lobby. Juniors wishing to sign up for space left in Pearsons will meet Tuesday, 8 May, at 10:30 a.m. (at the break period in the morning) in the Carnegie lounge. Sophomores wishing to sign for space left in Pearsons will meet at the break on Wednesday, 9 May, in the Carnegie lounge.

Female

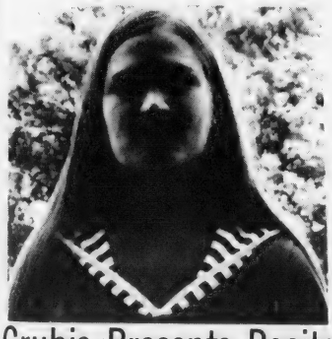
The schedule of places and hours for women to draw for room assignments for the coming year is as follows:

Senior Women -

Tues., May 8, 11:00 p.m. -

Margaret Lloyd Hall

Junior Women



Wed., May 9, 11:00 p.m. -

Margaret Lloyd Hall

Sophomore Women -

Thurs., May 10, 11:00 p.m. -

Davis Hall

Grubis Presents Recital

Lana Grubis, a voice major at Maryville College, will present her senior recital this Thursday evening, 10 May, at 8:15 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall.

Lana will open her program an aria from Judas Maccabeus, a Handel Oratorio. Her program will include "Un bel di" ("One Fine Day") from Puccini's Madame Butterfly, an aria by Tschaikowsky, and several songs by Richard Wagner, and by contemporary composers Samuel Barber and Ned Rorem.

During her years at Maryville, Lana has been featured as a soloist in the Messiah, in the opera production "Gianni Schicchi, and with the College Choir on its spring tour.

For the listener's benefit, Lana will sing her entire recital in English, except for the Vagner and Puccini selections.

Originally, Lana came from Huntsville, Alabama. She now lives with her husband Prentiss in Maryville.

Lana's recital, along with King David and the Orchestra Concert, is helping to celebrate National Music Week.

Season Overview of Scot Hardballers

The Maryville College Scots baseball team was scheduled to play in the Temple Tournament in Chattanooga this past week-end, but rain postponed that until later this month. As a result, the Scots were not scheduled for another game until Wednesday when they were to play Cumberland College in Kentucky.

The Scots are 8-8 after 16 games with about ten games remaining to be played on the schedule. In addition, Maryville has doubleheaders against Bryan and U.T. Chattanooga that Coach Baird would like to make up before the season's end. Those were previously rained out. Add this to the fact that the Temple Tournament will be made up sometime, and you find that Baird's team has plenty of action still to see.

After 16 games, the Scots have a team batting average of .298. Earl McMahon is leading the team in hitting with a strong .386. Mark Brooks (.372) and Dave Clinton (.364) follow McMahon. Clinton has three of the team's five homeruns to his credit. Brooks and Jim Lester have one each. McMahon ahd Clinton lead the team in R.B.I.'s with I6 each. Leon Hart's 15 and Lester's 13 are challenging for the team lead.

The pitching staff got off to a rough start, but the situation has improved of late. Rob Randall, the number one starter has appeared in the most games (9), pitched the most innings (37 2/3), and leads the team in strikeouts with 43. His record is 3-2. Dave Spradlin has done well as the number two man in the rotation. Appearing in eight games, his stats for 27 2/3 innings shows he has 30 strike-outs, along with a 2-2 record.

The Scots meet Milligan in a double-header at Johnson City tomorrow. They will be home to play Tennessee on Monday, go to Clinch Valley on Tuesday, and come home to play Cumberland on Wednesday.

Thinclads Fall

The Maryville College track team suffered their second straight defeat last Saturday afternoon as a visiting Milligan College convincingly outran the Scot harriers by the score of 80-65.

Despite the efforts of double-winners Mike Osborne and John Marley, the Scot thinclads were never really in the contest from the outset but did, however, manage to display fine individual performances in preparation for the TIAC championships to be held at Clarksville, Tenn. today and Saturday.

Along with Marley in the mile and three mile runs and Osborne in the 120 and 440 yard hurdles, outstanding performances were turned in by Mike Hass in the javelin and Scott Cook in the pole vault. All four of these atheletes are expected to compete in the TIAC'S this weekend.

The Scots record now stands at 3-3 for the season but they hope to improve this record with good performances at the TICA'S this weekend.

John Marley, a freshman, crosses the finish line in another one of his outstanding performances.

Intramurals Draw to a Close

Today or Monday will decide the outcome of the men's double elimination softball tournament. The Otters became the single-elimination winner when they beat the Salty Dogs on 25 April.

On Wednesday, 2 May, the Salty Dogs were scheduled to play against the Seniors to determine which would be the once-defeated team to play against the Otters today. Last Wednesday's winner will have to beat the Otters twice to win the championship; the Otters need only win once.

In men's intramural racketball, Bill Baggett is the single-elimination winner. Fred Gillespie and Larry Barouviak, both once-defeated, have yet to contend to determine which will compete with Baggett for the championship in this double-elimination tournament.

Other men's intramural events scheduled for this spring are a cross country meet and a student-faculty golf tournament.

Maryville Menu

Sunday May 6

IN PLACE OF VESPERS: King David. College Choir, Oratorio Chorus, and Doyle High School Chorus will participate. Wilson Chapel, 8:15 p.m.

Monday May 7

BASEBALL: Maryville vs. The University of Tennessee. Baseball Field, 2:45 p.m.

COLLEGE-COMMUNITY ORCHESTRA CONCERT: CIV Credit. Wilson Chapel, 8:15 p.m.

Tuesday May 8

STUDENT RECITAL: Music Hall, 7:00 p.m.

PLAY: Marat-Sade, and experiment in the Theatre of Cruelty, directed by Sharon Murphy, junior. Studio Theatre, 8:15 p.m.

Wednesday May 9

ALL—COLLEGE COUNCIL MEETING: Open to spectators. Room 304 Anderson Hall, 2:30 p.m.

BASEBALL: Maryville vs. Cumberland. Baseball Field, 2:45 p.m.

COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Don Carter, Executive Editor of the Macon Telegraph and News, will speak on Government and Freedom of the Press. Wilson Chapel, 7:00 p.m.

Thursday May 10

WORSHIP: Kathy Bushing will be the worship leader. Little Chapel, 8:40 a.m.

SENIOR RECITAL: Lana Grubis, soprano. Music Hall, 8:15 p.m.

Friday May11

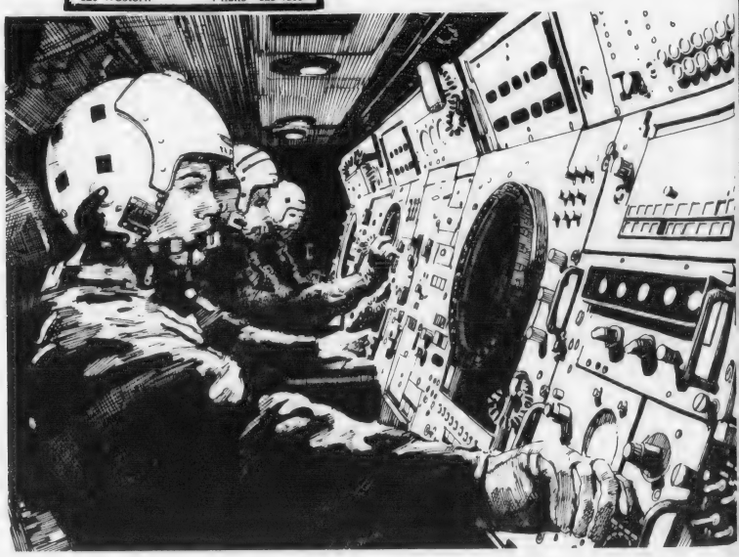
COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Chinese film, The Red Detachment of Women. Music Hall, 8:00 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

POWDER PUFF FOOTBALL BAME: Involves the girls on campus. Honaker Field, 6:30 p.m.

BAND SPRING CONCERT: Wilson Chapel, 8:15 p.m.

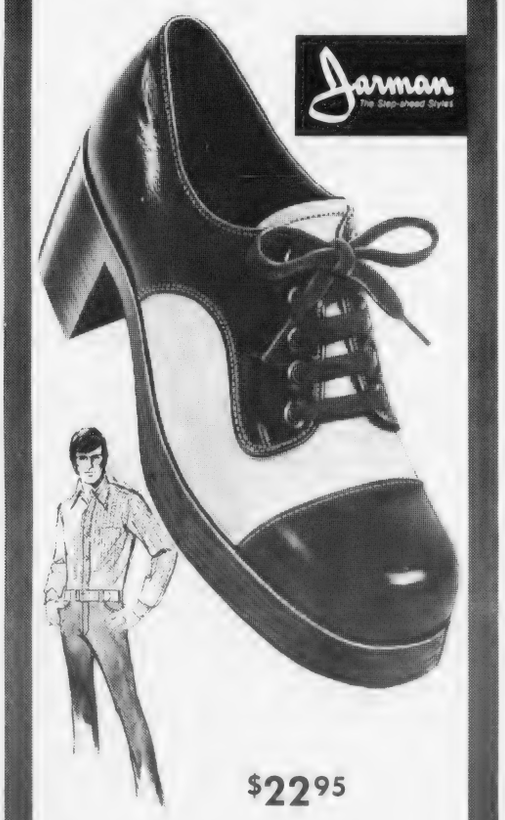
Orchestra to Perform

Monday, 7 May, at 8:15 in the Chapel, the Maryville College-Community Orchestra will present a concert with CIV credit. The concert will feature various soloists, Ruth Ladner, piano; Dana Rule, soprano; and Delores Ziegler, mezzo-soprano; Dale White, trumpet; and Dave Bedell, clairinet.



Works to be performed include "Grand March" from Verdi's Aida, an orchestral suite of folk songs by John Jacob Niles, Piano Concerto 1 by Mendelssohn, "Vissi d'Arte" from Puccini's Tosca, Brahm's Alto Rhapsody, Quiet City by Aaron Copeland, and an original work by a Maryville College student, Cheryl Swartz, entitled Suite for Orchestra.

Marihuana



This research provides controls rarely used prior to this time and lends support to the conclusion that marihuana is basically a harmless, non-dehabilitating drug with only short term effects on memory, coordination, and motivation.

The presentation of this data and its conclusions caused many questions to be elicited from the Carson-Newman audience. Despits the research conclusions the controversy over this drug and its usage is bound to continue.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

Southern shoes

$22.95

Here's a Jarman winner that stands out even when competing with today's wide-bottomed slacks. High heel and platform sole. Two-tone crinkle patent leather. Popular styling. Let us help you prove you're a now man of good taste.

BROWN & WHITE

The HEEL with SOLE

Be a special kind of Navy Flyer. Be a Naval Flight Officer.

Whenever a Navy plane is under electronic control, that plane is in the hands of a Naval Flight Officer. Naturally, as a candidate for Naval Flight Officer training you'll need some very special qualifications. First, you must really want to fly, even if you've never flown before. You'll also need a college degree and the kind of mind that works well with math and physics.

Waiting at the end of your training program is a Navy Commission and the Golden Wings of a Naval Flight Officer. By then you'll be an expert in areas like Jet Navigation and Airborne Control . . . equipped to do your job wherever you go.

But whatever your specialty, travel will be part of your life. And so will challenge, responsibility, achievement and reward.

If that's the kind of career you're looking for, and if you think you've got what it takes to be a Naval Flight Officer, send in the coupon. It will bring you all the facts. Or talk it over with your Navy recruiter. He's at 800-841-8000

SEND TO:
Navy Officer Programs
1830 White Street
Knoxville, Tennessee

Gentlemen:
I like it. Please send more information on what it takes to be a Naval Flight Officer.

Name _____ Age ____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip ____
Current College Year _____

Be a success in The New Navy.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 58, No.23 | Maryville College, Maryville Tennessee | 11 May 1973

Hardy DeYoung instructs Nessa Pettigrew on the planting of trees.

Campus Plants Trees

Maybe you noticed some students planting a number of trees on cam - pus last Saturday and were wondering why. Thanks to Hardy DeYoung our campus has an additional sixty trees, with forty more to be planted.

The trees are from Hardy's Independent Study. He experimented with trees for the effect of air pollution on them. The Tennessee Department of Forestries and Princeton Nurseries of Princeton, New Jersey, donated seven hundred trees for Hardy's project. Hardy planted the trees in cans and conducted his experiment in the SSC greenhouse.

Circle K will plant some of the trees at the Boy's Club, some will be given away to faculty, and the remainder Hardy will keep for his own further experimentation.

MC Receives Memorial Gift

Maryville College has received a 43-acre tract of land as a memorial gift from Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Proffitt. The Proffitts stipulated that $25,000 of the income when the property is sold be used for Pearsons Hall and the remainder be added to a scholarship fund in memory of Mr. Proffitt's brother, Fred L. Proffitt.

The Board of Directors has decided to use the money designated for Pearsons Hall to refurbish and furnish a private dining room to be named the Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Proffitt Dining Room.

May Madness Appears

Once again May Madness weekend strikes Maryville College Campus. May Madness events will take place tomorrow and Sunday, May 12 and 13.

There is the possibility of a dance Saturday night at 9 pm.

Sunday, games will begin at 2:30 pm and will include relay races, egg throwing contests, pie eating contests and the traditional tug of war.

Anyone interested in signing up team members, please do so by leaving the names of those people with Moose and Bear in Davis Hall by sometime today.

Cheerleaders Selected

The following girls have been named Football Cheerleaders for the 1973 campaign: Kathy Belcher, Jan Clark, Nancy Sue Herrel, Pat Johnson, Leanne Moore, Sue Schoultz, Terri Topham, and Roberts Austin. Nadine Hays has been named as an alternate.

Hurlbutt Presents Recital

Kay Hurlbut, a senior voice major, will give a recital 15 May at 8:15 in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall. She will perform works by Brahms, Shumann, Ireland, and Donizitti, with a spanish cycle entitled Tonadillas Escenicas.

Kay, who came here as a junior, is a member of the Maryville College Concert Choir and Delta Omicron, a music fraternity. She has done solos for Messiah, and recently was a soloist for King David.

Two CIV's This Week

Philip Stelle Presents Last Performance

Students will have the chance to attend special CIV program on Friday 11 May, and on Wednesday, 16 May. The first will feature a film shown in conjunction with the Non-Western course, the second a performance by Affiliate Artist Philip Steele.

The film, Red Detachment of Women, will be shown twice on Friday. All Non-Western students are to attend the hour-and 40 minute film during their regularly scheduled class on Friday in the Music Hall. The rest of the sommunity may attend the morning showing or the afternoon showing, which begins at 2:30 in the chapel.

One of the films selected for President Nixon's viewing in February, 1972, Red Detachment of Women is from a revolutionary opera of the same name. The dance drama presents the creation and development from 1972-1973 of a company of Chinese women workers and peasants fighting for the People's Liberation Army. The film is significant for an understanding of the political uses of the arts in China.

At 8:15 p.m. on 16 May, Mr. Philip Steele will perform in the Chapel. Mr. Steele has performed numerous operatic roles, and is renowned for his character interpretation. In the 16 May program, he will perform arias which require the soloist to assume the personalities of distinct persons.

As Maryville's Affiliate Artist, this will be Mr. Steele's last on-campus performance.

Walk Commences

Rain or shine, the second Blount County Walk for Development will start from Wilson Chapel on Saturday, 12 May at 7:00 a.m. For the hardy among us it will be a 20.5 mile hike that will wind its way through a variety of neighborhoods - rich and poor, black and white, urban and rural. The checkpoints along the way give an idea of the course of the route: Maryville College, New Providence Presbyterian Church, First United Methodist Church (Maryville), Parkside Community Center, Senegalese-Ibo Community Center (Alcoa), Blount County Boy's Club, Everett High School, Asbury Acres and Union School. At these Checkpoints, cards will be validated and there will be an opportunity for refreshments, rest, and fellowship.

Anyone who plans to participate in the walk must have at least one sponsor. This could be a friend, neighbor, business acquaintance, course the more sponsors one has, the more money will be raised. Sponsor sheets are available in the Chaplain's Office.

Those planning to walk should set their alarms early so as to get registered before the 7:00 a.m. starting time. The first 1.6 miles will go down Washington and Broadway through Now Town in the form of a parade. The final leg of the hike will be through the college woods. There will be displays at the Senegalese-Ibo Center and the Boy's Club that will feature the projects where the money will go. Hardee's plans to furnish hamburgers and sandwiches will be donated through Churchwomen United and the Chilhowee Club and will be made available at the checkpoints.

Plan now to walk for mankind. Your participation can mean more food for hungry people in Thailand, Mexico, and Nigeria and a community van to meet the needs of the people of Blount County.

Art on Display

These Senior art students will have their Senior Art Exhibits on display in the Fine Arts Center this term: Barbara Zartman and Betty Goshorn, 30 April-12 May; and Lynne Cross and Libby Robertshaw, 14 May-2 June.

In the MC library there will also be students displaying their prints: Cynthia Jones, 7-18 May; and Pam Phillips and John Lutsch, 21 May-1 June.

from the editor's desk

Communication Through Participation

This community will stagnate without a free exchange of communication among the presently inactive student body and the pretentious faculty, staff, and administration. It is everyone's business to concern themselves with campus affairs.

The recent flurry of unsigned letters to the Echo has initiated quite a bit of controversy over the present printing policy. The Echo's policy on letters will stand solid as it was stated in the issue of 6 April 1973. I, as editor, will publish any letter which justly and amply covers a topic. The letters must be signed, but names may be withheld upon request. This is the policy!

It is only through the letters that this community can actively and effectively communicate. This might be the one and only workable channel of communication left on this campus. The many recent letters have emphasized the negative aspects of Maryville College and the campus affairs with a great deal of vigor, but what about the many strong points of MC? Stop where you're at right now and think about this.

What about the strong points? There are many positive aspects to this institution, its curriculum, and its faculty which are never mentioned. The potential of an individual at this college is virtually unlimited, provided you are willing to communicate your desires, your concerns, and your problems into active participation in campus affairs. You are the one that can change your dreams into realities if you will only put forth an honest, sincere effort.

This is neither the time nor the place to advocate, defend, or be apathetic about Maryville College and its affairs. The results of your efforts in communicating to the campus-at-large will be seen in the future of MC. Are you willing to accept the responsibility of communicating your desires, your concerns, and your problems to the campus? The possibility of change is only conceivable through active, strong student, faculty, and staff participation in all affairs.

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr. Lay-out Editor- Sarah Winbigler
Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler Business Manager- Allen Bunge

Writers- N. Bostock, C. Boughman, C. Craven, C. D'Aquila, S. Douglas, P. Hicks, R. Kaniper, B. Lewis, M. Montgomery, W. Rutledge, P. Shelton, F. Strohl

Photographer—T. Fox

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other news items should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, or the College Administration.

Letters to the Echo

Dynasty Isn't Even Constructive Criticism

To the Editor:

I have just read the lengthy letter of "The Dynasty" in the May 4th Echo condeming college, faculty and administration for deception, ineptness, and misguidance as well as a whole host of other terrible sins. Since I am a "hypocritical, phoney liberal" faculty member I am interested in what The Dynasty is referring to in their ravings. The letter lacks any of the components of constructive criticism like suggestions, ideas, and specific examples. I would hope that those who wrote the letter will respond by providing enough information about their compaints so that the "unresponsive" people out here can have something concrete to respond to; for example:

1. How are we misleading students? On what issues or ideas.
2. In what ways is the adminstration unresponsive?
3. How does the All-College Council fail to meet your standards of representative government? Have you ever used this body to present your ideas?
4. I would agree that one should try to change Maryville College forthe better rather than leave here. I am puzzled that you have run into contrary advice. To really help improve the situation though one must be willing to do something constructive.

A friend of mine once said that the only time a person has a right to complain and condemn is when he/she is willing to become personally involved with whatever is the problem.

Sincerely,

A Friend

To the Editor:

Last Wednesday morning, 2 May, a certain percentage of the student body dragged themselves over to the Chapel to be subjected to another in the never-ending series of CIV's. As usual, Time and Newsweek magazines were the focal point of attention but those of us who listened found that we couldn't "take our ears off" the speaker: only because we couldn't believe what we were hearing. Afterwords, I laughed all the way back to the dorm. It was inconceivable that Maryville College could have hired a speaker who had absolutely nothing to say. His remarks were quite indicative of ignorance, his philosophies pointless, his "Go, Go, Go," dissertation non-inspiring. I could see a "speech" like that presented in the 1930's...maybe. But even then it would have been a comedy routine. Honestly, how are we, as supposedly educated human beings supposed to "value" statements concerning "the Communist infiltration in North Carolina" and "The boys need a male image...too many of them are being brought up by women." Even his dramatizations—the very symbolic kitchen utensils presented on stage were pretty funny. The speaker did nothing but spout out all his inane philosophies which merely indicated his meager knowledge and narrow-mindedness of the subjects in question. Archie Bunker could've done a better job.

However, the point I am trying to make does not solely concern the speaking capacity of the fated CIV speaker, but he serves as a perfect example supporting students' complaints regarding MC's mandatory CIV system. This particular CIV made it quite obvious that our administration is scraping the bottom of the barrel for just something to force us to go to which completely

continued on page 4

SPEAKING ACADEMICALLY

by Dr. Arda Walker

At this time of year, the academic problem I most frequently encounter is, "I am trying to choose a major, what can I do with history?" The truest answer I could give is, "Anything." Knowing, however, this will not satisfy, I fall into the obvious trap and reassure my interrogator of the many vocational uses to which he may put a history major. In reality, this question is like the proverbial "Have—you—stopped—beating—your—wife question. It assumes the goal of college education to be a financial-vocational one. Indirectly, it may be, but only indirectly.

Vocational needs cannot for the most part be predicted. We are told that over half the vocations of the next dacade have not been formulated, that students will drastically change their professions at least three times in a lifetime, that most vocational training is more cheaply had and more quickly acquired in on-the-job situations. Hence the trap. Hence the true answer. The major you choose is not for direct purposes of vocation, but to equip you with procedures of learning to think clearly and effectively, which involves open-mindedness, tolerance of ambiguity and complexity, capacity for decision in the face of uncertainty and the ability to communicate; your major is for understanding who you are, for improving relationships with people and with your physical environment.

Completely alien to your interest in vocation is your need to acquire means to enjoy leisure. The more restricted your prospective career, the more you need capacity for a rich leisure. A major that will open avenues of pleasure for off-the-job hours (which are increasing) or for periods of later life (now longer), when careers no longer can occupy or interest you is very practical. Such a major may prove invaluable by making you interesting as a person.

On this basis, I would suggest the following criteria for choosing a major:

What do you enjoy most?
How can you enrich your leisure and develop a consuming interest?
What can interpret meaning for your life?
What can give you means of avoiding excessive preoccupation with your vocation?
What can give you techniques of disciplined thought?
What can connect you with men and with mankind?
What can free your mind from prejudice and open you to dialogue for the common good?

A writer for the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions predicts the problems of education in 1996:

> What should a man/woman know to be wise? What kind of wisdom can bring happiness—or keep open the pursuit of happiness? What kind of faith could bring courage to step into the unknown—to keep men and women leaping generation after generation into the swirling darkness of uncertainty, into the clouds of change?

These issues, he avers, are those that troubled man in 96, and will trouble man in 2096. He envisions man in 1996 as having chosen to be "aware of heights and depths" and as becoming "aware of more and more."

If this writer is correct, then any major which explores the heights and depths of man and encourages you to become more and more aware is the practical one for your future. Vocational education may be—indeed, if ever half the jobs are not het on drawing boards—must be left to on-the-job training of minds open enough, flexible enough, disciplined enough and imaginative enough to meet any contingency. The major which can enable you "to see life steadily and see it whole" is the practical major.

"Butterflies" Soars Into Production

Rehearsals are now underway for the Maryville College presentation of the broadway hit, "Butterflies Are Free." The play will open on May 17, 18, and 19 in the college theatre. "Butterflies Are Free" is being produced and directed by Thomas E. Jones, assisted by Philip Gibson, and Blair Beasley is directing the technical aspects.

This play is about a blind boy's fight for independence by living alone in New York. It's success can be attributed to the fact that if is based on the existence of a real life person, Harold Krents, after whom author Leonard Gershe, modeled his character.

The action is set in Scarsdale, an affluent New York suburb, where Robert March (Don Baker), tries to flee his overprotective mother. Scarsdale was the actual residence of Harold Krents, who after receiving a draft notice in which his response was of desire to respond, but disable due to his blindness, the draft board was unconvinced and they classified him 1-A.

Amused by the situation, Harold wrote a ballad to General Hershey, head of selective service, in which he offered to go to Vietnam if the general would come along "just tohelp me aim my gun." New commentators got onto the Army goof and in no time Harold was appearing with his songs as a guest on TV talk shows. It was one of these programs that playwright

Leonard Gershe heard which gave him the idea for the happy enter rainment called "Butterflies Are Free."

This Leonard Gershe comedy concerns the romantic complications in the life of a young blind man, who is protrayed by Robert March, as previously mentioned. He is an affluent youth who tries to make a singing career in Greenwich Village; but he soon finds himself involved with the kooky 19-year-old divorcee of a one-week marriage who lives next door. Betsy Moore (Jill Tanner) will protray this delectable neighbor.

The situation becomes complicated with the arrival of the boy's mother, Janet WIker. She very well represents some of the attitudes of a concerned parent of a physically handicapped offspring.

Carl Swenson plays a young rebel off-Broadway avant-garde who has designs on the girl.

"Butterflies Are Free" is a comedy worth seeing. Opening dates are May 17, 18 and 19. Be sure to see it!

Intramurals This Week

In men's intramurals this week Lynn Brown took the chess championship; the Otters and Seniors were scheduled to play-off for the second and final time on 9 May for the first softball tournament championship; and a new double-elimination softball tournament kicked off on Monday, 7 May.

Lynn's opponent in the last contest of the Chess tournament was Richard Smock, who now occupies second place.

Maryville Menu

Friday May 11	POWDER PUFF FOOTBALL GAME: Involves 2 teams of 22 campus coeds. Honaker Field, 6:30 p.m. BAND SPRING CONCERT: Wilson Chapel, 8:15 p.m.
Saturday May 12	WALK FOR DEVELOPMENT: Kicks off the May Madness weekend. The Rev. Buford Kaylor and The Rev. Dick Harrison are in charge. Walkers leave at 7:00 a.m. from Wilson Chapel. GYMNASTIC SHOW: MC Athletes and area boys and girls will group together to form "human tableaux." Health and Physical Education Building, 7:30 p.m.
Sunday May 13	VESPERS: Lee Humphries, professor of Old Testament, will speak. Philip Steele, our Affiliate Artist, and the Maryville College Choir
Monday May 14	FACULTY RECITAL: Martha Anderson, clarinet. Music Hall, 8:15 p.m. SENIOR ART SHOW: Lynne Cross and Elizabeth Robertshaw will be exhibiting through June 2.
Tuesday May 15	SENIOR RECITAL: Kay Hurlbut, alto. Music Hall, 8:15 p.m. BIBLE STUDY: Little Chapel, 9:30 p.m.
Wednesday May 16	BASEBALL: Maryville vs. Emory and Henry. Baseball Field, 2:00 p.m. COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Philip Steele, lyric bass and MC Affiliate Artist. Wilson Chapel, 8:15 p.m.
Thursday May 17	MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE: Butterflies Are Free. College Theatre, 8:15 p.m. Admission $2.00. WORSHIP SERVICE: Little Chapel Dr. Russell Parker will be the worship leader, 8:00 a.m. TRANCENDENTAL MEDITATION LECTURE: Joan Stallings will present the second (of two). Introductory Lectures. FAC lounge, 8:00 p.m.
Friday May 18	COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Dr. Cornelius Berry, professor of theology at San Francisco Theological Seminary, will speak on How It Feels To Be Black in White America Wilson Chapel, 9:20 a.m. MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE: Butterflies Are Free.

Larry Mc Dowell instructs a squad of coed gridders in preparation for this week's game on Honaker Field.

Coed Gridders Strike

by Buddy Lewis

Maryville College footballers watch out! It's that time of the year again. It's time for the 4th annual "Powderpuff" football game, and as usual this years' game is shaping up to be better than ever before. The game is schedueled to be held tonight on the Scots own Honaker Field with kickoff at 6:30 p.m. and the admission charge is one thin dime.

Thus far, preparations for this years clash have been going at full tilt for over a week now with the female footballers holding regular practice sessions every day this week. At printing time the names of the teams were still undertermined, but they were designated as team "A" and team "B". According to some early scouting reports, some of the standouts for team "A" include Dorthy Bang, Bonnie Cassidy, Kathy Kirkhart, Carol Rankin, and Butch Yardumian, while team "B" boasts Roberta Austin, Lynn Earnheart, Trigger Graham, and Sue Mehaffy as their stars.

The coaches that have put these teams together for tonights contest include– team "A" Rick Ruffner, Phil Zigler, Donnie McDaniels, Mark Hodge, and Jeff Hamilton; team "B" Larry McDowell, Bill Corbitt, Randy Minor, Leon Hart, and Bill Baggett. The officials for tonights game are Mike Threkeld and Mike Dykes.

Band to Perform

The Maryville College Band will be presented in concert tonight at 8:15 PM in the chapel. Mr. Dan B. Stallings assistant professor of music will be conducting.

The program will include Commando March by Barber; Stonehenge Symphony No. 40 in G Minor, Molto Allegro by Mozart; and First Suite in E-flat for Military Band by Holst. The highlights of the evening will come when Dale White and Ruthe Mary Weston, both students, will respectively conduct Concerto Grosse in D Minor by Vivaldi, and Introduction and Fantasia by Rex Mitchell.

Mr. White is a Senior trumpet major from Wayne, Pennsylvania. He is the principal trumpet in both the Band and the College-Community Orchestra, and is also a member of the Knoxville Symphony Orchestra.

Miss Weston is a Senior trombonist and a native of Maryville. She is a sophomore and will be making her conducting debut with the Band tonight. She is a conducting major and has been with the Band three years, having toured with it her senior year in high school.

Scots Even Record

The Maryville College Scots' baseball team moved to a season's record of 11-11 this past week as they won three and lost three for the week. The results include a split of a double-hitter with Cumberland, winning 6-4 and losing the nightcap 3-2; and a respectable 4-2 loss to Tennessee.

Maryville's mauling of Clinch Valley on Friday saw the Scots pound out 18 hits as Glenn Doig won his second game of the season. The big blow in the game was a grand-slam home run by Mark Brooks in the seventh inning.

However, the Scots were fired up for Monday's return game against Tennessee. After a humiliating 26-4 defeat earlier in the season at Knoxville, the Scots were ready for revenge on home soil. The Vols scored two runs in the first on two walks, a ground out, and an error, but Glenn Doig kept them hitless for seven innings before Len Honeycut lead off the eighth with a single. Tennessee scored two more runs that inning to provide the difference in the game.

Larsen Places in TIAC

The Maryville College tennis team completed its season this past weekend, 4-5 May, competing in the annual Tennessee Intercollegeiate Athletic Conference tennis championship meet held at Chattanooga.

MC's Craig Larsen, a freshman, finished second in the tournament, playing in the number three singles division. This is the highest ranking any Maryville College player has achieved in many years.

Echo Letters Continued

defeats the purpose of "Community Issues and Values." If that was an "issue" our "community" "values", then we're in sad shape. It was merely a waste of time and certainly not worth getting up for. If Maryville College is in such dire need of money, and in use of every tricky tactic to squeeze the bills and coins out of the students, how could they so blatantly waste this money that supposedly goes towards the bettering of our education? It if quite obvious that students HATE CIV and to impose such a high number of CIV's on us that we have to go to is really a slap in the face. We must spend at least $200 or $300 a week on CIV and that amounts to about $6500 a year, to say the least. There is so much room for improvement around here and with sufficient funds much could be accomplished. This money is desperately needed (the Art Department is a prime example) and it's a shame to see it so wasted. But try to present a suggestion relating to this to ACC and see how far you get...not far.

It is true that some CIV's are well worth the effort. If we could have just several of these a year, they would be appreciated and worthwhile to the students, instead of wasting so much time and money in the meantime. Perhaps a system of attending a certain number per year could be maintained but not to such restricting and ridiculous heighths as they are now.

Our administration wonders why students leave Maryville and why there is discontent within the members of the student body. CIV is one of the answers. Dip that in your bucket, MC.

Just sign me,

Cowan's Interests Violated

Sign Your Rambling

To the Editor:

Although I question the amount of the impact of unsigned letters to the Echo, I would suggest that in the future such letters not be printed. Why should space be given to these egotistic ramblings of one who feels he or she must hide personal feelings in the guise of representing a large number of students?

As one of the many members of the so-called spineless faculty and staff who spends a considerable amount of time administering to the needs of "ignored" students, I do have the guts to sign this letter to the Editor.

William A. Ribble

CHANGE DOES TAKE TIME

To the Editor:

In reference to last week's letter to the editor concerning M.C. campus life, the Dynasty, whoever they are, must be narrowminded introverts! Their basic thesis condemned every aspect of the college environment. If they are so disgusted as it appears, I firmly agree with them that they follow the first of their two alternatives - leave. That seems to be the only means by which they would be happy. But that is a harsh move. There is another possibility which they have totally ignored–trying to understand the Maryville College community.

Maryville College is whatever a student puts into it. It is as simple as that. For clarifications sake I will explain this basic premise.

Concerning the "imitative democracy" of the institution, I just wonder if the author(s) of the letter have ever participated in a "democratic" assemblage–very little gets accomplished in a long period of time; just look at any democratic institution. To change does take time. There will always be conflicting views and necessary compromises. But that's what a democracy is–to safeguard all participants in the community. When there is such an abstract ideal which must be dealt with, then there are problems in getting programs instituted and achieved. The college is no different.

When the Dynasty described the faculty, I can't help but wonder if they have ever attempted to communicate with various faculty members. The faculty here, I feel, is very much interested in the students. If a student takes time to be friendly, the faculty member usually does likewise. Often professors will even go out of their ways to help a student. How many students will do the same? Will the Dynasty? I doubt it!

In the framework of the curriculum an opportunity is provided for the student to investigate an area of study which may interest him. There's the "Individual Study Course," "Independent Study," and "Interims Projects." As in any work there must be some signs of development, but that seems to be essentially the only criteris. The faculty, at least the people whom I have dealt with, have welcomed a student who takes on an interest to study a particular field no available in normal course offerings.

When the Dynasty begins to describe the Administration, the question arises as to whether they have to a large degree dealt with the staff and administration in Anderson on a personal basis.

If people will become more open to hearing diverse opinions and act in a conventional manner to get things accomplished, then actions and changes do come about. There are concepts as diplomacy and compromise. Often they come in handy.

I firmly believe that the administration, staff, and faculty are willing to listen. I think they have been waiting for concrete ideas which can be put into effect. They don't want to see Maryville College falter. But, they must have a chance to perform.

Maryville College does have to change many of its views. That can be done. All that is necessary is to first see what Maryville College is, understand it as it is, then proceed to reform it through conventional means.

"Absolutely" sincere,

Janet Vail

Reaction and Suggestions

To the Editor:

Major problems at Maryville are usually dealt with by vague accusations and ambigious remarks. Continuing in this tradition The Dynasty refused to accept personal responsibility by failing to identify themselves in last week's letter to the Echo. Were the unclarified comments and unsigned letter the result of fear of reprisal or simple bitterness?

The intent of the letter is good. Maryville must be aware of her problems and solve them. It is unfair and ineffective to make broad accusations. All members of our community should be able to face each other and deal with their differences without losing their basic respect.

Furthermore, The Dynasty's vague call to action is weak, almost to the point of being useless. It is not enough to say "It seems to be a matter of personal involvement, of caring." If you have grievances you must flat-out do something about them. Change does not came about by solely being concerned. It necessitates positive action.

Instead of wasting energy and promoting ill will between faculty, admonistration, and the student body, we, as a community, must strive to deal with real problems. We need to eliminate college regulations that do not reflect the needs of our community; establish intellectual integrity among students and faculty; and reorganize our governing bodies to better reflect the composition of our community.

Maryville should concern itself with providing an atmosphere conducive for the intellectual and personal development of individuals. It is not a responsibility of the college to shape students to fit preconceived norms of behavior. Drug and alcohol usage should be determined by individuals. The college, or the state for that matter, should only be concerned when that usage hurts or limits the freedoms of other individuals. With such a large percentage of marijuana users in the Maryville community, the continued enforcement of marijuana laws helps to promote disrespect for all law and authority.

Maryville College housing policy should realize that off-campus housing meets the social, intellectual, and developmental needs os some students better than dorm residency. Instead of coming up with excuses such as Federal grants on dormitories which requires a certain percentage of occupancy etc., the community should be creative enough to find adequate solutions to these peoples needs. Urging students to transfer is a totally uncreative solution to this problem.

A short range solution is for all students who wish to live off campus to organize. Maryville is responsible for our education, not the way or where we live our individual lives. A long range solution to this problem is not to build more new dorms than are needed. We must stop building for the sake of projected growth and external show. Our emphasis should be on the quality of education and not on the physical plant.

Maryville must work to improve the marketability of Maryville College graduates. I am not advocating the sell-out of the liberal arts. However, certain elective courses could be added to the curriculum which could develop skills needed in the business and professional communities. Perhaps, the college could develop an on-the-job training program with local businesses.

The elimination of comprehensive examinations in their present form is something we must do something about now instead of waiting until next year's annual April crisis. Classes are small enough to eliminate the need for comprehensive testing in a major area. Professors know students well enough by their senior year at Maryville to come up with an evaluation without having to rediscover student retention by way of an exam. The evil of Comps is that they promote cramming and needless anxiety. Students worry more about a grade than about gaining an over-all understanding of their major area.

Comps should be optional. Then they would be something positive; for example, a way for some students to raise their grade point average. If we must have Comps, then at least they can be creative-see Bill Flurkey's letter in last week's Echo. In my own major, history, I would really like something to tie it all together. Comps are supposed to do this, but do not. A better way of accomplishing this objective would be to have a comparative history seminar offered sometime in the Junior or preferably in the Senior year. I am sure other departments could find their own creative way of dealing with the Comprehensive Examinations.

The football program at Maryville is good. However, football here, as at other colleges, uses up a disproportionate share of school funds and, probably more importantly, coaches time than is fair to the majority of the student body. Maryville needs to concentrate on making students participators rather than spectators. We must rechannel our energies and funds to take this into account. This criticism also applies to the music and drama programs.

Maryville must re-establish and maintain its intellectual integrity by eliminating cheating in our classes. The formation of an ethics committee and an honor code requiring us to turn our friends in would be worse than the evil of cheating. However, the faculty could design and proctor tests sufficiently to discourage cheating.

To bring all these changes about, a reorganization of our governing body, the ACC, is needed. Nominees to the ACC must be determined by ability and responsiveness to the total community needs instead of the present method which is weighted against the progressive elements in our school.

The faculty may very well be "spineless" and the administration "inept, inefficient, and inadequate," but that is only a small portion of our community. For a school most of what it is, MC is determined by the make-up and actions of the student body. If the faculty and administration are "spineless" and "inept," so much more are we the real substance and product of the institution. The college community is the way it is at any given time the way we (students) want it to be. Words, including my own are valueless divorced from action. Consequently, to alter the situation we must act and act positively now.

Chuck Pardue

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
529 Western Phone 523-4158

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 58, No.24 | Maryville College, Maryville Tennessee | 18 May 1973

Walkers Enjoy Sun

Under sunny skies, the second annual Blount County Walk for Development raised a sum total of two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars to be spent for a Blount County Community Van, the American Freedom from Hunger Foundation, Nigerian rice mills, the rural advancement in Thailand, and an Indian hunger project in Mexico. Walkers of all ages participated in this twenty and one-half mile hike throughout the Maryville-Alcoa communities on Saturday, 12 May.

Among the walkers, fifty MC students and seven faculty members registered for the walk. One hundred eighteen walkers completed the entire route through the surrounding communities. The oldest walker was Odessie Messer, age sixty, and the youngest was one and one-half year old Emily Young, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David P. Young who managed to be carried for most of the tour. Congressman John J. Duncan began the walk while Randy Schaurer and Andy Banas of the MC community ran the entire route.

To top the day off, the American Red Cross graciously donated five hundred bandaids to the ailing walkers along the winding route throughout various neighborhoods of Maryville-Alcoa.

Summer Playhouse Tryouts Scheduled

Auditions for the Maryville Summer Playhouse production of Little Miss Sunshine will be held in the MC Theatre Monday, 21 May at 7:30 p.m.

The musical comedy by Rick Besoyan is a gentle satire on old-fashioned operattas which delighted audiences in the first quarter of this century.

Little Miss Sunshine is scheduled for production on 21, 22, 23, and 25 June 1973.

Four Faculty Granted Sabbaticals

Four Maryville College faculty members have been granted sabbatical leaves for the 1973-74 academic year.

Robert Bonham, assistant professor of music, was granted leave for the entire year to work toward a doctorate in fine arts at Ohio University in Athens, Ohio.

Ralph Collins, professor and chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages, will be on leave the fall and interim terms. Dr. Collins will travel in Germany and France to bring himself up to date on the most recent social and intellectual developments in those countries.

Harry H. Harter, professor and chairman of the Department of Fine Arts, will study in Europe during the fall and interim terms. He will visit several outstanding choral groups, libraries and museums.

Edith Largen, associate professor of physical education, will take the fall and interim terms to study in the area of recreation at Florida State University, Tallahassee, Florida.

Play Runs Through Saturday

The Broadway hit Butterflies Are Free, which opened last night, will be presented tonight, 18 May and Saturday, 19 May, in the College theatre. Show time 8:15 p.m.

Thomas E. Jones, Philip Gibson, and Blair Beasly are directing the production of this Leonard Gershe comedy.

Pictured in a scene from the show are Janet Walker, Robert March, and Betsy Moore, respectively.

Madrigals to Honor Tau Kappa Chi

The Maryville College Madrigal Singers will honor eleven new members of honorary music society Tau Kappa Chi with a concert Thursday evening, 24 May, at 8:15 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall.

Tau Kappa Chi is an organization of students who are known for their competence in music, both in studying and performing it. Members must earn a 3.00 average in all music courses undertaken in a year. They must also perform either as a soloist or with a musical group—unless they wish to organize and direct a high school or college group instead.

The music faculty, which elects Tau Kappa Chi's new members, chose two new seniors—David Bedell and Lana Grubis. They chose six juniors: Kathy Bentzel, Roxann Goshorn, Michael Minnix, Rhonda Mitchell, Ellen Myers, and Cheryl Swartz. They also chose three sophomores: Pam Gnagy, Melanie Kohn, and Lynn Yeatts.

The new Tau Kappa Chi members will be honored by a form of singing that dates back to the 15th century. Madrigal groups, which are usually composed of close to a dozen singers, first appeared in Italy. By the 16th century they had spread to England and France.

The early madrigal groups entertained the noble, educated classes. Often sev-

continued on page 4

Steele Leaves MC, Presents Last Show

Three years and over 140 performances later, Philip Steele is leaving Maryville College. Just as any concert, however brilliant, however beautiful, has to end eventually, so does our association with an affiliate artist. Yet, again like a good concert, warm memories and a little part of that brilliance and beauty are left behind.

Mr. Philip Steele

Mr. Steele, a lyric bass, has performed countless functions in his role of affiliate artist. He has been a recruiter and an ambassador of good will as well as a channel through which many of us have seen what it means to be a professional artist.

After graduating from Julliard School of Music, Mr. Steele spent two years in the United States Army, then began in earnest his career in classical singing. Working out of his home base in New York, he has auditioned, taught, and performed widely in this country and abroad.

Mr. Steele's last performance at MC under the affiliate artist program was Wednesday's lecture-demonstration on The Development of the Dramatic in Opera. Using arias as illustration, he talked about the stages involved in music-theatre productions, moving through motivation, characterization, music and the voice, and the integration of all the elements.

In talking about his term as affiliate artist, Mr. Steele expressed a deep satisfaction with the achievements of the program. "If I were rating the program on a scale of 100, I'd say we were 125% effective in achieving our objectives," he said. Mr. Steele also said he was very grateful for all the cooperation and support he received from the people at MC, especially the music faculty.

Although there is no information available on the continuation of the affiliate in the past six years with Karen Roewade and Mr. Steele should indicate that the program filled a need and was well-received. If we can now branch out into other areas such as dance or theatre, using the knowledge and experience we have gained, we could perhaps create even greater understanding and communication between the artist, the learning institution, and the society at large.

Annual Seeks HELP

Can you crop a picture, design a layout, take a photograph, or just be enthusiastic about work on an annual? Well then, the 1973-74 Chilhowean needs your help. If you are interested, please contact Sarah Hardrath in person or through Box 2579 by the end of the term.

Letters to the Echo

There Are No Problems

To the Editor:

In recent issues of the Echo letters, signed and unsigned, have criticized Maryville College. I cannot understand. A community such as ours where individuality is respected and encouraged, where every consideration of the needs of members is given, should have room for nothing but love in its heart and mind.

What puzzles me most is the stir caused by unsigned letters. Surely, it is a stain on the community if even one member fears reprisal for his thoughts or seeks not to acknowledge himself in his anger. In our Christian relationships, do we not respect each others' thoughts, even if we disagree?

It is the attributes of our leaders which have brought Maryville College to its state today. Their love of personhood for themselves, each other, and us has given us our wondrously free society.

Thank God for our present state of goodness. Our next step is GREATNESS.

A child of God

Another Cass of Harrassment

To the Editor:

Once again the issue of the "responsible and capable employee of Maryville College," as Mr. Roth and Miss Smith put it, must be brought into focus. I refer, to those of you who aren't familiar with the case, to the campus policeman who allegedly harrassed one of the students.

I was also harrassed twice by this man, each time in the company of other M.C. students. The case of who is right is not as important as the clear-cut case of improper attitude on his part. He called us "boy" and "hoss" and made it clear that, if he wanted to, he could make it rough on us. In each case we were courteous and scared of him.

I realize this man must carry out his duty—we need law enforcement on this campus; but the attitude with which he carries out this duty should be revamped. He should instill a feeling of friendship, understanding, and respect instead of hostility and fear in our minds. This would make for a better rapport between students and him.

Rob Kaniper

Open Letter to MC

To the Students, Faculty, and Administration:

There still seems to be considerable confusion about the letters which come to me for print. Many people have the misconception that the unsigned letters which are printed come to me unsigned. This is not the case.

All letters which have been printed in the Echo so far have been signed, and have asked to either withhold their name or print it anyway. All letters must clearly inditicate the authorship. All letters are held in the strictest confidence if they are to be unsigned. And all letters are considered with or without a name to be printed.

As I have cautiously said, this policy of my editorship will not chamge. Criticism, whether it be constructive or just asking the right questions, needs to flow continuously among this entire community. I have heard in recent weeks many complaints about the letters and the policy to withhold names, but if you disagree with something in the Echo, tell me to my face. Write it down instead of sitting back and accusing me of poor journalism.

Lyn Stanley

Editor

Administrative Dollar Signs

To the Editor:

I am writing in regard to the many responses brought about by the letter from The Dynasty. First, several letters commented on how "spineless" and cowardly those people were for not signing their letters, and whether their unsigned letters were a result of a fear of reprisal, or simple bitterness. Well, what does a faculty member or administrator have to be afraid of when he/she signs a published letter? Nothing, except a little campus criticism. The student, on the other hand, is from this college, and I feel the signing of certain letters would certainly not help them in the least. I found Chuck Pardue's letter in last week's issue very well written, and he seemed very concerned with the future of Maryville College, as I am sure The Dynasty was also.

I am a freshman here at MC and as far as I am concerned, the students want a change and are willing to speak out for it as we have seen.

I like the faculty of this school very much, and will not criticize them for any of the present rules or laws, for I am sure they too want some changes. It is the administration however, that I feel should make the first move. They should remove the big dollar signs from its eyes and start thinking of ways to make this school a more suitable place of learning, living, and communicating.

Yours truly,

Michael Panepento

from the editor's desk

The Home Stretch Cries

The home stretch of this year is finally here for most of us. In a mere two weeks or so, this campus will be packing up for the summer and heading home. This time of year is always full of joy, but there is also much sadness right at this moment for many of us.

Even though a majority of this community usually can find something to complain about, the long awaited end of the school year is here upon us. Many of our senior friends will not be back. Many other faces of MC will be missing next year for one reason or another. But for those of us who will be back, we should not let the many ills of MC which always come to surface during Spring Term every year die away during the summer months.

These things should not slip our minds again next year as they have done to every other returning community. For a change, we, the students, the faculty, and the staff of Maryville College should make an all-out effort to actively participate in all campus affairs. It is only through our collective efforts that the many ills of MC can be cured.

The All College Council is not the student-staff-administration governing body it could be. There is little, if any, significant community response to the proceedings of the council this year. The alcohol question, for instance, has been in consideration since late October, but due to insufficient community response it is going to slip from our finger tips this year as the ACC's year draws to a close.

The social activities planned for this campus are very few and far between now. This again is due to a lack of concern and interest by all factions of the community. But a good portion of MC would much rather sit back and grumble because there is nothing done around here instead of asserting their voice of active participation.

Many may think it is too late to seek change this year. It is never too late. Begin now the active campaign to obtain your personal desires and dreams. Make the college work for you. If it's not working now, you better examine yourself before you slash out against the whole world. But then again, if you see a problem, begin now to correct it. It is only through your collective efforts that MC can change for the better and survive in the future.

Academically Speaking

by Robert Bonham

I have divided my thoughts into two groups, those academic and those non-academic. First, "speaking academically", the Music Department has recently formalized a distinction between our two degrees that will provide an avenue for those interested in music but who are unwilling to perform public recitals. While the Bachelor of Music degree does require public performance, the Bachelor or Arts with a major in Music substitutes an independent reading program for the performance requirement. (Performance will continue to be encouraged.) This new distinction will appeal especially to those who are interested in the many non-performing areas of the music business, such as: music librarians; music specialists in radio, television, and motion pictures; music therapists in hospitals and schools for the retarded and handicapped; music publishers; and those who sell musical instruments, accessories, and music used by millions of consumers. In addition, many communities and states maintain music associations which require experienced and well-trained staffs.

Speaking non-academically, several of us have recently speculated on what we might be able to accomplish in our programs were we not restricted by money. One thought reoccurs. The imagination, willingness to take risks, and the will to learn, student or faculty, is infinitely more valuable than things that money buys. Those who want to learn will do so, because of or in spite of a program. Recently 60 Minutes on CBS featured an old gentleman living in near poverty deep in the Southern woods. But he reads. The walls of his shack are lined from floor to ceiling with books. When asked why, he replied: "There is so much that I don't know."

Another non-academic thought is based on "Right and Left Thinking" from the May issue of Psychology Today. This article describes research indicating that the right hemisphere of the brain tends to be responsible for artistic talents and physical orientation, while the left hemisphere tends to deal with logical and linear functions. One would simply suggest that we would do ourselves an injustice in our total program if we ignore half of the brain.

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr. Lay-out Editor- Sarah Winbigler
Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler Business Manager- Allen Bunge

Writers—N. Bostock, C. Boughman, C. Craven, C. D'Aquila, S. Douglas, P. Hicks, R. Kaniper, B. Lewis, M. Montgomery, W. Rutledge, P. Shelton, F. Strohl

Photographer—T. Fox

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other news items should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, or the College Administration.

two civ's

Berry Speaks

This morning, May 18, Dr. Cornelius Oliver Berry, Assistant Professor of Systematic Theology, will speak at CIV. Born in New York City and attending the public schools there, Dr. Berry graduated from the City College of New York in 1946 with the B.A. majoring in philosophy. Three years later he graduated from Union Theological seminary with the B.D. degree. He spent one year in the East Harlem Protestant Parish and then became pastor of the Mt. Carmel Presbyterian Church in Newark, New Jersey. He served there for nine years and then returned to serve for two years as pastor of the St. Alban's Presbyterian Church.

In 1961 Dr. Berry accepted a position on the staff of the United Presbyterian Board of Christian Education in Philadelphia where he developed and edited adult education materials. In 1965 he went to Alma College in Alama, Michigan as College Chaplain and Assistant Professor of Religion. In 1969 he came to the faculty of San Francisco Seminary in the Department of Systematic Theology. In 1970 he earned the Ph.D. degree from Columbia University. His dissertation topic was "The Concept of the Self in John Dewey and John Macmurray: A Summary Critique."

Dr. Cornelius O. Berry

Fine Arts Displays Work

This coming Wednesday, May 23, special projects from Fine Arts 201 will be featured for CIV. These are some of the outstanding creative projects that were prepared for the course. These projects were individual and original efforts in the performing and graphic arts. Due to the suggestion of several students and faculty who felt that the experience deserved to be shared with the entire campus, it was decided that it should be presented as a CIV program.

Some projects to be presented include: Lynn Brown—brass quartet composed by computer; Jane Beth Markley—slides; Robert Millner—piano composition; Tina Bergner—song; Sue Mehaffy—piano composition; Sue Meier—puppets; Margaret Dickerson—piano composition; Lois Allen—poetry; Martha Day and Maureen Meade—dance and others.

Rhodes Publishes Article

Dr. Gale Rhodes of the Maryville College Chemistry Department is a co-author of a research paper published in the March issue of Analytical Biochemistry.

Research for the paper was conducted while Dr. Rhodes was a graduate student and postdoctoral fellow at the University of North Carolina. The paper describes a tachnique that can be used in the chemical analysis of proteins.

Maryville Menu

Friday May 18	COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Dr. Cornelius Berry, professor of theology at San Francisco Theological Seminary, will speak on "How It Feels To Be Black in White America. Wilson Chapel, 9:20 a.m. NATIONAL PREP-VOLLEYBALL TOURNAMENT: Involves teams from 25 Eastern U. S. high schools who will be on campus this afternoon through Saturday night. MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE: BUTTERFLIES ARE FREE. Theatre, 8:15 p.m., $2.00.
Saturday May 19	MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE: BUTTERFLIES ARE FREE.
Sunday May 20	PHI MU ALPHA SINFONIA CONCERT: Music Hall, 2:00 p.m. VESPERS: Chaplain Harrison will lead the service, which will feature "The String Bean." Little Chapel, 8:00 p.m.
Monday May 21	STUDENT RECITAL: Music Hall, 7:00 p.m.
Tuesday May 22	SENIOR RECITAL: Dave Bedell, calrinet. Music Hall, 8:15 p.m. BIBLE STUDY: Little Chapel, 9:30 p.m. COMMUNION: The Rev. Buford Kaylor, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, will preside. Little Chapel, 10:30 p.m.
Wednesday May 23	COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: "Let's Communicate with an Artist," featuring creative projects from Fine Arts 201. Wilson Chapel, 9:20 a.m. ALL-COLLEGE COUNCIL MEETING: Open to spectators. Room 304 Anderson Hall, 2:30 p.m.
Thursday May 24	WORSHIP: Little Chapel, 8:40 a.m. MADRIGALS CONCERT: The Maryville College Madrigal Singers will present a program honoring Tau Kappa Chi. Music Hall, 8:15 p.m.
Friday May 25	SENIOR RECITAL: Stanley Jack, piano. Music Hall, 8:15 p.m. DANCE RECITAL: Featuring the Van Metre School of Dance. Several MC senior advanced students will perform. Theatre, 8:15 p.m. $1.25. IN KNOXVILLE: The Temptations. Knoxville Civic Coliseum, 8:00 p.m. Tickets: $4.00, $5.00, $6.00 at Coliseum Box Office.

Larsen, Brown Netmen Standouts

Winning four of their last five matches, the Maryville College tennis team narrowly missed a .500 season, finishing with eight wins and nine losses.

Coach Kardatzke's netmen outscored their opponents 85-68 over the long run, but one point losses early in the season to Eckerd College and Emory & Henry College prevented the Scots from posting a winning season.

Three players consistently hit win column for the Scots this season, freshmen Craig Larsen and Sutton Brown, and senior Steve Rael. Larsen finished 11-6 on the season and captured second place in the TIAC singles division number three. Sutton Brown stood out both in singles play, where he was 12-5, and in doubles competition, as he played with Richard Gaunt and Leland Blackwood to finish with an impressive 13-4 record. Steve Rael, playing exciting tennis, won eleven matches while losing only six. Both Rael and Brown captured third place trophies in the TIAC this year. Brown is also a co-holder with Richard Guant of a fourth TIAC trophy for Maryville this year, awarded for their third place achievement in doubles play.

Senior Tony Willis, playing number one, finished with a 7-10 won/lost slate. Number two Skip Vessels completed the season 6-11. Richard Guant was 5-5, while Leland Blackwood, playing only part of the season, was 2-5.

Sutton Brown

In doubles play the Willis-Larsen duo won nine and lost eight as did the Vessels-Rael combination. Brown-Guant/Blackwood carried the team's best record 13-4.

Coach K will lose three of his top six players to graduation before next season. These men are Tony Willis, Steve Rael, and Richard Guant. Skip Vessesl will return next season as will Coach K's freshmen flashes, Craig Larsen and Sutton Brown.

Leng Stars as Gridder

Maryville College football fans were treated to a fine display of offensive power by team A as they overwhelmingly defeated team B 24-0 in the 4th annual "Powderpuff" football game last Friday evening on Honaker field.

Although poor field conditions and the threat of rain hampered the play and the turnout, the fans saw team A take a 6-0 lead midway through the second quarter when Sue Mehaffey connected with Robyn Leng on a short touchdown pass to get the scoring started. The conversion attempt was no good and the score stood 6-0 at halftime.

Robyn Leng

The start of the second half saw team A's defense dominate much of the play as Stephanie Crane batted down two team B passes in a row, which forced them into a punting situation. Team A then took over and once again quarterback Sue Mehaffey ran for a first down then threw to Robyn Leng for the second score of the evening. The conversion attempt again failed and the score at the end of the third quarter stood at 12-0.

Early in the 4th quarter a pass interference call on team A gave team B excellent field position and a first and ten deep in team A territory. Howeve their drive was quickly thwarted when Jean Earhardt grabbed an interceptio and ran all the way in unchallenged for the score. Team A then made the extra point attempt but a holding penalty quickly nullified it, and the score stood at 18-0. Team B then received the kickoff and made a desperate attempt to get on the scoreboard. They proceeded to march dow deep into team A territory late in the fourth quarter only to be stopped by a strong and stubborn team A defense then took over and on their second play from scrimmage quarterback Mehaffey ran it over from inside team B's 5 yard line for the final score of the evening. The try for the extra point was again no good and the final score stood at 24-0.

Clyde Byers is forcefully pushed into the May Madness mud hole.

Insanity Strikes MC

by Nan Bostock

Being a rather naive freshman, the stories I was told about May Madness had me running a little scared. When I received the assignment to cover the event, I swallowed hard and weakly said I would.

The fateful day came. I found the grungiest clothes I had in my possesion, put them on, and wandered down to the field warily.

When I arrived things were beginning to happen. The bed race was about to start, so I found a comfortable spot in the grass among the rest of the spectators, whipped out my trusty notebook, and started to write.

I sat out all of the games claiming I was too tired. People inquired as to what I was writing, to which I replied that I was doing a report on how people release tension. When a friend managed to break the egg all over the front of her shirt in the egg toss, I almost died laughing. Even more enlightening was when one guy chased a girl and dumped pie on her head for laughing at him.

When the tug of war broke up after a couple of games, I knew that I had better take off for other places. I had heard a number of rumors of people getting dunked in the mudhole, and I didn't want to be one of them.

Counselors Announced

The following Senior Counselors and Sophomore Aides have been selected for Dorm 1 and Davis:

Davis

Senior Counselors	Sophomore Aides
Nancy Adams	Mary Apetz
Martha Browne	Linda Barras
Manolia Crosby	Stephanie Crane
Trigger Graham	Beth Fountain
Princess Hicks	Sally Gillespie
Jennifer Hiers	Gwen Guba
Merida Kearns-Preston	Patricia Johnson
Laura O'Dwyer	Nandy Keller
Geneva Parker	Maggie Miller
Barbara Rumplik	Shada Overton
Denise Smith	Kristine Rutledge
Patrada Thisyamondol	Ann Weaver
	Brenda Wilson

Dorm 1

Senior Counselors	Sophomore Aides
Linda Blomeke	Debbie Coppage
Beth Buchanan	Lynn Houlbert
Chris D'Aquila	Patricia Jones
Kathy Devey	Barbara Anne Kerr
Roxann Goshorn	Kathy Kirkhart
Marla Hoskins	Sheryl Lay
Carol Johnson	Peggy Leatherwood
Jean McArthur	Melissa Mitchell
Jane Beth Markley	Chris Nassir
Eliska Miller	Suzanne Phillips
Anna Ruth Prochazka	Pamela Sue Thomson
Sarah Winbigler	Chris Timko

Pearsons

Sarah Hardrath	Roger Reiter

The following Resident Assistants have been selected for next year. Sophomore Aides will be announced later.

Memorial Hall

Earl McMahan	Skellie Morris
Bruce Miller

Carnegie Hall

John Ballard	Clayton (Skip) Ringler
Paul Naylor	Todd Trumbore

Dorm 111

Bill Harra	Matt Pacifico
Lonnie Lee	John Poore
Jim Lester	Tom Radice
Rick Livernoise	Paul Schultz
Tom Martin	Peter Vial
Bill Nuss

Madrigals

continued from page 1

eral groups would compete to determine who could sing the most difficult music. They would usually sing after a feast. In keeping with this tradition, the Maryville Madrigals will be seated around a table during the concert. They will also wear costumes of the period.

The twelve members that compose Maryville College's first Madrigal group since 1965 are: Christina Bergner, Linda Sutton, and Jean Tiffany, sopranos; Merida Kearns-Preston, Judy Loeffler, and Mary Kaye Sanders, altos; Allen Bunge, Charles Craven, and Wayne Davis, basses. Dr. Harry H. Harter is the director.

The program will include original madrigal selections by Palestrina, Gesualdo, Passereau, and Morely. In addition, singers Lana Grubis, Nancy Adams, Randy Hunter, and Fred Frost will join the Madrigal Singers to perform a group of love-song waltzes by Brahms. Mr. and Mrs. Victor Schoen will play the four hand piano accompaniment.

Scots Drop Two, Win one

Coach Boydson Baird's Maryville College baseball team played three games this past week as they won one and lost two. The lone victory was a 9-6 decision at Emory and Henry in the second game of a double-header on Saturday. The Wasps won the first game, 4-3. The Scots suffered a setback last Thursday as they bowed to Clinch Valley, 18-7, in a game played at Appalacian, Virginia. Through last weekend, the Scots had a season record of 12-15. Two more games against Emory and Henry were scheduled for this past Wednesday.

The Scots were expecting another easy game with Clinch Valley last Thursday, since they had been 18-0 victors the week before. However, strong pitching from the Cavalier's Les Moore stymied the Maryville bats, although the Scots did have a five-run ninth lining.

Jim Lester and Paul Viggiano each had two hits. Viggiano, Paul Schultz, and Steve Leng each drove in two runs.

The first game at Emory and Henry saw the two teams go into the bottom of the seventh inning tied at 3-3. With one out, two singles off Rob Randall brought around the Virginians' winning run. Dave Clinton's fourth homer of the season started a big Maryville second. Lester and Tom Kleppe each contributed two hits. It was a wonder that Kleppe even played, since he had suffered a recurrence of malaria earlier in the week.

The nightcap saw the Scots get off to a fast lead. In the first inning with two men aboard, Earl McMahon socked his first homer of the season. Although the Wasps did make several scoring threats after that, they could not tie or gain the lead on the Scots. Glenn Doig won his third game of the season as he went all the way for the Scots. Clinton paced the hitting attack as he stroked three singles.

Bedell Presents Recital

David Bedell, a senior clarinet major from Olean, New York, will present his senior recital on Tuesday, 22 May in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall. He is principal clarinet in both the Highlander Band and the Maryville College-Community Orchestra, and has recently appeared as a soloist with the Orchestra.

Lewis Accepts Invitation

Dr. Wallace L. Lewis, associate professor of history at Maryville College, has been invited to participate in a history of socialism seminar at Duke University this summer.

The seminar is designed for college history teachers whose teaching and scholarly interests are in fields related in some way to the history of socialism. Participants will have full access to the major research libraries of Duke and the nearby University of North Carolina; as well as all other university facilities.

The seminar will focus on the history of socialism as a field of humanistic and scholarly endeavor and on how this field can be presented to undergraduate students effectively.

Job Opportunity in Admissions

Any senior interested in being considered for a position in the Admissions Office for the next academic year please see George Kramer in Anderson Hall. It would be helpful if you made an appointment for such an interview.

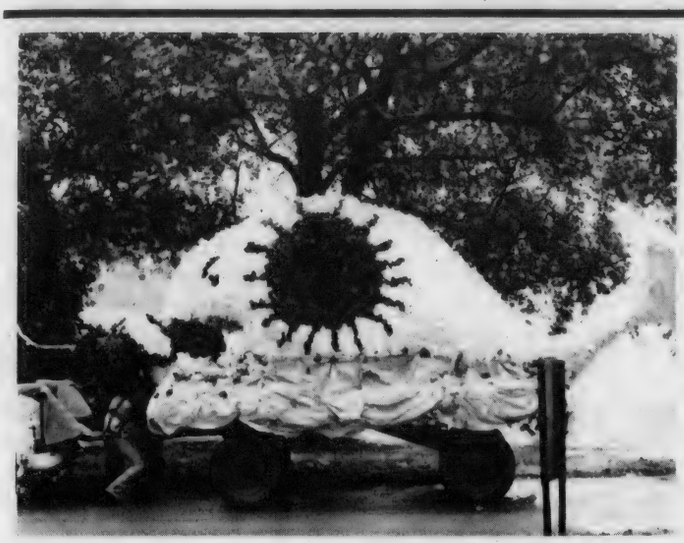
Ms. Martha Anderson

Anderson Presents Recital

Martha Anderson, a part-time instructor in woodwinds at Maryville College, presented her faculty recital last Monday evening, 14 May, in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall.

Ms. Anderson, a clarinet specialist, has a varied background in her instrument. After graduating from East Tennessee State University with a B. S. in Music Education, she studied clarinet under a specialist from the Peabody Conservatory in Boston. From 1969 to 1970 she taught clarinet and directed bands for the Knoxville City Schools.

In addition to teaching at Maryville, Ms. Anderson teaches woodwinds at the Oak Ridge City Schools and performs with the Knoxville Symphony Orchestra.



Her program consisted of three works by Brahms, Debussy, and Mozart. Her accompanists were Terry Raines, a part-time piano instructor at MC, Linda Rowe, a violist who graduated from MC last year, and Robert Bonham, pianist and assistant professor of music at Maryville.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

1973 - 1974

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 1 | Maryville College, Maryville Tennessee | 7 September 1973

Fall

Winter

Spring

Miss Ware Retires

Saga Food Services Begin

After 150,000 hours of work, more than 23 million meals served under her direction, and 40 years of knowing nothing but preparing three meals a day seven days a week, Miss Margaret S. Ware has ended her long reign over the Maryville College kitchen. For the first time since the fall of 1934, a September will pass without Miss Ware's being faced with another flock of students to keep fed for nine months. Not only that, she says this will be "the first year since I was sixteen years old I will be able to spend Thanksgiving at home."

"You know," she says, "I feel as if I was born in this kitchen. I really can't remember my life before coming here."

Where is "home" for Miss Ware? She will live in a house she has owned for several years in Forest City, North Carolina. Up to now she has only seen it during her brief summer, Christmas, and spring vacations from Maryville.

How does she feel about giving it all up? She admits it is something of a shame that she won't get to enjoy the new facilities, having struggled so long with the rebuilding. But she is happy to be rid of the intense pressure. "I've never had time on my hands before," she says, which is one reason why she isn't sure of how she will spend her retirement. "I don't have hobbies like sewing or knitting to fall back on. I feel as if I've just stepped aboard a ship that's now leaving shore, and I don't know where it's taking me. I'll just ride it and see what happens."

But she does have one thing planned. If she comes to miss Maryville too much, she will come back to visit a few weeks, when she will, among other things, "go to the lectures, the concerts, the recitals, and all the other things I've never had time for."

The responsibility of feeding Maryville College Students now rests with Saga Food Service, which has been in charge since the football students returned. The Saga resident manager who supervises the kitchen is Mr. Paul Fraedrich, from Phoenix, Arizona. The student supervisor working under Mr. Fraedrich is Kay Hurlbut. Student workers will continue to be employed.

Saga will provide buffet service with unlimited quantities on all food and drinks, except the gourmet entrees. A regular and a continental breakfast, as well as nine special meals a year, will be featured.

We can expect at least two changes. First, students must bring ID cards to meals, as the food service will use some type of daily checking system to identify students who are paying for meals. Secondly, food may not be carried out of the dining room. Meals may be carried to a sick student, a procedure which the head resident must certify.

Work Opportunities

Any student who has filed application for a student job and has not received notice of an assignment should make inquiry at the Financial Aid Office.

continued on page 4

Maryville Summer Playhouse

Presents Oliver

Due to the tremendous response of audiences to the Maryville Summer Playhouse production of Lionel Bart's musical Oliver, an additional performance has been slated for Monday, 10 September at 8:00 p.m. in the Maryville College Theatre. This performance is also being given as part of the Orientation program for the opening of the 1973-74 academic year at Maryville College.

Thomas E. Jones, director of Theatre at Maryville College is directing Oliver! Mrs. Don Brakebill and Jerry Guinn produce the music of this rich, melodic score, and Mr. Jones designed the costumes and set for the production.

Tickets are now on sale for this single performance on Monday, 10 September by calling 982-2911 or purchasing them at the door. The performance begins at 8:00 p.m. and are $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students.

WELCOME ALL STUDENTS

From the Admissions Office

Faith Baird
Lindy Harris
Matt Couzens
Sarah Miller
Rich Ziegler

Career Planning

Career planning and placement will be the concern of both administration and faculty during this year, according to Academic Dean Carolyn L. Blair. Responding to the suggestions of the 1972 evaluation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Dean Blair recently appointed a steering committee composed of Dr. Arda S. Walker, chairman, Dr. Elizabeth T. Fowler, and Dr. Gale Rhodes. Other members of the faculty, as well as administrative and staff personnel, will be involved in analyzing the needs of Maryville College students and the resources available in planning careers and securing jobs.

Tentative plans include the establishment of an information center, initiation of "Career Day" in the spring, providing counseling and testing, coordination of internships and volunteer services, and assistance in applying and interviewing for specific jobs.

Funded by Title III, this project will focus on the importance of "making a life" without overlooking the necessity of making a living.

Worship This Week

Sunday evenings at 7:00 p.m. is the time set aside for the campus to come together in worship to reaffirm its oneness as a community. These vesper services will normally be held in the chapel building. Various members of the faculty and student body will participate in the leadership of these services which will be coordinated by Chaplain Dick Harrison.

On Sunday, 16 September the service will be held outdoors in the chapel courtyard where Mr. Harrison will preach on the subject "To Communicate is to Love." Beginning on the following Sunday there will be a series of services based on the Lord's Prayer, during which time the worshippers will learn, phrase by phrase, to sign the prayer with the help of Carolyn Simmons, a deaf student. On Sunday, 7 October World-Wide Ommunion will be celebrated in Wilson Chapel with the aid of the Maryville College Concert Choir and students from other lands. Everyone is invited and urged to participate in the vesper program this fall.

from the editor's desk

Welcome to MC

You are finally here!

With a hectic, furious, and fantastic summer behind you, you, the new student at MC, drift about our campus in a world all to yourself.

WELCOME!

These first few days in your new home will stick in your mind forever. You will see many new things. You will be told many things. But most important, these days are the beginning of a new life—a life of feeling, fear, and love.

During this coming year at MC, you will become an integral part of the social and academic scene. You will begin to formulate many of your own ideas as you grow in this new life at Maryville.

Everything is not a bed of roses here, but it is not all that bad either. Look about, listen, and form your own ideas as you make Maryville your new home. Give us the chance to make it with you.

Welcome to Maryville College. Good luck!

theHighland ECHO

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Lay-out Editor—Sarah Winbigler
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—C. Craven, C. D'Aquila, S. Douglas, P. Hicks, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, F. Strohl

Photographer—T. Fox
Art—S. Crane
Distribution—L. Catrett, G. Guba

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

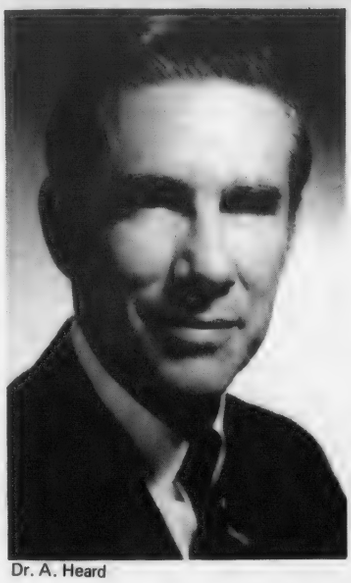
Academically Speaking

Dream Your Career

by Dr. Arda Walker
Chairman of the Department of History

This is addressed to Freshmen. Elsewhere in this paper you will note a news item about a government-financed project for Career Planning and Placement being launched this year at Maryville College.

You are just now "blasting off" on a new phase of your career, a phase which Margaret Mead refers to as an "intellectual and psychological moratorium in which you explore, test, meditate, discuss, passionately expouse and passionately repudiate ideas about the past and the future." It is an "as-if" world you are entering in which "you need not commit yourself yet, a period in which it is possible not only to specialize but to taste all the possibilities of scholarship and science, of great commitment, and the special delights to which civilized man has access today." It is a sort of time-space laboratory that provides freedom domestic and economic responsibility in order that you may adventure, and chart your course, fixing on the distant stars, while enjoying the weightless, momentary and relative tranquility within.



Career planning means more than vocational planning. In its larger sense, it involves conscious choices among contingencies in the "making of a life" of which making a living is only a part. Other elements that must be integrated into career planning include analysis of goals and values, exploration of potentials for a fulfilling use of leisure, acquaintance with the on going nature of education, preparation for mobility and maneuverability in occupation; in sum, an introduction to the alternatives to the insistent present. These are the things which we hope you and Maryville College will explore together. For our part, we hope to acquaint you with the necessity for early and continuing career planning; to provide guidance and implementation for your plans; to introduce you to career now just coming into view on the horizon; to provide work and service experience and exploratory internships integrated with the academic; to arouse in you the capacity to see and feel, to grasp, to respond and act over a widening arc of experience, to celebrate intellect over instinct, and planning over spontaneity; to find a self-fulfilling leisure, to evaluate and use new techological and social developments; and, to discover and share with the rest of society a workable set of human values which will provide a yardstick for measuring progress in a community sense and in a personal sense.

The liberal arts degree, in addition to offering what Thorstein Veblen calls the opportunity for the "pursuit of idle curiosity," provides a most practical re-entry system into the modern world. The demands for successful careers today—independent study, self-determination, flexibility and maneuverability in a hyper-mobile society, preparation for a post-industrial world of values rather than techniques and materialism, imagination to envision the future or contingent futures, freedom from parochialism, employment in more intellectually challenging and satisfying occupations; in short, the personally fulfilling demands—are precisely those a liberal arts degree profices.

What, you may ask, is the relationship between my maior and my prospective career? The qualities noted above—imagination, maneuverability and flexibility, value discovery, vision, ability to use leisure—may be found in almost any liberal arts major. If you come already committed to a future occupation, you may take one of two courses: choose a major you enjoy that will enrich your leisure, or choose a major you enjoy that is directly related to your future occupation. If you come to college uncommitted to an occupation, major in what you enjoy most; explore widely in other areas; and while you are exploring, keep looking for contingency occupational routes. We will help you. Ask freely.

Dream your career. Explore the past. Taste your future. Relish your present in this "as-if" world.

anderbilt Chancellor peaks at Academic onvocation

Dr. A. Heard

Dr. Alexander Heard, professor of litical Science and Chancellor of nderbilt University in Nashville, ll be the guest speaker at the an- al Academic Convocation on ednesday night, 12 September. rn in Savannah, Georgia on 14 arch 1917, Dr. Heard received s B.A. from the University of rth Carolina in 1938. He received s M.A. from Columbia University 1948, and his Ph.D. from the me institution in 1951. Dr. Heard s done much writing and teaching er the last 30 years. He worked the U.S. Government from 1939- with service in the Departments Interior, War, and State. From 46-49, he was a research associate the Bureau of Public Administra- n for the University of Alabama. e was an Associate Professor and er Professor of Political Science the University of North Carolina m 1950-58. Until 1963, he was an of the Graduate School there. 1957-58, he was a Ford research ofessor of Government at Har- rd University. Since 1963, he has en at Vanderbilt.

Among the books he has either ritten, or helped to write, include outhern Politics in State and ation, 1949; Southern Primaries nd Elections, 1950; A Two-Party outh?, 1952; The Costs of Democ- cy, 1960; The Lost Years in Grad- ate Education, 1963; and State egislatures in American Politics, 966.

In addition to this, he served as hairman of President Kennedy's Commission on Campaign Costs in 1961-62, was Vice President of the Southern Political Science Association in 1961-62, and served as the Vice President of the American Political Science Association in 1962-63. Under President Johnson, he served as a member of the National Citizens Committee for Community Relations in 1964, the Task Force on Education program in 1966, and the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations in 1967. Under President Nixon, Heard served on the Task Force on Priorities in Higher Education and a special committee on campus tensions for the American Council on Education. He is also a member of the Board of Directors for Time Incorporated, and Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Ford Foundation.

Scots Prepare for '73 Campaign

Last year Maryville College had its best football season since 1964, and hopes to repeat that performance this year. The 1972-season was highlighted by the sparkling exhibitions of aerial offence, strong running, and tough defense. The Scots ended the year with a 7-2 record, and great expectations for future seasons.

That enthusiasm still remains, despite the loss of various key personalities. Head Coach Lauren Kardatzke resigned to take a position at Tennessee Tech. in Cookeville. He is replaced by Boydson Baird, MC's athletic director and former football coach. Other losses include All-Americans, Joe Costner and Mike Butler, defensive standout Phil Zeiglar, and vetren offensive lineman Dan Blevins. Most of these players were on offense; the defense returns practically the same as before.

Leading that defense will be senior linebackers David Clinton and David Warwick, both of Knoxville. They will be joined by at this position sophomore Paul Wayne Risko. Another soph, Bob Shumksi will be heavily depended upon to bolster the defense. Protection against the pass will be provided by quick, experienced Jeff Hamilton, along with Tom Hyne and safety Mike Osborne.

The offense will be built around the rushing of senior Bill Baggett, last year's leading ground gainer. His power will be augmented by promising sophomore Rodney Stephens at tailback. Big tight end Don Scott Heads the list of pass receivers, while Walker Hodges and Dave Massey vie for the quarterback position.

Coach Baird is optimistic about the season and very pleased with the pre-season turn-out. Ninety-five men reported for practice sixty-four of them freshmen. Among them are many strong, talented players who should provide football fans with many hours of great play.

The Scots' first game is 15 Sept. in Hampton Sydney, Virginia.

Musical Opportunities

by Charles Craven
Fine Arts Editor

The Maryville College Fine Arts Department sponsors three major performing musical organizations. They are all open to students of all fields.

Their rehearsal schedules are designed to insure maximum musical achievement without making a student give up too much study time. The band and the choir call for 4½ hours of rehearsal a week; the orchestra requires 3½. Since the rehearsal schedules do not conflict with each other, a student can be active in more than one organization.

A student can receive elective course credit for up to two years in band, choir, and orchestra, after one year of apprenticeship in that organization. (More complete information is available in the College cataloque).

COLLEGE CHOIR

The Concert Choir has achieved a reputation for being "a superior choir, always associated with the finest in choral music." Under Dr. Harry H. Harter's 25 years of leadership, the choir has been acclaimed by its listeners and followers as "one of the outstanding college musical groups in the country."

Any student interested in the choir is welcome to come to the individual auditions, which will be held in the choir room at these times and dates: Monday, 10 September from 3:30 to 6:00 p.m. for sopranos. Tuesday, 11 September from 3:30 to 6:00 p.m. for altos, 6:30 to 7:30 for basses, and 7:30 to 8:30 for tenors.

HIGHLANDER MARCHING AND CONCERT BAND

The Highlander Marching Band performs at all home football games. In the Fall Term, a student may substitute Band for one team sport for physical education credit. When the football season closes, the Marching Band becomes the Concert Band, which usually schedules three concerts during the winter and spring terms. This year the band is planning a tour during spring vacation. It has toured several times in years past.

The band rehearses from 4:00 to 5:30 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Any student who can play an instrument reasonably well is invited to join the band. Interested students should come to the first rehearsal on Friday, 14 Sept. at 4:00 p.m. in the band building (behind the Fine Arts Center).

COLLEGE-COMMUNITY ORATORIO CHORUS

Once a year the college choir forms the nucleus of a large chorus which, along with the college orchestra, performs Handel's Messiah. Maryville College has kept this tradition since 1933. Any student, faculty member, or community resident may sing in the chorus and should attend the first rehearsal on Monday, 17 September at 7:00 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall.

The College-Community Orchestra, which is made up of both college students and musicians from the community, is directed by Professor Lee Kull, who has had extensive experience as a performer as well as a director. As a member of an ensemble he has performed in Carnegie Hall, New York, and as a soloist he has been featured in cities such as Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Toledo, Ohio, and Knoxville, Tennessee.

Library Welcomes Students

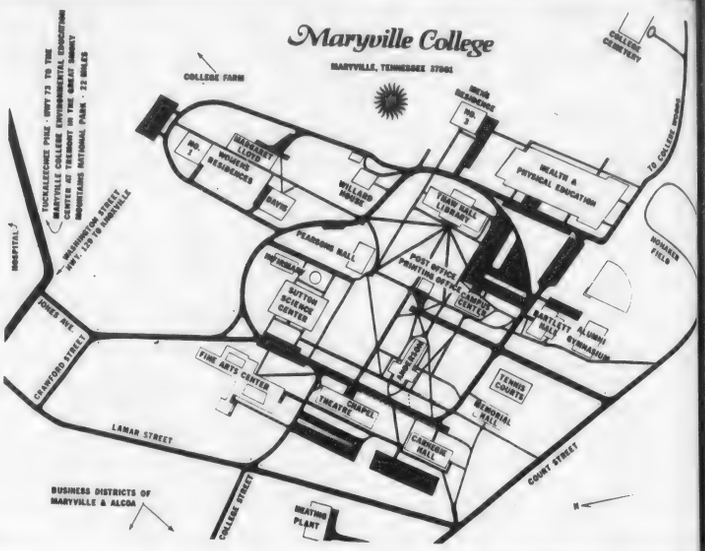
This staff of Lamar Memorial ibrary welcomes all new and re- rning students and hopes this ear will be a pleasant one for all. he library would like to help make such.

The library is open 80 hours a eek for study and enjoyment. Over 3,000 books and 600 magazines e available for the asking. Maga- nes selections range from The ournal of Higher Education to layboy.

Other materials for use are micro- lm, records, local and national news- apers, and audio-visual equipment r special class assignments.

A new feature of library services is year will be a FREE paperback xchange. These books (mainly ovels) will be in the room at the ght as you enter the library. Come , browse, but as you take one to ad, leave one of your own.

The staff wishes to stress that e library is designed to serve the mmunity, and can be of most rvice when in communication ith its patrons. Any student or culty suggestions for new books, eriodicals, or any other library rvice will be welcomed and con- dered.



To help new students and faculty ecome better acquainted with the library, its staff and services, an informal open house will be held Sunday 23 September from 6-8 P.M. Refreshments will be served, and everyone is invited.

MC's Intramural Program

In addition to the intercollegiate sports program at Maryville College that includes football, basketball, wrestling, baseball, and track, there is an intramural program for those who may not be particularly talented in a sport, but enjoy playing anyway. Intramural sports include flag football, soccer, volleyball, basketball, and softball. Girls have the chance to participate in the latter three programs. In addition, there is an organization on campus known as the M Club. This is made up of girls who have regularly participated in the girls' intramural program, and have earned 400 M Club points. There will be more information in coming weeks as to forming of teams and a schedule. Mr. Gary Thibideau, of the Physical Education Department, will be in charge of the program.

Maryville Menu

Friday Sept. 7	9:00 a.m.–12:00	REGISTRATION OF PARENTS: Chapel-Theatre Colonnade.
	9:30 a.m.–11:00	BUS TOUR: For new students & parents. Buses leave on the half hour.
	12:30 p.m.	BUFFET LUNCHEON: For new students & parents. College Dining Room.
	2:00 p.m.	ASSEMBLY OF NEW STUDENTS & PARENTS: Wilson Chapel.
	3:15–4:30 p.m.	RECEPTION: For new students, parents, & faculty. Chapel Court.
	7:00 p.m.	DORM ORIENTATION: Women meet Dean Massey in Davis Hall Lobby. Men meet Resident Assistants in quads.
	10:00 p.m.	QUAD " GET TOGETHERS"
Saturday Sept. 8	7:00 a.m.	Breakfast
	8:00 a.m.	ASSEMBLY OF ALL NEW AND TRANSFER STUDENTS: Wilson Chapel.
	8:20 a.m.	MATHMATICS TEST: Anderson Hall, 214
	9:30 a.m.	WORSHIP: Mr. Richard Harrison, Chaplain.
	10:00 a.m.	COKE BREAK
	10:30 a.m.	ENGLISH TEST: Wilson Chapel.
	12:30 p.m.	LUNCH
	2:00 p.m.	LANGUAGE TEST: Wilson Chapel.
	7:30–9:00 p.m.	"SERINDIPITY": led by Mr. Richard Harrison. Physical Education Building.
	9:00 p.m.	EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES FAIR: P.E. Building.
	9:00 p.m.	SWIMMING: P.E. Building.
Sunday Sept. 9	8:00 a.m.	BREAKFAST
		WORSHIP: in local chruches.
	12:30 p.m.	DINNER
	2:30 p.m.	PICNIC IN MOUNTAINS: Buses will leave at this this time from Sutton Science Center, front entrance. Supper will NOT be served on campus.
Monday Sept. 10	8:00 a.m.	ACADEMIC ORIENTATION: For all new students. Wilson Chapel.
	9:30–12:00 noon	REGISTRATION: For new students. P.E. Building.
	9:30–12:00 noon	AUDITIONS FOR APPLIED MUSIC: P.E. Building.
	1:30–4:30 p.m.	REGISTRATION: For new students, cont'd.
	1:30–4:30 p.m.	APPLIED MUSIC AUDITIONS: Cont'd.
	6:45 p.m.	VISITATION ORIENTATION: all residence halls.
	8:00 p.m.	MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE: Oliver! College Theatre. $2.00 Adults; $1.00 Students.
	10:00 p.m.	QUAD MEETINGS: Freshman residence halls.
Tuesday Sept. 11	7:00 a.m.	BREAKFAST
	8:00 a.m.	REGISTRATION: Returning students. P.E. Building.
	9:00–10:00 a.m.	CAMPUS COMMUNITY GOVERNANCE: For all new students.
	10:00–10:30 a.m.	CAMPUS COMMUNICATIONS: For all new students.
	12:00 noon	LUNCH
	1:30 p.m.	REGISTRATION: Returning students, cont'd.
	7:30 p.m.	STUDENT MIXER
Wednesday Sept. 12	8:00 a.m.	CLASSES OPEN
Thursday Sept. 13	8:00 p.m.	ACADEMIC CONVOCATION: Dr. Alexander Heard, Chancellor of Vanderbilt University, will speak.
Friday Sept. 14	8:00 p.m.	FACULTY RECEPTION: For all students. Morningside (in the College Woods).

from the registar

A Few Pointers

The following are a few suggestions offered to the new students concerning registration, orientation, and the planning of your own program.

1. Students (especially commuting students) should check mailboxes regularly. This is our best means of communication.

2. Read directions and follow them. It takes only a few people "doing their own thing" to turn a registration line into chaos.

3. Attend all orientation sessions.

4. Get information concerning MC from the proper sources—Catalog, Handbook, faculty, office personnel, and other students.

5. Make the most of your luncheon discussion with a faculty member. Don't be afraid to ask him/her the questions which are on your mind.

6. Make your program of study out in plenty of time. Watch the deadlines.

7. Find out what is available to you on this campus.

8. Make the registration line a fun time. It is the perfect opportunity to meet many of your new friends.

Travel Opportunity

During Intermin

At least one additional student, possibly as many as five, may be able to join the group going to England and France "in search of King Arthur" during the 1973 interim, according to the tour leaders Mrs. Herma R. Cate and Mrs. Elizabeth T. Fowler. Total cost of the trip—New York to London to Paris to New York—is $700, including English breakfast and dinner (except in London), all hotel and travel accommodations, and entrance fees. The group will leave November 27 and return December 20.

Interested students should contact the tour directors immediately.

continued from page 1

A few jobs have not been filled, and assignments will be made after interviews with applicants. Those who applied late or who wish to make application now will be placed on a waiting list.

Anyone who wishes to try out for typing should let this be known and will be placed on a waiting list for jobs which require typing skill.

Please keep in mind that the Financial Aid Office is the clearing house for all student jobs on campus, and all assignments are made by Mr. Ribble, Director of Financial Aid.

The Financial Aid Office also from time to time receives requests from people in the community who are interested in using college students for regular or occasional work.

Potpourri

DOWNTOWN MARYVILLE

10% OFF

POSTERS
INCENSE
CANDLES
BLACKLIGHTS
CRAFT SUPPLIES

114 W. BROADWAY
"NOWTOWN" MALL
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

free copies

of one of the world's most-quoted newspapers.

The Christian Science Monitor. Facts. Ideas. Solutions. That's what the Monitor is all about.

To prove this to yourself, send us the coupon. We'll send you the free copies without obligation.

(Please print)

Please send me some free copies of The Christian Science Monitor.

Name_____

Address_____

City_____

State_____ Zip_____

Z4SEA

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR
P.O. Box 125, Astor Station
Boston, Massachusetts 02123

theHighland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 2 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 14 September 1973

Faces At MC

A Summer Of Changes

Time brings changes. Maryville College changes with the times. We welcome the following faculty and staff.

Biology – Thomas W. Taylor. B.S., Maryville College; M.S., University of Tennessee

Education – Mrs. Marilyn R. Pollio. B.A., Brooklyn College; M.S., Ed.D., University of Tennessee.

Economics – Stanley M. Chervin – B.A., Tufts University.

Geography – Mrs. Martha P. Cobb. B.S., Maryville College; M.S., University of Tennessee.

Music – Allan S. Hoke. B.A., Maryville College; M.Mus. Northwestern University.

Physical Education – Mrs. Pamela D. Jarvis. B.S., West Virginia University; M.S., University of Tennessee.

Physical Education – Mrs. Ruth Hunt West. B.S., M.S. University of Tennessee.

Sociology – Mrs. Diana K. Harris. B.S. University of Wisconsin; M.A., University of Tennessee.

Sociology – Richard R. Butler. B.A. William Carey College; M.A., Ph. D. Mississippi State University.

Voice – Edward H. Hamilton. B.A., Maryville College; M.A., New York University.

Administration – Faith Baird - Admissions Counselor.

Mrs. Carrie Buchanon- Receptionist.

Linda Lee Clowes - Admissions Secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Brad Kehler - Head Residents Dorm III.

Mrs. Lee Kyle - Communications Assistant.

Mrs. Joan Malone - Development Office Secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. David Maxwell - Head Residents, Pearsons Hall.

We wish good luck and say farewell to these members of last year's faculty and staff who will not be returning this year.

Anne - Marie Lemaire Fahr - Political Science; Thomas Lee Ferrell - Physics; Gail Harris – Psychology; Lauren Kardatzke– Physical Education; Donald Olsen– Sociology; Thomas Puroff – Education; Donald Stine– Philosophy & Religion; Esther Stine– Philosophy & Religion; William Richardson – Director of Development and Alumni Relation; Martha Cureton - Communications; Ann Gamble- Development Office; Robert Kennedy - Admissions; Alan Rhyne - Bookstore; Pamela Rowett - Receptionist; Don Scott - Head Resident Dorm III; Joan Stallings - Admissions; Ralph Sullivan - Supervior of Buildings; Sue Van Winkle - Development Office; and, after forty years of dedication to our culinary delights, Miss Margaret S. Ware.

The Welcome Wagon

Here at MC the Welcome Wagon once again greeted students with a "Campus Welcome" packet, containing a book of discount coupons and information pertaining to the Alcoa-Maryville area. The Welcome Wagon has provided this service at MC for two years now.

In 1928, the Welcome Wagon International Organization was founded. It was their goal and purpose to greet new arrivals in the community. The philosophy behind this was that the college student is a "new resident as well as a family."

If there are any questions at all, please feel free to contact Mary Shumate, Hostess, at 983-3374 or Rose McConnell, Area Supervisor, at 983-2300. They would be very happy to answer questions you might have pertaining to their organization.

Vespers This Week

Vespers, Sunday, September 16

Time: 7:00 p.m.

Place: Chapel Courtyard

Speaker: Chaplain Richard L. Harrison will speak on the subject "To Communicate is to Love"

from the editor's desk

Just Another Dollar

As MC's men reutrned to campus this fall, they were met with an open hand collecting just another dollar for dues in an organization known as Men's Student Government. Although most men paid this fee last year unknowingly, MSG has been a nonfunctioning organization, except in name, for some three years.

First of all, what is MSG? According to the ever so accurate Student Handbook, it is a body which supposedly governs matters pertaining to men's residences and the elected officers of each class.

In my opinion, the newly activated Men's Student Government is a mere figment of someone's mind. Suddenly there is an active organization on this campus which has not been activated by the students, but by a decree from Anderson Hall. This new, vibrant governing body on MC's campus has no extablished means of representation, much less any authority. MSG is nothing more than a hangover of the old student governing system which died in 1969 as the All College Council evolved.

Even a hangover costs us today as MSG's one dollar donation has been collected in the men's dorms from many unsuspecting students to supplyment campus activities and improvements under the direction of the Dean of Men, so I am told. This is the first time in my life that I have ever heard of collecting organizational fees for a nonfunctioning, nonexistent body.

I guess there is a first time for just about everything, but I constantly will be asking, looking, and pestering this decree from Anderson Hall to see my dollar do its work.

Academically Speaking

English Lab A Service

by Dr. Elizabeth T. Fowler
Assistant Professor of English

The English Laboratory is a service provided by the English Department for Maryville College students who need help in spelling, punctuation, grammar, organization, and style.

Specifically, the students who are assigned to the laboratory (attendance mandatory) include those who did not pass satisfactorily the English Proficiency Test in the spring and therefore cannot begin Independent Study until this problem is solved; those who were recommended by teachers of English 121 or 122; and those recommended by any other member of the faculty. In addition, those students who feel they need help in organizing papers, writing essays, or developing a better style may attend Lab on a voluntary basis.

First-term freshmen are not eligible for laboratory since it is assumed that the recognized deficiencies will be dealt with in the regular sections of 104 and 105.

Initiated at the request of other departments, the English Lab has been in operation for several years. This year, however, a new format has been adopted. During the Fall Term time for the Lab has been reserved on Tuesday evenings from 6:30–9:30. Dr. Elizabeth T. Fowler will meet the assignees as well as the volunteers each week in Thaw 201. Faculty members are requested to notivy both the student and Dr. Fowler that assignment has been made because of specific problems: the student should likewise receive such notification.

Lab should not be looked upon as a penalty or a stigma but as an opportunity to improve writing skills before it is too late.

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Lay-out— S. Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers —C.Craven, C. D'Aquila, S. Douglas, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, F. Strohl.

Photographer—T. Fox
Art—S. Crane
Distribution—L. Catrett
G. Guba

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Don Gilbert
Business Manager

In the weeks to come, the Echo will be presenting advertisements for area business. It is my hope that the students of Maryville College will find these ads helpful. The promotings of area business interests in the Echo have proved in the past to be beneficial to both the college and local places of business. Read these ads in the Echo and do yourself a favor. It could prove to be good business for you.

Workshop at Tremont

The Fall Teachers' Workshop at Tremont—Maryville College's Environmental Education Center—will be held the weekend of 14-16 September. The workshop begins at 5:00 pm on Friday and will end at 2:30 pm on Sunday.

All MC students interested in the program are welcome to join the workshop. Students will not be required to pay the usual $12.50 fee. All you need to bring is your sleeping bag, linens, outdoor clothing, and your enthusiasm.

Transportation will be provided; the food is good; and this is your best best chance of learning about our program and your possible place in it.

If you are interested, register your intent with Dean Massey's Office, Anderson Hall, and be in front of Sutton Science Center at 5:00 pm on Friday.

It will be a great weekend at Tremont—why should you be left out?

Greek Offered This Fall

Dr. David Cartlidge, professor of philosophy and religion, has announced three Greek courses to be offered this year at MC.

Courses can be taken for credit or may be audited.

Elementary Greek will be tought the fall and winter terms. A course in reading and interpreting will be offered in the spring. Cassette tapes are available for use in the language lab.

Classes will meet twice a week, perhaps in the evening. However, the time has not been decided yet.

Anyone who is interested in registering for the course may see Dr. Cartlidge in Anderson Hall for further information.

Reading Improvement Course Offered

Under the sponsorship of the Continuing Education Program, Dr. David Briggs is offering a reading improvement program open to all students and to members of the community.

The course is designed to increase comprehension and rate of reading, but it also emphasizes improved vocablary and greater pleasure in reading. The course is non-credit and costs $3

Sign up in the Registrar's Office and attend the first meeting on Tuesday, 18 September 1973.

A commentary

Registration Blahs

by Chris D'Aquila
Echo Staff Writer

Once again it's the start of a new school year, marked by lines of students waiting to register. Once one has been through it, one often wonders what can be done about it to make the entire registration process more efficient and much quicker, but perhaps to no avail.

Here at MC, for the initial fall registration of students, the process has changed from previous years. After having witnessed the entire process both Monday and Tuesday, it is hard to see where the process has been "lightened".

Freshman had not pre-registered during the summer through the mail as in previous years, because it was felt to be too confusing for the new student to deal with himself. Instead, plans were made so that direct contact with someone on campus could be more helpful and meaningful. However, besides taking quite a bit of time making up schedules, freshman had often been placed in classes they hadn't really anticipated and in some cases wanted. So where did that leave the student?

Anxiety and excitement accompany every new arrival on a college campus. Confrontation with confusing schedule compositions the first day of registration before and realize that it is both a time consuming and tedious process; however, this realization isn't any consolation. This year instead of students filing through two lines (according to the first initial of their last names) they found themselves all headed in the same direction in one line. True, new ideas, innovations and changes are being experimented with every day in the world, but evaluations are a necessary follow-up.

Was it more efficient to spend two entire days registering students, when in past years this task had been completed in one day? Was "on the spot" freshman registration better than pre-registering through mail during the summer months? As for freshman, was it encouraging for them on their first experience with college registration to be placed in classes somewhat beyond what they had anticipated? Was the "single file line system" for returning students as good as the double line procedure?

No single answer ever exists for any one problem. But perhaps new ideas will lead to a more workable procedure. Think about it! It deserves that much

A Project on Futuristic

by Dr. Dave Young
Director of the Project on Furturistics

"How good a society does human nature permit? How good a human nature does society permit? What is possible and feasible? What is not?" With these words of psychologist Abraham Maslow to serve as the traditional champagne bottle, there is launched a Project on Futuristics.

Whether it's society or an individual, choice is the pivot stone for all movement. The future is by definition something that hasn't happened yet. But what happens, as future becomes present and then past, depends on choices made. To live is to choose, if a cliche will help. Indeed, choice is that which gives structure as well as variety to life, and thereby, meaning and significance.

Why, then, a Project on Futuristics? Simply put: to increase awareness of the subject of the future and what it means to confront the issue of what happen and what ought to happen. Or stated differently, to think about the future before it happens, especially in regard to the responsibility of inventing that future.

At this initial stage there are three principal objectives: (1) to raise the question of where new knowledge is taking us, particularly in terms of society and individual values, (2) to identify patterns of past and present choice and the options of future choice and (3) to seek and use patterns of choice which enhance the synergistic development of the whole person, i.e., finding out what we want to be and then becoming. . . . .

As Director of this project I am materially as well as symbolically stepping into new territory, from ten years of chemistry to the concerns of futuristics, more broadly, and to the interrelationships of science, values and society, more specifically. My dream is to invent new patterns of learning contact, both curricular and extra-curricular. But how this will be accomplished depends on those who are willing to invent and create new choices, in addition to breathing new life into presently stale options and reaffirming the creative structures we presently enjoy.

The first order of business for this Project is to secure a steering committee of five persons drawing from students, faculty, administrators or perchance from the ranks of butchers, bakers and candle-stick makers. About this I will be talking to many on campus; speak up, if you want to be involved.

The time of future shock is now giving way to that of future choice: What do you want to be? The future is waiting to be born; give birth.

Maryville Menu

Friday Sept. 14	8:00 - 10:00 p.m.	PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION: For all students. Morningside gardens (in the College Woods).
Sunday Sept. 16	7:00 p.m.	VESPERS: Chaplain Richard Harrison will lead. Chapel courtyard.
Monday Sept. 17	7:00 p.m.	MESSIAH CHORUS: First rehearsal. Those interested in singing should attend. Fine Arts Center Music Hall.
	8:30 p.m.	AUDITIONS: For "Once Upon a Mattress," a play directed by seniors Jean Tiffany and Nancy McCleary. Chapel Stage.

Men's Intramurals Organize

Fred Strohl
Echo Staff Writer

Gary Thibodeau, Director of Men's Intramurals, has announced plans to form a Men's Intramural Association for this year. As a start for this organization, a special organizational meeting has been scheduled for Tuesday night, September 18, at 7:30 in the Main Gym. All men who plan to participate in the intramural program this year should attend.

According to Mr. Thibodeau, the process of the Association are to set up a competitive point system, promote competition between the dorms, plan social activity in the Spring, form record book of top intramural performances, and promote better communication between the Director and the different team captains. Tuesday's meeting will deal with elections of Association officers for the Fall. Intramural activities for the Fall include flag football, volleyball, table tennis, cross-country, and a student-faculty golf match, as well as a football punt, pass, and kick contest.

In addition to this, Mr. Thibodeau is looking for people to work at Community Night this year. Anyone interested should contact him. He is also looking for interested students of gymnastics and physical education majors to help him once again this year for his gymnastics program. Interested students should contact him. Also, any students interested in officiating either the intramural program should contact either him or Ron Adams.

Scots Hit The Road

The Maryville College Scots open their 1973 season on the road in Bridgewater, Va. Saturday afternoon. This will be the start of what promises to be a very interesting season.

This year the Scots are without several men who made last year's team so successful. Joe Costner, Little All-American quarterback and a host of experienced receivers have gone.

However, the Scots hope to replace the past air attack with a strong running game. Last year's leading rusher, powerful Bill Baggett has returned, along with quick, nimble Rodney Stephens. Together they should provide the Scots with a varried and dangerous rush.

But the air game is not to be ignored. Walker Hodges, a transfer from Mars Hill, will handle the quarterbacking duties. He has a strong arm and much-needed experience.

Earl McMahan and Bill Nuss will anchor the ever-important offensive line. Both are experienced and have proven themselves more than adaquet.

Defensively Maryville is sound. Senior linebackers David Warwick and David Clinton have the experience and ability to lead the team defensively.

If Boydson Baird's Scots can win their first game on the road and against such powerful opposition, this may signal another season of winners at Maryville.

Theatrical Opportunities Available

The Maryville College Speech-Theatre Department offers many opportunities for interested students who are not theatre majors. Three of them are:

PLAYHOUSE

This year for the first time the Playhouse is offering a series of four plays. Two are directed by Professor Thomas Jones: A Man for All Seasons in Mid-October and Lear, an early March production. Professor Blair Beasley will direct the other two: Sweet Charity in February and Dracula, the Vampire Play in early May.

Technical student help is now needed for A Man for All Seasons, expecially the light, set construction, make-up, and costume crews. If you have not had experience, but are interested in any of these projects, Professor Jones, Professor Beasley, or Wayne Dansbury would be glad to see you.

FORUM

The Forum, Maryville College's forensics team, gives its members practice in impromptu and extemporaneous speaking, debate, oral interpretation, public speaking, and tournaments with other schools.

The Forum welcomes all new students, regardless of their background. Anyone interested should attend the organizational meeting today at 4:00 p.m. in the Chapel, rm. 204. If you can't make the meeting but are still interested, contact Professor Beasley or Mike Johnston.

EXPERIMENTAL THEATRE

The Experimental Theatre is run exclusively by students, and is available to anyone wishing to present a program on his own, such as a one-act play or a student-written composition. If interested, see Professor Jones, Professor Beasley, or Sharon Murphy.

The Experimental Theatre will give MC students, as Professor Beasley points out, a chance to express themselves creatively in a creative environment; and we welcome all students, no matter what their field is. We're here if you want to learn."

Orchestra Seeks Members

There is a lot of work involved, but also a lot of fun. So just come to the meeting and learn what it's all about.

With a busy schedule ahead, the Maryville College-Community Orchestra will welcome new members to help carry it out. Interested students should see Professor Lee Kull in the Fine Arts Center for an audition as soon as possible.

The Orchestra is planning three concerts, in addition to performing in the Messiah. One will feature a work by Professor Kull, to be accompanied by the Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet.

MAT MAIDS ORGANIZE

All girls interested in joining the girls Mat Maids Club for Winter Term during wrestling season should please meet Tuesday in the lobby of the gym during break.

Join MC's Fire Crew

All Students, male or female, in good physical condition and interested in becoming a part of the Maryville College-Smoky Mountain Cooperative Fire Crew, please complete the following form and get it to John Ballard, Box 2023.

Name _____ Sex _____

Age _____ Class _____ Social Security No. _____

Have you had Forest Fire Fighting experience _____
training _____

Box _____ Residence and Phone No. _____

Worship This Week

There will be a special weekly worship service in the Little Chapel each Thursday morning at 8:40 a.m. These services will be led by various members of the MC faculty and student body and will conclude by 9:00 a.m. The first one on September 20 will be led by Boydson Baird, Director of Athletics.

Notice

Due to publication difficulties, this year's annual, The Chilhowean, will not be distributed until late October.

Continuing Education Courses meet at night, usually from 7:30 - 9:00 p.m. one evening each week. Courses are non-credit. Information and Registration: Registrar's Office.

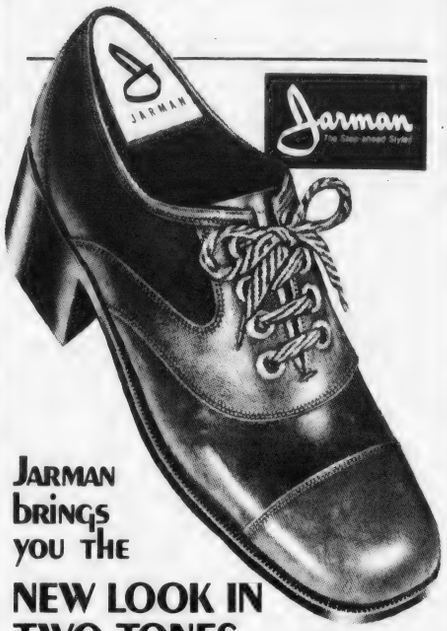
GEOLOGY SURROUNDS YOU: An Overlook on Earth, Your Environment
Dr. Stuart L. Schoff

READING IMPROVEMENT
Dr. David H. Briggs

CONVERSATIONAL GERMAN FOR THE TOURIST
Prof. Richard Fridenbergs

CONVERSATIONAL RUSSIAN FOR THE TOURIST
Prof. Richard Fridenbergs

MACRAME: Creative Knotting
Miss Kathryn Martin



FUNDAMENTALS OF CHESS
Mr. Robert Lewis Williamson

COMMUNICATION WITH THE DEAF
Mr. Waldo N. Heber

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

FOLLOW YOUR HEART TO TIPTON Jewelers
982-0141
113 E. Broadway
Maryville, Tenn. 37801
• ROLEX WATCHES
• BULOVA WATCHES
• ACCUTRON
• GIFTS
"EASY CREDIT TERMS"
C. R. TIPTON, owner
HOUSE OF DIAMONDS
• DIAMONDS REMOUNTED
• ASK ABOUT OUR NEW ..... RING OF RADIANCE THAT WILL INCREASE THE VISUAL SIZE OF A CENTER DIAMOND 6 TIMES.

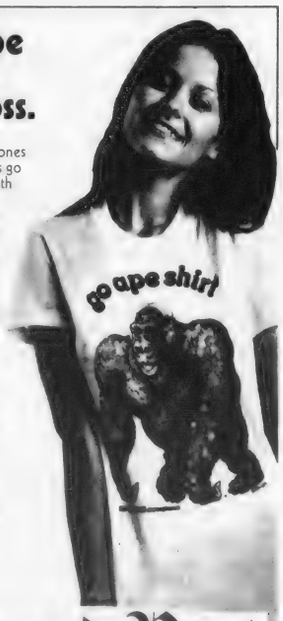
Southern shoes
Midland Shopping Center
Alcoa, Tenn. 37701

JARMAN brings you the NEW LOOK IN TWO-TONES $23.95

It's two-tone time in our town — and Jarman two-tones simply offer more for your money. As handsome — and easy-wearing evidence — we present this brass-eyelet straight tip. (We also have other Jarman two-tones you'll like.)

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE



Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

You'll go ape over the Sound of Koss.

The Sound of Koss Stereophones has always made music lovers go ape. So, "Go Ape Shirt" with the purchase of any Koss Stereophone. And for those who think it's possible to go ape without a Koss Stereophone, our "Go Ape Shirts" are available for only $1.95. At that price, they may not blow your mind like a Koss Stereophone would, but they won't blow your budget either.

Drop around today and listen to the Sound of Koss. When you purchase a Koss Stereophone, we'll arrange for your free "Go Ape Shirt." Or if you just want the shirt, we'll show you how to send for one. But hurry, the offer expires soon.

The Sound Post
MIDLAND SHOPPING CENTER
Phone 615-984-6960

OPEN 9 TO 6 DAILY, FRIDAY NIGHT 'TIL 9

LAYAWAY A DIAMOND NOW FOR CHRISTMAS AND SAVE 20%
ON ANY DIAMOND PURCHASED OR PUT IN LAYAWAY IN SEPTEMBER

Already dreaming of a diamond Christmas? You picked the right time! Layaway or purchase a diamond ring, diamond watch, pendant or any other diamond jewelry now, and we'll give you a whopping 20% off. We'll even hold it for you until Christmas Eve if you wish. Shown are just a few of the diamond rings available right now... all at 20% off! Remember, every diamond we sell has been inspected by our gemologists to assure you it's a more-for-your-money buy!

SALE $76
REG. $95.00
SAVE $19.00
Miracle top solitaire

SALE $330
REG. $425.00
SAVE $95.00
Six prong Tiffany, ½ carat

Five convenient ways to buy:
Revolving Charge • Custom Charge • BankAmericard • Master Charge • Layaway
JEWEL BOX
DIAMOND SPECIALISTS FOR OVER 50 YEARS
Midland Center 982-4940

theHighland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 3 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 21 September 1973

Editor's Note: The following is a letter received by Chaplain Harrison in response to the Fred Hope Fund gift aiding the Nicaragua earthquake victims last spring.

This is a group of girls from the Nicaraguan School prior to the earthquake last spring.

a letter of thanks

September 11, 1973

Dear Friends:

I just received your check for $200.00 as a gift from the students of Maryville College. You cannot imagine how grateful we are to you, the only thing I can tell you is GOD BLESS YOU.

Because of the tragic earthquake our girl's building where they lived was an old building and the night of the earthquake there wer 175 young girls sleeping there, but nobody was hurt.

Now we are living and working with some of them (17 girls, the others had to be sent to sister organizations in other Central American countries) in a hanger-like shed built of the wood salvaged from the destroyed buildings.

The building where the Sisters were sleeping that night was a three story one and almost new but the stories were damaged to where they had to be torn down, leaving only the lower floor which is being repaired little by little as we get money to do it; the engineers say it will be completely safe when it is finished.

We plan to build again on the same piece of ground; it is a very good one. We will build a little "Ciudadela" (village) for our girls with social and family problems and very poor) each little house for 15 girls and an "Orientadora" (Counsellor) who may be a Sister or one of the older girls; this will also be done little by little as we get the money.

We have a "school" (shed), made of materials saved from the destroyed buildings where we teach 194 girls from poor families from the close by neighborhoods. We also have a "hangar" (shed) made of saved materials where we make pastry and special foods to sell to get money.

Three families of our workers are living with us helping us and helping us to fix things; they are very good people.

We have a small beauty salon operating again; our sewing salon was destroyed but we hope to have another one when we get the money to do it.

I am very happy to know you and I hope that you and we will help each other with our prayers, will you?

I am the youngest sister of the Nicaraguan Ambassador in Washington and I love him very much. I am very happy that he communicated our need to you.

God Bless you again and I hope to have news of you in the future.

I will send you some photos of our girls; will you send us some of yours?

With my best wishes for all of you,

Sincerely,
Sor Maria de Jesus Nazareno

Cate Speaks Out For Preservation of Folklore

On Wednesday morning 19 September Mrs. Herma R. Cate gave a CIV talk entitled, A Hill People's Heritage. Mrs. Cate, who is Assistant Professor of English here at Maryville, geared her talk to the need for preservation of the historical mountain folklore. Mrs. Cate feels the older citizens of the mountains can provide invaluable insight to the ways of housework, traveling and entertainment just as it was done before modernization set in. The older citizens also have many tales and legends that have been passed down over the years.

The arts are highlighted by the toe-tapping mountain music. The most famous of the different types of music are the old ballads. These ballads were sung long before the commonplace ballads of today became popular. Craftwise, the people were excellent architects who constructed log cabins, barns, smoke houses and many other structures which had to withstand the hardest winters.

Many of the earlier settlers were from England. For these reasons the earlier settlers had a dialect which is with the present day people.

Since April, Mrs. Cate has been writing an article for the Maryville-Alcoa Times titled, Smoky Lore and Legend. This article deals with the wealth of lore and history hidden in the Smoky Mountains. In her articles, Mrs. Cate makes sure the historic value shines through. She makes doubly sure the people are not exploited in any way, for they are such kind trusting people.

Mrs. Herma Cate

Mrs. Cate feels that Maryville College, because of its ideal location, should become a center for preservation of the disappearing culture. She feels we have all the necessary natural tools for preservation all around us. Now all we need is the people to use them.

Open House in Library

On Sunday, 23 September, the Lamar Memorial Library will hold an open house. The objective of this event is to acquaint new students with the opeartion of the library. For that reason, the open house is intended primarily for freshmen and transfer students.

Refreshments will be provided, and games for the event are being divised under the supervision of Phyllis Garner. The seven library staff and 23 student assistants are acting as hosts for the occasion. Of course, explanations of how the library works with relation to bllks, periodicals, records, and so on will be provided. It should be a profitable experience for anyone not familiar with the library. That's Sunday, 23 September from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. at the library.

Jones Announces Cast

The Maryville College Playhouse will open their 1973 season in mid-October with the production of A Man For All Seasons. Thomas E. Jones, Director of the Theatre, announced the cast for this lucid play by Robert Bolt this past week.

MC students in leading roles include Carl Swenson as the Commom Man, Steve Ayers as Sir Thomas More, Mary Kaye Sanders as Lady Alice More, and Belinda Chiddie ad Lady Margaret More.

Other members of the cast include Joseph Carnevale, Steve Yuhasz, Philip Gibson, Brad Hudson, David Tindell, Robert March, Sean Sullivan, Jennifer Heirs, and George Lundy.

Janet Walker will assist Mr. Jones in the directorship while Dew Joyce acts as the Stage Manager. Debbie Welch will be the Book Holder.

Registration Figures

Unofficial figures from last week's registration for the new school year reflect a drop in attendance from 737 students to 713. New students numbered 248, an increase of 15 from last year's total of 233.

Welcome Wagon packets are still available in the Dean of Women's Office for any student who did not receive one.

from the editor's desk

Rambling About Our Campus

Once upon a time, we had a four man team of philosophers, theologians, and ?'s on the campus, but due to preseason cuts, the Philosophy and Religion Department of MC suffers. Drs. Cartlidge and Steward are presently huddling a crippled department that has no quaterback. It's third and long yardage as the front office scrambles in its backfield.

As we move along now, the Physical Education Department again this year has a bug about suiting out their classes in those adorable little gym outfits. Even though a fully dressed class may give the teacher a feeling of authority as he/she observes the rank and file, the required purchasing of a gym outfit is a first-class rip-off!

The front office is still scrambling and the P.E. Department is dressed for its Junior Prom as the All College Council moves toward a consensus to hold its first meeting sometime late this term.

On a more optimistic note, our own Scots return to their home ground tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. to tally there first victory of the season in a sound thrashing of Centre College.

theHighland ECHO

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Lay-out— S. Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers —C.Craven, C. D'Aquila, S. Douglas, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, F. Strohl. W. Yancey

Photographer—T. Fox
Art—S. Crane
Distribution—L. Catrett
G. Guba

I.P. INTERCOLLEGIATE PRESS
MEMBER

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Academically Speaking

by B.J. and R.B.
Associate Professors of Nutmeg

After waiting two hours in the registration line in our austere physical education facility, we were inspired by the vision of several new course offerings for the 1973-74 academic year. Many incoming freshman for the first time in their lives will be forced to think. Starting this term these freshmen will be taking philosophy 101 and science thought. These two courses are filled with reading which may be placed in the class of allegory or fable. The reader is to infer from these tales and stories deep meaning and a view of subjects which they rarely if ever have thought about. These allegorical tales however are actually rather limited. There are after all just so many ideas that one may derive from one of these tales. We therefore have envisioned the integration of these two into one course entitled AMORAL TALES 101. The stories read in this course will have no point or moral. In this way, the student may make up his own meanings and morals for the stories. For instance let us examine this deep story.

Once upon a time there was a boy and his bear. The boys name was Ben. Ben named his bear Rollo. Rollo and Ben were happy as bear and boy should be; however, one day there came into the forest an evil flood which swept away all of the trees and every day after tulips grew wild among the boxes.

Now, how could anyone truthfully tell you that any interpetation of this story that you make up is wrong? We certainly would not call you wrong, and we wrote it! Stories of this type would increase the students imagination and grade point average.

For the physical education department we have envisioned two new course offerings for those who are not athleticly oriented. These two courses are SPORT FISHING 506 and TAZMANIAN DEVIL HUNTING 987. Off campus trips are scheduled for both of these courses. Sport fishing 506 will take the student to the widls of Zambezia, and Tazmanian devil hunting will take the fun loving adventuer to sunny North East Ireland. Both of these interesting classes will meet Tuesday and Thursday afternoons D hour. Therefore the student is recommended to arrive somewhat early so that he may return in time for E hour class.

Not to allow the mathematics department to be outdone, we also developed a new statistical analysis course taking the students on field trips to some of the most fascinating spots for mathematical experimentation with trips three times weekly to scenic Las Vegas. This course is suggested only for upperclassmen not accepting student aid. (Lab fee variable from week to week)

Knowing that the history department should be more open to the study of events which some might deem slightly obscure, we have decided that this problem could easily be rectified by the offering of HISTORY 213: History of the Western World (A Second Glance) Featured in this course would be a history of obscure but none the less important facts. For example, the role of orange juice in major diplomatic confrontations of the world has been a long neglected study. Another subject which has also lacked serious consideration is the history of the two humped yak in Illinois agriculture. A possible history interim in connection with this course could concern the role of beavers in the westward expansion.

We feel that the instigation of these courses into our academic program could fill the needs of many students and faculty of the Maryville College community.

MARYVILLE COLLEGE PROJECT ON FURTURISTICS

A Synergar ⇒ The Future

by Dr. Dave Young
Director of the Project on Furturistics

There is no doubt that words like "futuristics" have a certain pzazz or snob appeal. In reality, though, such words are symbols, and symbols in turn are things that can have no meaning unless they are participated in – lived into; they must be something, not mean something.

So now another word: Synergar—and along with it an invitation to be, to experience, to live into a new symbol. The working definition for a Synergar is a cooperative effort among a group of individuals pursued with the aim that the total effect will be greater than the sum of the parts taken independently. A Synergar is like a seminar; yet, it seeks a greater and wider impact than itself. (Know the word synergism?) However, the working meaning for a Synergar, it's symbolic reality, depends on the experience of those who participate. To this end, a Synergar will be created by a group of 20 persons drawn from all segments of the Maryville College community. It will meet twice monthly to explore the emerging transdisciplinary area of futuristics in an effort to probe its possibilities for giving rise to new educational synergies.

One meeting each month will be a buffet supper and discussion in an area home, and the other meeting will be a working/writing session. In October and April there will be overnight retreats at Tremont for more extensive study and planning. A $500 grant has been obtained so there will be no charge to the participants (dare we call them synergists?). But there will be a pound of flesh extracted. All synergists will be expected to actively read, discuss and write for the purposes of sharing. Those who do not will be replaced.

The starting point for discussion will be a consideration of the meaning of the juxtaposition of two statements. (1) "Effective education requires that the person has an unmet need—a problem—for otherwise he will not be truly interested in new information." (2) "The accumulation of crises in the past decade (has) become virtually impossible to cope with in the aggregate. . . virtually no serious thought has been given to what (these) crises imply for curriculum change in education."

If you want to be considered for invitation to join this Synergar, please see Dave Young without delay (Sutton 212).

To the creation of a better human future: it won't happen by itself.

Free Concert for Students

Chamber Players Appear

The first Maryville College Performing Artists Concert of the season will feature the North Carolina Symphony Chamber Players. They will appear Saturday, 22 September at 8:15 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall.

The North Carolina Symphony Chamber Players are the five principal string players and the five principal woodwind players from the full sixty-eight member orchestra. The group is making its fourth autumn concert tour and will play in North Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee.

Other Performing Artists Concerts for the 1973-74 season include: Opera da Camera, an ensemble of young artists which specializes in scenes from the great operatic works, 25 October; Rosemary Barrett Ahmad, pianist, 17 November; Bryan-Keys Duo, flute and piano, 19 January; Roger Drinkall, cellist, 23 February; and Karen Roewade, soprano and former Maryville Affiliate Artists, 5 April.

Admission for Performing Artists Concerts is $ 2 for adults and $1 for students. Maryville College students are admitted by identification card.

Skylab 3 Report

by Dr. Alton T. Tabereaux
Assistant Professor of Chemistry

The manned Skylab space station will make six visible passes over the Maryville area between 25 September and 10 October.

The height will range from 291 miles to 872 miles and the duration of visibility will range from two minutes and 43 seconds to six minutes and 51 seconds. The times listed are Eastern Standard Time.

The dates, hour of visibility and direction of movement are as follows.
Sept. 25, 5:53 a.m., Southeast to east;
Sept. 27, 6:00 a.m., southwest to north
Sept. 28, 5:17 a.m., south to east;
Sept. 29, 4:34 a.m., south to east;
Sept. 30, 5:26 a.m., southeast to north
Oct. 2, 5:37 a.m., west to northeast.

The Skylab 3 astonauts have received the formal go-ahead to complete their 59 day mission. Space agency officials say the crewmen are in as good shape after 49 days in space as the Skylab 1 crewmen were after 28 days.

Present plans are to reschedule the third and final Skylab mission to coin cide when the Comet Kohoutek rendezvous with the sun around the first of the year (28 Dec.) It is expected to be more dazzling than Halley's Comet which was last seen in 1910.

This exciting stellar event will be closely studied here at Maryville College by Dr. Norman Love's astronomy interim using a newly purchased Questar - 7 telescope. Questar employs the new catadioptric optics, a mixed lens-mirrow system, and has a clean aperture of 7 inches. It is regarded as being one of the finest, most versatile small telescopes in the world and is capable of incredibly sharp resolution as illustrated by published large-scale photographs of moon craters, planets, sunspots detail and deep-sky objects.

Choir Initiations Held

Strange happenings yesterday on MC campus? Wednesday and Thursday marked another year about to begin with Choir Initiation.

On becoming a new member of the MC Concert Choir, it is tradition to pledge one's loyalty to the organization. Prior to Wednesday, new members became "slaves" and were assigned "masters" from whom they were to follow instructions and orders for the entire day. So if some of you were wondering who was serenading you outside of your window, you now have a clue!

After an entire day of master-slave activities, all choir members (both new and returning) reported to the P.O. at 6:30 the following morning in their finery. From there the new members once again joined in a little fun and games and then proceeded to Morningside to serenade President Copeland. From Morningside it was a high stepping pace back to campus for breakfast. But the end of the day was still in the distance as new choir members were required to obtain the signatures of all returning members and answer any questions they might have.

As the day began to close, "grubbies" became the style and all choir members reported for Kangaroo Court at 5:00. It was either thumbs up or thumbs down for new members as the jury (returning choir members) gave their verdict.

The end was soon in sight as new members were lead to the picnic grounds in the college woods where they took their final pledge preceding the picnic and formal initiation.

As the two day "trial" came to a close, the new choir members joined the returning choir members in a formal candlelight ceremony and the two groups now became one, forming the 1973-74 MC Concert Choir.

New members include the following: David Adcock, Lisa Boehm, Beth Burgreen, Belinda Chiddie, Walter Clarit, Debbie Coppage, Mike Dykes, Debbie Kees, Peggy Leatherwood, Allan Long, George Lundy, Cindy Murane, Colleen O'Shaughnessy, Ed Peterson, Jane Pierce, Nancy Reagin, Mark Rutledge, Brad Spear, Pat Stewart, Pam Thomson, Bob Wertime, and Candy Wright.

Circle K Kicks Off Year

Are you concerned about our environment? Do you feel a need to help care for the neglected and the elderly? Circle K International and the Maryville College Circle K issue you A Challenge to Action.

Meeting this past Tuesday night, 18 September 1973, President Lyn Stanley called to order the first meeting of Circle K for the school year 1973-74. The meeting featured a report by Vice-President Gwen Guba and Secretary-Treasurer Steven Douglas concerning the 18th annual Circle K International Convention attended by them just prior to their return to school this year.

Circle K in 1973-1974 has adopted a new two year, multipurpose theme. No longer confined to a single action area, this year's club has five action areas to focus on: correctional institution reform, student concerns, health concerns, environmental concerns, and care for dependent and neglected persons. A Challenge to Action provides a broad enough scope that everyone should find an area where they want to help.

Circle K last year saw its first rise in membership in eight years. Projects for the Maryville College Circle K club included glass recycling on campus, a library for the Maryville-Alcoa Boy's Club, visits with the elderly, parties with the Blount County Children's Home, and many other activities.

MC's Circle K club is sponsored by the Maryville Kiwanis Club and the Alcoa Kiwanis Club. Many of the Maryville College faculty and staff are active in these clubs and with the Circle K. Included among these are Dr. Ramger, Dr. Parker, Dr. Shields, Dr. Love, Dr. Tabereaux, Dr. Young, Mr. Klein, and Mr. Ribble.

Circle K invites everyone, male and female, to join in an effort to reach out and help; to respond to A Challenge To Action.

from the Chaplain's Office

Vespers — Sunday, 23 Sept. — 7:00 p.m. — Little Chapel Beginning a series of services on the Lord's Prayer: "ON Being His Offspring." Mr. Lee Kull, violinist, will provide special music.

Thursday Morning Worship — Thursday, 27 Sept. — Little Chapel - 8:40 a.m. Louise McNair, who spent her junior year abroad in Turkey, will share some of her experiences.

Freshman Class Elections

Those wishing to gain the offices of President, Vice-President, and Secratary-Treasurer of the Freshman class may declare their desire to do so by submitting their names, along with 10 nominations, to the Post Office by 1 p.m. this afternoon, Friday, 21 September.

Candidate speeches will be held Wednesday night at 6:30 on the Chapel steps.

Elections will take place on Thursday, 27 September at dinner, and on Friday, 28 September at lunch. The polls will close immediately after lunch.

Movie

21 September Friday — Slaughterhouse Five in the Music Hall at 8:15 p.m. Admission fee is .75

Soccer Club Begins First Season

The Maryville College Soccer Club will begin its first full season Friday, 12 October 1973, with an away game against the University of Tennessee.

Practice is already under way with Dr. Young and Matt Couzens serving as the coaching staff. Practices will be held every evening on the intramural field behind the gym. All soccer enthusiasts are urged to come and play.

Club President Jeff Lang has announced tentative schedule of eight games. The slate includes the University of Tennessee, Vanderbilt University, Peabody College, the University of Alabama, and Georgia Tech.

Last spring the club received a $250.00 grant from the Carolina Christians Foundation of Kentucky to supplement equipment and transporation costs. The club also charges a $5.00 membership fee for the same purpose. No funds are given the soccer club by the college.

Men Form Intramural Association

The first meeting ever of the Maryville College Mens' Intramural Association was held Tuesday night in the Gym. Plans were made for the coming year with regard to the Mens' Intramural program, and officers were elected. A turnout of about 40 boys was on hand for the meeting.

It was decided at the meeting that individual sports, such as raquetball, ping pong, etc., and volleyball will be done along the lines of dormitory competition. Flag football, basketball, and softball will continue to operate with independant teams. Officers elected include Don Gilbert, President; Skip Ringler, Vice President; Buddy Bernhardt, Secretary; and Harry Riley, Treasurer. In order for one to participate in the program this year, he will have to pay a fee of $1.50 to join the Association.

Closing dates for Fall activities registration has also been announced. They are flag football, September 21; volleyball, September 28; a Student-Faculty golf match, September 28; Punt, Pass, and Kick contest, October 5; table tennis match, October 31; and cross-country race, November 2.

RESEARCH

Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page

Send for your up-to-date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).

RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493

Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

Representative needed! Earn $200.00+ each semester with only a few hours work at the beginning of the semester INTERNATIONAL MARKETING SERVICE, 519 Glenrock Ave., Suite 203, Los Angeles, California 90024

You'll go ape over the Sound of Koss.

The Sound of Koss Stereophones has always made music lovers go ape. So, "Go Ape Shirt" with the purchase of any Koss Stereophone. And for those who think it's possible to go ape without a Koss Stereophone, our "Go Ape Shirts" are available for only $1.95. At that price, they may not blow your mind like a Koss Stereophone would, but they won't blow your budget either.

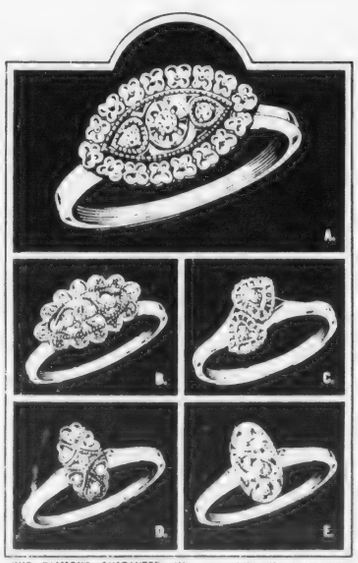
Drop around today and listen to the Sound of Koss. When you purchase a Koss Stereophone, we'll arrange for your free "Go Ape Shirt." Or if you just want the shirt, we'll show you how to send for one. But hurry, the offer expires soon.

The Sound Post
MIDLAND SHOPPING CENTER
Phone 615-984-6960

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
The Leader
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend



Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Join MC's Fire Crew

All Students, male or female, in good physical condition and interested in becoming a part of the Maryville College-Smoky Mountain Cooperative Fire Crew, please complete the following form and get it to John Ballard, Box 2023.

Name _____ Sex _____
Age _____ Class _____ Social Security No. _____
Have you had Forest Fire Fighting experience _____
training _____
Box _____ Residence and Phone No. _____

A SALE FIT FOR A PRINCESS

WE'RE OVERSTOCKED IN PRINCESS RINGS! You'll save a lot of money now on that genuine Art Crest diamond princess ring you've always wanted. Shown here are just a few examples of the gigantic savings you'll find. But hurry, all items are subject to prior sale and quantities are limited.

A. SAVE $5.00 Three diamonds bordered by tiny flower detailing. REGULAR $29.95 $24.95

B. SAVE $9.05 Three matched diamonds in a traditional golden setting. REGULAR $35.00 $25.95

C. SAVE $9.05 A sweetheart ring with 2 gleaming diamonds centered in lacy hearts. REGULAR $35.00 $25.95

D. SAVE $20.00 Large center diamond surrounded by 6 diamond centered hearts. REGULAR $59.95 $39.95

E. SAVE $30.00 Five flashing diamonds in a swirling golden glitter. REGULAR $79.95 $49.95

YOUR DIAMOND GUARANTEE. We unconditionally guarantee your satisfaction with your diamond for 60 days or your money back. Your diamond is always worth its full purchase price when traded for one of equal additional value

Five convenient ways to buy
Revolving Charge • Custom Charge • BankAmericard Master Charge • Layaway

JEWEL BOX
DIAMOND SPECIALISTS FOR OVER 50 YEARS
MIDLAND CENTER 982-4940 Knoxville, Oak Ridge, Greeneville, Johnson City, Kingsport

- Perfect Love Diamonds
- Art Carved Wedding Bands
- Perfect Love Wedding Bands
- Seiko Watches
- Bulova Watches
- Accutron Watches
- Caravelle watches by Bulova
- Timex watches
- Spiedel Watch Bands
- Spiedel ID Bracelets
- Spiedel ID Bracelets
- Princess Gardner Billfolds
- Prince Gardner Wallets
- Prince Gardner Wallets
- Spiedie Neck Chains
- Remington Shavers
- Schick Shavers
- Cross Pens
- Sterling & Silver Plated Holloware
- Bridal Gifts By Anson
- Zenith Radios
- Earrings & Charms By JMS
- Bulova Clocks
- Masonic Jewelry
- Zippo Lighters
- Ronson Lighters
- Colinti Lighters

Jeaners
by COVER GIRL SHOES

Cover Girl jeaners are just as great as the things you enjoy doing most. Come by and see for yourself.

FOX
NAVY
SAND
$16.99

CHASE
- Two-Tone Brown
- Two-Tone Blue

$17.99

Southern shoes
MIDLAND CENTER — ALCOA

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No 4 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 28 September 1973

Freshman Profile

The average freshman on the Maryville College campus this year is white, Protestant, and lives in Florida with both of his parents. He scored a 22 on his ACT, totaled 900 on his SAT's, and was in the top half of his class in high school.

These statistics are approximations from figures compiled during this year's freshmen registration. Other information provided by these statistics shows that there are three freshmen males (129) for every two freshmen females (85).

MC's 214 freshmen represent twenty-five states and one foreign country. Florida provided the largest number of men (36) and the largest total of new students (52) while Tennessee provided the campus with the most new women (22).

Only six black students registered as freshmen this fall. All of them are male. Eighteen members of the new class attended private schools.

Concerning religion, one hundred fifty-six professed to be Protestants, thirty-three to being Catholics, and one student confessed to being a member of the Jewish faith.

The top three career areas listed by the men were business, physical education and related areas, and medicine. The women preferred education, the arts, and biology.

Results of the national testing programs, the ACT and SAT, placed Maryville College freshmen on an average level. A look at the extremes shows two students scored higher than 28 on the ACT and seven scored less than 17 on the same test. On the SAT three students scored above 700 on the mathematics test while only one scored above 700 on the verbal test. Five students scored below 300 on the verbal exam with only one person scoring below 300 on the math.

Twenty freshmen ranked in the 90th percentile in their high school class. Five students placed in the 10th percentile of their respective high schools.

Twenty students are commuting this year. The remaining 194 freshmen are living in the dormitories on campus. Now that you know a little more about them, go out and meet them.

Jean and Lee

two civ's Pieper Speaks

The Alpha Gamma Sigma recognition of scholarship students, with speaker Archibald F. Pieper, was the main topic at CIV, Friday, 28 September.

Mr. Pieper received his B.A. degree from Maryville College in 1936 and his M.A. degree in Political Science from U.T. in 1954. He taught Political Science at Maryville from 1939 to 1954. At present, he is Coordinator, Office for Men's Program in the Program Agency of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

The subject of his talk was Redeeming Social Value—At This Point in Time.

Rush Week

This has been Society Rush week at Maryville College as the four social societies are attempting to recruit new members this week. All of this will culminate with society sign-up on Monday, October 1. Alpha Sigma and Theta Epsilon held their rush activities on Monday and Tuesday. Their activities included a series of skits in the Fine Arts Center on Monday night, and a fashion show in the Lloyd Basement Tuesday night. In addition to these, the two societies are sponsoring an oldies dance in the Lloyd basement Saturday night right after the football game. Kappa Phi and Chi Beta held their rush activities on Thursday and Friday. Chi Beta sponsored a donut party in front of the Student Center Thursday morning. Kappa Phi held a smoker that night. Tonight the two groups are sponsoring a hay-ride.

Schillings to Perform

The upcoming program for the next CIV, October 3, should prove to be an interesting one. Appalachian Mountain Music is to be presented by Jean and Lee Schillings The Schillings will perform various songs of the mountains played on the dulcimer, autoharp, recorder and harmonica. The main purpose of the Schilling's program is to "emphasize the cultural heritage of the Appalachian Mountain region."

While in concert, Jean and Lee have a real joy and warmth on stage. They play their music with a feeling and talent that was once heard in the mountains, years ago. They want to portray a feeling that "the Appalachian Mountain tradition is a proud and important part of our heritage."

Every year in the spring the Schillings produce and direct the Annual Folk Festival of the Smokies, with many entertainers and festivities. They want to "share and promote the folk music and folk life of the Appalachian area."

Circle K Sponsors Glass Recycling

The Maryville College Circle K is sponsoring a glass recycling program on campus for its third consecutive year.

Recycling chairman Paul Viggiano has announced that recepticals have been placed in the stairwells of all the dorms. These containers are clearly marked and are for glass only. All students are requested to please put all their glass, bottles, jars, etc. in these containers.

The glass barrels will be emptied periodically by Circle K and taken out to the Vocational Rehabilitation Center on Highway 411. All funds received from the project are donated by Circle K to the Center to help finance the recycling program.

Bike Club Forms

This afternoon, 28 September, there will be a meeting in SSC 201 to form a Bike Club. Be there at 3:45.

Nigerian Students Recognize Independence Day

The Nigerian Students of MC wish to invite the college community to a celebration of their independence day. The 13th anniversary of the Nigerian Independence is 1 October 1973, but for convenience purposes, the campus celebration is scheduled on Saturday, 29 September at 9:00 p.m. in front of Pearsons Hall.

from the Chaplain's Office

VESPERS — Sunday, September 30 — 7:00 p.m. — Little Chapel Lord's Prayer Series: "What's In a Name?" — Dr. Dan Kinsinger will sing.

THURSDAY MORNING WORSHIP— Thursday, October 4— 8:40 a.m.—Little Chapel Miss Virginia Turrentine will be the worship leader.

Letters to the Echo

Sagging Food Services

To the Editor:

Our man with a major in casseroles and a minor in rice apparently is an interior decorator to boot. Memorandums concerning activities on the MC campus are not welcome on his bulletin boards unless they are typed in triplicate, submitted three days in advance and come with three thumb-tacks. They are then posted at minimum visibility for a period of time not known to exceed a short breath.

Mr. Saga should be informed that he is providing a service for the students here at Maryville College. The Margaret Ware Dining Hall is the primary gathering spot for the majority of the students three times a day. His place of operations is therefore the one place besides the cluttered post office where notices will be seen and read. Vacant bulletin boards are wasted. Therefore, all persons that have had their signs ripped off should see Mr. Saga about their return. He might even let you put them up again if they have a touch of Fifth Avenue flair. Isn't that NEAT!

Name Withheld

To the Editor:

In President Copeland's invitation to the Maryville College students, faculty, and administration to attend a party at his home, he referred to our surrogate home as the "Learning Community." This seems fairly accurate six days out of the week, but on Sunday the "Learning Community" seems to take a vacation. For example, the Sutton Science Center doesn't open till 1:00 p.m., nor does the library or the Fine Arts Center. Most of the time this is simply an inconvenience, but as fruit flies begin to hatch, and term papers fall due, and recitals draw near, this inconvenience becomes a disaster. I see no good reason why these facilities cannot be opened at the same time on Sunday as they are on all the other days of the week.

Henry Hastings

What is Your View of the Future?

by Dr. Dave Young
Director of the Project on Futuristics

What kind of a futurist are you? That is, how do you view the future in terms of how you should or will be involved in its unvolding?

The Future Is Fixed:

One school of thought says that the future will be an extension of our immediate past. Present trends will continue, and in this sense then, the future is determined. We will just have to work to control trends as best we can.

Those with a positive orientation—Alvin Toffler, Herman Kahn—believe that we must "expect more science, more technology, continuing economic growth, continuing urbanization, and evergreater complexity to life." There surely will be some rough spots as we work things out, but basically it is felt that through new knowledge and life-styles things will resolve themselves before too long. We will gain control of trends and solve most of today's pressing problems (pollution, population, economic imbalance, etc.), and thereby create a better world society.

Those with a negative orientation—the Limits to Growth study by the Club of Rome—believe that if we have continuing economic growth, pollution, overpopulation, etc. we are headed toward great and unavoidable disaster. The response we must put forth then is to change our growth patterns so the trends now established will not destroy us.

Both the positive and negative oriented camps believe that basically we are forced to stay and work within the existing social system.

The Future Is Changing:

This school of thought says that the future is unfolded by allowing each man to work out his own role. Constraints are undesirable because there are no genetic or cultural limitations that cannot be overcome by allowing man to change (as is his basic nature). Charles Reich, in his book The Greening of America, posited this view in terms of the development of new levels of consciousness: the Con I of the old guard conservatives, the Con II of the Kennedy liberals and now the Con III of the hippie-liberated youth. Con IV is on the way, with Con V, VI, etc. to follow as man's consciousness continues to change.

Simply put, change is inevitable and a new world will be created by leaving people alone to live out these newlv found (or created) levels of consciousness. In this way the world will come together, at the end of the process, not at its beginning having been forced by bureaucratic fiat.

The Future Is To Be Created:

This third school of thought finds the previous two views to be untenable because the first one basically accepts the world as it is and the second ignores the world as it is. The economist-turned-futurist Robert Theobald is at the forefront of developing an approach to the future that has as its basic tenet the need to transform present society into a more human society. Theobald writes that the transition can be made "if, and only if, we will take the time to discover the real forces operating at this point in human history, to imagine the future we want, and to create the methods by which we can move from the present future into the conditional future that we choose."

In other words, Theobald's approach centers on the notion of how the future is created and how it can be purposefully guided so that a transformation occurs in human relationships. Inventing the future and choosing the future are the same thing.

In sum here are three models for the future. Where do you fit? Or is there a fourth? If so, let's hear about it because the future belongs to us all, and we are making it—now.

Academically Speaking

by Dr. Elizabeth T. Fowler
Assistant Professor of English

An Internship in Environmental Education is available at Maryville College, with the work being done, for the most part, at the Environmental Education Center operated jointly by the College and the National Park Service.

The Internship is for a regular academic year and involves:

1. Participation as instructional assistant with cooperative experiences in pre-site, and post-site work with the schools who are a part of the Center activities.
2. Apprenticeship in Center management and maintenance which includes working with personnel responsible for these areas: management, administration and logistics, scheduling, publicity, public contacts, financial and budgeting matters, dining room operation, and participation in all activities.
3. Preparing and leading seminars, research and preparation of lesson plans for Center use, conducting environmental analyses, and related activities.
4. An optional assignment for a period of interpretive work with the National Park Service as a Volunteer in Park Service (VIPS).

This program is new, flexible, and can be adapted to fit the individual's desire and background. Upon successful completion of the internship, the College will issue a Certificate of Participation and a Certificate of Efficiency in Environmental Education. This Certificate bears a description of the work completed and becomes a part of the student's permanent record. Three course credit is given for the work.

The program is overviewed by the Committee of Advisors to the Environmental Education Center and is directly under the supervision of Dr. Shields and Mr. Foster, Center Director. Members of the MC faculty participate in various aspects of the program as their specialties permit.

Cost for the intern will be a tuition charge of $495 plus a charge of $10 for insurance. The College, through the Center, will provide an assistantship of room and meals for the duration of the Internship.

The Internship is available to graduates of Maryville College or any other college or university on the basis of space available and the ability of the College to finance the program.

The intern for the 1973-74 year is Hardy DeYoung, a 1973 graduate of Maryville College. For further information please contact Director, MCEEC, Townsend, TN 37882, phone: 448-2211.

theHighland ECHO

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas
Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Photographer—T. Fox
Distribution—L. Catrett, G. Guba

MEMBER

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

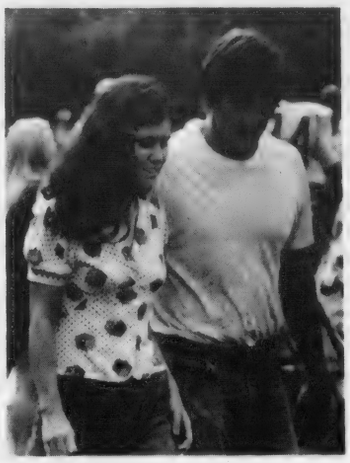
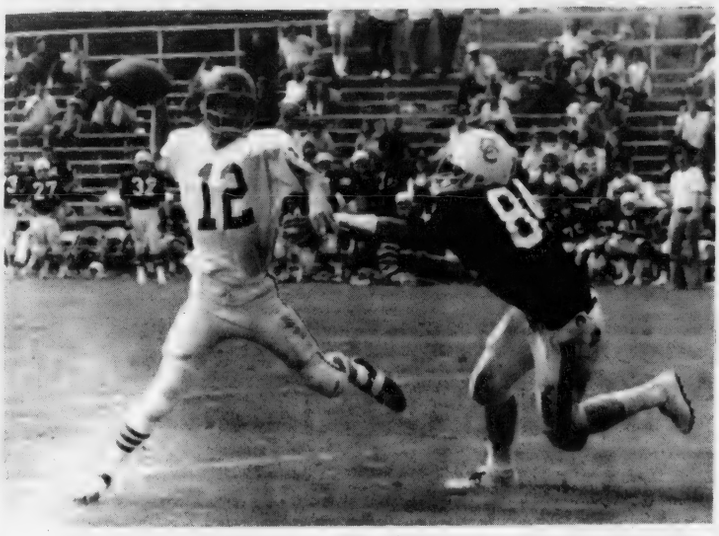
Policy Cleared Up!



As the editor, I earnestly urge a free flow of campus communication between yourselves and the Echo. It is as much your job as it is mine to voice your opinions, thoughts, and sentiments.

I wish to clear up any questions on my editorial policy as of this moment. I will publish any letter received which justly and amply handles a topic. The topic is your choice. There is the fact that I, as editor, must know who is writing the letter. But it is not necessary to print your name.



Do not be shy; speak your mind and let me do the worrying about amy reprisals.

The Game...

and its fans

Scots Thrash Centre

Saturday afternoon Maryville College smothered visiting Centre College of Danville, Ky, 24-7. This victory levels the Scots record at 1-1; Centre is now 0-2.

Maryville took command in the opening minutes and was never seriously challenged throughout the game.

Scot Gary Hutchins opened the scoring, booting a 21-yard field goal in the first quarter. Later in the same period Maryville tallied six points off a Colonel punt attempt. After receiving a high snap from center, kicker Tom Hagerman got off a short, low punt. Scot linebacker Dan Osborne ran it in from the twenty-six. Hutchins made the conversion.

In the third quarter a long Maryville drive ended in another touchdown. Tailback Rodney Stephens carried the ball in from the one. Hutchins again added the extra point.

Late in the same period Centre gained the momentum for their only score. Freshman guard Mark Ulliman scooped up a Scot fumble, and the Colonels took the ball all the way. Fullback Mike Miller slammed in from the two. Kicker Ron Cassell booted the conversion.

The game's last score was also set up by a fumble recovery. Maryville's sophomore linebacker Steve Howard's second fumble recovery of the afternoon ended in a 10-yard run by Keith Goodwin for the score. The extra point was made by Steve Leng.

Maryville's Rodney Stephens took rushing honors, piling up 173 yards in 21 carries. Behind him was freshman Joseph Genauldi, who picked up 58 yards in 8 attempts.

Centre's leading ground gainer was Clyde Poignard. The junior tailback collected 48 yards in rushes and receptions.

Maryville's defense was outstanding. Holding the Coloniels to only 102 total yards, the squad once more proved its worth. Junior tackle Bill Silvernale led the defensive lineman in stopping Centre. In the secondary Jeff Hamilton and ScottCook intimidated-Colonel receivers, and breaking up several passes from John Smith.

This Saturday the Scots are visited by Georgetown, Ky. Kick-off time is 7:30 P.M.

	1	2	3	4	T
Centre	0	0	0	0	7
Maryville	10	0	7	7	24

Black Student Association Begins Year

The Black Student Association (BSA) held its first meeting September 17 in the Black Culture Center which is located on the second floor of Fayerweather Hall, to elect officers and welcome new members. Emerson Henderson was elected president and Beverly Branham was elected secretary-treasurer.

The BSA is an attempt to organize and unify the small and fragmented Black student population here at Maryville. Through the Black Culture Center, the BSA hopes to make the white college community come to grips with the Black experience. With an awareness of this experience, the college community's sensitivity toward the needs and goals of its Black minority should improve.

The BSA rejects the belief that Blacks are "culturally deprived." Black people are in fact, "culturally different." Actually, Black people represent a dual culture, having the benefits and evils of the dominant white, Anglo-Saxon culture, and their own unique Afro-Americanism. The Black Culture Center is the center of this long neglected, and rich culture.

During the year the BSA hopes to sponsor many activities which will enable the white college community to learn of (about) the Black experience.

Faculty Wives Sponsor Festival

Mrs. Blair Beasley, head of this year's Faculty Wives' Craft Festival, encourages M.C. students to join faculty wives and area artists and craftsmen in displaying their works from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. 13 October in the chapel colonnade.

While a $2.00 fee and 1 October deadline are set for area participants, students pay nothing to display and have until 10 October to contact Mrs. Beasley at 982-0841.

Season Premiere For Experimental Theatre

Nancy McCleary and Jean Tiffaney will present Once Upon a Matress on 27 October and 1-3 November in the MC Theatre. Nancy and Jean are co-directing the play as a joint special studies. Nancy is director of the acting, while Jean coordinates the music. Their choreographer is Tom Williamson. Based on the Hans Christian Anderson tale, the play has been a hit on and off Broadway.

Students with leading roles include Ester Yardumian as Princess Winifred, Ken Atchley as Prince Dauntless, Sharon Murphy as Queen Aggoravain, John Gossett as King Sextimius, Bill Gaffney as Sir Harry, Mary Apetz as Lady Larkin, Merida Kearns-Preston as the Ministrel, and Clyde Byars as the Jester. Many other MC students support these actors in their roles. Remember, 27 October at 2:30.

Elton John Comes to the Smokies

ELTON JOHN will appear in concert in Knoxville, Tenn. at UT's Stokely Athletic Center on Saturday, October 13 at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $6.50, $5.50, and $4.50. They are now on sale at the UT Center Ticket Office. Mail orders will be filled promptly by sending a check or money order payable to the Campus Entertainment Board, c/o University Center Ticket Office, rm. 127, UT – Knoxville, Tenn. 37916. The opening act is The SUTHERLAND BROTHERS & QUIVER.

Under the direction of Miss Betty Werner, the Women's Intramurals activities got underway September 20. Soccer kicked off the fall program with five teams in competition for the championship. These teams signed up in the women's dorms Remaining all sports are: tennis singles starting September 24 through October 5, field hockey October 9 through October 18 and volleyball October 15 through November 8.

In the winter there will be basketball and badminton, followed in the spring by racketball, softball, ping pong and tennis doubles. Each of the sports will be managed by one of the officers or members of the "M" Club. The "M" Club runs the Women's Intramurals. The officers are: Bonnie Page, President; Carol Rankin, first Vice President; Carol Johnson, second Vice President; Neva Parker, Secretary; Anna Ruth Prochazka, Treasurer; Melinda Lucas and Lynn Earnheart Program Chairmen; Shada Overton and Jean Erhardt, Publicity Chairmen; and Trigger Graham, Beth Buchanan, Cindy Wright and Terrie Topham, Members.

Miss Werner, who is a Physical Education instructor here at Maryville, hopes to have a spring banquet for the champions of their respective sports.

RESEARCH

Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page

Send for your up-to-date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).

RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493

Our research material is sold for research assistance only

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

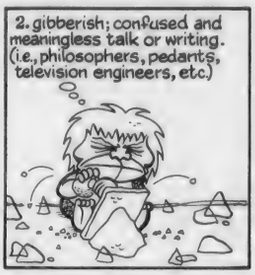
Representative needed! Earn $200.00+ each semester with only a few hours work at the beginning of the semester INTERNATIONAL MARKETING SERVICE, 519 Glenrock Ave., Suite 203, Los Angeles, California 90024

ACS Cited

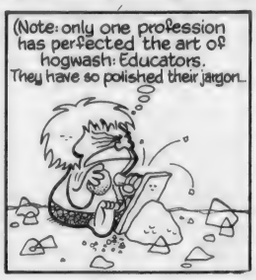
The 1972-73 student affiliate chapter of the American Chemical Society at Maryville College has been selected as being one of the "outstanding" chapters in the nation.

Each year the Council Committee on Chemical Education reviews the activities of all chapters and selects for special commendation those which have compiled outstanding records during the year. Maryville College's Chapter was among thirty-one chapters out of a total of 579 which have been thus commended for excellence in the 1972-73 academic year.

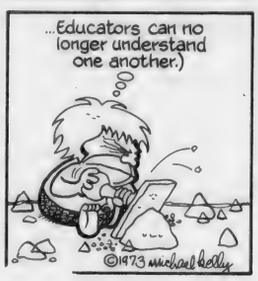
The student affiliate program of the American Chemical Society was established in 1937 and is designed to provide students interested in chemistry and chemical engineering with greater insight into these fields. The objects of chapters is to afford an opportunity for students of chemistry, chemical engineering, and related disciplines to become better acquainted, to secure the intellectual stimulation that arises from professional association, to obtain experience in preparing and presenting technical material before chemical audiences, to foster a professional spirit among the members, to instill a professional pride in chemistry and chemical engineering, and to foster an awareness of the resonsibilities and challenges of the modern chemist.



The Society's program for students is one of the largest of any scientific and educational organization. No other group has chapters in over 550 colleges and universities as does the ACS.



Any student working toward an undergraduate degree in chemistry, chemical engineering, or a related discipline may become a student affiliate of the American Chemical Society. Related disciplines include such fields as biology, physics, mathematics, engineering, etc.



New Officers

Maryville College's student affiliate chapter officers and faculty advisors for the 1973-74 academic year are; chairman, Art Fowler; vice-chairman, Paul Viggiano; secretary-treasurer, Melinda Lucas; and faculty advisors are Dr. Gale Rhodes and Dr. Alton Tabereaux. The chapter's first meeting was held Thursday, September 27 at 7:00 p.m. in Room 113, in the Sutton Science Center. Dr. Alton Tabereaux presented a program on Skylab, a preview of America's First Earth–Orbiting Space Station.

FOLLOW YOUR HEART TO TIPTON Jewelers

982-8141

113 E. Broadway
Maryville, Tenn. 37801

HOUSE OF DIAMONDS
• DIAMONDS REMOUNTED
• ASK ABOUT OUR NEW ..... RING OF RADIANCE THAT WILL INCREASE THE VISUAL SIZE OF A CENTER DIAMOND 6 TIMES.

• ROLEX WATCHES
• BULOVA WATCHES
• ACCUTRON
• GIFTS

"EASY CREDIT TERMS"

C. R. TIPTON, owner

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient

BLOUNT The Leader NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Haiti for Interim?

There are places for a few students yet in the interim to Haiti and The Dominican Republic. Any freshmen or upper classmen interested in taking this interim should deposit $30 in the treasurer's office. Students will be accepted on a first-come basis.

OPEN 9 TO 6 DAILY, FRIDAY NIGHT 'TIL 9

SEIKO
The Automation-Age Watch

With Seiko, you pay for the watch, not the time it took to make it! See our large selection today, and let a Seiko ride home on your wrist!

Masculine, self-winding Seiko with day-date calendar. Water tested to 98.2 feet. Stainless, white dial, 17 jewel accuracy. $49.50

Your lady's time is "her own" with this delicately feminine timepiece. Accuracy is assured with 17 jewels. Watch her, she'll love it! $79.50

Automatic, day-date calendar Seiko is water tested to 98.2 feet. Has easy-to-read burnt umber dial. In stainless steel, 17 jewel. $65

Five convenient ways to buy:
Revolving Charge • Custom Charge • BankAmericard • Master Charge • Layaway

JEWEL BOX
DIAMOND SPECIALISTS FOR OVER 50 YEARS

140 W. MAIN STREET, ALBEMARLE • 982-2511 OTHER LOCATIONS IN ASHEBORO, BURLINGTON, LENOIR, KINSTON, MORGANTON, ROCKINGHAM, SHELBY, CONCORD, GASTONIA, MONROE, SALISBURY, STATESVILLE, LANCASTER AND CHARLOTTE

Potpourri

DOWNTOWN MARYVILLE

10% OFF

LATCH HOOK RUG SUPPLIES

CANDLES
POSTERS
INCENSE
BLACKLIGHTS
CRAFT SUPPLIES

114 W. BROADWAY
"NOWTOWN" MALL
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Next time you see someone polluting, point it out.

It's a spewing smokestack. It's litter in the streets. It's a river where fish can't live.

You know what pollution is.

But not everyone does.

So the next time you see pollution, don't close your eyes to it.

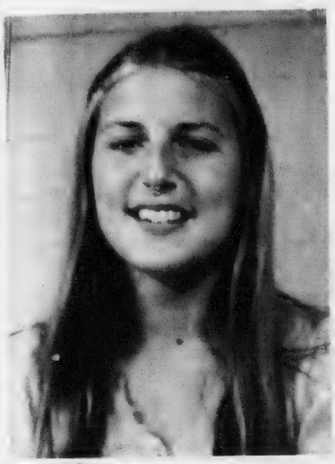
Write a letter. Make a call. Point it out to someone who can do something about it.

People start pollution.

People can stop it.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 5 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 5 October 1973



MC's Homecoming, 1973

Homecoming Court

Elections for Homecoming Queen took place on Wednesday, 3 October during break, lunch and dinner hours.

It is with pleasure that we present the Homecoming Court for 1973.

Congratulations to all the 1973 members of the Homecoming Court! The coronation of Homecoming Queen will take place at Honaker Field, Saturday, 6 October, during half-time.

Laura O'Dwyer

Laura O'Dwyer is a Sociology major from Ringoes, New Jersey. She plans to attend graduate school in the future or to teach Special Education. Some of her hobbies include sewing, crocheting, and hockey. One of her most interesting endeavors is flying, which she began as an interim project. Laura is a Senior Counselor at Davis Hall, a member of Theta and a Matmaid.

Candy Wright

Candy Wright is a Biology major from Poland, Ohio. Her plans include graduate school in the near future, with the intention of teaching high school or at a junior college. Candy's favorite hobbies include swimming, needlepoint and canoing. She is a member of the Maryville College Concert Choir, Beta Beta Beta, M Club, the Chilhowean Staff and the Social Committee.

Sarah Winbigler

Jackson, Mississippi is the hometown of Sarah Winbigler. Sarah is majoring in English and wishes to become an author. Needlework, tennis and reading occupy a good portion of Sarah's free time. She is the present co-chairman of ACC, a Senior Counselor at Dorm I, and has served as former Lay-out Editor of the Highland Echo.

Princess Hicks

An English major from Madisonville, Tennessee, Princess Hicks plans to attend graduate school in the near future. One of her hobbies is playing the piano for enjoyment. Princess is a Senior Counselor at Davis Hall, and a member of both the Highland Echo and Chilhowean staff.

Cindy Jones

Cyndi Jones' hometown is Rockford Illinois. Majoring in Art Education she plans a career in advertising. Among Cyndi's favorite hobbies are all kinds of water sports, dancing and horseback riding. She is a member of Circle K, Theta and the Chilhowean staff.

ACC Holds First Open Meeting

The Maryville All College Council convened its first meeting of the 1973-74 academic year at 2:30 P.M., Wednesday, 3 October 1973 in Anderson Hall.

Co-chairman Sarah Winbigler called the meeting to order. The first item of business was the approval of the minutes of the last meeting, presented by Dr. Parker. Dr. Arda Walker then led the Council in prayer.

President Copeland next proceeded to present to the ACC plan for the All College Council to meet with the Board of Directors, Thursday, 4 October, and Friday, 5 October 1973. Dr. Parker, Sarah Winbigler, and Gil Nicholas will discuss with the Board the philosophy and the functions of the Maryville form of campus government.

A special presentation will be given the Board of Directors by Dr. Beck and Wayne Kramer. Drawing upon their experiences as professor and student, these two individuals will attempt to portray for the Board, "what today's Maryville college student is like."

The Social, Cultural, and Recreational Committee reported to the ACC that an evaluation committee has been put together to review the performance of the new food service on campus and the students reactions to the service. Patricia Lloyd is the chairman of this new group.

Several miscellaneous items were presented to the All College Council for consideration on future agendas. These items included: alcohol, concensus, new academic programs in planning, building hours, and a new ombudsman.

Activities Planned

That weekend when all the old (and not-so-old) grads are invited to come home to Alma Mater has arrived at MC. After being welcomed and registered, the alumni will have the first of two meetings this afternoon with Mr. Raymond Brahams, Mr. Bruce Semple, and Deans Massey and Elia.

The meetings are planned to stimulate face-to-face dialogue between the alumni and college heads about what's going on at MC. The officials plan to challenge the alumni for ideas and suggestions, and for practical help in carrying them out.

At 10:15 p.m. on Friday the alumni will be further challenged to revive their school spirit at the pep ralley.

Saturday will feature two highlights: the 10:30 a.m. parade, when the floats constructed via all-night marathons will leave the college for a tour of Maryville; and the football game, where the Scots will battle it out with Randolph-Macon at 2:00 p.m.

After the game the alumni will be fed a barbecue supper, followed by a meeting of the Honaker Club, an organization supporting MC athletics in honor of the late Lombe S. Honaker, MC football coach from 1921 to 1959.

Royal King's To Perform

This year's homecoming will be highlighted by a victory dance to be held in Pearson's Hall at 9 p.m., Saturday, 6 October 1973.

On tour The Royal Kings have appeared with Brooklyn Bridge, Jay and the Americans, and Curtis Mayfield. Members of the group include Perry Caligan, Bruce Jacobson, Larry and Randy Wheeling.

Dress is semi-formal for this event. Tickets for the dance are $3.50 a couple or $2.00 if you come by yourself.

Academically Speaking

MC's Own Nostalgia

by Mrs. Herma Cate
Assistant Professor of English

During Homecoming Week it is natural for alumni to recall nostalgically some of the traditions which have been a part of Maryville College. Parts of these traditions have passed into oblivion, others continue, and new ones are constantly emerging.

One of these traditions which lasted until three or four years ago was the Daisy Chain as a part of Graduation Day. Members of the Junior Class gathered daisies from nearby pasture fields and made them into long chains three or four inches in diameter. Dressed in pastel or white dresses, Junior girls stood on either side of the aisle and held continuous chains across their shoulders in festoon fashion as Seniors marched by in caps and gowns. When graduation exercises were over, the girls placed the daisy chains on the lawn between Anderson Hall and Sutton Science center in the figure representing the year of the graduating class.

The tradition of a sunrise service, which began long ago, is still a vital part of the Easter celebration at Maryville College. It too is held in the amphitheater of the college woods. This service varies from year to year, but always the wonder of the Resurrection is brought home to those who attend.

Sometimes trumpet players start announcing the coming of the glorious event very early Easter morning. At other times three or four small orchestral groups have been spaced along the road to the scene of the celebration. Here they herald the approaching good news.

To feel the true spirit of this service, one must sit wrapped in a blanket on the leaf-strewn hill above the amphitheater on a chilly morning waiting for the lilac dawn to lighten into a faint gold. Below, the orchestra and the choir announce the fading of darkness and the coming of light. As the story of the open sepulcher unfolds, the sun's first rays slant over the purple mountains behind the barren branches and trunks of huge oaks silhouetted against the shafts of light. Once again the earth is awakening, and man has renewed his faith in the immortality of his soul.

Another traditional celebration, only recently discontinued, was the Barnwarming. When only one day was free for Thanksgiving, faculty and students held a carnival in the old gymnasium. Both groups presented skits and other kinds of entertainment for this evening. The various organizations on campus competed to see who could have the most creative show.

Faculty too entered into the competition. One year faculty members dressed as various kinds of dolls—the Dionne quintuplets, wind-up dolls, Raggedy Anns, and others. One older teacher brought with him a younger teacher as his little daughter who wanted to see all the dolls. She particularly enjoyed the wind-up doll, for when her surrogate father wound it, it danced a jig.

Townspeople gladly paid their .25 admission to join the college groups in this celebration. Surrounded by harvest decorations of golden pumpkins, tobacco-brown shocks of corn, and colorful autumn leaves, any freshman soon lost feelings of loneliness at spending Thanksgiving away from home, for the warmth of a sense of community surrounded him.

Another custom, discontinued more than a decade ago, was the May Day Festival. For this festival long hours of preparation resulted in highly creative activities. The Drama and Physical Education Departments were generally responsible for the production. Folk dances required many hours of practice as did the Maypole dance. Everybody designed his own costume with concentration on a specific theme. One year the theme was a flower garden. Coloful red tulips, yellow jonquils, purple iris, and blue larkspur brightened the amphitheater in the college woods.

Here everybody gathered on the afternoon of May Day—not only the college students but also those from surrounding public schools. Whether watching the nodding of flowers dancing in the breeze or the suspenseful events of the Wizard of Oz, delighted viewers caught the lilting spirit of spring. After student-written skits and dramas were presented, the maypole dance climaxed the day

Students today are still perpetuating folk customs. Sometimes a little perspective is necessary before the folkloristic qualities become evident.

from the editor's desk

Alcohol Again!

The slightest mention of resurrecting the alcohol issue on MC's campus brings much distress to the administration and student body—and it should! But nevertheless, this issue has been hashed and rehashed year after year without really settling the problem.

MC's Purpose and Objectives reads in part:

Maryville seeks to establish a community in which students and faculty, of varying backgrounds, abilities, talents, and interests, can unite in a common purpose and freely discuss their differences, recognizing that when differences and tensions no longer exist, man ceases to grow.

It seeks to establish a community in which all activities—intellectual, religious, social, cultural, physical—are coordinated so as to prevent distracting fragmentation.

Differences between the students and the administration have been discussed. Tensions and fragmentation still exist. The students, as well as the administration, are distracted by this contining discrepancy between MC's official policy prohibiting the use of alcohol and the widespread consumption every week. The lack of enforcement of this policy has been an open fact. Some persons call this ignorant approach in an educational community hypocritical; while others term this approach the best answer for an impossible solution.

The 1972-73 ACC—Anderson Controlled Council—agreed by "consensus" to reach a decision on alcohol for once and for all. They did after piddling all around the issue for eight months. A straw vote at the final meeting of the year killed all action by the ACC, its subcommittees, and its ad hoc committee for just another year. The issue came in the front door and was forced under the table. From that point on, the Council ceased to grow. It could not even discuss its own differences and tensions much less the tensions and differences of an everchanging student body.

A neighboring Presbyterian institution, Tuscumlum College, has made the move to catch up with her students' growth in an educational as well as a social environment. The tensions on our alcohol issue still exist without any real reconciliation in sight.

Isn't it time that Maryville College caught up with what her students want? The least the College could do is make up it's mind firmly on such pressing issues. We are tired of piddling around!!!

Letters to the Echo

To the Editor:

Last week's Echo outlined the profile of this year's Maryville College freshman. Among the facets described was the religious preference: "One hundred fifty-six professed to be Protestants, thirty-three to being Catholics, and one student confessed to being a member of the Jewish faith."

This innocent statement—admittedly using the words profess and confess interchangeably for the sake of variety—has been cited as a possible example of anti-Semitism. It might behoove those who eisegete such statements to study the various dictionary meanings of the two words. Both negative and positive meanings are recorded for each word. Whereas profess means "to affirm openly, to declare, to claim," it also means "to make a pretense of." Similarly, confess may mean "to acknowledge belief or faith in " or "to disclose or acknowledge [something damaging or incovenient] ."

In like manner, some Protestants and Catholics might be "touchy" enough to attribute to the Echo statement overtones of hypocrisy, using the second definition of profess above.

On the other hand, the author could have been echoing unconsciously the words he has heard each Sunday since childhood: "Let us unite in this historic confession of faith."

Confess or profess—it's all the same! Maybe all of us, freshmen included, can do a little of both—"affirm openly" and "acknowledge (our) faith in" principles of tolerance, mutual respect, and active good will.

Yours truly,

Avid Echo Fan

To the Editor,

We have a gripe; the medical services at M.C. It's a frustrating experience to try to obtain it. A recent injury in an intramural game prompted our attempt to obtain medical assistance. In trying to locate Dr. Proffitt at the hospital, we were politely put on hold, and hold, and hold. . . . We finally hung up and called again. We were told—Dr. Proffitt had aready gone home. Upon contacting Dr. Proffitt, he told us if the injury was still painful in the morning, to go to the hospital. The pain subsided by morning, but by the next day was causing discomfort.

continued on page 4

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr. Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler Distribution—L. Catrett
Photographer—T. Fox G. Guba

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Flag Football Starts

On Monday 24 September, flag football started with 6 teams and approximately 70 participants. The results are: Monday the 24th; Studs trampled Blitz Kreig 31-7, the Bomb-squad annihalated the Doowahs 34-0; on Wednesday the 26th, the Inners and Carnegie knotted at 6-6, the Studs romped over the Bombsquad 19-7; and on Friday the 28th, the Inners whipped the Doowahs 19-7.

Starting 8 October, Men's Volleyball League play begins. Each dorm is divided into sections of around 20 students each. These sections compete on a point system with the top team and top individual getting trophies. Pins will be awarded to champions in flag football, basketball and softball. This term there will also be cross country, table tennis and the student-faculty golf tournament.

At the end of the year, a banquet will be given to present the awards earned in intramural play throughout the year.

Tabereaux Coauthors Paper

Dr. Alton T. Tabereaux, assistant of Chemistry, was the co-author of a paper recently. The paper was presented at The Hyacinth Control Society in New Orleans, Louisiana, this past summer.

The paper was the result of joint research efforts between the Environmental Biology Branch of the Tennessee Valley Authority and the chemistry department of Maryville College.

Students interested in applying for an individualized major should formulate their rationale and get approval of proposed course of study from heads of departments in which major courses will be taken before October 13 when the committee will consider applications received.

Information and forms are available in the Registrar's Office.

Rutledge New President

The Freshman class held elections last Friday to select their class officers for this school year. Elected were Mark Rutledge, Rolla, Missouri, President; Bernie McGraw, Granklin, Tennessee, Vice President; and Mark Poland, Oliver Springs, Tennessee, Secretary-Treasurer.

The Bike Club will meet today, 5 October, in SSC at 4:00 p.m. to plan for Sunday trip.

MC Receives Contribution

The Kresge Foundation recently made a contribution of $50,000 to Maryville College to help complete the rebuilding of Pearsons Hall.

The foundation was established in 1924 by Sebastian S. Kresge, the founder of the S.S. Kresge Company. The Kresge gifts are unique in that the foundation is willing to invest in "bricks and mortar." In addition to helping hundreds of colleges and universities provide new or renovate old facilities, the foundation also has made many contributions to health care, conservation, and music and the arts.

Scots Swamp Gtown, 21-6

Saturday night the MC Scots upped their season mark to 2-1, defeating Georgetown College 21-6. Heavy rain made footing treacherous and held the two offenses to a conservative pace. The first period was without a score.

MC opened the point tally in the second quarter. A drive which started on the Scot 20 ended in a 51-yard touchdown run. Tailback Rodney Stephens scampered downfield for the score behind the blocking of fullback Bill Baggett. Wayne Hutchins booted the conversion.

The next score came only seconds later. After the Scot Kickoff, a trio of consecutive fumbles gave the Maryville squad excellent field position on the Tiger 21. Quarterback Walker Hodges found Don Scott all alone in the end zone for six more points. Hutchins again made the extra point.

In the third period the Scots scored once more. A fumble recovery by linebacker David Clinton set up another TD pass from Hodges to Scott. Tight end Scott hauled in the 19-yard aeriel for team's final score. Hutchins once again converted.

Into the fourth period the Scots had held the Tigers scoreless. A long punt by Scot Earl McMahan had Georgetown backed into their own end zone. The game looked wrapped up for the Scots.

But on the first play from the Tiger four, the visitors made one last lunge at victory. Fullback Steve Johnson broke away from the crowd, and raced 94 yards for the only Georgetown score. A two-point conversion attempt failed.

Maryville's Rodney Stephens was the game's leading rusher. The 5'9" tailback rolled up well over 100 yards in 28 carries. Georgetown's speedy fullback, Johnson, nearly equaled Stephens' mark. Maryville's Don Scott was the gamesleading pass receiver, hauling in 4 completions for 55 yards.

Both teams looked defensively sound. Maryville's aggressive line, led by end Paul Risko, dumped Tiger quarterbacks Steve Pickback and Tom Harvey for considerable losses.Defensive back Scott Cook did an outstanding job in the secondary.

The Georgetown defense did an efficent. job holding the Scot offense to 230 total yards. Linebacker Mike Ayers and end Terry Bussell were both thorns in the Scots' side.

Tomorrow at 2:00 p.m., the Scots face Randolph-Macon in their homecoming game of 1973.

	1	2	3	4	T
Maryville	0	14	7	0	21
Georgetown	0	0	0	6	6

Maryville Menu

Friday 5 October	8:15 p.m.	PLAY: Dr. Charlotte Beck, Philip Gibson, Nancy McCleary will participate. College Theatre.
	10:15 p.m.	PEP RALLEY: Featuring a bonfire. (Entrance to football field)
Saturday 6 October	8:30 - 11:00 a.m.	ALUMNI REGISTRATION
	9:00 - 10:30 a.m.	ALUMNI MEETING: with Drs. Blair and Copeland, Mr. Brahams, and Mr. Kramer.
	10:30 a.m.	PARADE
	2:00 p.m.	FOOTBALL: MC vs. Randolph-Macon. Honaker Field.
	5:30 p.m.	BARBECUE: For alumni only.
	6:30 p.m.	HONAKER CLUB MEETING
	8:15 p.m.	PLAY: College Theatre.
Sunday 7 October	5:30 p.m.	MC FOCUS: "Communicating With a Deaf Person. WSJK—TV, Channel 2.
	7:00 p.m.	VESPERS: "Thy Kingdom Come," continuation of the series on The Lord's Prayer. Little Chapel.

Scholarships Recognized

At CIV on Friday, 28 September, recepients of scholarships were recognized by Alpha Gamma Sigma, the honor society represented at Maryville College. Requirements for each award varied with the individual award.

Tha Alcoa foundation scholarships are three awards given to one student in each of the three upper classes and based on academic achivement, citizenship, and campus leadership. They went to Jane Beth Markley, a senior; John Sortino, a junior; and Patricia jones, a sophomore.

The Alpha Gamma Sigma scholarship is given to the junior having the highest grade average at the end of the sophomore year. It went to Pamela Gnagy.

Many students hold Maryville College academic scholarships. The catalog states that these awards are available to students of "superior academic ability, character, and promise. Students recognized as holding these were Charles Alsmeyer, Barbara Beeler, Beth Buchanan, Stephanie Crane, Douglas Cunningham, Kathy Devey, Steven C. Douglas, Susie Eaker, Lynn Earnheart, Janice Foxworthy, Nanette Garner, Phyllis Garner, Debra Gibson, Phillip Gibson, Sally Gillespie, Pamel Gnagy, Sarah Hardrath, Elizabeth Anne Hartman, Princess Hicks, Robert Hines, Marla Hoskins, Mary Margaret Jefferson, Michael Johnson, Barbara Kerr, Linda King, Kathy Kirkhart, Melanie Kohn, Judy Loeffler, Mellinda Ann Lucas, Stephen Mallinson, Thomas Martin, Michael Minnix, Phillip Monk, Gilbert Nicholas, Majel Niklos, Charlene Reams, Dougals Robinson, Kim Robinson, Barbara Rumplik, Penelope Smith, Kathleen Snatchko, Lyn Stanley, Susan Sterling, Patrada Rhisyamondol, Christine Timko, Louise Turner, Dana Wassum, Elizabeth Widner, Brenda Wilson, Lisa Wishon, Lynn Yeatts, and Cheryl Zabriskie.

The Kind Memorial scholarships for freshmen, provided for by a bequest from Dr. and Mrs. John L. Kind were awarded to David Adcock, Sherl Bone, Mary Kinberly Darden, Dee Ann Dunwoody, Deborah Giguere, Gary Hutchins, Olivia Myers, Nancy Reagin, Mark Rutledge, and Pat Conarro.

Awards to the number one or number two in high school graduates in the East Tennessee area went to Steve Caughron, Sandy Chambers, Deborah Hall, Elizabeth Lowry, Sheila Moore, Janice West, and Elizabeth Widner.

Letters Continued -

It was decided to call the doctor again to ask his opinion. We were unable to reach Dr. Proffitt at his home or office. We called the physicians answering service. They told us Dr. Howard was on call for Dr. Proffitt. Dr. Howard is a pediatrition and referred us to Dr. Haralson an orthopedic doctor. Dr. J. Calloway was on call for Dr. Haralson. He said to come right over to have an x-ray and he would look at the injury. He was the first man of action. Although it was not serious, in cases of serious injuries time is a critical element and this element receive. As this does not seem to be the case now, a change is necessary. We have heard rumors that the situation is being worked on, but then we have heard that for four years. We are sure those who work on the problem do a good job, but once it leaves their hands. it seems to become bogged down.

We would be willing to help change the situation, if we knew that those in power were supporting us.

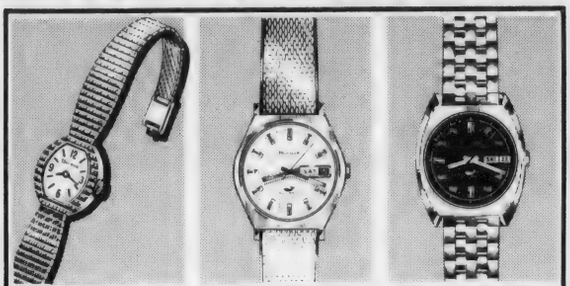
STUDENTS, we challenge you to be concerned and to be constructively active to solve this "dilemma".

Louise McNair
Coralie Usrey

Theatre Nears Production

A Man For All Seasons, the British play that won the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award as the best foreign play presented on Broadway in the 1961-62 season, will be presented at the Maryville College Theatre October 18-20.

The central role will be portrayed at Maryville by Stephen Ayers. The roles of his loyal wife and daughter will be played by Mary Kay Sanders and Belinda Chiddie. Robert March will play the role of William Roper, his son-in-law, and Sean Sullivan will play King Henry. Others in the cast will be Steven Yuhasz, Brad Hodson, Philip Gibson, Philip DerPilbosian, Jennifer Hiers, Joe Carnevale and David Lindell.



Carl Swenson has the major role of a narrator connecting the scenes, The Common Man.

Thomas E. Jones is directing the drama, assisted by Blair E. Beasley as technical director. Susan Hendricks and Rosilind Bennett will design the costumes.

OPEN 9 TO 6 DAILY. FRIDAY NIGHT 'TIL 9

BULOVA
Known for quality . . . for years

Bulova, a name you have depended on for years. With good reason. Long the leader in fine watchmaking, see our wide selection of Bulovas today!

If she belongs on a pedestal, present her with the Goddess of Time! Seventeen jewel accuracy in a golden setting, mesh bracelet. $70

Water and shock resistant Golden Clipper. Hand applied markers with black inserts on a gilt dial. Automatic, 17 jewel day-date. $90

Ahoy, the Clipper! Stainless, automatic with unbreakable mainspring. Sea-blue dial, water and shock resistant. A captain's choice. $80

Five convenient ways to buy:
Revolving Charge • Custom Charge • BankAmericard Master Charge • Layaway

JEWEL BOX
DIAMOND SPECIALISTS FOR OVER 50 YEARS

140 W. MAIN STREET, ALBEMARLE • 982-2511
OTHER LOCATIONS: Asheboro, Burlington, Lenoir, Kinston

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Worship this Week

Vespers—Sunday, October 7 - 6:00 p.m. - New Providence Presbyterian Church (includes supper, dialogue and inspriational address by Dr. William Laws). Transportation will be provided from the chapel at 5:45 p.m.

MEN! — WOMEN!
JOBS ON SHIPS! No experience required Excellent pay. Worldwide travel. Perfect summer job or career. Send $3.00 for information. SEAFAX, Dept. CC-7 P.O. Box 2049, Port Angeles, Washington 98362.

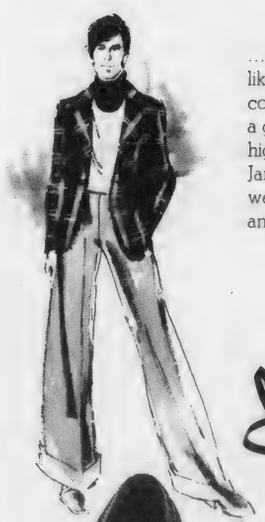
Representative needed! Earn $200.00+ each semester with only a few hours work at the beginning of the semester INTERNATIONAL MARKETING SERVICE, 519 Glenrock Ave., Suite 203, Los Angeles, California 90024

RESEARCH
Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up-to-date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4150

You'll go ape over the Sound of Koss.

The Sound of Koss Stereophones has always made music lovers go ape. So, "Go Ape Shirt" with the purchase of any Koss Stereophone. And for those who think it's possible to go ape without a Koss Stereophone, our "Go Ape Shirts" are available for only $1.95. At that price, they may not blow your mind like a Koss Stereophone would, but they won't blow your budget either.



Drop around today and listen to the Sound of Koss. When you purchase a Koss Stereophone, we'll arrange for your free "Go Ape Shirt." Or if you just want the shirt, we'll show you how to send for one. But hurry, the offer expires soon.

The Sound Post
MIDLAND SHOPPING CENTER
Phone 615-984-6960

Southern shoes

Not for Squares

...but who cares? You like 'em and that's what counts with us. We have a great new selection of high-heeled, thick-soled Jarman shoes you'll enjoy wearing with your slacks and jeans. Come on in.

Jarman
The Step-ahead Styles

$26.95

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 6 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 12 October 1973

Homecoming Court

Princess Hicks and Gil Nicholas

Sarah Winbigler and Hardy DeYoung

Laura O'Dwyer, 1973 Queen, and Ed Johnson

1973 photos by t. fox

Cindy "Flash" Jones and Steven C. Douglas

Candis Wright and Jim Batchler

O'Dwyer Crowned

by Christine D'Aquila
Echo Staff Writer

Saturday afternoon, October 6, found the "irrepressible" MC Highlander Marching Band stepping high as they entered the field in duel positions to get the half-time show for Homecoming Weekend underway. And once you've said that – "You've said it all" as they swung into the popular TV commercial tune. Next, came the snappy theme of "Ironside" to which our Highlander Lassies performed their routine. Moving right along, it was time for a commercial as the band led into the well known Wrigley's tune, "Carry the Big Fresh Flavor".

Climaxing the afternoon's half-time performance was the presentation of the Homecoming Court. Each member of the court was formally introduced as she was chauffeured before the crowd accompanied by her escort. The finalists of the court were Princess Hicks, Laura O'Dwyer, Cyndi Jones, Candis Wright and Sarah Winbigler.

Each girl was then escorted onto the field as the band played "Funny Face". Patiently, each girl awaited that special announcement and answer to the question of who was to become Homecoming Queen of 1973. The question was soon answered as Laura O'Dwyer was named Homecoming Queen of 1973. Dolores Zieglar, Homecoming Queen of 1972, excorted by President Copeland, performed the coronation.

As the half-time presentation came to a close, the crowd applauded the Queen, her court and the "irrepressible" MC Highlander Marching Band for a job well done.

MSG Meeting

On behalf of Men's Student Government, I submit this news item for this Friday's newspaper:

The Men's Student Government has been reorganized this year. Carnegie, Dorm III, Memorial and Pearsons all have elected representatives.

This organization is for all men. Anyone interested in voicing their opinion is encouraged to attend the first campus assembly at 6:00 P.M. Sunday, October 14 at the Chapel.

from the editor's desk

Glimpses and Glances

The Editor and The Highland Echo would like to take the opportunity of congradulating Miss Laura O'Dwyer, her Homecoming Court, the 1973 Scots, the cheerleaders, the Social Committee, and the Carnegie and Sophomore Class winning floats. We feel that everyone deserves a big hand for a job well done as this year's Homecoming was most successful. Also, the Social Committee under the direction of Delores Zeigler needs a special word for the successful dance in Pearsons on Saturday night featuring the Royals Kings. Again, congradulations to all for their efforts and the many added dimensions of Maryville's 1973 Homecoming.

For every pro their is a con, and therefore, Mr. Saga deserves a big bowl of rice on a brown lettuce leaf for his efforts to economize at the expense of our stomach. Words are useless on any topic unless the student body really sees a need for change. Let us hope that the newly formed ACC Food Service Evaluation Committee will respond appropriately.

On the lighter side again; it's really good to see that Men's Student Government is at least meeting this weekend. Maybe the one dollar donation will serve some useful purpose as the decree from Anderson Hall materializes. Let us hope that there is significant leadership, both from the Dean's Office and the student body, this organization to guide it beyond my own expectations—another failure to communicate.

Again, congradulations to the senior Scots, the Homecoming Court, and the entire student body for a most successful Homecoming.

theHighland ECHO

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas
Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Photographer—T. Fox
Distribution—L. Catrett, G. Guba

MEMBER

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Letters to the Echo

A Question of Hot Water

To the Editor:

Living in a "community" where the individual is an emphasized one, I am constantly amazed at how large numbers of these same individuals are neglected and ignored. This particular neglect begins late in the night as the water temperature in the dorms begins it decline, Men and women alike awake to the rather frosty prospect of a cold morning shower.

Maryville's hot water problem began long before the energy crisis came to bear—it has been here in the past; it was a fifty-fifty proposition during winter and spring last year; and it has already visited Carnegie this year.

Just because we live on the other side of the tracks is no reason for the steam plant to cut us off during the early hours of the morning. Until such a time as I am able to shower at any time, the prospect of being a member of this community leaves me cold.

Name Withheld

Academically Speaking

Interims for '73

by Dr. Russell Parker
Associate Professor of History and Secretary of the Faculty

The 1973 Interim brochure is in student hands with registration scheduled for the week of October 15. Freshmen, who may require a fuller understanding of the program than the brochure and catalog afford, are urged to examine the Interim Guidelines, which are posted prominently about the campus.

More interest has been registered in independent projects than has been the case heretofore. A form was available in the tentative brochure last spring with a deadline of May 15, extended two weeks into the fall term to serve extraordinary cases. Freshmen, since they have barely arrived on campus, are not encouraged to participate in individualized off-campus interims. Upperclassmen who have applied and gained approval of independent projects should go through the registration process. This applies also to seniors, who will normally be working in projects arrived at through joint planning within their departments. Seniors may sign for other projects with the blessing of their departmental chairmen.

Those contemplating independent projects for 1974 should begin planning early. Applications will be available in the spring. Proposals should be submitted to department chairmen and a faculty supervisor chosen. If the project is to be performed off campus, contact should be established (in writing) with a qualified agency that is willing and able to provide supervision. A program of prerequisite reading and a plan for sharing the fruits of the experience should be worked out through conference with the faculty supervisor.

The Interim term is an invitation to explore new areas of knowledge; to develop skill in methods of research and independent study. Creativity is the key word—on the part of both student and faculty supervisor. The student fulfills requirements outlined for his chosen project and goes beyond those requirements as far as he cares to go. Since the Interim is the ultimate in concentration, participants are expected to spend a minimum of 45 hours per week in application. Faculty are urged to step outside their specialties and to cast themselves in the role of learners. The Interim provides a change of pace; it is an opportunity for new and different experiences, an effective device for responding to demands for more relevant programs.

To encourage the crossing of disciplinary lines, a "satisfactory—unsatisfactory" grading scale has been adopted. Projects are framed to attract students outside the field who might ordinarily approach that discipline with fear and trembling. It is hoped that such planning will enable all to relax and experience the sheer excitement of getting caught up with an idea.

Challenge Term for 1973

. . .How tall can people grow? . . .
What can a Human Being become?
Term 2)
Abraham Maslow
Are you aware of . . . ?
Steak Dinner 2 alias CT–2 (Challenge

What do you really want to learn? Do you have enough gumption and courage to put yourself in a learning situation in which you assume the major responsibility for motivation AND growth? Do you have enough get-up-and-go to outline some challenging, personal educational goals AND then to achieve them in 10 weeks?

If you have answered yes three times, there's a steak dinner waiting for everyone who in practice demonstrates that yes by participating in Challenge Term 2.

Some history: Last winter term 9 persons participated in Challenge Term 1 as an experimental exploration into individualized, contract education. This concept has been approved by the Instructional Program Committee and the All College Council for a repeat this winter term, again as a full three course load with credit in experimental education. Challenge Term is like 3 elective courses at the same time.

The central purpose of a Challenge Term is to provide an educational option in which each individual assumes responsibility not only for the creation of a study area but also for the vigorous pursuit of excellence in that area. Guidance and evaluation is provided for each person by a panel of three (students or faculty) chosen by each CT participant.

If you are interested the time is now to prepare your educational contract so it will be ready by the end of this term. See an "experienced" CT-er: Trish Lloyd, Bev Branham, Debbie Mattson, Phil Gibson or Dave Young.

If you deliberately plan to be less than you are capable of being, then I warn you that you'll be deeply unhappy for the rest of your life. You will be evading your own capacities, your own possibilities.

A. Maslow

by Dave Young
Director of Project on Futuristics

Scots Swat Jackets, 27-7

Saturday afternoon the Maryville College Scots overpowered the visiting Randolph-Macon Yellowjackets, 27-7. This homecoming victory avenges last year's loss in Jacket territory, and leaves the Scots with a 3-1 record. The Randolph-Macon's squad is now 2-2.

Randolph-Macon's only score came early in the first period, but the remainder of the contest belonged totally to the Scots.

The Yellowjacket tally was set up when Scott Warner picked off a Walker Hodges pass and advanced the ball to the Scots 5-yard line. Tailback Tim Rzepkowski slammed in from there on the next play. Bruce Kirk booted the extra point.

Later in the same period the Scots scored. Maryville elected to go on a fourth down situation and gained seven points as a result. The sixty-nine yard drive ended in a five yard pass from Hodges to Keith Goodwin. Wayne Hutchins kicked the conversion, tying the point total.

Scot quarterback Hodges took solo scoring honors in the second quarter. The senior from Knoxville evaded jacket defenders to race 16 yards for the tally. Hutchins' kick was again good, and the Scots had a 14-7 edge.

Both teams went scoreless in the third period, but the Scots exploded to net 13 points in the fourth.

The first of these came when fullback Bill Baggett plowed his way in from the one; Hutchins made his third conversion of the afternoon. Defensive back Scott Cook set up the final score with an interception of a Jay Tingle pass. Reserve quarterback David Massey connected with Wayne Hutchins for an 11-yard touchdown pass. A kick by Steve Leng went wide.

The game was dominated by Maryville's powerful rush. Tailback Rodney Stephens rolled up 118 yards in 24 carries to lead all players, despite sitting out the final period with an injury. Baggett ran for 70, and Hodges chipped in 43.

Hodges also did well in the air, hitting 3 of 4 attempts for 50 yards. He was intercepted once.

Randy-Mac was less successful offensively. Gaining only 218 total yards, and completing only one third of their passes, the Yellowjackets felt the efficiency of the Scot defense.

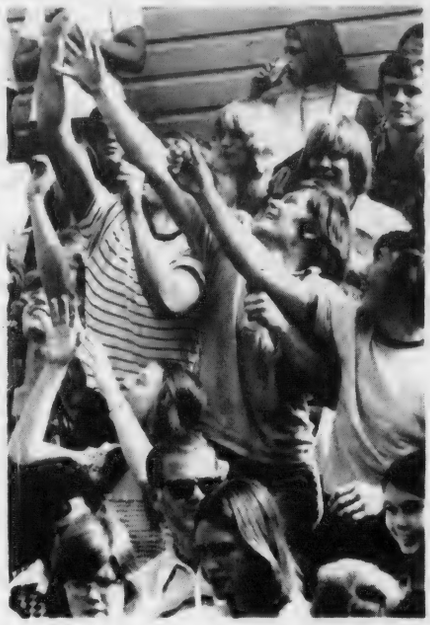
Linebacker David Clinton led the Scot defenders with 12 tackles and several assists. Tackle Bob Shumski plugged up the middle, while defensive ends Breck Stroup and Wayne Risko intimidated the quarterback.

The defensive backfield gave Jacket receivers a hard time. Jeff Hamilton, Scott Cook, and Mike Osborne each claimed an interception, and broke up numerous other passes.

Next week Maryville travels to Virginia to play the Wasps of Emory and Henry.

	1	2	3	4	T
R–M	7	0	0	0	7
MC	7	7	0	13	27

	MC	R–M
First downs	21	14
Total yds.	352	213
Rush yds.	297	114
Pass yds.	55	104
Passes	4-5-1	10-30-3
Punts	3-38.5	4-38.7
Fumbles	2	0
Penalties	8-80	7-75



Stevens Rounds End

Hodges In Pocket

Fans Reach For Half-time Goodies

Sophomore Float

Carnegie Float

Fans Intent on Game

MC's Homecoming

On October 16 and 17, individual pictures of under classmen – juniors, sophomores, and freshmen– will be taken in the yearbook room, second floor of Fayerweather.

There are no dress requirements for pictures this year. So use your own discretion. Specific times will be posted later and more information will be put in all boxes. Faculty pictures will also be taken on these two days and a specific time for faculty will also be posted later.

Handball Club Ready

by Fred Strohl

With one week to go, the Maryville College Handball Club is preparing to start its third season of competition for what Coach-Faculty Advisor Lawrence Boroviak feels will be his best team yet. The Scot handballers open their schedule next Friday afternoon in Knoxville against Tennessee with only two returnees from last year's squad; Mike Wenkstern and Paul Viggiano. The rest of the team is composed of first year men who include Sutton Brown, Scott Poland, John Sortino, Tom Barber, Rich Seiple, Alex Carrick, Paul Kirk, and Bob Ponton. Dr. Boroviak feels that with these new players, the team has the potential to do well. There are two matches scheduled after next Friday night, October 26 against Memphis State at 7:00 , and will get another shot at U.T. on Friday afternoon, November 9, at 5:00 in another home contest. The club hopes to schedule additional matches along the way.

Claussen Speaks

On October 17, at 9:20 a.m. in Wilson Chapel, H. Peter Claussen will speak on "Energy Use and the Quality of Life," a discussion of environmental issues related to energy consumtion.

Mr. Claussen is a lawyer, having graduated from Rutgers Law School.

Faculty Wives Sponsor Festival

The Maryville College Faculty Wives Club is sponsoring the First Annual Harvest Crafts Festival Saturday 13 October, 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. in the Wilson Chapel- Theatre on the Maryville campus.

East Tennessee craftsmen and artists will display, demonstrate and sell their works. These will include: pottery, oil paintings and watercolors, candles, leathergoods, guilts, needlework, woodcrafts, dried and natural materials, plants and containers, decoupage, baked goods and other items.

The Music Club will serve refreshments and lunch in the studio theatre.

Entertainment will be provided for children in the morning and afternoon.

Those interested in participating may contact Mrs. Blair E. Beasley for information at 982-0841 or Rt. 10, Maryville 37801. Registration closes October 1.

Soccer Club Opens Season

The Maryville College Soccer Club opens its 1973-1974 season this Friday and Saturday with home games against the University of Tennessee and Vanderbilt University.

Friday, 12 October 1973 at 4:00 p.m., Coach Dave Young will field his inexperienced team against a well-organized soccer club from the University of Tennessee. The Maryville club has been practicing for three weeks in effort to get in shape for the game. Co-captains Geoff Lang and Dan Bergner will lead the team on Saturday, 13 October, at 2:00 PM against a team from Vanderbilt University. Both games will be played on the intramural field behind the physical education building.

The soccer club was revived last spring by a group of interested players after a lapse of ten years. The team played only one game at that time.

Freshman Tom Sarrels is the likely starter in goal for the Scot. Willey Vidal and Dave Heinbach will start as full backs, Dave Buckwalter, Pete Mattson, and Brad Hague as halfbacks, with Dan Bergner, Geoff Lang, Eyo Usanga, Craig Larsen, and Lorrie Hill playing the front line to round out the starting line-up.

Everyone is invited to cheer the soccer club on to its first two victories of the season.

Bike Club Takes First Hike

The newly formed bicycling club staged its first ride early Sunday morning, Oct. 7. The group left MC at 8:10 a.m. and rode to Laurel Lake (in Townsend) and back via the Old Walland Highway. The trip was approximately 35 miles and the group returned to the campus by 12:10 p.m.

This week's ride will be much shorter and is scheduled to leave campus at 12:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 14 and to return by 5:30 p.m. We will ride the Cades'Cove loop road (an easy 11 miles). Anyone interested in riding, should put their name on the sign-up sheet in the post office or room 214 SSC. Be prepared to pay a 50 cents transportation fee. If you don't have a bike and still want to go, they can be rented at Cades' Cove for about $1.50 per hour.

For further information see J.W. Nichols or Blair Beasley.

MC THEATRE PREMIERES

A Man For All Seasons, by British playwright Robert Bolt, will play for three performances next week, 18-20 October, at the Maryville College Theatre

Stephen Ayers will portray Sir Thomas, with Mary Kaye Sanders and Belinda Chiddie presenting his not entirely comprehending but devoted wife and daughter. Robert March will play William Roper, his impulsive son-in-law. Philip Gibson will appear as Thomas Cromwell, More's dedicated enemy, and Joseph Carnevale will play Richard Rich, who seeks to flatter the royalty by falsely testifying against More.

Sean Sullivan will present King Henry VIII as a young man, not yet grown into the obese menarch of legend. Steven Yuhasz will play the Duke of Norfolk; Brad Hudson will play the Spanish ambassador. Philip DerPhilbosian and Bert Crane will play Cardianl Wolsey and Archbishop of Canterbury.

Carl Swenson will play "The Common Man," an important character who jumps from role to role, serving as everything from Sir Thomas's steward to his jailer and executioner.

Thomas E. Jones is directing A Man For All Seasons with Blair E. Beasley assisting as technical director. Susan Hendricks and Rosalind Bennett are designing the costumes.

Study Carrels – Fayerweather –

Available for those in need. . .

See Dr. M. Kratz or Robert Ponton

for application blanks

Representative needed! Earn $200.00+ each semester with only a few hours work at the beginning of the semester INTERNATIONAL MARKETING SERVICE, 519 Glenrock Ave., Suite 203, Los Angeles, California 90024

Help wanted: part time
Male–Female carriers needed to deliver 2nd, 3rd and 4th class mail in Maryville, hours flexible to fit your schedule. Good pay.
Call collect–Mr. Carman –546-9621

RESEARCH
Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up-to-date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

OPEN 9 TO 6 DAILY, FRIDAY NIGHT 'TIL 9

BULOVA
Known for quality . . . for years

Bulova, a name you have depended on for years. With good reason. Long the leader in fine watchmaking, see our wide selection of Bulovas today!

If she belongs on a pedestal, present her with the Goddess of Time! Seventeen jewel accuracy in a golden setting, mesh bracelet. $70

Water and shock resistant Golden Clipper. Hand applied markers with black inserts on a gilt dial. Automatic, 17 jewel day-date. $90

Ahoy, the Clipper! Stainless, automatic with unbreakable mainspring. Sea-blue dial, water and shock resistant. A captain's choice. $80

Five convenient ways to buy:
Revolving Charge • Custom Charge • BankAmericard Master Charge • Layaway

JEWEL BOX
DIAMOND SPECIALISTS FOR OVER 50 YEARS

140 W. MAIN STREET, ALBEMARLE • 982-2511
OTHER LOCATIONS: Asheboro, Burlington, Lenoir, Kinston

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 7 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 19 October 1973

MC Playhouse Begins Season

ast night, 18 October, the premiere erformance of A Man For All Seaons was presented by the MC Playouse at the Maryville College Theatre.

nmediately as one walks into the heatre the scene is set by an open urtain. This space stage provides for multitude of settings without ever aving to change sets.

nthusiasm and vigor are exhibited by he actors as they present their sevnteenth entury England, it is not ifficult for one to become enveloped the atmosphere. The twentieth entury is left far in the past as sevnteenth century England becomes he living present.

Man For All Seasons centers around he famous influential man of sevnteenth century England, Sir Thomas loore. The conflict encountered ppears in the form of man vs. society Sir Thomas Moore is faced to deal ith the question of divorce in the atholic Church. A Man For All Seaons not only presents this dilemma of ivorce, but also perceives the coming f the Church of England.

Scripts that have been used for this production are a combination of the English production, the movie script and the Broadway production.

Sir Thomas Moore is portrayed by Stephen Ayers, with Mary Kay Sanders and Belinda Chiddie as his wife and daughter, respectively. Robert March plays the role of William Roper, son-in-law of Sir Thomas Moore, and Sean Sullivan portrays King Henry. Carl Swenson portrays a major role as he plays The Common Man, who as narrator connects the scenes. Others in the cast include Steve Yuhasz, Brad Hodson, Philip Gibson, Philip DerPhilbosian, Jennifer Hiers, Joe Carnevale and David Lundell.

Thomas E. Jones is the director assisted by Blair E. Beasley as technical director. Susan Hendriks and Rosalind Bennett have designed the costumes.

A Man For All Seasons will be presented tonight, 19 October, and Saturday night, 20 October at 8:15 PM. Tickets are $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students.

CC Discusses Racial Imbalances & SSC Dilemma

cial integration of the faculty and e optimum use of academic facilis on campus were the main subcts of conversation at the Maryville l College Council meeting held ednesday afternoon at 2:30 P.M., October 1973, in Anderson 304.

. Copeland introduced to the uncil as a matter of academic conrn a recommendation presented to e Board of Directors by the Black udents Association relative to the cial imbalance on the Maryville llege faculty. The recoommendan requested the Board to take all tion necessary to correct this situan. Dean Blair and Dr. Copeland ceeded to explain to the ACC at the school policy on integration nd what measures have been taken the past to try to secure black culty for the college. A feeling was nerated by the Council that the hool's policy should be reaffirmed ile at the same time a positive vement should be made to actively icite blacks to teach at MC.

second measure given vocal concern the All College Council at the eting hours on campus. Wayne amer introduced a petition signed several students requesting that e Sutton Science Center be opened Sunday mornings. The ACC sugted that a more in depth investiion be given to the reasons for ch a move. In the meantime, any dent urgently needing to get into e SSC on Sunday morning should ke arrangements with Dean Blair dvance.

Mr. Brahams reported to the Council that any suggestions, comments, or criticisms concerning Saga Food Services are welcomed by the Food Services Evaluation Committee, chaired by Patricia Lloyd.

Other business before this session of the All College Council included: welcoming freshman class president Mark Rutledge to the ACC; the scheduling of a town hall meeting for October 24, 1973 at 10:30 A.M. in Anderson 214; and the postponement until the next meeting a discussion of MC's alcohol policy and a review of "concensus."

Town Hall Meeting

At 10:30 a.m., Wednesday, October 24, immediately after the weekly Community Issues and Values program, there will be a meeting of the entire Maryville College "community" (administrative officers, faculty members, students and staff) at the first Town Hall meeting of the 1973-74 academic year, to be held in Room 214, Anderson Hall.

Based on a system of governance used in New England for many years, the Town Hall meetings are held to provide a forum for any community member wishing to express an opinion.

Meetings are generally held once per term, and all students are encouraged opportunity to speak his mind on whatever topic he chooses, and hopefully, the meeting acts as a medium through which the campus may be unified.

Quinton Wacks

COUNSELING AVAILABLE

Did you know Maryville has a student counseling service? It's located in Fayerweather Hall (above the student center) in room 205.

Quinton Wacks and Joanna Allman, doctorate students in guidance and counseling from U.T., are available for individual counseling, group counseling, and testing. The counseling services are voluntary and strictly confidential. Students with social, academic, and other problems, or if someone is needed to talk to, should feel free to contact either Quinton or Joanna by putting a note in box 2893, or calling 983-7317, or dropping by the office in Fayerweather.

Joanna Allman

Circle K Goes To Work

A CHALLENGE TO ACTION, the 1973-1974 international theme for Circle K, resulted in an environmental clean-up day for the Maryville College Circle K this past Saturday, 13 October 1973.

A group of fifteen Circle K'ers, led by President Lyn Stanley and faculty advisor Andy Klein, cleaned up litter along a mile and a half stretch of Highway 73, reaching from the Laughing Horse Inn to the "Y" at the entrance of the Great Smoky Mountain National Park.

Circle K also sponsored a booth this past weekend in the Faculty Wives Club annual Harvest Crafts Festival. The club sold crafts made by the Alkiwan group, sponsored by the Alcoa Kiwanis Club. Alkiwan Crafts are handcrafted gifts made by physically handicapped persons in the community.

Circle K will meet this Tuesday night at 6:30 P.M. in Room 113, Sutton Science Center. New members and guests are welcome.

Berrigan Speaks Mildly to Campus

Anti-war activist Father Phillip Berrigan was the speaker at a special CIV, held last Friday, 12 October, in the Chapel. In his remarks, he called for collective action to solve current problems.

During his address, the Priest centered much of his attention on the war in Southeast Asia. He pointed out that it is not yet over, and stated that our attitude in refusing amnesty to those who fled the draft is contrary to other wars in our history. He felt that the country was engagedin a national flight from the crimes of 24 years, and that it is now in a reflective period. "We are the more punished people by this war, in a human sense," Father Berrigan said.

The speaker pointed to a deepened racism, and an extended pollution expense that he believe came out of the war. He also felt that we are in a spiritual backlash. Father Berrigan stated that we are metaphysical prisoners because war is a prison, and claimed that there is a widening rich-poor gap because of our spending on military power. He said that we have spent $1.3 trillion on war since World War II, and that we spent a quarter of a trillion dollars in Indochina.

"Out of the World War II era," the Priest said, "Hitler in many respects had his way, and he won." He pointed to the bombings of cities in World War II and of civilians in Indochina as examples of this. He contended that we carry Hitler around in us is our addiction to violence.

War, according to Father Berrigan, is our number one national production and our number one interest. There are 7,000 nuclear warheads in Europe alone, he stated.

Father Berrigan said that the fear of giving defines our life. "Everything we hold onto means death," he said, but he contended that giving something would mean life. "No one of us," he said, "can become human alone, and no one of us can save ourselves alone."

A Yardumian Premiere

On November 1,2 and 3, Maryville College Playhouse will present Once Upon A Mattress – a musical comedy written by Jay Thompson, Marshall Barer and Dean Fuller, with music by Mary Rodgers.

The Maryville College production will be directed by Nancy McCleary, a Senior Speech-Theatre major. Taking care of the musical direction will be Jean Tiffany, a Senior Music major.

Esther Yardumian will star in the role of Princess Winnifred–the role that shot Carol Burnett to fame. Others in leading roles will be Kenneth Atchley as Prince Dauntless the Drab, Sharon Murphy as Queen Aggravain, John Gossett as King Sextimus the Silent, Merida Kearns-Preston as the Minstrel, Clyde Byars as the Jester, Steve Maggio as the Wizard and Bill Gaffney and Mary Apetz as the young lovers, Sir Harry and Lady Larken.

Once Upon A Mattress is based on the Hans Christian Anderson fairy tale of The Princess and the Pea. The story takes place in a mythical kingdom ruled by a talkative Queen and a Mute King. A law has been established that no one may wed until Prince Dauntless is married. This provides the comic problem for Sir Harry and Lady Larken–you see Lady Larken is pregnant. After a perilous journey, Sir Harry returns with Winnifred, the princess of the swamps. She soon wins the hearts of the court and after passing the test the Queen and Wizard devise she and Dauntless live happily ever after–and so does everybody else.

So for an evening of delightful entertainment, show up at the theatre at 8:15 on November 1st, 2nd or 3rd. I'm sure you will be In Love With a Girl Named Fred.

Art on Display

From now until October 31, at the Fine Arts Center, there will be an exhibit of pata (printed cloth) art from the temple of Jagannath in Puri, India. These paintings, orginally made to sell to the pilgrims who came to the temple, are from the personal collection of Dr. Malcom Willey, Chairman of the Department of Sociology.

Harp Singers Appear

On October 21, from 1:30 to 4:00, the Knox County Old Harp Singers will present a Harp Sing in the chapel courtyard.

Old Harp Singing is a very basic part of our American heritage. Participators sit in a square around the conductor of the song. Each member can direct songs.

Harp Singing, which gets its name from the books used, has two basic characteristics: no key signature, and pitch given by the shape of the notes.

Second Bike Hike Staged

It was agreed by all who went, after assorted huffs and puffs, that the bicycle trip in Cades Cove on Sunday, October 14, was a huge success. The group left the front of Sutton Science Center at approximately 1:15 p.m. with 19 enthusiastic students as well as two willing and able faculty members.

Despite rain in the early part of the morning, arrival at the Cove proved to be perfect weather for the bicyclists. The eleven mile loop provided many opportunities for taking in scenery as well as photographing the historic settings.

Loading the bikes after the jaunt proved easier than the first attempt. The biology van, a trailer, and cars were packed and ready to go in about 15 minutes.

The group returned to campus at 5:45 p.m., just in time to rush to dinner. The trip was enjoyed by all. Those interested in a trip of this type might look for announcements telling of the next journey and join in the fun.

Letters to the Echo

CIV Talking--Annoying To Many

To the Editor,

Individually, I love Maryville College students! But collectively, you sometimes leave much to be desired. You're great when you cheer for the football team! It is interesting to chat with a student in the dining hall or the dorm. You listen to me, and I listen to you. We may not always agree, but we listen and respect each other. But why do you become so rude when someone is speaking in a CIV program?

I have been utterly amazed, and I must add ashamed, at the collective manners of the student body. Yes, the complaint of not being able to hear the speaker at times is a valid one. But as has been pointed out, there are plenty of seats up front so that you can hear. Not only are the chatterers rude to the speaker, but you're being rude to your fellow students. After all the speaker has been invited by the college, and I imagine many of them are paid a stipend, which means that some of your funds are being used.

There are some students who go to college to acquire an education. I would like to think that is the reason all of you are at Maryville. Thomas Huxley said, "Perhaps the most valuable result of all education is the ability to make yourself do the thing you have to do, when it ought to be done, whether you like it or not." And at times might mean keeping your mouth shut!

It also has been said that talking is a disease of age. So won't you let us old folks do the talking at times and you listen. Your turn will come sooner than you think! You know you can't be learning anything when you're talking. It won't be long for some of you to prove that you did learn something at Maryville College, including when to speak and when to listen.

As a member of that older generation, I just want you to know that I do care about you and love you dearly, otherwise I wouldn't have taken the time to write this letter.

Mrs. Joe D. Beals, Jr.
3604 Circle Lake Drive
Knoxville, Tennessee 37920

Courtesy Pays Well

To the Editor,

I would like to thank the two residents of Pearsons Hall who, without being asked, took two Alumni on a tour of the building during Homecoming weekend. That tour and act of courtesy was among the contributing factors in a substantial gift that will be coming to the College in the future.

It is my hope that students realize how important the treatment of campus visitors is. I receive many compliments on the courtesy and helpfulness of our students and faculty-staff, and again want to express my appreciation. You never know to whom youare talking!

Sincerely,
Raymond I. Brahams, Jr.

To the Editor,

About two weeks ago Henry Hastings, a chemistry major, had an article in the Highland Echo requesting that the Sutton Science Center be open to all students on Sundays beginning at 7 a.m.

I feel that Maryville College, which is related with the United Presbyterian Church, would not be living up to its "idea in the 'whole personality' approach to education". Neither would Maryville still "be the kind of community where you can coordinate and integrate your intellectual, religious, social, cultural, and physical activities" if the SSC were open on Sunday.

I realize that Church service attendance is not required here and that students only want to study and do labs in the building. However I do believe that with efficient planning the labs could be done in any of the other 34 hours (beginning Friday at 4) the building is open during the weekend. Too, the students could study in their dorms.

This way the students would be taught responsibility and pressure would not be indirectly placed upon church-attending students to use Sunday mornings to study.

Melinda Lucas

Harvey... or a balanced budget?

To the Editor,

I miss Harvey. He worked for MC some 25 years. Mowed lawns. Made friends. Read the Bible. Passed kind thoughts about mutual friends. Raised the flag over Anderson. Took it down.

But one day Harvey decided to ask for a raise. Didn't get one. Need a balanced budget. Sorry. 25 years thanks. But no thanks.

Harvey Benson. . . Where are you? Making more money I guess. And still making friends. But you left alot behind here at MC. Guess it takes more than friends to live. Somehow I don't believe that for Harvey.

We all miss you Harvey. Wish we had you more than a balanced budget.

Shalom,
Dave Young

MSG Meeting Report

A new organization on campus, the Men's Student Government, had its first meeting Sunday night. During the meeting, the purpose was stated, the problem of funds was discussed, and officers were elected.

The main objective of the group is to listen to and do something about complaints raised by the students. Specifically they plan to fix anything broken around the dorms, sponsor dances, and improve the academic life of the students.

Although they are hoping to raise more money, each member contributed a dollar to the club's fund. Officers were chosen from the house councils of each of the dorms. Gary DeAlmo was elected president, Phil Dreety was chosen to serve as vice-president and Jeff Trimble was elected Secretary-Treasurer.

The entire group stresses the need for the participation and co-operation of the student body as a whole. Anyone is allowed to attend these meetings and offer suggestions. The date fo the next meeting will be announced later.

Worship Schedule

Vespers – Sunday, October 21 – 7:00 p.m. – Little Chapel Third in a series on the Lord's Prayer ("Thy Will Be Done") by Chaplain Dick Harrison – Sue Sterling will play the French Horn.

Thursday Worship – Thursday, October 25 – 8:40 a.m. – Little Chapel Mrs. Elizabeth Welton will be the worship leader.

2nd Annual

Faculty Wives Crafts Festival

Maryville Menu

Friday 19 Oct.	8:15 p.m.	MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE: A Man For All Seasons. Maryville College Theatre. $1.00 Students.
Saturday 20 Oct.	2:00 p.m.	SOCCER: MC vs. Carson Newman. Intramural Field (behind gym).
	8:15 p.m.	MARYVILLE COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE: A Man For All Seasons.
Sunday 21 Oct.	1:30 p.m.	OLD HARP SINGERS: Chapel Court. (till 4:00 p.m.).
	7:00 p.m.	VESPERS: Chaplain Harrison will speak on "Thy Will Be Done," third in a series on the Lord's Prayer. Sue Sterling will play the French Horn. Little Chapel.
Wednesday 24 Oct.	8:15 p.m.	COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: The MC Choir will present What Is Man?, a contemporary cantata. Allan Hoke will direct. Wilson Chapel.
Thursday 25 Oct.	All Day	SOCIETY INITIATIONS
	8:40 a.m.	WORSHIP: Mrs. Elizabeth Welton will lead. Little Chapel.
Friday 26 Oct.	8:00 p.m.	IN KNOXVILLE: John Denver in concert. Knoxville Civic Coliseum. Tickets: $6.00, $5.00, $4.00.

MC Choir Performs

The Maryville College Concert Choir, along with two soloists, a narrator, and an instrument ensemble, will present What Is Man? a contemporary cantata, this Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Chapel.

What Is Man? was composed by Ron Nelson, with the words written by Samuel Miller, dean of Harvard Divinity School. Nelson, a child prodigy who studied piano at age 6 and began composing while still in high school, is chairman of the Brown University Music Department. The cantata was first published in 1964.

Tina Bergner and Fred Frost will sing the soprano and bass solos. Kay Hurlbut and Steve Yuhasz also have vocal parts. Dr. James A. Bloy and Peggy Leatherwood will accompany the work: he at the organ, she at the piano. Professor Blair E. Beasley will be the narrator.

An instrument ensemble of three trumpets, three trombones, five percussion instruments, a tuba, and tympani will also accompany the singers. The ensemble will feature these students: Donald Barnard, Jim Beeler, Rick Carl, Ben Cole, Charles Closz, Dale Horst, Jackie Inman, Louise McNair, Nancy Millner, Jane Pierce, Colleen O'Shaughnessy, Andy Stirrat, and Pam Thomson.

Allan S. Hoke, interim choir director during Dr. Harry H. Harter's absence, will conduct the program.

Soccer Club Starts Season Roughly

The new Maryville College Soccer Club, under the coaching direction of Dr. David Young, opened their 1973 season last Friday afternoon as they bowed to Tennessee 4-0 on their home turf. The following day, the inexperienced Scots lost to a tough Vanderbilt team as the Commodores came away with a 4-1 victory. Sophomore Laurie Hill scored the lone Maryville goal.

The main problem with both games was that the Scots must still get used to a uniform style of play as many new players have been added to the squad from last Spring's team.

The talent is there and will eventually come through, but until that occurs, and it will probably take several more games for that to happen. Scot fans will have to be patient.

Two games are scheduled for this week. This Saturday afternoon, Maryville goes against Carson-Newman in a 2:00 game behind the Physical Education Building. Next Wednesday night, the Scot booters travel to Knoxville for a return match against Tennessee. Starting time will be 6:00.

Men's Intramural Action

In flag football action the Studs continued their relentless rampage with a 31-12 clubbing of the Doowahs, on Wednesday, October the 10th. Also on Wednesday, the Bombsquad got winless Carnegie in their sights and lowered the boom, 33-13. On Friday, the 12, the Studs topped the Inners 19-14 with Dave Spradlin providing the razzle-dazzle on a game winning 40-yard TD run. Monday's games saw Blitzkreig forfiet to the powerful Studs and the Bombsquad blasted the Doowahs 18-13. With the first Round robin finished, the Studs 5-0 and Blitzkreig have emerged as the strongest teams. The second round robin started Monday.

In other intramural sports, the men's volleyball league began play Monday, October the 8th, with 12 teams in competition for the championship. The student-faculty golf match will be today.

E&H Downs Scots

Saturday afternoon the Wasps of Emory and Henry tagged a 28-12 loss on Maryville College. The game, played before a homecoming crowd in Emory, Virginia, gives the Scots a 3-2 season record, and evens E&H's mark at 3-3.

The Wasps took the lead early and held it throughout the contest. Ron Marbry returned a Maryville punt 98 yards to collect the first tally of the game. Tom Shank booted the conversion.

In the second period the margin widened for E&H. John Bartee slammed into the end zone from the Scot one for the Wasps' second score. Shank again converted. At half time the score stood 14-0.

Maryville's first scoreboard appearance came on a three-yard run by Joe Genauldi in the third period. A Scot kick failed.

Emory and Henry quickly retalliated. Fullback Bartee ran in from the three for his second touchdown of the afternoon. In the same period he again shared in scoring honors. Bartee connected with Larry Neese on a 32-yard fullback pass, good for another TD. Shank converted on both of his third quarter attempts.

The lone score of the fourth period belonged to Maryville. Tight end Don Scott brought in a pass from David Massey to gain six points. The payoff pitch was good for 13 yards. A two-point conversion attempt failed, leaving the final point tally 28-12.

Emory and Henry's John Bartee led in game scoring, running for two touchdowns and passing for another. The senior fullback rushed for 63 yards in 20 carries.

Rushing honors for the contest were captured by Maryville's Joe Genauldi The 5'7" tailback carried 20 times for 100 yards. Genauldi is a freshman reserve who usually plays behind Rodney Stephens, who is injured.

Scot quarterback Walker Hodges sustained an injury in the second period and missed the remainder of the game. He was relieved by Massey.

Both teams were bothered by field mistakes. Maryville lost three fumbles, and the Wasps bobbled two. Emory and Henry also had a touchdown called back on a clipping call.

Next week the Scots will again be on the road, traveling to Bridgewater, Virginia.

	1	2	3	4	T
E&H	7	7	14	0	28
M.C.	0	0	6	6	12

Attention Engaged Girls!

What: Welcome Wagon Engaged Girl Party!
When: Tuesday Evening (October 23, 1973) 7:30 P.M.
Where: Holiday Inn Restaurant

"ALL" ENGAGED GIRLS ARE INVITED TO ATTEND – A SPECIAL WELCOME IS EXTENDED TO MARYVILLE COLLEGE STUDENTS! There will be DOOR PRIZES and FREE GIFTS for each BRIDE-TO-BE present! There will be a STYLE SHOW BY WEDDING WONDERLAND and REFRESHMENTS provided by the HOLIDAY INN! For further information you may call WELCOME WAGON HOSTESS Mrs. John (Mary) Shumate at 983-3374!

P.S. Weather permitting the party will be held outside around the pool!

Halloween Costume Party

Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma are sponsoring a Halloween costume party to be held at 8:30 p.m. October 26th in Lloyd Hall. Admission fee is 25 cents if costumed, and 50 cents if not. There will be refreshments, entertainment, and prizes for the best singles and couples costumes. Every one is welcome.

Opera de Camera

Specializing in scenes from the great operatic works, a newly-formed ensemble of young artists will perform Thursday, 25 October in the FAC Music Hall. No admission will be charged.

The soloists, Jean Gray, Tibor Moses, and Jerry Phillips, will be accompanied by Sue Ensor as they bring to life operatic personae from L' Elisir d'Amour, La Boheme, Fidelio, and Faust.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

Art•Crest
When It's For Real, Art Crest

Sometimes only diamonds say it all. We guarantee ours are the best buy for your money. We'll be here to back up our guarantee 50 years from now.
Art Crest Bridal Set $100
JUST SAY CHARGE IT!
JEWEL BOX
Midland Center
Alcoa

Southern shoes

JARMAN BRINGS YOU THE NEW LOOK IN TWO-TONES

It's two-tone time in our town — and Jarman two-tones simply offer more for your money. As handsome — and easy-wearing evidence — we present this brass-eyelet straight tip. (We also have other Jarman two-tones you'll like.)

— Black and Grey
— Brown and Tan

$25.95

RESEARCH
Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up-to-date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

Our Doctors and Counselors care about you . . .
the new woman's clinic
helps women in need of abortion.
For help and answers call collect:
(202) 872-8070
Washington, D.C.

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
The Leader
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE
Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Help wanted: part time
Male–Female carriers needed to deliver 2nd, 3rd and 4th class mail in Maryville, hours flexible to fit your schedule. Good pay.
Call collect–Mr. Carman –546-9621

WELCOME STUDENTS
coupon
$1.00 OFF ANY $2.00 OR MORE DRY CLEANING ORDER
WITH THIS COUPON
1 COUPON PER ORDER
Good Thru Nov. 1
ONE HOUR "MARTINIZING"
THE MOST IN DRY CLEANING
302 WASHINGTON NEXT TO JOY MOTEL GENE NORFLEET — OWNER

bank of maryville
Your Bank In Blount County
Nowtown • West Maryville • Alcoa • Airport • Broadway • Chilhowee
A FULL SERVICE BANK
MEMBER F.D.I.C.

theHighland ECHO

Vol. 59., No. 8 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 26 October 1973

Black Prof A Challenge To MC

Emerson D. Henderson
President of Black Student Association

In an attempt to make the hiring of a Black Professor a top priority of Maryville College, the Black Student Association presented the following request to the Board of Directors:

> Due to racial inequity on the Maryville College Faculty, we, the members of the Black Student Association, respectfully request that the Board of Directors actively solicit and support the hiring of Black Professors. Maryville College is dedicated towards the ideals of a more liberal education, and to those ends, teaches justice, equity, and the recognition of social needs, while at the same time ignoring a segregated faculty. This we feel, is a basic inconsistency that bears immediate investigation and prompt rectification.

At the October 17th meeting of the All College Council, Dean Blair and Dr. Copeland explained the school's policy on the hiring of faculty and stated measures which have been taken in the past to secure Black faculty for Maryville. The Council proceeded to discuss this problem.

As I listened to the Board of Directors and the All College Council discuss our request, I began to wonder how did everyone, all of a sudden, become experts in the field of economics (especially with the economy of this country being in the shape its in): "The demand is greater than the supply, and as a result, it costs more to hire Black professors, "so said one administrative member of the ACC. Sure, this is an economic reality of 1973, but why does it exist? Many people seem to forget the fact that this situation exists because of historical injustices perpetuated against Black people in this country. I hope Maryville will not let this "economic reality" serve as its excuse for not actively moving to find and hire Black Faculty. I believe that the reaffirming of the school's policy is not relevant, for all too often, a pronouncement of good intentions is deliberately substituted for action.

The value of Black Faculty to Maryville College is unmeasurable. Outside of providing a different prespective reflecting a different cultural background, a Black professor might serve as a sponsor for new activities and contribute meaningfully to existing programs.

I hope that the Administration, Faculty, and Student body will become increasingly concerned about this matter and take positive action to rectify this situation. I have not meant to suggest that the Black Student Association have mastered the economics of this situation. I only meant to suggest that we see this situation as a challenge that demands our total time and energy. I hope Maryville College will accept this challenge also.

Fred Hope Fund
Scots play Benefit Game

The Maryville College Scots will play a benefit soccer game against the University of Tennessee International Students on Saturday, November 3, at 2:00 p.m. on Honaker Field. Special music will be provided by the "Porkies" at halftime. Refreshments will be available. All proceeds will go to the Fred Hope Fund for the Sahelian Drought Project.

Fred Hope was a student at Maryville College whose interest and participation in mission concerns in other lands caused the college to establish an annual Fund to be used in his memory in ways that promote international understanding and good will.

The World Concern Committee of the All-College Council has chosen to send this year's money through Church World Service to the Sahelian region of West Africa where, because of a five-year drought, peoples in the sub-Sahara countries are literally starving to death.

The Scots have played the University of Tennessee, Vanderbilt University, and Carson Newman College so far and have been improving steadily. The game on Saturday, November 3, should be an exciting one to watch and your donation of 50 cents or more will help to save human life. Everyone is welcome.

Marsh to Speak

On October 29, at 9:20 a.m. in the FAC, Dr. Clinton M. Marsh, moderator of the United Presbyterian Church, will speak for CIV. Dr. Marsh has a wide background in the church, such as his job as director of the Ecumenical Program for Emergency Action in Africa, in 1965.

Dance

There will be a dance in the Black Culture Center on Saturday, October 27, at 9:30 p.m. Admission 25 cents.

Louie Turner

Turner Appears in Recital

On October 30 Louie Turner will be giving a voice recital in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall. Louie is a Music Education major with a concentration in voice. Hoping to get her Master's at Peabody University in Nashville, she plans to teach Music Education on college level.

Tuesday night she will sing the following selections: a Handel Cantata, Pastorella Vigha Bella, and Wiegenlied, Standchen, Vergebliches, O Kuhler Wald, Hiebstreu, all by Brahams. The recital will be given at seven o'clock.

Bridge Memorial

Beginning in October a new feature was added to our Sunday evening vesper services. Beautiful colored bulletin folders, including pictures and reflective statements, are now used each Sunday to include the worship liturgy and religious life news. These bulletins have been made possible through a memorial gift given in memory of BILL BRIDGE, a former Maryville College student.

SSC Controversy

There has now been added to the many controversies Maryville College is already facing another one: the question of opening Sutton Science Center on Sunday morning. Last week, a petition was presented to the All College Council signed by approximately 70 students asking that the building be opened on Sunday mornings.

The contention of the students is that certain labs require a great deal of time and regular checking in order to succeed. They emphasize genetics labs and independent studies as examples of this. They also point out that studying in the Science Center is better and more productive than studying in a dorm.

The basic concern of the administration is along the lines of security. They point to a problem in getting the building open and in preventing theft. There is also a question of cost involved in the heating and lighting of Sutton.

At the ACC meeting last week, the petition was referred to committee, and it was decided that students needing to get into Sutton on Sunday mornings should get passes from Dean Blair and gain admission by finding a security officer to let them in.

SAGA COMMITTEE OPEN TO STUDENT CONCERNS

An important part of the SAGA Food Service operation at M.C. is the Food Service Evaluation Committee. This committee meets weekly to discuss specific problems, complaints and suggestions about the food and also evaluates the food service in light of the agreement SAGA made with MC. The 5 students and 2 faculty which make up the committee are Patricia Lloyd, Chairman; Jeff Hamilton, Ed Peterson, Clayton Ringler, Marcia Tamblyn, Dr. Rhodes and Miss Werner, with Paul Fraedrich as ex officio.

The committee plans to have a suggestion box and a student attitude survey conducted before the end of the term. In addition Mr. Fraedrich and the committee members are always willing to discuss any helpful suggestions about the food, and food service (Box 2423).

Parents Day at MC

Saturday, October 27, is Parents Day at Maryville College. Parents will be given the opportunity to meet the faculty and administration during the morning, have lunch with the students in the college dining room, attend a matinee performance of Once Upon a Mattress, and see the Scots in action against Franklin at 7:30 p.m.

Parents Day, scheduled apart from other campus activities, was begun last year at Maryville in an effort to promote better understanding between parents and students as well as between parents and the college.

Art Disappears from FAC

An embroidered piece of fabric and a paper-mache animal, two valuable pieces from Dr. Malcolm M. Willey's Indian Art collection, were stolen last Tuesday or Wednesday from the Fine Arts Center Gallery, where the collection had been on display for only two days. Dr. Willey has thus been forced to remove the entire exhibit, which was to remain for two weeks.

the Highland ECHO

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas
Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Photographer—T. Fox
Distribution—L. Catrett, G. Guba

MEMBER

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Art Theft-Poor Reflection on MC

To the Editor,

Mrs. Willey and I regret that the inevitable decision had to be made to take down the exhibition of Puri (India) folk art from our collection that had been hung in the Fine Arts Gallery. It was a gay exhibition, as well as an interesting one, and we think there were overtones of pleasure in it that would have added something to campus life. It is too bad that students generally had to be deprived of this.

Any students who are interested in seeing the materials we had placed on exhibition will be welcome to come to our home, at 310 Broady Lane—a pleasant 15-minute walk from the campus. Students should feel free to pop in late any afternoon or early evening, or on the week end. It would be a real pleasure for us to have them do so.

Sincerely,

Malcolm M. Willey

A Phone Felony-Beware!

To the Editor,

We are writing this letter to our Fellow students hoping that they will not make the same mistake that we did.

Our mistake was that we thought we had a "system" to make free phone calls. The system that we used was the credit card system. We would make up credit card numbers and charge the calls to the false numbers. It worked for awhile, but then we got caught, and it didn't take long for the South Central Bell telephone company to catch up with us. What we had done was a felony, and the penalty could have been serious.

We hope this letter will change many people's minds, who are thinking of using this system. We were very close in going to jail, in fact the next Maryville student that gets caught making illegal calls will be hit with some very harsh penalties. This letter is a warning to everyone on campus.

We didn't consider the penalties, which could have permanently ruined some of our chances for work after college. Fortunately we were some of the few who weren't persecuted severely. We hope that everyone will take our advice.

Rich Ramos
John Lebbad
Jeff Kanach

To the Editor:

Last Monday the Art Department in cooperation with Dr. and Mrs. Willey presented an exhibit on Puri India Folk Art. The work included paintings, statues, and tapestries which were collected from the Willey's stay in India. It was one of the best exhibits that M.C. has ever had and it's too bad that the students and community could not take advantage of this opportunity. An the following Friday the exhibit was taken down due to stealing. This incident will reflect poorly on each and every student and may restrict the number of exhibits that will be on display in the future. Whoever stole the pieces of art seems to have a sick sense of humor and may not realize the value that those pieces had to the Willey's. As an art major, it had a personal impact on me and, as a Maryville College student, it gives me a feeling of disgust and shame. It's terribly sad that when an opportunity like this arises, a couple students ruin it for others for personal gain.

I hope these few words will make the student body and the thieves stop and think. I pray that whoever took those pieces will have the nerve to return them.

Thank you,
Cyndi Jones

Letters to the Echo

The ACC: Benevolent Oligarchy At Its Best

To the Editor:

For nearly five years now, the All-College Council has been the chief policy making body on campus. At its inception, in 1969, the form of government was touted by the media (none other than the United Press) and the school itself as "revolutionary", allowing the entire campus (or,as is fashionable, "community") to participate together, in one representative body. Today, in 1973, it is becoming increasingly clear that, in practice, the revolution known as ACC has become an experiment in benevolent oligarchy, in which only a small fraction of the campus cares about participating. Anyone who viewed the Council meeting of October 17, should be convinced of this, since, at this time, the major laws of ACC were on display.

The primary topic of discussion was the possible extension of open hours at Sutton Science Center to include 7:00 a.m. – 12 noon on Sundays. At first glance, this "issue" seems fairly innocuous and it appears that a solution would come easily. However, this certainly was not the case. A rather frivolous dabate ensued, which lasted almost an hour. No decision having been reached—as usual—the Chairman queried whether or not certain student members of the Council could not investigate this matter further. One student replied that the existence of a petition (presented earlier in the meeting) indicated the urgency of the matter, that further investigation would be fruitless, unless it was to determine financial factors affecting the decision. At this point, a faculty member asked the students why there were attacking the Chairman when others were also opposed to the institution of this measure. He decried the student's view as "naive" and "immature". After being informed that he had summarily missed the point of the student's argument, other members of the Council and audience began to talk and comment and general disorder was in progress. During this time, one of the student's suggested that a vote be taken. He was ignored. After much hemming and hawing, the Chairman suggested that the meeting be adjourned; at this point, the same student asked what he was supposed to tell his friends were the results of this meeting: that the ACC had failed. . . AGAIN? As an appeasement measure, one of the administrative officers suggested that any student who urgently needed to be in Sutton Science Center on the Sunday mornings (7:00 a.m.-12:00 noon) between this and the next ACC meeting see the Academic Dean on the Friday preceding the morning they wished to work. At this point, when frustrations were at a peak, a consensus was called for by the Chairman, and achieved.

And the meeting ended in reality, with no consensus and generally ill feelings. Although this meeting is an isolated example, it is characteristic of the All-College Council's proceedings in the past. This is largely because of major flaws within the ACC's design and practice.

The first obvious flaw begins at the top. Having the President of the College act as perpetual Chairman of the Council is an inequity of paramount importance. He generally directs the meeting and plans the agenda. He can change the direction of conversation whenever he deems necessary. He is presiding officer, and thus, has a much greater degree of control than his associate Council members. Some have said that having the President as chief executive officer of the council ensures continuity within the body. This same continuity would be ensured with a rotating Chairmanship—one year, an administrative officer; the next year a faculty member; and, the next, a student. This is a more democratic method, although a certain amount of cohesion would be retained within the body. Sure, it would be asking more people to exhibit a little wisdom. But, at MC, aren't we always aspiring to a higher goal?

Continuing; the second major flaw is the use of consensus as a method of determining Council opinion on matters. It seems an innately poor method because it does not allow for dissent. It is ridiculous to believe that any member of the Council has the time to discuss issues to the point where all agree. On some issues many people will never agree with others. And, taking this time factor into account, the most efficient method would be to vote on each issue. Compromise is always available, but when two factions are decidedly opposed, to continue the conflict for an endless number of meetings seems pointless; to work in an expedient and wise manner must be the ACC's prime objective. The secret ballot seems the most practical method to achieve that objective. In that way Council members could register their opinion on a "horns-locked" question, without fear of reprisal, and the ACC could move on to other important decision making.

Another serious accusation against the ACC is that it does not encourage students to look up to it, or even at it with a simple issue like the hours extension at SSC, which obviously was more critical to the students than anyone else, the Council could have acted briskly and granted a simple request. But instead of appealing to the students for support in such an action, the Council had to add to the complexity of matters, eliciting moral meanderings and obscure complications from all sides. This was not in the interest of a better decision, but rather in the interest of better church attendance. To assume that such a tactic will work is, of course, ludicrous. But such attempts are made. And, ultimately, the students are the butt of the jokes. Why not try to appeal to the students, just once, with a firm decision? It might really impress them, and they might feel a bit more reassured of their adulthood.

Certainly, these major reforms should be considered as soon as possible. Solutions are contained herein.

Better late than never.

Thanks for your time,

Gil Nicholas

Mattress Appears for Parents

Once Upon a Mattress, a musical comedy based loosely on the Hans Christian Anderson fairy tale, The Princess and the Pea, will open for it's first performance at a matinee tomorrow, October 27, at 2:30 p.m., for Parent's Weekend. The show will then run for three performances next weekend at 8:15 p.m. on November 1, 2, and 3.

The show, Once Upon a Mattress is a student production. Nancy McCleary, a Senior Speech-Theatre major and Jean Tiffany, a Senior Music major have staged and directed this musical as partial fullfillment of their Independent Study. Tom Williamson has undertaken the choreography. Starring in the Maryville College production are: Esther Yardumian as Princess Winnifred; Kenneth Atchley as Prince Dauntless; Sharon Murphy as Queen Aggravain; John Gossett as King Sextimus the Silent; Merida Kearns-Preston as the Minstrel; Clyde Byars as the Jester; Steve Maggio as the Wizard, and Bill Gaffney and Mary Apetz as Sir Harry and Lady Larken.

Once Upon a Mattress is a musical comedy that delights both the young and the young at heart. For an afternoon or evening of hilarity, corn and general slapstick, see Once Upon a Mattress, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 p.m. or next weekend, November 1, 2, or 3, at 8:15 p.m. in the theatre.

UNICEF Drive

If you are interested in collecting money for UNICEF , along with us Saturday, October 27, from 2:00 - 4:00 p.m. We will meet at 1:45 p.m. in front of the theater and go to Nowtown and Midland shopping center.

Sunday, October 28, we will be leaving at 5:30 p.m. from in front of the theater, to collect money in our assigned neighborhoods. Transportation will be provided, and we will return by 6:30 p.m.

What is UNICEF? It is the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. This fund aids to equip permanent health, nutrition, educational, day-care, and community centers directly benefiting millions of infants and children. It also provides equipment, transport, cash grants, and other aid to train staff needed to run these services.

If you would like to help UNICEF help the children, then please come along with us. There will also be jars for donations located in the student center, bookstore, and the post office.

Sign up either by contacting Coralie Usrey or by dropping a note in box 2750.

Old Harp Sing

The Old Harp Sing will be on October 28, 1973, Sunday, from 1:30 to 4:00 p.m. The Sing will be held in front of the FAC on the concrete patio. Chairs will be set up.

Tudoring?

Any student interested in tudoring kids who are in grades one through four should stop by Sutton Science Center Tuesday or Thursday at 7:15 p.m. or contact Art Fowler—2243 or Chris Nassir—Box 2471.

If you know anything about Math or Science or English, and have about 45 minutes to spare, why not stop by and give some kid a chance to step to the head of the class?

TM LECTURE

A free introductory lecture on transcendental meditation (TM) will be presented in the Maryville College Fine Arts Center Music Hall Friday, October 26 at 8:00 p.m.

Mrs. Dan (Joan) Stallings, a trained teacher of TM, will give the lecture.

Mrs. Stallings says it is simple and easy to learn to meditate and that it will help one to think more clearly, speak more effectively, act with more energy and creativity and enjoy life more. She stresses that fact that it is not a philosophy nor a religion. It is a systematic, scientifically verifiable technique which unfolds each individual's full potential.

Students to Merge for Mock U.N.

At a time when the world is shattered and fragmented and the adhesives of direction and cooperation have been dried up or misplaced, an interesting attempt at an understanding of world problems via national interests and outlooks has been spreading across college campuses over the country. To be specific, the Midwest Model United Nations Conference to be held in St. Louis the latter part of next February. The countries of the United Nations are represented by delegations of 7-10 people. A Security Council, four committees, an Economic and Social Council and a General Assembly will be in continuous exhausting operation for about three days. Over 900 students from colleges and universities from the entire central and eastern US will converge on a downtown St. Louis hotel for 72 hours of discussion, debate, politicking and argument. Basic to the concept of the conference is an attempt to communicate all the headaches, pain and trouble that constitute an attempt at, if not world unity, then world sanity. If you're interested in converging in St. Louis next spring, please contact Gean Hyden, Box 2601 or 305 Davis. And please, you don't have to be a Poly-Sci whiz kid or a superduper debate freak; just concerned.

MC Now 4-2,

Scots Edge Eagles

This weekend Maryville College edged Bridgewater, Virginia 7-0. The Saturday afternoon victory in Virginia snapped the Eagles five-game winning streak and left them with a 5-1 record. Maryville is now 4-2.

The game's only score came on a 20-yard touchdown strike from Walker Hodges to Keith Goodwin. The third quarter score put Maryville in front by the score of 6-0. A conversion by Wayne Hutchins made the final tally 7-0.

Maryville produced several other scoring threats, but could capitalize on none of them. Twice the Scots were within field goal range, but both booting attempts were unsuccessful.

In the absense of injured Rodney Stephens, freshman reserve Joe Genauldi carried the brunt of the Scot running attack, collecting 105 yards in 26 carries. Fullback Bill Baggett plowed for 80 on 22 carries.

Maryville's defense had a rather outstanding game. The Scot defenders prevented the Eagles from crossing mid-field until the final period. Then a promising drive for Bridgewater was cut short by a Mike Osborne interception.

Senior linebackers David Clinton and David Warwick each enjoyed a fine afternoon, as did tackles Bob Shumski and Bill Silvernale.

Maryville's next event is next week in Maryville. The Scots will entertain Franklin in front of a Parent's Day crowd.

	1	2	3	4	T
Mary	0	0	7	0	7
Bridg.	0	0	0	0	0

Volleyball Starts

The 1973 edition of the Mens' Intramural Volleyball League completed its first week of play last week. Under the team formula, which is determined by the dormitory living for this year, a total of 12 is entered in the league. Each night, a total of eight matches are held. After one week of action, memorial is in first. First floor of Carnegie also has a perfect record at 7-0. Other records include Spike & Co. (5-2), Aton's Atoms (4-1), the Wildcats (4-3), Cosmic Pranksters (4-3), Kelley's Heroes (3-4), Krall Bangers (3-4), Dorm III, Sect. C (2-6), Dorm III, Sect. D (2-6), the Hamberger Squad (1-6), and J.D. Roppers (1-6).

Monday night will see the playoffs start to determine the league champion. The winner of that playoff series will play the team that finished in first place during the regular competition. That best four of seven series will start Wednesday night at 7:30.

C-N Drops Scots, 3-2

by Fred Strohl
Echo Staff Writer

The Maryville Soccer team lost a tough 3-2 game to Carson-Newman last Saturday as the Scot booters' record for the season went to 0-3. However, of the three games the Scots have played so far, this was clearly the best performance Maryville has had. The Scots took a 1-0 lead in the first period as a Carson-Newman player accidentally kicked the ball into his own goal. Laurie Hill was given credit for the score because he was closest to the goal at the time. That was the only scoring in the first-half, but, Carson-Newman tied it midway into the third period as Prince Attoa put it in the net. In the fourth period, CN's Raul Arcia put the Eagles ahead. Attoa later scored another goal which proved to be the clincher. Maryville's Eyo Usanga scored in the last minute of the game to complete the day's scoring.

Maryville goalie Tom Sarrells, a Freshman from Orlando, Florida, looked impressive in the nets for the Scots. He made a total of 13 saves.

New Organizations Go Through ACC

Students and faculty are reminded that all proposals for new organizations on campus reach the All-College Council through the Ways and Means Committee. This committee also makes recommendations regarding official recognition and more efficient operation of the ACC. Anyone wishing to contact the Ways and Means Committee to make proposals or suggestions may do so by contacting Dave Haimbach, Box 2240.

Upsets Mark Week in Flagball

Upset was the theme of last week's flag football action. Tuesday, the 20th, saw Blitzkreig and the Inners battle to a 6-6 tie. On Wednesday, Carnegie was lifted from the ranks of the winless in a stunning 25-24 squeaker over the Inners. Jon Farrer threw two scoring strikes to Doug Galbraith as the game went to the wire. Also on Wednesday, the unbeaten Studs were stunned as the Bombsquad toppled them 19-13, with Trip Ziggler applying the Clincher on a 25 yard halfback TD toss. The Inners forfieted to the Bombsquad on Monday.

A Man

A TRIBUTE!

by Princess Hicks
Echo Staff Writer

The Maryville College Playhouse achieved stature again last Saturday evening when the Department of Fine Arts brought Robert Bolt's A Man for All Seasons to the stage. A chronicle drama, the play is concerned with the final and decisive years of Sir Thomas More, Lord Chancellor of England under Henry VIII.

Thomas More, played by Stephen Ayers, is a man of conscience who uses his legal training to protect his moral position. The role of this reluctant martyr is exacting, but Ayers minimized the tension between More the cautious and More the heroic.

In the role of Lady Alice More, Mary Kaye Sanders successfully depicted an over-bearing but adoring wife. Her facial expressions and strong voice conveyed angry concern for her husband and quiet suspicion about her daughter.

Philip Gibson stood out as the unscrupulous and ambitious Cromwell. The sinister self-assurance of a ruthless schemer seemed to require no effort on the part of the sensitive actor.

As the narrator-actor Common Man, Carl Swenson was a shrewd commentator on the subject of conscience. The part calls for performances of infinite variety, and Swenson caught the sharpness of them all.

In a brief appearance Sean Sullivan dazzled as Henry VIII. A well-modulated voice and disinterested gaze shone as Henry's own vanity and arrogance. Steve Yuhasz was impressive as the gruff yet morally frail Duke of Norfolk. William Roper, in all his vascillating vehemance, was convincingly portrayed by Robert March. A striking resemblance between actor and character made credible Belinda Chiddie as more's learned and lovely daughter; Jenni Hiers as nicious representative of More's common enemies. Important contributions were also made by Brad Hodson, David Lundell, and Bert Crane.

The play's setting reflected versatile economy. One set served for sixteen scenes. A play packed tightly with action and dialogue needs that economy. Director Thomas E. Jones eased the pace of the play, guiding action and discourse towards no thespian frills but essentials.

RESEARCH
Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up-to-date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

WELCOME STUDENTS
coupon
$1.00 OFF ANY $2.00 OR MORE DRY CLEANING ORDER
WITH THIS COUPON
1 COUPON PER ORDER
Good Thru Nov. 1
ONE HOUR "MARTINIZING"
CERTIFIED
THE MOST IN DRY CLEANING
302 WASHINGTON NEXT TO JOY MOTEL GENE NORFLEET — OWNER

Parks Belk
"Your Happy Shopping Store"
OPEN UNTIL 9:00 P.M. THURS. & FRI. NIGHTS

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

Art•Crest
Art Crest Diamonds Start Something Grand

Life begins with love. We begin with a gemologist's inspection of every diamond we sell, guaranteeing you the best buy for your money you can find.
Art Crest Bridal Set $125
JEWEL BOX
DIAMOND SPECIALISTS FOR OVER 50 YEARS
Midland Center 2511 Kingston
Alcoa
JUST SAY CHARGE IT!

Help wanted: part time
Male—Female carriers needed to deliver 2nd, 3rd and 4th class mail in Maryville, hours flexible to fit your schedule. Good pay.
Call collect—Mr. Carman —546-9621

Par-t-Pub
— Across From Pizza Hut —
Delicatassen
Hoagies - $1.05 & Tax
Corned Beef - $1.10 & Tax
Reuben - $1.05 & Tax
Turkey - 79¢
Ham - $1.05
Roast Beef - $1.05
Pastrami - $1.05
— Choice of Cheese —
Party Supplies of All Kinds
Drive-in Window
Call-in Orders Welcome
982-4251
10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Our Doctors and Counselors care about you . . .
the new woman's clinic
helps women in need of abortion.
For help and answers call collect:
(202) 872-8070
Washington, D.C.

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations
The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE
Tallest And Closest To The Campus
Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 9 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 2 November 1973

Mattress Appears Tonight, Saturday

Sharon Murphy as Queen Aggravain and Kenneth Atchley as Prince Dauntless rehearse for the upcoming Maryville College Playhouse production of Once Upon a Mattress, Nov. 1-3 at 8:15 p.m. The musical is adapted from the fairy tale, The Princess and the Pea, and is the vehicle which catapulted Carol Burnett to fame. Once Upon a Mattress offers an evening of slapstick, corn, and hilarity which will delight both the young and young at heart.

Please Note Review on Page 2

Sahelian Drought Project

Scots play Benefit Game

Saturday's Benefit Soccer Game promises to be one of the highlights of the season as the UT Internationals challenge the MC Scots at Honaker Field at 2:00 p.m. The UT team is co-captained by Joe Wiea of Liberia (former Carson-Newman varisty player) and Hai Pham of Saigon (doctoral student at UT). Other countries represented on the team include Turkey and Greece. All players are international students and bring to the game that kind of style. There will be a lot of passing and a minimum of kicking. They are said to play hard and to bring a physical touch to the game.

The Scots also have an international flavor which includes Eyo Usanga and Pat Ndoma of Nigeria and Shahbaz Ahmed of Pakistan. The Scots have been improving steadily and Coach David Young feels that they will be ready for the test.

All funds raised at the game—tickets are available for a .50 or more donation from members of the World Concern Committee or at the gate—will go to the Fred Hope Fund. There will be refreshments at the game and the Porkies will entertain.

The recipient for this year's fund will be the Sahelian region drought project in Africa. Here is an opportunity to enjoy an international contest and participate in international service and understanding.

Mahler Exhibits Work

Richard Mahler, Associate in Communications, will present an exhibit of photographs for three weeks starting Saturday, November 3, in the Fine Arts Center Gallery.

The pictures will feature varied subjects. Some will be abstract, some will feature natural beauty, and some will feature people here at MC.

Rich Mahler is one of few artists specializing in photography. Since graduating from MC in 1968 he has concentrated on taking pictures from the artist's point of view. Believing photography to be a form of art, he says, "I don't want just to record."

Eleven Selected to Who's Who

Selection for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges is made by a vote of the fulltime teaching faculty, the administrative officers, and the senior class. The criteria for selection are:

(1) excellence and sincerity in scholarship
(2) leadership and participation in extracurricular and academic activities
(3) citizenship and service to the college
(4) promise of future usefulness to business and society

To be eligible for nomination, a student must be scheduled for graduation in the current year (including summer 1974). The approved procedure adopted by the Student Council and the Executive Council of the Faculty gives weight to criterion (1) by listing on the ballot only those whose overall standing to this point is 2.5 or higher.

The selected students were notified through their P.O. boxes on Wednesday, 25 October 1973.

Those to be included in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges for the 1973-74 academic year are listed below. To those students, congratulations are well in order for such an honorable recognition.

Douglas Cunningham is a Physical Education major from Nutley, New Jersey. He was on the Varsity Wrestling Team his sophomore year and is currently serving as a Resident Assistant.

Steven Douglas is a History major from Crossville, Tennessee. An active participant in Intramurals for four years, he has served as an officer of Circle K for the past three years and as a reporter and assistant editor of the Highland Echo for two years. Steve has served on the Purpose Sub-Committee and is active in the Instructional Program Committee. He has been recognized as a recipient of such awards as the Vernon H. Queener Scholarship Award in History, the Alcoa Foundation Scholarship, the Kind Memorial Scholarship, the Maryville Academic Scholarship and Alpha Gamma Sigma. Steve has been an Assistant in the History Department for the past two years, Presently, he is a Chapel Resident.

Phillip Gibson is an English major from Maryville, Tennessee. He has been involved in many music organizations on campus. Phil has been a member of the MC Band for three years, the orchestra for two years and the Messiah for one year. Involved in MC Theatre productions, he has had a prominent role in The Cherry Orchard and A Funny Thing Happened On The Way to the Forum. He has also directed the MC production of Butterflies Are Free. He has also been a member of the Highland Echo.

continued on page 4

civ's Future Shock

The CIV on November 7 will be the movie, Future Shock. The program will be presented by Dr. David Young. The film is based on the book by Alvin Toffler and is directed by Alex Grasshoff.

The theme of the film concerns the problems that high-speed change is bringing about in our society. Man must face the alterations of his values, his families, and his institutions, and learn to cope with them. Toffler believes that man cannot survive unless he can understand and somehow learn to control his changing environment.

We are forced, by this film, to look at events happening now and see their implications in the future. Specific examples of events occuring now that may have great influence on our future are: technology, the transience of our society, and the experiments that are being done with freezing people and bringing them back to life. Many other startling and mind-provoking dilemmas are also brought out in the movie. Future Shock seems to be asking society to became more concerned about the course its future will take. The film is being used by various groups on campus in addition to the CIV program.

Future Shock will be shown during CIV period on Wednesday and possibly at 4:00 p.m. on the same day.

Kinsinger Recital

On November 8, at 8:15 p.m., CIV will present Dr. Dan Kinsinger in a tenor recital. He will be accompanied by his wife, on the piano, and Mr. Kull, on the violin (only in the Handel selection).

Yearbooks

If you are an upperclassmen and haven't received your 1973 Chilhowean please contact Sarah Hardrath (Box 2579). Also if anyone knows of a student that has left or transferred please get their address to the same box number.

Change-an ingredient to our future

by Rich Mahler
Communications Department

Change is cosmic, basic to the order and harmony of the cosmos. It would seem that resistance to change is basic to the human animal. Why is it that mankind alone seeks to divorce himself from nature, refusing to see himself as an infintesimal portion of an infinite universe? Modern mankind is faced with the task of freeing himself from the traditional image of man as lord of the universe. It is generally felt that the alienation and fragmentation of our age is due to the rapid development of technology, the phenomenal and unprecedented increase in knowledge, the pace of change. We have eagerly embraced the advantages of technology but have shrunk from its responsibilities; we dimly realize the possibilities of future life and are terrified by it; we look at what we have thus far accomplished and at what the consequences have been—and we do so with singular dismay and bad grace. At a time when the possibilities for mankind are at their greatest—we refuse to come of age.

Has the crush of changes in this century, which we have brought in some innocence of their consequences, dealt us a debilitating emotional blow? Can we be unequal to the challenge of our future? Is time running out?

Research seems to indicate that as individuals we have a limit to the changes in our lives which we can cope with in a given time span, beyond which we suffer emotionally and physically. As a civilization at this point in the flow of time, do we suffer such a malaise? Faced with the necessity of modifying habits, basic values, prejudices, and individual personality characteristics, we have been traditionally inadequate to the task. Can we afford to be so any longer?

At the present we see the consequences of implementing technological knowledge and know-how in an overriding concern for material wealth and comfort. Our physical and mental resources are expended largely in the production of things we intend to use and cast aside. We are in sight of an age when our earth's atmosphere and physical resources will no longer support our population no matter what its needs.

In the face of such sobering realities, we continue our stone age customs of national and ethnic superiority, non-cooperation, and basic disregard for humanity. At a time when the masses, for sheer survival, are in need of the bare necessities of life, we ignore the need for an international mass cooperative energy toward the development of man's survival in the universe. We lay waste to our environment and we lay waste to one another. We continue to battle for power over greatest share of the goods of this tiny sphere. We have in our grasp survival as an intelligence, but the question remains whether we have the intelligence to face change and grasp a future that has no resemblance to our past.

Change is a fact. There are no unchangeable laws, only facts that can form a framework upon which to take the next step toward inevitable change and inevitable new steps. A solution to a problem is never a solution, only an educated and calculated way-station on a chain of solutions to solutions. Is it really so horrifying to accept an open view to an evolution which we have heretofore been the tortured and unwilling part?

It is sad when the change of the little ideas and facts of our lives are viewed with fear, when they are a threat to our position, our wealth, our ego, or our comfortable inertia, all of which will soon change and pass and have no effect and no contribution to what goes beyond. There are men in our times who have visions which may well be laughed away much in the same way as the visionaries of the past. The fact that we are now living the visions of the past may not now save us from forfeiting a future. And if we fail, we will still be a fact of time and motion and cosmic change.

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr. Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler Distribution—L. Catrett G. Guba
Photographer—T. Fox

MEMBER

Letters to the Echo

ACC Decides Consensus by Consensus-- what a plot!

To the Editor:

Mr. Nicholas' letter of last week, for all its scatter-gun approach, hit at least one target on center. The ACC has had its efficiency greatly hampered for some time because of its method of trying to obtain decisions by "consensus." Mr. Nicholas' arguments to this point can stand for themselves. No democratic council that I know of tries to decide issues in such an unwieldy manner. Even the United Presbyterian Church, which can get balled-up with the best of them, believes that the Holy Spirit speaks through Church councils which make decisions by vote.

Gil left something out. It is my understanding that the time in the "consensus" method, or will issues be decided by majority vote? I suggest that this may be one of the most important decisions the ACC will ever make. The future course of M.C. is at stake. I further suggest that you make known your will on this subject to the ACC members. If you do not know what the fuss is all about, I believe you had damn well better find out.

There is one more intriguing facet to this gem of a case. How will the ACC decide the question? Is the decision on the proposition "consensus vs. majority vote" to be made by consensus? Kafka, in his deepest ANGST, could not have come up with a plot like that.

Sincerely,
David R. Cartlidge

Floats Abandoned

To the Editor,

Do the sophomores of this "ecology minded" school realize that their float from homecoming has been in a heap at the edge of Maryville College woods for four weeks now? Bits of it have been scattered from the end of the driving range along the edge of the woods to the rubbage pile where the remains of the float have been abandoned. This rubbage pile is not supposed to be a dump. There is a dump not far away where the float should be taken.

Dee Ann Dunwoody

Thanks, Yearbooks Arrive

To the Editor:

Just a quickie to you and the student body to express my gratitude for their patience in awaiting the arrival of the (?) 1973 Chilhowean. Special thank you's go to Lois "Pokey" Cowan for creating the design on the yearbook cover.

Much obliged,
Sarah Hardrath

continued on page 4

Under Student Direction

Mattress Sparkles

by Rob Kaniper
Echo Staff Writer

Saturday, October 27, was Parents' Day at Maryville College, where the parents came down to see how their sons and daughters lived at college. Most of them toured the dorms and gym facilities, and some met with their children's professors. Also, at 2:30 that afternoon, a special presentation of Once Upon a Mattress was held for them. Then, some parents got to sample the cafeteria fare, and last, but not least, got to watch Maryville's football squad play a tough game against Franklin.

Once Upon A Mattress, under the direction of the patient, multi-talented Nancy McCleary and Jean Tiffany, premiered last Saturday afternoon in the M.C. Theatre for a special Parent's Weekend performance.

Esther Yardumian, as Princess Winnifred, captivated the audience and held the show in the palm of her hand from the moment she appeared on stage until curtain-call. Her superb talent as a comedienne shone in all its glory as she made her debut on the M.C. stage.

John Gossett was hilarious as he skillfully performed the antics of the mute King Sextimos. With overtones of Harpo Marx, Gossett successfully pantomimed his lines with the assurance of a professional.

Queen Aggravaine, the loud-mouth over-protective mother—wife—majesty was brilliantly handled by by Sharon Murphy. Murf's expertise at acting enabled her to keep the show going when lines were dropped or props were forgotten. She also did an excellent job of setting the lights for the stage.

Ken Atchley portrayed Dauntless, Aggravainis meek, milque-toast son. Atchley's dead-pan expression conveyed all the vim and vigor of a herd of turtles which was perfect for this part.

The Wizard was expertly handled by Steve Maggio, alias W. C. Fields. A true highlight of the show. Maggio confesses that the magic tricks are in fact his own.

Merida Kearns-Preston as the minstrel and Clyde Byars as the Jester turned out credible performances of acting, singing, and dancing.

The cast was rounded out by the chorus who did everything from singing to scene changes.

Performance dates are Nov. 2, and 3. at 8:15 in the theatre. The price of one slim American dollar enables you to see this rollicking, side-splitting comedy. It's worth it. What else do you have to do?

Scots Fall Victim, 31-20

Saturday night the Grizzlies of Franklin College overpowered Maryville College 31-20. The loss drops the Scots' season mark to 4-3; Franklin is now 3-4. This was the first Scot home loss in two years.

Maryville took an early lead in the contest. Jeff Hamilton intercepted a Joe Bath pass to begin a 52-yard scoring drive for the Scots. The series ended in a 1-yard plunge by fullback Bill Baggett. A conversion attempt went wide.

In the second period the Scots widened their margin. Safety Mike Osborne took a Grizzly punt on the Maryville 35 and ran it back for a touchdown. Moments later Osborne again took the spotlight, intercepting a pass. This feat set up an 11-play drive to pay-dirt.

Rodney Stephens carried the pigskin in from the 5 for the score, and ran for a two-point conversion.

Midway through the second quarter the Scots had blitzed Franklin 20-0, and everything looked rosy for them. But suddenly the momentum shifted to the Grizzlies and the Scots were never able to regain control of the game.

Franklin's rally began when linebacker Jeff Carver intercepted Walker Hodges on the Scot twenty-eight. Four plays later fullback Ron Doyle ran in from the fourteen. Quarterback Bath ran for the two-point conversion.

Seconds later the Grizzlies recovered a fumbled kick-off return play. Doyle went twenty-five yards for the tally. A running coversion failed.

Franklin then recovered an on-sides kick to give them good field position in Scot territory. A 27-yard pay-off pitch from Bath to Steve Harris tied the count, and a Joe Cirillo kick gave the visitors a one-point edge. At halftime they led Maryville, 21-20.

The third period went scoreless, but Franklin again erupted in the final quarter of play. An interception by Larry Edmond paved the way for a twenty-five yard field goal by Joe Cirillo. The final score came on a fifteen-yard scamper by Doyle. Cirillo again made the extra point.

Doyle led all players in rushing yardage, rolling up 162 in 28 carries. Behind him was Maryville's Rodney Stephens with 143. Bath also netted over 100 yards on the ground.

Despite the Scot's loss, assistant coach Gerald Hasty was pleased with the team's efforts. He had special words of praise for several Scot players, including tailback Stephens and various defenders.

David Clinton, linebacker from Knoxville, led the squad in tackles. He was followed by Mike Osborne and Skellie Morris. Defensive back Jeff Hamilton also did a good job, pulling in two interceptions.

Maryville lost a valuable defensive player for the season. Paul Wayne Risko, sophomore defensive end, suffered a knee injury in the second period.

This was the Scots' home final for the year. Next week they travel to Jackson, Mississippi to take on Millsaps, then wind up the season at Southwestern of Memphis.

	1	2	3	4	T
Mary	6	14	0	0	20
Frank	0	21	0	10	31

Scot Booters Drop Two

The Maryville College Soccer team lost both games this past week as they bowed to Peabody College on Saturday, 2-0, and were destroyed by the University of Alabama at Huntsville on Tuesday, 14-0. Saturday's game at Peabody pitted the Scots against their most physical opposition of the season. Although the offense was impotent with regard to getting a score, the defense, lead by goalie Tom Sorrels, did a good job in thwarting the Peabody offense to only two goals. In Tuesday's game at Huntsville, the Scots started out strong, but could not handle an Alabama (Huntsville) team that is considered one of the best college teams in the country.

This Saturday, the Scots will be home against Tennessee International in a benefit game for the Fred Hope Fund. Game time is 2:00 p.m.

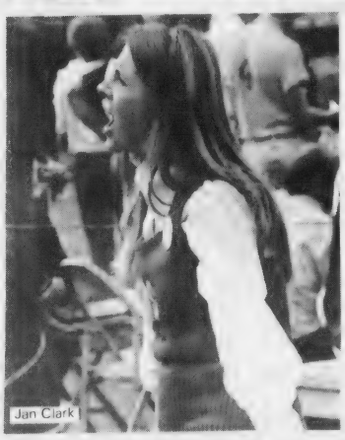
Squeaky Week for Doowahs

Last week's flag football action saw only five games played. Monday, the 22, the Inners started the week with a forfeit to the Bombsquad. Carnegie's one game winning streak was halted as Blitzkreig routed them 28-0 on Tuesday. Wednesday the Doowahs slipped by Blitzkreig 2-0 on a saftey, the Studs continued their winning ways by whipping Carnegie 26-13. On Thursday the Doowahs won by a saftey again 8-7 as Mark Herman of the Doowahs trapped Harry Riley in his own end zone to ice the victory.

Vespers

Musical Vespers - Sun., Nov. 4 - 7:00 p.m. - Wilson Chapel - The Concert Choir will present "Bach Contata No. 79."

Thursday Worship - Thurs., Nov. 8 - 8:40 a.m. - Little Chapel - Chaplain Dick Harrison will lead the service.



MC's Cheerleaders

Pat Johnson

Terri Topham

Nadine Hays

Sue Schoultz

Jan Clark

Kathy Belcher

Leanne Moore

Nancy Herrel

continued from page 1

Who's Who

Sarah Hardrath, an Art History major from Atlanta, Georgia is now serving as a Senior Counselor at Pearsons. She has been a member of Phi Gamma Mu and an officer of Chi Beta. She has been on the Drill Team and has also been a Sophomore Aide. Sarah's most challenging encounter this year is her position as editor of the Chilhowean.

Wayne Kramer is from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and is majoring in Philosophy and Religion. He has actively engaged in Intramurals for four years and has served as vice-president of his sophomore class. Wayne is current president of the senior class, a member of the ACC and business manager of the Chilhowean.

Ruth Ladner is a Music major from Hixson, Tennessee. As a junior, Ruth was an officer of Tau Kappa Chi and is presently serving as president of this organization. She is also a member of the MC Concert Choir. She has been in the MC Band, orchestra and the Messiah. Ruth has also been the recipient of the Davies Fine Arts Award.

Patricia Lloyd, from Wilmette, Illinois is a Philosophy and Religion major. She has served as president of her junior class.

Jane Beth Markley, a Math major, is from Concord, Tennessee. She has been a recipient of both the Alcoa Foundation and Maryville Academic Scholarships. In past years, J.B. has been a sophomore aide and House Chairman of Dorm I. This year as in previous years, she is an ACC committee member and a Senior Counselor.

Louise McNair, English major from Charlotte, North Carolina has been active in the MC Band, the Messiah, and has been an officer of the ACC. She has also been the recipient of the Maryville Academic Scholarship Award. Louise has served as a sophomore aide, a Library Assistant, a floor representative to House Council and has played in the soccer intramurals.

Todd Trumbore is from Ashland, Kentucky. He has an individualized major which is entitled Science Values and Society. Active in the MC Concert Choir and the Messiah for four years, Todd has also served as Choir Assistant for three years. He has been a member of the Community Outreach Committee, the Community Standards and Residential Life Committee, which he is an officer of, and he served on the ACC his junior year. He is presently a R.A. at Carnegie.

Sarah Winbigler is an English major from Jackson, Mississippi. She has been a member of the B.G.'s, Intramurals and the Highland Echo. Sarah has also been a sophomore aide and at present is serving as a Senior Counselor, and English Assistant and a Desk Assistant. Her greatest undertaking at the time is as co-chairman of the ACC.

Congratulations to these recipients of such a fine honor!

Study Carrels—Fayerweather

Available for those in need. . .

See Dr. M. Kratz or Robert Ponton

for application blanks

Letters Continued -

Thanks

To the Student Body:

We regret we cannot personally thank each donor to the disaster fund for the spring floods of 1973.

Those that you will see please tell them that their generosity has meant vital food, clothing, shelter and immediate medical attention to disaster victims.

Along the Mississippi victims are toiling away at the discouraging task of digging out, and, as of today, New England is experiencing new flooding!

You can see how welcome the gifts are.

Ten months prior to this more than $28 million has been spent on a variety of disasters, with the terrible fickle Tropical Storm Agnes accounting for more than $23 million.

It is good to live and work in a community with people who are truly concerned for others.

Very truly yours,

(Mrs.) Elizabeth Rueter
Executive Secretary

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
The Leader
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

Diamonds As Perfect As Your Love

For more than 50 years, we've helped couples pick the perfect wedding set. Let us help you, and we will guarantee it's the best buy for your money.
Bridal Set $300

JEWEL BOX
DIAMOND SPECIALISTS FOR OVER 50 YEARS
Alcoa Midland Center
982-4940
JUST SAY CHARGE IT!

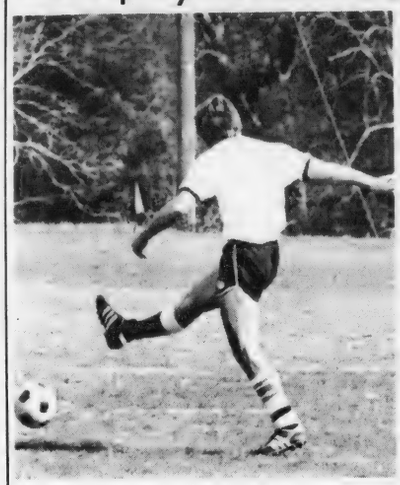
The Sound Post
MIDLAND SHOPPING CENTER
P.O. Box 1363
Maryville, Tenn. 37801
Phone 615-984-6960
For the Leading Name In Quality Audio Components

Help wanted: part time
Male—Female carriers needed to deliver 2nd, 3rd and 4th class mail in Maryville, hours flexible to fit your schedule. Good pay.
Call collect—Mr. Carman —546-9621

Our Doctors and Counselors care about you...
the new woman's clinic
helps women in need of abortion
For help and answers call collect:
(202) 872-8070
Washington D.C.

RESEARCH
Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page
Send for your up-to-date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).
RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493
Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

Southern shoes
Midland Center - Alcoa, Tenn.
"THE LOOK FOR FALL IS HERE"
big bottoms
by COVER GIRL SHOES
For your dressy and baggy fashions, Cover Girl's Big Bottoms are for you. Drop in today.

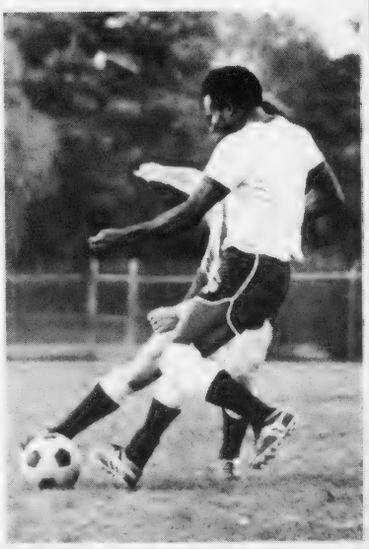


● BROWN ● BLACK
$18.99
● BLACK ● NAVY
$18.99

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 10 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 9 November 1973

Scots play Benefit Game



To the Editor:

As coordinator for religious life activities on campus, I want to take this opportunity to thank members of the World Concern Committee, the MC Soccer Club, the Porkies, the twirlers, and all the students who helped make last Saturday's Fred Hope Fund benefit soccer game such a success. It looks like we will clear $120 which will be sent through Church World Service to the Sahelian Drought Project. I have no doubt that some people will owe their survival to the efforts that were made last Saturday. Having the international students from UT with us made it the kind of occasion of which Fred Hope would have been proud. Any student or faculty member who was unable to attend the game can add their donation to the total by putting it in the box in the main office of Anderson Hall.

Again, my congratulations for a project well done. It was conceived and executed by students and shows what is possible when people care.

Most sincerely,
Dick Harrison
Chaplain

Win, 4-2

Hoke Directs Messiah

The Maryville College Fine Arts Department will combine forces this Sunday to present the 41st annual performance of Handel's Messiah at 3:00 p.m. in Wilson Chapel.

While most oratorios have a plot, characters, and a narrator, the Messiah,as an oratorio is an exception. It tells of Jesus Christ's coming, his life, and the life hereafter with no specific characters or narrator, though the pieces are typical of both opera and oratorio.

Towards Christmas time, hearing Handel's Messiah, or at least parts of it, is as traditional as singing Christmas carols. Indeed, the work has probably had "more performances than any other masterwork in the history of music," according to J.M. Coopersmith, a scholar of the Messiah.

Handel, however, did not intend the work to be "Christmas music," as he first performed it in the spring of 1743. For this reason, many musicians today feel the work can be performed at any time of the year besides Christmas, especially at Easter.

Performing the Messiah annually is a tradition Maryville College has kept since 1933, when a single piano accompanied a 100-voice chorus. Over the years, the production has developed in both size and quality, so that this Sunday the Maryville College-Community Orchestra, with Dr. James Bloy at the organ, Sallie Schoen at the harpsichord, and Lynn Yeatts at the piano will accompany a chorus of about 165 members.

In addition, eighteen soloists will be featured, ten in the first part: students Wayne Davis, Celeste Gourdin, Randy Hunter, Jane Pierce, Robert Ponton, Mary Kaye Sanders, and Pam Thomson; community residents Doug Barber and Charles Tittsworth, and professor Dan Kinsinger.

Parts two and three feature eight more student soloists: Tina Bergner, Melissa Fearing, Bill Gaffney, Kay Hurlbut, Merida Kearns-Preston, Jean Tiffany, Louie Turner, and Ruth Mary Weston.

Allan S. Hoke will direct this year in place of Dr. Harry H. Harter, who has directed the production for the past 25 years. A 1965 graduate who has directed music at New Providence Presbyterian Church, Mr. Hoke now teaches at Doyle High School in addition to directing the College Choir.

Saga Committee Meets

On Wednesday, 31 October, The Saga Food Committee met and discussed the results of Mr. Paul Fraedrich's efforts to meet with and communicate with the student body. Mr. Fraedrich said that he had met with a group fromMemorial where he explanned Saga Food Service. According to the committee, he plans to meet with every dorm sometime prior to Thanksgiving.

Among the other business was the student attitude survey which is to be taken before 15 November.

It was also explained to the committee the justification of the present scramble serving system.

Also, it is to be noted by the student body that a suggestion box is now present and answers will be posted on a daily basis. The Food Committee also requested more solid meat and warmer food.

One additional note is that it should be known that money required to replace stolen silverware and other utensils comes from Saga's food budget, therefore less meat and other types of special food.

MC Receives Kodak Grant

Maryville College has received a special grant of $5,000 under Eastman Kodak Company's 1973 Educational Aid Program.

Maryville is among 35 institutions receiving an unrestricted special grant from the company this year. Special grants are given on a nonrecurring basis, to major colleges and universities for capital improvements and endowment campaigns and to liberal arts schools offering curricula of particular interest to the company and located where the company has its principal manufacturing and administrative facilities.

Kodak has contributed educational grants totaling $3.5 million to colleges and universities in 1973. During the past decade, nearly 600 institutions have received approximately $35 million as part of Kodak's support to higher education.

Last Issue

This issue of the Echo will be the last one of this term. The next publication date is tentatively scheduled for 11 January 1974.

Also, I wish to take this opportunity to thank every one for the cooperation and response to the Echo during my editorship.

Thank you,

The Editor

Women's Symposium

A group of Maryville College students, led by Drs. McNeill and Kratz of the history department, attended the Women's Studies Symposium held 23 October, 1973 at the University of Tennessee.

Sponsored by the commission for Women's Coordinating Council for Women's Studies, the Symposium presented reports on the research, funding, and development of women's studies programs on today's campus.

The MC group attended the keynote address by Dr. Annette Niemtzow on the Philosophy and Structure of Women's Studies and seminars on Women: The Media and the Law and Awareness: Alternatives to Traditional Teaching Frameworks.

SNEA Officers Attend Convention

The Maryville College Chapter of Student National Education Association sent their officers to the State Officer's Convention in Nashville on Saturday, October 3. The Meeting was 9:30 to 3:00 and included a meal and a tour through the Tennessee Education Association (T.E.A.) building. The exchange of ideas that took place between the different colleges across the state made it a worthwhile experience for the officers.

The next meeting of S.N.E.A. will be Monday, November 12, at 6:30. It is important that all members attend.

from the editor's desk

Consensus through Intimidation!

Is the ACC for real?

This question must be answered by every individual of this so-called "community of Christians." The governing potentials of this year's Council are unlimited, but at present, as in past years, these potentials are being totally stifled by some omniscient persons who lecture, preach, and pray on Maryville College's Purpose and Objectives.

One of the basic fallacies of this grand Council is that from year to year, seldom do they ever follow through completely on their own actions. They discuss; they consent; and they forget to execute many of their own decisions. Possibly this is because their decision making process—consensus through intimidation—only works when there is no real conflict of ideas or people.

For example, this year the question of alcohol—one of the two A's of Maryville College—was raised again by the Echo, or rather its editor. I have been accused by many persons on the Council and its subcommittees of grasping last spring's issue in a sensationalist manner with intent of exploitation instead of letting them slide something through the backdoor. It has also been said that I have not piddled with this issue long enough to be so persistent.

Last year's Council made a desparate last minute attempt to squash the issue. A vote taken. The alcohol policy as previously stated by the ACC was reasserted. But my question is why it is so hard for some members of this community of intelligentsia to realize that the Council is a bag of HOT air unless they implemont completely and clearly their decisions. I personally have attempted to get a formal statement on MC's alcohol policy as it was decided by the 1972-73 ACC from the chief administrators of MC and the Council. I have no answer as of yet. This inability to answer questions on its own proceedings is only one of the crippling inefficiencies of our present Council.

Quite obviously, the consensus method of decision making is not working like a few people had hoped. This college community is suppose to be one where persons of "varying backgrounds, abilities, and interests, can unite in a common purpose and freely discuss their differences" in a hope that man will never cease to grow. Unless we have some conflict of ideas soon over the ACC, we should go ahead and flush this year of proposed confrontation, conflict, and growth down the drain with the rest of the garble around here. As long as the intimidative nature of a few persons control the council, The ACC will only continue to be an administrative organism without any freedom of expression beating itself to death with consensus.

The time is here for all of us—students, faculty, and staff—to have some conflict to rid ourselves of this shameful decision making process of consensus through intimidation. Fod God's sake grow with the times and don't be another one of those MC goodies! It's time for men to be men, and for the rest to get out of the way. Conflict is necessary for change at MC!

Futuristics
Book Response

Teg's 1994

by Christine Nassir

What will the future be like? Have you ever thought of what life will be like in 1994? Will the society be the same or will it change? To what?

After reading a book titled Teg's 1994, which describes the authors' Robert Theobald and J.M. Scotts' ideas of what life will be like in 1994 if certain things do or do not happen, I realized that instead of trying to help avoid Orwell's 1984 from coming about, I was helping it come about. In the scenario of Teg's 1994 the society had avoided Orwell's 1984 and indeed celebrated that avoidance. But will we in our society be able to celebrate the same?

We sit and watch the evening news on the television in our lounges, but what do we do about that news? In New York City the police have set up television surveillance on the street corners to make sure people do not break laws. Do you want such things?

Think about what you want your future to be like. Talk to people (your friends, profs. and others) and act. If you see or hear something that you don't think is right, change it. Change things to what you as a part of a school, community, or world want; don't just let things happen because that is the way things are. Write to your representatives in the government; talk to the people that represent you at this school, but don't just sit there and watch things happen.

After doing some checking on the Knoxville Blood Center, we found out that the Knox County Board of Health inspects the center periodically. As of this date, there have been no cases of infection or misconduct on the center's part.

Thank you for your concern,

Lyn Stanley
Editor

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas
Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Photographer—T. Fox
Distribution—L. Catrett, G. Guba

MEMBER

Letters to the Echo

Harvey...Nurse Hall... Who's Next?

To the Editor:

Nurse Hall was born in 1900—she is getting kinda old I guess. She's been nurse at the college infirmary since sometime in the mid 1920's, and I heard that her mother was school nurse before her. A real nice lady, in my opinion. Although a bit stony and expressionless on her surface, she is really warm and makes me smile and feel good whenever I see her. Once, in the evening, I had problems so I went over to see her. She took me into her living room and, with the TV on, gave me some of what she calls "corn"—it was popcorn! I almost forgot that I was feeling bad. Seems like alot of tradition and attachment to destroy by asking her to leave. Sunday was her last day at Maryville College. All she ever owned and loved she either left behind her or packed up in boxes to be stored somewhere. A Knoxville nursing home—I hope the shock isn't too much for her, but even so, it is a sad situation for an admirable old lady. Not much gratitude going her way from a college that maintains a supposed keen concern for individuals. I will miss her.

Mike Wenkstern

Procedural Inadequacies?

To the Editor:

After I wrote in partial support of Gil Nicholas' letter (on Sunday) and turned in my letter (on Monday), the ACC met (on Wednesday). A document appeared at that meeting which indicated that in February, last year, provision was made for settling issues in the ACC by vote if they could not be decided by consensus. I asked that my letter not be printed (on Thursday). This was, evidently, not possible.

I was on Sabbatical last Winter and Spring. I will not, however, plead ignorance. One should always look things up. I get an "F" on the letter.

I have been approached by several of our community who complimented me on my letter. That is interesting, as the letter was evidently not reflective of any real problem in the ACC. It is even more interesting to me when I consider that some of these "complimenters" were ACC members. Some were not aware of the "February document" before last Wednesday. Why an ACC member did not understand this most basic matter of procedure is a seperate problem. Wednesday, however, they were all informed. They should have known that my letter was essentially useless. Why did they not say so?

Why do we persist in the illusion that discontent and disenchantment with the ACC is the result of procedural inadequacies? I would suggest that the problem is other than a logistical one. What this problem is, I do not know. I have some suppositions, but that is all they are.

Sincerely,

David R. Cartlidge

Consider Risk of Donors

To the Editor:

In 1972, 30,000 Americans having blood trasfusions became seriously ill with serum hepatitis. As many as 3,000 died and 150,000 unknowingly became carriers of the virus. Transfusion of contaminated blood was the cause. This "bad-blood" comes from commercial blood suppliers who offer cash for blood—often getting donors with a high probability of hepatitis.

In the interest of the student body, I appeal that the advertisement for the Knoxville Blood Center be reconsidered. I do not know what sanitary procedures or screening processes the Center utilizes, but it seems that donors might also be infected with hepatitis from unsterile equipment used in the drawing of blood. Should the Echo encourage MC students to take this risk?

We can be assured of safety by supporting an organization such as the Red Cross which sponsors a blood mobile on campus each year and adheres to the strict regulations of public health.

Barbara Kerr

Floats Abandoned

To the Editor,

The answer to Dee Ann Dunwoody's question of whether the sophomores realized that their float had "been in a heap at the edge of Maryville College woods for four weeks" is frankly no. I knew nothing of this, and I have yet to find a sophomore that did. We do know, however, that we were not responsible for its disposal. We were told, as were all the float committees, that the school would dismantle and dispose of all the floats, and return the borrowed flatbeds to their owners.

Mr. Sullivan, the head of the Maintenance Dept., also knew nothing of the float being abandoned as it was. According to Mr. Sullivan, maintenance men cleared all the flatbeds at the football field, and trucked the remains from there to the farm dump.

Why our float was left where it was for as long as it was remains a mystery, but sometime before Miss Dunwoody's letter was published, the float was moved to the dump leaving no visible signs of damage to the landscape.

Sincerely,
Warren Wilson
President of the Sophomore Class

Conflict or Consensus?

by Dr. Arda Walker
Professor and Chairman of the Department of History

Last Spring an Echoarticle entitled "Lets have consensus for Conflict" proposed that conflict he established as a 1973-4 goal at Maryville. This sentiment has recently been "Echoed" on the campus. The following was offered at the last ACC meeting in response to this sentiment.

I suggest that "conflict" as an objective or goal is both unworthy and unnecessary. As a goal, "conflict" can only end in destructive tendencies, in atomization, and in polarization. The process releases but does not harness energy. It is the process of endlessly splitting the atom with no attempt at containment and channelization to produce power. The ancient Greek, Democritus, saw the effect of atoms flying apart, ending in death. Life, he saw, as the coming together of atoms, the synthesis into life-giving processes. Egoistic leaders of history have noted the self-building properties of conflict toward ego-directed ends. Adolf Hitler, for instance insisted that conflict always be kept at a high pitch. He instructed his propaganda and storm-troop leaders to foment it if it should lag. Militant Marxists hold to the same process. While egotistic ends may be served by conflict, it is doubtful that group-ends may ever be thus served. In my mind, there is a real question as to whether any creativity has come directly out of conflict without ending first in some type of consensus. Certainly the omnipresent conflict in Ireland, or that in the polarizationation of the Jews and Arabs cannot be termed creative. While analysis, the breaking apart of component parts of a question, is the first step toward creativity, it is only the first step. If synthesis—consensus—into some new order does not occur; if further breaking down and antomization is the infinite process and the goal, only futility and dissipated energy results.

Tension may be creative. When tension snaps, polarization sets in, and conflict comes about. Any synthesis that is then possible has to be that of force, a force imposed by the stronger over the weaker. This may end in temporary and unhappy respite from conflict. In the short run, results may be more quickly achieved. Are they the more lasting or the more satisfactory?

Secondly, "conflict" as a goal is unnecessary. Conflict is inevitable. Any knowledge of the world's history makes this patently clear. The major human problem has been to channel conflict into some sort of synthesis that will hopefully result in progress. Our major world problem, as I see it, is to try to keep channels of communication open, to prevent ossification into predetermined lines of resistance, to promote tentative compromises along the route to the final achievement of what will be abundant life and peace. The Greeks in the great age of Pericles, recognizing the potential of polarization, set up a legislative body in which one group were able to debate and argue, while another was required to sit silently, listen, and vote. This, they felt was a way of preventing policy-makers from attaching themselves to what Francis Bacon later called the "idol of the theater." In so doing, they would have attached themselves emotionally to a line of thought, without examining rationally the elements of truth or falsehood relevant to this ideology. Those who determined policy, never having voiced themselves, had no self-image to defend and would more readily, it was believed, decide upon the rational merits of the many-sided issue. Consensus was then all the more readily available. Unfortunately, in her international relations Athens abandoned this lofty ideal. The result was the polarization of the Greek world into the Athenian-Spartan conflict which brought the culture to an end.

In our own history, many historians see the American Civil War as the result of the breakdown of statesmanship. The elder statesmen—Webster, Calhoun and Clay, the great compromisers—passed from the scene. The alternative to compromise was polarization and conflict. It is idle to conjecture the "what-if's" of history, but there are strong indications that slavery was becoming definitely uneconomic in the 1850's and in the absence of emotionalism and face-saving polarization, the U.S., as was true in Britain, might have been able to purchase and free the slaves and integrate them into society much more happily. What would have been the possibilities of creativity in the absence of conflict? The Civil War was the one definite time in American history that consensus was not employed. Whatever creativity from that conflict resulted, came from the fragile and insufficient series of consensuses that followed, not from the conflict itself. Slaves were not freed by or during the conflict, but by court decisions, constitutional amendments, and legislation that followed.

Tapes Are Different to Different People

by D.W.

Nixin, Mirving, and Urica were sitting staring at the tapes of the Powderence case.

Nixon with an excited, dreamy tone said, "I want to make it perfectly clear that those tapes are probably capable of instant self-destruction before my very eyes."

Mirving didn't have any questions; he was murmuring to himself, "Those tapes house the knowledge that represents all the anxieties and frustrations of every man, woman, and child. The tape as it goes round and round looks like a whirlwind carrying the leaves of a poison oak that were created by God."

Urica looked all around and questionably examined the tapes. "What brand are they? Will the recorded sound be clear? How easy would it be to splice them? Who did the taping? Was he an expert in recording?"

They did argue.

They did throw mud into each other's faces.

Three men saw the tapes in three different ways.

Now 4-4

Scots Suffer 7-6

Saturday afternoon Maryville College suffered a disappointing 7-6 loss to Millsaps College of Jackson, Mississippi. The defeat evens the Scots record to 4-4; Millsaps is now 6-1.

Millsaps scored first in the contest. Gary Freedman picked off a Walker Hodges pass to set up the Majors tally. The turnover deep in the Scots territory and two subsequent penalties gave Millsaps position on the ten. Gary Eckles plunged in for the two-yard touchdown. Charlie Goldberg kicked the extra point.

Maryville went scoreless through the first half, but was in scoring position when time ran out. Maryville had the ball first and goal on the one inch line, but could not drive across the goal before the whistle blew.

The Scots only tally came in the fourth quarter. Freshman defensive back Walter Clarit intercepted a Major pass to set up a 67-yard scoring drive. Bill Baggett ended the series with a 1-yard run. Maryville's extra point went wide, and left the Scots behind by one point. The final score was Millsaps 7, Maryville 6.

Although Maryville rues the defeat, the coaching staff was quite pleased with the style of play the Scots exhibited. Walker Hodges, threw for 17 of 31 attempts with only one interception. His aeriel fetes accounted for over half of the Scots' offensive yardage. Rodney Stephens also had a good game. The sophomore tailback rushed 23 time for 92 yards.

Defensively Maryville had a fine game, holding Millsaps to 124 total yards, despite the injuries of several key players. David Warwick and David Clinton, had outstanding performances. Freshman Walter Clarit also received praise from the coaches.

Two of Maryville's offensive linemen were shaken up in the contest. Earl McMahan, strong guard and punting specialist, sustained a slight concussion. Tackle Mark Keahon is now limping with a knee injury.

Tomorrow the Scots wrap up their season with a trip to Memphis to play Southwestern University.

	1	2	3	4	T
Mary	0	0	0	6	6
Mill	0	7	0	0	7

Basketballers Prepare

The Maryville College basketball team has been practicing daily since October 15 as they prepare for this season's opening game against Lincoln Memorial University on Tuesday night, November 27. Coach Boydson Baird's squad, hoping to improve on last year's record of 4-22, remains fairly intact for this campaign. Captain Randy Schauer, a Junior, will man a starting five that will be probably composed of four other Sophomores who include Bruce Guillaume, Keith Crane, Randy Lambert, and Kenny Talbott. Important bench strength will be counted upon, and particularly from Rod Jackson, Jerry Spicer, Mike Morton, and Matt Wallace.

Because of Coach Baird's football committments, John Weston, a former Maryville basketball player himself, has been coaching the squad, and will once again serve as Assistant Coach this season.

Added to the schedule this season are two tournaments. The first one is scheduled at Echardt College in St. Petersburg, Florida in December, followed by the Millsaps Tournament in Jackson, Mississippi in January.

Week in Flagball

Last week's flag football action saw the Bombsquad rout Carnegie 27-0 on Thursday, November 1. On the 2nd the Studs annihilated the Doowahs 25-0. Monday the Inners forteited to the Studs. Carnegie exploded for 37 points as they took their second game of the season 37-19 over the hapless Doowahs on Tuesday. Tuesday's game rapped up the regular season with the final standings as follows: the Studs 9-1, the Bombsquad 9-1, the Doowah's 4-6, the Inners 2-6-2, and Carnegie and Blitzkreig sharing the basement with 2-7-1 records. The Studs and the Bombsquad, whose only losses were to each other, will clash in the championship game at 2:00 p.m. Sunday, November 11. The Studs will be depending on the combination of QB Dave Spradling to Jeff White for their scoring punch while the Bombsquad will look to QB Buddy Barnhardt to Paul Schultz and Trip Ziegler for their fire power.

Volleyball Roundup

The volleyball playoffs began Tuesday with Covington beating out the Spiking Company for 3rd place in a best of 3 series. The scores were 15-4, 12-15, and 15-12. Later that night second place Aton's Atoms embarrassed the Spiking Company by sweeping three straight in a best of five series, 15-8, 15-6and 15-12. Second place Anton's Atoms play Memorial for the championship Thursday, November 8.

Interim

It's almost over! In a little over a week the first term will be complete and we'll be eating ourselves through another Thanksgiving vacation in time to "roll in" Monday, 26 November to begin Interim.

Interim! — Sounds good, doesn't it? That time of year that we all wait for to unwind, get regimented schedule of courses, and to enjoy doing some extra projects we've been waiting to work on, or perhaps that extra-special project of "doing nothing" (outside of our interim course of study).

While some will be winging their way to Haiti and England, others will be learning to communicate with the deaf, studying the Cherokee Nation or just plain getting tied up in their work—Macrame, just to mention a few.

Interim is a great time of the year that adds that something special to MC. It's a time of learning through extended participation throughout the community and through socializing.

It's a novel opportunity! But watch it! Those three weeks will fly by fast — so enjoy!

Hardon Speaks

On Nov. 16 at 9:20 in the FAC, Father John Hardon will be the speaker for CIV. Father Hardon is a member of the Society of Jesus at the Loyola University School of Theology in Chicago and an ecumenical theologian and writer. His speech is to be on The Hungry Generation.

UNICEF

About 10 college students went door to door to Trick or Treat for UNICEF on Sunday, October 28, and collected $61.41. These funds will be added to that collected by various church groups through the United Church Women and will provide food and medicine for needy children in the Third World.

Vespers

Vespers will be replaced by the MESSIAH this Sunday, November 11, at 3:00 p.m. in Wilson Chapel.

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Par-t-Pub

— Across From Pizza Hut —

Delicatassen

Hoagies - $1.05 & Tax
Corned Beef - $1.10 & Tax
Reuben - $1.05 & Tax
Turkey - 79¢
Ham - $1.05
Roast Beef - $1.05
Pastrami - $1.05

— Choice of Cheese —

Party Supplies of All Kinds

Drive-in Window
Call-in Orders Welcome
982-4251

10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

POTPOURRI

NOWTOWN
Maryville, Tennessee

Featuring Candles:

— hanging
— floating
— foliating
— candle holders
— candle working supplies & books

ALSO

— Incense
— blacklight posters

10% OFF With This Ad

Like You, A Perfect Pair

There's no love like your own. We'll help you express it with diamonds guaranteed to be the best buy for your money, now and 50 years from today

Bridal Set $295

JEWEL BOX
DIAMOND SPECIALISTS FOR OVER 50 YEARS
Midland Center
982-4940
JUST SAY CHARGE IT!

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4158

ABORTION INFORMATION

Call COLLECT for safe, legal help at an established medical clinic. No referral fee.
For information call 202-872-8070.

RESEARCH

Thousands of Topics
$2.75 per page

Send for your up-to-date, 160-page, mail order catalog. Enclose $1.00 to cover postage (delivery time is 1 to 2 days).

RESEARCH ASSISTANCE, INC.
11941 WILSHIRE BLVD., SUITE #2
LOS ANGELES, CALIF. 90025
(213) 477-8474 or 477-5493

Our research material is sold for research assistance only.

bank of maryville

Your Bank In Blount County

Nowtown • West Maryville • Alcoa • Airport • Broadway • Chilhowee

A FULL SERVICE BANK

MEMBER F.D.I.C.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59., No. 11 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 11 January 1974

MC II's residents are (left to right) Tom Martin, Ann Weaver, Gean Hyden, Stef Crane, Neva Parker, Peter Vial, Gwen Guba, Todd Trumbore, and Terry Noak.

Willard House Opens

Winter term 1974 finds Willard House the focal point of MC II. What is MC II? It is an "ecological experiment in living." The ten participants of this experiment will be working on general awareness of the conservation problem. They are all striving to conserve energy, water and heat. As one member of MC II stated, another major concern is "to show that we can form a community of our own and still be a part of the college community."

Everyone meets together for meals at 12:30 and 5:00. On Sunday night they meet to discuss the development and growth of the MC II experiment.

Duties around the house are on a rotation basis. Two people organize meals a week.

Development of this experiment came about following a CIV presentation that posed a challenge to some MC students. The experiment was drawn up, approved and entitled MC II.

The participants of this experiment are Stephanie Crane, Gwen Guba, Gean Hyden, Tom Martin, Terry Noak, Geneva Parker, Todd Trumbore, Tom Taylor, Peter Vial and Ann Weaver.

MC II will be holding an Open House for faculty members this Sunday, 13 January from 3-5 PM.

Sig Elects officers

Alpha Sigma recently held election of new officers for Winter and Spring Terms — 1974. The new president is Wayne Davis; Vice-President, Craig Larsen; Secretary, Scott Poland; Chaplain, "Trip Ziegler; and Sports Directors, Tom Duer and Steve Barnes.

Delta Omicron Initiates Eight

Eight Maryville College students were initiated into Alpha Zeta chapter of Delta Omicron, the International Honorary Music Fraternity for Women, recently.

They are Susan Coram, Missy Fearing, Celeste Gourdin, Robin Dillingham, Jane Moore, Linda King, Merida Kearns-Preston and Linda Sutton.

Vespers

Vespers - Sunday, January 13 - 7:00 p.m. - Little Chapel

Thursday Morning Worship - Thursday, January 17 - 8:40 a.m. - Little Chapel

NCAA Honors McMahan

Scots Named to Post-Season Polls

Three Maryville football players were honored in post-season polls. They are Earl McMahan, Rodney Stephens, and David Clinton.

Earl McMahan was given first team honors on the N.C.A.A. coaches poll. McMahan is the first player in the Scots' history to receive this distinction. McMahan, who was honored for his offensive line play, also handled punting chores for Maryville. He is a senior Economics major from Hollywood, Florida.

Sophomore runningback Rodney Stephens was named to the AP - All American poll, gaining honorable mention. Stephens rushed for 1004 yards in seven games this season, breaking the school record for yards rushing in one season. The fleet-footed tailback is a native of Powell, Tennessee.

David Clinton was named to the same poll as Stephens. The senior middle linebacker from Knoxville has been on the post-season honors sheet for three years straight. Clinton led the Scots in tackles three of his four years on varsity.

Werner Named Tennis Coach

Ms. Betty Werner has been appointed the new head coach of the Maryville College tennis team, succeeding Lauren Kardatzke who resigned last summer.

Ms. Werner, an instructor in the Health and Physical Education Department, is in her second year at Maryville. She received her B.S. from the University of Tulsa and her M.Ed. from the University of Missouri.

When questioned about the prospects for the new season Ms. Werner appeared optimistic. The team lost only two seniors to graduation last spring. Craig Larsen, a high finisher in the Tennessee Intercollegiate Athletic Conference last season, will be returning along with Skip Vessels, Sutton Brown, and Steve Rael.

Tennis enthusiastsare urged to contact Ms. Werner if they are interested in playing on this year's squad.

Hasty Resigns, Search Goes On

The surprise resignation of head football coach Lauren Kardatzke last summer and the subsequent resignation of his assistant, Gerald Hasty, during Interim has left MC's coaching staff in a strange status. Athletic Director Boydson Baird was appointed interim football coach for the '73 season while a search began for a replacement for Coach K. Now the assistant coaching vacancy must also be filled prior to Spring practice.

President Copeland, Dean Blair, Coach Baird, and a committee of students narrowed a list of thirty applicants to six for interviewing. This list has now been shortened. An announcement should soon be forthcoming on the final decision.

Mr. Gerald Hasty

Jordan Named New Coach

Maryville College has named James H. Jordan, a Carson-Newman assistant coach, as head football coach. He will assume his duties at Maryville January 14.

Jordan has had coaching experience at Austin Peay State University, Davidson College, in the U. S. Army at Fort Carson, Colo., Bowling Green (Ky.) High School, Clarksville (Tenn.) High School, and Boone (N. C.) High School.

His playing experience includes football, basketball, and track. At the University of South Carolina he was defensive safety and offensive halfback. In 1960, the Dunn, N. C. native played in the North Carolina East-West All-Star Football Game.

In addition to the A. B. degree from the University of South Carolina, Jordan holds the M. A. from Appalachian State University and the Ed.D. from the University of Alabama, where he was given the opportunity to observe Coach Bryant's football program.

Movie

Tonight at 8:15, the movie Little Big Man will be shown in the Music Hall. Admission is .75.

Sears Grant

Maryville College received a $1500 grant from the Sears Foundation this week. The unrestricted gift was presented to President Joseph J. Copeland by Sears area manager J.T. McCusker.

Ski Trip

Next Friday, 18 January, a ski trip to Gatlinburg has been scheduled from 7 p.m. to 12 midnight. For more information, contact Delores Ziegler in Davis Hall.

The Echo Staff

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas
Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, D. Spradlin, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Photographer—T. Fox
Distribution—L. Catrett, G. Guba

MEMBER

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Letters

To the Editor,

My Thanks to All!

To my friends on campus, my love and deep appreciation for my splendid birthday gift. Your generosity in helping to make this possible will never be fotgotten. I would to hear from you.

Thelma Hall
Room 437
Shannondale Health Center
Knoxville, Tennessee 37919

To the Editor:

Will Anderson ever see the light?

"Aware that twentieth century man is threatened by forces leading to the alienation of persons and fragmentation of life, Maryville College seeks to be a community. . ."

Thus on page 117 of the 73-74 college bulletin faculty, staff, administrators, and students commit themselves to one of the major virtues of a small college. In a small intimate community there can exist a personal involvement with those around us unobtainable at a mega-university.

It has been my pleasure to experience this community feeling-a gemeinschafts-gefuhl-among students and faculty and to a certain degree the staff. Among these groups exists, at least for me, an intimacy and friendship beyond that of co-workers on a job, but true friends. These are friends who share birthdays, weddings, new homes, weekends, and the job of education. These are friends who share the special times-like the Christmas holiday season.

In the waning light of this Christmas season one section of this college community seems to be a dismal failure in their commitment to community, Christian or otherwise. In a year of a highly touted balanced budget, but no pay raises during unprecedented inflation, of a fine football season, but no head coach, of antagonisms over alcohol and an impotent All College Council no gesture of the holiday season emanated from Anderson Hall.

There was no card from our administrators, no bonus check, no token turkey (not even a small chicken!) Nothing, nothing at all from the people who ask for more, but give less. . .

Maybe in this new year the administrators at Maryville College will see fit to join our community. I think we would all like it.

Sincerely,
A Friend

from the editor's desk

A Few Thoughts, and rumors!

Now that our yearly play period is over, Interim, we are back in the lofty Smoky Mountains only to suffer from the Maryville monsoons, CIV's, and the dollar crunch on our wallets. The following are some brief thoughts, and not necessarily related, on MC and campus affairs.

The other night a few members of our "community" contrived a scheme to solve some of the deadwood problem among the staff by bouncing three of the College rental cars around to block the road in front of the Student Center. Practical humor can be enjoyed by all if care is taken not to destroy property in the process. I imagine these students did not even consider how much money they could save MC by cutting out some of the deadwood around here!

In the wake of the '73 football campaign, MC is now without the nucleus of a coaching staff. It is rumored that a decision is shortly forthcoming on the head coaching position. I only hope that the new personnel can uphold the same winning standards which Coaches Lauren Kardatzke and Gerald Hasty instilled during their tenure at MC.

The Echo would like to offer congratulations to a few people here on campus. First, it is in order that Earl McMahan, Dave Clinton, and Rodney Stephens receive mention on their acknowledged positions on post-season polls. It is quite an honor for Earl McMahan, to be the first MC student to receive NCAA recognition. Also, it is in order to congratulate and wish luck to Betty Werner for her recent appointment as tennis coach.

In this day of inflation and a shortage of almost everything else, there seems to be no shortage on words from our CIV speakers. The value of the CIV programs should seriously be reconsidered since so many of the programs are repetitious in message.

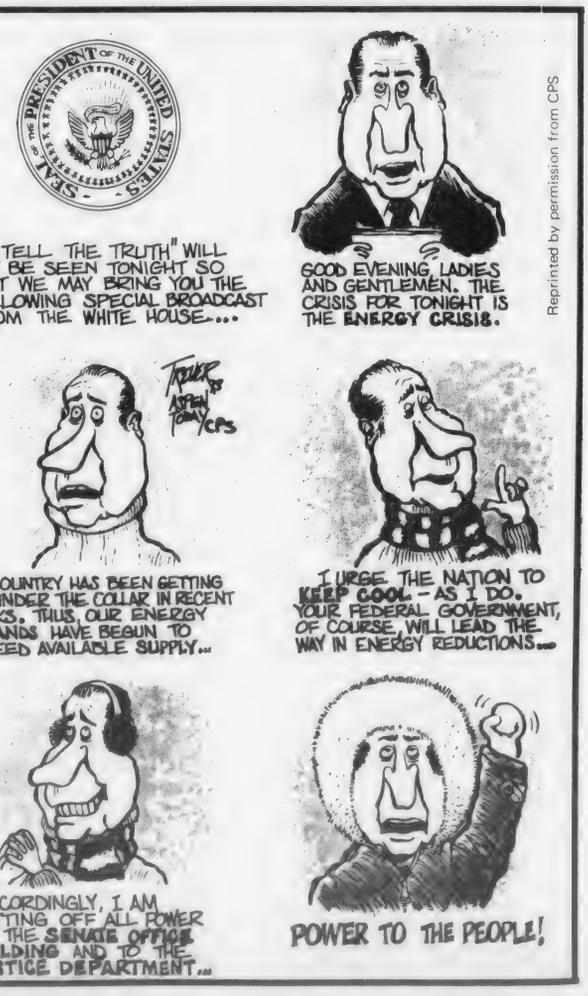
It is a general concensus—if I may borrow this term from the ACC—of the students that they really don't care what kind of bird gorges itself on Peruvian anchovies.

Along the same line is the mere thought that we pay money to hear from these men with nine yards of degrees and titles dwell on man, his corrupt values, his degrading morals, and his lack of role playing in society. Money is too tight to be spent so freely!

It is a very poor reflection on this campus to already learn that texts, expensive books at that, are missing. Every term a large number of books disappear from the dining hall during meals. This reflects very poorly on the students of this campus, and astounds persons who think this is a "wholesome community" committed to learning.

Just one last thought!

The students should not have to sit on the floor to watch the girls basketball team play a game. The bleachers were out Monday and Wednesday nights, but not for the girls' game on Tuesday. People pay an activity fee to attend such activities as supporting the girls basketball team. They are a new team, but then again, this action could very well be a reflection of the obvious opposition to the girls forming a team. Anyway, the girls deserve the support of this campus regardless of any opposition!



Ecology Films

This Winter Term the Library is sponsoring a series of nine Ecology films, which are free for both students and faculty. The first will be shown twice this Monday: at 4:00 p.m. and at 7:00 p.m. Each feature is in color and is no more than an hour in length.

This Monday's film is Tomorrow Is Maybe, which compares scenes of wilderness park areas with scenes of environmental problems in cities. It suggests that the city is a wilderness that people often ignore.

The films will be shown in the Library Listening Room, behind the first floor section of stacks.

on the political side

Reprinted by permission from CPS

Scot Matmen Smash Tech

Saturday night the Maryville College wrestling team smashed visiting Southern Tech, 34-3, winning nine of ten individual matches. This was the Scots' second victory over Southern Tech this season.

John Lebbad took the 118-pound class by default. In the 126 division Maryville's John Poore won a 14-8 decision over Ted Souris. Mark Hutchison won Tech's only victory in 134, defeating Gary DeAlmo 3-1.

Scot Mark Baxis took a 7-0 win from Jay McClure in 142. Honors in the 150 slot were taken by Douglas Cunningham, who defeated Phil Howard, 8-1. Scot rookie Tom Biamon decisioned David Grande 6-0 at 158.

Rich Ramos won a 5-1 decision at the expense of Wayne Eleton in the 167 class. Maryville also took the 177 division with a superior decision of 16-3 by Brad Kehler over Mike Speed. 190-pound Jim Batchler defeated Tech's Charles Kerr 7-4.

The evening's most exciting match was in the heavyweight division. Maryville's Robert von Mitch won a fall in 3:53 over Tech's T.R. Perry, although Perry heavily out-weighed him.

Wednesday the Scots travel to Athens to meet the University of Georgia Bulldogs. The Scots have not defeated the Dogs in twelve years of wrestling. Notre Dame, who was also scheduled for the match withdrew.

Harter Returns

Dr. Harry H. Harter, Chairman of the Fine Arts Department, professor of voice, and director of the College Choir, has just returned from a half-year sabbatical, and is now facing his first duties at Maryville College this school year.

Dr. Harter spent most of his leave in Europe, where he visited many well known choral groups, attended their rehearsals and performances, and interviewed their directors. He studied both their music and their choral techniques.

Dr. Harter's travels took him to Spain, Italy, Germany, France, Sweden, Denmark, and Belgium, where he saw concerts, operas, and twenty-eight cathedrals noted for their art and music. He visited two abbeys which are chief contributers to the world's church music: the Montserrat in Spain, and the St. Pierre de Solesmes in France.

He also visited a chamber choral group in Pamplona, Spain and two choral groups at Sweden's Uppsala University. In addition he saw Carl Richter conduct the Munich Bach Choir and Philharmonic Orchestra in a performance of Beethoven's Missa Solemnes.

Dr. Harter obtained several pieces of music from Uppsala, Sweden and Pamplona, Spain that are not available in America. He has already scheduled two of them to be performed by the Concert Choir this spring.

Beck Presents Paper

Dr. Charlotte H. Beck, assistant professor of English at Maryville College, presented a paper, Unicorn to Eland: the Rilkean Spirit in the Poetry of Randall Jarrell, at the South Atlantic Modern Language Association meeting in Atlanta during November.

Maryville Menu

Saturday Jan. 12	10:30 a.m.	STUDENT RECITAL: Features performing music majors. Fine Arts Music Hall.
		WRESTLING: MC wrestlers in tournament with University of Tenn., University of Ala., Shippensberg University, and University of Penn. At University of Tenn.
	7:30 p.m.	BASKETBALL: MC vs Birmingham Southern. P.E. Bldg.
Sunday Jan. 13	7:00 p.m.	VESPERS: Little Chapel.
Monday Jan. 14	4:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m.	Tomorrow Is Maybe, first in a series of Library-Sponsored Ecology Films. Library Listening Room (behind the stacks).
Tuesday Jan. 15	7:30 p.m.	BASKETBALL: MC vs. Milligan College.
Wednesday Jan. 16	9:20 a.m.	COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: Dr. Edward Clebsch, of the University of Tennessee Graduate Program in Ecology, will speak on Environmental concern. Wilson Chapel.
	2:30 p.m.	ALL-COLLEGE COUNCIL MEETING: Open to Spectators. Anderson Hall, Rm. 304.
Thursday Jan. 17	8:40 a.m.	WORSHIP: Little Chapel.
	7:30 p.m.	BASKETBALL: MC vs. King College.

Lambert pulls down a rebound!

MC's Randy Lambert (No. 30) crashes down with a rebound in last Saturday night's action against L.M.U. Ken Talbott (No. 42) watches the action.

L.M.U., KING DOWN SCOTS

The 1973-74 Scots basketball team has played eight games so far this Season, and stands with a record of 1-7. Their lone victory was a 92-90 triumph over Greensboro (N.C.) College in the consolation game of the Eckardt Basketball Tournament in St. Petersburg, Florida during early December. This past week, Maryville lost twice as they bowed to L.M.U. on Saturday, and King College on Monday.

Saturday night's home encounter saw the Scots lose a cliffhanger to the Railsplitters, 71-69. It was a close game all the way. The Scots suffered through an effective L.M.U. freezing of the ball late in the game. Kenny Talbott lead the Maryville scoring with 17 points. Keith Crane contributed 14.

Monday night's 96-75 loss to King at Bristol saw the Scots play catch-up in the second half, although Coach Baird thought the Scots played better ball during the first half. Kenny Talbott was again the leading scorer with 20. Captain Randy Schaurer had 14, while Bruce Guillaume put in 14.

The Scots played Clinch Valley at home Wednesday night. Tomorrow night, they meet Birmingham-Southern in a 7:30 PM home contest. Two home games are on tap next week with Milligan on Tuesday and King on Thursday. Both of those games are also scheduled for 7:30.

Hutsell Memorial Dedicated

The landscaping of the Maryville College physical education building was dedicated as a memorial to the late Tom Hutsell prior to the Saturday basketball game between Maryville and LMU. Mr. Hutsell served on the maintenance staff of the college for 36 years and was chief engineer for nine years before his death in 1970.

College treasurer Frank Layman, in recognizing the long years of service, noted that the landscaping of the physical education building was a fitting memorial to Mr. Hutsell, as he was greatly interested in sports and attended all athletic functions at the college. His last official function at the college before his death was opening the physical education building.

The plaque to be placed in the building has a quotation from a poem by Dr. E.E. Hunter: "He was strong and humble like the brick in the campus walk."

The Hutsell family and persons who worked with Mr. Hutsell at the college were recognized during the memorial service.

If anyone knows the whereabouts of a book, belonging to Carolyn Simmons, stolen from the dining hall on Friday, please contact either her or the Echo immediately.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
320 Western Phone 523-4198

Our Doctors and Counselors care about you . . .
the new woman's clinic
helps women in need of abortion.
For help and answers call collect:
(202) 872-8070
Washington, D.C.

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations
The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE
Tallest And Closest To The Campus
Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

bank of maryville
Your Bank In Blount County
Nowtown • West Maryville • Alcoa • Airport • Broadway • Chilhowee
A FULL SERVICE BANK
MEMBER F.D.I.C.

Parks Belk
"Your Happy Shopping Store"
OPEN UNTIL 9:00 P.M. THURS. & FRI. NIGHTS

Par-t-Pub
— Across From Pizza Hut —
Delicatassen
Hoagies - $1.05 & Tax
Corned Beef - $1.10 & Tax
Reuben - $1.05 & Tax
Turkey - 79¢
Ham - $1.05
Roast Beef - $1.05
Pastrami - $1.05
— Choice of Cheese —
Party Supplies of All Kinds
Drive-in Window
Call-in Orders Welcome
982-4251
10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Southern shoes
Midland Center - Alcoa, Tenn.
"THE LOOK FOR FALL IS HERE"
big bottoms
by COVER GIRL SHOES
For your dressy and baggy fashions, Cover Girl's Big Bottoms are for you. Drop in today.

• BROWN • BLACK
$18.99
• BLACK • NAVY
$18.99

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 12 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 18 January 1974

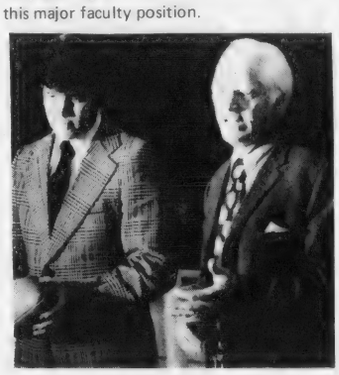
MC Welcomes Jordan

Coach Jim Jordan

Maryville College officially welcomed new head football coach Jim Jordan last Friday, 11 January 1974, at an 8 a.m. press conference held in the health and physical education building.

President Joseph J. Copeland introduced Jordan, formerly of Carson-Newman, to the group and opened the floor to questions. The group was primarily interested in Jordan's outlook on the future of football at Maryville College. The new coach indicated that his immediate concerns lay in making up for lost time in recruiting and in finding a new assistant.

Coach Jordanemphasized that he was going to concentrate first on recruiting within a one hundred mile radius to try to secure local talent for the club. He feels the local talent is good and that it will help to promote community interest in the college. He already has several prospects in mind.



The thirty-one year old coach would like to see MC join a conference to add a championship as incentive to the players. His ultimate goal is a Division II championship in the N.C.A.A.

Jordan promised to provide leadership for the players as they prepare for the next campaign. He recognized the fact that he had not yet been able to assess the talent on the club but he felt sure any player that had the desire to play would be valuable to the club.

Coach Jordan holds an A.B. degree from the University of South Carolina, an M.A. from Appalachian State University, and an Ed.D. from the University of Alabama. He has taught high school in North Carolina and Tennessee and he has taught on the college level at Austin Peay State University, Davidson College, and most recently at Carson-Newman College.

President Copeland added these words to Jordan's appointment,

Coach Jordan's personality, philosophy of intercollegiate athletics, academic credentials, and coaching experience (both on the college and high school level) qualify him fully for the head coaching position at Maryville College. He had extensive interviews with our faculty, students, and administrative officers, and we are enthusiastically looking forward to his leadership in this major faculty position.

Coach Jordan is welcomed to MC by President Copeland during a press conference on Friday, 11 January.

Bryan-Keys Duo at MC

The Bryan and Keys Duo—flute and piano—will be presented in a performing artist concert at Maryville College Saturday, January 19 at 8:15 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall.

Since 1961 the Bryan and Keys Duo has firmly established an international reputation as a brilliant and unique ensemble. The great success of their debut in Paris resulted in a season of engagements throughout Europe and subsequent tours have confirmed their place in the top echelon of young chamber players. Their reception in the United States has been equally impressive. Their annual cross-country recital tours have brought them enthusiastic audiences and inspired high praise from the press.

Each artist brings considerable experience as a solo performer to their collaboration. Versatile in performing the contemporary as well as traditional repertoire, they have also premiered the works of many leading young composers.

Pianist Karen Keys studied with Jeles Gentil and Alfred Cortot in Paris. She was awarded the coveted 'Licence de Concert' in Paris and prizes in several competitions. Her concert work in the United States includes appearances with orchestras and recitals.

As a soloist and ensemble player, Keith Bryan has demonstrated his artistry with outstanding success. He made his orchestra debut with the Rochester (N.Y.) Civic Orchestra. A graduate of the Eastman School of Music, he studied with Joseph Mariano and William Kincaid. For six seasons he was a member of the national Symphony Orchestra of Washington, D.C. and, as soloist flutist with the renowned Seventh Army Symphony, toured throughout Europe for two years. He has performed with chamber groups in Europe and the United States. In addition to his concert work he is a professor at the University of Michigan School of Music.

Wanted:

Applications are now being accepted for the editorship of The Highland Echo. Applications or more information may be obtained by contacting Lyn Stanley. Box 2724, or Mrs. Clyde Ussery in the Communications Office.

New Editor

Ware Appointed Ambassador

Margaret Ware, who retired recently after forty years as dietitian and supervisor of dining facilities at Maryville College, has been appointed Ambassador Extraordinary by North Carolina, Miss Ware returned to her home in Forrest City after her retirement.

Casts Announced

Charity

The Speech-Theatre Department has announced the casts that are already rehearsing the two plays to be performed this Winter Term: Sweet Charity and Lear.

Directed by Professor Blair Beasley, Sweet Charity is to be performed on February 14, 15, and 16. The lead role of Charity will be played by sophomore Belinda Chiddie. In supporting roles, Dominque Carr will play Helene, Roberta Austin will play Nickie, Randy Hunter will play Herman, and Robert Ponton will play Oscar. Stephen Ayers will portray Vittoria Vidal; Candice Wright will play his girlfriend Ursala, and Daddy Brubeck will be played by Sean Sullivan. Terry Holley will play the Good Fairy.

Director Beasley has a varied group assisting him in producing the show. Butch Yardumian is the Assistant Director. Musical direction is by Dr. Harry H. Harter for the choral parts, and by Professor Dan Stallings for the orchestra. Cheryl Van Metre and Terry Noack are the choreographers. Wayne Dansbury is Technical Director, and Peter Vial the Stage Manager.

Lear

The cast of Lear, to be performed March 7-9 under Professor Thomas E. Jones' direction, is also keeping busy. The contemporary play by Edward Bond which is based on William Shakespeare's King Lear will feature Philip Gibson in the lead role of Lear.

Nancy McCleary, Barbara Strong, and David Wilson will have the roles of Bodice, Fontanelle, and Warrington. Bert Crane, Ellen Bercovitz, Carl Swenson, and Pat Damon will play The Gravedigger's Boy, his wife, a carpenter, and Susan.

Other cast members include Howard Welsh, Ronald Fagan, David Lundell, Brad Hodson, Joseph Carnevale, Charles Watterson, Eugene Herron, David Haimbach, Brad Spear, and Wayne Kramer.

Cumberland Capital Grant

A scholarship grant of $250.00 was presented today to MC by local representatives of Cumberland Capital Corporation.

Richard Little, manager of the Cumberland Capital office at 155 South Hall Road in Alcoa, said the program is designed to aid students who encounter financial hardship while working toward a degree.

Little said the Cumberland Capital program this year includes grants to 75 colleges and universities in the firm's four state operating area of Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, and Tennessee.

Cumberland Capital is a regional lending institution with 86 offices in four states, more than $170 million outstanding and more than 82,000 active accounts.

Dance

On Friday, January 25, at 8:15 p.m., the Social Committee will sponsor a turn-about dance (girls ask guys). The dance will be held in Pearsons Hall with formal or semi-formal dress, and will feature STORM. Admission will be $1.75/person or $3.50/couple.

The Echo Staff

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas
Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, D. Spradlin, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Photographer—T. Fox
Distribution—L. Catrett, G. Guba

MEMBER

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

from the editor's desk

Theatre Deserves Praise, and ...

In these times of apathy, it is a great pleasure to note the mass participation of our community in the productions of MC's Theatre. With three productions underway, Maryville's own little Theatre is involving more campus people than any other non athletic activity, and even more than most of our athletic endeavors.

Blair Beasly, Tom Jones, and Sharon Murphy—this is not to mention their technical crews, their assistants, and their casts—need our support as they bring MC's stage to life in the productions of Sweet Charity, Lear, and For Love Of A Woman. Their success this term with a full schedule will depend largely on the appreciative native of us as we support their efforts—yes theatre goers, maybe there is some truth in the statement of MC being the cultural Mecca of the South.

. . . And as usual on Wednesday, we were led with our eyes wide open through the environmental crisis to its answer in man's basic values-system and morals. Our very fortunate CIV speaker then went on to meet with some students and also became acquainted with MC II, better known to us as the old Willard House. Yes, we as concerned about our environmental and are willing to do something about it! But for God's sake, do we have to be tortured week after week by our retched morals.

Senously, despite the trends of tradition, there must be a better way to parade the outside world in front of us. Maybe those rumbles of sounds from the back rows are really saying something to coordinators of such programs. We'll listen the next time the little dude up front has something really to say—and in the end, the students will be the judge.

Survey Shows

P/F Grades Hurt

A recent survey indicates undergraduates with more than 10 percent of their courses graded on a pass-fail basis will be disadvantaged when applying to graduate and professional schools.

According to the Educational Record, the survey also indicated students with a majority of pass-fail courses will also face difficulties in transferring to other schools, obtaining financial aid, and finding employment.

The poll of 200 graduate schools, 50 law schools, and two medical schools showed that admissions directors feel evaluation of pass-fail is "extremely difficult, if not impossible."

Nationwide admissions officers expressed general agreement with the survey's findings and noted a preference for graded course work. One at Harvard said, "Pass-fail grades. . . . are of no help to us. We don't even try to evaluate them."

Letters

A Few Reflections

To the Editor:

I recently spent ten days on the campus of a fairly large, well known university. This private university has about 3,500 undergraduates and 2,500 graduate students. Located in a large metropolitan southern city with a nationwide reputation one would expect a flourishing institution. Several things had great impact on me and I wanted to express these things. This is one man's opinion.

My first impression (other than the choking crud in the air as I stepped off the plane) was that the physical facilities were more run down and plain dirty than anything on the Maryville Campus (yes, even worse then Carnegie!) Their new science center is even newer than Sutton, but is ten years older in wear, tear, abuse and just plain dirt. Both considerate students and consciencious maintenance people get my thanks for the favorable way our campus compares.

It was nice to meet friends on campus and in town who seem sincerely interested in what I am up to. It was extra nice since the big city is so much colder and indifferent towards the individual. It was nice to be a person again, not just a "customer" or another "student". I hope I can return the courtesy.

Finances? No pay raises there either for 72-73. (10% for 73-74). Cutbacks, indebtedness, compromises were everywhere. Education seems to be suffering everywhere in an era of a faltering economy and anti-intellectualism. No money hurts, but we are not alone by any means.

It was also interesting to listen to the moans and groans about chairpersons, and deans, and administrators. While no institution is immune to criticism and conflict and needed improvements, the complaints there were in many ways more serious and disturbing than the complaints here. (though I am not invalidating complaints at either place)

In sum, it was very refreshing to return to Maryville. For me, I am glad to be home.

Sincerely,
Andy Klein

MSG Meeting

To the Editor,

In response to the question of what Men's Student Government is doing on campus, here is how everyone can find out. There is an MSG meeting on Sunday, January 20, 1974 in the Student Center TV lounge. Everyone is encouraged and invited to come.

Thank you,
Jeff Trimble
Secretary of MSG

Thanks

To the Editor:

Thanks for your cooperation in observing the early dinner hour on Tuesday, January 15, so that Maryville College could host the annual banquet of the Blount County Chamber of Commerce and Senator Howard Baker.

Maryville College is committed to serving the local community, and hosting this banquet is one way of doing so. In serving the community we do our best to minimize disruptions in the regular college schedule, but on rare occasions such disruptions cannot be helped. We have greatly appreciated your help on these occasions realizing that we are serving a community and people who in turn have supported the College in a variety of ways, including financially.

I would like to thank especially those who helped prepare and serve the dinner. We have beautiful people on this campus and it is always a pleasure to show them off.

Sincerely,

Raymond I. Brahams, Jr.

COLOR THIS ELEPHANT WITH YOUR CRAYONS. THEN CUT HIM OUT AND PASTE HIM ON YOUR FOREHEAD

RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER

on the political side

Reprinted by permission from CPS

Ski Trip

This Friday, January 18, those people who paid their $9 will be going to Gatlinburg for a 7 to 12 p.m. ski trip. They will get one free lesson plus equipment and transportation to the slopes. This trip is filled up but there are others planned. For more information, contact Mr. Thibodeau.

Arabian CIV

In an effort to foster international understanding on the campus, the World Concern Committee is launching a series of international events which will begin with a CIV on Arabia and climax with a Scandanavian Night on May 18. With the help of the embassies in Washington, D.C., overseas students, and East Tennesseans who have lived in other lands, the committee will bring together films, recipes, cultural experiences, folk lore, and exhibits to stimulate the imagination and develop an appreciation for the various cultures and people of the world. They feel that nothing is more important in a world and time such as ours.

On Wednesday, January 23, the series will begin with a CIV program on Saudi Arabia. Shahbaz Ahmed will preside and introduce the speakers and films. It will be held in the theatre at 9:20 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. Special guests will include Mrs. Safiya Samman, president of the UT Arab Students Organization and her husband, who is on the UT faculty. That evening an additional film and discussion will be held in the Lantern Room to the rear of the library at 6:30 p.m.

Future programs include:

Israel	February 23
Pakistan	March 6
Nigeria	April 6
Thailand	April 27
Scandanavia	May 18

All of these programs will be held in the Lantern Room at 6:30 p.m. unless otherwise announced.

In addition to this, our overseas students will sponsor an International Dinner for their friends during the Winter Term and present a CIV in May. It is hoped that as a result of these various programs an interest opportunities for fellowship and growth in world understanding.

Vespers

Vespers - Sunday, January 20 - 7:00 p.m. - Little Chapel - Jud Stone will lead the service.

Thursday Worship - Thursday, January 24 - 8:40 a.m. - Little Chapel Viola Lightfoot, worship leader

Waters Speaks

Dr. Jerry Waters, professor and chairman of the Department of Psychology at Maryville College, spoke to science classes at Farragut High School recently. The visit was sponsored by the Tennessee Academy of Science. Dr. Waters spoke on two subjects: "Noise: What It Is Doing To Us" and Sleep and Dreaming."

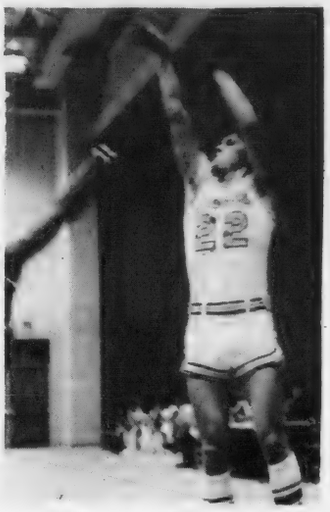
The Visiting Scientist Program provides an opportunity for high schools throughout Tennessee to choose a scientist to visit their classes and talk on one or

Ecology Film

The Library will continue the Ecology Awareness Films Series this Monday with two features. They will be shown at 4:00 and again at 7:00 p.m.

The first film, which is 15 minutes long, is Garbage Explosion, which will show the seriousness of the garbage disposal problem along with the legal and illegal methods used to cope with it.

The second film, The Gifts, is 28 minutes long. It deals with the pollution and the waste of natural resources throughout the country.



Scots Win Two

The Scots' varsity basketball team won two of the three games they played this week to make their season record 3-8 to this point. The week's action included a 69-68 win over Clinch Valley last Wednesday, a 68-57 loss to Birmingham Southern on Saturday, and a 70-63 triumph over Milligan on Monday. All three games were played at Maryville.

In clinching their second victory of the season, the Scots played a tough contest with Clinch Valley as the game remained close throughout. Randy Lambert, who scored 15 points for the evening, provided the winning margin with a free-throw with about 40 seconds remaining. Randy Schaurer was the leading scorer with 16.

Against Birmingham Southern, Maryville played an even match for the first ten minutes of the game, but after that, a tough defensive full-court press by Birmingham forced Maryville into too many mistakes that hurt. Schaurer was high scorer with 19, while Lambert had 13.

Monday night's victory over Milligan was probably the most exciting game of the year so far. The Scots got off to a fast start which ultimately helped them in the end when Milligan showed signs of strength. Lambert, was a contributing factor for the strong beginning with his early accurate shooting. In all, the native Maryvillian scored 20 to lead the scoring attack. Bruce Guillaume, who was injured in the middle of the first half except to return later for an effective night, had

Schaurer Shoots

14, while Kenny Talbott put in 14.

In a preliminary game on Monday, the Maryville JV's lost to Hiwassee Junior College, 86-76. Despite the losing effort, the young Scots showed promise in some effective playmaking, forcing Hiwassee into quite a few turnovers. Freshman Kevin McKinstry led the scoring with 17.

Maryville was scheduled to play King College at home last night. Tomorrow, they travel to Wise, Virginia to meet Clinch Valley. Tuesday night, they return home to meet Covenant, and then go to Emory, Virginia Thursday night to play Emory and Henry.

Topham Stars

This past weekend, Maryville's women's basketball team dropped three straight games at UT at Knoxville's tournament. The loses came to UT, 62-29; Austin Peay, 63-43; and Carson Newman, 47-40. These three are the top three teams in the state. The bright spot for Maryville in the tournament was the naming of guard Terrie Topham to the All-Tournament team. Terrie Topham and Liggy Lowery were the consistant scoring leaders for the Scot throughout the tournament. The next scheduled game is here, January 26, against Eastern Tennessee State University.

Matmen Continue

Last weekend the Maryville wrestlers participated in a 4-way match at UT. The Scots defeated Shippensburg State 21-15, but fell to UT 30-8, and to Alabama 33-6. Then Tuesday night they traveled to Western Carolina where they won a 30-5 victory.

At UT the Scots participated in a total of 30 individual matches, won eleven, and lost seven by two points or less. Against WCV Maryville took eight matches and tied one of ten.
During the week John Lebbad, freshman 118 pounder won 2 decisions and one superior dicision. Senior John Poore won three duels on points in 126 and 134. Also taking three decisions was 158-pound freshman Tom Biamon.

Doug Cunningham, senior co-captain, tasted victory twice in decisions at 142, and freshman Bob von Mitch won two heavyweight bouts on points. Senior Brad Kehler, Scot co-captain pinned one man and decisioned another

Those winning one match for the Scots were Robin Netzley in 126, Matt Pacifico; 177, Jeff Kanach; 167, and Bob Tronio; 190.

Junior Jim Batchler sustained a rib injury in the Shippensburg match and will miss 190 action for a while.

Everett New LPN

Nurse Everett

Mrs. Mary Everett is our new LPN at the infirmary now. Originally from Blount County, she received her degree by working in the Navy Medical Corp for 3 years. Following that she worked to receive her license for nursing at Blount Memorial Hospital.

Before coming to MC Mrs. Everett worked at Blount Memorial Hospital for five years, the Children's Hospital in Knoxville for one year, and for a Dr. Richards for 6 months.

Mrs. Everett and her family are in residence in the infirmary. She resides with her husband Dave, who is an inhalation therapist at Fort Sanders, and their two children Deejay and Mary Ellen.

Thursday, January 10, was the opening day for men's intramural basketball. Judging from the results of the first day of play, most of the teams seem to be evenly matched. The Sophomores and Colt 45's kicked-off the season with a good contest. The Sophomores came out on top, however, with a 50 to 42 victory. Top scorer for the winners was Tom Hyne with 14 points.

Next, the Hackers and Big 8 squared away, and the Hackers came out victorious, 41-32.

Dave Warwick collected 10 points to lead the winners.

Southside and Sledgehammers played the third game, with Southside coasting to a win, 52-32. Mike Owens had the hot-hand for the winners by scoring 22 points.

In the nightcap, the Dark Horses jumped to an early lead against the Mixtures, and maintained it the rest of the game as they won, 51-24. Leading scorer for the Dark Horses was Paul Schultz with 14 points.

Action was resumed on Friday, January 11 with the Sledgehammers and the Sophomores. The Sophomores continued their winning ways by defeating the Sledgehammers 43-34. Tom Hyne was, again, high scorer with 10 points.

In other action, the Dark Horses slipped by the Salty Dogs 52-46, Paul Schultz took high scoring honors with 14 points.

JOBS

Graduates hold a wide variety of executive positions in merchandising, advertising, fashion coordination, on magazines or newspapers and as owners of their own shops. The School maintains an active life-time placement service for its graduates.

Ten full weeks of paid work in top New York department or specialty stores and other organizations provide on-the-job experience, an exciting supplement to classroom training.

New York City, the center of fashion, provides the broad background for the carefully organized One Year Course, planned to equip its graduates for executive positions in the fashion field. Close contact with the fashion industry comes through frequent lectures by well-known fashion personalities plus visits to manufacturers, buying offices, fashion shows, museums and through social events.

Seniors may secure fashion fellowship registration blanks from the Student Personnel Office.

Each year up to eight $2200 full-tuition fashion fellowships are awarded by the Tobe-Coburn School for Fashion Careers in New York City to senior men and women graduating from fouryear colleges before August 31 and January 1. Now in its thirty-seventy year, this widely known school of fashion retailing and promotion will make its annual awards early this spring. Each Fellowship covers the full tuition for the One Year Course, which grants an Associate Degree in Occupational Studies (A.O.S.) and is accredited by the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools.

Fashios fellowships are granted to encourage promising college graduates to enter a profession which offers unusual opportunities for advancement to well-trained people.

European Jobs!

Job opportunities in Europe this summer. . . Work this summer in the forests of Germany, on construction in Austria, on farms in Germany, Sweden and Denmark, in hotels in Switzerland. Well there are these jobs available as well as jobs in England, France, Italy and Holland to American university students coming to Europe the next summer.

For several years made their way across the Atlantic trough A.E.S.-Service to take part in the actual life of the people of these countries. The success of this project has caused a great deal of enthusiastic interest and support both in America and Europe.

The purpose of this program is to afford the student an opportunity to get into real living contact with the people and customs of Europe. In return for his or her work, the student will receive his or her room and board, plus a wage. However, student should keep in mind that they will be working on the European economy and wages will naturally be scaled accordingly. The working conditions (hours, safety, regulations, legal protection, work permits) will be strictly controlled by the labor ministries of the countries involed.

In most cases, the employers have requested especially for American students. Hence, they are particularly interested in the student and want to make the work as interesting as possible.

They are all informed of the intent of the program, and will help the student all they can in deriving the most from his trip to Europe.

Please write for further information and application forms to: American-European Student-Service, Box 34 733, FI 9490 Vaduz, Liechtenstein (Europe).

Opryland

NASHVILLE, Tenn. – Opryland U.S.A., "The Home of American Music," will hold auditions for its 1974 season live shows on Monday, January 21, from 1 to 5 p.m. at WATE-TV and from 6 to 10 p.m. at the University of Tennessee, University Center Ballroom, Knoxville, Tennessee. Auditions, open to all interested persons roughly between the ages of 18 and 25, will be granted on a first-come, first-served basis. Interviews for technical positions in lights , sound and stage management will be held at the same time and place.

An accompanist, record player and tape recorder will be supplied though applicants may bring their own if desired. No other equipment or musical instruments can be supplied.

Opryland U.S.A. is a development of The National Life and Accident Insurance Company, an affiliate of NLT Corporation (NYSE and MSE).

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

OPEN 9 TO 6 DAILY, FRIDAY NIGHT 'TIL 9

SEIKO
The Automation-Age Watch

With Seiko, you pay for the watch, not the time it took to make it! See our large selection today, and let a Seiko ride home on your wrist!

Masculine, self-winding Seiko with day-date calendar. Water tested to 98.2 feet. Stainless, white dial, 17 jewel accuracy. $49.50

Your lady's time is "her own" with this delicately feminine timepiece. Accuracy is assured with 17 jewels. Watch her, she'll love it! $79.50

Automatic, day-date calendar Seiko is water tested to 98.2 feet. Has easy-to-read burnt umber dial. In stainless steel, 17 jewel. $65

Five convenient ways to buy:
Revolving Charge • Custom Charge • BankAmericard • Master Charge • Layaway

JEWEL BOX
DIAMOND SPECIALISTS FOR OVER 50 YEARS

140 W. MAIN STREET, ALBEMARLE • 982-2511 OTHER LOCATIONS IN ASHEBORO, BURLINGTON, LENOIR, KINSTON, MORGANTON, ROCKINGHAM, SHELBY, CONCORD, GASTONIA, MONROE, SALISBURY, STATESVILLE, LANCASTER AND CHARLOTTE

Parks Belk
"Your Happy Shopping Store"

OPEN UNTIL 9:00 P.M. THURS. & FRI. NIGHTS

ABORTION INFORMATION.
Call COLLECT for safe, legal help at an established medical clinic. No referral fee.
For information call 202-872-8070.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
529 Western Phone 523-4158

Baskin Robbins

Welcomes
Maryville College Students

Treat Yourself To A Delicious
Banana Split Special

10 cents off by presenting this ad
Saturday, January 19 or Sunday, January 20

Midland Center, Alcoa

FOLLOW YOUR HEART TO TIPTON Jewelers

902-0141
113 E. Broadway
Maryville, Tenn. 37801

• ROLEX WATCHES
• BULOVA WATCHES
• ACCUTRON
• GIFTS

"EASY CREDIT TERMS"
C. R. TIPTON, owner

HOUSE OF DIAMONDS
• DIAMONDS REMOUNTED
• ASK ABOUT OUR NEW RING OF RADIANCE THAT WILL INCREASE THE VISUAL SIZE OF A CENTER DIAMOND 6 TIMES.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No 13 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 25 January 1974

MC's Energy Measures

by Wiley Rutledge
Echo Staff Writer

At the All College Council meeting on Wednesday, 16 January, a report was submitted by an ad hoc committee dealing with the energy situation. The committee was appointed by Co-chairman Sarah Winbigler and its report dealt with two questions; what is Maryville College to do to conserve energy, and what is the College to do in the event of a crisis.

The first part of the report dealt with how the College is going to handle the crisis as it now exists. It started that the College is going to conduct itself as if the crisis is real and encouraged maintenance to continue searching for ways to save electricity, steam, and water. Reports were requested from the Head Residents and House chairmen for the dormitories and maintenance and department chairmen for other buildings relating to the energy situation in each building. General questions to be considered were outlined in the report.

The issues that the dormitories were asked to consider were whether night lighting circuits in corridors were sufficient for daytime use also, and whether unused corridor lights could be turned off. It was also suggested that lights in bathrooms, lounges, and student rooms be turned off when not in use. Smaller wattage bulbs were suggested for halls, lounges and bathrooms, and the need for extra care in turning off unused lounge television sets was noted. Checking for leaky valves in bathrooms and laundrys, and a limitation of showers to three to five minutes were mentioned as means of saving water. To conserve steam, it was recommended that temperatures be lowered from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. and that night and weekend schedules and temperatures be suggested, with the aim of keeping room temperatures around 68 degrees. Signs were recommended as a means of reminding people to turn things off, and doors and windows that need correcting should be corrected.

Other buildings should be evaluated, according to the report, by checking areas on the basis of the number of people using them to determine if present heating and lighting schedules are justified. Gymnasiums and other large areas should be limited to minimum use, and offices and corridors should be checked to see if light consumption can be reduced by eliminating flourescent bulbs.

No changes were suggested for campus lighting, which was regraded as minimum for security, although display lighting on Anderson and the P.E. building will remain off for the duration of the crisis.

A heating crisis would occur if there was an extended period of cold weather with no oil available. The College would have a week to prepare for such a situation, and an outline of plans by faculty and staff to deal with it was suggested. The steps that the College would take would be to lower all buildings other than dormitories to the lowest point where damage would not occur (40 degrees) and to lower dorms to 60 degrees, the lowest comfort level. This would also apply to the dining hall. If buildings had to be cut off, Bartlett, Fayer-weather, the pool and gyms would be first, followed by all other buildings except dorms. Dorms would be the last to be cutoff. Classes could be held in the dorms, where practical during such a crisis, and spring holidays could be juggled if that would help deal with it.

The report was submitted by Mr. Hugh Crawford for the committee and was approved by the ACC.

Mr. Neil McDade,
MC's new Administrative V.P.

McDade New VP

Mr. Neil McDade, a member of MC's Board and a former Chattanooga businessman, has been named to the newly created position of Administrative Vice President by the Board. As of 1 February, he will assume his college duties.

One of Mr. McDade's primary function will be the procurement and management of funds and properties. As he told the Echo in a special memo, "Administration involves many facets: money, buildings, property, budgets, and planning, to name a few. But more important than all of these are people." He will be in charge of all personnel related to non-academic areas.

Mr. McDade, who was educated in the public and private schools of Chattanooga, has recently done graduate work at Vanderbilt Graduate School of Management. He will receive the masters degree in management this June.

During a 25-year business career, McDade owned and operated a wholesale magazine and paper business, an orchid growing range, and a Pepsi Cola bottling plant.

Among Mr. McDade's other credits are his civic activities as past president of Chattanooga Human Relations Council and the Council of Community Forces and his position as an elder in the Presbyterian church.

Mr. McDade also said that he feels that the "students, faculty, and administration are the heart and blood stream of the college. I believe the college exists because you are here. . . . and if I forget, I know you will remind me!"

President Copeland said, "We are most fortunate in having Mr. McDade in this major new administrative position. He has a comprehendsive understanding of both the academic and financial aspects of higher education and of Maryville College in particular."

Ladner Presents Recital

Ruth Ladner, a senior Maryville College piano major, will present her senior recital this Thursday evening, 31 January, at 8:15 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall.

Ruth's program will feature 18th through 20th century music by such composers as Haydn, Beethoven, Bartok, and Schumann.

Ruth has been an active pianist during her four years here with a piano scholarship. In addition to accompanying singers, instrumentalists, and Messiah tryouts, she is also teaching piano. Last spring she was featured as a soloist with the College-Community Orchestra. She has sung soprano with the College Choir for three years, where she is the soprano section accompanist. She has also belonged to the Orchestra.

Ruth, who is president of honorary musical organization Tau Kappa Chi, plays the organ as well. She has played on several occasions, such as at student recitals and weddings.

Ruth is from Hixson, Tennessee, just outside Chattanooga.

Ruth Ladner

Wanted:

Applications are now being accepted for the editorship of The Highland Echo. Applications or more information may be obtained by contacting Lyn Stanley. Box 2724, or Mrs. Clyde Ussery in the Communications Office.

New Editor

Eco Film

The Library, continuing the Ecology Awareness Film Series, will present a set of three short films twice this Monday: once at 4:00 p.m. and again at 7:00 p.m. in the Library Audio-Visual Room.

After Featherland in Tennessee, a 12 minute film on bird life, No Turning Back, 27 minutes, will be shown. This film tells what the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission has contributed to environmental research.

The third film, 28 minutes long, is Web of Life: Endless Chain,

Ballet CIV

On Wednesday, 30 January, the Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet will present Ballet For Everyone - Well Almost as a CIV program. The purpose of this presentation is not strictly for pure entertainment. It will try to demonstrate that there are so many different types of dance and ballet that everyone can find something of interest in it for himself.

This ballet will entail a collage of dances ranging from classical ballet to modern jazz. Each segment will be connected by narration. Some of the dances to be performed will include segments from two well known classic ballets, Romeo and Juliet and The Nutcracker Suite. Moving towards the modern jazz portion of this presentation, segments will be done from Blood, Sweat and Tears and Space Race.

Ten members of the Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet will be performing, which is almost the entire senior company.

Mrs. Cheryl VanMetre, artistic director and choreographer of the ballet company, has staged the entire production. With the fine work that she has turned out in past presentations, this will be a CIV you won't want to miss.

Our Return From Space

by Dr. Alton T. Tabereaux

Man has adapted to weightless space.

We worried about the wrong thing.

It's re-adapting that's difficult. Some of our spacemen have returned from the gates of heaven to a hell on earth.

The first man to walk on the moon has become a virtual recluse.

Another turned to evangelism.

One had a nervous breakdown.

Another has devoted his life to psychic studies.

Two had their finest hour tainted with personal shame.

Dr. Charles Berry, physician to the astronaut, says, "It can't help but have some effect on their psyche."

Of the dozen moonwalkers, most have now quit the astronaut corps.

Now what is to be the fate of the three Americans who have spent a greater period of time in space than any others?

Only part of the problem involves physical reorientation to a gravity environment. Buzz Aldrin's resultant distress was and remains mental, emotional.

Aldrin of the Appollo II crew returned from man's first lunar landing to sink into deep mental depression which has left him listless, and partial paralyzed. His depression crippled his military career, threatened his marriage, and required hospitalization. With psychiatric help and drug therapy he is improving, but the depression haunts him yet.

After all those years of anticipation and concentrated preparation for "mankind's giant step," Aldrin was abruptly without any major goal or objective.

Christopher Morley has said that "Every man needs to have an apple orchard tucked away in his heart-a somewhere to contemplate, to anticipate-even if he never tastes the apples."

When you have been to the moon, where is there to go?

Recently at the least distantly related practice of "hang-gliding" messed up the life of its champion. Hang-gliding is where a man harnessed to giant wings, steps off a small hill into the wind and soars as far as he can. With skill and favorable updrafts, he may stay aloft for five to ten minutes.

Richard Kilbourne went to the summitt of Cone Pear at Big Sur and stepped off the edge at 5,500 feet and allowed those offshore winds to sustain his flight for an incomparable and perhaps unrepeatable world record of two and one-half hours!

But what does one do for an encore?

Shortly thereafter, Richard Kilbourne slashed his wrists and hanged himself at 25.

Not all ex-champions and former heroes are predestined to self-destruct, yet enough do so that space medics, debriefing the Skylab crew, will seek further to motivate the men beyond splashdown.

NASA psychologist Dr. Edward McLaughlin, even during this flight, has downplayed to the fullest extent possible the "superman" image of the astronaut, hopeful that they will consider themselves scientists doing a continuing job instead of completing the only project which gave meaning and purpose to their lives.

Winter Term Stats

Statistics on the number of students now enrolled at M.C. have been compiled by the registrar's office. Students enrolled for the second term number 693, a decrease from 722 in the first term. There are approximately 30 new students on campus this term.

For the Love of a Worm

For the Love of a Worm, a one-act play directed by Sharon Murphy (Murf), will be presented in the M.C. experimental theatre on February 20 and 21 at 8:15 p.m. Murf, who is directing the play as part of her special studies requirement, is being assistedby Danny Whiteside.

The cast includes Kathy Ramger as Jennifer, Debbie Welch as the worm, Marianne Harrison as the bird, Rob Kaniper as the spider, Gil Nicholas as the tree, Mike Libby (Town) as the apple, and Micki Schafer as the Good Fairy. Wynn Lancaster and Trish Lloyd are the pixies.

from the editor's desk

MC's College Woods?

Before, & Now

Letters

To the Editor,

In this year of the great budget surplus ($2.00?), no pay raises, no Christmas bonuses (not even a chicken!), it is really unthinkable that Maryville College has gone out and hired another administrator (as though we don't have enough already.) Mr. Neil McDade, a Board member and successful Chattanooga businessman, has been apointed the Administrative Vice-President. He is to be in charge of all personnel related to non-academic areas, with special emphasis on the management and obtaining of College funds and properties. I do not wish to demean Mr. McDade's personal accomplishments, which are extremely commendable, to be sure. Nor do I propose to imply that the College would not be run more efficiently with the aid of Mr. McDade's expertise. (We could certainly use it.) However, I would state that our faculty is still undeniably underpaid, and we are in danger of losing more faculty members; we still have not hired another faculty member for our Philosophy-Religion department (not to mention our Sociology and Political Science departments); we still have not hired a Black professor as requested by the Black students months ago; we are still in the midst of an energy crisis, which will require additional money to meet rising fuel costs; and we, as college students, are being hit the hardest in the educational "money crunch;" yet, in the midst of it all, one thing we seem to have a surplus of is administrators. And so, to solve our problems, we hire another administrator? I believe that some justification must be offered for this appointment since many matters of greater importance to other factions of the Community were completely overlooked in taking this action.

Gil Nicholas

P.S. Dr. Richardson returned to research, eh?

The Echo Staff

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas
Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, D. Spradlin, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Photographer—T. Fox
Distribution—L. Catrett, G. Guba

MEMBER

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Scots Win One More

by Fred Strohl

Maryville's basketball team had a 1-3 record this past week as they raised their season record to 4-14. Included were a disatrous 78-49 loss on the home court to King last Thursday, a heartbreaking double-overtime 95-85 loss at Clinch Valley on Saturday, and a big 85-74 home win over Covenabt on Tuesday. By recording their fourth win, the Scot hoopsters have equaled their season total number of wins when they finished with a 4-22 docket.

Thursday's game with King saw Maryville totally overmatched, and especially in the second half. Randy Schaurer scored 16, while Randy Lambert had 10.

Saturday's game at Wise, Virginia against Clinch Valley saw the Scots play it tough throughout, and forcing the game into a double-overtime. Schaurer put in 16, while Lambert, who sprained his ankle in the game and ended up walking on crutches for three days after that, scored 12. Bruce Guillaume contributed 16 in the losing cause.

Tuesday's game with Covenant saw the Scots outplay the Covenant Scots, although it was a physical contest. Four Maryville players including Kenny Talbott (24), Schaurer (22), Mike Morton (16), and Keith Crane (13) scored in double figures. Lambert, who sat out the game, was told by Doctor Profitt earlier in the day that he would be able to play again by Saturday.

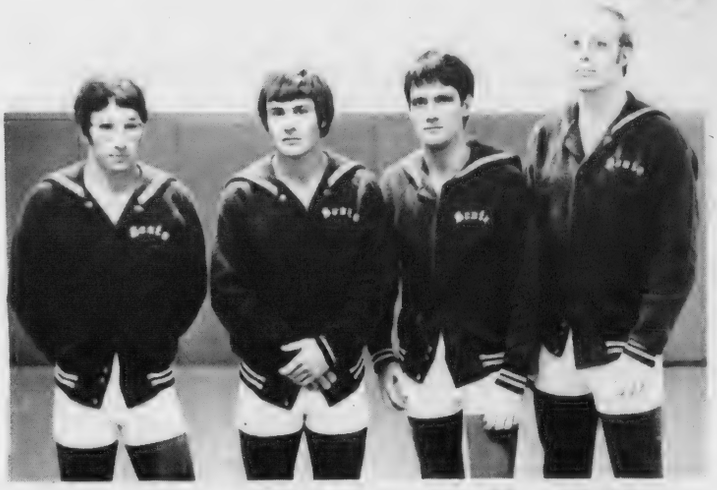
Last night, Coach Baird's boys traveled to Emory, Virginia to play Emory and Henry College, a team that the Scots lost to earlier in the season. Tomorrow night, the team will be in Dayton, Tennessee to play Bryan College. Monday night is the next home game for the Scots when they entertain Tusculum College: Game time is 7:30.

Two Courses For Women

Maryville College is offering two night courses designed especially for women. They are Self-Defense for Women and A Woman's World in the Stock Market.

Self-Defense for Women will begin Thursday, January 31 and will be taught by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Simerly. The Simerlys are karate instructors who have been teaching for a number of years. The course will be taught in 5 sessions and will meet each Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Cost of the course is $10.

Stock broker Clifford "Bo" Henry will teach A Woman's World in the Stock Market, which will be a basic course in the market and investing. Mr. Henry is associated with Paine, Webber, Jackson, and Curtis, Incorporated. The first class will meet Monday, January 28 at 7:30 p.m. The fee is $20 each or $30 for married couples.



Interested persons may call Mrs. Lee Lyle, 982-6412, for more information.

Girls Host Tourney, Win First

Today and tomorrow Maryville's women's basketball team will host a tournament. The games are: tonight at 6:30 p.m., Maryville vs Eastern Tennessee State University, tomorrow morning at 10:00 a.m.; ETSU vs Carson Newman, and tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 p.m.; Maryville vs Carson-Newman. This past Saturday night Maryville's women took their first game of season by out-gunning Carson-Newman 55-49. Melinda Lucas was the big gun firing in 26 points. She got some valuable support from Libby Lowry with 9 and Terri Topham with 7. The remainder of the schedule is ETSU; (here) January 26, Middle Tennessee State University; (here) February 2, University of Tennessee, (Knoxville) February 5, and Milligan; (here) February 16.

Maryville Menu

Saturday 26 Jan.	10:30 a.m.	STUDENT RECITAL: To feature performing music majors. Fine Arts Music Hall
	6:30 p.m.	WRESTLING: University of the South, Clemson University, and Maryville. Health & P.E. Building.
Sunday 27 Jan.	7:00 p.m.	VESPERS: Louise McNair will be the leader. Little Chapel.
Monday 28 Jan.	4:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m.	ECOLOGY AWARENESS FILMS: Featherland in Tennessee, No Turning Back, and Web of Life. Library Audio-Visual Room (behind the stacks).
	7:30 p.m.	BASKETBALL: MC vs. Tusculum. Health & P.E. Bldg.
Tuesday 29 Jan.	7:00 p.m.	JUNIOR RECITAL: Pam Gnagy, piano, and Mike Minnix, organ. Fine Arts Music Hall.
	7:30 p.m.	WRESTLING: MC vs. Western Carolina University. Health & P.E. Bldg.
Wednesday 30 Jan.	9:20 a.m.	COMMUNITY ISSUES AND VALUES: "Ballet for Everyone—Well, Almost." Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet.
Thursday 31 Jan.	8:40 a.m.	WORSHIP: Jane Huddleston, leader. Little Chapel.
	8:15 p.m.	SENIOR RECITAL: Ruth Ladner, piano. Fine Arts Music Hall.

MC's senior wrestlers are (left to right) J.Poore, D. Cunningham, F. Sabo, and B. Kehler.

Senior Scots

Thus far this season Maryville's wrestling team has enjoyed a successful 8-5 season against rough competition. Leading the 31-member squad are four seniors, John Poore, Doug Cunningham, Frank Sabo, and Brad Kehler.

John Poore broke into the Scot first team as a freshman. In three years of varsity action he won second place and the championship in the SEIWA tournament. As a senior, he is a strong contender once more for the 126-pound crown. An economics major from Plainfield, N.J., Poore is interested in Corporatelaw.

Brad Kehler has also enjoyed a long, successful career at Maryville. During his first three years he excelled in the 158-pound class, but this year moved up two divisions to 177. A native of Hackettstown, N.J., Kehler serves as co-captain for the team, and as head resident in Dorm III.

Doug Cunningham came to MC as a sophomore transfer, and became a stellar performer in 134. This season, and part of the last, he wrestles at 142. Cunningham, hailing from Nutley, N.J., is a P.E. major, and co-captain of the grapplers.

Frank Sabo is a four-year member of the wrestling squad. He has served as team statistician and as a valuable reserve in the lighter weight classes. He is an economics major from Flemington, N.J.

Women Seek Athletic Equality

(CPS)—Physical education is one of the discriminatory areas in the American educational system, testified Billy Jean King recently before a US Senate Committee.

Urging support of the educational equity act introduced by Senator Walter F. Mondale (D-Minn.), the tennis star asked why women's sport programs in public schools receive only one per cent of what men's programs receive and proposed enforcement of total athletic equality for women.

In schools and colleges across the nation women have begun to demand their rights as athletes. Charges of discrimination in funding, training facilities, coaching, opportunities for participation, scholarships and publicity have surfaced in law suits involving Little Leagues, high schools and universities.

Guidelines for eliminating sex discrimination in education programs and activities under review by the Office of Civil Rights include extensive rules regulating all competitive athletics operated by universities.

According to the proposed rules, all sports teams would be considered a single competitive athletic program regardless of whether the athletics were conducted at the freshman, varsity, club or other level.

The report also suggests affirmation efforts to correct inequalities where competitive athletic opportunities had previously been limited. Institutions would be required to determine in what sports the formerly excluded sex desired to compete and whether or not in teams separated on the basis of sex.

Upon adoption of the guidelines discrimination in the provision of equipment or supplies, scheduling of games and practice times, travel and per diem allowances, awarding of athletic scholarships, opportunity to receive coaching and instruction, provision of locker room and medical facilities, and publicity would be prohibited.

Separate teams for each sex or a single team for which members are selected without discrimination on the basis of sex would both be acceptable under the guidelines.

Career Planning Panel

"Career Planning" is the subject to be discussed by a faculty panel next Monday night, Jan. 28, at 7:00 PM in Anderson 214. Designed especially for freshmen who have not made decisions about majors, careers, or vocations, the panel will point out the advantages of a liberal arts degree with respect to mobility and flexibility.

Faculty members who will participate in the discussion are Mr. Gary Thibodeau, instructor in physical education; Dr. Randolph Shields, professor of biology; Dr. Gale Rhodes, professor of chemistry; Dr. Harry Price, professor of economics. Moderator will be Dr. Arda Walker, professor of history.

Help a Senior Citizen

There are a great number of senior citizens who live in Blount County and are lonely. Some have no relatives. A number are unable to get around and therefore are cut off from social contact. All of them would welcome additional friends.

In order to help meet some of these needs, Mrs. Monty Arnold has organized a project entitled Secret Pen Pals. She has asked various organizations in the community to help with this project and has recently requested the MC Community Outreach Committee to get involved as well. They, in turn, would like to enlist your support for this exciting project.

About 70 names of elderly people in Blount County who are in need of friendship have been assigned to the Maryville College campus. During the months of February and March, persons who are assigned their names will write them letters, send them a small gift, and in other ways try to establish a relationship, always signing the communication Secret Pen Pal. On the first weekend of April persons participating in the program will actually call the elderly person or couple and reveal their identity. It is hoped that this will be but the beginning of a meaningful one-to-one relationship.

Would you like to help? Are you interested in being a secret pen pal? Can you spare a little time that will make a big difference in the life of some lonely person? If so, please contact the Chaplain's Office or Carol Wylie, Box 2800, sometime during this next week so that you can be assigned your potential friend.

Feb. Meetings

February meetings, Feb. 6-10, should be a busy time for Maryville, with many activities planned and a little bit of something for everybody. Here is a tentative schedule:

Wednesday, Feb. 6
- 7:30 p.m. – Basketball game vs. Centre College
- 9:00 p.m. – Square dance in gym

Thursday, Feb 7
- 10:30 a.m. – Wilson Chapel–Dr. John Fry speaks on "Take Charge of Your Own Life" (CIV credit)
- 1:30 and 3:00 p.m. – student-faculty led seminars
- 7:30 p.m. – Movie Billy Jack to be shown in theater. Admission is free.

Friday, Feb. 8
- 10:30 a.m. – Dr. John Fry speaks; "Ha-Ha" (CIV credit)
- 1:30 p.m. – student-faculty led seminars
- 3:30 p.m. – recreational activities at gym
- 7:30 p.m. – Music Hall–Freedom Night

Saturday, Feb. 9
- 9:30 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. –community work service projects sponsored by the Community Outreach Committee
- 5:30 p.m. – supper in faculty houses

Sunday, Feb. 10
- 7:00 p.m. – Communion Vespers in Chapel

JOBS

Luxembourg, Europe, Jan. 14-There is a new and interesting way around the problem of scarce student jobs. Any student between the ages of 17 and 27 can obtain a temporary paying student job in Europe through a new mail application system. Jobs, working papers, room and board arrangements and other travel documents are processed in advance.

The work is done on a non-profit basis by the SOS-Student Overseas Services, a student run organization specializing in helping American students in Europe for the past 16 years. SOS also provides a brief orientation in Europe to insure each student a good start on the job.

Standard wages are paid in addition to the profitable advantage of free room and board which is provided with each hotel, resort and restaurant job. Most jobs are in Switzerland, France, Austria and parts of Alpine Germany in ski resorts during the winter months, and in lakeside and city resorts, hotels and restaurants during the spring and summer months.

As inflation and unemployment increase, so does the attraction of a temporary paying student job in Europe. Recently raised wages in Europe not only offset any dollar devaluation loss, but a few weeks work in Europe-a personally broadening experience on its own-repays most of the trip cost a few more weeks work earns ample money for traveling around Europe. Most jobs do not require knowledge of a foreign language (but what an opportunity for language students!), and willingness to work, adaptability and maintenance of an aopen mind count more than experience.

Applications should be submitted in time to allow for processing the job, working papers, room and board arrangements and other travel documents. Students can cut processing time by obtaining and holding until requested, 3 passport size photos and a letter of recommendation from a teacher or former employer. Interested students may an application form, job listings and descriptions, and the SOS Handbook on earning your way in Europe by sending their name, address, name of educational institution and $1 (for postage, printing, handling and addressing only) to either SOS-Student Overseas Services, Box 5173, Santa Barbara, Calif. 93108, or to SOS - 22 Ave. de la Liberte, Luxembourg, Europe.

Vespers

Vespers - Sunday, January 27 - 7:00 p.m. - Little Chapel Worship leader, Louise McNair

Thursday Worship - Thursday, January 31 - 8:40 a.m. - Little Chapel Jane Huddleston, leader

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Our Doctors and Counselors care about you...
the new woman's clinic
helps women in need of abortion.
For help and answers call collect:
(202) 872-8070
Washington, D.C.

MEN! – WOMEN!
JOBS ON SHIPS! No experience required. Excellent pay. Worldwide travel. Perfect summer job or career. Send $3.00 for information. SEAFAX, Dept. 13-T P.O. Box 2049, Port Angeles, Washington 98362.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4150

Par-t-Pub
— Across From Pizza Hut —
Delicatassen
Hoagies - $1.05 & Tax
Corned Beef - $1.10 & Tax
Reuben - $1.05 & Tax
Turkey - 79¢
Ham - $1.05
Roast Beef - $1.05
Pastrami - $1.05
— Choice of Cheese —
Party Supplies of All Kinds
Drive-in Window
Call-in Orders Welcome
982-4251
10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

theHighland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 14 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 1 February 1974

Sewer Project

The current sewer project under way in the College Woods has raised some controversy on campus. Because of this, an interview was held with Mr. Raymond I. Brahams, administrative assistant to Dr. Copeland.

Mr. Brahams stated that in August, 1972, the city of Maryville came to the College and asked for a bid on a sewer line to serve the Washington Street area around the medical offices. The bid given was rejected by the city as too high, but a year later the College and the city were able to come to terms, and work began. Construction is presently going on, and Mr. Brahams estimated that it may be as much as another year before it is finished. He pointed out that the land used is not useable for development by the College, and that the present route along the creek is a change from the City's original plan to accomodate the College.

Mr. Brahams also pointed out that the College will be able to get a number of free sewer taps on the line if it ever decides to develop the land, and that these taps would be required. He emphasized that whatever the College had done the City could have taken the land by the right of eminent domain and built the sewer anyway. He also emphasized that the contract requires the City to reseed the land for grass and shurbs and leave it as much as possible as it was before.

Circle K Week

The MC Circle K announces that the week of February 3-9 is Circle K Week. Circle K International has proposed this week to foster change by personal involvement in a concerted campus and community effort to alleviate today's social and ecological problems.

Circle K International does not stress any one approach or theory of social involvement. MC's club encourages this student body to become involved in the areas of health concerns, student concerns, environmental concerns, and the concerns of dependent and reglected individuals.

Circle K's President Lyn Stanley and other officers-Tom Fox, Steven Douglas, and Gwen Guba—invite each MC student to join in the support of the upcoming visit of the Red Cross Blood mobile, the big-brother programs, the campus recycling program, and other various work projects of this service organization.

Currently there are more than 9,000 Circle K members in 650 clubs in U.S. colleges and universities. MC's own 35 members are presenting a challenge to you.

Please help us help others.

Vespers

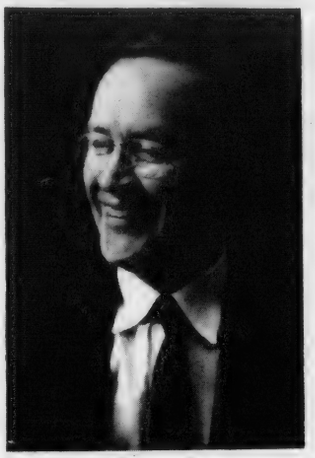
Sunday, February 10, at 7:00 p.m. in Wilson Chapel there will be a Communion Vespers, under the leadership of Chaplain Dick Harrison. The MC Concert Choir will sing. Also participating in the service will be Jane Savage, Gil Nicholas, Andy Klein, Milton Smith, Pat Johnson, and Ric Ruffner.

MC Receives Bequest

Maryville College has received a bequest of $10,000 from the estate of Ola H. Bogle. The gift has been placed in the college's endowment fund and the income will be used to support the Ola H. Bogle's Scholarship for students studying for the ministry.

Mrs. Bogle's will stated that the income from the fund should be used to "aid worthy and deserving students seeking an education in preparation for the Christian ministry."

Mrs. Bogle, whose husband was a finish carpenter well known in the area for the quality of his work, was a long time resident of Blount County and a member of Centennial Presbyterian Church. The college has had a long association with the Centennial church.



Scholarships from the fund will be granted for the first time in the fall of 1974. Local students are encouraged to apply to the Student Financial Aid Committee of Maryville College if they are interested in this fund and in beginning study for the ministry.

Eco Film

The Library will continue the Ecology Awareness Film Series this Monday with a showing of two films, which will be presented at 4:00 p.m. and repeated at 7:00 p.m. in the Library Audio Visual Room. Each showing will be about an hour long.

Patterns of the Wild is the first film, which tells of how the National Forest Service and others are working to continue the balance of nature. Wild animals and birds are featured.

The other film is Of Broccoli & Pelicans and Celery & Seals, which shows how pesticides used in California are destroying man's environment and his chances for survival. Pesticides are washed to the sea where they contaminate the fish, thus cutting off the food supply for birds, seals, and man.

Reverend Horton

Horton Visits MC

The Rev. Robert Horton, who is currently serving as the National Visitor of Prisoner Visitation and Support Committee, will be in the Maryville area visiting friends on Sunday, February 3. He will speak at the 9:00 a.m. worship service in Westminster Hall at New Providence Presbyterian Church on the subject "I Was in Prison" and at vespers on the topic "Our Young Prophets in Prison."

The Rev. Mr. Horton is a retired Methodist minister who served pastorates in Rochester, Corning, and West Webster, New York. In the spring of 1957 he joined the staff of the American Friends Service Committee by special appointment from the Methodist Conference, to work in the Peace Education with Church Groups Program. For two years he worked in the national AFSC office and then for nine years with the Middle Atlantic Regional Office, conducting community peace Maryland, Western New York, West Virginia and New Jersey.

PVS is under the sponsorship of agencies that are related to such denominations as the United Methodist Church, the United Presbyterian Church, the Episcopal Church, Church of the Brethren, Disciples of Christ, Mennonite, Lutheran, Jewish, Catholic, and Friends. In his work as National Visitor he has been given visiting privileges in military and federal prisons where he has called on conscientious objectors and war resistors, as well as other persons. His work has helped to let them know that a large group of people on the outside support them, to help them secure books, records, art supplies, etc. as requested, to remind those on the outside of the witness prisoners are making, to discover what the conditions are in prison, and to provide, when needed, a link between those in prison and their families and friends.

Fry Speaks at F.M.

John R. Fry, visiting professor of social ethics at San Francisco Theological Seminary for the past two years, will be our CIV speaker during February Meetings. Fry's two CIV presentations include one on Thursday, 7 February at 10:30 which is entitled, "Take Charge of Your Own Life" and another on Friday, 8 February at 10:30 entitled, "Ha-Ha-Ha."

Fry graduated form Colgate University with honors in philosophy and he graduated cum laude from Union Theological Seminary.

He has served as pastor of many churches. Among the many magazines that he has written for, such as Crossroads and Presbyterian Life. He has also written quite a few books, which include his most recent, The Locked Out Americans and The Revolting Wisdom.

As lecturer, preacher, spokesman and teacher, Fry has addressed many colleges and universities throughout the country.

Freedom Night

On Firday night, February 8, at 7:30 p.m. in the Music Hall, students and faculty will be treated to a "Freedom Night." It will be a time for the campus to come together and do its thing. The Master of Ceremonies will be Wayne Kramer. Everyone is welcome to share in the program which will include poetry and dramatic readings, musical instruments, interpretive dancing, and vocalists of all kinds. If you have something to share that relates to "Freedom" contact Colleen O'Shaughnessy, Box 2608, or Wayne Kramer, Box 2376 and indicate what you would like to do and the time it will take. This should be an unforgettable experience.

Fac Suppers?

Have you ever wanted to eat supper in a faculty home? Have you ever thought that it would be a good experience to meet some other students and faculty in a small group setting? Do you enjoy having fellowship together about non-academic things? If so, you will want to sign up on one of the sheets in the dormitories or Post Office indicating your interest in having supper in a faculty home on the Saturday evening of February Meetings. The deadline is Sunday night, February 3. Sign up today, who knows what new friendships may develop.

The Echo Staff

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr. Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, D. Spradlin, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler Distribution—L. Catrett G. Guba
Photographer—T. Fox

MEMBER

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

from the editor's desk

Energy Crisis Effects Students

Most of the effects of the energy crisis on college students are, so far, trivial, limited mainly to colder, darker campuses, though education officials across the country are just beginning to verbalize some of the potentially disastrous effects, including revised calendars, extended vacations and higher costs of living and education.

In testimony before the Senate Education subcommittee last week, a HEW official said the energy crisis will hurt low-income students attending community colleges, vocational and technical schools much more severely than others. Among problems low-income students in particular will have to face are rising fuel bills resulting in higher tuition and higher gasoline costs for commuters. Part-time and evening students will suffer if schools close or curtail schedules in order to conserve fuel or reduce operating costs.

A prolonged energy crisis could convert the traditional summer vacation for northern students to a winter vacation in order to save fuel, the Association of American Colleges said. On the other hand southern colleges may have to give up summer terms because of high air conditioning costs.

College and university administrators also worry that major sources of revenue, namely private philanthropy and income from endowments will be threatened by an unstable stock market.

Cancelled or rescheduled sporting events and extracurricular activities are another result of the energy crisis.

Fuel shortages caused a number of colleges and universities in the northeast to end their first terms before Christmas and delay the opening of their second terms until late January or early February.

All over the country colleges and universities are continuing crash programs of lowering thermostats, reducing indoor and outdoor campus lighting, forming student and faculty car pools and closing little-used buildings in attempts to cut energy use by 10 to 25 percent.

on the energy crisis

Back to work on daylight savings.

Last one

Challenge Term 2

by Dave Young
Coordinator of Challenge Term

The idea of a term in which a student can design their entire three course load around any subject that interested them was born in Winter Term 1973 with nine persons: Debbie Mattson, Bev Branham, Phil Gibson, Chris Baughman, Alan Furth, Trish Lloyd, Lynn Mitchell, Tom Bledsoe and myself as coordinator and participant. The central theme, concept or challenge of CT – Challenge Term – was in response to questions like: What do you really want to learn? Do you have enough courage and gumption to put yourself in a learning situation in which you assume the major responsibility for motivation AND growth by outling some educational goals and then achieving them in 10 weeks?

Each person had a panel of students and/or faculty who served as resource help, respondents, evaluators, listeners, suggesters, etc. –anything that could challenge the person to meet their challenge. The panels also had the responsibility of certifying for three course credit in Experimental Education.

Winter Term 1974 is now seeing the second edition of CT, this time with five persons: Janice Foxworthy, Jerrel Dillener, Nessa Pettigrew, Neva Parker and myself. Each person, like in 1973, has prepared a written contract outling their goals, objectives and method of approach for the term. The CT'er and their panel sign these contracts as witness of their willingness to work together.

Janice Foxworthy's contract is centered on an attempt to live/breathe/feel the meaning of the statement: "music is communication." Working with Romantic composers like Chopin, Brahms, Liszt, Grieg, etc. she is studying their music, playing it, experiencing it and sharing it with others. "Perfection in performance is not my goal but rather a realization of the beauty and excitement that is music." Her panel members are Dave Cartlidge, Ruth Ladner, Vic Schoen and myself (a member of all panels as CT coordinator).

Jerrel Dillener is involved in an in-depth study of acupuncture, comparing it with Western style anesthesia with the aim of familiarizing "myself with both Eastern and Western medical traditions, enabling me to compare and relate the two. Can the West use acupuncture effectively without the cultural background of the East?" If Jerrel's panel members will let her, she may practice acumpuncture now (or later professionally), so ask Harry Price or Debbie Mattson what it's like!

Nessa Pettigrew begins her contract with the sentence: "Life, to me, is a beautiful commodity." To experience the deeper meanings of this concept she is experiencing and reacting to people in need, such as in injury, death or drug dependence. She has been observing at Blount Memorial Hospital and will move to other situations as the term progresses. Her personal way of expressing what is happening to her is through a daily journal of emotions felt, poetry and painting. Her panel members are Thelma Bianco, Joy Gomillion, Holly Hutcheson and Jane Savage.

Neva Parker is beginning with the question: "Can not both the knowledge of science and Biblical theology unite so that the effect of this joining will pro-

continued on page 4

Letters

Poor Manners

To the Editor:

In my opinion the manners of Maryville's student body are very poor. During the CIV program concerning international students (Jan. 23), excessive talking and laughing filled the auditorium.

This was a chance to learn a little about a different culture, but few were courteous enough to listen to the speakers or at least give others the opportunity to hear.

Can you imagine how the participants must have felt? I can: probably angry and disillusioned. We should be proud of our heritage, and if speaking, would desire attentiveness. These people are very proud of their heritage. Laughing at their customary ways does not cultivate harmonious relationships.

I am asking all students who attend CIVs (of any sort) to please be courteous enough to give the speakers your attention. You may not agree with what is said, or you may not fully understand, but don't let this cause you to be rude. Wonder if you were trying to speak and there was nothing but laughter. How would you feel?

Sincerely,
Sue DeRemigi

Shall we perish

To the Editor,

I must comment on the very interesting CIV program on Saudi Arabia. It has been said that some of the best CIVs come from within our own college community and once again we have found this to be true. One statement in particular made by Shahbaz Ahmed was super-significant in these troubled times. . . . . .the one concerning the need for growth in world understanding and appreciation for the various cultures of the world. Martin Luther King said it and we should all heed his advice: "We must live together as brothers or perish together as fools."

Sincerely,
Mrs. John Spiecha

MC To Join A Conference?

by Fred Strohl
Echo Staff Writer

For the first time in ten years of discussion, prospects look bright at the possibility of Maryville College joining an intercollegiate athletic conferance. This is the opinion of Maryville Athletic Director Boydson Baird who was scheduled to attend a meeting with regard to this matter in Roanoke, Virginia on Wednesday. According to Coach Baird, "We've discussed this for ten years off and on, but we never got very far because none of us were really talking on common ground. However, in recent months, I'd say we have reached that common ground and have a better chance than ever at arriving at something."

Colleges besides Maryville involved in discussions include Emory and Henry, Madison, Randolph-Macon, Hampton Sydney, Washington and Lee, Guilford, and Davidson. All of these schools are classified as Division III by the N.C.A.A.

"The biggest obstacle at this point is arriving at a consensus on athletic philosophy and a policy on financial aid," said Baird.

If progress on this issue runs fast enough, it would be conceivable for the new conferance to take effect as early as next Fall or Winter.

Next Year
Interim in Rome

An interim entitled The Nascence and Renaissance of Rome is being projected for next year. The proposal calls for about 3 days in London to visit the Roman and Renaissance collections in the British museum. We will then fly to Pisa, where we will take a C.I.T. bus tour spending several days in Renaissance and Roman Florence; continue to Siena, to Rome for approximately 5 days; follow the coastal route and the Amalfi drive to Naples, Pompeii, the Isle of Capri, and Cumae, the site of the entry into the Underworld of Aeneas and Dante. We will take a boat past Vesuvius and Aetna to Sicily where there are rich Greek and Roman ruins. A five-day tour around the perimeter of Sicily is planned prior to our flying back home via a stopover probably in Amsterdam. The travel agent's projected price ranges from a low of $750 to a high of around $800, depending upon air cost and inflation.

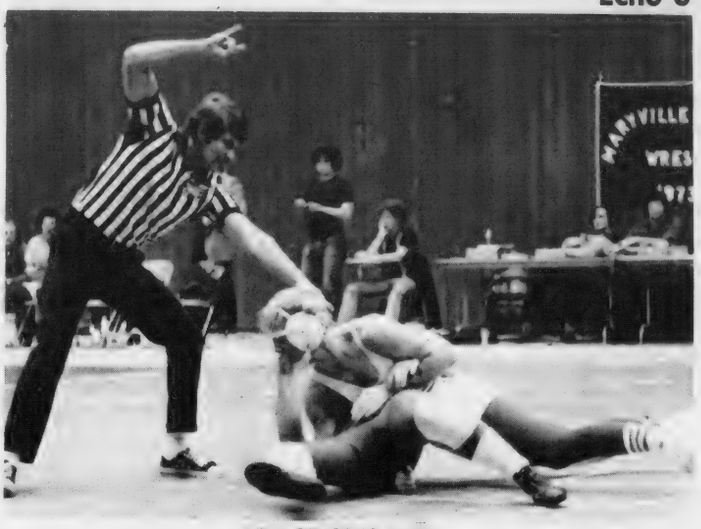
If you are interested in this interim, contact Miss Walker. At least 14 persons must have paid an $80 nonrefundable deposit by May 15 or plans for this interim will be dropped. No more than 30 persons will be admitted to the interim.

Girls B-Ball Action

Maryville's women basketball team dropped two games in this past weekend's tournament. Friday night ETSU whipped Maryville 52-39. Playing without star center Melinda Lucas due to injury, the Scots got their fire power from Libby Lowry and Jean Erhardt with 12 points a piece and Terrie Topham chipped in with 7. Saturday's game was a little closer with Carson-Newman outlasting Maryville 41-34. Libby Lowry again led Maryville with 12 points. The Scots take on Middle Tennessee State University here, tomorrow at 12:00 p.m.

Men's B-Ball Action

On January 23, the men's intramural basketball team resumed play. After three weeks of action, only three teams remain undefeated. Two of these teams meet this week- Hackers and Southside.



The results from last weeks action are the Hackers (3-0) over the Dark Horses (2-2) by a score of 42 to 39. Bob Shumski was top scorer for the winners with 14 points. In the second game, the mixtures (0-4) almost up ended the Sophomores (3-0), but the Sophomores came out the victors in overtime, 63-62.

In the next game, Southside (4-0) had little trouble defeating the cold shooting Salty Dogs (0-3) by a score of 63 to 25. Walter Clarit's 23 points topped all scorers for Southside.

The night cap had the hot shooting Colt 45's (3-1) hand the Big 8 (1-3) their third defeat. Kegga had 17 points to lead his team in the victory.

—maryville menu—

		ALCOA CITY SCHOOLS EXHIBIT: To be displayed until Feb. 31. Fine Arts Center Gallery.
Sunday 3 Feb.	7:00 p.m.	SPECIAL VESPERS: The Rev. Robert Horton, a National Visitor from the Prisoner Visitation and Support Committee, will speak on "Our Young Prophets in Prison." Wilson Chapel.
Monday 4 Feb.	4:00 p.m.	ECOLOGY AWARENESS FILMS: Patterns of the Wild and Of Broccoli & Pelicans and Celery & Seals. Library Audio-Visual Room (behind the stacks).
Tuesday 5 Feb.	7:00 p.m.	JUNIOR RECITAL: Linda Sutton, piano, and Kathy Royal, mezzo-soprano. Fine Arts Music Hall.
Wednesday 6 Feb.	7:30 p.m.	BASKETBALL: MC vs. Centre. Health & P.E. Bldg.
Thursday 7 Feb.	10:30 a.m.	FEBRUARY MEETINGS CIV I: Dr. John Fry, professor of Social Ethics at San Francisci Theological Seminary, will speak on "Take Charge of Your Own Life." Wilson Chapel.
Friday 8 Feb.	10:30 a.m.	FEBRUARY MEETINGS CIV II: Dr. Fry will answer yesterday's address with "Ha-Ha." Wilson Chapel.

KEHLER GETS TWO!!

Matmen Win Big!

The past week was a very successful one for the Maryville wrestlers. Winning the equivilent of five dual matches, they upped their season record to 13-5.

Last Thursday the Scots hosted MTSU and Concord in a triangular meet. The Scots dumped MTSU 54-2 and routed Concord 41-4. Again Saturday the grappler entertained two teams. Maryville defeated both Sewanee (41-9) and Clemson (46-3).

Tuesday night they scalped Western Carolina University 40-0. The victory was the Scots' first shut-out of the season, and the first time in 13 years any team shut-out WCU.

John Lebbad got credit for four pins and one superior decision in his last five outings at 118.

In the 126 devision John Poore also took 4 opponents to the mat with falls. In the same class Frank Sabo pinned 1 foe. Incidentally Poore leads the Scots in team points with 73. He needs only one more victory to break the current record set last year by Wayne Risko.

Paul Naylor delivered falls to a duo of visiting wrestlers, and decisions to 2 more. Gary DeAlmo also posted a victory in points in 134.

Co-captain Doug Cunningham won all five of his 142 bouts, pinning 3 men and decisioning 2.

Freshman Joe Arvidson pinned two 150 pounders and slapped superior decisions on 2 others. Steve Kitchen also claimed a pin.

Tom Biamon won 2 pins and 2 decisions in the 158-pound class.

At 167 Brad Kehler won two matches by pins and one on points.

In 177 Matt Pacifico pinned one man, and battled another to a tie. Wrestling in the same class, Jeff Kanach posted 2 decisions. Bob Tronio credited with a tie.

At 190 Jim Batchler pinned 3 opponents and tied another. Larry McKeever also earned a fall in 190.

Heavyweight Bob von Mitch won 2 matches with pins, won 2 on points and tied 1.

This weekend the Scots take to the road for two Kentucky matches. Tonight they are at Morehead State. Saturday they battle both Eastern Kentucky and Northern Kentucky at Richmond. Next Tuesday Maryville visits Sewanee, the last match before the SEIWA Championship tournament in Auburn, Ala.

Scots Win Fifth

The Maryville basketball team, which finished with a 4-22 record last season, spiraled to their fifth victory of this campaign by defeating Tusculum on Monday night, 74-66, in a game played at Maryville, to give the Scots a record of 5-12 so far. Randy Lambert, who injured his ankle a week earlier and missed two games, sparked the Maryville scoring attack with 19 points. Bruce Guillaume (18), Kenny Talbott (14), Mike Morton (12), and Randy Schaurer (11) were the other Scots hitting for double figures. It was a fairly close game throughout, but Maryville made good on its opportunities to make the difference.

Earlier this week, the Scots had lost their other two games as they bowed to Emory and Henry, 78-59, on Thursday, and to Bryan, 89-70, Saturday.

Thursday's game at Emory, Virginia saw the Scots swamped in the second half after holding their own during the first. Talbott (16) and Guillaume (15) were Maryville's leading scorers.

There was some impressive scoring in Saturday's game at Dayton, Tennessee, but that was not enough to discourage Bryan. To make matters worse for the Scots, starting Center Keith Crane suffered a severely sprained ankle during practice on Friday and was unable to play. He will be out of action indefinitely. Talbott (16), Morton (16), Schaurer (12), and Spicer (11) were Maryville's double figure scorers.

Tonight, the Scots travel to Sewanee, Tennessee to meet the University of the South. Tomorrow night, they will be in Birmingham, Alabama to play Brimingham-Southern and get another shot at that tough full-court press. The next home game is Wednesday night versus Centre. Game time will be 7:30.

F.M. Offers Social Events

This year, February Meetings offers a wide variety of social events, in addition to CIVs and seminars. These start on Wednesday, February 6, with a basketball game vs. Centre College at 7:30 p.m. Then, at 9:00 p.m., also in the P.E. Building, Dr. David Cartlidge will be calling the square dances at a Country Hoe-Down. Everyone is invited to this event, and you don't need experience or a partner to attend.

On Thursday, February 7, the film Billy Jack will be shown at the Theater at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free, and the film will be introduced by Dr. David Fry. Also, after the film, for those who are interested there will be coffee, hot chocolate, and dialogue.

Friday, February 8, will include student faculty recreational activities at 3:30 p.m. in the gym, and Freedom night at 7:30 p.m. in the theater. Freedom Night will be a time for sharing dramatic readings and poetry, as well as instrumental and vocal music dealing with freedom. (If you have something to share, contact Colleen O'Shaughnessy.)

Finally, on Saturday, February 9, at 5:30 p.m., will be the supper at faculty homes, an opportunity to become better acquainted with the faculty and their families. Sign-up sheets for this activity will be placed in all dorms, and in the post office. If you wish to sign up for this, you must do so by Sunday, February 3.

Royal, Sutton Present Recital

Kathy Royal, a voice major, and Linda Sutton, a piano major, will present a recital early next Tuesday evening, 5 February, at 7:00 p.m. in the Fine Arts Music Hall.

Kathy Royal, a mezzo-soprano from Orlando, Florida, will perform several different musical selections. Some are Baroque; some Romantic, and one is an aria by Italian composer Ponchielli. Nancy Adams will accompany her.

A junior from Southfield, Michigan, Linda Sutton also has variety in her program of piano music. She will play works by Mozart, Chopin, Poulenc, and other composers.

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
529 Western Phone 523-4150

continued from page 2

Challenge Term

mote growth - mental and spiritual - instead of constant vacillation between truth and fiction, reality and unreality?" Her contract ends with: "It is not imperative for me, at this moment, to be able to answer all my questions; what is essential is that I grow, stretch, bend - live." Neva's panel is Claude Stewart and Gale Rhodes.

As CT coordinator I serve on all panels but in addition am working with a contract signed by the other four CT'ers. My efforts are centered around the following statement and question: "I have never written fiction before. I wonder if I can?" The area of writing being attempted in science fiction, commenting in realistic or impressionistic styles on the changes being wrought in man by advances in biomedical knowledge.

Sadly for those of us involved in CT 1 and 2 the experimental concept seems to be one that has "died a'borning." Approval on a trial basis for these two efforts was given by the Instructional Program Committee and the All College Council; however, due to lack of interest by enough people, "tomorrow" is being cancelled. Which translated means CT is an experimental idea that will close out after this term. Maybe some day the South will rise again and with it CT. Nevertheless, CT Lives - in the hearts and minds of 13 people.

(CPS) -- Most non-precription sedatives and sleeping pills, confidently injested by about 30 million Americans each year, may be totally ineffective as downers, according to preliminary reports coming out of a special Food and Drug Administration (FDA) panel.

Independent research indicates a stranger story: Some ingredients in Sominex, Compoz and other over-the-counter (OTC) downers may in fact be dangerous hallucinogens--drugs that stimulate rather than depress.

MC Students Only
The Sound Post
MIDLAND SHOPPING CENTER
40% Off Single Lot
List Price On
Mexell Blank Tape
With This Coupon

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
The Leader
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE
Tallest And Closest To The Campus
Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Parks Belk
"Your Happy Shopping Store"
OPEN UNTIL 9:00 P.M. THURS. & FRI. NIGHTS

OPEN 9 TO 6 DAILY, FRIDAY NIGHT 'TIL 9
SEIKO
The Automation-Age Watch
With Seiko, you pay for the watch, not the time it took to make it! See our large selection today, and let a Seiko ride home on your wrist!
Masculine, self winding Seiko with day date calendar. Water tested to 98.2 feet. Stainless, white dial, 17 jewel accuracy. $49.50
Your lady's time is "her own" with this delicately feminine timepiece. Accuracy is assured with 17 jewels. Watch her, she'll love it! $79.50
Automatic, day date calendar Seiko is water tested to 98.2 feet. Has easy-to-read burnt umber dial. In stainless steel, 17 jewel. $65
Five convenient ways to buy:
Revolving Charge • Custom Charge • BankAmericard • Master Charge • Layaway
JEWEL BOX
DIAMOND SPECIALISTS FOR OVER 50 YEARS
140 W. MAIN STREET, ALBEMARLE • 982-2511 CONVENIENT LOCATIONS IN ASHEBORO, BURLINGTON, LENOIR, KINSTON, MORGANTON, ROCKINGHAM, SHELBY, CONCORD, GASTONIA, MONROE, SALISBURY, STATESVILLE, LANCASTER AND CHARLOTTE

bank of maryville
Your Bank
In Blount County
Nowtown • West Maryville • Alcoa • Airport • Broadway • Chilhowee
A FULL SERVICE BANK
MEMBER F.D.I.C.

theHighland ECHO

Vol. 59 No. 15 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 8 February 1974

Cross Victim of Robbery

Maryville College senior Walter Cross made the front page of the Maryville-Alcoa Daily Times 1 February 1974—the victim of a bizarre robbery.

Walter, a parking lot attendant at the McGhee-Tyson Airport, was held up late last Thursday night. The armed bandit forced Cross into his own car and gave him directions where to drive.

After a short trip Walt was told to get into the trunk of his small compact car. Cross, six feet three inches tall, was then locked into tiny trunk where he was found some six hours later by the Blount County Sheriff's Department.

Besides the obvious discomforts of the cramped trunk, Cross was forced to find a way to get fresh air. Using his wallet as a wedge, the alert Cross was able to force an opening in the weatherstripping along the trunk's edge.

Walt emerged shaken from the incident but with no physical damage done.

Maryville-Alcoa Times Staff Photo

MC and Deaf Education

by Chris D'Aquila
Echo Staff Writer

This Wednesday, 13 February 1974, students from the Interim for the Deaf will be presenting various aspects of their interim before the CIV audience.

The program will mainly focus on two aspects. These include interactions between our students from MC and the deaf students while they were together at Tremont, and what the future holds for the deaf program here at MC.

Several students will show finger spelling and interesting signs. There will also be some pantomine demonstrations. Mrs. Irma Kleeb and her students from Harrison Chilhowee Baptist Academy will be participating in the presentation along with Mrs. Betty Lawson and her students from the Tennessee School for the Deaf.

Mrs. Lawson will talk in sign language with an interpretor on the topic, "Is there a need for interpretors?" Mrs. Kleeb will explain how to interpret in the classroom.

Dr. Jerry Waters will then speak on the development of the proposed individualized major program for educating students to become interpretors for the deaf here at MC. The most deciding factor at present is whether the grant funds will come through.

This Spring Term will be the first time that a course in beginning sign language will be offered for credit.

There is a good possibility that 4 to 6 more deaf students will be entering MC in the fall. Presently, two deaf students are enrolled here at MC.

Within the coming 2 years there will be a real demand for interpretors and teachers of deaf students because of a bill that will be coming into Tennessee requiring that provisions be made for deaf students in the classroom.

Beginning Tuesday, 12 February 1974, at 3:30 PM, Girl Scouts will be coming to MC campus every Tuesday to view TV tape series teaching sign language.

Participants in this CIV program will include, Sheri Bone, Martha Browne, Steve Caughron, Wynn Lancaster, Charlotte Orange, Neva Parker, September Polk, Anna Ruth Prochazka and Carolyn Simmons.

Sweet Charity Almost Ready

by Charles Craven
Echo Staff Writer

The Speech-Theatre Department, which is involving better than 13 per cent of the campus in its productions this term, will open the doors to Sweet Charity this Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, 14, 15, and 16 February, at 8:15 p.m. in the College Theatre.

Sweet Charity is the story of a dance girl, Charity Hope Valentine, who lives in New York in the mid-1960's. Despite her promiscuous ways of earning money, she really wants to settle down to a respectable life and be loved by a respectable husband. She meets a man with a respectable background, Oscar Lindquist. They soon get to know and learn to relate to each other.

The twenty-eight member cast forms what Director Blair Beasley calls an "ensemble company," meaning that all acting responsibilities are equally shared—there are no stars. The following is a partial listing: Charity-Belinda Chiddie; Oscar-Robert Ponton; Helene-Dominique Carr; Nickie-Roberta Austin; Herman-Randy Hunter; Vittorio Vidal-Stephen Ayers; and Daddy Brubeck-Sean Sullivan. Both the cast and the production crews are composed of students in every major on campus, making for a total of almost 90 people involved with the show, Professor Beasley estimates.

Professor Beasley has obtained much professional assistance for the production staff. MC Choir Director Harry H. Harter is directing the singers; Professor Dan Stallings, band director, is in charge of the instruments; Cheryl Van Metre, director of the Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet, is choreographing the dances with the assistance of several of her advanced students. The dancers include Tina Bergner, Pat D'Alba, Wayne Dansbury, Martha Day, Brad Hodson, Robert March, Terry Noack, Jill Salisbury, and John Stuhl.

The production staff has several more members: Butch Yardumian, Assistant Director and Stage Manager; Terry Noack, Assistant Choreographer; Wayne Dansbury, Technical Director; Peter Vial, Head of Properties and Key Grip; Janet Walker, Assistant Stage Manager; Dew Joyce and Laura O'Dwyer, costumes.

Just as the cast members are equally sharing acting responsibilities, so the entire company is sharing all the tasks of getting a big show ready to perform. Professor Beasley reports that cast members and technical crews have spent over 4,000 hours so far in rehearsing and working. He noted that, in addition, people on all crews have been giving up hours of spare time to work on the various other projects, even on Saturday mornings and Sunday afternoons.

VALENTINE'S DAY SPECIAL FOR COUPLES

Professor Beasley announces that "as a Valentine's Day present to the campus," any campus couple can attend the Thursday evening performance for $1.50 (saving .50). But the tickets must be purchased in advance before Thursday evening in Pearsons lobby, where they will be sold during lunch and dinner starting Monday, 11 February. This special applies to Thursday night only.

The cast of "Sweet Charity."

MC Receives Bequest

A bequest of $10,000 from the estate of Irva Wade Coe of Maplewood, New Jersey has been placed in the endowment fund to support the Grace A. Coe Scholarship Fund.

Annual income from the endowed fund will be used to grant scholarships at the discretion of the Student Financial Aid Committee. The first scholarships from the fund will be available in the fall of 1974, and local students as well as others are encouraged to apply for assistance from the fund.

Lear and Worm Continue

In addition to putting final touches on Sweet Charity, the Speech-Theatre Department is also preparing two other plays. A cast of twenty-five is rehearsing Lear, a contemporary play by Edward Bond, under Professor Thomas E. Jones' direction. It will be performed March 7 through 9.

At the same time, Sharon Murphy, senior, is preparing For the Love of a Worm for its February 20 and 21 performances as a special studies project.

Red Cross Notice

Notice to all Red Cross Water Safety Instructors—The re-training course scheduled for this spring has been postponed until next fall. Further information will be issued at a later time.

Letters

Student Harrassment Unnecessary

To the Editor,

Within the past few weeks several incidents have occured which lead us to suspect that student harassment by certain adult individuals is becoming a problem at Maryville College.

For example:

A student was subjected to insults from a certain professor. These remarks ranged from her accent to her academic career at other colleges to her home town. We are not talking about a few snide remarks, the incident lasted approximately thirty minutes. That the incident occured at all makes one question the maturity of some of the faculty.

Also at the recent turn-about dance it was announced that the dress code was limited to one restriction—no blue jeans. However, when two students arrived they were told by a certain chaperon to modify their dress or else some "physical action" could be taken. They were dressed according to the announced code, but not with the chaperon's instantaneous one.

In the 1973-74 Maryville College Bulletin it states that "Maryville is keenly concerned for you as an individual and offers many opportunities for you to interact with other students and faculty." Also "The community will accept your individuality and provide an opportunity for you to accept others with different backgrounds and ideals."

We are pleased that the College is so "keenly concerned" about creating these opportunities to "interact" and "accept others with different backgrounds and ideals." However, we do not feel that insults and harassment are satisfactory means of achieving these goals.

Sincerely,
Marianne Harrison
Debbie Baker

Girls Need Help

To the Editor,

I am really concerned about the way lots of students and faculty talk about helping but never seem to get around to doing anything. There is now an opportunity for interested people to aid a good cause in their spare time. This cause is the Parkside Girl Scout Troop 119.

What I am asking for people with is free time on Fridays to be willing to share hobbies and teach them to the girls, I am asking for people who would like to help take the girls on outings to volunteer to help. As it is now, I can't do everything I want to do for the girls.

Interested students and faculty please contact me.

Debbie Cook
Box 2220

MC II: Entertaining the Conservationists

To the Editor:

My question is simply this: Is MC II merely another of those experiments which Maryville College states to say that it is future oriented, yet it goes unheard and unseen of?

What can they really be proving? I have a few friends who come in contact with this elite little group, and if Mr. Saga fed them some of the rice and noodles like they fix for themselves, they would literally die complaining! The proof of this experiment is obviously not in their pudding, but rather in entertaining the Thaw, SSC and Anderson elites to discuss more ideological means of conserving hot air on this campus.

The morgue on the hill, which just so happens to be in direct vision of Anderson Hall, might very well freeze and break before any of us realize that the conservation of man's resources is useless unless life is comfortable, enjoyable, and most of all filling.

Please Willard, come back to life. You were such a warm place last year, but now you are merely another buff of hot air cooling fast.

A Cold Puff

Thanks for Helping!

To the Editor,

The students which took part in the MC ice skating activity last week would like to thank the bus driver for his thoughtfulness. If it wasn't for him, we would most certainly have lost Lou.

Thank you,
A Concerned and Thankful Rider

Petty Christians, and their knives

To the Editor:

As a concerned student, I'm very disturbed with the many petty small Christians on this campus who constantly grunt and groan about everything, but never attempt to do anything about their discomforts. These people, no matter how small or big, have to go. It is a ridiculous state in this community to live in an atmosphere where one must constantly dodge the knives of these people. Maybe this is an inexcuseable fault of human nature, but let it be known that this petty atmosphere is not healthy to the future of Maryville. It just might die! Someone help these sick people.

A Helpless Man

The Echo Staff

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas
Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, D. Spradlin, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Photographer—T. Fox
Distribution—L. Catrett, G. Guba

MEMBER

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

from the editor's desk

One Year Later: The War Goes On

by Graci Mastalli

(CPS)—A year has passed since the signing of the Paris peace agreements on January 27, 1973, but there is no peace in Vietnam.

The New York Times has called the "Agreement on Ending the War and Restoring Peace in Vietnam" document "a dead letter." Newsweek has issued reports on "the third Vietnam war."

More than 12,000 South Vietnamese soldiers and 2000 civilians have been reported dead by the Saigon government which claims 43,000 North Vietnamese have been killed in the past year. Other reports have indicated that 60,000 Vietnamese lives were lost in the post cease-fire bloodletting.

Despite the White House declarations that "peace with honor" had been attained, the threat of US re-intervention has loomed increasingly large. Observers have reported that the outcome of the Vietnam War is increasingly dependent upon US involvement. While no official US personnel have been fighting, one report notes, "the entire Saigon military and police structure is supported by US finances."

Former Secretary of Defense, Clark Clifford recently tole the New York Times that President Thieu, " the one factor standing between war and peace," would be forced to step down if the US cut off military aid to Vietnam.

Recent civilian visitors to Vietnam have concluded that Saigon is putting increased pressures on the US to initiate military action, due to growing doubts that the Thieu regime can hold out without additional US suport.

US intentions have not been entirely clear. Indications have been that the US is using a strategy of "civilian advisors" under contract to American corporations operating in Vietnam coupled with massive financial and supply subsidies.

However, onDec.20 Congress approved a $73.7 billion Defense Department appropiations bill and a $5.67 billion foreign aid bill, allocating nearly $3 billion to military aid for Indochina.

The Congressional appropiation came at the heels of Defense Secretary Schlesinger's threatened resumption of US bombing in the event of a communist offensive, "without provocation."

Some administration military spokesmen have also been reported issuing saberrattling statements amid reports of stepped-up North Vietnamese aggression. General John Vogt, commander of US forces in Thailand said in November, "now that we're not actually dropping bombs, we must maintain our capacity to resume such action if we have to."

Reportedly the Nixon administration has also been planning to replace Saigon's F-5A fighter-bombers with F-5Es, a superior model which goes beyond the "one for one" replacement allowed by the Paris agreement.

Cease-fire violations attributed to the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) have served to justify the Saigon regime's Dec. 30 announcement that no general elections would be held and its Jan. 5 declaration that it would begin bombing communist zones regularly.

The PRG in turn has claimed that US and Thieu regime violations of the Agreement justify the suspension of searches for US personnel missing-in-action and stepped-up attacks on Government of the Republic of Vietnam (GVN) camps suspected of being used for offensive actions against PRG.

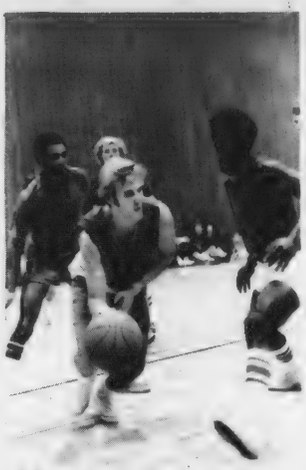
Thieu was reported to have said recently, "There can never be peace. . . as long as the North Vietnamese stay in the South."

US peace organizations have interpreted the current situation as indicating more fighting and economic chaos in Vietnam, pending further US action or withdrawal.

Meanwhile Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has promised to advise Congress before the US takes any new military action in Indochina.

ACC Aproves CEP

by Wiley Rutledge
Echo Staff Writer



The All College Council meeting for 30 January 1974 opened with a discussion of the inactivity of the food committee. Dr. Copeland announced that Patricia Lloyd, the committee's chairman is going to interview members of the committee to determine their interest and supplement it wherever necessary from the dorm councils.

Chaplain Harrison distributed to the Council the brochure containing the schedule for February Meetings, and announced that on the Monday after vespers, 11 February, a film entitled "Let the Church Say Amen" will be shown. It is a Methodist film about the black church sponsored by the black students. He also announced a program called "secret Pen Pal in which members of the community write to shutins signing their letters "Your secret Pen Pal." They would visit the person they write to during the first week in April.

The calendar for next year was approved, and Dr. Blair reported on a dual degree program involving MC, UT, and Georgia Tech. A student in this program would spend three years here and two at either UT or Georgia Tech. He would take the core courses and background for engineering here, and would do a one term modified independent study. He would receive a B.A. from here and a B.S. from the other school She also reported on a College Experience Program which under certain defined conditions would permit a student to enter into a non-degree program. Both of these as well as a program allowing psychology majors to work with "slow learners" in public schools as part of their major were approved.

Emerson Henderson reported the need to have a black admissions counsellor and/or faculty member on campus. He also expressed a need for equal treatment of black culture in the curriculum. Although he was reporting for the ad hoc committee on blacks, he stated that the views he expressed were personal. Dr. Copeland encouraged the committee to keep up its work and submit specific suggestions to the ACC.

At the end of the meeting Dr. Copeland stated that the position of administrative Vice President combines the positions of director of development (procurement of funds) and management of funds.

Men's B-Ball Action

Jud Stone drives inside during recent Intramural basketball action.

Matmen Win Matches

This week the Maryville matmen upped their season record to 17-5, winning four matches on the road.

The Scots opened Friday at Morehead State. The defending Eagles had a perfect 12-0 mark for the year til Maryville dumped them, 24-9.

Then Saturday the Scots battled EKSU and NKSU in Richmond, Ky. Maryville claimed both contests, 29-14 and 51-0 respectively.

Tuesday the Scots traveled to Sewanee and downed the Tigers 27-15.

In 118-pound action John Lebbad claimed a first period pin, two decisions, and a win by default.

Gary DeAlmo won one decision and lost a close one on riding time in 134.

A trio of wrestlers took four victories at 150. Douglas Cunningham earned 2 decisions, Mark Baxis took a match on points, and Paul Naylor pinned an opponent in 45 seconds.

Baxis also pinned a man at 150, as did Steve Kitchen. In 158 Tom Biamon scored a pin and a decision.

Brad Kehler led 167 honors with 2 decisions, while Rick Ramos had a pin. In 177 action Jeff Kanach won a pin, a decision, and a draw.

Jim Batchler pinned three men at 190, and Larry McKeever worked for a decision.

In heavyweight competition Batchler decisioned one man. Regular heavy Bob von Mitch pinned two opponents.

This weekend Maryville is participating in the annual SEIWA championship tournament in Auburn, Ala. Twelve excellent teams will provide tough competition, but Coach Elia is optimistic about the Scots' chances.

Black History Week

by Emerson Henderson
Echo Staff Writer

February 10-16 is usually recognized as Black History Week in the United States. Throughout this week there will be various programs and events that will focus on a very valuable portion of history that belongs not only to 25 million Afro-Americans but also to America itself.

It was Carter G. Woodson who felt the need to form the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History in 1916. Woodson, one of the leading black educators of his time, saw that not just the black man, but America itself was being deprived of some of its richest written history which was not being recorded because its makers were black people.

Thus Woodson felt that, since racism continued to prohibit the inclusion of these black accomplishments and events into American history books, a week of study should be set aside to focus on them. This would make certain that no longer would ignorance rob our historical arrals of a complete study of our nation.

It must regretfully be admitted that even today we still find that our history books lack the relevant segments of the past in relation to America's black population, the nation's largest majority. Thus, until wrong is corrected, the celebration must go on.

Maryville College will also celebrate this event throughout this week. The guiding theme for this year is "Blackness In Action; Yesterday and Today." To kick things off, the film "Let the Church Say Amen" will be shown Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the music hall. This film deals with the unique role the Black church has played in the black man's struggle for freedom. The black church has not only provided spiritual guidance, but social, economic, and political guidance as well.

On Tuesday at 8:00 p.m. in the Black Culture Center (BCC) in Fayerweather Hall, black students will host a discussion on "Everything You've Always Wanted to Ask about Blacks but were Afraid to Ask."

The Black Students Association will present its program on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the BCC. There will be nusic, poetry, prose, and readings, all relating to important events in Black History.

Help Needed Saturday

Saturday will be clean-up day! All students who have clothing they would like to discard - which they have outgrown or consider out of style - are asked to bring it to the lounge in their dormitory where it will be picked up this Saturday morning as a part of the February Meetings Work Day. Newspapers, magazines, and books will also be collected at the same time for recycling. Smaller papers should be either boxed or bagged.

Circle K Visits Kiwanis: Challenges All

This week, the MC Circle K presented programs to the local Maryville and Alcoa Kiwanis Clubs as part of Circle K Week. Under the leadership of President Lyn Stanley and the other officers, the club presented a program entitled A Few Reflections: Our New Look.

This program outlined the growth of MC's club since 1971 through the official recognition of females as full members in February, 1972 until now. As part of this program, the various projects were also elaborated upon.

As part of their challenge to MC, the club urges any interested student to join in helping on their scheduled projects tomorrow at 1:00. Please meet in SSC 214 if you are interested.

Once more, please join MC's Circle K Club in meeting their "Challenge to Action" through supporting the upcoming visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile on February 25.

Scots Lose Two

After winning game number five of the season last Monday night against Tusculum, the Maryville Scots' basketball team was unsuccessful in two attempts to win game number six over the week-end. On a three-day road trip to Sewanee, Tennessee and Birmingham, Alabama, Maryville was beaten by the University of the South, 95-66, on Friday, and by Birmingham-Southern, 83-64, on Saturday. The Scots' season record now reads five wins and 14 losses.

Friday's game with Sewanee saw the Scots completely outclassed from the start. Randy Schaurer (19) and Randy Lambert (12) were the high scorers for the Scots. Maryville will get another shot at Sewanee at home on Saturday night, February 16.

Saturday night's game with Birmingham-Southern saw the Scots play an improved game over their first meeting here. Unlike the first game, the Scots were not victimized as much by Birmingham's full-court press. The Scots trailed at halftime by only 31-22. Birmingham's dominance in the second half made the difference. High scorers for the Scots were Kenny Talbott (20) and Lambert (15).

The Scots met Centre College at home on Wednesday night. Next Thursday, they travel about 30 miles north of Knoxville for a rematch with Lincoln Memorial University.

Girls B-Ball Action

Maryville's women basketball team's record dropped to 1-8 as MTSU romped with a 63-43 victory over the Scots here last Saturday. Melinda Lucas, back from an injury, led Maryville with 14 points, while Jean Erhardt had 9 and Nan Garner 8. Tuesday the Scots traveled to Knoxville to take on UT. UT ran away with Maryville 63-35. Libby Lowery led the Scots with 9 points. The Scots host Milligan Saturday February 16 at 1 p.m.

Bergner Presents Recital

Tina Bergner

Christine Bergner, voice major from Buffalo, New York, will present her Senior Recital February 19 at 8:15 in the Fine Arts Music Hall.

The program will feature such diverse works as Handel's "Organum" accompanied by quartet and harpsichord, "Blake Songs" by Ralph Vaughn Williams, four songs from "La Nuit D'Ete" by Berlioz, and the famous "Caro nome che il mio cor" from Rigoletto.

Upon graduation, Miss Bergner plans to return to New York, where she will study theatre dance, and classical voice, in preparation for a career in professional performance.

Irrational Rationing May Hit Students

(CPS)—If gasoline rationing becomes a reality, the nation's 1.6 million students who are attending out-of-state schools may have to go home an extra four times each year just to pick up their allotment of rationing coupons.

That's the way the Federal Energy Office's (FEO) proposal for a contingency rationing plan now reads, although energy officials stress the plan is still under study and suggestions for "refinements in the system" are welcome.

Under the plan, in the event gasoline rationing becomes necessary any licensed driver 18 or older would be eligible to receive an authorization card which, when presented every three months together with a driver's license, would entitle the driver to receive a quarterly supply of rationing coupons.

The hitch for out-of-state students is the proviso that, "coupons must be picked up in the same state in which the driver's license and authorization cards were issued."

The only exception to that rule applies to military personnel who "would be allowed to pick up coupons in their present state of residence by presenting military identification cards in addition to their out-of-state driver's licenses and authorization cards."

One energy official said the agency was aware of the inconvenience the plan would likely cause for thousands of students, and that FEO was considering alternative means by which out-of-state students could pick up their coupons, possibly through the cooperation of college and university administration.

The official stressed that the agency genuinely wants to hear and consider the views of all persons who would be affected by rationing, and that the provisions of the proposed plan are not as yet final.

The National Student Lobby and the National Student Association were among the first groups to oppose the provision requiring students to obtain rationing coupons in their home states.

"Imagine students driving from Michigan to New York City or further to pick up rationing coupons four times a year," said Arthur Rodbell of the National Student Lobby,". . . it constitutes an outrageous waste of energy resources," he said.

Both organizations filed formal complaints only hours within the January deadline.

What Could $56 Million Buy?

In a world plagued with social, physical and intellectual poverty the concern for human needs is quickly preempted by the desire for military supremacy. At present, the United States Air Force is in the process of designing and building the largest, most expensive "toy" ever conceived by military leadership—the B-1 bomber. The new supersonic, manned, strategic bomber will be armed with 24 nuclear-tipped missiles or 50,000 lbs. of conventional bombs, "the laser death ray," and the most advanced "electronic exotica" for automated warfare. In addition to escalating the arms-race, endangering the environment and emphasizing military destruction over human construction, the B-1 bomber is not really needed. In fact, it may even be obsolete by 1980, its projected operational date.

The United States Air Force is asking for not one but a fleet of 241 B-1 bombers. The estimated cost for the research and development of this program ranges from 43.9 billion to $75 billion. Spread out over a ten-year period the average cost (taking the most conservative estimates) per family of four would equal $1000.

What could $56 million buy? "Maintenance and supply of 18 health centers, each treating 40,000 people annually; nutrition programs for the elderly providing of four typical Mid-West high schools" —or—one B-1 bomber (Imagine what $75 billion could buy!). It is time to re-evaluate our priorities in favor of human development rather than annihilation.

A local task force is currently forming, as a part of a united effort with the American Friends Service Committee and Clergy & Laity Concerned, to discuss the implications of the newest military monster machine and to take positive action against its development. If you are interested in learning more about the B-1 please contact Janice Foxworthy (Box 2143) or Trish Lloyd (Box 2423). Weekly meetings are scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday evenings in the Student Center Lounge. All concerned individuals are invited to attend.

Career Room Opens

In the lounge next to the Microfilm Room in the Library, one corner has been designated the "Career Room." A table for browsing and two small bookshelves stacked with information about career opportunities have been prepared by the Career Planning and Placement Committee.

Among the materials available for reading by students and faculty are Occupational Outlook Annual, Careers in Education, Directory of College Student Volunteer Programs, College Placement Annual, 1974, and a number of xeroxed articles dealing with the liberal arts degree as preparation for careers in federal government service, non-teaching careers for English majors, and preferred graduate schools in various disciplines.

Additional articles and pamphlets will be included as they are made available by faculty and students.

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
The Leader
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Southern shoes
Midland Center - Alcoa, Tenn.

"THE LOOK FOR FALL IS HERE"

big bottoms

by COVER GIRL SHOES

For your dressy and baggy fashions, Cover Girl's Big Bottoms are for you. Drop in today.

● BROWN ● BLACK
$18.99

● BLACK ● NAVY
$18.99

ALL TYPES
BLOOD DONORS NEEDED
CASH
KNOXVILLE BLOOD CENTER
Evening Hours by Appointment
520 Western Phone 523-4156

BLOOD. NO SWEAT. NO TEARS.

$10 per donation
Plasma (twice a week)
Or Whole Blood (every 8 weeks)
8 A.M. – 5 P.M.
Mon. – Sat.

blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-3171
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

Medical Arts Pharmacy
For all your medical Supplies of any kind
Next to Blount Memorial Hospital
— Store Hours —
8:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59., No. 16 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 15 February 1974

Dr. Willey Dies

Dr. Willey was born in Portland, Maine, November 13, 1897, the son of Carlton Bartlett and Helen Marr (Macdonald)Willey. He died on Tuesday, 12 February 1974 in the Blount Memorial Hospital.

He was graduated summa cum laude from Clark University and received the M.A. and Ph. D. from Columbia University. He held honorary degrees from Clark and the University of Maine Dr. Willey came to Maryville College in 1968 as Visiting Professor of Sociology and acting chairman of the Department of Sociology. From 1970 to 1972 he served as Academic Executive Officer of the college. In 1973 he was named Professor Emeritus of the college by the Board of Directors. After a serious illness during the past year, he returned to the college to again serve as acting chairman of the Department of Sociology.

Before coming to Maryville, Dr. Willey taught at Dartmouth College, Syracuse University, and the University of Minnesota. He was at the University of Minnesota from 1927 to 1963 where he served as Dean of the College of Sociology and later as academic vice president for more than 20 years.

From 1963 to 1968 Dr. Willey was an educational consultant for the Ford Foundation with the University of Calcutta Project and had assignments in Calcutta, Nepal, and India.

He is listed in Who's Who in America, International Who' Who, and American Men of Science. His professional memberships include American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Sociological Society, American Sociological Association, Newcomen Society, American Association of University Professors, Columbia University Club, and Cosmos Club.

He served on many committees and was a member of the Board of Directors of a number of schools and other organizations. These included: Calcutta School of Music; Walker Art Center in Minneapolis; Social Science Research Council; St. Mary's Hall in Fairbault, Minnesota; National Science Foundation; Calcutta YMCA; Associated Research Councils; and American Association of University Professors.

Dr. Malcolm MacDonald Willey

Dr. Willey wrote extensively in the fields of sociology, academic administration, and the whaling industry in New England. Besides numerous papers, articles, and research reports, he authored five books.

He was a member of St. Andrews Episcopal Church, Maryville and a former vestryman of that church.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Dolores T. Willey, he leaves four children: Mrs. Richard Henry Simpson (Christine), George, Dolores, and Anil Alexander. The family home is at 310 Broady Lane in Maryville.

There will be no funeral. Dr. Willey will be cremated, and a memorial service will be held at St. Andrews at a later date. Memorials can be made Malcolm Willey Fund at Maryville College.

Rohe to Speak

Coach Chuck Rohe

Wednesday, 20 February 1974, Coach Chuck Rohe will speak at our weekly CIV program. Rohe is presently serving as Administrative Assistant responsible for recruiting for Virginia Tech.

In 1953, Rohe graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi with a BS in Health and Physical Education and with a Masters Degree in Administration the following year.

He is a Magna Cum Laude graduate and has been included in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Rohe has played varsity football and has run track at Lawrence College and the University of Southern Mississippi. His coaching experiences have included an assistanship for the track and football team at the University of Southern Mississippi, head coach at Hattisburg High School, Hattisburg, Miss., assistant to the Athletic Director at the University of Southern Mississippi, head track coach and defensive backfield coach at Furman University, Greenville, South Carolina, and head track and cross country coach and Director of Football Recruiting at the University of Tennessee.

Rohe has been awarded many professional honors and affiliations, the most recurrent being Coach of the Year for the Southeastern Region for the seventh time.

Rohe will speak on The Olympics—Pro and Con.

Elia SEIWA Coach of the Year

Maryville College wrestling coach Don Elia has been named Wrestling Coach of the Year by the Southeastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association.

The award is made by vote of all coaches and officials in the Southeastern area which includes 8 states.

It is the first time the award has gone to someone other than a Southeast Conference school coach, the first time it has gone to a college division coach. Last year's winner was the well-known author and wrestling coach Arnold "Swede" Umbach of Auburn University.

During a press conference at Auburn, Coach Elia told reporters, "I am pleased and proud to accept this award. It is the kind of thing I've always dreamed about, but never really thought I'd have a chance at. My first thoughts are to share this honor with the boys on the team. It was their efforts that made it possible for me to be considered."

a few special words

This plaque will be on display during the remainder of wrestling season in the hope that in some small way I can share it with the people who made it possible.

First I'd like to share it with each and every member of the wrestling team. It was their efforts and talents that permitted me to be considered.

I'd also like to share this with the students of Maryville College. Your enthusiasm and support have been greatly appreciated by the whole team, and you have made our efforts well worthwhile.

To all of you my most heartfelt thanks.

Coach Don Elia

Dean Don Elia, Coach of the Year

Freshman Women Organize Honor Society

The Freshman Women's Honor Society under Dean Massey and Dr. Fowler has been organized at M.C. In two years this society will be eligible for membership in Alpha Lamda Delta.

The twelve members all had to have a 3.5 average to join. Officers are Sheri Bone-President, Vicki Parsons-Vice-President, Mary Gundlach-Secretary, Nancy Shamblin-Treasurer, Cindy Murane-Historian, Kit Williamson-news editor.

Other members are Ellen Bercovitz, Olivia Myers, Jane Peeples, Pam Shelton, Lisa Wilson, and Arlene Ignico.

The girls are trying to set up a tutoring service, a program working with the Girls' Club, and corresponding with the old people around here.

Comparative College Development Program

The Comparative College Development Program, a group of about 44 schools, including Maryville College, will hold a seminar her February 26-28. Deferred giving to colleges, including wills, trusts, and bequests, will be the subject of the three-day seminar. In addition, representatives of the various colleges will be touring the Maryville campus, and may ask students for assistance. Students are asked to be "their friendly selves."

"Charity" On Stage

Last night Sweet Charity, the musical comedy about a New York dance hall girl, was performed for the first time by the Speech-Theatre Department. Tonight and tomorrow night (15 and 16 February) will mark the last two performances, both at 8:15 p.m. in the College Theatre. Tickets will be on sale at the door—$2.00 Adults; $1.00 Students.

An Open Letter to Mr. Anderson

One year later and what? I now have alot of added insight into the MC machine; I have a new stomach disorder; I have fewer friends in the Administration; I have found the real people of this community; I have stumbled on alot of phonies and fakes and plain petty people; I have been accused of yellow journalism; I have been called a liar; I have been a friend to those who needed something from either my newspaper or me; I have been accused of generating campus controversies; I have been called a male chauvinist; and I have been the subject matter for many hours of petty conversation by all of you. What does all this prove? Not a damn thing!

But what I do intend to say is that the people of this learning community have forced me to stand up and speak my mind. Every week that an editorial appears, a ton of criticism falls down on the shoulders of the Echo because of the negative approach used. This is not a justification, but this is the only approach appropriate to many dark and mysterious corners on this campus. At present, the Echo is a totally free student voice. Although the criticism is a necessary element of maintaining this freedom, many persons on this campus have evenhad the audacity to discuss the disarmament of this freedom through changing my letter policy.

The letter policy of printing "unsigned insinuations" may be a one sided freedom, but would not the vindictiveness of the college community also constitute a one-sided mass freedom. This policy of not disclosing the authorship is also a means of protecting one's position on campus—and believe me, it has been used most effectively in the past year by all of this community. Never has the Echo printed an unsigned letter which would be outwardly harmful to an individual, and I hope it never will! Criticism is as necessary to the growing and learning in an educational atmosphere as the hurt which makes us question the true meaning of our experiences. This hurt may very well be the truth hurting one's own ground, and not a means of destroying anything anytime.

I accept all this criticism every week thru the back door. Very seldom does anyone criticize me or the Echo to my face. As is with human nature, the people of MC—whether they are students or a few choice persons in Thaw and Anderson—have an uncanny sense of success in this game of back-stabbing. Possibly this is also a characteristic of small Christians on a small Christian college campus.

Another point of criticism which the Echo has been most religiously accused of is the sin of yellow journalism. It has been a point of this editorship to keep abreast of all campus controversies—whether it be the dilemma on alcohol, the coaching situation, or the fate of a campus government run by consensus. The Echo has kept in close step with the procedings of the All College Council during the past year. In keeping this step, we have unjustly been accused of being sensationalistic about the alcohol issue of 1973. But keeping in step has given me the opportunity to draw several conclusions about the well publicized ACC. One such conclusion is that this Council is not run by students, but rather by a few select persons who are said to give this government some resemblance of continuity. This is not a rash decision, but one which has been necessitated by long hours of observing, reviewing, and contemplating over this Council as a operational segment of the campus structure.

Maryville College has alot to offer an individual who will take on the responsibility of being responsible There are alot of good people around here and also some very good programs. I am saying thank you to these persons. But there are alot of small, yet very important and continuing ills in this college. There are alot of phonies and fakes and plain petty people around here who have caused much discomfort to me through their littleness as people. These folks were not my friends during this so-called "controversial editorship." And I simply do not have a use for phonies, fakes, and such small people in my world of big people.

I am a man and my integrity is extremely solid, Mr. Anderson!

the editor

Letters

A One Sided Freedom!

To the Editor:

My name is Dave Young. I start this letter this way because I have a lot of trouble with the Echo policy of printing letters without names. How, for example, can I talk with the writer of last weeks letter about MC II to communicate that my viewpoint is radically different from his or hers?

I'm not as anxious to convert that person to my point of view as I am to be able to say face to face that unsigned insinuations offer no prospect for healing or learning dialogue. Obviously the letter writer is upset. But being upset and not being able to do anything about it seems to me to be anathema to the spirit and purpose of being together at Maryville College. In my view, doing something about one's upsetness would be signing your name.

So because of an unsigned letter the MC II people have had to experience hurt in front of the whole community, whereas the one who inaugurated it remains hidden. This seems to me to be a one sided freedom. If people need to write unsigned letters, let them do so and send them to the persons involved rather than giving them public airing.

I would like to see the policy changed. That way we could move from hurting to healing and growing.

Shalom,
Dave Young

continued on page 4

from the editor's desk

Not All the Prisoners Are Home

by Graci Mastalli

(CPS) — At the end of 1973 an estimated 200,000 civilian prisoners were reported in South Vietnamese jails.

President Nguyen Van Thieu has been charged with jailing those South Vietnamese who have spoken out against government corruption or called for peace or neutrality.

The US Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Refugees has acknowledged the existence of "in excess of 20,000 political prisoners in South Vietnam.

Sens. Edward Kennedy (D-MA) and James Abourezk (D-SD) have documented that the US Agency for International Development's (AID) Public Safety Division had been the main channel through which Thieu's police and prisons is being continued as "technical support, public administration and public works.

Between 1967 and 1972 Congress appropriated $155 million for the South Vietnamese prison system. Largely as a result of this aid, the civilian police force grew from 19,000 in 1963 to 120,000 in 1973.

The Kennedy-Abourezk analysis showed a 40 per cent increase this year in aid to the Saigon regime's police and prisons. This funding of $15 to $20 million was in clear violation of the Paris Peace agreements according to the Senators.

Rep. Edward Roybal (D-CA) recently stated in the Congressional Record that the prison system was a "tool to repress South Vietnamese who held political views in disagreement with the Thieu regime."

Roybal claimed there were four different funds being utilized to circumvent the provisions of the peace agreement and "surreptitiously provide aid to the police and prison system in South Vietnam": (1) the Indochina post-war reconstruction assistance program, (2) the AID unliquidated obligations account, (3) the Department of Defense and (4) the American AID chapter of the South Vietnamese budget.

The Paris accords state: "All Vietnamese civilian personnel captured and detained in South Vietnam shall be treated humanely at all times, and in accordance with international practice. The detaining parties shall not deny or delay their return for any reason, including the fact that captured persons may, on any grounds, have been prosecuted or sentenced."

Officials of Thieu's government have reported that torture is a standard procedure during interrogation.

Trials have not been needed to imprison people under the "antri" (anti-trial) law. Persons have been imprisoned for two years without a trial—and without appeal; sentences have been renewed, according to sources.

More civilian arrests under the "antri" law have been reported daily. Those jailed include former presidential candidates, journalists, lawyers, students, Buddhists and Catholics, as well as infants and old people.

Beginning next week, the Echo will begin the publishing of trial issues by applicants for the editorship. Please feel free to offer your criticism and suggestions to me or the trial editor on a particular issue. Thank you.

The Echo Staff

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas
Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, D. Spradlin, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Photographer—T. Fox
Distribution—L. Catrett, G. Guba

MEMBER

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Worm Nears Production

Sharon Murphy, a senior speech-theatre major, will present a play, For the Love of a Worm as a special studies project Wednesday and Thursday, 20 and 21 February, at 8:15 p.m. in the studio theatre.

For the Love of a Worm is termed as "theatre by adults for children." A leading character is Jennifer, a very unselfish girl who is kind and helpful wherever possible: she even hides a worm in a apple to protect it. She wants to meet the Good Fairy, and with the help of an apple tree (which the Fairy created) she succeeds.

The characters, which all have original names, are being played as follows: Jennifer—Kathy Ramger, Ooie Gooie—Debbie Welsh, Slinky Stinky—Rob Kaniper, Aurora Bell—Marianne Harrison, Leafy Limb—Gil Nicholas, Dapple Apple—Mike Libby, the Good Fairy—Micky Shafer.

"The Worm", Miss D. Welch

The assistant director is Danny Whiteside, who has composed original music to be a part of the program. In addition, Dew Joyce will make a cameo appearance.

Sewer Stirs Opinion

Opinions on the sewer project in the college woods have been varied and often strong. Dr. Shields of the Biology department feels that the project was a tragedy that could not have been avoided because of eminent domain. He mentioned that an irreplaceable colony of white violets had been destroyed by the construction, and that an environmental education center was the only development he saw taking place in the woods in the immediate future. He hopes to start tree planting projects after the work is done.

Jeff Trimble wonders why a "better way" couldn't have been found, and Mike Minnix feels that the project is a good example of the ACC not being included in major decisions affecting MC. Jud Stone, who did his special studies in the area, said that he had no strong opinion one way or the other on the project. He feels that the land can eventually be reclaimed, but also feels that the damage done has been extensive. He mentioned that trees in the area had been destroyed as a result of blasting.

Tom Taylor of MC II said that he is morally opposed to the project, but recognizes that eminent domain made it inevitable. He said that no plants native to the area had been destroyed, but pointed out that damage had been done up to 20 yards beyond the easement given to the city by the contract. He feels that any reclamation of the area will have to come from the campus because the contractor and city will not do it. This effort will be difficult in his opinion because most of the topsoil in the area is gone, and the blasting of the contractor had brought to the surface many rocks. He mentioned that the project had come up over a year ago, and raising the issue now was like "closing the barn door after the horse is gone." He also mentioned that students from MC II will be working in the amphitheatre this Friday starting at 1:00 PM to repair some of the damage caused by motorcycles in that area. Anyone wishing to help is welcome.

Israel Night

"Israel" is the subject of the next International Night sponsored by the World Concern Committee. Rabbi Noah Golinkin, who has recently returned from a visit to Israel will show slides and talk in the Audio-Visual Room of the Library on Thursday, February 21 at 6:30 p.m. Some of the music of that new nation will also be shared.

Rabbi Golinkin has been Rabbi of Heska Amuna Congregation in Knoxville, Tennessee since 1970. Prior to that time he was director of the Board of Jewish Education of Greater Washington. While in Washington, he was president of the Washington Board of Rabbis, Regional Co-Chairman of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Regional Co-Chairman of Fair Housing, and Co-Chairman of two large inter-church seminars on the Middle East. He is an author of several Hebrew textbooks and of books of creative prayer. He and his wife (wife will also come to the International Night) have been to Israel four times, their most recent trip being in December, 1973.

Rabbi Golinkin

Pi Kappa Delta

Pi Kappa Delta is a national honor Faternity for intercollegiate debaters, competitive individual speakers, non-classroom speakers, and anyone who teaches oral communication. Presently MC. has four members: Blair Beasley, Mary Kay Sanders, Shabaz Ahmen, and Michael Johnson. M.C. also has 2 prospective members: Jelyn Rabin and Janice West.

Scots Bow to Centre

Last Wednesday night, Maryville's basketball team lost their only game of the week as they bowed to Centre College in a heartbreaker, 73-72, at Maryville. It brought the Scots' season record to 5-15 with six games remaining on the schedule.

It was hard to believe the Scots had lost the game for those who were there that night. Maryville carried a rather commanding 42-27 lead at half-time after superb play in the first half that allowed the Scots to control the flow of action. However, the second half was a totally different story as the Maryville shooting went cold, while Centre was making up the difference on better shooting accuracy. The Colonels closed the gap to five with about five minutes left. They kept right on going from there, and with 20 seconds remaining, went ahead 71-70. Maryville came right back to take a 72-71 lead with 12 seconds remaining on a basket by Kenny Talbott, but Centre came right back to provide the winning basket with five seconds remaining on a layup by Art Williams. The Scots immediatly called timeout to set up a last shot, but were unsuccessful. It was probably the most dissapointing moment of the season as it had earlier appeared that the Scots had sewn up victory number six.

Talbott was Maryville's leading scorer as he poured in 22 points. Other Scots hitting for double figures were Randy Lambert (13), Bruce Guillaume (12), and Mike Morton (10).

Last night, the Scots were scheduled to play at Lincoln Memorial University. Tomorrow night, they will be home against Sewanee College with an 8:00 start. Tuesday night, they travel to Chatanooga to play Covenant College, and next week-end, they will be in Jackson, Mississippi for the Millsaps College Tournament.

Scots Finish 5th in SEIWA

Don Elia was named Coach of the Year in the SEIWA at the championship tournament over the weekend. Elia took this honor while his Scots finished fifth in the over-all competition and won five medals.

The coaching award is annually voted by all the coaches and officials at the tourney. Elia shares the honor this year with Bouque Champion, Auburn's coach.

Two Scots won second place medals. John Poore, a senior form Plainfield, N.J. placed second in 126 action. Co-captain Doug Cunningham, also a senior, of Nutley, N.J., took similar honors at 142.

Three other Scots placed in the consulation matches. Paul Naylor; 134-pounder from Flemington, N.J., Brad Kehler; 167 grappler from Hackettstown, N.J., and Jim Batchler; 190-pounder of Amelia, Ohio each won fourth place.

Two freshmen also had good bids for medals. Tom Biamon and John Lebbad both lost on overtime decisions, needing only one victory for a medal.

Wednesday night the Scots entertained Georgetown College. Their final home match is tomorrow night at 6:15 against powerful Appalachian State, Boone, N.C.

P-S Tourney Coming

The District III, Region II, Tennessee Interscholastic: Athletic Association Basketball Tournament will be held at Maryville College on the nights of February 21, 22, 25, and 26, and March 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, and 7. Price of admission to Maryville College students will be $1.50 with the exception of Wednesday, February 26. That night, students will be admitted on presentation of their I.D. cards. In addition to the high school games that night, the Scot-hoopsters will take on Bryan College in their season finale. The approximate time of the start of the game that night will be 7:30.

Vespers

Vespers will be held in the Little Chapel Sunday at 7:00 p.m. Bill Martin, a former student, will serve as the worship leader.

Intramural Roundup

After four weeks of play, only one team is left undefeated in the men's intramural league. The Sophomores hold the only perfect record, and have a one game lead over thest nearest team.

Results from last weeks games are the Colt 45's over the Hackers by a score of 44 to 38. Ty Limbaugh led all scorers with 17 points. In the second game, the Sledgehammers defeated the Big 8 by a score of 50 to 42. Tim Duer was top gunner for the "Hammers" with 22 points . The next game had the Sophomores and the Salty Dogs squaring-off and the "Sophs" winning by a score of 67 to 50. Tom Hines topped all scorers with 15 points. In the night cap, Darkhorses took home a big victory by defeating Southside 55 to 42. Paul Schultz poured 21 points through the bucket for the winners.

The Maryville College Bowling League is in the process of being formed. A meeting will be held Wednesday night to finalize all arrangements. A bowling clinic by Arky Vaughn will preceed the meeting. Friday, February 22, is the deadline date for team entries. A team consists of two men and two women. Bowling continues through the spring.

A chess tournament began last Tuesday. The 12 teams will go four round robins with the two best in each group playing in elimination singles.

In women's intramurals, Southside won the intramural basketball championship. The scoring of Libby Lowry boosted Southside to the number one position. The Aces, led by Nan Garner, came in second.

Badminton is next on the women's intramural agenda.

letters continued

Psychology Proposal

To the Editor:

In order to combat the rumors that have already reached me I would like to make public the proposal to the instructional program committee for a change in the options as a Psychology major.

This proposal was approved by both the instructional program and the A.C.C. and will apear in the 74-75 college catalogue.

I hope that the proposal intrigues and excites you as it did the IPC and the ACC. The department of Psychology hopes it opens new doors for Maryville Students and the Maryville community.

Sincerely,

Andy Klein

(Editor's note: Due to space limitations, the proposal is available through the Psychology Department or the Echo. Thank you!)

The Experience of MC II, it's real!

To the Editor:

The aims and purposes of the MC II living experience have lately come under perhaps rightful questioning. In our development of more valid and worthwhile outlook, we welcome the questioning, and most especially when it is open and honest. So in attempted answer. . . for we who comprise MC II the growth of our understanding of responsibility, sharing, and mutual respect are an integral part of the success of this experience. That is not to say that there is necessarily more of those qualities and their offshoots, caring, responsiveness, and learning here than anywhere else on campus; there is perhaps just more opportunity to develop and utilize those qualities. We've found that the well being of the group depends on the individual responsibilities of all ten. In a dorm situation, perhaps, that responsibility for other people is not as keenly felt, if only because physical survival is impossible without it. Housecleaning, cooking, breadbaking, & grocery shopping by all cements a bond, and slack on any part weakens the whole. The ecological aspect of our adopted life style is another part of our aim towards responsible living. The thermo stat is cut down, garbage is recycled to within our capabilities, and a minimum of lighting and electricity is used. That in no sense implies actual discomfort. Cut apart from artificial entertainment, we're relearning the fine art of enjoying people, and the result is a lot of relaxation, peace, and funny stories. The subtle intentions of MC II, this departure from the norm, were to stimulate other groups to do similar or other experiments/ experiences with their lives, minds, outlooks. The fact that the administration has let idea become reality speaks well of it and perhaps also of its attitudes and tolerances for new ideas. We're open always to interest, comment, criticism, ideas and questions to aid our growth, expand our sight and experience; and in return, we'd like to share our beliefs with you. Come by and try us.

MC II

MC Choir Plans Tour

The Maryville College Concert Choir's twenty-third annual spring tour, March 14-26, will include concerts in Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, and Canada.

The pre-tour concert and first concert of the tour will be in Tennessee. The pre-tour concert is scheduled for Sunday, March 10 in Loudon. The first regular tour concert will be at the First United Methodist Church, Cleveland, Tennessee, March 14.

The group will present three concerts in Pittsburgh, Saturday evening, Sunday morning and Sunday evening. The final concert of the tour will be in Maysville, Kentucky on Monday evening.

In addition to the regular evening concerts, the choir will present special programs in high schools each day.

Director of the choir is Dr. Harry H. Harter, professor and chairman of the Fine Arts Department.

LAUGH ALL THE WAY TO THE BLOOD BANK.

$10 per donation

Plasma (twice a week)

Or Whole Blood (every 8 weeks)

8 A.M. – 5 P.M.
Mon. – Sat.

blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-3171
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Medical Arts Pharmacy

For all your medical Supplies of any kind

Next to Blount Memorial Hospital

— Store Hours —
8:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m.

Support Your Local

Circle K Club

Give till it helps.

The American Red Cross. The Good Neighbor.

Bloodmobile to visit MC Campus

February 25
11-5 p.m.

P.E. Building

Par-t-Pub

— Across From Pizza Hut —

Delicatassen

Hoagies - $1.05 & Tax
Corned Beef - $1.10 & Tax
Reuben - $1.05 & Tax
Turkey - 79¢
Ham - $1.05
Roast Beef - $1.05
Pastrami - $1.05

— Choice of Cheese —

Party Supplies of All Kinds

Drive-in Window
Call-in Orders Welcome
982-4251

10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 17 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 22 February 1974

Assistant Coach Named

Ron Case, assistant football coach at Carson-Newman College, has been named new assistant football coach and head track coach at Maryville College.

Case was graduated cum laude from Carson-Newman, receiving the Bachelor of Science degree in physical education, health and recreation with the additional honor and award for "Outstanding Student in Physical Education."

He will receive the Master of Science degree from the University of Tennessee in June.

Case's coaching experience includes four years at Carson-Newman as varsity linebacker coach and junior varsity defensive coach; and two years as defensive coach then head coach with the United States Marine Corps at Parris Island, South Carolina.

His playing experience includes football, basketball and baseball at Jeffersonville High School in Indiana; and football with the United States Marine Corps at Parris Island, Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, and Camp Hague Royals, Okinawa. He was

Coach Ron Case

All Marine at Camp Lejeune and Most Valuable Lineman.

Head football coach Jim Jordan, who also came to Maryville from Carson-Newman, said of the appointment: "I feel we are a very fortunate football team to have a coach with Ron Case's experience and Christian commitment. He will be our defensive coordinator and handle recruiting in east Tennessee. His relationship with the area coaches will be a plus in getting Tennessee talent to Maryville College."

BLOODMOBILE

The Maryville College Circle K Club is sponsoring the third annual visit of the American Red Cross Bloodmobile to this campus on 25 February, 1974 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Health & Physical Education Building.

According to Circle K President Lyn Stanley, a goal of 150 units of blood has been set to mark visit of the Red Cross to Maryville. Last year, Circle K obtained some 120 units of blood from the MC community and would like very much to achieve their goal this year.

The entire process of donating blood normally takes a mere 30-40 minutes, and anyone who gives a pint of blood will receive a credit entitling the donor to his total blood needs without obligation to replace for a 12 month period from the date of donation.

As part of their "Challenge to Action," the MC Circle K Club urges every student, faculty and staff member to join in the help meet this challenge.

Circle K people will have a table set up during the dinner hours for anyone to sign the necessary pledge slips and will also have people circulating in all the dorms asking for your hand in helping others. Please help your Circle K Club meet this challenge.

More information maybe obtained from either Steve Douglas, Gwen Guba, Tom Fox, or Lyn Stanley.

Drinkall Appears in P.A.C.

by Christine D'Aquila

Roger Drinkall, internationally known cellist, will be performing, 23 February 1974, at 8:15 p.m. in the Music Hall, Artists Concerts here at MC.

Drinkall has performed 300 concerts in 21 countries on 4 different continents. This includes 5 European tours, one Central and South American tour, and an around-the world excursion. The United States State Department has sponsored portions of these tours.

As a highly seasoned artist of international recognition, Roger Drinkall has performed solo concertos, solo recitals, contemporary recitals, and many chamber music recitals as he was the former cellist of the highly touted Deane-Drinkall Duo. In addition to doing the standard literature for cello, Drinkall is also well-versed in contemporary music as he studied many pieces with composers such as Halsey Stevens, Luigi Dallapiccola, Edmund Rubbra, Ernst Krenek, Franz Reizenstein, and Ross Lee Finney.

Due to his many performing activities, Drinkall has maintained the position of Artist-in-Residence at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga since 1969, and has held the cello residency during the summers of the same time span at Eastern Music Festival in Greensboro, North Caroline.

Drinkall is an artist in every sense of the word. He truly enjoys performing for people and believes that the live performance of music is one of the greatest forms of communication. He promises any audience a concert of musical pleasure.

News Briefs

In Washington this week, there was increasing optimism that the Arab oil embargo against the United States would soon be lifted. After a meeting between Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the Foreign Ministers of Egypt and Syria, the Ministers said that the change in the "one sided" attitude of the United States toward Israel eliminated any justification for continuning the embargo. It will be at least two weeks before the embargo is formally lifted, and Nixon Administration energy chief William Simon cautioned that there will be a continuing crisis despite the lifting of the embargo.

In Watergate related developments, President Nixon's new defense counsel, James St. Clair announced that he has evidence which contradicts the testimony of experts that the 18 minute gap on one of the Watergate tapes could not have been accidental. The President was also scheduled to meet with Vice President Ford on how Watergate is going to affect Republican election chances this year. This meeting came about as a result of the surprise Democratic victory in Ford's old Congressional district, which has been controlled by Republicans since 1910. continued on page 4

Vespers

Vespers will be held Sunday in the Little Chapel at 7:00 p.m. Sue Sterling will be the worship leader and the theme will be "Fuzzies."

ACC Meets

by Wiley Rutledge

At the ACC meeting on February 13, the first order of business was the departure of Chaplain Harrison. He will be leaving to take a new appointment at the first of next month. Dr. Copeland asked for a program to assume the direction of activities which the Chaplain was in charge of. Prominent in these were Easter weekend and the Walk for Development in May. Dr. Joseph Sittler of the University of Chicago Divinity School will be here for Easter weekend.

The question of the sewer project in the College Woods was raised, and Dr. Copeland explained the general terms of the agreement. He responded to criticism of the disruption by pointing out that the city has the right of eminent domain and that the College will be compensated for damages.

It was also suggested that students who will face high expenses getting to school due to the energy shortage could explore the possibility of chartering a bus.

Kohn, Adams Presents Recital

On Tuesday night, February 26 at 7:00 p.m., Misses Nancy Adams of Ashland, Kentucky and Melanie Kohn of Columbia, South Carolina will present a program of piano music.

Adams and Kohn will combine their talents in two duets, Bach's Two Piano Concerto and Rachmaninoff's Fantasie for Two Pianos.

Individual performances will include Mendelssohn's Variation's Serieuses, played by Miss Adams, and four pieces by Prokofiev, played by Miss Kohn.

Lear

Having performed Sweet Charity and For the Love of a Worm, the Speech-Theatre is preparing still another play for performance this Winter Term: Lear, a contemporary play by Edward Bond. It is based on William Shakespeare's King Lear. Professor Thomas E. Jones is rehearsing the twenty-five member cast for the March 7-9 performances, two weeks away.

The Lear cast.

from the editors' desks

Land of the Free?

Amendment IV

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonalbe searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particulary describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

On December, 12, a six to three vote was pronounced by the Supreme Court allowing law enforcement officials to search individuals arrested for any purpose. Futhermore, any incriminating evidence is admissible to a court, whether it relates to the orginal arrest or not.

Four Nixon appointees to the court, Rehnquist, Powell, Burger, and Blackmun, along with Justices Stewart and White, conceived the majority decision. It is interesting to note that the Nixon appointees in 66 cases heard last year, voted as a block in 54 of them. Probably the most damaging effect upon the individual, by this administration will be dealt through Nixon's appointed court.

This decision clearly empowers any policeman to search a suspect he has in custody for incriminating evidence, even if the offense could have been passed off with a traffic citation.

Once an individual is placed in "lawful custodial custody" officials do not need to justify searching pockets, trousers, jackets, or even socks. Placed under custodial custody an individual must be placed under arrest rather than given a ticket. This will, of course, slacken the policeman's fear for his own safety, but it will definitely infringe on the right of the individual, because the Fourth Amendment bars "unlawful search and seizure."

Justice Marshall, one of the three dissenters in his opinion stated that the ruling," raised the possibility that a police officer, lacking probable cause to obtain a search warrant will use a traffic arrest as a pretext to conduct a search."

Does this new ruling signify the coming era of a police state?

Scott K. Poland

And the Convicted!

The issue of Capital Punishment will soon be again in the news. This everlasting thorn in the side of the American public will no doubt soon emerge from the rubbish of Watergate, energy crisis, and the other disgusting incidents which so characterize our present administration. Since June of 1972, when the Supreme Court struck down the death penalty, at least 20 state legislatures have approved measures to reinstate the death penalty.

It seems that once again the burdens of these new legislations will be aimed at Blacks and other minorities. So far, of the 29 persons sentenced to death under the new state laws 22 are Black.

These new laws are often times more barbaric than the ones struck down. In Connecticut the death penalty has been extended to the illegal sales of cocaine and heroin to someone who dies from using it. In Oklahoma, a bill which would have allowed television coverage of executions was narrowly defeated.

Without a doubt the most non-progressive proposal yet was originally put forth by the White House. The bill under consideration calls for a mandatory death sentence of any person convicted of treason, assissination, sabotage, espionage, kidnapping and skyjacking resulting in death. It is the use of the word mandatory which is the most frightening. Granted, this would be a totally indiscriminate use of the death penalty, but this bill would allow absolutely no extenuating circumstances.

It is doubtful, however that any of those convicted under the new laws will be executed until they are decided on by the Supreme Court. Let us hope that the Supreme Court will do away with these reactionary methods once and for all. However, since the decision to do away with capital punishment, only won by a 5-4 vote in June of 1972, there is a chance that it could swing the other way. Since the Nixon appointees already formulate a four man block vote, another Nixon appointment would most definitely pose a distinct possibility to the restoration of the death penalty.

Skellie Morris

Recipe

Here's a new recipe for all you cheese lovers. It's not yet on the market, but you might like to try it out for a late night snack. Try it, it's high in protein.

1) 1 cup or 8 oz. of mild cheese softened at room temperature (mild cheddar, Edam, Swiss, Gouda, or Colby)
2) 3/4 cup powdered sugar
3) 5 tbsp. nonfat dry milk
4) 1/4 cup butter or solid shortening, melted
5) 2 tablespoons cocoa
6) mix well in blender
7) refrigerate until firm

The Echo Staff

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr. Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, D. Spradlin, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler Distribution—L. Catrett
Photographer—T. Fox G. Guba

MEMBER

Trial Editors: Skellie Morris & Scott Poland

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Letters

Charity Praised

To the Editor:

If one dines out and the meal yields unexpected delight because of the efforts of the chef one compliments the chef for his culinary skill. Last night (Thursday, 2/14) I experienced a play of unexpected quality and delight and thus I would like to compliment the Director, Mr. Blair Beasley, Jr. I thoroughly enjoyed the performance and thought it most professional.

Unlike a single dish at a fine restaurant, a play is the result of the efforts of many people. Dan Stallings and his pit orchestra were a fine addition well worth the hours and hours of rehearsal. Belinda Chiddie was superb in a most trying role. Roberta Austin, David Hunter and all the cast gave very outstanding performances that I felt made a Valentines' Day evening most enjoyable.

Thank you,
Sincerely,

Andy Klein

MC II, it's relevance!

To the Editor:

MC II is an experiment in caring—the kind of caring we must have in order to embrace lifestyles which demonstrate an awareness of the earth and take into account our relationship to it—the kind of caring we will need when such luxuries as the one-family house are in our past.

In his recent book, The Cosmic Connection, Carl Sagan says,

We should be encouraging social, economic, and political experimentation on a massive scale in all countries. Instead, the opposite seems to be occurring. In countries such as the United States and the Soviet Union the official policy is to discourage significant experimentation, because it is, of course, unpopular with the majority. The practical consequence is vigorous popular disapproval of significant variation. Young urban idealists immersed in a drug culture, with dress styles considered bizarre by conventional standards, and with no prior knowledge of agriculture, are unlikely to succeed in stablishing utopian agricultural communities in the American Southwest - even without

continued on page 4

"OK pal, that's gonna cost ya!
Let's have your hunter's license!"

Who Gives a —!

Charity

by Howard M. Welsh

Sizeable audiences were on hand last weekend to witness three rousing performances of the popular Broadway musical Sweet Charity. Effective lighting, an impressive set, and delightfully "period" costumes joined forces with a talented cast and a virtuoso orchestra to produce one of the finest musicals produced on the Maryville College stage in recent years.

An overall superior production, Sweet Charity possessed merits too numerous to list. First to impress the playgoer were the fine executions rendered by several of the leading actors and actresses, and noteable among these was Robert Ponton's performance as Oscar. Mr. Ponton adeptly brought to life the retiring but intensely human young man whose fate it is to fall in love with Charity Hope Valentine. In a performance characterized by effective stage movement and excellent underplaying, Mr. Ponton's finest moment occured just after he has pushed Charity into the pond following the break-up of their engagement. Retreating from the stage in a whirl of confusion, Mr. Ponton exits having played this scene with astute timing and superb retraint.

Dominique Carr and Roberta Austin likewise delivered praiseworthy performances. As Helene and Nickie, Misses Carr and Austin displayed an exceptional ability for ensemble acting and were extremely convincing in their roles. Particularly enjoyable were their singing voices which blended together so beautifully and their deadpan remarks pulled off with such professional ease.

As Charity, Belinda Chiddie, carried the level of the show and was very entising in her role. While maintaining a high degree of consistency throughout the show, Miss Chiddie occassionally shone with one line remarks that heightened her portrayal of the loveable dance hall girl. To her credit goes the fine pacing of the show and its exceptional unity.

Of the smaller roles in the play, Kay Hurlbut and Terry Holley were particularly outstanding. Each are very fine comediennes and displayed remarkable timing in the delivery of their lines. Also noteworthy was Pat D'Alba as one of the dance hall girls. Although she said little, Miss D'Alba employed a variety of facial expressions and body movements that made her a luminary among the smaller character parts.

As already stated, Sweet Charity was an excellent production that displayed consistency from its start. The choreography by Cheryl Van Metre was imaginative and lively and further heightened by the fine vocalization brought about by Dr. Harry Harter. Fused together by the inspired direction of Mr. Blair Beasley, Sweet Charity was a memorable agglomeration of talent and frivolity that made for a most enjoyable evening.

Literary Issue

All material for a creative issue of the Echo is due by March 1 in Box 2321.

From the day you order any given magazine, it takes an average of 37 days for delivery of the first copy.

Everyday 160,000,000 Americans wake up with either halitosous, B.O., or atheletes foot.

The greatest number of operations ever performed on one patient was 410.

The record high jump for a flea is 7 inches.

A kangaroo cannot be led, but it can be guided by the tail.

Do you realize that just one days flow of the Amazon River would be sufficient to supply New York City with water for nine years.

It's said that every third child nationwide started out in an unplanned pregnancy.

The revolving door was invented Aug. 7, 1888, by Theophilus Van Kannel.

The mouth of the Statue of Liberty measures 3 ft. in width.

Perceptions of an Exotic Eye

. . . In The Land Of Uncle Sam

by Shahbaz Ahmed

I remember it fairly well, it was a warm sunny day, just as usual, with a clear blue sky, in the cosmopolitan city of Karachi, Pakistan, on March 17, 1972, when I was packing up to fly from Karachi International Airport, 'to discover America.'

I was leaving for a country about which I knew very little. Shaken by the alternate uprisings of curiosity and suspense, I was having, in my mind, quick re-plays of some of the Hollywood movies that I had seen lately. At one moment, the flashback of John Wayne gunning down a cowboy in front of dozens of people chilled my bones, and at next the recollection of a movie on modern Los Angeles police saving the life of a helpless innocent girl gave me a slight sense of security.

Just as you check your car-engine, breaks, gas, tires and lights before leaving for a long trip, I was busy testing my English. One of the methods that I acquired for this purpose was that I tuned in the radio to BBC and listened to what is called the "running commentary" on a Cricket match that was being played in England. The commentary came to me just like the Arab oil to the U.S.— nice and easy in the beginning and becoming more and more difficult later on.

I guess it was quite natural for me to consistently think, at that time, what the United States would look like. As a result of a prolonged Brown Study, the inference that I came up with was that the U.S. was a nation that comprised of 'sophisticated', clean-shaven, well-groomed, well-dressed people who wore shiny boots, stiff collars around red necks, who had a lot of money, drove huge cars, who talked very little, smoked an awful lot and always stared at each other as if they were ready for a gunfight.

I perceived the American women as those who always curled up their hair, used ligstick, nail-polish, perfumes, and things of this sort more than abundantly, who wore only neat skirts and blouses, who ate very little, talked an awful lot, smoked but just for fashion, always drank champagne, were crazy about sports cars and those married always argued with their husbands.

I really don't know why I had all these ideas that were later in my experiences proven to be wrong to a considerable extent and I also don't know why they keep sending abroad movies that do not portray real contemporary America.

My first week here brought me nothing but surprises. I continue recalling involuntarily all that I experienced in the beginning. I was assigned a room-mate who had long hair, shaved only when he heard a good news (which wasn't too often) and perferred to keep the room in a condition that in every way resembled a disaster area. My presuppositions shattered one after another. And it wasn't just my room-mate who surprised me, on a Saturday night I saw another fellow, apparently lean and frail, he was bumping into the walls and doors like a rhinoceros. I was told he was high. For the first time I saw Dutch Courage (courage intoxicated by liquor) in action.

I remember another night—there was nothing new about the scenario of the dorm, except for an unusual number of empty cans spread here and there. I had just about settled down in my room when I heard noises. I came out and saw to my great amazement that some people (grown-ups of course) had spread baby-powder all over the floor in the hall. That instant I figured why its commercial on TV said that the powder was 'for the little bit of baby in everyone one of us'.

It all started less than two years ago. The above are only a few of the innumerable shocking experiences that I have had so far and that I am having continually. I cannot describe them all, for then readers, I fear, the length of this article will exceed that of The Arabian Nights. But for those who have had the remarkable patience of reading this far, I must mention that I have found new meanings in the old adage, "Distant fields look green."

Beta Inducts

The Eta Phi Chapter of Beta Beta Beta initiated nine new members in a formal initiation ceremony held February 13, 1974 in Sutton Science Center. Beta Beta Beta is an honor society for students of the biological sciences. The new members include Mike Ehasz, Helene Hanchett, John Law, Melinda Lucas, Sheila Moore, Harry Riley, John Savitski, Randy Schaurer and Mike Wenkstern.

Guillaume top scorer

by Fred Strohl

Compared to their humiliating loss in Sewanee, Tennessee two weeks earlier, Maryville's basketball team played quite well last Saturday night, but bowed eventually to the Tigers, 58-56, in the second half of a wrestling/basketball doubleheader at Maryville. Last Thursday, the Scots lost to L.M.U. 104-96.

Saturday's game saw the Scots hold the lead throughout the first half, but Sewanee stayed close on their heels, and with some accurate shooting in the closing minutes of the first half, Maryville was holding on to a 33-30 lead at halftime, The same situation existed in the second half, but with about three minutes to go in the game, Sewanee grabbed the lead for good. Randy Lambert, Randy Schaurer, and Bruce Guillaume scored key baskets in the last minute for Maryville, but Sewanee's Charlie Little put the game on ice for the Tigers with a basket with ten seconds remaining on the clock.

Bruce Guillaume was the Scots' leading scorer with 15, while Kenny Talbott contributed 13.

Thursday night's game at L.M.U. saw an overabundance of offense and an underabundance of defense by both teams. Talbott scored an individual season high with 32, while Lambert had 22.

Going into this week's action with a 5-17 record, Maryville played in Chattanooga against Covenant College on Tuesday night. They will participate in the Millsaps College Tournament in Jackson, Mississippi tonight and tomorrow, and will finish out the season on Tuesday night in a home game against Bryan. Game time will be 7:30.

Matmen Loose Home Finale

Saturday night the Scots wrestling force entertained a powerful team from Appalachian State. The Scots dropped this, their last home match of the year, 24-12.

Three Scots won victories against the invading squad. In addition to these, several other close bouts made for excellent wrestling action.

Freshman heavyweight Bob VonMitch pinned his man late in the final period for MC's only fall. John Poore (126) battled for a last second escape to claim a win 4-3. In 142, Doug Cunningham dropped his advesary 12-10.

This was Maryville's final home event, but one other date remains on the agenda. Tomorrow the Scots will be in Lexington, Kentucky to meet Washington and Lee and N.C. State.

Ecology Awarness Series

Once again this Monday the Library will present a program on Ecology Awareness; this one will feature movies by Bill Swenson, Assistant Professor of Art. The program will be shown twice in the Library Audio-Visual Room: once at 4:00 p.m., and again at 7:00 p.m.

letters continued

local harassment. Yet such experimental communities throughout the world have been subjected to hostility and violence by their more conventional neighbors. In some cases the vigilantes are enraged because they themselves have only within the previous generation been accepted into the conventional system.

We should not be surprised, then, if experimental communities fail. Only a small fraction of mutations succeed. But the advantage social mutations have over biological mutations is that individuals learn; the participants in unsuccessful communal experiments are able to assess the reasons for failure and can participate in later experiments that attempt to avoid the causes of initial failure.

There should be not only popular approval for such experiments, but also official governmental support for them. Volunteers for such experiments in utopia-facing long odds for the benefit of society as a whole will, I hope, be thought of as men and women of exemplary courage. They are the cutting edge of the future. One day there will arise an experimental community that works much more efficiently than the polyglot, rubbery, hand-patched society we are living in. A viable alternative will then be before us.

MC II is a personal experiment. The questions to be answered are not scientific ones; hence there are no control groups, no meticulous manipulation of parameters. Its success or failure will be measured in the innermost thoughts and feelings of its participants.

Thanks, MC II for letting us take part. If, after the experiment, you have hope, then we will have hope.

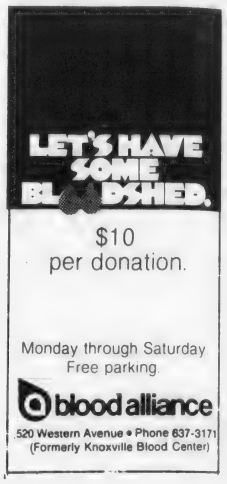
Nicky, Pam and Gale Rhodes

News Briefs

Publisher Randolph Hearts began his food distribution this week in an effort to satisfy the demands of the Symbianese Liberation Army, which has held his daughter Patricia for two weeks.

Britain will have a general election next week to test the support for Prime Minister Edward Heath's action as a result of the Coal Miner's strike. Heath has a slight lead over Labor Party leader Harold Wilson, but Enoch Powell, the leader of the Conservative Party's right wing, and its most powerful member aside from Heath himself, resigned from Parliament rather than campaign with the Prime Minister. Gains for Jeremy Thorpe's Liberal Party are almost certain, and if Heath loses, it is likely that Powell will become the new Tory leader.

Receptions for Departing Chaplain



There will two receptions for the Rev. Richard Harrison and his family in appreciation of their services both to the college and the church. The first will be at New Providence Church Sunday at 4:00 p.m. The second will be sponsored by the three Religious Life Committees of the ACC and will take place in the FAC Lounge on Sunday at 8:00 p.m. The faculty and student body are invited to both. Rev. Harrison and his family will be leaving MC on Thursday, March 28 to accept the position of Director of Christian Nurture at the Presbyterian Home for Children in Farmington, Missouri.

CIV

The movie "A Raisin In The Sun" will be presented in CIV at 9:20 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. in the theatre, Wednesday, February 27. It is sponsored by the Black Student Association.

Notice

Forms for the Parents' Confidential Statement for 1974-75 are now available in the Financial Aid Office. Applications for work and for National Direct Student Loans for next year are not yet available, but these will be ready the week of March 11, just before spring break.

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Easy Curb Market

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

8:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.

Open All Holidays

BEVERAGES OF ALL TYPES

PICNIC SUPPLIES

715 East Broadway
Maryville

WIN A MOVIELAND HOLIDAY

BY PRODUCING YOUR OWN HAPPY POSTER

BY MARCH 8, 1974

Entry Blanks and Official Rules Available At:

BASKINS - ROBBINS

Midland Center
Alcoa

Par-t-Pub

— Across From Pizza Hut —

Delicatassen

Hoagies - $1.05 & Tax
Corned Beef - $1.10 & Tax
Reuben - $1.05 & Tax
Turkey - 79¢
Ham - $1.05
Roast Beef - $1.05
Pastrami - $1.05

— Choice of Cheese —

Party Supplies of All Kinds

Drive-in Window
Call-in Orders Welcome
982-4251

10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Echo interviews Boroviak

Evaluation of MC's Athletic Program

The overall evaluation of Maryville College's athletic program was the subject of an Echo interview earlier this week with Dr. Larry Boroviak, Chairman of the Department of Health and Physical Education.

First wishing to stop a current rumor concerning the construction of a new football stadium sponsored by money from a large industry, Boroviak stated to his knowledge no such constructions are planned in the near future. Asked if he felt Maryville College needed a new stadium, Boroviak felt an evaluation of our present athletic program and the athletic programs of the various area schools was first needed, much like the present study under way between the college and the Maryville Parks Department concerning the possibility of laying a new track for use by Maryville College and area schools.

Commenting on another rumor, Dr. Boroviak said he had no knowledge of a prominent Maryville family offering money for athletic scholarships. A check with administrative assistant Raymond Brahams yielded the information that a $15,000.00 endowment fund had been established in the name of F.W. Proffitt, former Maryville College treasurer, the profits of which will be used for athletic grants. This scholarship fund will be supplemented from excess funds from the D.W. Proffitt gift to the school. These scholarships will be offered next fall for the first time.

Supplying a copy of the athletic department's 1973-74 budget, Boroviak noted this year's $52,000.00 budget was broken down as follows:

Football	$26,520.00
Basketball	8,840.00
Baseball	6,240.00
Wrestling	5,720.00
Track	2,600.00
Tennis	2,080.00

This compares with a 1963-64 athletic budget of $26,078.00 and a 1967-68 athletic budget of $34,381.00. Figures of Allocations for each sport for years prior to 1972-73 were unavailable.

Boroviak qualified the various sport's allocations reminding that each sport must pay for, among other expenses, maintenance costs. recruiting, supplies and equipment, trainer's salary, post game and pre-season meals, and officials and student help wages from their respective budgets. Boroviak stated wages payed for student help constituted one of the main expenditures of each sport's respective budget.

In response to a question raised as to whether the athletic department will become more self-sufficient, Boroviak cited Coach Jim Jordan's recent contacts with the Honaker Club to discuss this very subject. Boroviak stated that since his tenure, the Honaker Club had remained a low profile organization, but had recently expressed interest in helping support Maryville College athletics. He went further to commend Jordan's work in recruiting area athletes, another possible way of making athletics more self supportive due to increased spectator participation. He praised Coach Jordan's newly instituted 'Prospect Day', initiated in conjunction with the Adminssions office, which drew thirty area prospects to Maryville last Saturday with another fifty expected this Saturday.

Turning to intramurals, Dr. Boroviak exclaimed his pleasure at the growing intramural program. Figures supplied by Frank Layman of the Treasurer's office bear out the increased involvement and enthusiasm of the intramural program. In 1968, intramurals were alloted $1,695.00 of the professional program budget while in the 1973-74 budget the intramural program received $10,020.00 Layman attributes this 84% increase to the completion of the new gymnasium.

Boroviak ended the interview citing a need for a revamping of Maryville's extramural program, consisting of the three sanctioned sports clubs; the handball club, the soccer club, and the womens' basketball team. Presently, money to fund the clubs is taken from the intramural program budget, but increased participation by these clubs in intercollegiate sports will necessitate a further look into their future budgets. The future of womens' basketball will hinge on a meeting between Boroviak, Dean Blair, and Mr. McDade Thursday, Feb. 28 when aspects such as the program's value to the college will be discussed.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 18 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 1 March 1974

The "Lear" Cast

MC Playhouse Presents 'Lear'

The Maryville College Playhouse will present Edward Bond's Lear March 7-9 in the Maryville College Theatre. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

Bond, one of the important new writers in the contemporary English theatre, said in a recent interview, "I would like to rewrite Lear so that we now have to use the play for ourselves, for our society, for our time, for our problems. The astonishing thing about Lear is that he lived a very protective life, he's a king. Then he discovers himself without power and suddenly realizes the world isn't there for his benefit. He has to come to some sort of terms with the world he lives in. He's rather like a child growing up and learning to live. But the astonishing and disturbing thing is that you see him do it as an old man—behaving like a child, asking the childish questions, asking for the security of the child, and not finding it. Lear is protected in his court cradle until he is an old man, and suddenly he's born."

Thomas E. Jones, director of theatre at Maryville, is directing Lear. Assistant director for the production is Carl Swenson. Patricia Joyce designed the setting, and special music and sound effects were written by Danny Whiteside.

The large cast includes: Lear-Philip Gibson; Bodice-Nancy McCleary; Fontanelle-Barbara Strong; Warrington-David Wilson; The Gravedigger's Boy-Bert Crane; The Bravedigger's Boy's Wife-Ellen Bercovitz; Carpenter-Carl Swenson; and Susan-Patricia Damon.

Tickets are available at MC's Playhouse. General admission, $2, Students $1.

Marney Speaks

Dr. Carlyle Marney, theologian and author, will be the CIV speaker on Wednesday, March 6, 1974. Dr. Marney received the A.B. degree from Carson-Newman; Th.M. and Th.D. from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary; Lit.D. from Wake Forest; and D.D. from Johnson C. Smith University

Dr. Marney is a member of the Editorial Council of Theology Today; the National Advisory Commission on Rural Poverty; and of the Editoral Board of Religion In Life. He is also Vice-President-at-Large of the National Council of Churches and editor of Religious Book Club.

Dr. Marney will speak on As Fools Die: The Inescapable Morality of Politics."

Track Coach Named

James W. Hitch, retired nuclear engineer and former member of the Maryville College track team, will coach the M.C. track team this spring. Ron Case, recently hired as head track coach and assistant football coach, will not assume his duties in full this spring because of prior commitments to Carson-Newman College.

Mr. Hitch, a native of Maryville, holds a degree in mathematics and physics from M.C. where, as a member of the track team he ran the half-mile and occasionally the 440 or mile.

Renting Bus Spring Break

by Christine D'Aquila

Echo Staff Writer

At the last ACC meeting, the question of leaving the dorms open to accomodate those students who might not attempt to travel home due to the gas shortage and the increase in plane fares was raised. It was pointed out that leaving the dorms open would not be feesible.

In the first place, only one dorm would be able to be left open, which would mean moving people from their home dorms for a short ten days. Also, this would mean that dorm parents would be needed and it wouldn't be fair to them since it is also their spring vacation.

It was discussed that in years past students have gotten together and rented a bus for traveling to a similar location. This possibility was suggested to pursue for this year. This would be most probable for students from New Jersey and Florida.

The school would not be able to sponsor this proposal because of insurance

continued on page 4

Fencing Clinic

The Fencing Club of the University of Tennessee will hold a Fencing Clinic Monday, March 5, 7:30-9:00 p.m. in the Wrestling Room of the Physical Education Building.

All persons interested are invited to attend. Please bring ID

The Echo Staff

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr. Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, D. Spradlin, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler Distribution—L. Catrett
Photographer—T. Fox G. Guba

MEMBER

Trial Editor-Emerson D. Henderson

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

editorial

Administrative Expediency

by Emerson D. Henderson

In America's political system it is not very difficult to find examples of administrative government officials being quietly reassigned to lesser positions or dismissed on legal technicalities after publicly opposing administrative policy. For this reason, the administration is able to keep officials in line with its policy and keep things moving smoothly without having to answer to the voting public. Once the public has discovered what has happened, it is usually too late.

Of what significance is this sad situation in American politics to Maryville College? None! I would like to believe. But recent events have forced me to take another look at our own little administrative system and its policies.

Chaplain Dick Harrison is leaving after four years with the college. Rev. Harrison spent three-fourth's of his time on campus and the other one-fourth at New Providence Church. He turned down a full-time position at New Providence this fall in hopes of becoming a full-time chaplain. The college decided that it could not afford a full time chaplain. Recognizing this fact, Rev. Harrison offered to teach or recruit for the college as a means of justifying his full-time employment. When told that this was not possible, Rev. Harrison agreed to stay for the remainer of the year with his present salary. His terminal date was set for December 31.

Why did the administration turn down his offer? Is the financial reason offered enough to justify this administrative action? I do not believe so. One month ago, Maryville hired an administrative vice-president, Mr. Neil McDade. How can we hire another staff member, if we can't even afford to pay enough to keep the ones we have?

It is no secret that Rev. Harrison has publicly disagreed with administrators on important policies. It has been suggested by several people around campus that Chaplain Harrison's constant and vocal opposition is the reason he has been forced to leave. I ask the administration to come forward with a more believalbe reason for Rev. Harrison's leaving or we, the students, will be forced to accept "administrative expediency" as the reason for Rev. Harrison leaving. Administrative action contradicts the financial reason given. There must be more to it!

As for the students, we, just as the American voting public, have found out about an administrative decision too late to voice our opinions or offer suggestions. We found out about the college woods being destoryed by a sewage system too late. We found out about the use of our gym for three weeks for high school basketball tournaments too late, also. The All-College Council gives us the illusion that we are involved in these decisions. Whereas, in practice, we are only informed when it's too late.

Fellow students, we had better stop using the shotgun approach of shooting off our mouths with complaints about the way things are done here. Instead, we better start using the rifle approach of focusing. With the use of a telescopic scope we will be able to see exactly how things are run here at Maryville. Then! And only then, will we be able to actively participate in the decision making process at MC.

Ramger Presents Talks

Dr. Robert Ramger, associate professor of biology at Maryivlle College, presented a series of talks on the population problem to biology and sociology classes at Brainard High School in Chattanooga last week. Also last week he presented a program to Maryville Junior High School Ecology Club on "An Ecological Must-Recycling." and "The Cities of the Future."

These speaking engagements were a part of a guest lecture series the Science Division is making available to the high schools in the East Tennessee area.

letters to the echo

Why I'm Leaving — Harrison

To the Editor:

I appreciate this opportunity to communicate with members of the Maryville College community. By the time this letter is printed, I will have assumed my new duties as Director of Christian Nurture at the Presbyterian Home for Children in Farmington, Missouri. Because I have heard a rumor or two to the effect that I found a job I like better than the chaplaincy and left the college holding the bag, I want to clarify a few points.

Four years ago I became a three-fourth's time chaplain with the other one-fourth of my time being spent at New Providence Presbyterian Church as an assistant minister. I came into this new arrangement after having served at the church for four years previously. During the fall of this past year it became clear that the church would need to hire a full-time minister of education. When asked if I would consider this possibility, I indicated that I would prefer to move in the direction of becoming a full-time chaplain, as my major interest in ministry had become the students. Knowing that the college is having financial problems, I attempted to teach in the Philosophy-Religion Department as one way of justifying full-time. I tried every way I knew to remain on the staff here, including the suggestion that I might spend the one fourth time in recruitment. I even agreed to work for three-fourth's salary to finish the year since my wife had a job teaching kindergarten, but to no avail. It seemed that I must either have the dual job of church and chaplain or not be considered. My terminal date was set for December 31 but when I could not find another job it was extended to January 31 and then again to February 28.

I tried to discover a pastorate that would be a challenge and provide enough income for my family, but none materialized. When I was about ready to consider secular employment, a call came from Farmington, Missouri about a brand new position that was being established which needed some one with the experience and interest that I had. It was providential. I will be working with about 65 young people (average age 15) who have had problems in their family life. There are about 40 people on the staff which includes house parents, maintenance people and a farmer, as well as social workers, group therapy leaders, and counselors. My work will be primarily in creative worship and small group Christian education experiences, as well as a camping program in the summer. It is a brand new position with no tradition and as we discover things that work we hope to share them with the church at large.

My family & I will miss Maryville College very much but hope that somehow our relationship can continue. If the gas shortage allows, I would like to come back for commencement to see the seniors graduate who came the same year I did. I hope that some interim program can be worked out that can utilize the facilities of the home, but most of all, I hope that our friends will come to see us when they are in the St. Louis area. Our address is 507 West Maple, Farmington, Missouri 63640.

One final word. It looks like Dr. Frank McClelland and the religious life committees will attempt to finish the various projects which we began this year. I know that means that things are in good hands and I will be interested in reading about what happens in the Echo. In the fall, there will be, hopefully, a new chaplain on the campus. Whoever he or she may be, it is important that each of you give your support and help. My first year on the campus was rather difficult because so many upperclassmen hesitated to work with me. I had to begin with the freshmen who are now graduating. Don't let that happen with a new person.

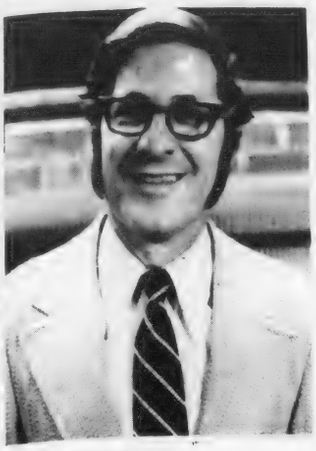
Although it was not my original desire to leave the college, now that the door has been opened to enter upon a new phase of my ministry, I am really very happy. The new work will present a challenge and an opportunity. Pray for me and I will pray for you.

Most sincerely,

Dick Harrison

MC II: What about us?

To the Editor:



Our initial response of anger towards the MC II project has grown and become irritated with the letters that have recently been published in the Echo. Our anger is not directed towards the people participating in MC II, but to the administration.

We think it is great that 10 people are allowed to live as they like, but how about the 700 other students on campus. Many of them are happy to live in the dorms and conform to that standard of living, but many are not.

How many people have requested off campus living? And of those people how many have been told if they cannot accept the standards of dorm living that maybe it would be best for them to "drop-out of school," suggestion made by administrators. And how many people are there that have not even asked because they know it is futile.

continued on page 4

Rev. Dick Harrison

Harrison Departs

by Charlie Craven
Echo Staff Writer

The Chaplain's office now stands vacant. The Rev. Richard L. Harrison, MC Chaplain for almost four years, left yesterday with his family for their new home in Farmington, Missouri, where he will become the director of Christian Nurture at the Presbyterian Home for Children.

Mr. Harrison came to Maryville in 1966 from Urbana, Illinois to be the associate pastor at New Providence Presbyterian Church. He was appointed chaplain of Maryville College in 1971 to replace the retiring Dr. E. Fay Campbell.

During his stay at Maryville, Mr. Harrison was especially interested in service projects. Under his direction the World Concern Committee and Circle K brought the first Red Cross Bloodmobile to Maryville College two years ago. He also organized International Night, to give MC people a chance to know more about life in foreign countries.

Mr. Harrison also worked to revive the Fred Hope Fund and organize the first Blount County Walk for Development to raise money for community projects, such as buying a van for the Girls' Club, and for hunger programs in such foreign countries as Thailand and Mexico. He has also worked with Scouts, tutoring programs, and other projects at Parkside, an underprivileged area.

Mr. Harrison has co-ordinated February Meetings for the past four years. He set up the faculty-student seminars in their present form, planned and arranged the faculty-student suppers, and brought to the campus such speakers as John Fry.

Mr. Harrison was also active at New Providence Presbyterian Church, where as assistant minister he pioneered new forms of worship which led to the present 9:00 a.m. Contemporary Worship service.

Band Concert

Tomorrow evening Maryville's Concert Band will present a concert at 8:15 p.m. in the Chapel. Under the direction of conductor Dan B. Stallings, the band will perform pieces such as Tocatta, Chester, Elsa's Procession to the Chatedral, and Diverminto for Band. This concert is a CIV program.

The Future Is As Close As Tomorrow

by Janice Foxworthy

Conceived as an idea expressed by the goals of the Project on Futuristics, Synergar II began in January 1974. Based on the philosophy that the total effect of individuals working together has a greater impact than the sum of the elements taken individually, Synergar II is a committment made by 20+ people to critically examine and reevaluate their values and priorities, and to become more aware of the potentials held by the future before it becomes the present.

Synergar II is an awareness-action-oriented group of people who are concerned about their own future. The group has sub-divided itself into smaller groups, each dealing with a different subject-matter. Some of the projects concern the academic life at Maryville College while others are oriented toward more generalized goals; but all are focused on future awareness. Among the issues of work/discussion are (1) planning a course entitled "A Seminar On Alternative Futures" (Philosophy 321, to be offered spring term) to define and study the types of institutions, scientific goals and philosophies that would enhance the future we would most like to create; (2) developing a videotaped presentation to be given in area high schools to stimulate an interest in future awareness, values and concerns; (3) compiling a "white paper" expressing the concerns of faculty and students regarding the status of core courses; (4) devising a means by which the campus would be better prepared for the CIV programs before attending; (5) proposing an alternative evaluation system to grading (rather than A,B,C, etc.); and (6) working to stop the development of the B 1 Bomber and creating a public awareness of military vs. human needs. In the midst of a culture in a continual state of flux, the permanency of past priorities and values becomes a meaningless entity. Yesterday's answers will not be adequate to solve today's problems or prevent tomorrow's crises.

Only by working together can we become, that is, only when synergism takes place. We must define what is important to us and what kind of lives we want to live in the future—work out a plan of action to accomplish these goals—and then just do it. To accept without questioning the future evolution of events without regard to personal values and priorities is to sacrifice our potential of becoming what we want to be and resigning ourselves to accepting what the society decides we shall be. The members of Synergar II welcome all interested individuals to join with them in discussing these issues. The future is as close as tomorrow.

Basketball Team Ends Season

The Maryville College Basketball team completed its 1973-74 season on a losing, but rather exciting note Tuesday night, as they bowed to Bryan College 92-84 in overtime. The loss put the Scots' season record at 5-21 as compared to last season's 4-22 worksheet.

The game, which saw the biggest home crowd of the season at Maryville due primarily to a high school tournament going on the same night, had the Scots control a tough Bryan team for most of the first half. At one point, Maryville had an 11 point lead. However, the Scots tired out, the Lions began swishing the nets, and the score was deadlocked at 40 come half-time. The second half saw action remain close to the point that the two were tied again at the end of regulation time, 74-74. Bryan overpowered Maryville in the extra five minute session and built up their eventual eight point margin. Randy Lambert lead the Scots in scoring with 23 points. Other Scots finishing in double figures were Randy Schaurer (14), Mike Morton (14), Kenny Talbott (17), and Bruce Guillaume (12).

Exactly one week earlier, the Scots were defeated by Covenant, 64-56, at Chattanooga, Tennessee. The Scots had a 31-27 half-time lead here, but could not hold it during the second half. Schaurer's 14 and Morton's 10 lead the Scots.

The Scots traveled to Jackson, Mississippi last weekend to participate in the Milsaps College Tournament. Maryville lost both games as they bowed to Milsaps, 95-70, Friday night, and fell to Eckerd (Fla.), 90-72, Saturday night. Lambert (19), Guillaume (18), and Schaurer (16) were Friday's leading scorers. The Scots trailed only by four, 41-37, at half-time. Schaurer's 17, Talbott's 12 and Lambert's 11 were top efforts in Saturday's contest.

Delores Ziegler

Ziegler In Opera Competition

Delores J. Ziegler, head resident of Davis Hall, is one of four young women from the Knoxville area who have been chosen to represent the Southeast Tennessee district of the Metropolitan Opera at semi-final and final competition Marcy 2-3 in Memphis. The local contest was held last week at the University of Tennessee Music Hall.

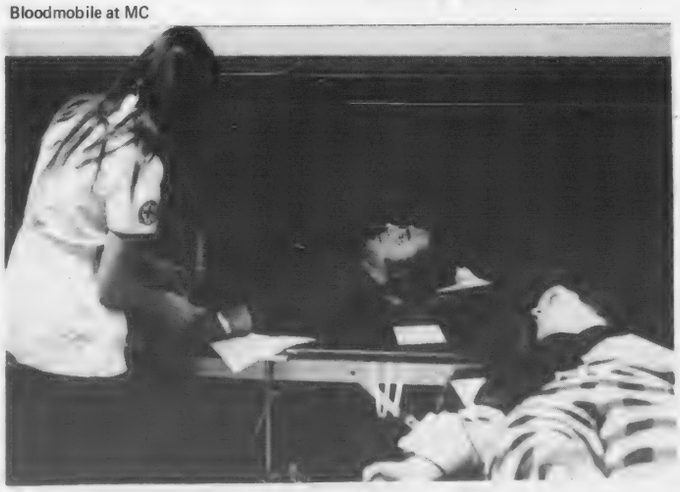
Mrs. Ziegler, a mezzo soprano and Maryville College graduate, studied with Dr. Dan Kinsinger. She is presently a soloist for First Presbyterian Church of Knoxville.

In the competition, Mrs. Ziegler sang selections from Bizet, Donizetti, Massenet, Ponchielli, and Gounod.

Mrs. Ziegler will compete in Memphis for a place in the New York finals on March 15.

Bloodmobile Falls Short of Goal

Snow flurries, cold weather, and poor response marked the third annual visit of the American Red Cross Bloodmobile to MC campus on Monday, 25 February 1974. Under the direction of MC's Circle K, the Bloodmobile collected just under one hundred units of blood.



The Asheville Chapter of the American Red Cross was happy with the modest turnout of the college community. Local Red Cross helpers, under the direction of Mrs. Betty Reeder, and Practical Nursing Trainees from Blount Memorial Hospital aided in the donation process.

According to Circle K President Lyn Stanley, this year's project fell short of it's goal of 150 units of blood due to many mild colds, monomucleosis, and apathy. Considering all the shortcoming of this year's project, the officer's wish to express their thanks to all who participated in the minimal success.

Circle K plans to keep this project on the books for next year, but they are seriously considering on moving the visit of the Red Cross to the early fall.

Circle K wishes again to thank the many people who responsed to their "Challenge to Action."

Bloodmobile at MC

letters continued

continued from page 2

The rational given for not allowing students to live off campus and taking responsibility for their own meals, is an economic one. It seems to us that MC II is putting an extra monetary burden on MC I by using another building on campus (Willard House) while their rooms are being reserved in the traditional dorms.

If an additional building can be opened for MC II, why couldn't Crawford House, Thaw Hall Apt., and Willard House be options for all? We are sure that the people living in these 3 houses last year had very close and meaningful relationships with each other and were happier there than in a dorm.

In conclusion, we strongly disagree with the statement in the letter from MC II: "The fact that the administration has let idea become reality speaks well of it and perhaps also of its attitudes and tolerances for new ideas." Maybe this is true for a very select group of people, but we don't feel it in their attitude towards us and many of our friends.

Sincerely,

Alan Furth
Debbie Mattson
Beverly Branham
Debbie Daniels
Frank

Academic Alterations

To the Editor:

We hope that everyone on this campus realizes how the academic requirements for graduation have been altered. Now it is possible to substitute up to three CIV credits for three courses. In our opinion, this not only makes an unequal substitution of three courses, but prolongs the morass of the CIV program.

Under this new structure, a student can be required to attend a class instead of CIV. The use of class attendance, as a punitive measure, against disruptive students is contrary to the principle of voluntary learning, which we believe to be the primary goal of CIV.

We propose the following objectives as a direct method of achieving this goal and maintaining the academic standards of Maryville College.

1. Do away with mandatory CIV attendance and require forty courses for graduation.
2. Cut the number of programs and increase the budget for CIV.
3. Encourage more student-initiated programs.
4. Provide a system of evaluation for the content of each CIV.

We want to know how the college community feels about our objectives. Stop and talk to us on campus or get in touch with us through our Post Office boxes.

Henry Hastings
Barbara Strong
and Synergar II

MC Students Tour Alcoa

Maryville College students affiliated with the American Chemical Society recently sponsored a tour of the ALCOA aluminum production facilities, chemical laboratories, computer facilities, and the "world's largest potline."

Maryville College faculty and student participants in the visit included: Dr. Gale Rhodes, Dr. Alton Tabereaux, Dr. Norman Love, Arthur Fowler, John Sortino, Paul Viggano, Warren Wilson, Pat Kerr, Monica Owens, Paul Kirk, Stuart Easter, Tom Orr, Mark Hall, and Linda Best.

Renting Bus

continued from page 1

problems. It would be up to the students to take the initiative to see if there is enough interest on campus to rent a bus and then it would be up to one person to make the arrangements with the bus company.

If any students are interested and care to seek more information, contact the Office of Student Personnel.

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

bank of maryville

Your Bank In Blount County

Nowtown • West Maryville • Alcoa • Airport • Broadway • Chilhowee

A FULL SERVICE BANK MEMBER F.D.I.C.

BLOOD. NO SWEAT. NO TEARS.

$10 per donation
Plasma (twice a week)
Or Whole Blood (every 8 weeks)
8 A.M. – 5 P.M.
Mon. – Sat.

blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-3171
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

Par-t-Pub
— Across From Pizza Hut —
Delicatassen
Hoagies - $1.05 & Tax
Corned Beef - $1.10 & Tax
Reuben - $1.05 & Tax
Turkey - 79¢
Ham - $1.05
Roast Beef - $1.05
Pastrami - $1.05
— Choice of Cheese —
Party Supplies of All Kinds
Drive-in Window
Call-in Orders Welcome
982-4251
10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Easy Curb Market
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
8:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.
Open All Holidays
BEVERAGES OF ALL TYPES
PICNIC SUPPLIES
715 East Broadway
Maryville

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 19 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | 8 March 1974

MC BRIEFS

Lear, the contemporary play by Edward Bond, will be presented for its second and third performances tonight and tomorrow night (Saturday) at 8:15 p.m. in the College Theatre. Admission is $1.00 for students and $2.00 for adults.

Beverly Branham and Louise McNair will lead Vespers this Sunday night at 7:00 p.m. in the Little Chapel.

Thursday Worship, March 14, will be held in the Little Chapel at 8:40 a.m.

STREAK tonight at 11 p.m.

Registration for classes is March 25.

Square Dance tonight!

Air Force ROTC to visit MC on March 12 in the Student Center.

Winter Term Ends next Thursday! Enjoy your vacation.

World Briefs

Oil embargo may end Sunday . . .

SLA still holds Patricia Hearst . . .

Air crash in Paris kills 346 persons . . .

Meir continues as Israeli head of state. . .

Seven indicted in Watergate investigation . . .

Heath resigns, Wilson seeks to end British economic crisis . . .

Nixon to visit Tennessee March 16, 1974.

North Vietnam releases remains of twelve P.O.W.'s . . .

Senator Joseph Montoya cooks chile for National Press Club. . . .

West German Chancellor Brandt faces key election . . .

Streakers streak state universities in Tennessee. . .

Kissinger escapes assassination in Syria. . .

Soviet missle development will soon pose threat to U.S. land-based missles. . .

Dr. Carl McIntire speaks daily on WKXB . . .

Knoxville Catholic captures tourney at MC . . .

Tennessee speed limits reduced to fifty-five . . .

Major League baseball opens spring training . . .

For the Love of a Worm tours Knoxville .

Quotables

by Khalil Gibran

Art is a step in the known toward the unknown.

The virtue of some of the rich is that they teach us to despise wealth.

Every nation is responsible for each act of its individuals.

My enemy said to me, "Love your enemy." And I obeyed him and loved myself.

I discovered the secret of the sea in meditation upon the dewdrop.

Education sows not seeds in you, but lets your seeds grow.

"Streakers" Streak

by Lyn Stanley
Editor

The recent collegiate fad which has streaked its way across this country has finally made it to Maryville College. MC male and female coeds have vowed by their recent efforts not to be outstripped by any other "streaking" contingent, and especially the University of Tennessee.

"Streaking" is the new fad to the collegiate world, from Stanford to North Carolina State, which consists of fast dashes across short stretches of ground by nude coeds. It is obvious that this new collegiate activity may very well be America's fastest growing sport because of the minimal equipment required—absolutely nothing!

MC, being its usually progressive self, has added a few unique touches to this new "streaking fad."

By Sunday evening, "streaking" had managed to gain a full head of steam for this campus. The dashing fad began for MC on Friday evening when two male coeds darted across the parking lot of Midland Shopping Center to an awaiting vehicle before dusk. Sunday evening, or rather early Monday morning, was highlighted by the appearance of two nude coeds driven about the campus loop in all the glory of a Homecoming Court.

But the males were not to be out done by this exhibition. Therefore, a group of young men were led through active pre-game calisthenics before a merry crowd of boosters. Sporadic other "streaking" incidents occured throughout the night to only be marked by exploding firecrackers and the shrilling screams of the oncharging "streakers."

Much to the disillusionment of the average, modest student, one freshman student casually cruised about the campus on Monday afternoon in the highest fashion of this new craze of the collegiate world. Another student made his tribute to this "streaking" craze by calmly skate-boarding down the sidewalk in front of Pearsons to only be held up by our trustworthy security force.

The pinnacle of this week's "streaking" craze was the blur of a lunging coed across the stage in mist of a CIV program. The crowd cheered the darting nude on as he entered, exited, and reentered with amazing quickness. Some persons became speechless and astounded by this "outrageous exhibition of a learning community," so stated one individual. By far, the CIV appearance of the "streaking" craze has highlighted MC's efforts not to be outstripped.

Comments on this new fad range and tilt the ends of any scale. One sophomore coed said that "streaking provides a chance for the males of this campus to prove their masculinity while the women prove their freedom."

Other students have simply remarked that this entire craze is "an absolute scream!" One upperclassman said quite excitedly that "this was the best study break he had ever had." He went on to remark "that a clean streak across campus sure beats a visit to Gilbert's any night."

continued on page 3

Choir Heads North

As the winter Term draws to a close, the Maryville College Concert Choir is drawing up the plans for its annual spring tour, when 43 of the 60 members will take a chartered bus tour of six states: Kentucky, Michigan, New York, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. They will spend one day in Canada. The choir will leave Thursday afternoon, March 14, and will return on Monday, March 25, after the final concert in Maysville, Kentucky.

Over the years the choir has gained an enviable reputation for itself among the nation's college choral groups. It has performed for television programs and national radio boradcasts, such as Voice of America, and has appeared in Carnegie Hall, New York. It has also made a number of recordings. On its tour this year the choir will travel around 2,500 miles. Under Dr. Harry H. Harter's direction the choir has treveled over 55,000 miles in the past 25 years.

The three-part program begins with works by four nineteenth century composers: Brahms, Mendelssohn, Bruchner, and Tschesnokoff. Two selections are for double choir: Unsere Vater (Yea our Forefathers) and Heilig, a setting of the Sanctus.

Part Two features music of Christ's Life and resurrection, and music of people. It also features two selections that Dr. Harter obtained in Europe to be performed in the United States for the first time. One is Aftonen (Evening), a Swedish folksong, the other is Villanesca, by a sixteenth century Spanish composer.

Selections from Part Three demonstrate new ways the human voice can be used as an instrument. Three are by contemporary Europena composers, and two were also acquired by Dr. Harter on his sabbatical leave. They are Voces No. 1 by Spanish composer Leonardo Balada, and Rondes by Swedish composer Folke Rabe.

Home Concert

After the choir returns, Maryville will be able to hear their tour music at a special concert Sunday evening, March 31, at 8:15 p.m. in Wilson Chapel. The choir will be sharing the concert with the Chilhowee Choral Society, a group of sixty community singers, directed by Don Brakebill, a Maryville graduate.

Correction

Due to a misunderstanding, last week's Echo erroneously listed the 1973-74 intramural budget at $10,020.00. It should have been reported as $1,742.00 .

MC's Energy Measures

Following a report submitted to the All College Council meeting on Wednesday, 16 January, concerning matters dealing with the energy situation, measures have been taken and results are noticeable.

MC's energy crisis conservation is working. According to Mr. Hugh Crawford, Assistant Business Manager and Purchasing Agent, both faculty and students have taken a positive concerned attitude toward the conservation of energy.

As compared with a year ago, the electric consumption is down, but the cost is up. So although we are

continued on page 4

my this about that

The End of a Hard Winter

And they thought panty-raids were radical! Compared to the latest college fad, streaking, panty-raids are as radical as 8:00 a.m. chapel. Panty-raids, swallowing goldfish, and fifteen people in a phonebooth are out; streaking is in, and the Maryville College student body is streaking along with the best.

In all the commotion, only the answer to one question escapes me. Where did it come from? And I don't mean California, Ohio, Texas, etc., I mean in whose uninhibited, imaginable, creative, and bizarre mind was this absurd idea of running from one strategic point to another in one's Paradise tux born. Undoubtedly, it was hard labor, but it would seem that many anxious fathers and friends awaited the arrival with highest exuberance and insane tenacity. The birth of this "child" was a revelation to the campuses of America.

It is all fitting and proper that the craze should occur right at the end of winter term here at Maryville when everyone is ready for anything to deviate from the norm of drudgery and nasty weather. Oh, yes, the weather. Allow me to draw the possible conclusion that if a warm weather strip had not been covering the United States the last few days, labor pains probably would not have been so close together, or if you will permit this crass analogy, it might have been stillbirth. Even god's gift to women or men isn't going to streak in 30º weather. You would have to move a great deal faster than just a streak to keep from freezing and then waiting for the spring thaw or the campus cop, which ever happened to stroll by the sooner. Spring weather always did put crazy ideas into the minds of men.

I'm sure you've heard the line there's a difference in saying that someone looks like a breath of spring and saying that he looks like the end of a hard winter. Well, at the end of winter term and the fact that the streakers streaked into an undefinable blur instead of strolled with a shapely air about them, leads me to believe that most people were self-convinced that they looked like the end of a hard winter and not a breath of spring. Maybe after spring break when everyone comes back with a nice suntan, strolling will become the new favorite, all college campus pastime. And will Maryville be the leader of the leader of the pack?

My final word about streaking is a tribute to the one and only, genuine, original birthday suit, fifty yard dasher, wherever he may be. I salute and thank you for bringing a small ray of excitement into our dull and dreary, inhibited lives. Without you the stories that we will tell our grandchildren would be lacking.

Guest Editorial

PHILOSOPHY 321: Inventing the Future

by Gil Nicholas
Special Editorial Writer

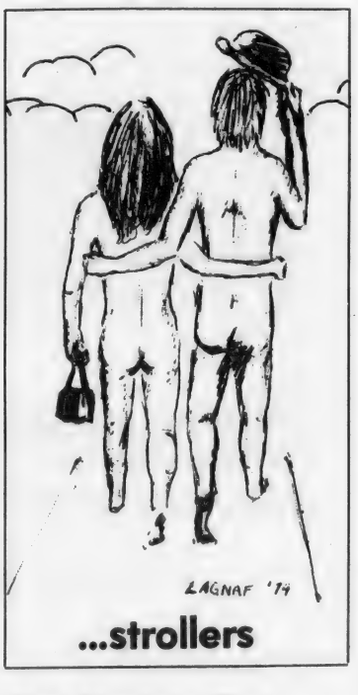
There is an intersting bit of graffitti in the men's bath room on first floor Sutton Science Center which reads: "Decide today what shall happen when tomorrow becomes yesterday." One person who has taken that advice very seriously is Dr. Dave Young, coordinator of MC's Project on Futuristics, and creator and head honcho of the Synergar II group. And to show just how serious he is, Dr. Young and the Future 123 division of Synergar has come up with a course designed to help make those decisions for tomorrow's world.

The course, Philosophy 321: A Seminar on Alternative Futures, will be offered C hour, Spring Term, and was planned to provide the maximum latitude in alternatives to the humdrum college education of the 70's. So far, two take-off points have been suggested for beginning the seminar: a.) developing a personal model for the future, with emphasis on individual determination of one's own place in the present and directions and goals for the future; and b.) experiencing group simulation games, an examination of conflict, problem solving, social interaction, and the like by playing serious games utilizing two major components, the rational/analytic, and the emotional/creative/dramatic. This course was designed with an orientation toward action and direct involvement in the problems to be faced in the future, rather than simply predicting what might happen.

Dr. Young has been admonishing all of us for some years now to take full responsibility for our roles as "inventors" of the future, since as he states: "The future doesn't happen by itself; it is helped create it?" I think that it is time that more MC students took Dr. Young's advice to heart. We are indeed "inventors" of the future. Now we are being afforded the opporutnity to educate ourselves to assume that role a bit more competently, as well as directly intervening in the issues which will determine the future. If you have a free C hour next term or even if you don't, but could arrange it, it would behoove you to consider this learning alternative. The future is yours to create. Start now.

Thanks for HOPE Contributions

To the Editor:



We want to express appreciation to the students and faculty at Maryville College for the contribution in the amount of $325.00 as a memorial to the Fred Hope Fund.

When people are starving and hungry in other parts of the world, it is our responsibility to do our part even though we may never have seen their faces nor to know them personally. We know they are a part of the Christian family and God' children.

We look forward to your continued interest and financial support of this program as it strives to help alleviate human suffering throughout the world and especially now in the Sahel region of Africa.

Sincerely,

H. McKinley Coffman
Director of Centers

...strollers

That Scroungy Dog

To the Editor:

There are several dogs on this campus which have become friends to the college students. But one dog in particular, namely "RUFUS," is a disgrace to the dogs of the world. This animal runs about our scenic campus like a "hog in a mudhole." Therefore, I suggest to its owner that this is a very poor reflection on him/her.

I do hope that this situation will be remedied in the very near future.

Dogs of the World

MC II–another term?

To the Editor:

It has been rumored about our campus that several of the priviledged individuals now living in Willard House are considering it for a second term. As of yet, despite all their verbal efforts to prove the validity of such an experiment, they have offered no experimental data, hypotheses, or conclusions to justify their existence t term. All that the campus has been subjected to so far has been their id on group living, a few sketchy state ments on the conservation of heat a light, and a minor recycling effort.

Regardless of their ideologies, we ha yet to hear of their actual successes and failures in this experiment on conservation. It would be of much interest to this learning community to examine the experimental data they have collected—which would include a complete look at their attempts to serve a balance diet and also the clear facts on the energy co served.

It is only after a careful examinatio of these facts that anyone should b gin to talk about a second term for MC II. The costs of opening and ma taining another building on this cam pus must be a consideration of our financially troubled administration, would simply advise this review bef any serious consideration is given to a second round for MC II.

A Questioning Experimenter

letters to the e

In Response to Hende

To the Editor:

Emerson Henderson's March 1 edito calls for "the administration to com forward with a more believable reas for Mr. Harrison's leaving." At the risk of being dull, let me state the facts.

Four years ago Dr. Campbell, who assumed the chaplaincy on a part-time basis, retired. New Providence at the same time was contemplating a change in staff that involved Mr. Harrison, then associate minister. Dr Copeland and some of the Church leaders saw an opportunity to streng then the liaison between the College and the Church by bringing Mr. Har son to the campus for three-fourths time, leaving him one-fourth in his other position.

Both groups agreed to the experime with the provision that it be reviewe periodically by a joint committee. For some reason the experiment was not successful. Students began to be concerned about the lack of vitality in the campus religious life and ex pressed a need for some one who could relate to a broader range of constituents.

When New Providence last year decid to make a change which would invol severing Mr. Harrison's relationship with the Church (and I cannot find anyone connected with New Provi dence who knows of the later offer a full-time job), the obvious alterna tive for the College was to free Mr. Harrison for a full-time job elsewhe

By that time, however, there seemed to be more student response to Mr. Harrison's leadership, and we talked with people in the Religion-Philoso phy Department about giving him a part-time teaching load. It was point out that his graduate work was in the pastoral field, not in an academic, research oriented discipline. Some of the majors, hearing what we were trying to do, requested that we keep the chaplaincy separated from the classroom. Although I could not agr completely, I had to respect these views and so dropped the matter.

continued on page 4

Review
'Yes' Tales

by Daniel Whiteside
Guest Review

After the Yes Songs album Yes became a little overdone, but their new 2-album set is amazingly refreshing and different.

The album features Steve Howe's electric guitar extensively and he occasionally becomes a bit tiresome, but is countered by some very fine acoustical work and some interesting off-beat guitar leads.

Rick Wakeman's contributions are spectacular. He is heard less than in previous albums, but when he is heard the effect is generally quite stunning. His string mellotrone sounds as much like a string orchestra as I've ever heard.

Bassist Chris Squire and Drummer Alan White add a strong rhythmic background that is at times very complex but still quite listenable.

Jon Anderson, singing better than ever, still writes lyrics that are impressionistic rather than realistic. People looking for heavy lyrics shouldn't try this one because the lyrics sound good when sung, but don't make much sense.

All in all, if you like music and not just Dig-me groups and rancid rock and rollers, Tales from Topographic Oceans is well worth the 2-album price and deserves a serious place in the realm of progressive rock.

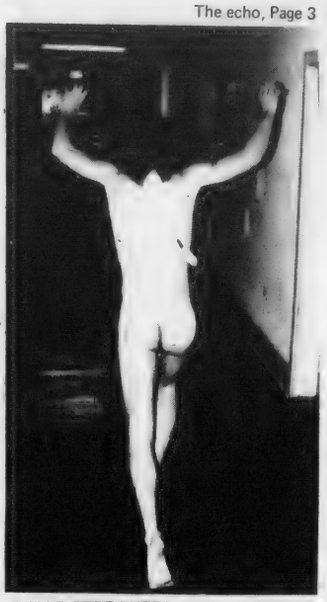
Band Tour

Highlander Band members, under the direction of Dan B. Stallings, will be touring the Atlanta area for over half of Spring Break, giving concerts in high schools. The tour will begin on Friday, March 15, and end Wednesday, March 20.

The forty-member band will feature a varied program ranging from classical to light classical to rock tunes arranged for concert band. They will perform works by Persichetti and Wagner. Traditional marches will also be featured.

In past years the band has toured Washington, D.C., Birmingham, Alabama, Cincinnati, Ohio, and New Jersey.

A Ride Or Bust



Miami or Bust! New York here I come! Look-out I'm coming through—or at least some people would like to go through.

Every year just before spring break students on M.C. campus are running around looking for rides to somewhere, anywhere, just as long as it's away from here. Signs go up in the post office and nearly everyone with a car is asked for a ride, but just in case you were one of the unfortunate few who didn't get asked, so as not to leave you out, can you give a ride to anyone below?

Dale Anderson	Miami
Bette Donahay	Miami
Sue Zawacki	Miami
Martha Day	Florida
Nan Bostock.	Miami
John Frentz	Pompano Beach
Lynn Rumbly	N.J.
Jelyn Rabin	N.J.
Carol Jones	Rochester, N.Y.
Peter Weiss	N.Y. City
Ann McDonald	Nashville
Frank Thornsberg	Memphis
Mike Johnston	Huntsville, Ala.
Ann & Dave	Dallas, Texas
Ken Kayga	Phila.
Martha Browne	Columbia, S.C.
N. Bunnag	Rock Hill, S.C.
Lisa McCaffree	Fayetteville, N.C.
Barb Sanderson	N.Y. or Pa.

Also if anyone needs a ride to Boone, N.C. or near there contact Carol Veltman -2764, or Past Atlanta, Ga. - Debbie Mattson-2558.

This is a campus service announcement, if you can help, please contact.

A MAD STREAKER!

"Streakers" Streak

As the campus continues its "streaking" passion, reliable inside sources have let it slip that a faculty-staff streak in the near future is picking up its own head of steam. As this craze dominates conversations from the coffee shop in Anderson to the dining tables in Pearsons, the mad passion to "streak" across the MC campus becomes a bigger scream everyday.

Editor's note:
A check with local authorities yielded that if a person was caught "Streaking", the charge would be indecent exposure. The fine would be $50. plus $29.75 in court costs.

Student Help Situation

Mr. William A. Ribble, Director of Financial Aid, reports that the situation in student help employment is generally the same as it has been. There has been a reduction of 10% in fees for student help, from $105,000 to $95,000, but this is an across the board reduction and affects the allocations of all departments.

He reports that there is an average of 200 students on the payroll at any one given time, although there may be as many as 250 or 275 at a particular time, and that there have been no layoffs in student help positions.

Pi Kappa Delta Tourney

On the weekend of March 8-10, a group of three students is taking part in a tournament of speech and debate, at Gatlinburg, which is being organized by Pi Kappa Delta, a national forensic honor fraternity.
The students and their areas of competition are as follows:

Jelyn Ragin	Debate
Janice West	Debate
Shahbaz Ahmed	Persuasive & extemporaneous Speaking

Mr. Blair Beasley has performed as the coach and the team looks at the prospects optimistically.

Square Dancing

There will be a Folk and Square Dance for all students and Faculty, tonight, 8 March 1974, in Gym I of the Physical Education Building from 7:30 - 9:30.

Senior Slides

The Senior Class needs slides for use in graduation. These slides can be of any aspect of our four years at Maryville. Any senior who wishes to lend slides please put them in box 2579. Please make sure that names and box numbers are on all slides.

Baseball Team Winds Up

The Maryville College Baseball team, coming off a 1973 season record of 14-15, began formal practice on Monday for the 1974 season. 25 men, including only nine veterans from last year's squad, came out for the first practice. The Scots' first game is scheduled for Thursday, April 4 at Tusculum. Maryville's first home appearance will be Saturday, April 6 with a doubleheader against Milligan.

Maryville Head Coach Boydson Baird is enthusiastic about this season. He feels the Scots can develope a team that will prove successful over the haul of an approximate 30 game schedule. Baird is counting on catcher Dave Clinton, first baseman Earl McMahan, and outfielders Jim Lester and Paul Viggiano, all starters from last year, to provide the initial spark this season. Clinton lead the team in battling at .388, while Lester checked in at .312 along with 22 stolen bases. McMahan, who finished a disapointing .276 after doing better earlier in the season, will probably move to first after playing the outfield last year. His 26 R.B.I.'s were valuable and enabled him to tie for the team R.B.I. leadership with Leon Hart (since graduated.) Viggiano hit a disappointing .222, but did show efficient defensive ability. There has been some talk about him moving to shortstop.

Buddy Bernhardt scoops one up in early practice session of the 1974 MC Scots baseball team.

There are three pitchers returning. Dave Spradlin, 2-4 last season, must be considered the ace of the staff at this point. His righthanded counterpart, Glenn Doig, was 4-4 in 1973 and is being counted on for a good year. Doug Leonhardt, a reliever who saw little action, could be counted on to see more work this time around.

Many first-time players are out this year. Names to keep an eye out for include Paul Bailey, Ken Hanna, Buddy Bernhardt Mike Bowman, Bill Ziegler, and Ty Limbaugh. In addition to them, Bob Legard, who played last year, but just missed earning a letter, could be counted on for much duty this year.

The Echo Staff

Editor—Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Assistant Editor—Steven C. Douglas
Lay-out Editor—Stef Crane
Business Manager—Don Gilbert

Writers—J.Canon, D. Cook, C. Craven, K. Darden, C. D'Aquila, P. Garner, E. Henderson, P. Hicks, P. Johnson, R. Kaniper, W. Rutledge, D. Spradlin, F. Strohl, M. Warf, J. Yancey

Faculty Advisor—Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Photographer—T. Fox
Distribution—L. Catrett, G. Guba

MEMBER

Trial Editor: Debbie Welch

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

letters continued

continued from page 2

Because of Mr. Harrison's letter, I can understand why Emerson drew the conclusions he did on several points. I am baffled, however, by his statement that "it is no secret that Rev. Harrison has publicly disagreed with administrators on important matters." Although I sat in many meetings with Mr. Harrison and other administrators, I heard no disagreements on policies or principles. It is my own opinion that we would have had a healthier situation had there been openly expressed differences. His predecessor did not hesitate to express disagreement, and it was good. What was meant by "constant and vocal opposition" I cannot guess. I wrote to Emerson the next day requesting specifics. He did not answer.

He was specific, however, in taking the administration to task on three recent decisions, and I can be specific in answering. As an All-College Council member who sat through detailed explanations of each of these, Emerson surely knew (1) that Mr. McDade was brought in to replace Dr. Richardson of Development and will assume the responsibilities of Treasurer when Mr. Layman retires (one person replacing two in functions that even the most altruistic of us would have to concede are vital to any college today); (2) that what has happened to the College woods could not have been prevented since the City has the right of eminent domain; and (3) that the physical education complex was financed with the understanding that it would fill a need for the surrounding community as well as for the College—and I think all would agree that a bit of inconvenience at tournament time seems a small price to pay for the facilities we enjoy and for the benefits we receive when we can count ourselves part of the larger community.

I realize that these facts would have produced a dull editorial, but enough significant events are taking place on this campus to fill a newspaper with stimulating—even exciting—stories.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Blair

Thanks for Helping!

To the Editor:

I'd like to express appreciation to our students for the courtesy shown members of the Cooperative College Development Program who visited our campus last week. Participants in the conference on deferred giving sponsored by the forty-two college consortium were impressed with our people, our facilities and our service, and especially appreciated the opportunity to have lunch on Wednesday with students.

Thanks is also due for the patience shown during use of our gym by the District III and Region II basketball tournaments for local and area small high schools. As I think most students know by now, a substantial investment was made in our new Health and Physical Education Building by the local community with the understanding that it would be available on a limited basis for general community use. The major uses of this sort have included Community Night, basketball tournaments, gymnastics classes and use of the pool at off hours by local teams and other groups. In all of this use we have tried to minimize inconvenience to the students. For the most part, time for community use comes out of periods when the building is not being used by students, but occasionally there is an inevitable conflict due to required scheduling of public events.

A small correction is needed in the Echo editorial of March 1 which touched briefly on the subject in regard to the high school basketball tournaments. It was indicated that the gym has been tied up for three weeks with this particular program. The actual time during which the bleachers will have been set up in Gym I is two weeks, and during that period there have been eleven tournament sessions, all in the evening. Two were on nights when Community Night would otherwise have been in session. Two were on nights when no use is made of the building by college students, and a fifth session was on a night when we had our last home basketball game which was included as part of the evening schedule. This means that only six sessions occupied time and space that would otherwise have been in use, a small price to pay, it seems to me, once a year, for the fine facility we have available to the campus community the rest of the time.

Sincerely,
Raymond I. Brahams, Jr.

Notice

The following application forms for the next school year will be available 11 March in the Financial Aid Office.

National Direct Student Loan
Grants and Scholarships
Campus Employment

If you wish to apply for a loan or a scholarship or grant based on need, you must submit a Parent's Confidential Statement. These forms are also available.

Papers Read at Meeting

Three members of the Maryville College English Department read papers at the annual meeting of the Tennessee Philological Association this weekend at University of the South in Sewanee.

They were: Mrs. Herma Cate, "Shakers in American Fiction;" Dr. Elizabeth Fowler, "Vachel Lindsay, the Children's Poet;" and Dr. Charlotte Beck, "Voice from the Waste Land: Eliot's Collage of Personae Unmasked."

Other faculty members attending the meeting were Dr. Elizabeth Jackson, professor and chairman of the English Department; Dr. Ralph Collins, professor and chairman of the Foreign Languages Department; and Miss Kathryn Martin, assistant professor of Spanish and French.

RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER

continued from page 1

conserving energy, we are still out more money.

Last February 1973, our utility bill was $4972 as compared to this year's February utility bill of $5164. The electric bill itself as of February 1973 was $3735, whereas it increased this money increase is due to the rise in prices and not due to the amount of consumption. Our electric consumption as of February 1973 was 4464 KW hours as compared to the consumption by 48,000 KW hours. Our water consumption is also down considerably.

Measures that have been taken towards conservation of energy at MC are working and it is hoped that the concern that has been shown by students and faculty will continue.

THE PTL LOVE SHOP

Maryville's Center For Biblical Literature
Posters - Stickers - Jewelery

Also, The Love Shop extends an invitation to MC students to take part in the

"coffee house"

Every Thursday
7:00 p.m.
Upstairs of Shop
On Harper Ave.

— HOURS —
10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Monday Thru Saturday

Easy Curb Market

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

8:00 a.m. -
12:00 p.m.

Open All Holidays

BEVERAGES OF ALL TYPES

PICNIC SUPPLIES

715 East Broadway
Maryville

Medical Arts Pharmacy

For all your medical Supplies of any kind

Next to Blount Memorial Hospital

— Store Hours —
8:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m.

BLOOD. NO SWEAT. NO TEARS.

$10 per donation

Plasma (twice a week)

Or Whole Blood (every 8 weeks)

8 A.M. – 5 P.M.
Mon. – Sat.

blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-31
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 20 Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee April 5, 1974

News Briefs

Arab oil is on the way again. . .

Communist barrage continues near Saigon. . .

Israel and Syria still clash on Golan Heights. . .

U.S. missile deployment plan failed to gain breakthrough in SALT talks. . .

Solzhenitsyn and family are in Zurich. .

Patricia Hearst , abducted February 4, is still being held by the SLA. . .

Secretary of State Kissinger married Nancy Maginnes, an aide to Nelson Rockefeller. . .

Arraignment for 8 present or former Ohio National Guardsmen indicted in 1970 killings of 4 Kent State University students will begin April 10. . .

President Nixon seeks cuts in welfare funds. . .

Employment is on the rise. . .

After one year of no draft, the armed services are still having trouble getting enough volunteers. . .

Gallop pole shows Kennedy with wide lead for '76 Democratic nomination. . .

Nixon is "going to the people" to try to head off impeachment. . .

Conservative James Buckley calls for Nixon's resignation. . .

Senator Baker's probe raises doubts the CIA's role in Watergate. . .

Gov. Dunn vetoed the bill in the Tennessee Legislature aimed at restricting coeducational dormitories on private and public college and university campuses in Tennessee. It called for a permanent barrier between men's and women's housing. . .

Voice From The Past

by Olivia Myers
Echo Staff Writer

While rambling through the ancient editions of The Highland Echo, it became evident to me that times really have not changed, just the particular circumstances. The following articles exemplify such current occurances with settings from the past as: tension between the college community and the "townies," expulsion of students on questionable grounds, and the desire for increased social activity.

October 31, 1964

The Ku Klux Klan, in protest to the invitation by Maryville College to Eugene Carson Blake to speak here, invadeded the campus Sunday a short while before the 3p.m. address.

Dr. Copeland stated that the Klan had the right to make the peaceful protest. He did not comment on the cross burning at Morningside on Saturday night.

It was rumored later that they were not recognized as the KKK by some, who called from their cars, "Trick or Treat," and "Hi, Santa."

May 21, 1926

The "inquisition of the south," as discipline committee was laughingly termed, has been closeted in their

continued on page 4

Dr. Rhodes and Dr. Tabereaux

Research Grants Awarded

Two research programs have been made possible for members of the Maryville College chemistry department through a research grant and fellowship. A grant has been made to the college by Research Corporation to support a two-year biochemical research project under the direction of Dr. Gale Rhodes, chairman of the department; and Dr. Alton Tabereaux, assistant professor of chemistry, has been awarded a National Aeronautics and Space Administration research fellowship.

The grant of $10,860 was made under the foundation's Cottrell College Science Grants Program. The research project will be carried out over the next two summers by Dr. Rhodes with the assistance of rising chemistry majors and also his wife, Pamela, an experienced laboratory technician. The work is an attempt to discover the nature of proteins which might have existed on earth prior to the advent of living organisms.

The fellowship awarded Dr. Tabereaux is for the summer of 1974 at the Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Alabama. The research fellowships are awarded to young engineering and science faculty members for ten weeks of summer in a NASA-university cooperative program. Dr. Tabereaux participated in the program last summer, and his work will continue this year in the same areas in developing an alternate method of decomposing monopropellant hydrazine for small thruster propulsion systems (for aititude control) in spacecraft.

Special Collections Open

Open House for the Special Collections room of the library will be held Sunday, April 7, from 4:00 - 6:00 p.m.

Books, periodicals, pamphlets, portfolios, and cartoons, encompassing several centuries and a wide range of subjects, have been gathered from the library stacks, and from friends, and organized as a Special Collections. The presence of these old materials in the library is important not only for many original source publications, but for a comparison of trends, concepts, ideas, issues, and events. They are supplementary to the more recent publications for library research, and germane to the academic affairs of this campus.

Performing Artist Concert

Three year Affiliate Artist at Maryville College, two year participant in the program at Trinity University, and one year Visiting Artist at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, Miss Karen Roewade, will appear in the M.C. music hall tonight, April 5th at 8:15 p.m. Miss Roewade, a soprano, will sing various art songs and opera selections from Germany, Spain, Italy, and America composed by famous musicians such as Mozart, Purcell, Wolf, and and Rodrigo.

Karen Roewade's critical acclaim as performing artist is known from New York to Maryville. The New York World Journal Tribune reads in review, "There was some singing that was excellent by any standards, notably . . . Karen Roewade." The Maryville-Alcoa Daily Times' reviewer reports that Miss Roewade is welcome back by the patrons of the fine arts any time. Not only is Karen Roewade heralded by critics, she is the recipient of many awards from acclaimed musical societies in the United States and has been chosen twice to premiere works at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C.

Miss Roewade's concert can be heard at the Fine Arts Center. Admission is $2.00 for Adults and $1.00 for students. M.C. personnel and students will be admitted by I.D.

Tuition Is Rising

Skellie Morris
Echo Staff Writer

The recent announcement from Anderson that tuition will be raised $100 for next year has caused some mild rumblings among students. Yet upon examining this figure, the raise is to be expected. It was the general thinking of the Board of Directors in October of 1973 that inflation would increase at least 4% over the next few years, therefore an increase of approximately 4% of college expenses would be necessary to compensate for higher prices. This $100 increase in tuition will be placed into Educational Development, with a large portion of it being used for increased salaries for teachers. Also, in negotiating next year's food contract with SAGA, the administration states, that the college will have to absorb the extra cost of food in order to keep the increase to $100, as this increase is in tuition only; not in food or housing.

In reference to this rise in tuition Mr. McDade states: "It costs $4000 to $5000 to educate a college student for a year. In public institutions, taxpayers make up the differences between tuition and the real total cost. In private colleges like Maryville, the differences are made up by gifts from alumni, businesses, and other friends of the institution. When a Maryville student's parents pay $2725 for a year, contributors add more than $1300 to make the year of education possible. Students who receive grants of loans are using money over and above these amounts, which also must be given by friends of the College, or through funds provided by taxpayers."

Therefore, it is plain to see that as long as inflation continues, the cost of a good education will also become more expensive. A good thing to keep in mind this summer as you are working to make that extra $100 that used to go for spending money, but is now going for tuition, is that it is not the administration of the College that is making the prices go up, but the administration of the country.

Karen Roewade

STAFF

MEMBER

Emerson D. Henderson
Editor-in-chief

Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

CPS
Member

Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Technical Editor

Don F. Gilbert
Business Manager

Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Faculty Advisor

Gwen Guba
Lay-out Assistant

Bill Walker
Assistant Business Manager

Tom Fox
Photographer

Louis Catrett
Distribution

WRITERS

S. Ahmed
J. Canon
C Craven
K. Darden
C. D'Aquila

P. Johnson
S. Morris
O. Myers
F. Strohl

M. Warf
D. Welch
C. Williamson
J. Yancey

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Attention Seniors!

As you all should know this year's graduation is a student participating event, therefore, in order to make graduation a success we need your cooperation. One area in which all seniors can participate is to look through one's slides and select those which are relevant to the activities of our four years. We would like to have slides of seniors, campus scenes, interim trips, etc. If you have any pertinent slides that can be borrowed, please print your name and box number on each slide and put them in either box 2579 or box 2096. Your slides will be returned to you.

from the editor's desk

Echo Philosophy

As the newly selected editor of the Echo, I think it is very important that the college community have an understanding of my philosophy and what I see as my responsibilities as editor.

The Echo is a voice within the community. It provides a media for the expression of opinions among students, faculty, and administration. I hope that members of the community will take advantage of this philosophy. I believe that the free expression of opinions are necessary in an academic community if learning is going to take place. The present Echo policy of withholding names upon request of letters to the editor will be continued in an effort to keep opinions flowing freely.

The Echo must also serve as a forum for the exposition of issues with which the students, faculty, and administration is or should be concerned. Whether in the academic, social or religious areas, the campus should be kept abreast. The adding of a new major, the lack of social activities, and the continuing debate over the effectiveness of the ACC, are just a few of the important issues that the college community must be concerned.

The third responsibility is that of any good newspaper, to provide news. The Echo must keep the campus informed about special events.

As editor, I have the responsibility of writing an editorial each week. I have a totally free hand to express myself on any issue I feel strongly about. It is here on the editorial page that the controversial material lies. Thus, I would like to make a few statements concerning my editorial philosophy. I will address myself to issues that I believe the students are interested. The label "controversial issue" will not stop me from writing my opinion or many times an opinion other than mine that a large number of students hold. In other words, at times what you will be reading will not necessarily be my personal views, but those of the students. But any accusations or conclusions made will be based on concrete facts.

It is my hope that my editorials will offer more than criticism of existing conditions. I will attempt to offer solutions to the problems or maybe inspire someone else to act.

With my selection as editor official, my staff selected, my philosophy stated, I begin what I hope will be a very exciting and challenging editorship.

A Dean's Eye View

by Carolyn Blair

The new editor of the Echo has offered me space for a weekly column. It should serve several purposes. One, of importance only to me, is the outlet it will provide for a frustrated journalist turned teacher-administrator. The more important one is to provide information and interpretation from Anderson Hall, particularly in the academic area.

Emerson and I have agreed that much confusion and misunderstanding could be avoided if the facts were presented straight. Therefore I will attempt to deal with facts, interpreting whenever necessary and dealing with questions that come to my office.

Throughout January as I worked on catalog copy, drawing together the new programs announced during the past year, it occurred to me that many of them might have been forgotten and opportunities overlooked. Since attention will soon be turning to schedules for next year and the 1974-75 catalog is not yet out, it might be helpful to review.

It has been remarked that students from Oberlin, Wooster, and Wright State have received more benefit from the Environmental Center at Tremont than have Maryville students. Perhaps many are not aware of the provision for a ten-week term at Tremont. A student may earn three course credits in independent study and seminars, along with participation in the ongoing program at the Center. One with a baccalaureate degree who wants further preparation in environmental education may participate in a second special program, called the Fifth Year Internship. Hardy DeYoung has been an intern this year and will, I feel sure, be glad to talk with those who are interested. For both programs, Dr. Shields on campus and Mr. Foster and Mr. Miles at Tremont can answer questions until the catalog is ready.

The recreation major seems to have been better publicized, as evidenced by the number already enrolled. The demand for personnel trained in recreation doubtless makes this major particularly attractive at this time. Those interested should talk with Dr. Boroviak or other members of the Physical Education Department.

The latest major proposed by the Instructional Program Committee and approved by the All-College Council is one in fine arts, designed for students who have talents and strong motivation in two of the three fine arts disciplines (visual arts, music, speech-theatre). They can now combine two interests for the equivalent of a double major. Dr. Harter or other members of the Fine Arts Division can provide details.

Dr. Dent and Dr. Nichols of the Mathematics Department have spent many hours during the past year working out details for cooperative engineering programs with Georgia Tech and UT. An agreement has now been reached whereby the student spends three years at Maryville and two at either Georgia Tech or UT. Upon satisfactory completion of the first year at the cooperating institution, he or she would receive the B.A. from Maryville, and at the end of the second year, a B.S. in one of the engineering fields. We hope to be able to arrange some work-study opportunities wit local industries for students who wa on-the-job experience and remuner tion while they study. Opportunitie for women in engineering are espe- cially good right now.

Some plans for off-campus experien have been perfected within the last few months, including, for the hon senior science major, a semester at Argonne National Laboratories and for the senior psychology major, a practicum program in learning disa- bilities with the Psychological Servi Program of the Little Tennessee Va Educational Cooperative. The latter should appeal to psychology majors who want to be qualified for jobs im mediately upon graduation. Dr. Rhodes has been working out the d tails of the Argonnee Semester and Dr. Waters and Dr. Kline of the psy chology praticum.

Still in the planning stages but likel to be announced soon are a Senate intern program in Washington for history and political science majors and a cooperative program with the University of Georgia in music thera

Until the new catalog is ready, stu- dents should come to my office for further information or consult with the faculty directly concerned.

letters to the ech

A Plead For Maryville

To the Editor:

With all of the recent talk about poli tical corruption, and presidential im- peachment, it's natural that Maryvill College receives some scrutiny.

Maryville has some serious problems which are due mainly to a lack of communication between students, administrators, and faculty members

Shortly before the end of winter term, the administration determined to rid the college of an "undesirable" who in fact, represented a significant percentage of the student body. Ac- cording to the grapevine, yearly a scapegoat is chosen while behavior similar to his is condoned.

Another topic of conversation is the organization called the "spades." It has been said that the administration is in cahoots with this club, yet the M.C. Student Handbook explicitly discourages secret societies.

There is also talk about "informers" who allegedly get paid for giving certain information to the adminis- tration.

Maryville calls itself a Christian colle but it's apparently not! Let's every- one care and open up to one another this community is small enough to do it!

Student for Brotherhood

Impeachment not new

To the Editor:

Whether or not the current House of Representatives impeachment investi gation committee brings charges agai Mr. Nixon, impeachment should not be new to Blount Countians or Tenn esseeans in general.

continued on page 4

Pastoral Counseling

Beginning on Wednesday, April 3, Dr. Albert H. Cropp, of Maryville, will be available to students for conversation and counseling in the chaplain's office in Wilson Chapel, from 10 to 12 each morning Monday through Friday. He will be available also at other times by appointment through Mrs. Wilson at the chaplain's office.

Dr. Cropp was Director, in the years 1955-1960, of Faith Cooperative Parish, a joint project of Maryville College and Union Presbytery, in which students rendered many valuable services in outlying areas of this county. During that time he maintained an office on the campus and worked closely with college students.

Dr. Cropp is a native of Ohio, a graduate of the College of Wooster and Princeton Theological Seminary. He spent many years with the Presbyterian Board of National Missions, including more than 20 years with the American Indians.

Students are invited to drop in to talk with Dr. Cropp. They will find him a genial and helpful friend.

Careers For Women

"Careers for Women in the 1970s" will be the subject of a panel discussion on Tuesday evening, April 9, 7:30 in Thaw 201. Co-sponsored by the Career Planning and Placement Committee and the American Association of University Women, this meeting will feature Dr. Agnes Bird, former teacher of political science at Maryville College and now a law student at the University of Tennessee; Dr. Marjorie Kratz, teacher of history at Maryville College, and Dr. Marilyn Pollio, teacher of education at the college.

New areas of fulfillment for career-minded women will be opened to students as these three knowledgeable career women discuss the opportunities expected to be open in this decade.

After the discussion concerning careers, Miss Kathryn Martin, former president of the Maryville A. A. U. W. and teacher of Spanish at Maryville College, will present the program of scholarship for graduate study sponsored by the national organization. Mrs. H.R. Werkheiser will extend seniors as invitation to affiliate with some branch of the A. A. U. W. upon graduation.

Refreshments will be served after the meeting in the social science lounge.

All members of the A. A. U. W. and and all students interested in careers for women are invited.

Retreat At Tremont

The Worship & Special Meetings Committee would like to announce a one-day retreat to Tremont on Saturday, April 13, with Dr. Joseph Sittler of the University of Chicago Divinity School. There will be recreation, lunch, and a discussion on "The Theology of Ecology" by Dr. Sittler. The group will leave the campus at 10:00 a.m. and return about 4:00 p.m. Anyone interested in attending the retreat should contact Dr. Ramger, Jud Stone, Coralie Usrey, Sheri Bone, or the Chaplain's Office.

Dr. and Mrs. David Door, missionaries to Yemen, will have charge of the vesper service on Sunday, April 7, at 7:00 p.m. in the Little Chapel.

Let's Come Together

Have you seen the letters -BSU- around lately? Wondered what they mean?

BSU stand for Baptist Student Union. The BSU is a group of Christian students from various backgrounds who are trying to put into practice brotherly love such as found in John 13:34, 14:23ff., which by the way leave no room for big or little Christians if there are such things.

Our program is one of outreach to non-Christians and growth for Christians, regardless of denomination or otherwise. Our organization is Christ-centered, student-led church-related, and provides a program of ministry and fellowship to the entire community.

Kearns-Preston Presents Recital

On April 9th Merida Kearns-Preston will hold a voice recital in the Music Hall. She will be accompanied by Susan Coram.

Merida Kearns-Preston

A Music Education major, Miss Kearns-Preston has selected a variety of pieces for her performance. She will sing two early baroque selections written for the harpsichord and cello. She will also perform two lied love songs by Mozart and two arias by Verdi and Rossini.

Merida is particularly excited about her forth selection. She will sing four pieces from Gitanzali, a collection of poems by an Indian writer named Tagore. John Carpenter put these poems to music. Her final selection will be a duet by Faure. Tina Bergner will be performing with her.

The concert should prove to be varied and entertaining. The performance begins at 8:15 p.m.

CIV On Career Planning

CIV will assume a new format on April 10 when four areas of interest will be featured in seminars to be held in different buildings on the campus. Subject of all seminars will be "Career Planning and Placement" but each group of disciplines will approach the subject in appropriate ways.

Purpose of the seminars is to provide students with information and suggestions regarding what careers are open to those who have a liberal arts degree; how to interview, write applications, and assess personal capabilities. Students will have the opportunity to choose which seminar they will attend, but it is expected that most majors will attend the seminar in their discipline. Undeclared majors can use this CIV to help them identify major interests and the possible careers open.

The following seminars have been set up:

I. Science, mathematics, and psychology in the Music Hall.
II. Social sciences, physical education, and education in various rooms in Thaw with guest speaker Dr. Ed Hawley
III. Fine Arts—music, theatre, and art in the theatre with guest speaker Mr. Paul Crabtree, producer-director of Opryland in Nashville, Tn. & guest.
IV. Humanities—history, English, foreign languages, philsophy and religion with Bayard Lindell, personnel manager of J.C. Penney in Knoxville, and faculty members under the leadership of Dr. David Cartlidge.

Time of the seminars is 9:20 A.M. Wednesday, April 10.

If you are concerned and wish to help serve our community in this capacity, join us in our attempt to do so. Come to the 10:30 a.m. week day prayer session and to the weekly BSU meeting. The prayer meeting is in the Student Center Alcove and you can watch the campus news for the time and place of the BSU meeting.

Hackers Win Championship

The Hackers, putting on a brilliant second half comeback, devastated a good Colt 45 team to take championship honors in the men's intramural basketball league, Sunday, March 3.

After falling behind 8 to 0 in the opening quarter, the Hackers finally tallied to light-up the scoreboard. The consistent playing 45's remained in the lead the rest of the first half, having complete control of the game. At halftime the Colt 45 team held a slim 26 to 20 lead. Beginning the second half, the Hackers found the range on the hoop and started pounding away at the Colt 45's lead. With nine minutes remaining, the Hackers came within one point, 39 to 38. With the Hacker offense catching fire, the defense caught on, also, and capitalized on Colt 45 turnovers and rebounds to take the lead, 49 to 44. The momentum turned their way, the Hackers coasted on to the buzzer to win 56 to 51. David Warwick and Scott Cook led all scores for the winners.

Glen Doig and David Spradlin

Baseball Team Begins Season

The Maryville College baseball team opened its 1974 season at Greenville, Tennessee as the Scots took on Tusculum College. Senior Glenn Doig was expected early in the week to be Maryville's opening day starting pitcher.

Coach Boydson Baird's 26-member squad will make their home debut tomorrow against Milligan in a doubleheader with a 2:00 p.m. start. The Scots will also be home versus Tennessee and Taylor University on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

Tennis Team Wins

Maryville's tennis team notched their first victory of the season this past Monday by pounding North Georgia, 7-2. In four previous matches the Scots have suffered setbacks to Shorter, 7-2; Western Carolina, 5-4; Carson-Newman, 8-1; and Hope, 5-4.

Under the direction of first-year coach Miss Betty Werner, the Scots have returnees Sutton Brown, Craig Larsen, and Steve Rael to boast Maryville's already balanced attack.

Maryville went against Emory Henry at Maryville, Wednesday, and the Scots will take on Tennessee Weslyn here, this afternoon at 1 p.m.

Soccer Club Loses

The MC Soccer Club suffered a humiliating but learning experience 9-0 in its opener at Bryan College, Dayton, Tennessee

The booters play Carson-Newman in their second road game tomorrow at 2:00. Coach Young's squad faces a team they lost to in the fall before their home opener against Covenant next Saturday.

ACC Elections

Nominations for the 74-75 All College Council will be made this week. Cards should be turned in by 1:00 p.m. today in the dining hall. Students must nominate students from their own classes only. Elections will be held Thursday, April 11th.

letters continued

Most of us know that Tennessee's own Andrew Johnson was the first and only president to be impeached, but how many of us know that a senator from Tennessee was the first American ever impeached? William Blount (recognize the name?) was impeached and expelled from the Senate in 1796 on a charge of treason. He was accused of conspiring with Indians, frontiersmen, and the British Navy to invade Spanish Florida and Louisiana. No member of Congress since Blount has been impeached.

We Tennesseans should have no trouble sympathizing with Mr. Nixon's current plight.

Steven C. Douglas

I Love Rufus

To the editor:

I love Rufus! I am usually a dog-depiser, but Rufus has impressed me as being "a dog of a different color" since the first time I met him. Rufus is a complete sensualist whose motto is "If it feels good—do it!" Rufus feels that if doing what he loves best makes him the brunt of campus jokes-so be it. He refuses to give up his right and sacrifice his individuality just to conform with the accepted standards for dogs here at Maryville College. Rufus hears the beat of a different drummer and must be given the freedom to step to it!

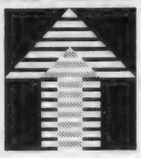
—Rufus' pal

from the past

continued from page 1

chamber with 21 men of the school who were arraigned before them on the charge of whistling on Sunday.

This morning notices were sent out that 20 of the men had been found guilty and expelled without further ado from the College. The 21st man produced an alibi, saying that he was not whistling, but that was his natural way of breathing, as he has adenoids.



Mar. 15, 1942

The following are comments by students about more mixed recreation.

"We should have a recreation hall where we could play ping-pong."

"We should have bowling and horseback riding."

WE'RE OUT FOR BLOOD.

$10 per donation.
Plasma twice a week.
Or whole blood every 8 weeks.

Monday through Saturday.
Free parking.

blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-3171
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

Easy Curb Market

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

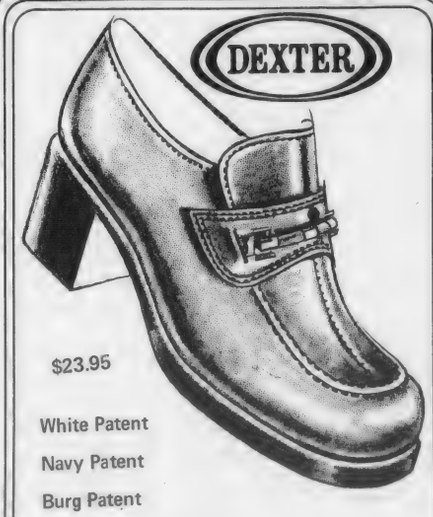
8:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.

Open All Holidays

BEVERAGES OF ALL TYPES

PICNIC SUPPLIES

715 East Broadway
Maryville



We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
The Leader
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

elegance

$23.95

White Patent
Navy Patent
Burg Patent

Southern shoes

Midland Center
Alcoa

Par-t-Pub

— Across From Pizza Hut —

Delicatassen

Hoagies - $1.05 & Tax
Corned Beef - $1.10 & Tax
Reuben - $1.05 & Tax
Turkey - 79¢
Ham - $1.05
Roast Beef - $1.05
Pastrami - $1.05

— Choice of Cheese —

Party Supplies of All Kinds

Drive-in Window
Call-in Orders Welcome
982-4251

10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 21 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | April 12, 1974

Easter Weekend

Easter Sunday, April 14

7:05 a.m. Easter Sunrise Service in the Maryville College Amphitheatre. Dr. Joseph Sittler of the University of Chicago Divinity School will be the guest speaker. In case of rain, meet in Wilson Chapel.

7:00 p.m. Easter Vespers Communion Service in Wilson Chapel - Rev. Claude Y. Stewart, Jr. will preside. The meditation will be given by Dr. Joseph Sittler.

Monday, April 15

9:20 a.m. Dr. Joseph Sittler will speak at a special CIV in Wilson Chapel on the topic, "The Scope of Reflection: Old Terms in a Larger World."

News Briefs

President Nixon underpaid his taxes by $444, 022 in the years 1969-72, and will reportedly have to borrow almost half the amount to repay it.

NATO marked it's 25th anniversary last Friday.

Eight guardsmen indicted in the Kent State affair pleaded not quilty and were arraigned in the Federal right case.

Meterologists blame the outbreaks of the tornadoes on an unusually intense spring storm pulling masses of moist air north from the Gulf of Mexico.

India asks the United States to resume foreign aid.

The Government predicts that gasoline shortages will be negligable this summer.

The nation's unemployment rate dropped from 5.2 to 5.1 per cent last month.

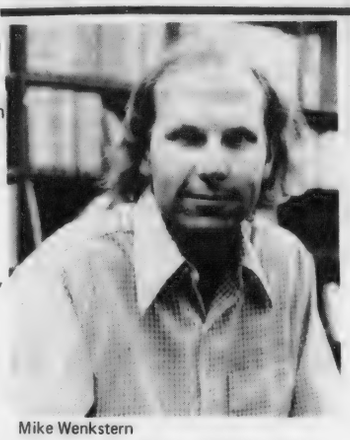
Two medium size earthquakes struck Alaska Friday night.

The Federal Energy Office boosts the nation's daily gas supply by 4% for April.

The Sting takes seven Academy Awards, including Best Picture.

Randolph Hearst believes that daughter Patty has been brainwashed.

The last living prisoner-of-war in Indo China is to be released within the next two months.



Some 4,000 marchers retraced the final steps of Dr. Martin Luther King last Thursday on the 6th anniversary of his slaying.

The Federal Jury says it is not close to verdict in the Chapin trial.

A recent nationwide Gallup survey shows that Republican county chairman now prefer Governor Ronald Regan over vice-president Gerald Ford for the GOP nomination in '76.

Tornadoes last week killed 338 in eleven states, and caused over one billion dollars worth in damage.

Henry Aaron breaks Babe Ruth's record with his 715 th home run Monday night in Atlanta.

Mike Wenkstern

Wenkstern In Research Program

Mike Wenkstern, junior biology major at Maryville College, has been named as a participant in the 1974 ORAU Undergraduate Research Training Program at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory. Selection of trainees was based on Scholastic record, aptitude, research interest, and graduate school potential of students majoring in physical, life, and environmental sciences, engineering and mathematics.

The Undergraduate Research Training Program provides selected students with opportunities for independent study, research, and development under guidance of senior staff members at several AEC laboratories. Participating students receive instructions and training designed to provide a keener perception of the factors involved in selection, planning, and executing a research and/or development program.

Mr. Wenkstern will become involved in solving problems relative to his own particular interests (carcinogenesis, immunology, and leukemogenesis), and also have opportunities to view first hand and to use the unique facilities of a large nuclear research center.

Conference On Responsibilty

On Saturday April 20, the Blount County Ecumenical Action Council is sponsoring a conference on "Christian Responsibility in Government" to be held on the Maryville College campus. The well-known theologian and author John C. Bennett will be delivering the opening address Saturday morning in the theatre. Dr. Bennett, former president of Union Theological Seminary in New York, is widely respected for his leadership in the field of Christian social witness. His writings include Christians and the State and Foreign Policy in Christian Perspective.

continued on page 3

MC Athletes Honored

Three Maryville College athletes have been selected for inclusion in the 1974 volume of Outstanding College Athletes of America. They are John Poore, Terrie Topham, and Michael Osborne.

John Poore has been an outstanding wrestler with the College for four years. Twice he took second place in the SEIWA Championship Tournament and won one championship. An Economics major, John plans to attend graduate school.

Sophomore Terrie Topham enjoys her second appearence in this volume in as many years. A sophomore guard on the women's basketball team, she has been named to various honors, including the All-Tournament Team at the University of Tennessee Invitational. Terrie is a P.E. major.

Michael Osborne is another outstanding sophomore athlete. As a free safety on the football team, he grabbed off numerous interceptions and strengthened the over-all defense. He also is a runner on the track team. Michael helds the school record for the intermediate hurdles, a performance which won fourth place in the T.A.C. meet last year.

John Poore

Terrie Topham

Mike Osborne

Sittler To Speak

Dr. Joseph Sittler, distinquished teacher, writer, pastor and Christiar. theologian, will be quest speaker on the Maryville College campus during Easter weekend.

Dr. Sittler will speak on Saturday preceding Easter Sunday at the college environmental center at Tremont, at the Easter sunrise service in the college woods, and at CIV on Monday following Easter. He also will preside at Easter Communion Vespers Easter Sunday evening.

A native of Ohio, Dr. Sittler holds the A.B. degree from Wittenberg College and the B.D. degree from Hamma Divinity School, both Lutheran institutions. He has done graduate work at Oberlin School of Theology, Western Reserve University, the University of Chicago, and the University of Heidelberg, Germany.

Dr. Sittler has held a number of pastorates, but his ministry has been largely as a teacher, lecturer, and author. On a number of occasions he has represented both the Lutheran Church and the World Council of Churches in various world ecumenical conferences and program. He has been a college minister on some twenty college and university campuses and a lecturer at Yale, Harvard, and Duke Universities and the Pacific School of Religion.

Dr. Sittler recently retired as professor of theology at the University of Chicago Divinity School.

His appearance at Maryville College is made possible through the Staley Foundation Distinquished Christian Scholar Lecture Program.

MC's Summer Playhouse

The Maryville Summer Playhouse will present three dramatic productions during the 1974 season at the Maryville College Theatre. They are: "Fiddler on the Roof", "Winnie the Pooh," and "Godspell."

The season will open June 20-24 with the musical "Fiddler on the Roof." A tumultously successful play, "Fiddler" copped just about all the prizes and awards at the end of its first season in New York. In addition to being named best musical of the season by the New York Drama Critics Circle, it took nine out of nineteen Tony awards.

The second production will be the children's musical play, "Winnie the Pooh." Based on the books by A.A. Milne, it includes such delightful episones from the "Pooh" stories as "Winnie the Pooh and the Blustery

continued on page 3

STAFF

MEMBER

Emerson D. Henderson
Editor-in-chief

Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Technical Editor

CPS
Member

Don F. Gilbert
Business Manager

Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Faculty Advisor

Gwen Guba
Lay-out Assistant

Bill Walker
Assistant Business Manager

Tom Fox
Photographer

Louis Catrett
Distribution

WRITERS

S. Ahmed
J. Canon
C Craven
K. Darden
C. D'Aquila

P. Johnson
S. Morris
O. Myers
F. Strohl

M. Warf
D. Welch
C. Williamson
J. Yancey

Letters to the Echo

I'm proud of MC

To the Editor:

Every year I have been at Maryville, I have heard students complain about this school. I heard myself now and then. Travelling as an admissions counselor has given me many chances to see other schools and compare them to MC. Maryville rates.

Another college with the same number of students has crammed its theater and shop onto the second floor of an academic building. It also has an old-three-floor science building—biology on one floor, chemistry on another floor, etc. No private study carrels or labs, no computers, no spectrometers. They are proud of their library which is barely a third the size of Maryville's library. Their newest building is the gymnasium. One little gym with hardly the room to bounce a basketball.

A college with twice our number of students and twice our reputation for being a good, private, liberal arts school looks very much like Maryville. Except their Physical Education Building is not quite as nice, and all the dorms are as old as Memorial.

I'm proud that I don't have to exaggerate or lie about Maryville's potential to high school seniors.

Lindy Harris

from the editor's desk

Civilians Replace Military

by Paul Feroe

(CPS) — As heavy fighting continues in Indochina, the US is still supplying South Vietnam with military equipment, technicians and advisers—over a year after the signing of the cease-fire agreement.

Although Article Five of the Vietnam Peace Accords states that "within 60 days of the signing of this agreement, there will be a total withdrawal . . of all troops, military advisers and military personnel associated with the pacification program, armaments, munitions and war material of the United States," there are currently 4,155 civilians working in military-related jobs—employees of private companies under contract to the United States Defense Department.

The Defense Department has chosen to interpret Article Four, which demands a cessation of "military involvement in Vietnam" to apply solely to combat action and officials claim it is within their rights to provide technical military knowledge.

"The Department of Defense has scrupulously adhered to the terms of the ceasefire agreement," Rear Admiral T.J. Bigley wrote in response to CPS inquiries. "The description of the nature of the contract shows that no contract personnel are engaged in combat activity."

The primary purpose of the civilian contract is, Bigley said, "to train the Vietnamese Air Force to become self-sufficient in maintenance (and to) maintain aircraft and engines; install equipment components; and provide maintenance and preservation services on aircraft in flyable storage."

Many of the civilians reportedly have chosen work in Vietnam because of high pay rates. "Hazardous duty area" salary rates plus $16 per day for room and board total an average income of $25,000 a year. Since employees who are off American soil for 18 months do not have to pay federal income tax and living costs are low by American standards, much of that money can be saved. Laer Sieglar Inc., which has 1,325 employees in Vietnam under contracts provided by the Air Force, offers salaries ranging from $3.58 per hour for a clerk to $8.17 per hour for an engineer, plus $14 and $16 per day room and board allowances respectively.

In a report refuted last fall by the CIA, ex-marine Vietnam Veteran John Naveau, claimed that he and several hundred other former military men were recruited by the CIA to fly combat missions in Cambodia (see CPS 2). Naveau reported that the CIA, recruiting for the Cambodian government, offered up to $2,400 a week for helicopter pilots and gunners, and up to $1,800 a week for ground crew personnel.

Whether the US is breaking the letter of the agreement may be debated by some but critics have said that the spirit of the accords is being broken.

When the cease-fire agreement was first signed the Defense Department promised that direct hiring of civilians would be completely phased out by the end of January, 1974. However, as long as fighting continues and American technology and equipment is needed, there seems to be little chance of such a phase-out.

A Dean's Eye View

by Carolyn Blair

Last week I had occasion to discuss the Community Issues and Values program with four thoughtful students: a senior, a junior, and two freshmen. Their questions and comments together with those contained in a recent letter to the editor reminded me that in spite of public announcements and copies of the recent changes made available in the Registrar's Office, some points remain hazy. Perhaps answers to specific questions will help.

Why not do away with mandatory CIV and require 40 courses? This is what we have done. Last spring graduation requirements were reduced from 40 to 37 regular courses to bring Maryville requirements more into line with those of other colleges (the range now being from 32 to 40 with an average of about 36). The change applies to students entering in the fall of '73 and after. With the revised requirement, giving the option of substituting a regular course for one or all three CIV units, we have in essence done away with mandatory CIV and now require 40 courses.

(One point that some missed in the announcement was that no charge will be made to present seniors, juniors, and sophomores for a fourth course substitute. Reduced course reuqirements will make it unnecessary for subsequent classes to take a fourth course.)

Removal of the compulsory element should remove the temptation to interfere with the rights of others to participate. The evidence is that most faculty and students are mature enough to appreciate CIV, and we made the change in the expectation that the majority will continue to attend. We will continue to offer credit because we recogni that all of us, being human, need an extra nudge to do what, deep inside, we know we should do. The experience of other colleges is that while lip service attests to the need for experiences

The dying days of Richard Nixon

Echo Philosophy

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Dean's View Continued

beyond the classroom, poor attendance has dictated the elimination of many programs that provide these experiences.

Without the guarantee of a CIV audience we could not invite a Carlyle Marney to the campus. We could not ask students to organize programs growing out of interims in electronic music or communication with the deaf, or to share the creative expressions of Fine Arts 201. Surely our lives are enriched by coming together as a group in a common cause. In the process of responding we establish closer relationships, we test our own thinking and weigh our own values, and we learn to listen respectfully to people with whom we may not agree.

Why not cut the number of programs and concentrate on providing only the most stimulating? This is a frequent question. In the first place, no one can predict what will be stimulating to the Maryville College audience. Some of the most widely acclaimed speakers have left us unmoved, while relative unknowns have struck a responsive chord. In the second place, the truly educated person knows that life is not a series of mountain top experiences, that truth does not always come in a dramatic, dynamic form. We may leave a program convinced that we have gained nothing but an exercise in patience and tolerance. Has the time then been wasted?

Why not encourage more student-initiated program? I can think of at least six student-initiated programs this year. They have been among those best received. The CIV Committee wants more. The main problem is the time involved in planning, but with the cooperation of creative, energetic students, we can respond to this request. All those with ideas should contact members of the CIV Committee, or, better, ask to join the Committee.

Why do we not experiment with different formats? Again the problem is time and mechanics, but the Committee is open to suggestion and experimentation. The program this week organized by the Committee on Career Planning and Placement represented a change. Many would like to see a presentation to the entire group followed by a series of small discussion groups, carrying more than one CIV credit. The CIV Committee needs your input on these and other innovations.

COMPS

Comprehensive examinations for seniors will be held Thursday and Friday afternoon, 18 and 19 April. The Undergraduate Record Examination will be given the first day in all fields for which the URE is available. Seniors should report to the Chapel at 1:30 with two 2 well sharpened pencils. Places for the second day examination will be announced by the respective departments.

The English Proficiency Examination for all sophomores will be held Friday afternoon at 2:30 in the Chapel. For all of sophomore rank this is the time to take the Examination. The one repeat in the fall is for transfer students and those who fail this one in the spring. No other opportunities are planned. Satisfactory performance on this examination is a prerequisite for beginning independent study.

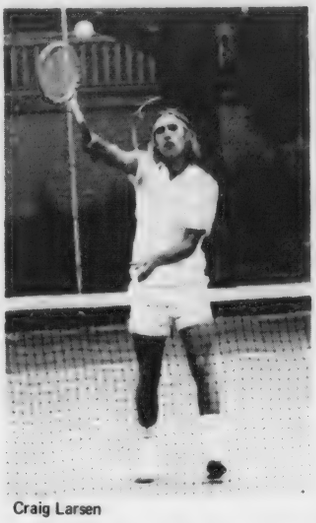
Circle K Elects Officers

The Maryville College Circle K elected club officers for the upcoming year this past Tuesday, April 9, 1974.

Sophomore Gwen Guba was selected to succeed Lyn Stanley as club president. Gwen is the first female president in the history of the club. She attended last year's international convention as a delegate from the Maryville College Circle K. This past year Gwen served the club as a vice-president and has been active in all of the club's projects.

Junior John Sortino and sophomore Tom Fox were elected to serve as vice-presidents for the club. Fox served as a vice-president during the past club year and is a two-year member of the club.

Freshman Debbie Welch is the club's new secretary-treasurer. She, along with the other new officers, will be representing the Maryville College Circle K at the Kentucky-Tennessee Circle K District convention to be held the weekend of April 19, 1974 in Chattanooga.



continued from page 1

Playhouse

Day," and "Winnie the Pooh and the Honey Tree." It is scheduled for July 18-22.

Subject to availability, the Playhouse will present "Godspell" August 8-12. One of the major long-running off-Broadway successes, it has won unanimous bravos from the critics and drew long audience lines for three years.

Thomas Jones, director of the playhouse, urges persons interested in acting or in working in the technical aspects of the production to attend tryouts for "Fiddler on the Roof" Monday, April 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the college theatre. Previous experience is not required.

Craig Larsen

Tennis Team Downed

Last week Maryville's tennis team took on Emory Henry and Tennessee Wesleyan. The opposition proved dominate, taking 5-4 and 8-1 wins over the Scots. In the squeaker to Emory Henry, Sutton Brown and Steve Rael took victories in the singles competition and in the doubles, the team of Craig Larsen-Sutton Brown claimed a victory along with a forfeit. Against Tennessee Wesleyan the doubles team of Doug Galbraith and Arlene Ignico recorded the Scots one win of the match.

Maryville has two home matches this week: UT at Chattanooga, Thursday at 1 p.m., and Tennessee Temple College, Saturday at 2 p.m.

Tronio Takes 3rd In State

Bob Tronio, a member of the Scot wrestling team recently won high honors in the New Jersey AAU competition.

During spring break Tronio won first place in regional competition, and returned last weekend to capture third place in the state wide meet. Tronio, a freshman from Montville, N.J., wrestled at 177.

Scots Hardballers Get Underway

The Maryville College baseball team got the 1974 season off on the right foot last Saturday afternoon as they swept a doubleheader from Milligan College, 9-1 and 1-0. The Scots had a rough time of it, however, on Tuesday as they were swamped by Tennessee 18-2.

Saturday's contests on the home field saw effective pitching from starters Glenn Doig and Dave Spradlin. Jim Lester was the batting hero of the first game as he got two hits and drove in three runs. Dave Clinton also got two hits. Joe Moffett, playing his first college baseball game, made his first hit a big one. It was a two-run homer. The second game provided weak Maryville bats as the Scots only got two hits. However, they were the key to the game. Paul Viggiano lead off the fourth with a single, stole second, and advanced to third on a stray throw by Milligan catcher Denny Mayes. Following Lester striking out, Earl McMahan drove in the eventual winning run on a single. Spradlin showed good control on the mound as he walked only one, struck out two, and allowed only five hits in going all the way.

The Tennessee game proved to be a disaster when the Vols pounded out ten runs in the third. Doig, Doug Leonhardt, and Kevin McKinstry were unable to quiet the Tennessee bats.

An interesting sidelight of the game was the fact that Tennessee star Condredge Holloway, the quarterback who once was drafted by the Montreal Expos, made two errors.

The Scots played Taylor University in a doubleheader Wednesday. Tomorrow afternoon, they face Covenant at home in a doubleheader. Another twin-bill is slated for Monday here against Lincoln Memorial University. The Scots first road game will be Wednesday at Dayton, Tennessee in a doubleheader with Bryan.

The scheduled April 4 game at Greenville, Tennessee with Tusculum was rained out, and will be made up at a future date.

Employment Placement

Each year the Development Office here at MC sends out placement forms to all seniors to fill out and return to the Alumni Office in Anderson. However, many of these forms have not been returned by the seniors.

The purpose of completing these forms is for the benefit of the student and not the Administration. Until these forms are completed no recommendations or records can be sent from the college to your perspective employer.

Unknown to the student is the fact that failure to return these completed placement forms to Anderson may cost the student a perspective job. This happening is possible as illustrated in this example:

A graduating senior applies for a job during Spring Break. The perspective employer writes to the college asking for the student's confidential files. However, the student has failed to return the placement form administered by the college, thus resulting in the college's inability to forward any recommendations or records which quite possibly may result in the loss of a job. (The same problem may have resulted if a student were applying to graduate school.)

This problem could have been avoided had the student promptly completed the placement form and returned it to the Alumni Office in Anderson.

It must be made clear that this is not more "MC red tape" that seniors are required to go through. It is merely a service and benefit to the students.

So if you happen to be one of those seniors who as yet have not turned in your placement form, please consider the purpose behind it and get those forms in! It can only help, not hinder!

continued from page 1

Conference

A Maryville College graduate will be the other featured speaker at the April 20 conference. David Marston, class of 1964, now a staff associate to U.S. Senator Schweiker of Pennsylvania, will speak at 1:00 p.m. in the theatre.

The conference will also include a symposium on "Action at the Grass Roots" and several discussion groups including one on "Election Financing and Reform" led by Dr. Arda Walker, and one on "The Military-Industrial Complex Today" led by Dr. Harry Price.

Tickets for the conference can be obtained for 50 cents (student price) from Tricia Lloyd (Box 2423).

Dylan's "Real Reason"

(CPS) — The real reason Bob Dylan decided to undertake his 21-city, multi-million dollar tour was not a heavy tax debt, or Zionist commitments to Israel, reports Elektra/Asylum head David Geffen, who accompanied Dylan on the early stages of the tour.

"Dylan didn't do it for the money." Geffen explained in a Circus interview. "He did it because of the principle behind it. Dylan felt that today's music scene needed some kind of clear lead and impetus. Bob has been waiting for so long for someone to pick up the ball he threw down, and now he's had to do it himself."

Voice From The Past

I wonder if there are any great squabbles among the faculty members today. Surely they have their differences, but possibly they are discreet, or such differences have never been brought to the fore. In keeping with last week's statement that occurrences today are similar to those of yesterday, I will present a very entertaining incident which occurred here in 1926. Is it possible that this sort of thing is still going on? If so, I am sure that we would all enjoy knowing about it.

May 21, 1926 "Pugnacious Tendencies of Faculty Members Comes to Surface in Fierce Battle"

The bitter hostilities between the bobbed and non-bobbed lady members of the faculty reached an apparent climax last night when Miss Farrar and Miss Green clinched in a fierce hand-to-hand battle by the fountain, and were only separated after someone with unusual presence of mind had carried a bucket of water and thrown [it] on them.

The leaders of both factions gave out statements to the press late last night. Miss Wilkinson, leader of the bobbed contingent, said in part,"The thing has reached the place where something must give way or break. We with bobbed locks are in the minority, we must admit, but we have the old fighting spirit, and will not allow ourselves to be slandered by any of those old-fashioned fossils."

Mrs. Minton, leader of those with long tresses, was terse in her statements. "I have nothing to say," she said after talking ten minutes." We who have not the 'Boots Bob' are sitting tight. I regret the incident that took place tonight, but I regard it merely as a straw which shows which way the hair blows. If those short haired hussies wish to band together and form a reactionary coalition— let them look out. We have given them fair warning. 'Sic semper tyrannis,' as Aurant Drake says."

The directors refuse to comment on the situation.

RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Par-t-Pub

— Across From Pizza Hut —

Delicatassen

Hoagies - $1.05 & Tax
Corned Beef - $1.10 & Tax
Reuben - $1.05 & Tax
Turkey - 79¢
Ham - $1.05
Roast Beef - $1.05
Pastrami - $1.05

— Choice of Cheese —

Party Supplies of All Kinds

Drive-in Window
Call-in Orders Welcome
982-4251

10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Easy Curb Market

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

8:00 a.m. -
12:00 p.m.

Open All Holidays

BEVERAGES OF ALL TYPES

PICNIC SUPPLIES

715 East Broadway
Maryville

WE'RE OUT FOR BLOOD.

$10 per donation.
Plasma twice a week.
Or whole blood
every 8 weeks.

Monday through Saturday.
Free parking.

blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-3171
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

bank of maryville

Your Bank
In Blount County

Nowtown • West Maryville • Alcoa • Airport • Broadway • Chilhowee

A FULL SERVICE BANK

MEMBER F.D.I.C.

Election Results

Wenkstern Elected Co-chairman

All College Council elections for the 1974-75 school year were held Thursday, 11 April 1974. The election results are as follows:

Co-Chairman -Mike Wenkstern
Senior Members - James Batchler

Junior Members - Mike Johnston
Bill Walker

Sophomore Members - Libby Lowry
Administration - Dr. George Kramer
Mr. Neil McDade
Mr. Bruce Semple

Faculty (1-5 yr.) - Gale Rhodes
(6-15 yr.) - Dr. Charlotte Beck
Dr. David Cartlidge
(15-over) - Dr. James A. Bloy
Dr. Robert Ramger

Newly elected ACC co-chairman, Mike Wenkstern, has this to say about his position and ACC:

"As a virtual newcomer to ACC and its confines, I am at this point in time unable to declare any definite or even indefinite plans for the upcoming year. I think by virtue of my newness to Maryville's campus government I have an asset, this being that I will enter co-chairmanship with an open mind and an attitude that I hope is free from pre-conceived notions about the ineffectiveness of ACC and the causes of such.

Never having been involved in or with the ACC directly, I have had the relationship with the council that most students have—that is, I have experienced results of ACC's workings, but I have never voiced an opinion or participated in a meeting. The fact of my being elected co-chairman is proof enough that the ACC is open to new people, as well as ideas and opinions, and is not necessarily as isolated or pre-conceived as many people like to think. I hope more students will participate in ACC in the future, and realize that it has definite and practical applicability to our academic and social lives at Maryville.

The selections for next year's council are good, I think, in that I anticipate favorably the possibilities for development of a significant degree of rapport and cooperation between the new members. In short, I hope that we as members of next year's ACC can function as concerned individuals, representative of our own opinions as well as those of people whom we represent. In addition to this, I must also necessarily say that I hope we will realize that differing or opposing opinions are not destructive, but constructive, in many cases, and that our sensible interactions can benefit the college environment as a whole."

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 22 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | April 19, 1974

News Briefs

The obscenity issue is again before the Supreme Court.

The state franchise tax board in California ruled that part of their income earned in California.

The United Steelworkers of America accepted a new three-year agreement providing increases in pay and other benefits.

Reverend Edmund G. Ryan, Georgetown University's resident expert on exorcism and an extra in the film The Exorcist was fired Monday for "irreconcilable differences" with the University's president.

The Army has taken control in drought-stricken Niger.

Thousands flee from flash flooding in Mississippi - the damage is estimated at $50 million.

This week has been declared "National Tax Justice Week" by the National Clearinghouse for Tax Justice.

Lebanon has asked the United Nations to halt the Israeli raids across the border.

The FBI considers Steve Weed, Patricia Hearst's fiancee, a crucial figure in the kidnapping case.

The Harris Survey reports that "by 43 to 41 percent, a narrow plurality of the American people is now prepared to agree that President Nixon should be impeached by Congress.

Monday the Supreme Court let stand a lower court ruling that President Nixon's decision to order bombing of Cambodia in 1973 was legal.

South Vietnam called off the Paris peace talks with the Viet Cong Tuesday.

MC Briefs

Transcendental-Meditation Lecture, Monday April 22, FAC lounge

Bike ride at Cade's Cove, Saturday at 4:00 p.m. If interested in transportation contact Dr. Nichols or Mr. Beasley

Anyone interested in the editorship of the yearbook for next year, contact Mrs. Ussery in Communications

Folk Music Concert Saturday night

Grant Recipients

Chemistry Students Receive Grant

On April 8, 1974, the National Science Foundation announced the names of 115 colleges and universities from 43 states in the United States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico who will be participating in the 1974 summer Student-Originated Studies (SOS) program of the N.S.F. Maryville College was on the list as Art Fowler, Paul Viggiano, Barb Kerr, Beth Buchanan, Craig Rigell, and an undecided 6th member were awarded a $7,390 interdisciplinary grant for the study of hemalogical changes due to chemically induced hepatic tumors in Sprague Dawley rats. A student from another institution will be asked to join the team to be the seventh member.

In October of 1973, Dr. Ellis V. Brown from the University of Kentucky spoke to a group of biology and chemistry majors about a compound, 6-(p-dimethylaminophenylazo)-quinoline. Dr. Brown's talk stimulated a group of these students into writing out a proposed grant to the National Science Foundation. Because of an interest in cancer research, Art Fowler, Paul Viggiano, and Mike Wenkstern, one-time participant before his summer appointment at Oak Ridge, initiated, planned, and wrote in two months, a week-by-week schedule of a 10 week research study to be presented to the N.S.F. in hopes of a SOS grant. As the SOS is a student-initiated, student-planned, and student-directed program, the grant was written solely by the students involved and will be conducted by the 6 biology and chemistry majors, under the advisorship of Dr. W. Gale Rhodes, and under the student direction of Art Fowler, who was chosen by the group to be the director. With the grant now received, work will begin on June 10th and continue through August 16th.

The $7,390 will pay for all necessary equipment and materials needed for the research, other than those already owned by Sutton Science Center, and a $80.00 a week stipend for each participant, who each expects to be working a minimum of 40 hours a week. Within the 10 week period, the students hope to find some of the effects for a known chemical carcinogen in the blood of a Sprague Dawley rat in lieu of drawing conclusions as to the changes in the blood of a mammal that developing a malignancy.

Vespers

Vespers will be held in the Little Chapel this Sunday. A Christian singing group will present a program of folk gospel music at 7:00 p.m. Everyone is invited.

Gene Cotton In Concert

Folksinger Gene Cotton will be appearing at the Chapel on Saturday, April 20. Admission is $1.50 per person, and $2.50 per couple.

Gene Cotton is a singer/songwriter in the same style as James Taylor or Gordon Lightfoot. He has released (to date) four albums; his latest being "In the Gray of the Morning", which was released through Myrrh Records of Nashville. The title of this record comes from alline in the first song of the album, "Question", which was written by the Moody Blues. Other songs include "Apathy", "Blessed", "We Are Alone", "When the Ship Comes In" (a Bob Dylan song), and "American Indian Blues".

Folksinger-Gene Cotton

STAFF

MEMBER

CPS Member

Emerson D. Henderson
Editor-in-chief

Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Technical Editor

Don F. Gilbert
Business Manager

Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Faculty Advisor

Gwen Guba
Lay-out Assistant

Bill Walker
Assistant Business Manager

Tom Fox
Photographer

Louis Catrett
Distribution

WRITERS

S. Ahmed
J. Canon
C Craven
K. Darden
C. D'Aquila
P. Johnson
S. Morris
O. Myers
F. Strohl
M. Warf
D. Welch
C. Williamson
J. Yancey

from the editor's desk

ACC Elections

On Thursday, 11 April, 1974 the All-College Council was elected for the coming school year. On most college campuses, the election of college government representatives is a very enthusiastic event. Candidates try to make themselves known to the voters by actively campaigning. On the day of elections everyone waits excitingly for the election results, hoping that their candidate has won.

Maryville, being the unique institution it is, holds elections a little bit differently. We secretly nominate a person from our class by writing their name on a little card and dropping it in the nomination box. The nominees are then notified of their nomination three or four days before elections. Fact sheets containing the credentials of the candidates are made avalible the day before the election. Also at this time, the candidates are presented to a group of voters who are fewer in number than they are. As a result, a significant number of voters have no idea of who the candidates are on election day. Thus, many cast their vote for persons they are not familiar with and have no knowledge of how the candidates feel on important issues.

It seems obvious to me that our election procedure is certainly one area in which tradition might function more effectively. Being different is fine, as long as the basic functions of the system do not suffer because of it.

I'm glad that the All-College Council is already moving to solve these problems in our system. At its last meeting the Council decided to present future candidates to the community for questioning through a CIV. This is a beginning, but several other areas of the election process need to be examined closely before the subject of election reforms is dropped until next year.

An un-successful write-in candidate raised some serious questions concerning the nominating process. The ACC members were not even clear on the proper procedure of nomination. I hope that the questions raised by this candidate will not be ignored. The proper procedure should be made clear to the ACC and the college community if participatory democracy is our goal.

I realize there are many among us who couldn't care less about the election of the All-College Council. They feel it is not an effective decision making body and is controlled by the administration. After serving for two years on the Council. I also have my doubts about the system. Let's face it though. The ACC is the only government we have and we might as well try to make it work for us instead of totally dismissing it as "irrelevant."

Streaking Briefs

(CPS)—Streakers would be dismissed from college under a resolution introduced in the Missouri House of Representatives. Sponsor of the resolution said that streaking disrupted good order, caused crowd control problems, and had negative effects on the academic atmosphere of campuses.

Forty-five freshmen at Stanford University—who called themselves "Bay Area Runners Extraordinaire-Association of Stanford Streakers" (BARE-ASS)—ran almost two-thirds of a mile across the Golden Gate Bridge during rush hour.

A father and son streaking team were arrested at the University of Wisconsin (Milwaukee) on charges of lewd and lascivious conduct.

University of Seattle police arrested a nude non-student on campus and discovered that he had been arrested once before for indecent exposure near the university by city police. Released on personal recognizance the first time, the man was held without bail for the second offense.

Virgil Cleves, a 67-year-old Lima, Ohio man, was arrested for strolling nude with an unclothed female companion in the city's public square. Cleves insisted that he was not "streaking," At my age, said Cleves, it's called "snailing."

Echo Philosophy

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Academically Speaking

Medical Education

by Dr. Alton T. Tabereaux
Assistant Professor of Chemistry

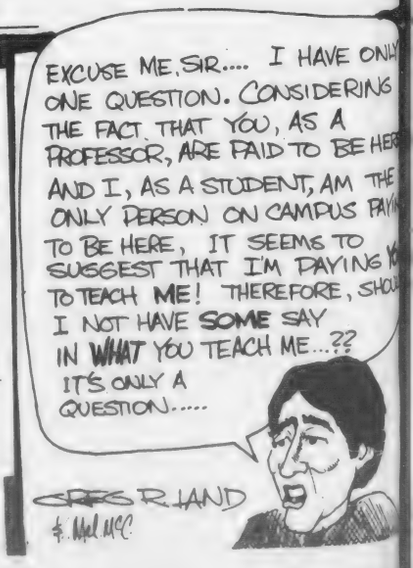
I recently represented Maryville College at a meeting of the Southeastern Association of Advisors for the Health Professions in Birmingham, Alabama. At the meeting, the Association of American Medical Colleges reviewed the current system of admission to American medical schools, and recommendations for changes in requirements for improving the system as it presently affects pre-professional students and their advisors, and medical researchers.

One of the topics discussed was the increasing participation of applicants and medical schools in a new admission program, the Early Decision Plan (EDP), whereby applicants may file a single early application prior to September 1 (their senior undergraduate year) and receive an early decision, usually by October 1. If admitted during the Early Decision segment of application year, the student agrees to attend the school to which he has applied under EDP. If the student's application is rejected then he may reapply to any school under the regular admission programs later in the year.

Future developments discussed included changes in the American Medical College Admission Service (AMCAS) form; in the Medical College Admission Test (MCAT); in the letters of recommendation; in grade assessment; and probably in the overall measure of student assessment.

Although the odds are usually much higher for a person involved in a science major to be accepted to a medical school, there are many medical schools interested in non-science or social science majors as long as a "baseline science interest and achievement" is met.

Students interested in attending foreign medical schools will find it becoming increasingly more difficult to pass qualifying examinations in the U.S. for those wishing to find a transfer place in a U.S. medical school, or to obtain certification in the U.S. for his foreign medical degree.



There is not likely to be now or in the near future an increase in medical school places to meet the rapidly rising demand. The continuing rise in the absolute number of applicants as well as in the ratio of applications per individual has led to the so-called "admission crunch" for medical schools.

As a premedical advisor, probably one of the most troublesome problems is with the rejected applicant. Fortunately, the premedical curriculum makes a student readily employable. Often the realization that a hospital or laboratory is eager to hire the student for a reasonable salary can provide the first step back to self-confidence. Many students have provided themselves with alternates by also applying to graduate programs in the life sciences, and become quite content in alternate roles of research scientists. Other students switch successfully to such fields as dentistry, pharmacy, hospital administration, optometry, public health, veterinary medicine, clinical psychology, physiotherapy, and physican's assistants in anesthesiology and in radiology. Others have chosen to teach biology, chemistry, physics, and mathematics on the secondary level.

Students interested in a medical career should analyze their own personal goals and values to determine their own desires and to realistically evaluate their strengths and weaknesses, taking a close look at the things considered important to them in relation to career decisions in medicine; to analyze their vocational interests as related to job information; to fully review the training hurdles that stand in their way; to consider their potential role in the field of medicine; and finally, to compare the indicators of their own abilities with the capabilities needed by physicians.

Notice

Anyone interested in an off campus job should see Mr. Ribble in the Financial Aid Office. Weekend jobs are available at Fontana Resort.

Letters to the Echo

They Had What it Takes

To the Editor:

From time to time I have heard it said that Maryville doesn't have the breadth to offer the opportunity or the quality of the "big schools". Last Saturday (4/6/74) was a big vote for small schools in general and Maryville College in particular.

Of 22 papers presented at the annual meeting of the Eastern Regional Division of the Tennessee Academy of Science only two papers came from "big state schools". Twenty of the papers were from small schools like Maryville and eight papers were from Maryville itself. Why the disproportionate representation? I think it is because only at a small institution is the undergraduate the V.I.P. Only at the small school will the professors spent their time worrying about undergraduate achievement outside the classroom. I believe the 10 to 1 ratio is indicative of opportunity availability in a small school.

All of this would, by itself, be a plus, but you should have been there. Rocky Brown, Barbara Rumplik, Terry Holly, Gil Nicholas, Mickey Schafer, Richard Feist, Lucy Murr, Richard Smock and J.B. Markley all gave superb professional presentations of research they conceived and conducted during the past year. Richard Smock brought additional honors to himself, his department, and his school by being voted the best paper in mathematics.

The opportunities are there if you seek them. I feel we can, and I am, very proud of these students. They had what it takes. . . do you?

Sincerely,
Andrew L. Klein

Sports

Paul Viggiano and Paul Bailey drove in three runs apiece Monday in leading the Maryville baseball team to a 7-2 nightcap victory over Lincoln Memorial University in a doubleheader played at Maryville. In the first game, Kevin McKinstry withstood a rough first inning and settled down to claim a 9-4 triumph. The Scots were 5-2 through Monday's action.

Earlier in the week, Maryville split a doubleheader with the second game 8-0.

Dave Spradlin went all the way for the Scots, striking out six, but three errors proved to be costly in the end. Earl McMahan's three hits, along with two each by Jim Lester and Dave Massey sparked the offense. McKinstry got his first victory of the season, although Doug Leonhardt did pitch the last two innings in earning the save.

The Scots went to Bryan College Wednesday for a scheduled doubleheader. Saturday, they face Covenant in a twin bill there. Twinbills are also slated at L.M.U. Tuesday, Bryan Wednesday, and at Clinch Valley Thursday. Wednesday's home doubleheader will get underway at 2:00 p.m.

Tennis

Last week Maryville's tennis team hosted the University of Tennessee at Chatanooga. UTC went home with a crushing 9-0 win over the Scots. The Scots played Milligan at Milligan on Thursday.

Track

Maryville's track team took a third out of four places in a meet at Sewanee last week. Also competing were Emory and Florence State. Maryville got no firsts, but the Scots has plenty of seconds. So far this season the 440 relay, high hurdles, long jump, and shot put have been Maryville's best events.

Maryville traveled to Mars Hill on Thursday.

Advantages of a Conference?

What are the advantages of Maryville College joining an intercollegiate athletic conference? The Administration and the Athletic Department think there are many, and that is why Maryville is pushing hard for the formation of a new N.C.A.A. Division III conference in the Tennessee-North Carolina-Virginia area.

New Head Football Coach Jim Jordon says the possibility of winning a conference championship and having the chance to participate in a post-season situation would be an incentive in building a strong football program.

"There is only one Division III conference in our area currently, including Georgetown, Sewanee, and Centre," said Jordon. "By creating another conference in our division, most Division III schools in our area would be covered by a conference. That area takes up a big chunk of the Southeast, and with the brand of football our potential conference members play (Emory and Henry, Madison, Randolph-Macon, Hampden-Sydney, Davidson and Guilford) chances would be strong for the champion to get a post-season, Division III bowl game bid."
Coach Jordon says such a football conference, where everybody plays

continued on page 4

From The Chaplain's Office

Would you be interested in working as a helper in an Indian mission this summer? There is a possibility that several students could be used for a period of from six to eight weeks working under the direction of the missionaries in charge of the work of the church on a number of Indian reservations in the Northwest and in the Southwest. Renumeration in such work would be minimal or perhaps non-existent but the opportunities for service to First Americans would surely be great. If this appeals to you, contact the chaplain's office at your convenience for the facts.

For more than 37 years students from Maryville College have rendered hundreds of hours of valuable service to the people of the Home Avenue area of Blount County. The Home Avenue Chapel is in the process of extending its program to meet the needs of the total community and there are many and varied opportunities for service in the areas of recreation, home visitation, and work with young people as their needs present themselves. The chaplain's office is your office and we would be glad to discuss this opportunity for service at your convenience.

Carrick In Honors Program

Alexander M. Carrick, a Maryville College junior biology major from Kobe, Japan, recently completed the 1974 MACCI- Oak Ridge Associated Universities Honors Program in the study and use of radioactivity.

The MACCI-ORAU program provides undergraduate science students with opportunity to gain hands-on type experience with specialized nuclear science equipment.

Topics studied by the group during the week-long program included: gamma-ray spectrometry, neutron activation analysis, health physics, radiotracers in biomedicine, protein-bonding analysis, and applications of computers to radiation studies.

Alex Carrick

A Dean's Eye View

by Carolyn Blair

The response to last week's CIV seminars on careers was enthusiastic. They represented what we intend to become a new emphasis on career planning and placement. Although no one would deny the importance of what college offers in intellectual growth and personality development, most students enter college because of vocational or professional goals. They expect, justifiably, guidance from teachers and counselors.

In the process of the Southern Association Self-Study made two years ago, we found that one of our weaknesses was the failure to provide job placement services. A questionnaire circulated last spring to recent transfers or drop-outs from Maryville indicated that although some transferred to get a specific major not offered here, most lacked a strong sense of purpose and direction.

These findings, corroborated by literature indicating that the problems are not peculiar to Maryivlle, led us to take steps to fill the need. Three faculty members—Dr. Walker, Dr. Fowler, and Dr. Rhodes—were asked to form a steering committee to project a program for this year and to make long-range plans. As would be expected of these three, they have done an outstanding job.

During the summer they held an intensive workshop, and they have met regularly throughout the year. Most of their work so far has involved gathering materials, working with faculty, and projecting a full-scale program that we hope to put into operation as soon as we can find the financial support.

The Committee has recommended the creation of an office with a director to centralize information and coordinate all career-related activities, including work-study programs. The recommendation also includes special testing and guidance for freshmen, instruction for seniors in techniques to use in seeking and applying for jobs and post-graduate study; maintaining a supply of current literature on job opportunities and each year having a career week to bring consultants to the campus to conduct seminars.

In the meantime, those who are concerned can find as much help as they are willing to seek. Faculty advisers have copies of the booklet "What's Next?" which the Committee compiled to publicize career opportunities available to a variety of majors. Much excellent new material is available in the library. Those who are groping for ideas would do well to read the list of the hundreds of vocations open to liberal arts majors. Sometimes it is simply a matter of stretching the imagination beyond the usual teaching, law and social work.

One strong message came through several of the seminars: employers are very much interested in the ability of applicants to read with understanding, to think logically, and to express themselves clearly. Whereas much of the training in specialized, technical fields soon becomes obsolete, the skills provided by a good liberal arts education never go out of date.

The ease with which a liberal arts graduate can be trained in particular job skills gives him/her the advantage of mobility at a time when it is predicted that the average person now entering the job market will make four or five changes during a lifetime.

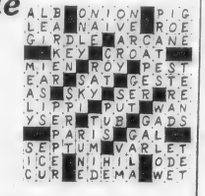
Recital

Ellen Mapstone and Bob Millner will present a recital on Thursday evening, April 25th at 8:15 p.m. in the FAC Recital Hall. A unique composition written by Bob will be performed.

A reception will be held immediately afterwards in the FAC lounge. Everyone is invited to attend.

continued from page 3

everybody else in the conference, could not take effect until 1975 because of schedule committments for 1974. However, Maryville already plays everybody with the exception of Guilford this coming season and there is talk about the conference starting next year with standings restricted to inter-conference action only.



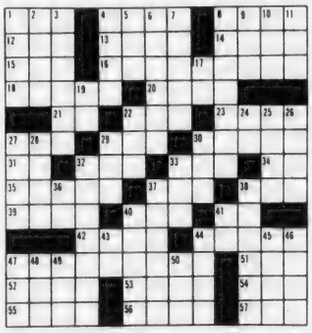
The main stumbling block to the formation of a conference are the member schools arriving on common ground. When the idea was first discussed ten years ago, everybody went their separate ways because they could afford to do so. There were no financial pressures on the athletic departments. However, according to Raymond Brahams, Administrative Assistant at Maryville, "the costs of running athletic programs on a small college have increased to the point where joining a conference is the most beneficial to the college."

The chief factor at arriving on common ground are the policies towards financial aid to athletics. Currently, Maryville gives financial aid to athletes on the basis of need and/or qualities of leadership. There are academic stipulations along the way also. At its January convention in San Francisco, the N.C.C.A. voted that in the future, Division III schools may only grant athletic financial aid on the basis of need. This could be a major step to finally reaching that common ground as all Division III schools must follow this ruling.

RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER

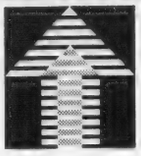
crossword puzzle

Answer to Puzzle No. 108



ACROSS

1 Swig
4 Capital of Latvia
8 Cancer
12 Tonal language
13 Rickenbacker and the Red Baron
14 Occurs by chance (arch.)
15 Drama: Joe ---
16 Dog
18 Flanders flower
20 Used with shift and box
21 Comparative suffix
22 Bog
23 Shade of green
27 Finished first
29 Jolt
30 Character from Peanuts
31 Article
32 Range of knowledge
33 Catcher in the ---
34 Steamship (ab.)
35 Fragrance
37 View
38 River in Scotland
39 Soccer hero
40 Insect
41 Symbol: helium
42 Used with drome and nautical
44 Kind of hemp
47 Character from Peanuts
51 Australian bird
52 Sea eagle
53 Saber's cousin
54 Fabulous bird of prey
55 Exploit
56 Auld lang ----
57 Attempt



DOWN

1 Footfall
2 Othello's nemesis
3 Character from Peanuts
4 Risque
5 --- liebe dich
6 Kind of counter
7 Pallid
8 Character from Peanuts
9 Gridiron cheer
10 Movie: The World of ---
11 Youth organization (ab.)
17 University of Arizona (ab.)
19 Abbreviation used in advertising
22 Aficcionado
24 The doctor is --
25 Terpsichore, for example
26 Being (Lat.)
27 Sociologist's term
28 One time
29 A certain set
30 Soap ingredient
32 Squeezed
33 Soak
36 -- Dorado
37 Character from Peanuts
38 Gobi, for one
40 Palacio de Bellas -----
41 Greeting
43 Plural suffix
44 Travel on thin runners (var)
45 Love Spanish style
46 World's greatest fusibudget
47 Spliced
48 Bauxite
49 Any number divided by itself
50 Period of time (ab.)

Distr. by Puzzles, Inc. No. 109 ©

WE'RE OUT FOR BLOOD.

$10 per donation.
Plasma twice a week.
Or whole blood every 8 weeks.

Monday through Saturday.
Free parking.

blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-3171
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

Easy Curb Market

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

8:00 a.m. -
12:00 p.m.

Open All Holidays

BEVERAGES OF ALL TYPES

PICNIC SUPPLIES

715 East Broadway
Maryville

Moser's

Your Headquarters For Outdoor Needs

featuring

Complete Lines of Tennis Clothing and Equipment

Tennis Clothing
Shirts - $10.00
Shorts - $6.99 to $19.00

Converse All Star Tennis Shoes
$18.95 - $19.95

Wilson and Sportscraft Rackets
$8.95 and up

Wilson and Sportscraft Balls
$2.95 per can and up

Complete Supply of Puma Shoes

Moser's Sporting Goods Store
Downtown Maryville

bank of maryville

Your Bank In Blount County

Nowtown • West Maryville • Alcoa • Airport • Broadway • Chilhowee

A FULL SERVICE BANK

MEMBER F.D.I.C.

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

News Briefs

The first American ambassador sent to Egypt since the June 1967 War was accepted warmly there Saturday.

A gas explosion tore apart a building near the United Nations, injuring 40 people and damaging several foreign, U.N. affiliated affairs.

James Earl Ray the confessed killer of Martin Luther King, went an a hunger strike Friday to protest being kept in solitary confinement. The strike ended Monday.

Frank McGee, host of "Today" show, died of pnuemonia Wednesday at the age of 52.

Lt. William Calley's sentence to life imprisonment has been reduced by President Nixon to the point where he is eligible for parole in five more months.

Another staunch Republican congressional district in Michigan voted democratic for the first time since the Depression.

Israeli air attacks on Syria continue.

Parents of the Kent State victims have been allowed by the Supreme Court to sue a former Governor of Ohio and Guard officers for eleven million dollars.

Nixon appointed William E. Simon as the new Secretary of the Treasury.

The F.B.I. is assuming that Patricia Hearst was a victim of coercian in the robbery made by the Symbianese Liberation Army. However, Attornev General Saxbe regards Miss Hearst as an active participant in the robbery.

A tape was sent to the authorities from the Symbranese Liberation Army saying that, if any police or F.B.I. raids are made on them in an attempt to rescue Patricia Hearst, five California policemen will be killed for every S.L.A. member harmed.

Egypt has announced that it will no longer depend solely on the Soviet Union to supply its arms, saying that they intend to work through the U.S. in seeking a settlement in the Middle East.

Inflation will be as bad or worse in the next three months than it was in the first three.

The White House is wondering what to do about the new supeona ordering President Nixon to turn takes and documents over to the Watergate prosecutor.

Ted Kennedy was hackled by Moscow students as he attempted to speak at Moscow State University.

A majority of Americans polled by Gallup still oppose annesty for Vietnam war resisters.

American diplomat Alfred A. Laun was wounded and kidnapped April 12 by Marxist urban guerrillas in Cordoba, Argentian.

Patricia Hearst is being sought on a material witness warrant which identifies her as a member of a heavily armed gang that robbed a bank and shot and wounded two passers-by.

High Ranking White House officials said that President Nixon will turn over "hard" evidence to the House Judiciary Committee which will prove his innocence in the Watergate cover up.

the Highland ECHO

Stanley Elected District Officer

The weekend beginning April 19th and ending the 21st was the date of the annual Circle K Convention of the Tennessee-Kentucky District. The Convention was held in Chattanooga at the Read House. Gwen Guba, Debbie Welch, Lyn Stanley, and Steven Douglas were the representatives from the Maryville chapter of Circle K.

The main purpose of the convention was to elect new district officers who co-ordinate events in Tennessee and Kentucky, and who help clubs with individual projects. The district is divided up into 6 divisions with a Lt. Governor at the head of each. Maryville is in the Smoky Mountain division and on Sunday morning, April 21st, Lyn Stanley, was elected the new Lt. Governor. Lyn's duties will be to communicate effectively with the clubs in this division, and be their link with the over-all district. Travel will also be a part of his job as he deems it necessary to keep in contact with the Circle K members. Lyn will play an important role in keeping Circle K the high esteemed service organization that it is now.

John Sortino

Sortino Honored

John Sortino, a junior chemistry major from Pompano Beach, Florida, has received a job offer for this summer from the Tennessee Eastman Company (a division of Kodak) in Kingsport, Tenn. He applied for the job and was one of eight persons chosen nationwide.

John will be working as an assistant to a research chemist where he will be directly involved with polymer chemistry: testing plastics, examining compounds with analytical machines, and conducting gas chromotography.

Although John's present plans are directed toward medical school, he wants to see what standards and techniques are employed in research.

Dr. R. Parker

Parker Awarded Grant

Dr. Russell D. Parker, Associate Professor of History here at Maryville College, received a research grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities for the year 1974-75. Dr. Parker's grant is a local research project of 6-9 months duration, concerned with "the interrelationships between human values and science and technology." The NEH is also supportive of "historical, social, and cultural studies of U.S. ethnic monorities." The project in point will incorporate both considerations. The precise topic for investigation will be announced later.

Approval of the project involved application to NEH, and review by referees competent to judge the applicant's ability as a teacher and interpreter of humanistic knowledge. The purpose of the fellowships is to give scholars and teachers an opportunity to undertake studies that will enable them to contribute significantly to knowledge in the field through their teaching, writing, and leadership in their professions.

Dr. Parker's other achievements include an article entitled "The Philosophy of Charles G. Finney: Higher Law and Revivalism," published in Ohio History, LXXXII (Summer-Autumn, 1973). The article examines the degree of compatibility between mid-eighteenth century evangelical revivalism and activist reform, particularly antislavery.

Bike Riders

The Bike Club will tour Cades Cove Saturday, April 27. All those interested in going should meet at Sutton Science Center at 3:00 p.m. Saturday afternoon or see Dr. Nichols or Mr. Beasley.

Vespers

Missionaries Dr. and Mrs. David Dorr will tell of their work in Yemen at the vespers service Sunday at 7:00 p.m. in the Little Chapel.

Littell To Speak

Dr. Franklin H. Littell, president of Iowa Wesleyan College and well-known clergyman and writer, will speak at CIV Friday, April 26, at 9:20 a.m. in Wilson Chapel.

Dr. Littell has held numerous offices in agencies of the Methodist Church as well as commission memberships in the National Council of Churches and World Council of Churches.

For almost ten years, he worked in Europe for the U.S. government during which time he was a member of inter-religious staffs. At one time he served as Chief Protestant Adviser to the U.S. High Commissioner for Germany.

On return to the states in 1958, Dr. Littell became consultant on Religion and Higher Education to the National Conference of Christians and Jews, a post he still holds. He participated in the founding of the Association of Coordinators of Religious Affairs, and has been a consultant to that professional organization since 1959.

He has written numerous articles and books, many on Jewish-Christian relations.

Honor Society Induction

The Freshman Women's Honor Society will induct three new members into the club on Monday, April 29, at a special meeting. The inductees, Libby Lowry, Ann McDonald and Colleen O'Shaughnessy have achieved a cumulative average of 3.5 for fall and winter terms, and are now eligible for membership.

The society was started at the beginning of Winter term and the charter members have since had regular meetings twice a month. They have also drawn up their own constitution, held a used book sale at the beginning of Spring term, and organized a tutoring service for fellow students. Many other projects are now in the planning stages for next year's activities.

At this time the club would also like to announce plans for another used book sale at the start of Fall term '74, so be sure to support this activity with your much needed books!

Retreat A Success

by Judson Stone

A group of students and faculty were joined by Dr. Joseph Sittler for a retreat at Tremont, Saturday, April 13. Inspite of uncertain weather conditions the group spent a rewarding time hiking, talking and discussing about the things of theology and ecology. Dr. Sittler presented a short talk on "A Theology of Ecology" which stimulated a discussion on

continued on page 4

from the editor's desk

Many members of MC's community constantly place us among the most apathetic student bodies in the country. The latest observer has placed us as high as number two on the list, second only to Kent State University. Being number two does not appeal to me at all. I think we should start a spirited movement, similar to our concerted effort to be number one in streaking, to become the most apathetic school in the nation. The "MAC Award" (Most Apathetic College) would certainly add to MC's prestige.

What can we do to become number one? We've done several things already. First, we let the All-College Council pass a measure on alcohol that didn't resolve the issue at all. I ask you, what other student body in this nation would have let such a vital part of their social lives be acted upon without them being present in large numbers to voice their opinions? We should be proud of our ability to stay away from such important issues.

Another plus for MC is that we have managed to keep our distance from educational and cultural opportunities outside of the classroom.

Very informative ecological films, programs on international understanding, black history programs, and an organized attempt to stop the United States government from spending $51 million on a bomber because it is ecologically harmful, have all failed to break our commitment to "non-action and silence" (Nixon would love to have us around Washington).

The most recent example of what we can do if we do not try was our reasonably successful boycott of last Saturday's conference on "Responsibility In Government" that was held on our campus. Our boycott would have been a total success if three of our students had not gotten out of bed at 8:30 in the morning to go discuss such things as: election reform and financing; the military-industrial complex; and what we can do to prevent another Watergate. It's students like these that might hurt our chances of becoming number one.

Finally, our ability to sit silently by as one of our fellow students was forced out of school on what many of us felt were questionable grounds should move us closer to the top. Many campuses would have been in uproar!

But keeping with our ideology of apathy, we did not even ask why. Great job fellow students! I did not think you had it in you!

As I have pointed out, we have almost reached the top without really trying. With the fourth aniversary of the Kent State killings approaching, all we have to do is sit back while the students at Kent State are forced to have at least a memorial service for the four students killed there in 1970. Their action will undoubtedly be recognized as one of concern and interest. This should put us in the top spot.

To remain number one we must not let the few among us who are "interested" in doing "something" influence our behavior. Getting to the top has not been easy. Let's try to stay there.

An open letter

My dear brother,

I merely assume at this time that you are theorizing the possibility of coming to the United States. Before you attempt to make up your mind, I must give you an insight into some of the characteristics of this land.

I think you should know that this New World has vastly changed since the time Christopher Columbus searching for a new route to India arrived here. But he did not return saying' sorry, wrong number,' as he would have, had he been one of us, but he stayed to ensure that people were civilized and modernized. You might remember reading in one of your high school text books that he called the first people 'Red Indians.' On coming over here I was really expecting to see some of them, but I haven't met any yet. I have heard however that they live in special 'Reservations.' Apparently they are being treated as special people because everywhere in the civilized world reservations in hotels, restaurants, clubs and sports stadiums are meant exclusively for special people and VIPs.

I am sure you must still be seeing those cowboy movies that, as I remember, you have always been so fond of. And you know I used to be a fan myself. But do not believe in all they show you. Things are very different here. There is no open wild shooting as it should be obvious to you from the fact that I am alive. There are no cowboys around, well this sentence may be partly wrong because the cows are gone but the boys are still around. I must now provide you with some information on foods. The dining hall here offers only two choices: take it or leave it. Frankly, this dining hall has been an occasional wonderland to me. Each time I enter it, I am ready for surprises. I do not imply that food here is bad, only that it is different. When you are new here, you find it hard to decide what to begin with and what to end with. Sometimes at dinner they serve pancakes and at supper, French toast. It appears to me that very soon they will be serving stews and roast beef at breakfast. At times it is really hard to identify some of the foods. They used to serve a main dish that looked like beef stew, smelled like Tuna fish and tasted like neither. This thing made me dream a lot at nights. And the dreams were like violent horror movies. But there was something really good about it because then you don't have to take all that trouble of going to a theatre and spending money to see a movie. You don't even have to sacrifice your study time. All you have to do is eat it and you can see cinemascope, technicolor pictures in your own room.

To tell you the truth, this is really a fun place, full of variety and beauty. But you know it as well as I do that much depends upon the beholder.

So my dear brother, now that you have some knowledge of how things are taking place here, you should make your own decision, keeping in mind what Khalil Gibran once said

I discovered the secret of the sea in meditation upon the dewdrop.

by Shahbaz Ahmed

STAFF

MEMBER

Emerson D. Henderson
Editor-in-chief

Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

CPS
Member

Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Technical Editor

Don F. Gilbert
Business Manager

Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Faculty Advisor

Gwen Guba
Lay-out Assistant

Bill Walker
Assistant Business Manager

Tom Fox
Photographer

Louis Catrett
Distribution

WRITERS

S. Ahmed
J. Canon
C Craven
K. Darden
C. D'Aquila
P. Johnson
S. Morris
O. Myers
F. Strohl
M. Warf
D. Welch
C. Williamson
J. Yancey

Guest Editorial

by Raymond L. Stanley, Jr.
Technical Editor

The budding weeks of spring in the foothills of the Smoky Mountains have obviously overwhelmed MC and her exterior housekeeping procedures. At present, the lawns are very untidy; the edges about the buildings are disgraceful; and the overall appearance of MC's multimillion dollar physical plant is one sight for sore eyes.

Obviously spring 1974 has brought with all its beauty a very serious problem of either a lackadaisical house or one of ineffective management of the non-academic personnel. This is not a new problem to college.

Last September, many of the non-academic personnel were frustrated to no end by the refusal of even a cost of living raise. Although they did finally work out some of their problems, right now there are people working seven days a week without any personal compensation. There are few of these working men and women who have been with MC for twenty years and still the pay scale awards their dedication with only $2.00 per hour—which so happens to be the new national minimum wage effective 1 May 1974.
This in no way attempts to give a complete picture of the abuse these dedicated men and women receive for keeping MC on her physical feet for years. Many of these people we never see, but they continue to sweat in an attempt to support their families and also their MC friends.

Everyone of these poeple are at work each morning bright and early, but this can not be said for many of the other personnel, both academic and non-academic, who preoccupy themselves with the desk jobs of today's working world. It is not an unusual sight to wander through Anderson most any morning to find that many of these desk positions are still dark and stained with yesterday's coffee.

As these budding weeks of spring 1974 blossom, we should keep a keen eye on the management of the personnel we help pay. We have a beautiful little campus and I hate to see MC falter in this day and age of disaster for America's small colleges due to the ineffective management of her household.

Higher Education Budget

by Chip Berlet, NSA Magazine

(CPS)—The proposed federal budget for higher education in fiscal 1975 accomplishes a linguistic ballet when it claims it "continues the shift in Federal support from institutional assistance to student assistance which began several years ago."

This is not entirely correct. This is the third year the Nixon administration has attempted to reorder the funding priorities in higher education. Congress has repeatedly rejected the Administration's plan to place major emphasis on individual student aid through Basic Opportunity Grants (BOG) and Guaranteed Student Loans (GSL) while eliminating Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, Direct Loans, and categorical programs such as aid to Land-Grant colleges, university-community ser-

continued on page 4

Echo Philosophy

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

A Dean's Eye View

Questions from students about subjects mentioned in this column suggest the need for fuller details on at least two topics, the Tremont Experience and career planning information.

The new catalog contains a description of the Tremont term, but before the catalog comes off the press students who want to go to Tremont will need to look ahead to find a term that can be devoted primarily to electives. The scheduling may be easier for biology majors than for others, but with careful planning most can take advantage of the ten-week term.

Credit is given for from one to three courses (each graded separately): (1) a reading or seminar course (depending upon the number of participants) that will involve reading, research, field trips, and discussion of current environmental problems; (2) Environmental Program Participation, including practical experience in programming, teaching, scheduling, maintenance, and camp administration; and (3) a choice of Biology 203, 209, or 310E.

To promote the program, Andy Miles of the Tremont staff has invited all those interested to spend a day at Tremont this spring to learn about the Center and its opportunities. If you think you would like the Tremont Experience—and will not constitute a commitment—register you interest with Dr. Shields or me by May 1, and we will determine with Mr. Miles the most convenient day for the entire group to have a preview.

The inability of last week's CIV speaker to deal specifically enough with audience interests in career opportunities, in spite of her experience in the Labor Department, indicates that perhaps the most satisfactory approach is on an individual basis. Until you can find an authority to answer your specific questions, I want to suggest one reliable, easy-to-use source: The Occupational Outlook Handbook published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

You can obtain the current edition by asking for it at the circulation desk in the Library, but an older edition, still helpful for most occupations, is in the Career Room. The short, simple introduction provides the key to the efficient use of the Handbook, which lists more than 700 occupations under eight major divisions. The discussion of each occupation follows a set outline that includes the nature of the work, necessary preparation, employment outlook, and where to go for further information.

One of the students who talked with me after CIV was interested in television. The Handbook has a section entitled "Radio and Television Broadcasting," organized under four headings, with a full discussion of each. For the programing area, it recommends a liberal arts degree, adding that young poeple are often hired on the basis of potential rather than specific training, "but the more skills, education, and varied background these beginners have, the better will be their chance for advancement." I thought of an M.C. history major who in less than a year since graduation is already moving up in this field.

Another helpful section is the one on allied health services. Those headed for such specialized areas as occupational therapy, X-ray technology, or hospital administration will find the guidance they need for tailoring individual majors. Those in economics might check on such fields as marketing research to find which undergraduate courses will be most useful.

With the opportunity Maryville offers for individualized majors and field terms, it is possible to tailor curricula for a wide variety of interests. The Handbook plus the additional sources it lists can provide a good basis for planning.

by Carolyn Blair

Track
Osborne Breaks Record

Maryville's trach team took a second and third place in last week's track meets. Last at Mars Hill, Maryville grabbed a second place against Mars Hill and Emory Henry. Mike Osborne was a triple winner, capturing the 120 yard high hurdles the javelin, and 440 year intermediate hurdles. In taking the high hurdles Osborne set a school record with a time of 15.3 seconds. Rick Livernoise also recorded a first for Maryville in the shot put.

The Scots took a third last Saturday against Carson-Newman and Milligan at Carson-Newman. Mike Osborne turned in another record-breaking performance. This time he cracked his own record in the intermediate hurdles with a time of 56.8 seconds. His record was good for a first along with a tie for first in the high hurdles. The Scots battled Swanee, here, Wednesday and will go to Centre tomorrow.

Girl's Intramurals

Stance of A "Winner"

Wanted:

Applications are now being accepted for the editorship of next year's yearbook. Applications or more information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Clyde Ussery in the Communications Office.

Scots Break Even

The Maryville baseball team ran its season record to 9-4 last week as they swept a Wednesday doubleheader at Bryan, 8-0 and 8-1, a Saturday doubleheader in Chatanooga versus Covanant, 7-5 and 12-6, but being swept in a twinbill at Harogate, Tennessee with Lincoln Memorial University on Tuesday, 8-7 and 7-6.

Charlie Allcott, making his first appearance ever with the Scots, was the winning pitcher in the first game at Dayton, Tennessee against Bryan. The Freshman hurler went the distance in pitching a two-hitter. He had a no-hitter going for four-and-a-third innings. Earl McMahan and Joe Moffett were the hitting stars as each got three hits. The second game saw McMahan make his first mound appearance of the season successful, although Doug Leonhardt did come on to pitch the last three innings on the way to a save. Moffett and Wayne Risko each had two hits. McMahan drove in two runs to help his cause.

Saturday's first game with Covenant saw the Scots get timely hits from Dave Clinton and Paul Schultz. Clinton picked up three rbi's on a homer in the third. Leonhardt was credited with the victory, although he did get relief help from Kevin McKinstry. A Maryville highlight was the execution of a triple play in the sixth inning. The second game found Maryville outhit 15 to 6, but again those six were timely. Risko had three rbi's, while Schultz and Paul Viggiano drove in two each. Kevin McKinstry came back to pitch this one also, and even though he gave up 15 hits, stayed in for the game's entirety.

Monday's double loss to L.M.U. was heartbreaking in that the Railsplitters scored the winning run in each game in the bottom of the seventh inning. The Scots tied the first game at four in the top of the seventh as Jim Lester walked, Earl McMahan singled, Randy Pennington doubled, and eventually scored on a wild pitch. However, in the bottom of the seventh, the Railsplitters got a runner on third with two out when Jack Faidley hit a groundball through the legs of Joe Moffett to drive in the deciding run. In the second contest, the Scots, trailing 6-2, scored four runs in their half of the seventh to tie the score, but a lead off homerun in the bottom of the inning by Faidley finished action for the day.

Voice From The Past

by Olivia Myers

In my search for similar incidents of yesterday and today, I have inevitably discovered evidence of stark differences between our time and another. The following letter dated 1924, was reprinted in the Echo on October 17, 1964. Could you see today's Theta Epsilon doing a production of "Little Women?" Really! Or how about starting a Tex-Ark-Oma Club? It might have all of six people. (I do believe, however, that a Garden State Club for people from New Jersey might be "just the thing.") Now, as for moonlighting, that goes on 24 hours a day and seven days a week and 52 weeks of the year and. . .

"Dearest Mother and Father,
Each day I spend here 'on the Hill,' I find more exciting things to do. Next weekend some of the girls are going on a hike. My new knickers will be just the thing for it.

The past week was our chance to become acquainted with the two girls' literary societies—Bainonian and Theta Epsilon. They had a joint bonfire out in the college woods. It is so difficult to decide which one to join. They each have such exciting things planned. Why, last year Theta did a production of "Little Women." And this year Bainonian plans to do 'Miss Lulu Bett.'

Oh, I did some moonshining yesterday. You know, that's what we call walking or talking, etc. with a member of the opposite gender. We are allowed to pursue this sport at noon (12:50-1:10), Monday afternoons (1:00-4:30), to church on Sundays, at hall games, social functions at the chapel, and other like occasions.

My roommate has joined the TEX-ARK-OMA Club. It is a state club which she is eligible to join because she comes from Arkansas. I fell rather left out because there are not enough here from New Jersey to form a Garden State Club.

I must close for now and prepare for our football game with LMU. Last year we defeated them, 74-0. Of course, it was their football debut.

Your loving daughter,
Gladys"

CIV Budget and Schedule

Each year the CIV Committee, under the chairmanship of Dr. McClelland, is required to draw up a planned CIV schedule that will run throughout the school year. More than once students have voiced their opinion that the CIV programs leave a lot to be desired. However, few practical suggestions are ever made. True, many have complained that we need to have well known national figures speak that will present "worthwhile" programs. What many fail to realize is the budget which the CIV Committee is given to work with and the numerous programs required throughout the year.

The CIV budget for this year was $6,500. Depending on how well known the speaker is and where he will be traveling form makes quite a difference in the expense of each speaker. More than $200.00 for pure expenses, such as transportation and board, is the minimum expense per speaker who is not from the local area. Besides expenses, one must consider the honorarium involved.

continued on page 4

continued from page 3

CIV

Preparation of a CIV program schedule which is to run an entire year is not an easy job. Much time, planning and expenses are involved. If anyone has any suggestions, please contact any member of the CIV Committee or leave a note in Dr. McClellend's post office box.

The committee hopes to distribute a survey near the close of this year which will ask students to rate this years CIV programs and to make suggestions for future programs.

continued from page 2

Budget

vices, and undergraduate instructional equipment.

Last year a similar budget drew an overwhelmingly negative response form many legislators as well as institutional groups and student associations. Congress rewrote the entire higher education budget.

An analysis prepared by staff representatives of 16 postsecondary associations predited a similar fate this year. "It is fair to assume that the Congress will again reject proposals not in keeping with Congressional intent, the law as written, or the best interests of the country as the Congress views them," said the report.

RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER
RECYCLE THIS PAPER

continued from page 1

Tremont

the place and role of nature in man's relationship with God.

The Christian's attitude toward nature is many times limited to dispondancy. Appreciation for the natural world has been left to individual discovery resulting in the majority of people misusing the natural resources. This attitude is changing as people become aware of the plight man has put himself in and as they learn that what God created was good. Dominion over the earth carries a two fold reponsibility: 1) use and 2)care.

The recreation, discussion and company gave everyone a sense of time well spent.

ATTENTION:
BLOOD BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

$10 per donation.
Plasma twice a week.
Or whole blood
every 8 weeks.

Monday through Saturday.
Free parking.

blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-3171
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

Easy Curb Market

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

8:00 a.m. -
12:00 p.m.

Open All Holidays

BEVERAGES OF ALL TYPES

PICNIC SUPPLIES

715 East Broadway
Maryville

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

BLOUNT The Leader NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Moser's

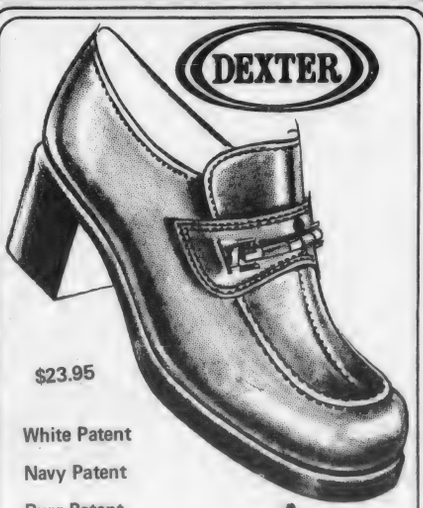
Your Headquarters For Outdoor Needs

featuring

Complete Lines of Tennis Clothing and Equipment

Tennis Clothing
Shirts - $10.00
Shorts - $6.99 to $19.00

Converse All Star Tennis Shoes
$18.95 - $19.95



Wilson and Sportscraft Rackets
$8.95 and up

Wilson and Sportscraft Balls
$2.95 per can and up

Complete Supply of Puma Shoes

Moser's Sporting Goods Store
Downtown Maryville

elegance

$23.95

White Patent
Navy Patent
Burg Patent

Southern shoes

Midland Center
Alcoa

News Briefs

John Mitchell and Maurice Stans have been found innocent of all charges of conspiring to defraud the government.

Police in Guatemala City discovered more bodies-the latest victims of the "Death Squad," a vigilante group which kills known criminals.

Japan's Emperor Hirohito celebrated his 73rd birthday Monday.

The FBI in San Francisco has appealed to the public for information to help in the search for members of the SLA.

Detroit has set a new monthly record for homicides at 78.

Governor George Wallace says he will run for president in '76 if voters want him to.

The military junta in Portugal promises elections within a year.

Black mayor Johnny Ford of Tuskegee, Ala. endorses Gov. Wallace in his re-election bid.

108,000 auto workers remain on an indefinite lay off because of a continued sales slump.

The House Judiciary impeachment staff emphasis on Nixon's handling of tax matters as a major area of emphasis.

The nation's largest oil company reduces it's first quarter profits by approximately 400 million.

The Federal Energy Office calls on the nation to renew fuel conservation efforts during the summer months.

The United States balance of trade slipped back into deficit last month due to the rising price of foreign oil.

The legal staff of the House Judiciary impeachment inquiry has narrowed it's list of potential charges against President Nixon from 56 to 37.

President Nixon is to make more public appearances while impeachment hearings are being held.

An American and a Soviet astronaut will meet in orbit during a mission in July '75.

A poll by the Christian Science Monitor shows Sen. Edward Kennedy losing ground to Sen. Henry Jackson for Democratic presidential nominee.

MC Receives Grant

Maryville has received a grant of $2,000 from the Cities Service Foundation of Cities Service Company's Copperhill Operation.

A check for the amount was presented by Ernest Simmons, manager of employee and public relations at Copperhill.

The Cities Service Company contributes to more than one hundred colleges and universities each year through the Cities Service Foundation. A Personal representative of the Company always delivers the grant check in order to see the program the company is contributing to.

In addition to these grants, the company provides national merit scholarships for children of Cities Service employees and matched gifts of employees to some 200 colleges and universities.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 24 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | May 3, 1974

"Dracula" Cast

MC Playhouse Presents "Dracula"

by Christine D'Aquila
Echo Staff Writer

Dracula, a play by John Balderston and Hamilton Deane, will be presented by the MC Playhouse May 9, 10 and 11 in the college theatre.

The cast, in order of appearance, includes:

Miss Wells, maid . . .Ellen Bercovitz
Jonathan Harker . . George Lundy
Dr. Seward . . . . Howard Welsh
Abraham VanHelsing . Steve Yuhasz
R.M. Renfield . . . Robert March
Butterworth, attendant . . Mike Jacobus
Lucy Seward . . . Belinda Chiddie
Count Dracula . . . John Gosset
Assistant to the Director-Stage Manager . . . Mary Story

Dracula is based on the novel by Bram Stoker and was first presented in London in 1927. It then opened at the New York Fulton Theatre on October 5, 1927 and ran for 261 performances. Bela Lugosi first appeared when Dracula came to Broadway. The film version was brought out in 1931.

The play follows the novel fairly well except that it is more modern. The story centers around Dr. Seward's samitorium. His daughter, Lucy, becomes ill after the death of a good friend who had the same symptoms that Lucy now has. One of her symptoms is the two puncture wounds on the side of her neck. Dr. Seward sends for Dr. VanHelsing who believes in vampires. Dr. VanHelsing, discovering that Lucy has been wounded by a vampire, sets out to trap the vampire. His mission is successful as he cathces Count Dracula and administers his just rewards—a stake driven through his heart.

Dracula is a melodrama, but will appear quite funny to the audience because of the time when it was written. Director Blair Beasley stated that, "The audience will enjoy it more if viewed within the context of style and time." If viewed accordingly, the play will be "quite scary and suspenseful."

Technical gimmics will play an important part in Dracula as bats appear to fly around the stage and people appear and disappear suddenly. Eiry lighting affects will add quite an effect as will the fog machine. Plans for the fog machine were provided by a theatrical consultant in Washington, D.C.

Scenically, there is only one set, but by a few minor changes, three different localities will be presented.

continued on page 4

Honor Society Elects New Members

The Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society has selected twelve new members from the senior class. There are five requirements for receiving this honor. One must have a grade point average of at least 3.33, be a resident of the college for a minimum of one and two-thirds years, be of high moral character, have a status of regular enrollment, and be a standing senior. A junior who has achieved exceptional excellence may be elected by a unanimous vote.

Those elected to membership in the honor society are: Doug Cunningham, a health and physical education major from Nutley, N.J.; Debra Gibson, a Spanish major from Maryville; Phil Gibson, an English major from Maryville; Sarah Hardrath, an art major from Atlanta; Princess Hicks, an English major from Madisonville, Tenn.; Patricia Lloyd, a religion major from Wilmette, Ill.; Jane Beth Markley, a mathematics major from Concord, Tenn.; Mike Minnix, a religion major from Hershey, Pa.; Phillip Monk, a sociology major from Maryville; Barbara Robinson, an elementary education major from Wilmington, Del,; Barbara Rumplik, a psychology major from Ft. Myers, Fla,; and Kathleen Snatchko an art major from Blenshaw, Pa.

Alpha Gamma Sigma was founded at Maryville in 1935. Three chartered members of the society are still connected with Maryville College. They are Mrs. Lightfoot, Dean Massey, and Mary Welch.

Orchestra Concert TOnight

The Maryville College-Community Orchestra will present two senior music majors, Tina Bergner and Ellen Myers, as guest soloists in their spring concert tonight at 8:15 p.m. in the Wilson Chapel. Tina, a voice specialist, will sing the Musettas Waltz from La Boheme by Giccamo Puccini. Ellen, whose proficiency is French horn, will perform the final movement of Richard Strauss' Concerto for French Horn.

Director Lee Kull has planned the program to include some of "the more popular items of classical music." He has selected the Egmont Overture by Beethoven, Finlandia by Sibelius, the Overture to Der Freischutz by Von Weber, and the L'Arlesienne Suite by Bizet.

In the five years that Professor Kull has been its director, the College-Community Orchestra has developed into an organization which has received both statewide and national recognition. In addition to being

continued on page 4

Orchestra Prepares Concert

Letters to the editor

On Apathy and Stealing

Last week, the Echo carried an editorial on the problem of apathy at Maryville College. Another pitiful example of student apathy is that of stealing; stealing from one another, or from the dining hall's supply of eating utensils, etc. I feel that if students were serving Christ and brother man, apathy would have little basis on which to function and that problems caused by apathy—such as stealing from the dining hall or from others—would cease and be amended. There is no reason that student apathy should continue to be a issue at M.C.—how about it?

Robert Wertime

Fear! Not Apathy!

To the editor:

So we are no. 1 in Apathy. "First we let the All-College Council pass a measure on alcohol that didn't resolve the issue at all." Well, what issue? The measure the ACC passed was meant for the alumni and in what lawyers like to slang—"legality;" however to legislate morality is well beyond the powers of even the biggest dreamer in the ACC—they probably garggled with Listerine after their recital.

Laws which are not enforced, are no laws at all. Ancient honorable sage of sea once said honorable wise words:

Man who cause no waves,
No rock the boat.
Boat that Rocks not;
Sinks not!

Why spoil a good thing. Now on to more cultural and academic topics. The reason we seem to keep our distance form educational and cultural opportunities outside of the classroom is that we find so many of the educational and cultural opportunities inside the classroom so unstimulating that we develop a mental block against anything outside of our major. After-all, there's more than one insecure professor or associate professor around the college woods at night.

You mentioned a conference on "Responsibility In Government" our student body boycotted: "At least it would have been a successful boycott it three students hadn't gotten out of bet at 8:30 to go discuss such things as; election reform and financing; the military-industrial complex; and what we can do to prevent another Watergate." Since you knew all the details so well, you must have been one of the three culprits who thwarted our efforts at being no. 1.

Now let's back-track a second and pick that conference title again, "Responsibility In Government." Maryville College holds a conference to show us how we can be responsible in our national government. Actually, we need a conference on responsibility in campus government. Any government which holds an instant popularity contest as a democratic election lends itself to being a circus. Also any system which uses its non-existent codes to usurp power and prolong the status quo has the taint of totalitarianism. Yet, we know that not to be. After-all, we put our popular friends on the same throne, and they follow the yellow brick road to the land of oz.

If that makes no sense to you—I ask you what sense is government without the consent of the governed? If the Bill of Rights of the Constitution of the United States is to be banned from campus, we'll find even our press afraid to sound off even "his majesty's opposition."

Fear, that seems to be the general specter rather than apathy. Fear to speak out; fear to have a democratic ACC; fear to drink your beer at the student center. Well, it might not be fear, but just plain common sense—after-all not even you who got up at 8:30 (on a Saturday morning!) to find out about responsibility in government dare ask the Chairman of the ACC for his resignation. Well, it's not as if you were asking the President of the school for his resignation. In anycase, it shouldn't be: the President of the school should not be chairman of the college government. One office is subservient to the other and no man can owe allegiance to two masters. Also the mere presence of the President of the school on the All-College Council tends to create the over-shadowing of the rest of the Council. This should be remedied and it shouldn't be as painful as some would have it. Leaving it as it is would be fine, but its not going to make the ACC more democratic. Maybe we can achieve that through a long evolutionary process—or maybe we don't teach evolution at Maryville.

Sincerely,
Your Pen Pal,
Willy Vidal

STAFF

MEMBER

Emerson D. Henderson
Editor-in-chief

Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Technical Editor

CPS
Member

Don F. Gilbert
Business Manager

Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Faculty Advisor

Gwen Guba
Lay-out Assistant

Bill Walker
Assistant Business Manager

Tom Fox
Photographer

Louis Catrett
Distribution

WRITERS

S. Ahmed
J. Canon
C Craven
K. Darden
C. D'Aquila
P. Johnson
S. Morris
O. Myers
F. Strohl
M. Warf
D. Welch
C. Williamson
J. Yancey

from the editor's desk

Four Dead In Ohio

(editor's note: May 4, 1974 marks the fourth anniversary of the 13-second rifle barrage which left four Kent State University students dead and nine wounded. The shootings occurred during a demonstration protesting the U.S. invasion of Cambodia.)

Students on Kent State Common make obscene gestures towards guardsmen.

Students scurry for cover in parking lot during the shooting.

Guardsmen proceed towards students behind tear gas.

After the shooting students aid one of the wounded while guardsmen look on.

A Dean's Eye View

Last week's editorial challenged Mary villians to work for the "Most Apathe tic College Award," to nose our chief competitor out of the number one position. The evidence provided to substantiate our claims to first place was disturbingly convincing.

Then came Saturday evening. The occasion was an international dinner. The official hosts were student representatives of Thailand, Pakistan, and Nigeria. Nuanthip Bunnag, Shabaz Ahmed, and Patrick Ndoma shared with some forty friends, representing a cross section of the community, not only their native foods, but the warmth of their friendship and an understanding of their culture. They were assisted by members of the World Concern Committee, under the leadership this year of Chairman Geneva Parker and Co-chairman Virginia Turrentine.

This dinner represented just one example of the way in which both individuals and committees of the All-College Council work quietly but effectively to create a better living-learning environment. I thought of such student-initiated events as the Nigerian Independence Day celebrations, the CIV program on the Arab world, and the program in commemoration of Black History Week. All pose a serious threat to our achievement of the "Most Apathetic College Award."

These signs of interest in international affairs, especially in the non-Western world, suggest a direction and an emphasis that Maryville College needs more than ever before. Perhaps, as some have suggested, we should organize an international group to promote the extracurricular activities that would bring better understanding.

Certainly much remains to be done within the curriculum, using the Non-Western Studies as the base. We have been fortunate in having the leadership of Dr. and Mrs. Price in Chinese studies. Others on the faculty in the student body, and in the Maryville-Alcoa area have expertise that should be tapped. Two faculty members will spend the coming summer participating in the Ethnic Heritage Seminar to West Africa in preparation for the African segment of the Non-Western course.

In short, we have numerous opportunities to free ourselves from Western provincialism. Each step we take will move us further from the "most apathetic" category and closer to the achievement of one of our stated purposes: preparation for effective participation and leadership in the larger community of mankind.

Soccer Club Victorious

Doctor David P. Young showed the MC Soccer fans on Saturday, April 27 that he not only can coach, but score goals, as the team beat Tennessee Wesleyan 6-2.

Dan "Pele" Bergner led the scoring with four goals and an additional ball in the net called back on a penalty. He also assisted Coach Young in his hat-trick in the second half. The strong MC line also had brilliant passing and shooting from Gary Sloboda, Goeoff Lang, and Laurie Hill.
Half-back Brad Hague pounded in a goal with an explosive head-shot in the second half that the shell-shocked Wesleyan goalie could not stop. Devastating defense was also displayed by half-backs Bill Walker, Tom Sarrells, and Dave Haimbach.

Full-backs "Bucky" Buckwalter and Willy Vidal put on an exemplary performance and helped goalie Mike Sanders hold the Wesleyan score to two goals.

The booters have three remaining games: Walters State on May 1 and U.T. May 3 and 10.

Track & Tennis Results

Walter (Sweet) Clarit

Maryville handily won two track meets last week. MC overwhelmed Swanee 76-66 and Center 85-60. At Swanee, Walter (Sweet) Clarit captured three first places for the Scots. Clarit won the 100-yard dash, the broad jump, and the triple jump. Tom Duling erased his own discus record by throwing the platter 131 feet, 1 inch. At Centre, Mike Osborne once again was a triple winner, taking the 120-yard high hurdles, 440-yard intermediate hurdles, and the javelin event.

In a tournament over the weekend, Maryville's tennis team took one victory while bowing twice. The netters lost to David Lipscomb and Harding College by identical scores of 9-0. In their win over Trevella, 6-3, the Scots got wins from Craig Larsen and Sutton Brown in the doubles and singles. Earlier in the week, MC lost to TWC, 8-1, with Arlene Ignico the lone Maryville victor.

Art Exibited

There are several interesting art exhibits around campus this week. In the Gallery of the Fine Arts Center Lynne Cross and Cindy Jones are showing their work. Maureen Mead and Kim Robinson have a well-done print display in the library. Exhibiting what they learned in Visual Theory class, Joe Arvidson, Stephanie Crane, Lynn Holberg, and Kim Robinson have put their artistic efforts in the showcase in the lobby of Pearsons.

May Madness!

The old tradition of May being the month for crazy flings and spring frivolity has been carried on for many years at Maryville College by the celebration of May Madness. The long-time celebration began as Mother's Day Riots. Old-timers tell stories of everyone going crazy for one day, dousing house mothers in water fights and panty raids as some of the highlights. Inhibitions were stowed away with winter clothing and surpressed feelings of fun and good-times were worn on the faces of everyone who wasn't afraid to get involved. After a few years of Mother's Day Riots getting out of hand, the idea was organized into May Madness.

This year May Madness will begin Saturday, May 11th, with possibly a tubing contest in the mountains and a cook-out Saturday night. The games begin on Sunday at 2:00 p.m. There will be relays, bat races, bed races, 3-legged races, climbing greased pole races, pie eating contests, and a finale of the traditional Mud Hole Tug-a-war. Also the performances of Dracula on May 9th-11th will add to the excitement and thrills of the occasion.
If anyone is interested in getting up a coed team of 12 or more members, sign up with the Entertainment Committee in Pearson's lobby, Wednesday and Thursday, May 8th and 9th during dinner.

Lewis outstanding Educator

Dr. Wallace Lewis, associate professor of history at Maryville College, has been named Outstanding Educator of America is an annual awards program honoring distinguished men and women for their exceptional service, achievements, and leadership in the field of education.

Each year those chosen are featured in the national awards volume, Outstanding Educators of America.

Dr. Lewis has been at Maryville College since 1962. He received the B.A. degree from the University of Akron and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Iowa.

Dr. W. Lewis

Individualized Majors Party

Individualized Majors will have their annual party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Swenson on Monday evening, May 6. Transportation will be available for students who will assemble in front of the chapel by 6:15.

Members of the Individualized Major Committee who will assist the hosts include Dr. Wallace Lewis, Dr. David Young, Dr. Viola Lightfoot, and Dr. Elizabeth Fowler.

Bike Club

This week the bike club will ride to Look Rock from the college. The round trip will be about 30 miles. The group will leave at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, May 4. Anyone interested in going, should sign the sign-up sheet in the post office by 4:00 p.m. Friday, May 3.

For further information see J.W. Nichols.

Bentzel Gives Recital

Kathryn Bentzel, a senior music education major, will present a violin recital next Thursday evening at 7:00 p.m. in the Fine Arts Music Hall. She will be assisted by Janet Roper and Susan Coram, who will play a two-piano suite called "Scaramouche" (meaning "a clown") by Milhaud.

Kathy has chosen lighter classical selections, which include a sonata by Handel, Mazurka by E. Mtynarski, and Sonatina, op. 100, by Anton Dvorak.

Kathryn, whose accompanist is Linda King, is from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Looking For A Summer Job?

There are openings at John J. Craig Marble Company in Friendsville in quarry and mill. (Full-time or part-time durring summer.) If interested, contact Office of Student Personnel.

Scots Improve Record

The Maryville baseball team was 5-2 this past week as they swept Bryan in a doubleheader last Wednesday 12-2 and 5-4; split a twinbill at Appalachia, Virginia; Friday with Clinch Valley as they took the first game 14-8 before dropping the nightcap 9-7; split two Saturday at Milligan as they won 6-3 before losing 6-0; and Beating Tusculum in a single contest Monday 7-6. Maryville's record at this point is 14-6 with almost 20 games remaining on the schedule.

Wednesday's first game with Bryan saw Charlie Allcott win his second game of the season against no losses as he went the route. Wayne Risko's two hits, including a two-run homer, paced the Scots offense, along with his three rbi's. Jim Lester also drove in three, while the two Pauls—Schultz and Viggiano, had two each. Lester also homered. The second contest was a close one that went nine innings. Schultz drove Lester in with the decisive tally in the bottom of the ninth. Kevin McKinstry was the winning pitcher in relief of Doug Leonhardt.

Friday's first game at Appalachia produced two Maryville homers that both occured in the fifth inning. Schultz hit a solo shot over the left field fence, while Ken Hanna hit his two-run blast to almost the same spot. Dan Conable, making his first appearance for Maryville, was the winning pitcher in the second game. The Cavaliers jumped on Earl McMahan for five runs in the third inning, and after that, Maryville was pretty well out of things. Dave Clinton hit a solo homer for the Scots in a losing cause.

Glenn Doig pitched well against Milligan on Saturday. He struck out five on the way to his second win of the season. Clinton's four hits and Risko's three were big in the winning effort. Schultz had three vital rbi's that provided the margin of victory. Maryville was limited to only two hits in the second game, both by Lester. Dave Spradlin went all the way on the mound in losing his third.

Monday's encounter with Tusculum found the Scots trailing 6-1 after four innings. However, three in the fifth and three more in the eighth brought the Scotties back. Buddy Bernhardt's single along with a two-base error brought in the tying runs. Viggiano followed with a squeeze bunt that brought home Mike Bowman with what proved to be the winning run.

The Scots traveled to Williamsburg, Kentucky yesterday for two games with Cumberland. Tomorrow, they have two slated versus Emory and Henry at Emory, Virginia. Monday, Coach Baird's squad journeys to Knoxville to face Tennessee. Doubleheaders are also scheduled with Emory and Henry Wednesday and Clinch Valley Thursday. Both will be at home with the first game each day beginning at 2:00 p.m.

Scoties Score

From The Chaplain's Office

The Courtesy Center in the Student Center is for the convenience of students and towns people as well as anyone in Blount County who may wish to purchase any of the many Bibles and Portions listed in the Catalogues of the American Bible Society which accompany the Courtesy Center.

The American Bible Society has as its single purpose the encouragement of the wider circulation of the Holy Scriptures without theological note or comment to every man on earth in whatever language he may require. It is a voluntary organization supported by many organizations. The items listed in the catalogue are sold without profit.

The present display is but a small portion of the items which will appear. Many have already been ordered. Anyone wishing to order items listed in the catalogue may do so at once through the Chaplain's Office.

continued from page 1

Dracula continued

Perhaps those of you Dracula fans might find this to be of some interest.

Bela Lugosi died in 1936. Attending the funeral services were Boris Karloff and Peter Lorre. As they were leaving, Lorre appeared to be quite shaken and his eyes were filled with tears. A friend of his begged him not to be so affected by the funeral. With great difficulty Lorre replied that it was not sorrow that was upsetting him so much.

Lorre said, "I've been trying not to burst out laughing."

Lorre's friend asked, "Laughing? At your firend's funeral?"

"But you see," said Lorre hardly controlling himself, "when we stepped up together to view the body, Boris was whispering, 'Get up Bela. You know they haven't driven a stake through your heart.' "

Dracula opens Thursday, 9 May 1974 at 8:30 p.m. and will also be presented May 10 and 11, Friday and Saturday, respectively, at 8:15 p.m. Tickets are $1.00 for students and $2.00 for adults and non-students. There will be no reserved seating, so come early!

One more thing! Did you know that Bela Lugosi was buried wearing the cape that he wore when he played Dracula?

continued from page 1

Orchestra continued

staffed by College students and faculty, the orchestra has tapped talented musicians from Knox, Anderson, Sevier, and Blount counties as well.

Professor Kull also has had experience as a performer in cities such as Houston, Pittsburgh, Toledo, New York (Carnegie Hall), Nashville, Augusta (Georgia), and Knoxville. He presented a recital here last Saturday evening. In addition he composed the Hill Heritage Suite, performed last March by the orchestra and the Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet.

This spring concert is the third major event in a busy year for the orchestra, which has performed in the Messiah as well as the Hill Heritage Suite. Their final task will be to accompany the Bach St. Matthew Passion this May 19.

Gamma Recognition

The annual recognition of excellence in academic work is set by Alpha Gamma Sigma on Thursday evening, May 9, from 6:30-8:00 in the Chapel Court. The traditional dessert—banana splits made to suit the individual taste—will provide the background for an informal time of fellowship. Students whose names have appeared on the Dean's List two of the last three terms will receive invitations, according to Dr. Harry B. Price, newly elected president of the local group.

Attention Seniors

The Senior class is asking for any snapshots or slides that you feel are representative of your four years at Maryville. Any picture will do, we do not want to leave anybody out. Please get them to Richard Battablia Box 2096 as soon as possible. All pictures will be returned before graduation, and arrangements will be made to return the slides as soon after graduation as possible. All materials will be taken care of. Remember we need pictures representing your four years, freshman (especially) to senior year.

ATTENTION:

BLOOD BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

$10 per donation.
Plasma twice a week.
Or whole blood
every 8 weeks.

Monday through Saturday.
Free parking.

blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-3171
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

bank of maryville

Your Bank
In Blount County

Nowtown • West Maryville • Alcoa • Airport • Broadway • Chilhowee

A FULL SERVICE BANK — MEMBER F.D.I.C.

Par-t-Pub

— Across From Pizza Hut —

Delicatassen

Hoagies - $1.05 & Tax
Corned Beef - $1.10 & Tax
Reuben - $1.05 & Tax
Turkey - 79¢
Ham - $1.05
Roast Beef - $1.05
Pastrami - $1.05

— Choice of Cheese —

Party Supplies of All Kinds

Drive-in Window
Call-in Orders Welcome
982-4251

10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

FOLLOW YOUR HEART TO TIPTON Jewelers

982-9141

113 E. Broadway
Maryville, Tenn. 37801

"EASY CREDIT TERMS"

C. R. TIPTON, owner

• ROLEX WATCHES
• BULOVA WATCHES
• ACCUTRON
• GIFTS

HOUSE OF DIAMONDS
• DIAMONDS REMOUNTED
• ASK ABOUT OUR NEW..... RING OF BAGUETTE THAT WILL INCREASE THE VISUAL SIZE OF A CENTER DIAMOND 6 TIMES.

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

News Briefs

At least three different transcripts of Nixon and Dean's March 21, '73 meeting are in House and Federal investigators' hands. . . .

The Environmental Protection Agency declares that Atomic Energy Commission is not able to justify its development of new nuclear reactor. . . .

White House sources say that Nixon might voluntarily turn over a substantial portion of 64 additional Watergate tapes under subpoena . . .

Tennessee's new open meetings law is declared unconstitutional. . . . .

Violence erupts between Hindus and Moslems in Old Delhi . . . . .

Fear of Communism is key in French presidential race. . . .

Cannonade sweeps Kentucky Derby's 100th running. . . .

Israelians show no sign of yielding as another round of talks with Kissinger begins . . . .

Even though Americans have slowed down on highways, they still drive faster than 55mph speed limit. . . .

Lt. Calley's lawyers are trying to get their client freed on bond in federal courts. . . . .

Nixon's chief lawyer states that hush money is the key issue in his defense against impeachment. . . .

Food costs have risen in East Tennessee

West Germany's Chancellor Willy Brandt resigns due to spy scandal. . . .

As much as half of the crime in the nation's five largest cities is not being reported

Secretary of State Kissinger ruled out the possibility of another comprehensive agreement on limited strategic arms with the Soviet Union this year.

Notice from Financial Aid Office

Emergency Loan Fund

Because of problems in the past with collection of loans made near the end of the school year, it will be necessary to evaluate carefully all applications for emergency loans during the month of May.

Those students who will need money during the last few weeks of the school year should make plans at once in order to eliminate the need for a last-minute loan.

Past-due Accounts

All accounts are due to be paid in full before the end of May. These include Emergency Loans, Short-term Loans, Library fines, dormitory charges, parking fines, etc.

Failure to clear any accounts will cause grades, transcripts, diplomas and recommendations to be withheld.

Parents' Confidential Statements

This is a reminder that a Parents' Confidential Statement for 1974-75 is a requirement for the National Direct Student Loan and also for every grant or scholarship based upon need. The forms for this service are available in the Financial Aid Office.

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59 No. 25 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | May 10, 1974

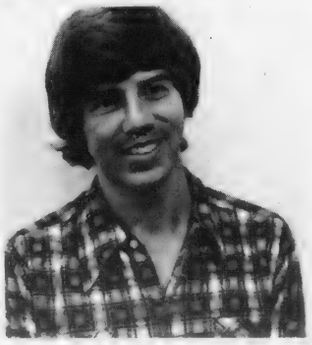
Black Odyssey Exhibit

by Pat Johnson

Unlike previous CIV programs this year, next week offers something quite out of the ordinary. Not a speaker, not a concert, not a variety of visual performances, but an exhibit! George Norman, of Detroit, Michigan, will be displaying his "Black Odyssey" exhibit to the Maryville College community and general public on Wednesday, May 15 through Friday, May 17.

"Black Odyssey" is a different exhibit. Although it is concerned chiefly with manifesting American history—acknowledging the black man's contributions to the making of this nation—it is speaking out to humans on a much higher level, namely that of love and understanding. Norman accomplishes this goal by incorporating beautiful African art to appeal to our open-minded acceptance of cultures other than that to which we are accustomed. He acquaints us with facts to which we have never been exposed, thus educating the "educated." He capitalizes on noteworthy accomplishments of black people, which adds pride, assurance, and self-confidence to a people who have been considered inferior. And he attacks our emotions, leaving a profound impact and well-defined challenge.

Over a half million people—of all races—from California to New York have marvelled at "Black Odyssey." On being exposed to such an exhibit, they learned how little is actually known about the black man in this country, and what a significant role he has played in all lives. Each picture-panel tells a story, a fact; and the written explanations of each corresponding illustration is written factually, yet personally, so that nothing becomes dull or uninteresting.



George Norman

Maryville College is truly priviledged to have an opportunity to witness such as exhibit and meet such an extraordinary person as Mr. Norman. Missing this spectacular display would be like missing part of life. We are all challenged to come and learn just how much we really need to learn!

Harra-Seeley Exhibit

Bill Harra and Barb Seeley, senior art majors, are exhibiting works in the Fine Arts Center Gallery from 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and from 8:00 to 9:30 p.m. daily.

Bill, who has earned the Senior Art Grant, is displaying "an Exploration in Modernism," a part of his Independent Studies. He also has paintings with plastic objects, which "extend beyond the boundaries of the canvas." He has been employed as an industiral silk-screener. He is from Wilmington, Delaware.

Bill Harra

Barb, from Verona, New Jersey, is displaying a model college dormitory which she designed and created for Independent Studies. She enjoys communicating through art, and hopes to teach young children after graduating from Maryville.

B. Seeley

MC Board Meets

On Thursday and Friday April 25, 26, the Maryville College Board of Directors met. A major amount of time was spent concerning financial affairs. The Board adopted a three million dollar budget for the coming year.

Along with finances, the Board dealt with three other major areas of Maryville College: policy-making, program evaluation, and personnel. The All-College Council sent in reports concerning their three concerns: academic; religious; and social, cultural, and recreational aspects. The Instructional Program Committee had recommended two specific matters for the Deaf Education Program: 1) that an interpreter training program preparing students to fill job opportunities available to the interpreter; and 2) that the first course be started this spring term as part of the program. The Board officially approved these two steps. The full program for the Deaf Education will be under way next year.

The Board also voted to have the Chairman of the Board sit up an ad hoc committee to work with the college in designing a new job description for the Chaplaincy, and to assist the college in finding a qualified person to fill the post.

SNEA Meeting

Student National Education Asscaition had an informative meeting last Wednesday, April 24. Mr. Ned T. Sherer, principal of Rockford Elementary School, and Mr. William Largen, principal of Maryville Junior High, spoke to the group on the duties and responsibilities of the principal to the superintendent, to the teachers in his school, and to the parents in the community. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Loeffler - Wertime Recital

Judy Loeffler and Robert Wertime, senior music majors, will present a recital this Thursday evening, 16 May, in the Fine Arts Music Hall ar 7:00 p.m.

Judy, a soprano from Haddon Heights. New Jersey, will sing an aria by Bach (to be accompanied by flutist Roxann Goshorn), four German art songs by Edward Grieg, and an aria from "Romeo et Juliette" by Charles Gounod. Carol Paris is her accompanist.

Robert, an organist from Greencastle, Pennsylvania, will play Fugue in D Major by Bach, Sonata in C Major by Mendelassoh, and four contemporary organ pieces by Hermann Schroeder.

STAFF

I.P. COLLEGIATE PRESS MEMBER

Emerson D. Henderson
Editor-in-chief

Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

CPS Member

Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Technical Editor

Don Gilbert
Business Manager

Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Faculty Advisor

Gwen Guba
Lay-out Assistant

Bill Walker
Assistant Business Manager

Tom Fox
Photographer

W. Clarit J. Draper
Distribution

WRITERS

S. Ahmed
J. Canon
C Craven
K. Darden
C. D'Aquila
P. Johnson
S. Morris
O. Myers
F. Strohl
M. Miller
M. Warf
D. Welch
C. Williamson
J. Yancey

Guest Editorial
In Retrospect:
4 Years at MC

by Gil Nichols

Upon graduation from college, it seems as though one should feel exhilirated and accomplished to some extent; one is leaving the educational environment, and embarking on a journey into the "Real World," armed with all the facts and figures that seventeen years of American education has exposed one to. And one is about to face the most exciting challenge yet, "Life," the supreme chance to exercise the abilities that one has developed to administrate one's own existence, as far as such is possible, and to demonstrate a sweat-cured mastery of the ways of the world.

As a senior who will soon make his exit from these hallowed edifices of education, I feel no such exhilaration or sense of accomplishment. I simply feel very tired and a profound sense of relief in knowing that more than one thousand days and nights the Maryville College rut is nearly at an end.

The whole college experience has seemed to me to be so absurd. I've written thousands of pages of material and spent countless hours on various subjects, to have it all stashed away in boxes or fed to the circular file. I've memorized innumerable names and dates which appear at this point to be meaningless trivia, remembered only to be forgotten. I have tried to express myself openly and honestly to be met with the cold stares of percened superiority and intellectual snobbery. And to speak of something as essential as "encouragement" would be well beyond my experience at this school or any school. It is simply non-existent, as far as I can see, in the American educational system.

So how does one rationalize spending a huge sum of money which one (or one's family) could not afford, to attend an institution of "higher" learning and then emerge four years later with only a sense of relief upon leaving? Until about two weeks ago, I was not quite sure. At this time, a member of the Board asked me if I would recommend Maryville College to prospective students beginning their post-secondary education. Although my initial reaction was strongly negative, I did say yes. There were two reasons for such as answer. First, Maryville College is a place to which one can adapt quite easily. Because of the way the social environment is organized, responsibility for enforcement of social standards falls primarily on the students, who, it seems, are not particularly offended by the way anyone conducts themselves, as long as it does not adversely affect others. This responsibility between students for each other completely transcends the governing structure and its accompanying rules and regulations, many of which are so outdated as to preclude comment. I was permitted by my peers to engage in an existence which would not probable suit the tastes of everyone, although, I feel it was right for me. And I think that other students arranged their own lifestyles to suit them also. Being able to live as you please and experimenting with different life styles is fundamental to the "getting out on your own (almost)" experience.

The second, and probably the most important reason that I would recommend MC to someone considering college, is that you meet an unusual assortment of people. It is not your typical state university or community college crowd, but people from everywhere interested in everything. I think there are few students who would disagree with this notion. You really meet some "flipped out" people.

In closing, I want to stress that this has been a description of my own experience here. I found the academic environment to be for the most part, unstimulating (at times, lifeless), and the organized religious life to be quite colorless. But, the students I've met here are, to me, MC's biggest asset. At times, I am amazed that they stay at all.

Letters

Student Body Is Dead

To the editor:

If I had a year ago read Emerson Henderson's April 26th Editorial concerning student apathy, I might have thought that he was being a bit too harsh on M.C.'s students. Incidents that have happened this year, however, have caused a drastic change in my attitude. I think a better word to describe the majority of this year's student body is not apathetic, but DEAD!

In citing a few recent examples of this "attitude", I'll start with the Gene Cotton Concert. I had contracted for April 20th a warm, talented young folk singer who captivated his audience as he sang and talked of political chaos, national and individual moral problems, "Old Mrs. Oliver", and lighter comic songs and stories of his two year old son. Concerned about his audience, Gene Cotton rearranged the stage so as to provide a more personal, relaxed atmosphere for the 100-200 people that I had estimated would be there. Less than 50 people showed. "Who ever heard of Gene Cotton anyway?" Someone remarked to me when I asked why they hadn't come to the concert. So, whoever heard of John Denver ten years ago? Besides, does everyone go to a concert just to hear a name or do they go because they enjoy a certain type of music? Then there was the "Comic Revue" for a little change of pace. Ten people turned out for that and there wasn't even an admission charge. The dance a few nights later drew close to 80 people, although there was no one there for the first hour.

I realize that student apathy towards social events is not half as important as apathy towards political concerns, academic involvement, or the many other areas that Emerson brought out in his editorial. But students who don't even make the effort to attend any social events, most likely won't make the effort to attend educational seminars either.

If the students are trying to tell me that they're just not interested in social events anymore by giving silly excuses like "no money" as they make their weekly (or nightly) visit to the Sportsman, or that they didn't see any publicity "as they walk by four posters from the post office to the dining hall, then they are doing a hell of a good job! With the little support that the social committee has had this year, I wouldn't find it at all hard to recommend to the ACC that the committee be dissolved because of lack of interest. The only thing that would make me hesitate is the faithful few who have worked on the committee and those who have attended most of the events this year.

My one wish for those of you who sit in your rooms on weekends and gripe about there being nothing to do, is that you could serve as chairman of the social committee for one year, just to get a taste of what a frustrating and unrewarding job it is!

Delores Ziegler

continued on page 4

Future Marathon

by Dave Young

The future is always but a minute away. If, however, the future turns out like the people in the Seminar on Alternative Futures think it will, by the time you read this a 24 hour "future marathon" will be underway under a tent on the frisbee patch between Sutton and Anderson.

On Thursday at 4:00 p.m. a group of eight persons will begin playing a simulation game on the future called Futuribles. The idea is to play contiually for 24 hours as a way of seeing what combination of wacky and serious ideas about the future result. As players wear out or take a break, fresh ones will take their place (making it as one person noted, a floating future game).

Futuribles is a game based on a deck of 288 cards, each containing a different future projection. (The hardest thing about the marathon will be shuffling the deck). The projections are arranged in 19 categories, of which learning, communication, energy, family/sex, politics/government, society/culture and human experience are examples. The purpose of the game is to help people get acquainted with future possibilities, share their feelings about the future, clarify their own values regarding the future and create visions, scenarios and priorities for the future.

What's that? You have a question? Go ahead.

What does futurible mean?

Easy answer: a futurible is a possible future state of affairs, say like increasing practice of legal abortion, or increasing diversity and flexibility of curriculum and educational requirements or the major transfer of persons from crowded to less crowded areas. (Or, maybe even a good job someday).

Futuribles is a very flexible game played in rounds in which the players share their thoughts about the cards they hold in their hands as they relate to future possibilities. The thrust of the game is to develop a future awareness of which priorities are most important so that individuals will find a way of influencing the future to be what they want it to be. The predictions, thoughts, wacky ideas and "ughs" of the players will be tallied on large sheets of paper so spectators can also participate in the game as it progresses.

If the 24 hours are reached, one futu possibility would be to apply to Guinness for inclusion in the next book of records. Shuffling 288 cards and hopefully 100 different players for that long surely must be a record of some sort.

Futuribles is really an experiment, so come and watch and play a few rounds—it'll cost you nothing more than a little bit of your future.

ACC Meeting

by Kit Williamson
Echo Staff Writer

A major area of concern discussed by the All College Council during Wednesday's meeting was a proposal submitted by the Instructional Program Committee. This proposal, backed by the P.E. department, called for a change in the grading and evaluation sustem of all P.E. courses, making it mandatory to receive a letter grade for the course instead of the present pass-fail system. This grade would not be averaged in with the cumulative grade point average.

During the course of the discussion, both pro and con views were presented. Those in favor of accepting the proposal were of the opinion that the P.E. courses taken in college are aimed to give a person skills for his life outside of and after college, and that working for a letter grade would be added incentive to try harder. It was also brought up that the more pass-fail grades there are on a student's transcript the more difficult it is to get into graduate school.

continued on page 4

From The Chaplain's Office

The Chaplain, Reverand Albert Cropp, would like to thank the members of the campus and folks from all over Blount County for their interest in the courtesy center of the American Bible Society, located in the student center. It has more than $200.00 worth of new materials for display and sale. Come and have a look!

It is interesting to note that those who leave without paying for the scriptures prefer the King James version of the New Testament over the others on display by a 6-1 margin. Somebody left a penny—perhaps he has adopted a time payment plan! Also, the chaplain's office has received some new materials setting forth the opportunities offered to pre-ministerial students at Princeton Theological Seminary. These are available for examination.

Admissions Counselor Opening

As of May 1st, there is an opening in the Admissions Department of Maryville College for Admissions Counselor. Dr. Kramer announced that "Miss Melinda (Lindy) Harris, class of '72, an art major, has served this college well during the last two years as an Admissions Counselor and has been directly responsible for the increase in the number of high school students who have applied to Maryville College from the state of Florida. She had just now served resignation from this position, effective June 1, and she plans to follow her avid interest in painting on a full-time basis. Her leaving will be a loss to the college."

Any member of the 1974 graduating class interested in becoming an Admissions Counselor to work with secondary schools in this area, should present their resume, in writing, to the Dean of Student Relations prior to graduation. The new counselor should be prepared to report for work on July 1.

McMahan - Viggiano

Intramurals

In Men's Intramural action, Paul Viggiano topped the field in the handball tournament, Earl McMahan won the racquetball tournament, and the team of Betty Werner-Ed Catello took the racquetball doubles. The softball round robin is over and Tournament play begins next week.

Shamblie Elected BSU Officer

BRENTWOOD, Tenn. – Nancy Lynn Shamblin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Shamblin, Raleigh, North Carolina, and a freshman at Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee, has been elected as a member-at-large for East Tennessee to the statewide Baptist Student Union. Officers were elected at the two BSU Spring Retreats held at Camp Linden and Camp Carson in Tennessee.

In BSU activities Miss Shamblin has held the office of treasurer and worked on the committee for On-Campus-Recognition. In school activities she has served as treasurer of the Women's National Honor Society.

According to Glenn Yarbrough, director, Student Department, Tennessee Baptist Convention, the attendance at the retreats was one of the best and interest was high in the election. A highlight of the retreats was the installation services for the sixteen college students going out to serve in a mission area for ten weeks.

Tracksters Place

Maryville's tracksters took 2nd and 4th in last week's meets. In a triangular meet at Milligan, the Scots claimed 2nd place against, Emory-Henry and Milligan. Mike Osborne was a double winner, outclassing the field in the 120 yard high hurdles and 440 yard intermediate hurdles. Also collecting firsts were Scot Cook, Walter Clarit, and Tom Duling.

In the state meet at Tennessee Tech, Maryville finished 4th in a field of seven. Mike Osborne again bettered his own school marks in the high and low hurdles, running 14.6 seconds and 55.5 seconds, both times were good for second places. Tom Duling, Scott Cook, and the 440 yard relay team all had second places.

A Dean's Eye View

Many newspapers and bulletins from colleges come across my desk. Most of them record student council activities, a chief one being the struggle for student representation on academic committees. Apparently most of these colleges still operate on the basis of the clearly defined functions of the constituent groups as outlined by a University of California political science professor. "I believe," he said, "that professors are there to teach, administrators are there to administer and students are there to learn."

This statement oversimplifies, of course, but it does point up the peculiarity of the college community as opposed to all others, and it suggests the difficulties inherent in setting up a satisfactory form of government.

In the first place, the very existence of the college community depends upon the recognition that some people have more experience than others and that the welfare of society depends upon our devising an efficient way of transmitting the benefits of that experience. A student would be foolish to pay tuition if he did not have faith in the leadership of the faculty and administration.

In the second place, the majority of the citizens of a college community are transient, in residence for four years at the most. It is difficult for one who is primarily concerned with his own education to gain in a year or two enough perspective and knowledge to make wise decisions on every phase of college administration.

Recent expressions of disenchantment with the All-College Council stem primarily, it seems to me, from a failure to recognize these very points. And it is not surprising that a misunderstanding exists. The organizing committee spent many long sessions identifying built-in limitations and attempting to overcome them, not with complete success. For example, much thought went into a plan for guaranteeing continuity, but, even so, about half the Council and committee members each year are new. By the time all the new members are oriented, much of the year has gone. Ironically, this is the reason the ACC cannot work more efficiently—and the reason that most other colleges have stayed with the student council system.

Nevertheless we have seen so much responsible student participation in campus governance, especially on the committee level, that most of us are willing to keep trying to overcome the handicaps. My own experience with students on the academic committees has proved to me that though they do not have the background of the faculty and usually are not motivated to read as widely, they do add a valuable fresh dimension.

Many fail to understand that the real action on this campus is at the committee level. If the ACC seems to rubber-stamp committee recommendations, it is because of confidence in their integrity.

Very soon everyone will be asked to state his or her committee preferences. Although the expression of preference does not guarantee membership on that committee, the ACC officers work conscientiously for the most productive assignments. After that, it is up to the individual to help make the system work.

by Carolyn Blair

Baseball Team Struggles

The Maryville Baseball team was two and two this past week as they split a doubleheader at Emory and Henry Saturday, Losing the first game, 5-3, in eight innings before taking the nightcap, 6-2; and lost to Tennessee Monday at Knoxville, 5-0. Through that game, the Scots have a record of 15-8.

Kevin McKinstry probably pitched his best game of the season on Saturday, but it turned out to be a losing effort, his first, when the Wasps' Jim Hall hit a two-run homer in the eighth. The second game saw Dave Spradlin win his third of the season to equal three losses.

The Scots did not play badly against Tennessee on Monday, but the Volunteer pitching got tougher to hit as the ballgame progressed. Paul Bailey lead Maryville hitters with two. The Scots did have the bases loaded in the fifth with one down, but a doubleplay killed Maryville's only serious scoring possibility. Glenn Doig went all the way for Maryville.

The Scots meet Cumberland at home in a doubleheader tomorrow. First game is at 2:00. On Monday and Tuesday, the Scots will conclude their 1974 season in Birmingham, Alabama with the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

Arizona Interim

This fall Dr. Shields and Dr. Love are offering a semi-combined Biology and Astronomy interim. They plan to camp out in the Southern Arizona desert area where Dr. Shields' group will study desert life and Dr. Love's group will study the desert sky. During the first week the two groups will camp together in the Tuscon area, after which Dr. Shields group will move further south for two weeks. Dr. Love's group will continue studying in Tuscon at the University of Arizona where they will view several films and tour Kitt Peak National Observatory.

These interims should provide students with a unique experience. They will be living in a wilderness and studying nature that is virtually untouched by man. This will be especially true for Dr. Love's group. There are still many openings left, and the direct cost is only $150 (10% of which must be paid by May 15.) Indirect costs will vary with the student depending upon how much camping equipment he needs to acquire. Remember, Freshmen, you will be upper classmen next year.

Phi Epsilon Rho Organized

On Monday, April 29, 1974, the Phi Epsilon Rho club was organized by students majoring in Health and Physical Education and Recreation.

A constitution was drawn up and approved by its nineteen charter members. Officers were elected, also. They are: President, Jim Lester; Vice-President, Craig Larsen; Program Chairpersons, Chris Cummings and Lynn Earnheart; Secretary, Sue Conner Treasurer Cindy Higgs; Publicity, Shada Overton; and T-shirt chairman, Tom Hyne.

The club's purpose is to increase the interest in health, physical education, and recreation; advance the standards of teaching and leadership; facilitate social and professional cooperation among all health, PE, and recreation majors, faculty, and alumni; be a guiding force to all incoming freshmen and transfer students majoring in PE or Recreation in aiding them to better understand the functions and requirements of the department here; and to aid state and national educational associations interested in the growth and development of children and adults.

Membership is open to anyone interested in sports.

Vespers

Al Cropp of the Chaplain's Office will lead in a program on "Contemporary Indian Affairs and the College Student" at vespers Sunday, May 12. Slides, technical information, and personal experiences will form the basis of his talk.

Is the Indian human? Does the Indian tradition have a place in contemporary society? Is the contemporary Indian able to transcend the TV stereotyping of America's first citizen? Come and discuss these issues at 7:00 p.m. Sunday in the large chapel.

continued from page 3

letters continued

Women's Athletics

To the editor:

With all this talk about apathy on our campus I was unsure of the response I'd receive with a petition. Well, I'm convinced now that when there is a good cause we can pull together.

Thank you for helping. I feel that athletics for women is worth our concern, and I found that almost all the people I approached and explained the petition to were willing to sign it.

The problem is this: President Nixon was supposed to debate the clause of Title IX, and education amendment passed in 1972, that referred to the right of women at a federally funded institution to have a team if they want one. This was to happen Tuesday, May 7, I cannot yet fine information on if he followed through.

If you feel concerned about the issue, write to your own local representative or senator and express your feelings. It would be a worthwhile contribution and a step toward equality.

Sincerely,
Kathy Kirkhart

ACC Continued

Those who opposed the idea (including all students present) pointed out that much less time was spent on a P.E. course than other academic courses, since P.E. is usually taken as a fourth course which meets twice a week. They also questioned the idea of motivation under a letter grade system. How would working for a letter grade instead of a satisfactory make a person a better swimmer? Some opinions were given that if the course was to be graded on progress, it would be beneficial and improve the P.E. courses as they stand now.

After a lengthy discussion, some of the members suggested an option, leaving the decision up to the individual student, except for P.E. majors where it would be mandatory. After this idea was discussed, the Council decided to try and work out a compromise with the P.E. department and re-evaluate the proposal.

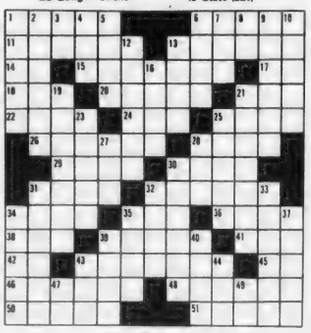
Give the world a little gift today. Blood.

The American Red Cross. The Good Neighbor.

A Public Service of This Newspaper & The Advertising Council

crossword puzzle

Answer to Puzzle No. 109



S	I	P		R	I	O	A		C	R	A	B
T	A	I		A	C	E	S		H	A	P	S
E	G	G		C	H	I	H	U	A	H	U	A
P	O	P	P	Y		G	E	A	R
		E	R		F	E	N		L	I	M	E
M	O	N		J	A	R		L	I	N	U	S
A	N		K	E	N		R	Y	E		S	S
S	C	E	N	T		S	E	E		D	E	E
P	E	L	E			A	N	T		H	E
			A	E	R	O		S	I	S	A	L
W	O	O	D	S	T	O	C	K		E	M	U
E	R	N	E		E	P	E	E		R	O	C
D	E	E	D		S	Y	N	E		T	R	Y

ACROSS

1 Sign of the Zodiac
6 Icy coating
11 Colors reddish-brown
13 Treeless plain
14 Continent (ab.)
15 Sign of the Zodiac
17 Bovine
18 "La-la" 's companion
20 Certain tactics
21 Saratoga Springs
22 Cheer
24 Oriental game
25 Candid
26 Sign of the Zodiac
28 South African lily
29 Dutch river
30 Combining form: pertaining to Mars
31 Word
32 Sign of the Zodiac
34 Helps
35 Contemptible person
36 Verne's Captain —
38 Befuddled (Scot.)
39 Elementary
41 Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (ab.)
42 Prefix: not
43 Rigorous
45 Man's nickname
46 Pass
48 Anemia of a certain cell
50 Pampered one
51 Purchaser

DOWN

1 Robust
2 Turkish inn
3 Pallet
4 Research (ab.)
5 Curves
6 Jail (coll.)
7 Sign of the Zodiac
8 Epistle (ab.)
9 Epic poem
10 Native of Houston
12 God of sleep
13 Mess hall regular
16 Old Portuguese coins
19 With ice cream
21 Oxford minister famous for unintentional interchange of sounds: "It is kistumery to cuss the bride."
23 Waikiki bashes
25 Liquid part of any fat
27 Sprinted
28 Long — of the law
30 High perched strongholds
31 Deep black alloy
32 Outburst
33 Transfix
34 Sign of the Zodiac
35 Examine carefully (coll.)
37 Lubricator
39 A certain body
40 Baby bed
43 Quick to learn
44 Old French coin
47 Air Force (ab.)
49 State (ab.)

Distr. by Puzzles, Inc. No. 110

free copies of one of the world's most-quoted newspapers.

The Christian Science Monitor. Facts. Ideas. Solutions. That's what the Monitor is all about.

To prove this to yourself, send us the coupon. We'll send you the free copies without obligation.

(Please print)

Please send me some free copies of The Christian Science Monitor.

Name_____

Address_____

City_____

State_____ Zip_____

Z4SEA

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR
P.O. Box 125, Astor Station
Boston, Massachusetts 02123

ATTENTION:

BLOOD BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

$10 per donation.
Plasma twice a week.
Or whole blood every 8 weeks.

Monday through Saturday.
Free parking.

blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-3171
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

Medical Arts Pharmacy

For all your medical Supplies of any kind

Next to Blount Memorial Hospital

— Store Hours — 9 a.m. - 9 p.m.

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

bank of maryville

Your Bank In Blount County

Nowtown • West Maryville • Alcoa • Airport • Broadway • Chilhowee

A FULL SERVICE BANK

MEMBER F.D.I.C.

News Briefs

42% of the public responded to Nixon's televised appeal concerning the Watergate tapes, the Gallup poll reports.

Nineteen paintings stolen from a mansion near Dublin, Ireland were recovered undamaged; their value is placed at 19.2 million dollars.

The White House has made public a 32-page document charging John Dean with misstatements' in his testimony before the Senate. Watergate committee.

Willy Brandt, Chancellor of Germany, resigned in an effort to take responsibility honorably for negligence that allowed a Communist spy to become a member of his staff.

President Nixon yeilded to a supoena asking for 64 White House tapes and records but stated that he would not turn any more documents over, choosing to have a direct confrontation with the House if a further supeona is issued.

The Senate rejected an Administration request for 266 million dollars to be used for additional military aid in South Vietnam.

Pulitzer Prizes for national reporting were awarded to James R. Polk of The Washington Star News, and Jack White of the Providence Journal-Bulletin, for their reporting of the Nixon cover-up of the Watergate affair, and Nixon's tax scandal.

Herbert L. Kalmbach, former campaign fund-raiser and personal attorney for President Nixon, testified that he met with top dairy officials during the re-election campaign and hinted at an allowance of a milk price increase in return for a 2 million dollar campaign pledge.

Hugh Scott, the Republican leader in the Senate, said that the transcripts of the White House conversations portrayed "deplorable, disgusting, shabby immoral performances."

The Soviet Union pledged 600 million dollars to Argentina following Argentina's resumption of trade with Cuba, in the face of extreme displeasure in Washington.

Henry Kissinger received guarded Soviet support for his Middle East peace efforts as he shuttles between Syria and Isreal trying to come up with some workable agreement between the two nations; he is optimistic about a decision in the near future.

Pierre Trudea's Liberal Party government in Canada was austed after six years with a no-confidence vote over a budget proposal.

The House Judiciary began examining evidence that may lead to Nixon's impeachment - the second time in U.S. history that impeachment hearing have taken place.

Rumors are sweeping Washington that Nixon will resign but they are strongly denied by the White House.

Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago suffered a small stroke and will undergo surgery next month.

After considering the matter for 24 years, the United Nations finally came up with a three page definition of "aggression".

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 26 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | May 17, 1974

Welsh Recital

Howard Welsh, a speech-theatre major, will present The Chairs by Eugene Ionesco as his senior recital on Thursday, May 23rd and Friday, May 31st at 8:15 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Music Hall.

Mr. Welsh will be featured as the Old Man and Barbara Strong as his wife Semiromis. Philip Gibson, who is directing the production, will portray the orator. Carl Swenson serves as the stage manager.

Mark one of the above dates on your calender as the day of an experience not to be missed! There is no admission charge.

Howard Welsh

Seniors Featured In Concert

The Maryville College Highlander Band will feature two distinguished senior music majors in its concert tonight at 8:15 p.m. in the College Theatre. They are Ruth Mary Weston of Maryville and Robert Millner of Oyster Bay. N.Y.

Miss Weston will conduct "From Every Horizon," a portrait of New York in music by Dello Joio. Mr. Millner has composed "Rock Suite," which the band will play.

Both Miss Weston and Mr. Millner hope to teach music after graduating. They have distinguished themselves in their student teaching experiences, according to band director Dan Stallings. Miss Weston did her student teaching at Everett High School; Mr. Millner did his at Doyle High School.

Mr. Millner plays trumpet; Miss Weston plays trombone. As members of the College Brass Quintet and the Maryville College-Community Orchestra they have performed widely, including helping to accompany Broadway musicals here at the College.

The Band's program will feature "Tangents III," which combines the band's playing with a prepared tape and special lighting effects. They will also play "El Salon Mexico" by Aaron Copeland.

St. Mattew Passion At MC

The drama of the Passion According to St. Matthew as told in music by Johann Sebastian Bach will be presented in Wilson Chapel this Sunday evening, 19 May, at 8:15 p.m.

Singers and musicians of both the College and the community will combine efforts to make the experience of this oratorio possible. The leading role of the Evangelist will be sung by Don Brakebill, a Maryville graduate who is music director at New Providence Presbyterian Church and for the Alcoa City Schools. The role of Jesus will be sung by John Ribble, a Maryville graduate who is choral director at Doyle High School. The four aria soloists are: Jodie Chetwood, soprano; Delores Ziegler, a '73 Maryville Music graduate, contralto; Dan Kinsinger, professor of voice, tenor; and Mr. J.B. Lyle, Music Supervisor for Knox County Schools, bass.

The combined chorus will be made up of the Doyle High School Mixed Chorus, the Maryville College Concert Choir, the Chilhowee Choral Society, the Oratorio Chorus, and the New Providence Chancer Choir.

The Orpheus Boy-Choir, organized last March by Dr. Harter, will make its first appearance in this work. It will sing a chorale, accompanied by the combined chorus.

The Maryville College-Community Orchestra, trained by Lee Kull, will accompany the presentation. James A. Bloy at the organ, Sallie Schoen at the harpsichord, Thomas Wheeler on the oboe and English Horn, and Donald Grohman on the cello will augment the orchestra.

Student soloists are singing minor roles as follows: Mike Jacobus as Judas, David Adcock as Pilate, Wayne Davis as Peter, Robert Ponton as the High Priest, Merida Kearns-Preston as Pilate's wife, Christina Bergner and Kathy Royal as first and second maids.

Dr. Harry H. Harter, Fine Arts Department Chairman, will conduct the production.

Senator Proxmire To Speak

The last Community Issues and Values Program this year will feature the Honorable William Proxmire, Senator from Wisconson. The program will consist of a talk about issues of national concern.

Senator Proxmire's senatorial fame has come from his outspoken opinions and criticisms. In the past years he has stood up against the Supersonic Transport (SST), and in favor of more rigorous spending priorities, particularly to holding down expenditures on public works, the space program and the military budget. Also, he has been the author of most of the consumer credit legislation, including the Truth in Lending Act, the Fair Credit Reporting Act, and an act to prohibit unsolicited credit cards. He has published three works, Report from Wasteland—America's Military Industrial Complex, Can Small Business Survive, and Uncle Sam, Last of the Big Time Spenders.

Senator Proxmire has the distinction of being the only one of the 100 senators who was present and voted in every roll call since April, 1966. This brings his total to over 2,150 consecutive roll call votes.

The CIV will be at 9:20 a.m., May 24th in Wilson Chapel.

Sen. William Proxmire

Women Honor Society Initiation

On Tuesday, May 4, at 4pm., the Freshman Women's Honor Society held it's first initiation ceremonies. The entire club was present, including the three new inducting the present club officers, the three advisors each talked about the history, duties and goals of the Society. Each officer received a candle, representing the light of wisdom, and their respective symbols of office. After the officers were recognized, the three new members were welcomed into the club, and a brief social gathering with refreshments supplied followed.

Editorials

Looking Back One More Time

by Wayne Kramer
President of Senior Class

For the second week in a row the readers of the Highland Echo are going to have the opportunity to "reflect" over a period of four years - - a pastime in which we all enjoy participating. To express in a few short paragraphs one's feelings, thoughts, and experiences involved in his college career is not a very easy task. There have been so many events and experiences that to discuss them all would be impossible. For my purposes here, I will merely hit on a few of the highlights as I recall them. Keep in mind that this is a "personal" reflection and is not intended to represent the senior class or any other such group. From the 8 hour marathon registration line we experienced as freshman to graduation in just a few weeks, the class of 1974 has been through a lot.

The Freshman picnic at Tremont
Where we all just stood and stared,
And what about that first homecoming
With nothing but rain in the air.

Ah, and then came Valentine's Eve
And the big snow began to fall;
Only to be followed a year later
By the burning of Pearsons Hall.

The football team clobbered Georgetown
Thirty Six to Three;
And for the first time in a while
Maryville was on a winning spree.

We ate in the gym for a good many weeks
But it was back into Pearsons after fixing the leaks.
And who could forget the battle of the key
For now Maryville women became somewhat free.

As we finished that short and exciting sophomore year,
The beginning was over and the end began to draw near.
As Juniors, we experienced a quick sense of power;
The real world was still far in the distant—This was our hour!

We were older than young yet younger than old
And by year number three, had become part of the Maryville mold.
The fall of that year saw Emory & Henry battered and blue
As the mighty Scots went seven and two.

By the spring of our third year
The sounds of ACC could be heard in one's ear.
And despite a long battle resulting in mud on their duds,
The All College Council said "no" to the suds.

And then all of a sudden the end was at hand
Only one more fall to watch the Scottie band.
Special Studies were completed just before the deadline
He's finished his—I wish I'd finish mine!

Ah and then when we thought we were almost through
They showed us those big tests and we all turned blue.
But those tests came and they went,
And before we knew it our time it was spent.

Four years have gone by
But our memories still live.
We've given the College
All we can give.

To alter a few lines that I once read
When you're Maryville born and Maryville bred,
Then sure as the world,
Some day you'll be Maryville dead.

Nixon Must Go

In the past week many journalists and conservative newspapers added their names to the growing list of the American press who are calling for the resignation or impeachment of President Nixon. This new pressure on the President, along with the growing number of congressmen and senators who are supporting impeachment, will definitely have its impact on Mr. Nixon's future as president. However, even though these journalists and newspapers are widely read and among the most respected in the country they lack the support of one of the most influential conservative newspapers in the country—The Highland Echo. Thus, in the interest of American politics the Highland Echo calls for the resignation or impeachment of President Nixon. I hope this is the clincher! Nixon Must Go!

Panthers Charge SLA-Police Ties

by Skellie Morris

The differences between fact and fiction in the Patricia Hearst-SLA mystery are becoming more and more confusing. Last week, the Black Panther Party charged that Donald Defreeze, the alleged General Field Marshall Cingue of the SLA, was an active police agent "at least from 1967 through 1969."

According to the Panthers, these alleged began in 1967 when Defreeze was arrested for carrying a concealed, stolen weapon. Following the arrest, a brief escape and a recepture, Defreeze reportedly led police to a friend's apartment and a cache of more than 200 stolen rifles and pistols. Despite evidence that Defreeze and his friend had stolen the guns, and despite the fact that this was Defreeze's fourth arrest on a weapons violation and that he was on parole, Defreeze received a suspended sentence.

In view of these facts, the Black Panther newspaper argues "the release on probation of two black men with police records, apprehended in possesion of more than 200 guns, including automatic weapons. . . could only have occurred with approval at the highest level for some benefit to police authorities."

On April 20, 1969, Defreeze was picked up by the police carrying a fully loaded, semi-automatic rifle and 32 rounds of ammunition. Although Defreeze was on probation at this time neither this incident nor two later arrests for burglary and auto theft resulted in his being jailed.

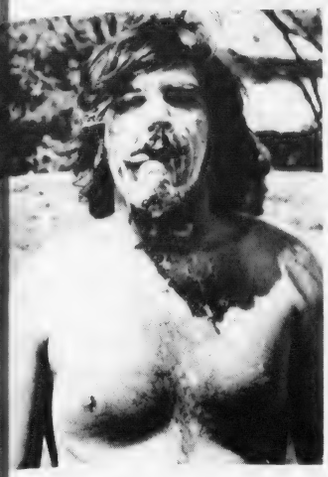
Defreeze was finally jailed in connection with a November, 1969 shootout with a policeman and a bank's guard while attempting to cash a $1000 stolen check. The gun Defreeze used in the shootout, a 32 caliber Beretta automatic pistol, was established by the Panthers as one of the 200 stolen guns confiscated by police in the 1967 arrest of Defreeze and his accomplice, by its serial number.

While serving time in the Vacaville Medical Facility Prison, Defreeze was given approval by Vacaville authorities to form Unisight, a group whose purpose was to study relationships within the Black family. One of the first outside volunteers chosen by Defreeze to participate in Unisight was Russell Light, the alleged SLA member charged with the assasination of Dr. Marcus Foster, superintendant of the Oakland Public Schools. Shortly thereafter, Defreeze was transferred to Solidads minimum security facility, from which he subsequently escaped.

The final argument put forth by the Panthers alleges that the state of California refused to permit the extradition of Defreeze to New Jersey, where he faces charges of kidnapping, extortion and assault with a deadly weapon. Despite repeated pleas by New Jersey authorities, the Attorney General of California, Cville Younger refused to permit Defreeze's extridition. Younger was the official responsible for the formation of the Criminal Conspiracy Section of the Los Angeles Police Department in the late 1960's, whose function is to place informers and agent provocateurs within the ranks of radical organizations in California.

This article is meant in no way to infer that these accusations by the Black Panthers are absolute truths, but that there are indeed some conflicts and coincidences in this case and it will be a long time, if ever, before the truth is learned.

Both Sides of the Issue



by Don Gilbert
Business Manager

During last week's CIV concerning the B-1 Bomber specifically, and the military-industrial complex in general, we were treated to a situation. But then again, it wasn't really a debate, for to have a debate there necessarily must be two sides taking part. Instead, we witnessed intellectual discussion Maryville College style. It has been said that the best way to submit that there is no opposition to one's position is to disallow the opposing viewpoint to express its beliefs, however unpopular they may be.

The point to be made here is not whether a project to construct B-1 Bombers is worthy on the one hand or senseless and destructive on the other hand. I feel those attacking the Pentagon and all it stands for do have valid reasons for doing so. More importantly, the question is whether a college community should encourage open debate between two contrasting viewpoints (allowing students to make a totally informed judgement as to their preference on a topic) or whether we should continue to present only one side of the issue. Surely, someone acting as proponent of the military viewpoint could have been found to take part in last week's CIV. If not, at least an unbiased listing of those arguements put forth by proponents of the military view could have been done. By this, I don't mean arguments presented in the context of an admittedly anti-military film.

In a word, let's encourage debate on crucial topics here at Maryville College. No one can gain by seeing only one side of any position and hopefully everyone could be a little bit more knowledgeable when choosing a side after witnessing such a debate.

MC Goes Mad

May Madness

ay Madness took its form in the ditional manner here at Maryville llege last weekend. From "Dracula" d Saga picnics to Sunday frolic, e official rite was performed. The nday games got underway around 30 with a smaller than average wd. This was due in part to the g Boston-Milwaukee championship me and the lack of enthusiasm over mud bath. Still, many students parcipated eagerly in the bat race, bed ce, three-legged race, frisbee throw, g throw, greased pole climb, pie ting contest, and tug of war. Prizes nged from plastic mustaches to ugar Daddies.

he bat race must have been a very nlightening experience for the conestants. Everytime they raised their eads after running around the bat, a stunned look appeared on their faces. What did they see, or what didn't they see? Whatever it was, it shook them so that they could hardly move.

What at first appeared to be a military drill with the six man squadrons marching double time was surprisingly a bed race. The girl bobbed placidly (more or less) on old bed springs watching the scenery, which happened to be twelve cheering legs, and enjoyed a free ride.

This was followed by the frisbee throw which attracted many, husky male contenders. Where were the "women's libbers?" One of the first attempts was made by Robert Shumski. With his massive strength he managed to throw the frisbee all of three yards. Good throw, Shumski.

Contortions of the face and body were exhibited in the egg throw.

As the crowd gathered around a small table for the pie eating contest, the Echo staff kept a safe distance after being forewarned of the pie throwing which is usual accompaniment of the event. It was impossible to identify the contestants and the winner, because after the contest, they were all beyond recognition having the same white, yellow, brown faces resembling a bad cross between an abominable snowman and Santa Claus.

A moment's hesitation insued while the crowd balked at the greased pole or grease with a little nole, and an attempt was made to gather contenders for the event.

With the announcement of the tug of war a great challenge came from the Memorial guys, "Memorial against everyone." After bickering about the rope, the battle began only to have the rope snap. They ingeniously tied it together, but it snapped again. Then with a cry of, "Let's don't pull 'em in, let's throw 'em in, " the age old process began.

So it was at Maryville College that May was royally ushered in. The madness, however, needed no introduction. It was always there.

by Olivia Myers
Echo Staff Writer

STAFF

MEMBER

Emerson D. Henderson
Editor-in-chief

Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Technical Editor

CPS
Member

Don Gilbert
Business Manager

Bill Walker
Assistant Business Manager

Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Faculty Advisor

Tom Fox
Photographer

Gwen Guba
Lay-out Assistant

J. Draper
Distribution

WRITERS

S. Ahmed
J. Canon
C Craven
K. Darden
C. D'Aquila
P. Johnson
S. Morris
O. Myers
F. Strohl
M. Miller
M. Warf
D. Welch
C. Williamson
J. Yancey

Hardballers Head For New Orleans

The Maryville College Baseball team increased its record to 22-10 Tuesday as they defeated the University of Alabama at Birmingham 2-1 after having split a doubleheader with the same team on Monday. At the same time, the Scots received a bid to the N.C.A.A. Regional Playoffs to be held in New Orleans next week.

Earlier in the week, the Scots swept a doubleheader from Clinch Valley, 4-3 and 7-1, and split with Cumberland, losing 10-7 before winning 1-0.
The three games at Birmingham were all pitcher duels. Dave Spradlin lost Monday's first game despite giving up only four hits. The Scots came from behind in the seventh inning of the second game as Randy Pennington scored on a wild pitch followed by a towering home run by Wayne Risko. Glenn Doig was the winning pitcher in Tuesday's game.
Paul Viggiano's three hits and Bailey's two paced the Scots first victory over Clinch Valley Thursday. Jim Lester was hit in the face by a pitch in the second inning and was removed from the game. Surgery was required as a facial bone was broken, but Jim came through well.

Dave Clinton's four hits paced Maryville in the second game as Dan Conable got his second victory.

Joe Moffetts two home runs were not enough to thwart Cumberland in Saturday's first game. The Indians got four runs in the first inning.

Review Dracula

by Mona Miller

Last weekend, the Maryville College production of Dracula turned out to be an unintentional comedy. Evidently intended as a spinetingling melodrama, the play was received with laughter throughout. An unconvincing heroine and her somewhat stiff lover provided some of the funnier moments in their love scenes. A climactic scene in which the heroine succumbs to the not-so-sinister Dracula was supposed to be a terrifying moment; yet laughter was the reception. The moment when Dracula laid the victim on the bed and then turned around breathing heavily was hilarious.

Strong acting by some of the cast did help to keep the show from falling apart. Steve Yuhasz was the best and the most natural of the cast. A very convincing portrayal of the mentally unstable patient was enacted by Bob March. In supporting roles, Ellen Bercovitz and Mike Jacobus turned in good performances.

The technical aspects of the play were excellent. The music prelude to each act and the sound effects effectively established an ominous mood. Whenever Dracula appeared to do some bloodsucking, the green light that cancelled the other lights out certainly added to a sense of evil. A clever innovation was the fog in the final scene. The polished sets, designed by Professor Beasley and Wayne Dansbury, were very well done.

In spite of the production's merits, Dracula failed in its attempt to scare the viewer. It was certainly entertianing—from the comic viewpoint.

Film On Apartheid

It is not clear what it was that the Western settlers disliked most about the Black man of South Africa, but we have a chance to find out something about it when the Black Student Association and World Concern Committee jointly present a program tomorrow, Saturday, May 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Theatre. The program will include a film, "The Heart of Apartheid" in which the Black man of South Africa speaks for himself. There will be discussion too and audience participation will be greatly appreciated.

ATTENTION:

BLOOD BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

$10 per donation.
Plasma twice a week.
Or whole blood
every 8 weeks.

Monday through Saturday.
Free parking.

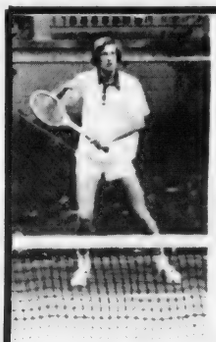
blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-3171
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

Mountain Supply Sporting Goods

Complete Lines of all

Camping, Fishing, Hunting
and
Sportswear Equipment

Invites MC Students
To Shop At Its New
Midland Shopping Center Locati



Near Baskin-Robbins Ice-Cream

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy
Townsend

Moser's

Your Headquarters For Outdoor Needs

featuring

Complete Lines of Tennis
Clothing and Equipment

Tennis Clothing
Shirts - $10.00
Shorts - $6.99 to $19.00

Converse All Star Tennis Shoes
$18.95 - $19.95

Wilson and Sportscraft Rackets
$8.95 and up

Wilson and Sportscraft Balls
$2.95 per can and up

Complete Supply of Puma Shoes

Moser's Sporting Goods Store
Downtown Maryville

Par-t-Pub

— Across From Pizza Hut —

Delicatassen

Hoagies - $1.05 & Tax
Corned Beef - $1.10 & Tax
Reuben - $1.05 & Tax
Turkey - 79¢
Ham - $1.05
Roast Beef - $1.05
Pa ᵘ ami - $1.05

— Choice of Cheese —

Party Supplies of All Kinds

Drive-in Window
Call-in Orders Welcome
982-4251

10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

News Briefs

Giscard d'Estaing conservative candidate, has been elected president of France. Winning by a narrow margin, he is the youngest French president at 48.

The stock market fell back Monday in sluggish trading, a victim of more bad news about rising interest rates.

Senator Brock of Tenn. and Representative Michel of Illinois feel that impeachment would be better than Nixon's resignation.

Saudi Arabian Oil minister Yaman warns that his government will start using oil embargoes as a weapon again if the U.S. stops peace efforts in the Middle East.

If electricity is used wisely this summer, Americans won't have to swelter to avoid power cutbacks or brownouts.

The F.B.I. is now convinced that Patty Hearst is a willing accomplice of the SLA; they warn that she will be shot if she resists arrest.

Women's Libbers strike again: a woman coach won the annual Calaveras County Jumping Frog Jubilee for her male frog, E. Dynamic Denny, who jumped 18'43 3/4".

The Environmental Protection Agency has dropped a plan for analysis of a controversial nuclear power program, knuckling to pressure by a California representative and the Office of Management and Budget.

A recent Gallup Poll found that as many as 7 out of 10 Americans still express confidence for the future of the U.S.

Senator Edward Kennedy and his wife revealed they paid 48% of their 1973 gross income in federal income taxes.

A recent Supreme Court decision ruled that air pollution inspectors do not need search warrants to enter the property of suspected polluters as long as they don't invade areas closed to the public.

The government has sold millions of tons of public coal to private companies for only a fraction of their value (12.5 cents a ton), according to the nonprofit Council on Economic Priorities.

A national survey revealed that alcohol surpasses drug use by American teenagers.

President Nixon has been ordered to yield tapes of 64 conversations for use in the Watergate cover-up trial of former top associates.

Kissinger having disengaged Israeli and Syrian forces, is ironging out details for an agreement that might end Middle East fighting.

Senator Howard Baker has expressed confident optimism about the future of the Republican party in spite of Watergate.

DANCE

Davis Dorm is having a dance tonight at 9:00 p.m. on the patio of Pearsons. Music will be provided by ELI. No admission charge!

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 59, No. 27 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | May 24, 1974

Crosby Awarded scholarship

Each year the local chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa, a professional education society for women has, for the past several years, selected an outstanding student in education. This year the recipient of the $125 scholarship is Manolia Crosby, a junior, majoring in elementary education. Manolia is from Knoxville, Tennessee, and a graduate of Austin-East High School.

Manolia Crosby

To be eligible to apply for the scholarship, a student must be a current junior, and pursuing a program leading to teacher certification. The final decision, however, is based on an essay entitled, "What I Hope to Contribute to and Gain from the Teaching Profession," which each applicant must submit along with his application (approximately 150 works). The judges are members of Alpha Delta Kappa, and are usually not acquainted with any of the applicants.

Philip Steele Awards

Three Maryville College music majors have received the Oscar Philip Steele Award for 1973-74. They are: Pam Gnagy, piano major from Rochester, N.Y.; Lynn Yeatts, Jr., organ major from Kingston, Tenn.; and Cindy Murane, voice major from Alexandria, Va.

The award was established by Philip Steele, Affiliate Artist at Maryville College from 1970 to 1973, in honor of his father.

The purpose of the award is to give public recognition for high standards of performance to Maryville College students and young musicians of pre-college age in the community. Recipients are selected by a committee from the Fine Arts Department.

Although Mr. Steele is no longer an Affiliate Artist at Maryville College, he chose to continue the awards this year. The awards were presented at the intermission of the Maryville College-Community Orchestra concert.

Student Financial Aid

Student financial aid has provided a total of $656,833.00 in assistance for the 1973-74 school year here at Maryville. This total sum works out to an average of $950.00 per student. Divided into various funds, the percentages are as follows:

The Maryville College Short Term Loan Fund	47%
The National Direct Student Loan Fund	15%
The College Work-Study Program	5%
The Maryville College Student Help Payroll	11%
and from our 3900 series, the EOG, the BEOG, and all funds provided by our Endowment, special gifts, etc.	22%

Yearbooks Available

There are still yearbooks available for those students who have not already received them. Just put a note with your name and box number, in Box 1579 and a yearbook will be gotten to you.

Yearbooks are also available to any faculty or staff member who wishes to purchase one. The price is seven dollars. If interested contact Sarah Hardrath or put a note in Box 2579.

Student payroll

Student payroll for May will be issued beginning at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, 30 May, and continuing during regular office hours through Tuesday, 4 June.

Office hours are 8:00 to 12:00 and 1:00 to 5:00. The office is not open Saturday afternoon, and will be closed on 3 June from 10:00 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. for the Commencement exercises.

Do you want a student job for next year? Remember a new work application is necessary for each year. Be sure yours has been turned in.

A Letter of Resignation

(Editor's note: the following letter of resignation was submitted to Dr. Copeland from Coach Hasty who has signed as Offensive Back Coach at Middle Tennessee State.)

Dear Dr. Copeland:

I would like to take this opportunity to express by appreciation to you—the President of Maryville College—the Board of Directors, the faculty, and people of the Maryville College community for the loyalty and help you have given me in my efforts as Football Coach at Maryville College. Without your loyalty and support, our efforts at Maryville would not have been successful.

Whenever people work together for a common goal, lasting bonds of friendship are bound to develop. I feel this is especially true between a coach and his players. The young men who played for me here at Maryville will always have a place in my heart and prayers.

I would like to express a special thanks to Dr. George Kramer, Mr. Bill Ribble, Ms. Betty Werner and Coach Don Elia. Without them and their keen insight, experience and willingness to help at all times, expecially with departmental adversity, nothing we achieved would have been possible. Also, a special appreciation to Bob Berrong, Larry Stephens, Dan Webb, Joe Balthrop and Robert Calloway who helped carry the burden of the added coaching responsibilities during this past football season. Their tireless efforts and loyalty could not have been done without.

Mr. Gerald Hasty

At this time, however, I would like to resign as Football Coach at Maryville College, effective June 1, 1974. I have accepted the position of Offensive Back Coach at Middle Tennessee State University and will be reporting to work there in June. I feel it would be to the best interest of my family and myself to move to this position of more responsibility and professional advancement.

I will be following the progress of athletics at Maryville with sincere personal interest. I hope, and I am sure, a continual effort will be made by you and the Board of Directors in improving the organizational structure and quality of administrative leadership in this important area of college life.

Sincerely,
Gerald L. Hasty

Guess Editorial In Retrospect: 4 Years at MC

by Sarah Winbigler
Co-Chariman of the ACC

Somehow, the prevailing myth of the graduating senior has always depicted someone who has arrived—someone whose plans are neatly laid—someone with prospects for the future. Graduation, in short, is the worst of all possible times for a person to discover that she has never been less certain about herself and her future. Looking backwards is sometimes joyful, sometimes painful, but it is infinitely more comfortable than looking forward.

This has not always been true. Four years ago, I felt as though I had set the past behind me forever; the future was all I could see, and god how bright it looked! I had visions of COLLEGE, where the world was still on the drawing board waiting for me to incorporate my ideals and dreams into the final plan. Maybe I had watched too many news programs or read too many books and magazines about activism on College campuses. In reality, I guess the times just changed before I was ready for them to.

I wanted a piece of the action; instead I got a piece of the apathy, which I am presently finding to be dangerously comfortable and hard to unlearn. In this respect, I feel immensely unequipped to enter the Real World. My senses are rather deadened, and I know the reawakening process will be a painful one. I can't attempt to blame M.C. for the numbness inside me—although its resistance to change certainly trampled many of my hopes.

At this point, I am tired, but I am not bitter. This place has been good to me in many ways. At times I have felt frustrated, angered, defeated—but it's all right. I've had fun—crazy times with friends, late nights of talk and laughter, World Championship knowledge-cramming Playoffs, friends of all ages whom I will never forget. I have learned a great deal, mostly about people but also about literature and philosophy and all the other good things a mind should have in it.

So what can I say? Staying is unthinkable, but leaving will not be easy. As an English major, I feel compelled to end with a quote, and this one from Paul Simon seemed particularly appropriate.

> "Time it was, and what > a time it was, It was . . .
> A time of innocence,
> A time of confidences.
> Long ago . . . it must be . . .
> I have a photograph.
> Preserve your memories;
> They're all that's left you."

A Dean's Eye View

by Carolyn Blair

The commencement season, like the poet's ever-returning spring, is upon us again. In later years members of the Class of '74 will on a day in May catch a whiff of honeysuckle, or notice the opening of magnolia blossoms, or see a lush green dogwood reminiscent of the one in the Chapel court, and with a single sense impression will recall this commencement.

They will doubtless remember the growing feeling of panic at not being prepared to face the world and the pain of severing close attachments. College has been a kind of cocoon [illegible] strengthen wings [illegible] majority at this point are re[illegible]ining, be[illegible] the one t[illegible]orse than feeling [illegible]nd th[illegible]l by restrictions is entering a w[illegible] cares enough[illegible]

Fortunately if the college experience has been what it should be, the fears pass and a new productive life begins. I think we can be confident that for most seniors the experiences have been good. One whom I talked with recently observed that she had found here a place where she could be an individual, knowing that she would have support and understanding while she explored and experimented.

I thought of the art shows, the recitals, the independent studies, the laboratory experiments, the student-teacher relationships that are mutually supportive of creativity. How little aware most of us are most of the time of these individual and small group activities. Yet these people working quietly day by day make possible the kinds of group perfor mances we have seen recently, demon strations of a creative communit[illegible]

[illegible] orman[illegible] St[illegible]

[illegible] to work in harmony with one another. We have seen what happens when a baseball team truly becomes a team.

Fortunate are those who have known both the satisfaction of doing their own thing and of losing themselves in group participation. I hope that members of the Class of '74 will take them not only the memories but the inner strength that such experiences provide.

Commencement Activities

Friday May 31	All Day	Senior Art Exhibit— FAC gallery
Saturday June 1	9:00 a.m.	Alumni Registration — Banquet tickets on sale for $2.50.
	Noon	Class Reunion Luncheons for classes of '24, '29, '34, '39, '44, '49, '54, '59, '64, '69, and Golden Scots.
	6:30 p.m.	Alumni Dinner and Annual Meeting
Sunday June 2	10:30 a.m.	Church in individual's choice
	4:00 p.m.	Senior Fine Arts Hour — FAC Music Hall
	8:00 p.m.	Baccalaureate —Wilson Chapel
Monday June 3	10:30 a.m.	Commencement — Wilson Chapel

Streakers Vs. Demonstrators

Another school year has rolled over the ash heap of the republic. It was the best of times; it was the worst of times. Evidence of mass corruption in the executive branch of the federal government was revealed, a vice-president resigned, the House started impeachment proceedings, and the nation faced an energy crisis. Even though these events will definitely affect our lives in some significant way in the future, there was another series of events that took place on college campuses this year that I believe needs to be examined by us more than any of the events mentioned above. The implications of these events may not only affect our lives personally, but may well determine the fate of this country. The events I'm speaking of is STREAKING (Stop laughing! I'm serious!).

The mass anti-war and civil rights demonstrations of the last decade were very positive indications of the nation's youth accepting the responsibility of solving the problems facing America. The nation's college campuses became the conscience of America as they constantly challenged the policies, morals, and values of traditional American institutions. Both educational and governmental institutions faced organized student pressure to change their policies. Students began questioning the morality of their parents' generation. Instead of wild panty raids, concerted efforts to cram large numbers of students into phone booths, and goldfish swallowing, the taking over of administrations buildings characterized the actions of students during the sixties.

This new generation was advocating change and the leaders of America's established institutions reaction demonstrated the seriousness with which they viewed the actions of these students. The National Guard was dispatched to the campuses of many colleges and universities to quell the uprisings. Confrontations between the students and the National Guard resulted in violence, tear gasing, fire hosing and deaths of demonstrators. The National Guard wasn't called out when students cramed telephone booths. Bell Telephone Company looked at the student's actions as a harmless fad and replaced the booths promptly. The administration didn't give a damn about how many goldfish students swallowed (They would have let them swallow a whale if they wanted to). The reactions of institutional leaders exemplifies the difference between the two generations. The difference being: one was trying to "change things, " while the other was just "doing things."

[illegible]eaction of most college administrators to our "revolutionary act of streakin[illegible] very similar to the reactions of the 50's and 40's. Streak[illegible]elcomed by some because it supported their argument that [illegible] no different and no more concerned than our parents. [illegible]heir actions were an expression of rebellion [illegible] of society, streaking did not offer any [illegible]ority or policy. In other words, streakers did [illegible]g and as a result were on the most part left [illegible]/ pleased.

After the inspiration provided by the commitment of students during the last decade, it is a sad situation to see us drift backward, instead of moving forward with determination to make America the country, it is capable of becoming. It is even a sader situation that we here at Maryville are not rapidly organizing to change the things here at MC that need changing. Until we realize that stuffing phone booths, swallowing goldfish, panty raids, and streaking are not going to change things in America or here at MC, we should stop critizing our parents' generation.

The students of the sixties showed us the true side of America and its educational institutions. Yet, we have failed to continue the work begun by them. I ask you, which is the sign of a commited, morally concerned generation: Panty raiders and goldfish swallowers, or a group of students that take over the Administration building? I hope streaking is no indication of the direction we are headed.

e.d.h.

etters to the editor

hanks for helping

the editor:

ses to Pat Johnson and Tom Fox, o have unselfishly given of their e to help some of our John Sevier dents with special needs. Thank u, Pat and Tom.

rs.) June L. Parker, Counselor hn Sevier Elementary School

C had good influence

the editor:

ave just read the guest editorial by Nichols in the May 10, 1974, ue of The Highland Echo. (My ue comes by mail and arrives late.)

e is very articulate, but I find it fficult after two years in this com- unity to understand his statement at "the academic environment to be r the most part, unstimulating (at nes, lifeless)."

believe the faculty at Maryville ollege to be creative and intellect- lly stimulating and for the most rt they bring outstanding scholar- ip to their respective fields. In fact, e clarity of Mr. Nichols' editorial ould indicate that the "academic environment" has had a good influence on him.

Most sincerely,

John T. Mathison

Secret Organizations

To the editor:

Throughout the history of Maryville College, hundreds of men and women have developed a spirit of special loyalty. This spirit has come about for many reasons, but undoubtedly for some, one of the most important values in the college years has been the fraternal experience made possible by membership in the secret organizations.

The spirit of fellowship which brings members back for annual gatherings and the loyalty which these members have shown for each other's welfare for the past half-century are some of the more obvious values provided by these organizations. Members have returned to teach at the college, at times no doubt with some personal sacrifice. Others have returned to fill challenging administrative positions where the spirit of loyalty to the group has been an important motivation. Others have achieved prominent positions in the area and have been willing to serve in the Alumni organization and on the Board of Trustees.

Since a few sutdents and new faculty members may not be aware of this pervasive involvement in the College life, the secret organizations deserve to have their contributions made known. The time has come for the All-College Council to pass a resolution which recognizes all active, secret organizations. Let us recognize the intense loyalty which these groups have created among their members. Let us recognize that they have developed unusual ties between current students and graduates and they have provided a backlog of individuals who have come back to work in a variety of ways.

Since secret organizations are an anachronism in our day, since secret organizations represent an emotional level not consistent with college life, let us publicly recognize these groups for what they have been and are at Maryville College.

Member of the open Community

Credit Reputation of MC Students

To the editor:

We have a list of 33 students who, within the past two years, have cashed bad checks at one firm which is in the neighborhood of the campus.

Many of these students are enrolled now. Some have withdrawn or graduated. This irresponsible behavior on the part of a few damages the reputation of all Maryville College students, even though the vast majority do not abuse the privilege of cashing checks. This situation becomes a serious concern to all at Maryville College who care about the reputation of the student body as a whole.

Those who are guilty of this sort of thing, whether on purpose or through carelessness, would be well advised to take care of their obligations immediately.

College officials are not responsible for collecting debts such as this for off-campus agencies, but it is disappointing to learn that we have students who are careless and inconsiderate in dealings with local firms. In addition, if we are aware that a student has ignored a debt to a local store, his credit rating on campus is affected.

William A. Ribble
Director of Financial Aid

STAFF

MEMBER

Emerson D. Henderson
Editor-in-chief

Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

CPS
Member

Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Technical Editor

Don Gilbert
Business Manager

Dr. Elizabeth Fowler
Faculty Advisor

Gwen Guba
Lay-out Assistant

Bill Walker
Assistant Business Manager

Tom Fox
Photographer

J. Draper
Distribution

WRITERS

S. Ahmed
J. Canon
C Craven
K. Darden
C. D'Aquila

P. Johnson
S. Morris
O. Myers
F. Strohl

M. Miller
M. Warf
D. Welch
C. Williamson
J. Yancey

A voice from the Past

by Olivia Myers
Echo Staff Writer

Twenty years ago (1953-1954 for those of you who find it difficult to subtract) a curious little pamphlet called The M Book with "ABC's of Successful College Living" was published for Maryville College students.

As I fanced through it, I wondered what the "M" might stand for—Morals, Musn't, Mettlesome, Martial. I have chosen several entertaining excerpts from it. After careful analysis, maybe you can ascertain the meaning of the "M".

Radios must not be played between 11:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m.
No ironing is to be done on Sunday except emergency pressing between 7:00 and 9:00 a.m.
Possesion of liquor bottles, public or private signs, or road markers is considered, for obvious reasons, a disciplinable offense.
You may go to the College Woods in groups of two or more on weekdays and Sunday, but not in the company of men.
Men living in the dormitory may entertain their families in the lobby at specified times.
For Sunday dinner, both boys and girls are expected to wear their "Sunday best."
Girls going to town must be in groups of three or with a date.
Women students are not permitted to ride in automobiles with men without permission.
Men always wear shirts or jerseys, even when playing tennis or swimming.
Pool-rooms and places selling beer or other alcoholic beverages are out of bounds to students.
Ralph is the "legendary figure" on campus who may appear at any time from behind the nearest shrub and catch you off guard; our beloved Night Watchman; the little man who's always there.
Parlor dates may be had in the women's dormitory parlors from 7:00 until 10:15p.m. any week day evening by arranging with the Head of the Dormitory. Freshman and Sophomore women may have four each month.
Ball throwing or showballing is not permitted near buildings.
Couples may be together within the Circle Drive each weekday evening until 7:15 (7:00 on Sunday) and until 1:20 on Sunday afternoons.

ACC MEETING

[illegible] All Coll[illegible]

[illegible] ng of [illegible] tents [illegible] night. [illegible] ion put to the Council [illegible] erned the regulations regard[illegible] the possession and use of guns [illegible] the campus police. As most of the ACC members had not heard about [illegible]e incident they were concerned [illegible]d asked that it be looked into im[illegible]ediately. Dr. Kramer stated that [illegible]e matter has been turned over to [illegible]e Student Life Committee, and a [illegible]ll report will be given at the request [illegible] the ACC.

After the registration of names for the 1974-75 committees, former ACC co-chairman Sarah Winbigler thanked the Council for their "endurance and perserverence" and turned the meeting over to Mike Wenkstern and the New Council.

Intramurals

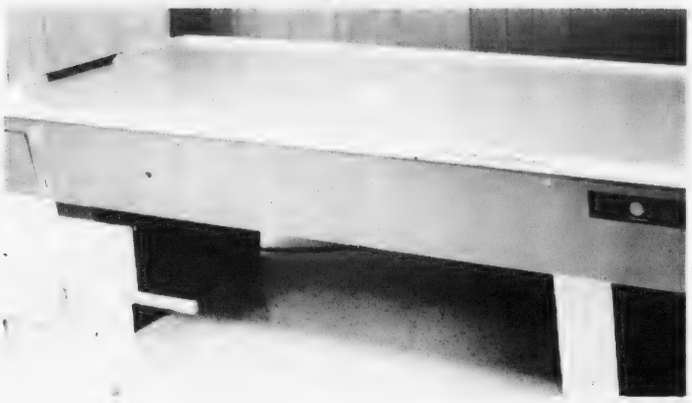
In W[illegible] Soft[illegible] toppled Carnegie Towers, the Vivacious Victors took the Magpies, and B defeated A, setting up the championship game between B and the Vivacous Victors. Team B continued their winning ways by winning the championship and ending their season undefeated.

The Men's Softball playoffs saw Bent Nail Syndrome bow to the Undecides; 9-5, Phi Zappa Krappa run over the Banjos; 11-4, the Studs whip the Undecides; 11-6, and the Sophomores bomb Phi Zappa Krappa; 9-1. In the championship game the Sophomores squeezed by the favored Studs 13-11.

Electronics

Physics 311, Biopsymed Electro[illegible] will be offered Tuesday and Thursday from 7-9 in the evenings Fall term 1974. Open to anyone interested in modern electronics, there is no pre-[illegible] Designed especially for biology, psychology, and pre-med students, it may also have some interest for music majors.

The course will spend most of the time in measuring circuits. How does one measure pressure, flow rate, motion, and electric potentials of the body, be they from the brain or heart? Students will learn how to bread board circuits and how to build an instrument by doing a special project. For more information see Dr. Love, 208 SSC.



Mead New Editor

Maureen Mead, a rising senior who has worked on the Chilhowean for three years, has been selected Editor of next year's annual by the Communications Committee.

Saga: Signs of Improvement

Russia's Silent Church

In 1970 the Soviet Union circulated extensively through the Free World a soviet-made propaganda film portraying the alleged religious freedom in their country.

Rev. Wurmbrand obtained a copy of this soviet propaganda film, then added to it documents showing the true state of the church in Russia, and the daily persecution of our Christian brethren at the hands of the Soviet Secret Police. Filmed partially inside Russia, this 30-minute sound color film will be shown in the Chapel Sunday, May 26 at 7 p.m.

Rev. Richard Wurmbrand, a Romanian Lutheran Pastor, who was arrested in 1948 and sewed a total of 14 years in communist prisons, including three years of solitary confinement, comments on the film. Pastor Wurmbrand and his family were ransomed out of communist Romania in 1965 for $10,000 by Christian friends from Norway. He is now the director of "Jesus To the Communist World, Inc.", a missionary organization whose primary activity is missionary work in communist countries.

The film enables the viewer to see both the Soviet propaganda line and Rev. Wurmbrand's response to it. You can see what happened to church buildings in Russia, where true Christians worship and how the message of Jesus Christ is propagated in lands with few Bibles, Pastors, churches and no freedom.

If you're not sure what's out there, how can you know where you're going or how to get there?

The Christian Science Monitor can help.

It keeps you squarely in the center of the bold and exciting, the important trends of thought. It gives a firsthand, close-in view of the world's struggles and achievements. You see where you fit in — things you can do.

The Monitor doesn't do your thinking for you. In a quick readable style it gives you the facts to form your own decisions.

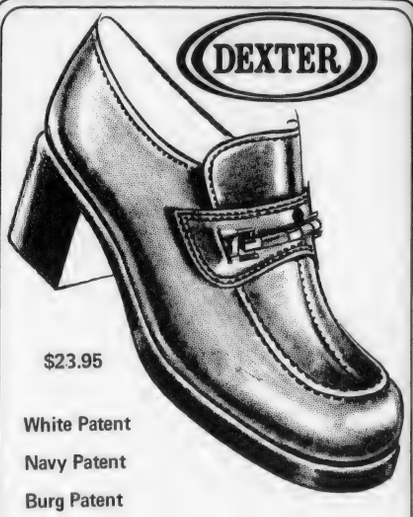
News, commentary, the arts, politics, science, fashion, sports, business: the Monitor is an exciting daily newspaper (Monday – Friday). Less than 10¢ a copy on your special rate.

Yes, I'll invest $8.25 in my future, for 4 months of The Christian Science Monitor.

Payment enclosed Bill me later

Name (Please print)

Street Apt.



City

State ZIP

The Christian Science Monitor
Box 125, Astor Station
Boston, Massachusetts 02123

17 SEA

elegance

$23.95

White Patent

Navy Patent

Burg Patent

Southern shoes

Midland Center
Alcoa

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Medical Arts Pharmacy

For all your medical Supplies of any kind

Next to Blount Memorial Hospital

— Store Hours — 9 a.m. - 9 p.m.

ATTENTION:

BLOOD BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

$10 per donation.
Plasma twice a week.
Or whole blood every 8 weeks.

Monday through Saturday.
Free parking.

blood alliance
520 Western Avenue • Phone 637-3171
(Formerly Knoxville Blood Center)

Mountain Supply Sporting Goods

Complete Lines of all

Camping, Fishing, Hunting and Sportswear Equipment

Invites MC Students To Shop At Its New Midland Shopping Center Locatio

Near Baskin-Robbins Ice-Cream

1974 - 1975

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 60, No. 1 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | September 20, 1974

News Briefs

Moscow, Soviet bulldozers ashed up an abstract art show. ssia only sanctions art dealing th "Socialist realism" all confiscated intings were burned.

serters and draft dodgers in nada say that few of their number l return to the U.S. under President d's conditional amnesty plan.

e Ali-Foreman fight, the richest in boxing history, has been cancelled Oct. 23, because of a cut over reman's eye.

o Wounded Knee defendants re freed by the judge of the trial ceedings.

i jacker blew up a South Viet- nese airliner, killing all 71 people ard after the pilot refused to fly Hanoi, making the first hi jacking esult in a large number of deaths.

on's personal physician said that ould be a "miracle" if the former sident recovers from a phlebitis dition in his left leg that might m a blood clot in his heart.

t American families for the first e since World War II are cutting k on their standard of living.

Federal takeover of the energy ustry or tougher enforcement of itrust laws may be needed to control runaway costs of basic fuels, several egated said at a Dallas inflation ference.

sident Ford made a public state- nt Monday night saying that on's acceptance of his pardon be construed as an "admission of t".

e Consumer Product Safety Com- sion has proposed a 5-month delay the start of new safety rules for ycles—the most dangerous product der its jurisdiction.

A has been charged w th violating e Clear Air Act by the Environ- ntal Protection Agency.

nate-House conferees agreed Tues- y on a $82.6 billion defense appro- ations bill, nearly $4.5 billion below e administration's amended budget quest.

rkey faces its second government is in seven months, as Premier evit resigned Monday.

ntinued high inflation threatens cause "serious and prolonged nage to the world economy," ording to the International netary Fund.

ree Japanese guerilla terrorists o were occupying the French bassy in Holland for the free- m of a comrade have given up and t Holland for Syria.

llions of customers have been r charged for natural gas because Federal Power Commission im- perly allowed producers to sell at unregulated prices according he General Accounting Office, r a 10-month investigation.

Career Planning and Placement Office Opens

by Kit Williamson
Echo Staff Writer

One of the new faces this year on the Maryville College campus is that of Elaine Spurlin, the director of the new Career Planning and Placement Office, located in the Campus Center across from the Bookstore. We are sure she will be a welcome addition to Maryville's faculty and students alike.

Mrs. Spurlin, a native of Southern Georgia, has a broad educational background. She attended Oxford College of Emory University, is a graduate of the University of Georgia in psychology, and received her Master's degree from the University of Tennessee. Previously, she has worked at the UT Office of Special Services, dealing mainly with career planning and women's programs.

Speaking about the purpose of a Career Planning and Placement Office, Mrs. Spurlin gave four main objectives she hopes to accomplish: (1) To make entering students aware of career alternatives early in their college years, (2) To introduce students to techniques of seeking and applying for jobs or post graduate training, (3) To attempt to place students in the "real world of work" where they can get practical experience, and (4) To counsel students concerning career plans and job prospects! At the present time, Mrs. Spurlin is in the process of getting organized and is starting to receive many graduate catalogs, books about prospects for job opportunities and literature from different companies. She also hopes to get audio visual tapes dealing with interviewing techniques.

Elaine Spurlin

Some long range plans for the Office include holding seminars on job opportunities and keeping a file on job openings. For the present, Mrs. Spurlin urges all interested students to come by the Office between the hours of 8:30-5:00 and get aquainted with her, for she feels that this is one of her most important jobs.

Smallness and Football Program Attract New Students

An unscientific poll taken by the Echo this week revealed that entering students were attracted to Maryville for various reasons. One-hundred new students were asked to respond to the question: Why did you choose Maryville College over other institutions?

Of the females responding, 56% listed Maryville's smallness as one of their major reasons for coming to MC. Most of those polled felt that larger schools were too impersonal. They believed that the amount of personal attention a professor could give them would be greater here. Other factors listed as being important reasons for their choice were location, academic reputation, personal contact with members of MC's campus and Facilities.

One of the more interesting responses was that "Maryville tuition isn't high."

Of the male students responding, 59% listed Maryville's football program as one of their major reasons for chosing Maryville. 36% listed the size of MC as a major reason. Many of those polled felt that their chances of playing football here were greater than at larger universities. Other reasons listed by male students were location and academic reputation.

Garden Party

You are cordially invited to the Faculty Garden Party for the Entire Campus Community at Morningside, the home of President and Mrs. Copeland, Eight to Ten o'clock, Friday evening, September Twentieth.

From The Chaplain's Office

Mr. Neil Housewright, Associate Dean of the Divinity School at Vanderbilt University, will be on campus Monday, September 23 from 1:00-3:00 p.m. If you are considering theological study and would like to talk to Mr. Housewright, please contact the chaplain's office for an appointment.

Vespers

Vespers will be held Sunday, September 22, at 7:00 p.m. in the Music Hall. The topic of discussion will be "Jesus Who . . . . . ?" Everyone is invited to attend.

New Students At MC

What Are We Returning To...

As we return from our summer vacations, we are bombarded with announcements of changes that have taken place at Maryville over the summer. These changes include courses as well as personnel. Among the course changes are: Philosophy 101 has been replaced by Humanities 101; Non-Western Studies is moving toward the study of Africa; and math can now be substituted for a foreign language requirement. These changes indicate that Maryville is constantly evaluating its programs.

However, in the mist of all the changes that have taken place over the summer one thing surely has not changed: the "credibility gap" that exist between the administration, especially the President, and students. Dr. Copeland's image as "the man who has mastered the art of talking out of the thousand corners of his mouth" has not changed at all. What is appalling is not the fact that a credibility gap exists, but rather the fact that no one is willing to acknowledge it. Fear and the possibility of conflict has kept most quite on this subject. Yet, how can you solve a problem if you refuse to admit it exists.

I raise the credibility question because it threatens to destroy our system of governance at M.C. The All-College Council has been criticized numerous times as being a "do-nothing" council. This criticism has been directed in the wrong direction. It should have been directed to the Council's chairman. Any observer of the ACC must realize that the President, does in fact, dominate the Council. His knowledge of parliamentary procedure acquired over the years, along with his position as president of the college, gives him the edge over the other members. As a result, the President is often able to talk circles around elected representatives who have very little knowledge of how the system works.

President Copeland should move immediately to close this "credibility gap" before campus government suffers in a matter similar to our national government. He sure take steps now to change the structure of the Council to provide for a rotating chairman. If our President does not act to change the Council, the elected members must! Let's face it! As long as the President dominates the ACC, students will never give it the support it needs to be an effective, representative government.

Emerson D. Henderson

...What Lies Ahead

"Welcome to the biggest small college in the country." Well, that is the new sign at the football field and now it's an official welcome to all freshmen and transfer students. You have arrived at Maryville College, registered, and classes have begun; now it's time to look around the campus and decide where you're going. This campus is like a small, isolated community which seems to become a world apart—and your place in it is up to you.

There are many things to experience: you will encounter new people, ideas, and different ways of life. This is a good place for education with the small classes where individual attention is possible and a chance to learn by getting involved. Don't be afraid to challenge some of the ideas you meet along the way—there are many people that will listen. Education is more than just classes and books; it's an exploration.

There are many sides to campus life. M.C. has athletic programs for every interested person—intercollegiate and intramural sports. If you like social organizations, there are different clubs you can join. You can make your ideas known by writing for the Echo or working on the Chilhowean, or getting into drama or music.

An important facet of college life, our government—the All College Council, has left some upperclassmen disenchanted and many complain but barely try to meet the demands or try to change them when there is disagreement on issues with which we're all involved. As M.C. students you are now members of this academic community and you do have the right to voice your opinions and ideas at the open meetings and to work with committees—don't give in to the apathetic atmosphere most upperclassmen have sunk into. There is a lot to work for this year and we all need to work together to make Maryville a school that reflects the way we feel it should be. Maryville is us.

These activities are here—maybe they aren't for you—but don't be afraid to consider the possibilities.

by Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

A Dean's Eye View

by Carolyn Blair

What's new? is the favorite campus question in September. At Maryville College we can point to much that is new. First there is the Class of '78, some two hundred freshmen who began surprising and delighting us the day they arrived. There are new faculty. We meet and talk with them and wonder at our good fortune in attracting such people. There are new programs. We have planned and projected, and we are seeing our efforts rewarded.

There is also a new attitude, one that says that this is the year we will unite in the common goal of making Maryville College the vital center we know it can become.

In workshops throughout the summer various groups of faculty studied and talked and listened to one another as they struggled to clarify objectives and envision ways to achieve them. In the opening workshop involving the entire faculty and staff, ideas began to crystalize and discussions were begun that we hope will continue throughout the year among both faculty and students in informal discussions as well as in committees.

Ideas that keep coming to the fore are (1) that higher education, and Maryville College in particular, must find a way to make a greater impact on society by dealing directly with the major problems besetting us; (2) that we must take more seriously our responsibility for the cultivation of values; (3) that we must provide preparation for careers in the broadest sense of that term; and (4) that we must design new methods of teaching and learning and new configurations of curriculum. Some have been troubled by the seeming incompatibility of career planning with the liberal arts. Some have asked whether we will spread ourselves too thin by offering new areas of concentration. Others have asked whether it is possible to deal with values without running the danger of indoctrination. All of these are valid questions for which we must find answers.

The September issue of Change contains an article by Earl McGrath, former U.S. Commissioner of Education, in which he addresses himself to the issues we have been discussing. The article needs to be read in its entirety, but, in brief, McGrath argues for "a proper balance between preparation for career and the cultivation of values." He suggests that "general and liberal education is the thread that ought to weave a pattern of meaning into the total learning experience, particularly in the liberal arts colleges."

Regarding what he sees as the need for "reorienting the academic enterprise toward a concern with the problems now afflicting humanity," McGrath is pessimistic about the ability of universities to achieve the redirection. That, he thinks, must come from the "hard-pressed independent colleges."

Certainly at no time has the independent college had a better opportunity to make its presence felt. A year of dedicated planning on the part of students, faculty, and staff could make all the difference in Maryville's future.

Staff

Emerson D. Henderson
Editor-in-chief

Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

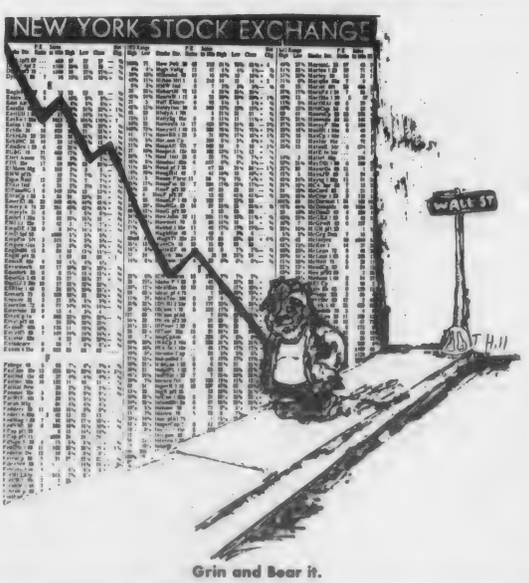
Bill Walker
Business Manager

Jeff Draper
Distribution

Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Technical Editor

Dr. Robert B. Braid
Faculty Advisor

Tom Fox
Photographer



Gwen Guba
Lay-out Assistant

Echo Philosophy

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Grin and Bear it.

Scots Open Against Centre

by Fred Strohl
Echo Staff Writer

As Maryville College Head Football Coach Jim Jordan prepares his team for tomorrow's season inaugural versus Centre College here, a big question mark remains with the offense and in particular the passing game, while the defense seems to be ready for the 2:00 p.m. kickoff. It's a whole new ball game with the Maryville football program this year as new coaches, new uniforms, new faces, and the return of local broadcasts on radio highlight the start of the 1974 season. Coach Jordan and his Assistant Coach, Ron Case, who Jordan brought along with him from Carson-Newman, are very enthusiastic about the season ahead and feel confident that the Scots can improve on last year's season record of 5-4.

Four new men are battling for the quarterback job including Bobby Graham, Steve Wright, Bobby Fitzgerald, and John Drake. They will be working with a group of veteran running backs in Joe Genualdi, Vance Vermilya, Keith Goodwin, Mike Owens, and Don Grout. First year participants Glen Thompson, Paul Murphy, and Gary Petree may also see some action. Some veteran receivers should get a lot of work in the likes of Jim Lester, Tom Hyne, and Don .Surrency. Hyne and Surrency were formerly on defense, while the latter is coming back after knee troubles that forced him to the sidelines for the entire season last year. Charlie Cox will also see plenty of action if an arm injury suffered in practice earlier this week does not prove to be a hinderance. The offensive line seems to be set with Dave Costello at center, Mark Keahon and Bob Von Mitch at the guard posts, and Andy Weissing and Steve Savage as tackles.

Since the defense has been making more progress in pre-season than offense, Jordan is depending on them for a strong game with Centre. The front line appears to be set with returnees Mike Bourque, Lee Taylor, and Bob Shumski and new comer Troy Bowman, who is called the "Intimidator." The linebacking corps at the start is composed of Steve Howard, Joe Lombardo, a running back last year, Dan Osbourne, and Danny Maples, who Jordan has been particularly impressed with. Defensive backs include Jeff Hamilton, Steve Harrison, Mike Osbourne, Jed Coughlin, Billy Bone, Ronnie Lesley, Wayne Thompson, and Danny Thomas. Danny Moore will handle the punting chores at the start, while the job of kicking field goals and extra points is a battle between Tim Kelly, Kicker Brandenburg, and Charlie Allcott.

Scots Prepare For Opener

In last year's game with Centre, the Scots were victorious, 24-7. The Commodores lost their first game of the year last week against Oberlin. Maryville has an open date next weekend and will return to action on October 5 at Franklin, Indiana versus Franklin College. The next home game is not until Homecoming Weekend on Saturday night, October 26, when the Scots meet Bridgewater College of Bridgewater, Virginia.

Review

Godspell, An Excellent Play

by Nesa Pettigrew

Being an opponent of Jesus-Freakism, Godspell, came as a bizarre change. Colorful costumes were humerous for those getting into the bright characters of clowns. A song-and-dance Jesus, played by Randy Hunter, enacted parables from Saint Matthew with charades and an okay impression of Jimmy Durante. The finale had the strongest impact on the audience. Randy, suffering from one cable falling off his cross and a slight sore throat, was marvelous. He sang a clear and moving tones—leaving the ending with only good acting to ward off the inevitable crucifixion scene. Cast members, having already removed their marks were given salvation; the story being the same old one, however done a little different.

Mike Dykes and a voice never before entered in public was excellent. "All Good Gifts" came alive with his deep, consoling singing. Tom Williamson and Lee Ousley were outstanding as pantomimes. Mary Belle Story enticed at least one man sitting next to the aisle as she danced a mighty be spangled, sometimes referred to as sexy, little song entitled, "Turn Back O Man." Dew Joyce and Dana Harbison displayed a pleasant duet in "By My Side." In fact, all singing was clearly and audibly available to the audience.

A fine review is the verdict from this person, who sat in the fifth row on Monday night. Terry Noack's choreography was very effective. A standing ovation and general approval was a standard reaction. Godspell got a bonefied rating. The actors mixed with the music opened the season with clapping hands.

A Message to the Freshmen

You need not tell an upper classman how you feel when you enter Maryville College. for he or she knows it well. But there are things that you as newcomers need to know and it is for us to make you aware so you wouldn't complain later that you weren't told.

It is almost certain that you have many in mind? All straight As? Or is that Bs? When the term gets going and you have goofed off a bit and also you have had a test or two, you will see that those straight As seem to be bending a little, looking more like Bs. And when the term approaches its end, you will definitely have one of those nights when you feel as if you are tied somewhere between your bed and your desk. Occasionally you also feel like you are in suspended animation. But there is nothing too terrible about it. With one term paper and two big tests due the next morning, even Bertrand Russel would be nervous - especially when he hasn't worked for most of the term. So beginning with a resolution of straight As, you wind up settling for quite a bit less.

One of the routine things you'd be doing is paying regular visits to the dining hall. The Dining Hall has a saga all its own. During the preceding year it has been unduly criticized. Some people just don't know how to appreciate things. And you know nobody is perfect, not even Saga. Of course they make mistakes once in a while. You are quite likely to come across the so-called Peasant's Pie which is usually so greasy that even a peasant could't enjoy. But do not complain. Just join the club.

Hear ye now O Freshmen that there are some upper classmen who think that they get more and more superior every year. Do not follow their path. And stay fresh as long as you can.

Shahbaz Ahmed

Why Tykes Fall Off Trikes

(CPS) — The American taxpayer may be relieved to learn that scientific research has not been ignored by the federal government.

His tax dollars have funded such endeavors as the study of bisexual Polish frogs, the odor of sweat from Austrailian aborigines and mating calls of Central American toads.

From a General Accounting Office report, Rep. John B. Conlan (R-AZ) has compiled an expenditures list of various federal studies.

Some of the problems scrutinized by the eye of the government include the following:

—The Department of Health, Education and Welfare spent $19,300 to find out why children fall off tricycles. Their official finding: "Unstable performance, particularly rollover while turning."

—The federal government's Board of Tea Tasters sips along at taxpayer's expense, costing $117,250 a year. Extra sipping is also done for those unhappy with this board's tea-tasting tests by the Board of Tea Appeals.

—The Interdepartmental Screw Thread Committee, established as a temporary agency to speed the end of World War I, is still laboring to make nuts and bolts fit together. The cost: $250,000 a year.

—A study of the blood groups of Polish Zlotnika pigs was conducted at the Agriculture College in Poznan, Poland. The $20,550 project was funded by the US Agriculture Department and investigated red blood cells and serum antigens in this new racial group of swine.

—In the interest of continued international diplomacy, England's Queen Elizabeth II received $68,000 from Uncle Sam for not planting cotton on her Mississippi plantation.

Federal programs, Conlan has noted, cost every man, woman and child about $1,500 each year—more than double the cost per person in 1965.

"Since tax cheaters can be fined and jailed," suggested Conlan, "perhaps federal bureaucrats guilty of squandering our money should be as well."

Attention

If you failed to get your campus welcome packet from welcome wagon you may still get one from the office of Student Personnel! There is a coupon book inside giving special prices at local stores!

"Get Yours Today"

Danforth Fellowships

Inquiries about the Danforth Fellowships, to be awarded by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri in March 1975, are invited, according to the local campus representative, Dean Carolyn Blair.

The Fellowships are open to all qualified persons of any race, creed or citizenship, single or married, who have serious interest in careers of teaching and/or administration in colleges and universities, and who plan to study for a Ph. D. in any field of study common to the undergraduate liberal arts curriculum in the United States. Applicants must be under 35 years of age at the time application papers are filed, and may not have undertaken any graduate or professional study beyond the baccalaureate. Persons must be nominated by Liaison Officers of their undergraduate institutions by November 20, 1974. The Danforth Foundation does not accept direct applications for the Fellowships. Approximately 100 Fellowships will be awarded in March 1975.

The award is for one year, and is normally renewable until completion of the degree or for a maximum total of four years of graduate study. Fellowship stipends are based on individual need, but may not exceed $2025 for single Fellows and $2200 for married Fellows for the academic year, plus dependency allowances for children and required tuition and fees.

Other fellowships may be held concurrently with a Danforth Fellowship, except for those administered through other programs of the Danford Foundation. Income from other awards will be taken into consideration in determining the supplementary living expense stipend if the amount received is less than the Danforth Foundation was created in 1927 by the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth of St. Louis as a philanthropy devoted to giving aid and encouragement to persons, to emphasizing the humane values that come from a religious and democratic heritage, and to strengthening the essential quality of education.

Work Opportunities

Any student who has filed application for a student job and has not received notice of an assignment should make inquiry at the Financial Aid Office.

Student Congress Split Condemns Rockefeller

by Curt Koehler

(CPS) – The 27th National Student Congress–smaller, tamer and less political than in recent years–voted to split the National Student Association (NSA) into two corporations, one to engage in political activities and the other to concentrate on educational affairs.

More than 250 delegates representing a third of NSA's 650 affiliate student governments met for the association's annual congress in St. Louis in late August in a meeting one commentator said lacked the "blood-boiling social issues of the recent past."

The split or "bifurcation" of NSA was designed to enable the student organization to engage in formal lobbying while protecting its income-generating tax exempt status.

The move followed years of haggling with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) over allegedly political (and for tax exempt organizations, prohibited) activities by NSA. The IRS had questioned activities such as NSA'S participation in the anti-war movement of the late 60's and early 70's, specifically a trip a Hanoi by NSA leaders to negotiate the "Peoples' Peace Treaty" with North Vietnamese leaders.

In other action, the student congress passed resolutions:

–condemning the nomination of Nelson Rockefeller for Vice-President as the "Butcher of Attica" and "a representative of corporate interests which oppress the people."

–rejecting President Ford's suggestion for "earned re-entry" for US was resisters and calling for "universal, unconditional amnesty."

–supporting the United Farm Workers boycott of Gallo wines.

–calling for "penal reform, release of those imprisoned for drug misdemeanors, free higher education open to all, and job creation on a massive scale."

Potpourri

Invites you to inspect their complete line of:

hanging candles craft supplies
fishnets Incense posters

114 W. Broadway
Nowtown Mall, Maryville

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

The Leader
BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

bank of maryville

Your* Bank In Blount County

Nowtown • West Maryville • Alcoa • Airport • Broadway • Chilhowee

A FULL SERVICE BANK

MEMBER F.D.I.C.

Southern Shoes MIDLAND CENTER

EARTHY GUYS NEED EARTHY DEXTER SHOES.

The shoe revolution has started and Dexter leads the way with earthy looking shoes to kick around in.

$25.95

theHighland ECHO

Vol. 60, No. 2 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | September 27, 1974

News Briefs

Richard Nixon, ailing with phlebites, checked into the hospital Monday.

Gail A. Cobb, a first year Metropolitan officer of the District of Columbia's Police Department, was shot and killed in the line of duty Sept. 20. She is possibly the first policewoman to be slain in the country.

The Environmental Protection Agency said that 1975 automobiles will get 13.5 percent better gas mileage than 1974 cars.

Leon Jaivorski asked last week for an official court inquiry to determine whether former President Nixon is too ill to testify at the Watergate cover up trial.

The cost of living rose another 1.3 per cent last month.

Ron Nessen, NBC's 40 year old White House correspondent, became President Ford's press secretary last week.

Attendance is still dropping at racially tense schools in the Boston area due to the court ordered desegregation.

Pope Paul VI celebrated Mass in the Sisters Chapel Sunday, with more than 70 American bishops.

Former White House special counsel Charles Colson began serving his 1-3 years sentence last Tuesday.

The Greeks Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot leaders have agreed on a general release of all remaining prisoners of war.

Convicted watergate conspiratoe James McCord lost a court bid Friday to annul the Nixon pardon.

The Environmental Protection Agency seeks to ban pesticides alderin and dieldrin because of a high risks of causing cancer in mar

Thirty-two Yugoslav Communists were sentenced to terms ranging from 1-14 years for having taken part in an attempt to organize a pro-Soviet Communist Party in Yugoslavia.

Jaqueline Susanne died of cancer last Saturday.

Army troops burned the bodies of thousands of Hurricane Fifi victims in Honduras Monday.

Nelson Rockefeller says he will put his family's holdings of more than 325 million in oil stocks into blind trust if he is confirmed as the 41st vice president.

Actor Walter Brennan died Saturday from emphysema.

Pres. Ford warned Middle East oil producing nations Monday of "disastrous consequences" if they refuse to lower prices or share their resources with dependent nations.

Senior US diplomats put down speculators that Sec. of State Henry Kissinger is on the way out.

Sen. Edward Kennedy disclosed his political plans Monday of not running for the presidency in 1976.

Black Visiting Professor At MC

by Chris D'Aquila

Echo Staff Writer

Visiting professor Dr. Donald W. Wyatt is a new black professor on campus who will be presenting occassional lectures throughout the year in the departments of History, Political Science and Non-Western Studies. Dr. Wyatt claims that his "African background will bring new points of view to classes."

A native of Baltimore, Maryvland, Dr. Wyatt attended Lincoln University where he received his A.B. in Sociology, and the University of Pennsylvania where he received his M.A. in Sociology. His further studies were conducted at the University of Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania School of Social Work and American University in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Wyatt has served as Vice-President in Africa of the African-American Institute, New York and as Regional Representative for West Africa, Lagos, Nigeria. His numerous positions include teaching, Social Welfare Services, research government services and administrative and international assignments.

Dr. Wyatt prefers working in a small institution, like Maryville. Very much interested in the program set forth by President Copeland, he desires to help the institutions objectives. Dr. Wyatt will also help the students from minority groups with the hope of increasing the enrollment.

Pathways To Change

by Michael Johnston

Criticism of participatory governments is constantly necessary to insure that they remain "participatory" – consistantly recognizing and acting upon the needs of the "participants". When, as is the present state of affairs at Maryville College, this criticism becomes an almost repititious labeling of the All-College Council as "do nothing", the entire community must begin to ask "Why?" Several partial answers may be noted immediately:

* There is nothing to do.
* The government really does "do nothing"
* The participants "do nothing".

The first partial answer, that there is nothing to do, may be dismissed as inapplicable to Maryville College. The genuine concern and frustration that motivate so many to name the A.C.C. a "do nothing" government points out that there is indeed "something" that needs "doing". The real answers must lie elsewhere.

It is the purpose of this column to encourage exploration, during the course of the year, of the validity of the remaining answers. Neither partial answer can alone be accepted as final since government (the A.C.C.) and participants (all members of the college community) are mutually dependent. This series of articles will deal mainly with issues that will determine the validity of the second partial answer, the government really "does nothing".

There will be, over the next few weeks, an in-depth study of the various committees that facilitate the workings of the A.C.C. Committee responsibilities, membership, meeting times and places will be presented to familiarize all community members with "structures" in both theoretical and practical senses. Also to provide specific information about the various other "pathways" an individual may follow to have a matter brought before the A.C.C.

Beyond being just a conveyor of facts, the column will provide an opportunity for all members of the A.C.C. and the committees to express their opinions on the workings of college government and the matters brought before it.

Hopefully, these articles will form the basis of new and better communication between the A.C.C. and the community it serves. Several other new programs with identical purposes deserve mention at this time. First, on October 2 the A.C.C. will sponsor "Participating or Passing the Buck: Your Potential for Influence" as a C.I.V. program. Immediately following will be the first Town Hall meeting of the year. These programs will allow the A.C.C. and the community as a whole to voice concerns and opinions about the workings and priorities of M.C. governance.

Beginning October 9 (tenatively) there will be new opportunity for much more personal dialogue between A.C.C. members and interested individuals. This will take place during informal Open Forums to be held in the Student Center from 8 to 10 p.m. on Wednesday nights.

Throughout all these articles and programs, there is no intention of "dressing up" the A.C.C. Rather, they are attempts to present the A.C.C. as it is, encouraging each individual to make his own judgements.

These decisions, coupled with resulting individual initiative toward honest dialogue with and active involvement in M.C.'s system of governance will decide the validity of that third partial answer, the participants "do nothing". Since, as mentioned earlier the A.C.C. and the community are mutually dependent, criticism of one infers an equivalent shortcoming in the other. In effect, whatever faults we, as individuals, see in the A.C.C., we must also see their root equivalents in ourselves. Thus, the system cannot change unless we change with it. The buck can only be passed back to us.

Theta Epsilon Rush

Theta Epsilon welcomes all freshmen women to Maryville College and hope that they will make it a long and enjoyable stay. Our rush will take place in just a few weeks and we would like to meet all of you before then. Our sign-up is Tuesday, October 1, in the dining hall during lunch and dinner.

If you have any questions please feel free to contact our officers:

Pres.	Lorraine Werner	Box 2226
Vice Pres.	Helene Hanchett
Sec.	Dorothy Bang	Box 2021
Treas.	Jane Duffy	Box 2081

We feel that belonging to a society is good for developing new friendships, interests, and having a good time. Get involved!

Movie Tonight

"Getting Straight" with Elliot Gould and Candace Bergen will be shown tonight at 8:00 p.m. in the theatre. Admission is 75 cents stag, or $1.25 couple. There will be free popcorn and Pink Panther Cartoons.

Vespers

The topic for vespers this Sunday in the Little Chapel at 7:00 p.m. is "A Man for Today." Everyone is invited to attend. Our leader for this week's vespers is Howard Ware, Jr. who is a graduate of Emory and Henry and has a degree from Southern Methodist University Divinity School. After serving several churches in the Holston Conference of the Methodist Church, Mr. Ware is now employed by a Knoxville architectural firm.

from the editor's desk

Freedom Of The Press

"Emerson, I sure hope that I will be able to keep you as a resident assistant after that editorial criticizing the President in today's paper." This statement, made by one of my quad members, is representative of the many responses I received after last week's editorial. A few people even suggested that I would not be in school here much longer. Even though the farewells were touching and the good-bye kisses pleasing, I must reluctantly return them because I am not leaving here anytime soon.

The First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States guarantees "freedom of the press." Recent court decisions leave no doubt that this freedom applies to student newspapers, both college and high school, as well. If we learned anything from "Watergate," it should be that the press cannot be suppressed. Continuous attacks from both Mr. Nixon and Mr. Agnew did not stop members of the press from presenting the facts and stating their opinions based on those facts which eventually led to the ouster of Nixon and Agnew.

As editor, I realize that I will often be accused of twisting the facts, being negative, or downright lying. This criticism goes with the job and should not stop the efforts of a responsible campus journalist who is doing his job as he fells it needs to be done.

After my selection as editor last spring, I stated in this column that it was my responsibility to keep "important issues" before the campus. This is what I have tried to do. If my head gets chopped off in the process, I will run wildly around MC, like a chicken with no head, trying to do the job I was chosen to do.

e.d.h.

Staff

Emerson D. Henderson
Editor-in-chief

Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

Bill Walker
Business Manager

Jeff Draper
Distribution

Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Technical Editor

Dr. Robert B. Braid
Faculty Advisor

Tom Fox
Photographer

Gwen Guba
Lay-out Assistant

Echo Philosophy

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

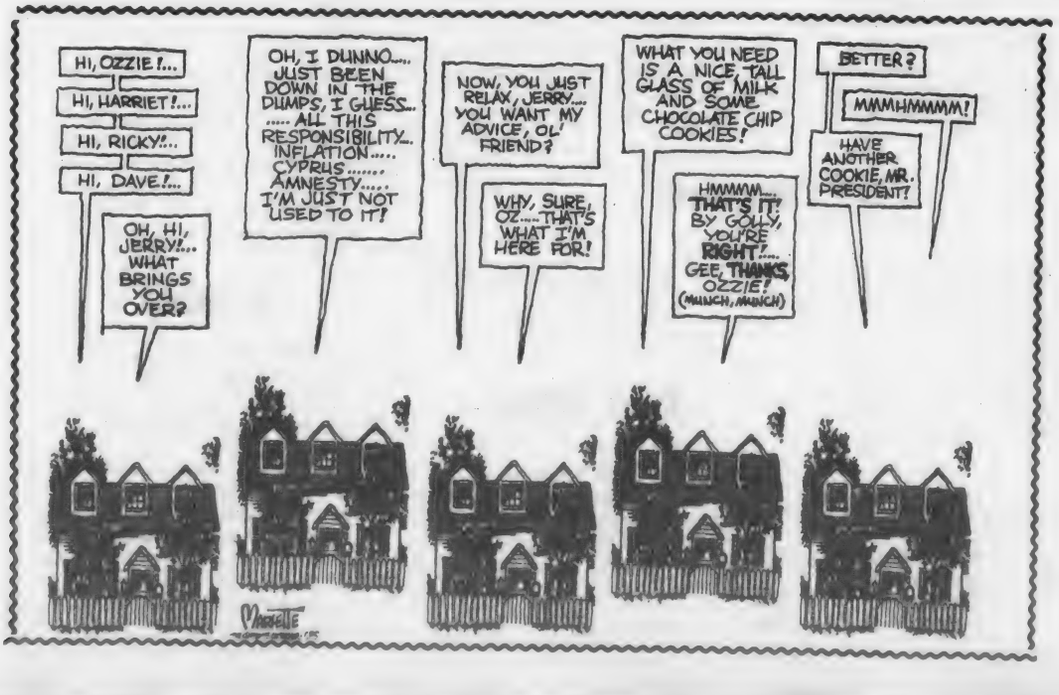
A Dean's Eye View

One All-College Council committee that never takes a holiday, even in the summer, is the one responsible for planning the Community Issues and Values programs. Under the leadership of Chairman Frank McClelland and Co-Chariman Sheila Moore, a meeting was held this week to organize into the three subcommittes that will finish the planning for 1974-75, project a schedule for 1975-76, and take care of arrangements for each program and the entertainment of visiting speakers and performers.

Not many of us can fully appreciate the effort that goes into this kind of planning or understand the discouragement of committee members when some in the audience are unresponsive or even discourteous. Last year the ACC approved a recommendation from the CIV Committee and the Instructional Program Committee to remove required CIV attendance. Those who prefer may now substitute a course for one or all of the CIV requirements. The new Catalog contains a statement about the change, and fuller details are available in the Registrar's Office.

Thus beginning this year we hope to have an audience composed of those who understand and support the objectives of CIV: (1) To focus on vital current issues and the values that help us to deal with those issues, recognizing that in a college community it is easy to become isolated from national and world affairs; (2) to provide at least one experience each week that can be a focus for the kind of dialogue essential to intellectual growth; and (3) to recognize that learning can take place without the usual requirements of assigned reading, tests, and papers.



Under the new regulations the audience should have better conditions for listening and participating in the programs, while those who have the urge to study, to write letters, to read newspapers, and to talk with neighbors are free to find an environment more conducive to those activities. We hope, however, that even those who decide not to attend CIV for credit will occasionally find programs they want to hear. And we can always dream of a situation in which every student and faculty member freely chooses to become an informed, participating citizen.

The CIV Committee welcomes suggestions both as to types of programs and format. The names of the members are posted on bulletin boards, and the meetings, like those of all ACC committees, are open. The more input from the total community, the more effective CIV will become as the focal point of our spiritual, intellectual, and social concerns.

From the Chaplain's Office

"Trial Year" In Seminary

The Fund for Theological Education, Inc. in Princeton, New Jersey, offers a "trial year" fellowship to students who are not now planning to attend graduate theological school, but who would be willing, if awarded a fellowship, to attend such a school for one year in order to seriously consider the possibility of the ordained Protestant ministry. There is no obligation to continue seminary beyond the first year. Fellows may apply to any Protestant seminary which is fully accredited by the American Association of Theological Schools. Candidates must be nominated by a minister, faculty member or former Fellow. Letters of nomination must be received in Princeton no later than November 20. The fellowship stipend provides room, board, tuition, fees, and an allowance for books and personal expenses. Awards are announced in ealy March. More information about this program can be obtained in the Chaplain's Office.

Attention

If you failed to get your campus welcome packet from welcome wagon you may still get one from the office of Student Personnel! There is a coupon book inside giving special prices at local stores!

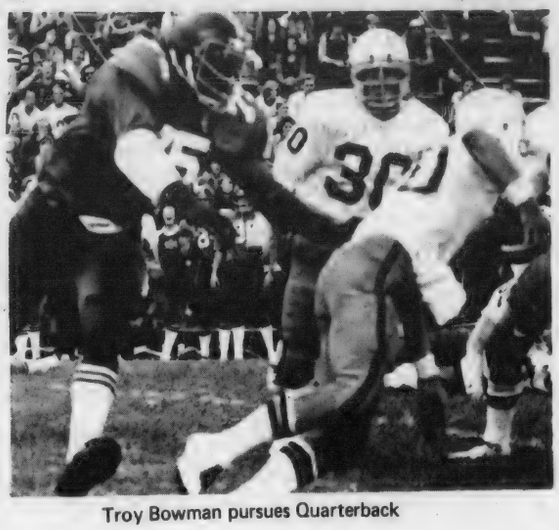
Work Opportunities

Any student who has filed application for a student job and has not received notice of an assignment should make inquiry at the Financial Aid Office.

Scots Down Centre

by Fred Strohl
Echo Staff Writer

Before a crowd of better than 3,000 at Honaker Field last Saturday afternoon, the Maryville College Football team, under new Head Coach Jim Jordan, defeated Centre College of Danville, Kentucky in the Scots' 1974 inaugural by a score of 18-7. Bobby Graham and Steve Wright shared quarterbacking chores in the game as the Scots compiled 292 yards total offense to Centre's 135. Maryville also dominated first down statistics as they racked up 13 to only seven for the Marauders, who are now 0-2 for the season.



Centre grabbed an early lead six minutes into the game as Bob Beck scored on a 12-yard pass from quarterback Roy Beard, who played his high school football for Jordan. Beck had taken the opening kickoff good for a 42-yard return that helped set the stage for the initial score. The extra point by Jimmy Akin was good as the Marauders lead 7-0. Maryville's first touchdown came in the second quarter after a good punt by the Scots' Don Moore put Centre on their one yard-line. The Marauders fumbled in the end zone with a mass scramble for the loose football which was grabbed by Danny Maples to give the home team six points. However, the extra point try by Scott Brandenburg was wide and the Scots still trailed 7-6. Maryville scored again three minutes later as Graham plunged in from the one. Again, the Scots were unable to make good on the conversion attempt as Charlie Allcott was quilty this time. Neither team scored in the third period, but Maryville put the icing on the cake when Jeff Hittinger intercepted a Beard pass to set up an eventual 18-yard touchdown run by Mike Owens. For the third time, the extra point was no good as Allcott tried again.

Coach Jordan seemed pleased with the team effort pointing out that this is a young team that has a "lot to learn, but I'm very proud of our effort."

Defensively, it was a big day for the Scots' as Beard was sacked five times.

Quarterback Steve Wright

Troy Bowman pursues Quarterback

Joe Lombardo, Steve Howard, Danny Maples, Lee Taylor, Troy Bowman, and Mike Bourque all had a good day. "Our defense did what they were taught and it paid off," said Defensive Coach Ron Case afterwards. This week-end the Scots have an open date, but return to action next Saturday afternoon against Franklin College at Franklin, Indiana. Their next home game is not scheduled until Saturday night, October 26 when they meet Bridgewater College of Bridgewater, Virginia. That will be this year's Homecoming Week-end.

Letters to the Editor

ACC Members Speak Out

To the Editor:

As student members of the All College Council we wish to express our agreement with Mr. Henderson's editorial, "What Are We Returning To . . ." (Sept. 20, 1974). The All-College Council has been in existence for five years. It grew, as Dr. Copeland is fond of saying, "out of an evolutionary, not a revolutionary process." We feel that this evolutionary process has been stifled thus resulting in what Emerson calls "the credibility gap that exists between the administration, especially the President, and students." This situation must be rectified, if the A.C.C. is to be recognized as the representative, responsive body it could be.

In practical solution to this problem, we suggest that the offices of co-chairman and secretary of the ACC be filled in a rotating manner. It is our feeling that the best interests of the college in general and the ACC specifically are not served by having two of the ACC's officers permanently established. This permanence, often hailed as best assuring "continuity" on the council, allows for the massing not only of great manipulative power, but also of great inertia and hesitance to act decisively.

But could not "continuity" also be achieved by selecting as co-chairman and secretary others of the many "administrators" who are long term members of the college community? Or two of the five faculty representatives having been at Maryville College over five years could be selected for the positions. We feel that continuity could be maintained by these alternatives, without the adverse effects caused by accumulated power and inertia. The desired ideals would always be present but in a fresh manner with every rotation.

The All-College Council has brought about many changes, but has itself changed little. If it is to become a truly representative governing body, reflecting the needs of all members of the campus community, the evolutionary process must be revitalized. New ideas and plans, such as we have suggested, must be encouraged, examined, discussed, but most importantly acted on decisively.

Constructively,

Tom Martin
Mike Johnston

Six More Dollars?

To the editor:

Physical Education Department take note.

A natural and accepted hazard of registration is losing money from an already slim bank account, but most students expect this when they get into line. For students who have passed that way before unusual occurances don't phaze them too drastically. Occasionally, though, an unexpected surprise that just happens to involve the meager piggy bank perks them up.

The P.E. department hit us in our pocketbooks. Every student registered in a P.E. course, excluding a few exceptions was asked for $6.00 to pay for a uniform, towel, to be laundered before each class meeting—and a lock.

As a sophomore who forked over $8.00 last year for a "desirable" pair of red shorts and red and white shirt, I was indignant and insulted.

What happened to the teaching's of using money wisely? And if I'm not capable of washing my own towel I might as well throw it in instead of washing it.

Those of us in the P.E. courses aren't out to put on a show. At best we're out to be physically fit. I can't see a reason for the new system. Only the lock seems to have any use. Maybe I'm just being ignorant and can't see the use, but at this point I'm just broke and I didn't even pay the 6 bucks this term.

Debbie Welch

ACC Needs Overhaul

To the Editor:

In response to your noteworthy editorial of last week I was glad to see that you kicked-off the school year by rolling up your sleeves and addressing a point which is pertinent to all members of Maryville College. The All College Council, that is the ACC—our governing body needs dramatic if not major overhaul.

A good editorial not only criticizes but comes up with some constructive ideas for correcting flaws, and my dear Emerson, your rotating chairman is a fine brainstorm. You are right in saying that the President does dominate the Council, what you failed to point out is that he actually controls it. This did not come about as a result of any Watergate-type hanky-panky on the part of President Copeland but rather on the permissiveness and apathetic inactivity of former members of the Council. It is too early to tell whether the present members will continue the lethargy of their predecessors. If last Spring's fraudulant elections are any indication, then we the rest of the College Community have a responsibility to our school and ourselves to return the government back to us the electorate.

The first thing we need to acquaint ourselves with is the Constitution and the by-laws of the ACC. These documents (if they exist!) should not be in the hands of a select few but available to all. The task of making the ACC more Democratic lies with us; we can sit back and complain or we can stand up and be counted—even brick walls age and crumble to the winds of popular will.

Sincerely,
Willy Vidal

Soccer Club Loses

The MC Soccer Club suffered a humilating but learning experience 11-0 in its opener at Bryan College, Dayton, Tennessee, on Saturday. Bryan's quickness and more experienced team proved too much for the young Scottie team.

However, in spite of the overwhelming score the team did not give up and was able to put scoring pressure on Bryan in the second half barely missing several goals. "I am optimistic about our getting it together," stated Coach David Youn," and hope that we can provide some exciting, as well as winning soccer for our home games."

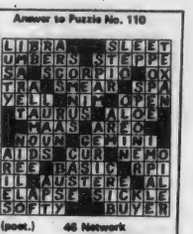
The booters play Bryan tomorrow on Honaker field at 2:00 p.m. On Wednesday the team will play Tennessee Weslyan in an away game.

Facts or Fantasies

Shahbaz Ahmed

Merry-Go-Round was located near the Great Volcanic Mountains in the Southeast. Though there were many colleges in the area, this college was known far and wide for many of its unique characteristics.

One of the remarkable things was this particular college did everything possible to convert people into intellectuals. It was planned that when the students riding the conveyor-belt of time would arrive at the Graduation-point, they would be exactly as the college wanted them to be. Each student was required to go through numerous processes. One of them was CIB, abbreviated for Consistently Imposed Boredom. This program was meant to serve many purposes, for instance familiarizing the student with the issues and values of the community. An unpromoted purpose which seems to have been served well was perhaps to develop endurance in students against one of the most cruel tortures, boredom. Another program meant to provide students with diverse knowledge was the Interim. Although it did pave the way toward learning some of the most practical and demanding skills, it did not escape the inclusion of a few record-breaking trivia. There were Interim courses as important as "101 ways to make hamburger" and "Do squirrels enjoy sex?"



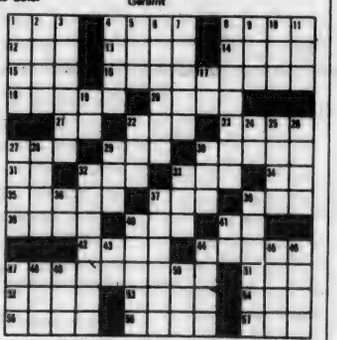
The question naturally came up, "What was being the result of all that reading and learning and expenditures?" "How much of their learning were the students being able to apply?" It wasn't too long before the answer came in riddles. It came to pass that a meeting of graduates of recent years was held and at that meeting some statistics were disclosed. It was revealed that after their graduation two philosophy majors were in construction labor, one girl who majored in English was working in a Pizza Hut, two Economics majors were bankrupt, another English major became a truck driver, one Physics major abandoned physical world and aquired asceticism and a Public Administration major went into complete seclusion.

Another interesting feature of this college was its student government called ICC, abbreviated for Inactive College Council. It met frequently to discuss student problems, not necessarily to solve them. It did however make occasional decisions, sometimes to solve the problems, other times to create them. And why not? Wouldn't the Council be out of business if there were no problems? The students did not have very much to do with the Council decisions because the Administration established that since the students usually have a lot of studying to do therefore they should be spared the rigor and toil of decision-making. As it was the task of the Council to solve the problems that confronted students, let us see how it acted in such situations. Once a matter was presented before the Council in which the students stated that the food being served in the Dining Jall l:tely was a little too greasy and because of that many of them were found yawning and scratching their heads in the classes. The Council acted at once and after some deliberations it recommended that from then on an antigrease drink be added to the menu. After making this decision the Council sang in chorus the famous song 'Everything is beautiful' and adjourned.

This brings us to the end of the story. The story you have just read is true. The names were changed to protect the writer.

crossword puzzle

Answer to Puzzle No. 110



ACROSS

1 Bench
4 Women's lib tennis champ
8 Death rattle
12 Use (Lat. infin.)
13 Jacob's twin
14 Arabian gulf
15 Carpet
16 Tennis star Evonne
18 Male chauvinist tennis pro
20 Trading center
21 California city (ab.)
22 Melody
23 Asian country
27 Barbary —
29 Your (Fr.)
30 Cattle center
31 Symbol: selenium
32 Dust
33 Word with sewing or spelling
34 Form of the verb "to be"
36 Burt Reynolds, for one
37 All — one!
38 The Great Emancipator
39 — the Red
40 Wapiti
41 American League (ab.)
42 Inlet
44 Tennis ace Rod —
47 Public declaration
51 Suffix used to form feminine nouns
52 WW II surrender site
53 Certain Greek letters
54 Word ending with picker or wit
55 Teenage scourge
56 Kind
57 Dutch city

DOWN

1 Feline sound
2 Case for small articles
3 Move from side to side
4 Barrels
5 Combining form: equal.
6 Mother-in-law of Ruth, et.al.
7 On the threat
8 Predecessor of jazz
9 "Much — about Nothing"
10 Masculine nickname
11 School subject (ab.)
17 Symbol: silver
19 State (ab.)
22 Roman bronze
24 Egyptian sun god
25 Melville's captain
26 Reputation
27 Tennis star Arthur
28 A noble
29 Color
30 Over (poet.)
32 Pasteur's discovery
33 American editor and author 1863-1930
36 Nets of the seals
37 Plump
38 Pertaining to the abdomen
40 Tennis flash Chris
41 Hope of inebriates (ab.)
43 Preposition
44 Misley
45 Wife of Geraint
46 Network
47 Extinct bird
48 Kind of welder
49 Feminine nickname
50 Toy

Distr. by Puzzles, Inc. No. 111 ©

Baskin Robbins

Challenges you to
"Top the Matterhorn"

The Matterhorn - 7 scoops of ice cream topped off with real whipped cream an nuts

20¢ off by presenting this Ad

Friday, Sat., Sun.,
Sept. 27, 29, 28

31 Flavors

Midland Center, Alcoa

FOLLOW YOUR HEART TO TIPTON Jewelers

982-0361

113 E. Broadway
Maryville, Tenn. 37801

HOUSE OF DIAMONDS

• ROLEX WATCHES
• BULOVA WATCHES
• ACCUTRON
• GIFTS

"EASY CREDIT TERMS"

C. R. TIPTON, owner

• DIAMONDS REMOUNTED
• ASK ABOUT OUR NEW ..... RING OF DIAMONDS THAT WILL INCREASE THE VISUAL SIZE OF A CENTER DIAMOND 6 TIMES.

Bring Coupon for Welcome Wagon Gift

Easy Curb Market

8-11 Market

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

Hoagies 75¢

8:00 a.m. -
12:00 p.m.

Open All Holidays

BEVERAGES OF ALL TYPES

PICNIC SUPPLIES

715 East Broadway
Maryville

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 60, No. 3 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | October 4, 1974

News Briefs

The international police organization Interpol says that smuggling of liquid hashish, a potent derivative of marijuana, is becoming a world menace.

The Senate plans to recess Oct. 11 for the November elections and the House a few days later.

A federal judge overturned Wednesday the My Lai murder conviction of former Army Lt. William L. Calley Jr.

Fifty-nine percent of the American public thinks conditional amnesty is the best way to handle amnesty for Vietnam War draft evaders and deserters, the latest Gallup poll says.

President Ford has signed a bill that will provide funds for education about alcohol as well as drug abuse in schools and communities.

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro said he holds the U.S. responsible for the overthrow of the government of President Allende of Chile.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has cleared Secretary of State Kissinger of all charges that he misled the committee during his original confirmation hearings about his role in initiating wiretapping of public officials and newsmen.

More than 70 leading rightists were reported under arrest Sunday as Portugal's 21-man Council of State met amid the country's worst crisis since the April coup.

Secret Service agents recently guarded the children of Sen. Edward Kennedy for more than a week because of a kidnap threat.

A congressional subcommittee has questioned the government's plan to provide former President Nixon's 14 member staff at San Clemente with 77 typewriters, 21 sofas, 44 desks and 186 chairs.

Former President Nixon's resignation from the state bar has been accepted by the California Supreme Court, ending his career in law which began before World War II.

Justice Department officials say President Ford's amnesty program may exclude draft evaders and deserters who have become citizens of Canada or some other country.

The Ford administration is considering asking Congress to raise the federal tax on gasoline by 10 to 20 cents a gallon, a White House source says.

President Ford said Sunday that his wife, Betty, was resting comfortably after undergoing breast surgery Saturday.

ACC Meeting

The 1974-75 All College Council officially opened its year Wednesday with a CIV program and the first scheduleed meeting. If the interest shown on both the parts of the Council and the student body is indicative of the coming year, the future of the Council looks promising.

The special CIV put on by some of the Council members has to be one of the most original and informative programs that has ever been produced concerning a campus government organization. The history, goals and achievments of the ACC were presented in a down to earth, realistic view, which was a refreshing change from the ufual musty speeches pulled out of the closet at the start of each year. The Council members spoke directly and to the point admitting the need for changes, but one couldn't help but feel the sincerity and enthusiasm about the upcoming year.

During the Town Hall meeting following the CIV, the floor was opened up to the student body, and surprisingly enough students voiced their opinions on many different issues. On some questions, both pro and con views were heard, and the questions that couldn't be answered at the time will be looked into at the regular sessions of the Council.

This open meeting suggested to at least one student that although we have a long way to go, maybe we are finally rising from our too-comfortable seats of apathy and taking part in a viable effort of communication. Maybe Wednesday was a beginning - a starting point of closing the "credibility gap."

To the People of Maryville College

My life has been and is open to all the people of this college. I am glad to discuss in public with any person or group any question concerning the administration including the functioning of the ACC.

It is a rule of my life to administer in openness, honesty and integrity. I shall be glad to discuss in this same spirit statements recently written and spoken indicating misuse of my position. I urge that this issue be faced in such a manner as to recognize the dignity rightly belonging to all human beings and not on a personal basis.

I look forward to your presence at ACC meetings, the open forums in the campus center on Wednesday evenings and at any "special meetings" this community deems appropriate for this purpose.

Sincerely,

Joseph J. Copeland

Theatrical Opportunities

By Peggy Maher

The Maryville College Playhouse began a productive year with a workshop in movement for theatre directed by Ms. Mary Anthony, a professional dance teacher, on Tuesday, October 1, at 7:30 p.m. theatre majors and other interested people were invited to attend. Included in the workshop were onstage movements which are vital to a show, some technique in dancing, proper ways of walking, turning, and gesturing. Only a few fatalities were reported. We were all invited to appear as guest artists in the New York premiere of "Twinkle Toes and Club Foot."

Ms. Anthony has a dance studio, along with a dance company in New York City, and is familiar with Maryville College and the surrounding area.

Ms. Anthony was at the college last year and gave a workshop in basic movement exercise in Physical Education. Ms. Anthony has also worked with children at Alcoa Elementary School and the members of the Maryville-Alcoa Civic Ballet Company.

Also this week, Maryville College theatre majors Wayne Dansburg, Dew Joyce, and Steve Yuhasz will participate in the Tennessee Theatre Conference in Murfreesboro, Tennessee. At the conference, Anthony Quail and Ava La Galleon (G a l l e o n). will speak on the direction in which Americas theatre is moving today. Now an associate artist at the University of Tennessee, Mr. Quail is a noted Shakespearean actor and a former director of the Royal Shakespear Company at Stratford on Avon, England.

Work Opportunities

Anyone interested in working in Community Night should leave their name with Mrs. Largen in the P.E. Building today.

There are openings for volleyball officials, basketball officials, womens exercise leader, weight room supervisor, gymnastic supervisors, and various hall supervisors.

Vespers

Communion will be celebrated as part of World Communion Sunday at Vespers, Sunday night at 7:00 in the chapel. All are invited for an uplifting experience.

Bike Riders

The Blount Bicycle-Touring Club will sponsor a trip: from 3:30-5:00 on Sunday, Oct. 6. Meet in front of the F.A.C.

Staff

Emerson D. Henderson
Editor-in-chief

Kathy Kirkhart
Assistant Editor

Bill Walker
Business Manager

Jeff Draper
Distribution

Raymond L. Stanley Jr.
Technical Editor

Dr. Robert B. Braid
Faculty Advisor

Tom Fox
Photographer

Gwen Guba
Lay-out Assistant

Echo Philosophy

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Letters to the editor

Watch that rut!

To the editor:

I'm glad to see that the students at Maryville are constantly re-evaluating whats happening in our community and I think the newspaper should encourage it. However, I think it's also important that we don't let ourselves get into a rut. It's important to remember what we're here for and thats to get an education. In hopes of not sounding too lethargic I sorta kinda like Maryville, else I wouldn't be here. And to lay another bombshell on you I think we're blessed with, for the most part, an extremely dedicated helpful faculty. And maybe I'm a lost soul in the wilderness but I've found the program here at Maryville to be full of potential. And to thoroughly convince you that my brain has been parboiled by that great Saga food I've even enjoyed some of the C.I.V. programs. Perhaps some of you students need to take "sneak" courses from me because I've yet to come in contact with some inquisitional force thats sought to thwart my life style. I do think it's important that we all stay friendly, respectful and openminded to all members of our community both student and teacher. My whole purpose in writing this letter is that I thought that someone would like to hear something cheery for a change (it's getting close to Christmas). Plus think of all the money I'll be getting from the admissions office.

Robert Milhouse Sturge

To the Editor:

Because of the tremendous power of an editor; because his power is continuing as compared with a one-shot letter; because of his ability to use unsupported assertions, to distort via satire, innuendo and just plain misinformation, I have made it a policy not to write letters to the editor of any press. This is far more true of a college press then of a public newspaper inasmuch as press responsibility is significantly reduced by the lack of monetary hold by subscribers (finances being guaranteed) and by the lack of a realistic avenue of challenge through libel and slander laws in the courts.

Having said this, I am breaking my former resolve in this one instance. A gross attack was made Wednesday upon the integrity of the faculty in general and my integrity in particular when it was asserted quite openly that faculty members on the council are so dominated by financial and status motivations that they are virtually "yes-persons" to the President and timidly cower before his power. Dr. Rhodes, a relatively newcomer to the faculty, vigorously denied this publicly. Had the meeting not already dragged out so long before I could get the floor, I too would have taken that forum to express my feelings. As one who has never hesitated to speak her mind in any situation, I want to set the record straight. More than Dr. Copeland and I know the eyeball-to-ball confrontations that he and I have had. Only I can know the lack of personal vindictiveness or retaliation that has followed these specific confrontations. Perhaps--but I do not think so--this is partly because my policy when I have a disagreement with anyone is to speak to him personally, or openly in the channels set up for policy formation, rather than sit quietly through meeting after meeting, only to attack publicly or through secret conversations where I can reap some political advantage from a certain element of the mass. I, by the way, have confidence in the similar integrity of my fellow faculty members. It is for this reason that I am wielding my typewriter.

"One who knows a time to speak"

Arda Walker

To the Editor:

I applaud the efforts of ACC members Mike Johnston, Tom Martin, and Mike Wenkstern to make more visible the workings of the body they represent. True participatory government is contingent on student, faculty, and administration interest.

When the All-College Council was formed in 1968, it was an exciting new idea that was publicized at length through the channels of high education. There were skeptics both on-campus and off; but the Council, now going into its seventh year of operation has stood strong because of the comprehensive planning that went into its formation. Few of us today (having not been a part of this structuring) can understand the months of careful drafting and organization that preceeded the incorporation of the ACC as the campus governance body.

The issue of the chairmanship of the ACC being on a rotating basis rather than being chaired consentively by the chief administrative officer is one that can be studied and taken through proper channels. Yet inferring that the chair position has been used to maneuver policy setting is not founded in any actions taken by the ACC during its existence.

We have a sowerful system of governance where we as students have a voice. Let us not rashly injure this structure by demanding immediate action on a matter that deserves careful consideration.

Sincerely,
Barbara Kerr

(Editor's Note: The following letter was sent to Dr. Copeland. The writer asked that it be made public.)

Dear Dr. Copeland:

I was present at this morning's CIV, with which I'm sure you're well familiarized. It is my intention, through this letter, to clarify Emerson's statement, speaking from my personal interpretation.

You, like many other present, misunderstood the context of what Emerson said. It is true, without a doubt, that the freshman representative on the All-College Council does have a tremendous amount of influence if he exercises his privileges. However, this person is worthless at the moment when needed most – the time to vote; he has no voice. As for the remark about a rotating chairmanship – I am in total agreement with this idea. This is not to say that I think you should step down, or are maneuvering other members of the Council.

I'm merely saying that new ideas and a change of authority could do some good. Emerson was not personally attacking you as a person – he was attacking however, the position you hold. If Mickey Mouse were co-chairman on the ACC he would probably feel pressured too.

Emerson D. Henderson is what this school has needed for a long time. He is a catalyst in the midst of an apathetic atmosphere. He is not trying to destroy out Maryville College system of government; instead, he is seeking to upgrade and activate a dormant institution.

While we have true feelings – no matter what they may be – let's work together to make the ACC a functional, meaningful organization instead of just a nominal segment of Maryville College life.

P.S. - I think I can safely say that Emerson has the highest regard for you as a person – it's just the position you hold that he questions.

Respectfully yours,
P. Johnson

Too Much Football

To the editor:

Shahbaz Ahmed forgot to mention one thing when he described Merry-Go-Round College in last week's Echo, and that is Merry-Go-Round's fine football team. Every year the school went out and recruited lots of fine freshman football players to lower the academic standards of the school and eat more than their fair share of food in the school cafeteria. And to make sure all the football players had enough money to pay for an expensive school like Merry-Go-Round they were given "leadership" scholarships and important jobs like stacking football helmets.

It's too bad that Merry-Go-Round doesn't have even more money for football. Maybe they could quit having classes and then they could devote 100% of their budget, instead of just 98%, to football.

Sincerely,
An Ex-football fan

CIV

Donald Grant, lecturer and teacher, will be the CIV speaker at MC on October 9, 1974. His subject will be "Soviet Russia's Policies Towards Europe, Towards Asia," and the problem these policies raise.

Mr. Grant has been a traveler all his life and among his many attributes he has been reporter and interpretor of the U.S.S.R. since 1930, and was also Einstein's interpretor for the World Disarmament speech in Geneva in 1932. He is also the founder and five years director of World University Service and the founder and editor of the Vox Studentium in Geneva, international three language student magazine.

During and after World War II, Mr. Grant has made fifteen lecture tours on American campuses, and now visits the United States once more in 1974.

Remember! That's CIV, Wednesday morning, October 9, 1974.

r Student,

ryville College dining service be engaged in a food ecology gram for the year 1974-1975.

u are probably aware that last r food costs spiralled to record
hs. Famine is running rampant in ne parts of the world and we were ed with many shortages last year.
gretfully, we don't see any relief s year.

present your food program is igned to fit your needs. It has ny freedoms to take food at dom. Saga and many other Unisities have found that our waste is ggering and by making everyone are of food waste is probably an elligent way of fighting inflation d shortages.

are not in any way saying that we t to ration food. We are saying njoy a complete MEAL and eat rything you take". How many times have you taken two glasses of milk and drank one or one and a half and let the remainder go down the disposal-same thing with vegetables, same thing with napkins, etc.

We are soliciting your help, asking you to be a food ecologist. "If you don't want it don't take it". If you are not sure, take one, sit down and eat or drink the item and come back for more.

I will be measuring each item we are concentrating on and show you how much waste is accumulating. After we have practiced and improved I have designed a program to put the savings back to work. Special events and surprises are in order if we do our best. Your food committee and I will monitor the program.

Remember Captain Ecology is not saying cut down on what you eat, just be cautious on what you waste.

Sincerely,
Paul D. Fraedrich
Food Service Director

A Dean's Eye View

Those who have come to take for anted the advantages of the esent system of campus govern-ce forget that newcomers need ientation. Fortunately this year embers of the All-College Council e creating better understanding rough small group meetings in e dorms, a CIV program, followdisucssions in the Campus Cenr, and Echo articles covering the ork of committees.

As one who believes in the Coun-l and has been concerned about isconceptions expressed recently, would like to join the effort for etter understanding by offering mments on some of the issues.

Before 1968 the MC govern-nce followed a pattern similar o that still in operation in the great ajority of colleges: a student ouncil, a student-faculty senate, nd an executive council presided ver by the president. Proposals hat originated in the student ouncil were deliberated in the stu-
lent-faculty senate and, if approved, ent to the executive council for inal action, except for policy hanges requiring board approval.

Impatience with a system that esulted frequently in three presenations of the same proposal with he necessity each time of repeating he rationale led to the concept of council in which all three groups would be represented.

Those who drew up the plan for he ACC--representatives from the tudent council, the executive coun-il, and the board--acted on the asic assumption that the power of he Council to function legally epended upon the president's erving as presiding officer. The ollege operates under a charter ranted by the State of Tennessee tipulating the functions of the resident, including "all duties prescribed by law upon the executive head of the corporation." The president is in turn responsible only to the board.

A corporation, of course, cannot operate as a democracy. Neither, because of its primary function and the transient nature of its constituency, can a college. And this is doubtless where much misunderstanding has arisen. As repugnant as "continuity" may seem to some, it is essential to the health and stability of an institution, especially one in which more than three-fourths of the membership is new every four years.

At the same time, however, the opportunities in such a community are almost limitless if we capitalize on the genius of one group for pushing change and on the other for weighing the consequences. In this way we can provide the creative tension essential to growth and progress.

We could achieve a rotating chairmanship for the ACC and make other structural changes by creating a higher body, with the president as chairman, to fulfill provisions of the charter, but this would lead us back to the cumbersome structure from which we freed ourselves in 1968.

Would it not be better to understand the system we have and make it work? This would include reading the Governance Manual which, far from being hidden, has been printed in lots of 1000 and distributed to every freshman and transfer student who holds out his hand. It might also include, for those who complain that some people know more about parliamentary procedure than others, an evening with Roberts Rules of Order. No tennis player ever joins the team without knowing the ground rules. Should not an ACC member feel the same obligation when he joins the team?

Pathways To Change

Centainly one of the most prolific of the All College Council committees is the Instructional Program Committee. Currently under the direction of Dr. Carolyn Blair, chairman, and Barbara Kerr, co-chairman, the IPC makes numerous recommendations to the ACC each year. A reflection of the high quality work done by the IPC is its success before the Council—only one proposal was not approved by the ACC last year.

Membership on the IPC is taken very seriously by those involved. Each member spends considerable time doing outside reading and research in an effort to be completely informed on each area under consideration. This extra effort is necessary, however, for the IPC to carry out it's responsibilities.

One major duty of the IPC is developing a general philosophy of "liberal arts" education that can be applied in specific ways to Maryville College. In order to insure that this guiding philosophy is always up-to-date, all members must constantly keep informed about developing trends in higher education. The programs and policies recommended to the ACC by the committee are attempts to incorporate these new developments into Maryville's curriculum, thus enriching the overall academic life of the college and offering greater choices for each individual student.

Several recent trends noted by the IPC are:

*A movement toward Off-Campus Experiences for regularly enrollen students.

*Extension of Clientele (through continuing education, gymnastics, education for the deaf, the College Experience Program, etc.).

*More emphasis on relating the Liberal Arts to Career Opportunities.

*Increased Work-Study opportunities.

As the IPC attempts to apply these trends to MC, it fulfills its second major responsibility, that of shaping the overall curriculum of the college. The committee not only originates new programs, it also approves all new courses in all departments and sets requirements for graduation.

The IPC's ability to define current trends and apply them to the specific needs of MC can be seen best when we consider the actual changes it has brought about. Curriculum developments of the past year include:

*Argonne Semester for Science Majors
*Career Planning and Placement
*College Experience Program
*Cooperative Engineering Programs with Georgia Tech and UT
*Expanded Continuing Education Programs
*Fifth Year Internship at Tremont
*Fine Arts Major
*Futuristics
*Gymnastics Program for Children
*Interpreter Program and Deaf Education
*Oral History
*Practicum in Curriculum Planning for Junior Elementary Education Majors
*Practicum in Learning Disabilities for Senior Psychology Majors
*Recreation Major
*Tremont Term for Undergraduates
*Women's Studies

Already this year the IPC has before it a number of new programs for discussion and ideas in the planning stage:

*African Studies
*The AA Degree in certain fields
*Business Administration Major
*Music Therapy Major in cooperation with the University of Georgia
*Senate Intern Program in Washington for History and Political Science Majors
*Opening courses ot superior High School students
*Invitation to those over age 65 to attend classes tuition free
*Transitional Year for the Disadvantaged (the Deaf, Talent Search Students, etc.
*Cooperative Work-Study Programs
*Changes in Education curriculum to meet changes in certification requirements
*Possible extension of Education curriculum--including Environmental, Early Childhood, and Special Education
*Possible changes in the Core curriculum
*Reevaluation of areas of representation within the IPC

This last item reflects one of the unique features of the IPC. While most committees are filled by individual preference, the IPC has a fairly rigid system of selection to insure that all areas of academic life are represented. Two faculty members and one student are selected from each of five groups:

continued on page 4

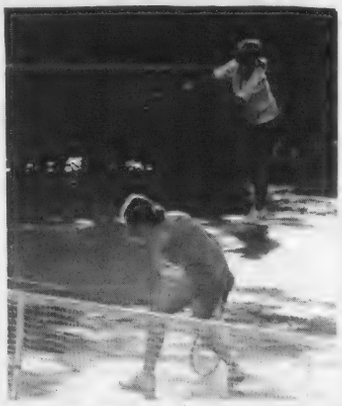
1) Art, Music, Speech-Theatre
2) Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Mathematics, Psychology
3) English, Philosophy-Religion
4) History, Foreign Languages
5) Sociology, Political Science, Economics, Education, Physical Education

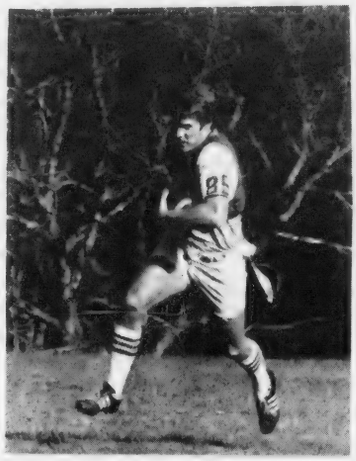
The committee will consider restructuring these major groups to provide a more complimentary matching of departments and thus more effective representation.

The IPC has been and will continue to be one of the major contributors to the continuing growth and diversity of MC's academic life. Dr. Blair, aware of this important responsibility, says of the committee,

> I see the IPC as central in maintaining a vital curriculum, which is the heart of an educational institution. The Committee is in the happy situation of never having to look for something to do; it receives a steady stream of proposals from other committees, academic departments, and sometimes individuals. This year, however, we hope as a group to be able to read widely in curriculum literature, brainstorm among ourselves, and initiate new programs within the Committee itself.



The IPC meets regularly every second andfourth Monday at 4:00 p.m. in Anderson 304. The meetings are open to all interested community members.



by Michael Johnston

Another important date: Wednesday, October 9, from 8-10 p.m., Mike Wenkstern, Tom Martin, Michael Johnston, and hopefully, other ACC members will be in the Student Center for the first weekly Open Forum. Everyone is encouraged to stop in for informal discussion of issues and actions regarding the ACC. It is also a chance to express complaints, suggestions, grievances, even compliments concerning any area of life at MC.

Intramurals Get Underway

Soccer Club

The Maryville College soccer team was defeated Saturday by Bryan College 6-1. However, the score does not represent the fact that the Scots played excellent soccer and were in a 1-1 tie situation until halfway into the second half.

Mike Sanders did a superb job in the goal until the Scots defense began to tire. The Scots only goal was scored by Dan Bergner – a hard shot into the upper right corner of the nets. "Even though we lost," stated Coach Young, "this was our second good game in a row, and it shows we have the ability to play winning soccer." The booters play covenant here on Saturday at 2:00 p.m.

WIN $100 IN OUR ANTIBODY BEAUTIFUL CONTEST

Other prizes: T-Shirts ☐ Dinner for Two ☐ Concert Tickets ☐ Theater Tickets ☐ Frisbees ☐ Gift Certificates

- ☐ Enter anytime. Drawings for all prizes once every month.
- ☐ Donate plasma 6 times in 4 weeks to become eligible.
- ☐ Earn $10 per donation win or lose.
- ☐ Come in for complete details.

blood alliance
520 Western Ave.
Knoxville, Tennessee
Phone: 637-3171

BUDDY'S BAR-B-Q PIT

Featuring Hickory-Cooked Pork, Beef, Ribs And Char-Broiled Steaks And Hamburgers

Use our convenient Drive-In Window for pick-up orders.

373 HANNUM STREET, ALCOA

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 60, No. 4 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | October 11, 1974

News Briefs

Russians are fuming about President Ford's forced cancellation of the 3.4 million ton feed grains deals with two American firms.

Chile is quietly buying supersonic jet fighters and close air support attack planes from the U. S. in a multimillion dollar arms deal.

Democrats are given a substantial edge in the nation's congressional districts, in part because Democrats are considered better at controlling inflation, the Gallup Poll reported.

Saudi Arabia has established a new $2.8 billion fund to extend loans to developing nations for projects of economic or social benefit.

Jack Dempsey, after a long legal bout with his landlord over a rent increase, has thrown in the towel and will close his Broadway restaurant.

Attorney General Saxbe has concluded that the root causes of crime "lie within the community," rather than in poverty, and are "hooked directly to the breakdown of family, of community."

Two Swedish authors, Harry Martinson and Eyvind Johnson, have been awarded the 1974 Nobel Prize for Literature.

Sources close to Gov. Jimmy Carter say he is preparing a strong push for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976.

Miss? Mrs.? or Ms.? Only 14 present of the women surveyed in a national opinion poll released Thursday said they preferred the feminist designation Ms.

The Environmental Protection Agency estimates that 8.6 million Americans drink potentially unsafe water from public systems.

World Band head Robert S. McNamare told his board of governors that despite slump, industrial nations must help "hundreds of millions barely surviving."

Almost half the commercial dairy farmers in the United States are expected to go out of business by 1980.

High Black unemployment throughout the nation "raise a clear warning of social and racial tension" to come declared Nathaniel Jones, general counsel of the NAACP.

The National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., has announced the acquisition of a painting by the 17th-century French artist Georges de la Tour at a price rumored to be about $8 million.

Former White House Counsel Charles Colson asked a federal court to reduce his one-to-three-year prison term citing the controversial pardon granted Richard Nixon.

Pete Xiques - Cheryl Copeland - Bruce Hill,

Xiques Elected Frosh President

After a week of campaigning, posters and speeches, the Freshman class voted on their class officers last Wednesday. The newly elected officers seem to be enthusiastic about the upcoming year.

Peter Xiques, president, is from Knoxville, along with Bruce Hill, who was voted as vice president. While Peter is undecided about his major, Bruce plans to specialize in political science. Elected secretary-treasurer is Cheryl Copeland. Cheryl is from Orlando, Florida and hopes to major in elementary education.

Asked about plans for the coming year, Peter stressed that "in order for this to be a successful year, we're going to need the support of the whole class." They do hope to build a float for Homecoming, and would like to sponsor some social events during the year.

We wish them the best of luck!

Scholarships To Be Awarded

by Christine D'Aquila
Echo Staff Writer

October 16, 1974 will set the date when the Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society will recognize scholarship students on Wednesday morning at CIV. This recognition includes all scholarships based on overall academic achievement, but does not include those based on superior achievement in only one department or area. The Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society elects the student members in the winter term of each year. Among other ways of encouraging academic achievement, scholarships are awarded, many upon application by the student, all requiring good academic performance.

Scholarships to be awarded include the Alcoa Foundation Scholarships, Alpha Gamma Sigma Scholarship, Maryville College Academic Scholarships, Kind Memorial Scholarships for Freshmen, Highest-Ranking High School Graduates (Number One or Two) in High Schools in the East Tennessee Area, National Achievement Scholarship and the National Presbyterian Scholarship.

Mr. Charles E. Merrill, Jr., Headmaster of the Commonwealth School in Boston, will speak. Mr. Merrill, Jr. is the son of Charles E. Merrill, who founded the brokerage firm now know as Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Lenner and Smith and who was active in many other business enterprises. In 1956, Charles E. Merrill Trust of Ithaca, New York had made a grant of $250,000 to Maryville College to endow the Charles Morton Merrill and Octavia Wilson Merrill Scholarships for juniors and seniors who plan a career in medicine.

Remember! That's CIV, Wednesday morning, October 16, 1974.

From the Chaplin's OFFICE

Want to make some extra money? Try for a Samuel Robinson Scholarship. Approximately twenty-five Samuel Robinson Scholarships will be awarded in 1974-75 in the amount of $300. The scholarships are available on a competitive basis to students in any college related to the United Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., though students need not be United Presbyterians. The scholarships involve the writing of an essay on an assigned topic and the memorization of the answers of the Westminster Shorter Catechism. If interested, the essay topic and rules can be obtained from the Chaplain's Office.

Harvest Crafts Festival

The Faculty Wives Club of Maryville College will sponsor its annual Harvest Crafts Festival on Saturday, October 12, from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. in the chapel-theatre complex on campus.

Fifty local and east Tennessee artists and craftsmen will display and sell their various works. The re will also be many demonstrations during the festival, including weaving, macrami, leathercraft, woodcraft, pottery, painting, and others.

The Maryville Music Club and the members of Playhouse will provide refreshments.

There is no admission charge, and everyone is invited to join the fun of festival day.

U-T Medieval Festival

On Wednesday October 30th, the University of Tennessee will present a festival of Medieval drama. The program is scheduled to begin at 2:30 with Ms. Eva la Guilleane doing selected readings of Shakespearean literature. At 5:30 there will be a dinner. Beginning at about 7:30 p.m., will be a Medieval festival at the Carousel and Clarence Brown Theatres. The evening is to be concluded by a production of "Everyman" with Anthony Quale.

Any students desiring to attend this festival should get in contact with Wayne Dansbury p. o. box 2173. The cost of the entire program (readings, dinner, festivals, and play) is to be $5.75. A bargain for anyone's pocketbook! A probable limit of 30 people has been set for the Maryville group. The best advice is get your money in quickly. Any further questions can be directed to Mr. Tom Jones or Wayne Dansbury.

Attention Seniors

Ballots for Who's Who will be placed in all Seniors post office boxes. The ballots may be returned in the post office on Thursday, Friday, or Saturday and in the dining hall during lunch and dinner on Friday. Deadline for all voting is 4:00 p.m. Monday. Everybody vote!!!

from the editor's desk
Fair Comment and Criticism

Usually, I do not take time to respond publicly to letters written to the editor. However, in last week's paper (Oct. 4, 1974) one letter attacked the college press vehemently. As editor, I feel it is my journalistic responsibility to correct the "just plain misinformation" the letter contained.

The letter accused the college press of lacking in "press responsibility" due to the "lack of monetary hold by subscribers (finances being guaranteed) and by the lack of a realistic avenue of challenge through libel and slander laws in the courts." According to the courts, student newspapers not only have the same freedoms as commercial publications, they are also subject to the same libel laws. Also, a newspaper cannot be guilty of slander. Slander is oral defamation.

Most people think that all printed defamation is libelous. This is not true. Libel is a false or malicious unprivileged publication by writing, printing, picture, or effigy or other fixed representation to the eye which exposes any person to public hatred, contempt, ridicule or obloguy or which tends to deprive him of public confidence, or to injure him in his occupation, or any malicious publication as aforesaid, designed to blacken or vilify the memory of one who is dead, and tending to scandalize his surviving relatives or friends. Libel, then, consists of four principal elements.: (1) a publication must be defamatory; (2) it must be false; (3) it must be malicious; and (4) it must be unprivileged. The argument that there exist no realistic avenue of challenge through these laws in the courts could be used by any victim of a crime. The process is not only time consuming, but expensive. Yet, until this system is changed one must go through normal channels if justice is going to prevail.

In the public interest, newspapers, and other communication media have the right to comment adversely on and to criticize public officials, candidates for public office, writers, musicians, actors, athletes, and others who, in effect, invite public attention. This is the right of fair comment and criticism.

As a college journalist, I should, must, and will exercize this right in the interest of Maryville College.

"From one who knows what to say"

e.d.h.

P.E. Department Responds

The Department of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics has received criticism from certain segments of the student body regarding the annual uniform rental fee for Physical Education core classes.

We feel that some students have a legitimate gripe since they were required to purchase a uniform last year for classes, however when making a change in policy it becomes almost impossible to avoid effecting some persons negatively.

The implementation of this system was very essential since the students purchase price of uniforms has almost doubled in the past few years not to mention the non-availability of adequate stock for the bookstore.

We feel that this rental service permits us to better serve the student body in the following ways:

1. Students utilizing this service may exchange soiled uniforms and towels on an unlimited basis throughout the day and evening when the Physical Education Building is opened excluding Sundays.
2. Equipment may now be checked out daily from 1-9 PM whereas in the past this service was limited to a three hour period. This permits students to utilize the facilities anytime when classes are not scheduled.
3. Students are assured a better equipment inventory for classes and recreation since a full time worker eliminates losses.

Department of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics

Volunteers Needed

The Community Outreach Committee is in need of volunteers to assist in several of their continuing projects this year. There is an urgent need for volunteers to tutor children from the Parkside (low-income housing) area. Last year the children were brought to campus by bus twice each week and students worked with them in the Sutton Science Center. It is hoped that this program can be started again in the near future.

Child and Family Services and the Planned Parenthood Association can use student volunteers for telephoning and office work.

Staff

Emerson D. Henderson — Editor-in-chief
Kathy Kirkhart — Assistant Editor
Bill Walker — Business Manager
Jeff Draper — Distribution
Raymond L. Stanley Jr. — Technical Editor
Dr. Robert B. Braid — Faculty Advisor
Tom Fox — Photographer
Gwen Guba — Lay-out Assistant

Echo Philosophy

Letters to the editor must be signed, preferably typed and turned in to Box 2820 before dinner Monday. Names may be withheld upon request. All other items for publication should be turned in by this time to insure publication that week.

The editor reserves the right to edit and abridge all submissions over 300 words when necessary.

Opinions expressed in the Echo are not necessarily those of the editor, the staff, and/or the College Administration.

Letters to the Editor

Team Defense Strong

To the editor:

In last weeks' "Echo", an "ex-football fan" expressed discontent with our football program. In his (or her) letter, he charged our team with lowering academic standards, eating too much, job poaching, and robbing scholarships from the more deserving.

Maryville offers but one sport in the fall, and scholarships to those whom they feel would better this team. These scholarships are only available to those who need the money to get through school. Maryville is only paying for one sport in the fall, and are thus able to put more into football and still be spending less than other schools offering more varsity sports.

Each player of any sport must have a 2.0 average or above to be able to play. I'm sure there are many on this campus that do not meet these standards that also do not play football. It is these people that lower the standards, not the football player.

Besides lowering the standards, the players also are supposed to lower the availability of food to others. During the season, they are left with a poor selection of food because they must come in late. Many a time, they are told "you just missed the chuck steaks," or whatever while people like "ex fan" walk out with two or three resting nicely in the pits of their stomachs. During the rest of the season, they eat what they need to sustain anyone of comparable size.

I concede the fact that a few football players do have jobs in the equipment room. As far as I know, however, their only function is not stacking helmets. The argument was founded on a fractional portion of the issue. If looked at over the entire scope, these guys have a job to earn money like many other nonathletes on campus do.

So far, the privilages and disadvantages of being an athlete balance out pretty well. When something really underhanded comes along to aid these men, then we are warranted in voicing complaint. Until then, some of us should start looking at the overall view before criticizing.

Dave Sehwind

Dear Ex-Football Fan:

In your letter concerning "Merry-Go-Round's fine football team," you seem to be mocking this school of ours with your term "Merry-Go-Round." The football players here take Maryville College seriously, and are out there representing our institution. Through their willing hard work and perseverence, they show what Maryville College means to them. The football team practices anywhere from two to three hours each afternoon keeping several goals in mind: 1) winning 2) teamwork and 3) attainment of recognition and respect not only for the school, but also for the entire student body to benefit from.

In rebuttal to your statement of making sure football players get enough money, I would like to inform you that most of the players, including myself, play out of sheer love for the game. We receive $0's for playing ball here. The few players that do receive money, receive this the same way any other student; through personal financial need.

Your "fair share of food in the cafeteria" issue is absurd and unfounded. Undoubtedly you have seen a large football player with his plate full and returning for food numerous times. Perhaps you think this substantiates your argument? Athletes usually need more nutrition, and big athletes logically need more food than the less active, smaller people. Everyone has paid their money, and you're welcome to eat as much as anyone else on the campus. Because of dedication and sacrifice, we frequently end up on the short end of the food deal. Where you have from opening to closing to dine, our practice sessions usually allow us only fifteen minutes before service is terminated. Yes indeed, it really is too bad Maryville College doesn't have even more money, not only for football, but for numerous other activities. Maybe with more money, Maryville College might possibly produce the type of mature adult who has the integrity to sign their own article.

Sincerely,
Dave Costello

Craig Larsen gets pass fullbacks

Soccer Club Victorious

Maryville College's Soccer Club won its first game of the season Saturday by defeating Covenant's junior varsity, 3-2.

Scoring goals for the Scots were Laurie Hill, Emerson "The Dean" Henderson and Geoff Lang. Both Covenant scores belonged to Milton Kemp.

MC's defense, lead by Bucky Buckwalter and Scott Cook, bent in the second half but didn't break as they held Covenant scoreless. Paul Viggiano with only two days practice as goalie turned his rookie appearance into a winning one, putting forth a strong effort making at least 20 saves, Paul was replacing injured goalie Mike Sanders.

The booters game on Tuesday was canceled due to transportation problems of Tennessee Temple. On Saturday the club will travel to King College.

Pathways To Change

by Susan Leibundguth

The Community Outreach Committee is a relatively new member of the ACC committee structure, the third member of the Religious Life area. It was originally an independent group composed of concerned students who noticed the needs of the Maryville community and recognized the resources that M. C. students had to meet these needs. The Community Outreach Committee continues to strive to channel the passive recognition of the community needs into an active program of volunteer help.

Under the guidance of Dr. Cropp and co-chairpersons Art Fowler and Susan Leibundguth, the Committee has taken into consideration physical limitations, and hopefully, chosen those areas of greatest need to begin this year's activities. One program which has been successful in past years is tutoring elementary age children who live in the low-income Parkside residential area. Under Art's leadership again this year, the tutoring will take place twice each week, usually Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7:00 to 8:00 p.m. in Sutton Science Center. This has been an excellent opportunity to not only increase one's abilities to work with young students, but also serves to broaden the interests and experiences of the children. A great deal of assistance is requested, as most of the children require individual attention.

Another area of great need and personal involvement is the nursing home at Asbury Acres and the Chilhowee Nursing Center. Requests for students to read, visit, write letters, help with the patients confined to wheel chairs, and present musical programs to the elderly have already poured in. These activities usually require an hour per week of the students' time, and transportation to and from the nursing homes is provided.

A third major program concerning the Community Outreach Committee is the Home Avenue area, which is the pet project of Dr. Cropp. Here, the greatest demand is for students to lead Sunday School classes at the Home Avenue Church on Sunday mornings. Students are also requested to organize games and other activities during the week for the children at the Home Avenue Community Center.

Last year, two members worked individually for several months with two partially-sighted grade school boys, a demanding but invaluable service. Other projects in the past have included working at the Girl's Club; assisting the local Child and Family Services Clinic; working co-operatively with the FISH program; collecting for UNICEF in the fall; and providing babysitters for emergency situations.

No means of communication is entirely effective, but hopefully this insight into the workings of our committee has transmitted our goals and needs to you, and will inspire you to act if you have the desire to step outside the boundaries of the M. C. campus and thus expand yourself. It is an excellent opportunity for any M. C. student to give of his time, his talents, and himself. Membership is always open; your participation is not binding, but most welcome. Those interested may either attend the 10:30 meeting held each Friday in the Chaplain's Green Room, or they may contact the Chaplain's Office, Art Fowler, or Susan Leibundguth.

IMPORTANT DATES:

Monday, Oct. 14—
Instructional Program Committee meeting, 4 p.m., Anderson 304.

Tuesday, Oct. 15—
Food Subcommittee meeting, 10:30 a.m., Dining Hall.

Wednesday, Oct. 16—
Worship and Special Meetings Committee meeting, 10:30, Chaplain's Green Room.

— All College Council meeting, 2:30 p.m., Anderson 304.

— Open Forum, 8-10 p.m., Student Center.

Atlanta Dance Company At MC

Maryville College will host the Atlanta Contemporary Dance Company in concert Tuesday, October 15 at 8:15 p.m. in Wilson Chapel.

The concert, "Images of a Modern Odyssey: a cycle of experience," is a colorful mosiac of scenes drawn from contemporary life, played against the ethic background of Homer's famous adventure story.

With quick and often humorous changes in setting and tempo, the episodes of the ancient story are interpreted with an eye toward reflecting patterns, attitudes, and foibles which continually reappear.

The work employs a wide range of metaphor and style—jazz, modern, and popular dance combined into a theatrical context.

A work of lighter nature, "Sunday Comix," will conclude the program. The director, Joe Kelly, says, "It's strictly a farce, done to slap sticky music."

The group is the resident dance company of Georgia State University. It is one of the few companies chosen by the National Endowment for the Arts to work in the Artists-in-Schools program administered by the Endowment and the U. S. Office of Education.

Their performance at Maryville College is the first of this season's Performing Artist Concerts at the college.

General admission tickets are $2; students $1.

Advance tickets free with I. D. at the Post Office or 50cents & I. D. at the gate.

Atlanta Contempory Dance Company

Interested In Law?

Dr. Donald Cohen, of UT Law School, will speak to prospective law school applicants about Careers in Law Monday, Oct. 14 from 10:45 - 12:00 in Room 211, Thaw.

Turbulence at MC

by Shahbaz Ahmed

Usually a controversy-free, debate-free, tranquil community, Maryville College all of a sudden seems to be struck by turbulent waves of change. Changes seem to be occuring ubiquitously and simultaneously. Following are some of the highlights.

All college debates ACC

The ACC for long has been a dweller of oblivion. And whenever remembered it was accused of not being active enough. But recently some people decided to give the ACC a shot in the arm. The vaccine was provided by the Highland Echo. And the ACC exhibited symptoms of response. It sponsored a CIV. There was an increased emphasis on student participation, but the unproportional number of student representatives on the Council remains the same. The president of the Freshmen still does not have the right to vote. It is explained that while all members on the Council are equal, the Freshman president is just a little less equal. Besides, though he does not have the right to vote, he will find himself too busy excercizing other more important rights that he has been granted, for instance the right to persuade, the right to influence, etc.

The saga of Saga

It was hard to believe, but it did happen. Saga finally initiated a change, for a change. Massive food conservation campaign started. Posters, handbills, letters, you name it, they did it. Student were reminded of their childhood days when their mothers used to instruct, "Clean your plate." Many students forgot to take less but remembered to clean the plate. The result was obvious. Figures like 32, 23, 32 converted into 32, 32, 42. Students generally fell short of Saga's expectations as they did not consume items like used teabags and napkins. Some critics whose business is criticism, criticized. They said that if the money spent on advertisement would have been saved, we would have had at least three good meals and many of us would have been saved from getting stuffed up.

The other side of the pictures

Taking pictures for the yearbook is generally a rather conspicuous event, but this time it has literally become the mission-of-the-year. The yearbook staff is out to come up with the most spectacular yearbook in the history of colleges. Afterall what good a college is if its yearbook is anything less than a spectacle and does not contain the pictures of every one from every angle? The extra-ordinary puntiliousness of the staff gives rise to the speculation that this year's yearbook will be so thorough on human physique that if used, its pictures will provide outstanding illustrations for any textbook on human physiology.

In the wake of these remarkable happenings, watch the way the wind blows next and look for some more records to fall.

Franklin Downs Scots 40-7

Franklin College passed for a total of 329 yards Saturday afternoon in leading the Grizzlies to a commanding 40-7 victory over the Scots in a game played at Franklin, Indiana. Franklin, now 2-3 for the season, was lead by the passing of Joe Bath who completed 11 of 15 passes for 229 yards and three touchdowns. The Scots, 1-1, had problems all afternoon defending against the strong Franklin passing game. Additionally, the Maryville offense had trouble all day as four quarterbacks were not able to get anything substantially moving. Punter Don Moore was a bright spot, however, as he converted eight punts good for 366 yards, or an average of 45.8 yards per punt. Quarterbacks Bobby Graham, Steve Wright, John Drake, and Bobby Fitzgerald had a combined total of eight of 26 passes completed for 132 yards and one touchdown. That came on a pass from Steve Wright to Jim Lester and was good for 72 yards that was the only Maryville scoring play of the day. Lester's score came with 1:58 remaining in the first half and cut Franklin's lead to 20-7. Allen scored his second touchdown of the day with 4:44 left in the third quarter on a three yard pass from Bath. Three minutes later, Bath squeezed over from the one to give Franklin a 33-7 lead. The Grizzlies completed their scoring in the fourth quarter on a five-yard touchdown pass from Bath to Allen. Lester and Keith Goodwin were Maryville's top receivers in the game as each caught two passes. Goodwin was also the leading ground gainer with 22 yards. Don Grout followed with 20. Defensively, Joe Lombardo lead in unassisted tackles with ten. Jeff Hamilton chipped in with seven, while Bob Shumski added six. The Scots are on the road again tomorrow as they face Randolph-Macon who tied Washington and Lee last Saturday.

GIVE BLOOD FOR YOUR CAR.

$10 per donation to fix it up.
Plasma twice a week. Or whole blood every 8 weeks.
Mon.-Sat. Free Parking

blood alliance
520 Western Ave.
Knoxville, Tennessee
Phone: 637-3171

We Invite You to Visit Us at Seven Convenient Locations

BLOUNT NATIONAL BANK
MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE
The Leader

Downtown
Alcoa
Airport
Broadway
McGhee Tyson
Seymour-Chapman Hwy.
Townsend

Tallest And Closest To The Campus

See the Smokies with

Mountain Supply Sporting Goods

complete line of backpacking accessories including:

Dunham Boots Rugby Shirts
Dried foods Trail Guides

20% off selected sleeping bags
5% off any purchase with this coupon

Mountain Supply Sporting Goods
Midland Center- Alcoa

coupon good thru Oct. 18, 1974

Stagedoor News

The Speech-Theatre Dept. is sponsoring a Children's Theatre Program for community children on Saturday mornings. Workshops for the children will include puppetry, costume and make-up, movement, dance, and pantomime. The program is open to any elementary age children. Dew Joyce will be in charge of the program so any one interested in helping can contact her at P. O. Box 2870.

Don't forget the trip to U. T. October 30th. We'll have the opportunity to see Anthony Quayle in "Everyman", hear a well known actress do Shakespearean readings, and have a good meal. If you're interested contact Mr. Jones or any theatre major.

Proffitt's

for the young man who knows what he wants . . .
jean suits by H.D. Lee deliver casual comfort and right-now style

Look your casual best in a jean suit of soft, suede-finish cotton. Team it with a "Frito Bandito" print shirt or one of your choice for a total look. Pig-skin colored jeans, $21 •matching jacket, $26 • shirt, $11.50.

SHOP PROFFITT'S ALCOA

YOUR CHARGE CARDS  ARE ALWAYS WELCOME

the Highland ECHO

Vol. 60, No. 5 | Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee | October 18, 1974

News Briefs

Gunnar Myrdal of Sweden and Friedrich von Hayek of Austria were awarded the 1974 Nobel Prize for Economics.

Cuba served notice that there could be no official negotiations on normalization of relations with the U. S. until the trade blockade was lifted.

A new Buddhist group called on President Thieu's government in Saigon to free 600 monks and all political prisoners in South Vietnam.

Senate and House conferees have voted to eliminate the auto interlock system which prevents a car from being started until seatbelts are fastened.

A bill which would limit the director of the F. B. I. to a single, 10-year term has been unanimously passed by the Senate.

Gubernatorial candidate Lamar Alexander said Friday he was against the decriminalization of marijuana laws in Tennessee.

Milk prices in most parts of country are held above federal minimums through bargaining power of big dairy cooperatives, statistics show.

Ed Sullivan, the Great Stoneface of entertainment for more than two decades, is dead of cancer at 72.

In his first major confrontation with Congress, President Ford has vetoed legislation to half U. S. military aid to Turkey.

The stock market's record rally continued into its fifth day Tuesday.

Richard Nixon continues to respond well to treatment for phlebitis and is following doctor's orders to restrict his physical activity.

Secretary of the Army Howard Callaway has ordered a curb on spying by Army intelligence on U. S. civilians overseas.

Jomo Kenyatta won his third five-year term as Kenya's president even before the polls closed.

Soviet newspaper readers are being told that America's Watergate scandal was a conspiracy by influential monopoly capitalists against Pres. Nixon.

An end to the longest Los Angeles bus strike appears in sight following tentative agreement between management and drivers.

Only 29 precent of British people believe in God, according to a public poll published this week.

Almost half the commercial dairy farmers in the United States are expected to go out of business by 1980.

Playhouse to Present Medieval Farce

"Ralph Roister Doister" which is generally acclaimed the first "true English comedy" will be presented Homecoming weekend, October 24, 25, and 26 in a outdoor setting. "Roister Doister"written by Nicholas Udall in 1547 is acclaimed the first "true comedy because it is probably the earliest secular play we possess in which there is a conscious, sustained and unified dramatic plating, the careful tangling and untangling of a stage story.

The story is that of the wooing by a lovesick and confident boaster, Ralph Roister Doister (John Gossett), of Time Christian Custance (Marikay Sanders), whose heart has already been given to Gowin Goodluck (Carl Swenson), a merchant whose business keeps him much away at sea. The complicating force in the play is Merrygreek (Mark Mertz), a parasite. More and more as the action advances this character proves Ralph Roister Doister to be a gull. Ralph first sends to Time Custance and old nurse of hers, Margery Mumble Crust (Nancy McCleary), with a letter, then one of his own servants, Dobinet Doughty (Dave Haimbach) with a ring and token and finally he sent Merry greek, who is to bring back an answer indicating the Dame's willingness to be "wedded on Sunday next." Merrygreek, by changing the punctuation misreads Ralph's letter to Dame Custance, and further complications arise when a servant, Sim Surresby (Wayne Dansbury) sent by Goodluck misreads the relation between Ralph and Custance, and replies rather curtly when the latter speaks of sending a token to his master. An attempt, to carry off the lady by force, suggested to Ralph by Merrygreek, results in boaster's being completely routed by the Dame's maidservants with scuttles and brooms. Gowin himself returns, however; there are explanations all around, and Ralph and Merrygreek join in the wedding festivities. The characters jolly, spirits and love of song, add materially to the whole. Others in the cast are: Patty Sanford as Tibet Talkapace; Trish Damon as Annot Abyface; Joe Carnavale as Tristram Trusty; Stanley McCleave as Harpax and Randy Hunter as Tom Truepenny. The play is directed by Steven Yuhasz as partial fulfillment for Independent Studies. CIV credit will be given at the 9:20 performance on Friday, October 25, 1974.

Breakdown of Activity Fee

Student Activity Fee Figures for the 1974-75 academic year are not available; however, a listing of last years are available for public information.

Student Activity Fees for the 1973-74 academic year were $52.50 per student. These fees amounted to approximately $35,000. The breakdown of monies is as follows.

Current Athletics	$12.00
Permanent Equipment for Athletics	5.00
Artists Series	3.00
Chilhowean	6.50
Forensics	2.00
Highland Echo	3.00
Lecture Series	2.00
Student Handbook	2.00
Social Committee	.50
All-College-Council	1.00
Mens & Womens Student Governments	.50
Chaplain	1.00
Student Enterprises	5.00
Post Office Box Rentals	2.00
Uncommitted (Contingency Fund)	7.00

As of now, Mr. McDade has said that the Ways and Means Committee is accepting budgets and desired changes for this year.

English Proficiency Test

The English Proficiency Examination (See 1974-1976 Bulletin, p. 62) will be given in Anderson 214, from 1:00 to 2:30 p.m., on Thursday, October 24. This test is only for new transfers wishing to take independent studies later this year and for upperclass students who are making up a previous failure. The Registrar's Office must have evidence that a student has passed this test before he undertakes independent studies.

Anyone who wishes the help of a dictionary during the test is to bring one for his own use.

From the Chaplin's Office

Mr. Doug Mitchell, Dean of Admissions at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, will be on campus the afternoon of Tuesday, October 22 and the morning of Wednesday, October 23. If you are interested in theological study and would like to talk to Mr. Mitchell, please contact the Chaplain's Office for an appointment.

The Community Outreach Committee has been asked to help collect money for UNICEF again this year. They have been assigned the Belmont and Sevier Heights subdivisions off Sevierville Road. Student volunteers will go out at 3:00 p.m. on Sunday, October 27. If you would like to participate, please contact Sue Leibundguth or Art Fowler. Transportation will be furnished.

Vespers

Vespers this Sunday, October 20, will be an all musical vespers at 7:00 p.m. in the Little Chapel. Come and sing your favorite folk songs and hymns.

Guest Viewpoint

Too Small To Make A Difference

by Tom Martin

What is an education for? Of what use is an institution of higher learning? What do we find around us today: One sees the possibility of war if oil exporting countries do not lower prices. There is new evidence everyday that we have delivered a new below-the-belt punch to our environment—where the problem lies not when that opponent fights back but what if we win. We find soaring inflation where the black, the poor, and the elderly are victimized. Science and medicine are offering new models for our bodies and our being when we haven't even read the operating manual for the old ones. We live in a country that can not understand why the rest of the world won't cut us the biggest slice of their resources.

So what does education say today? For the most part "get a job". Even Maryville is shifting an emphasis to: "What can you do with a liberal arts degree?" As one of my favorite people on this campus said, "Colleges aren't making a difference in society anymore." No they are not! How can they if they are vocation oriented or merely strive for a higher ideal to be found by each individual?

Could it be that it is up to us not to get an education but to make a difference? College students are probably the most wasted group of human potential and enthusiasm. But we are all busy getting out Tabla Rasa written on by well meaning information passers or by ourselves. To quote Alvin Toffler, "Conservatives tend to look upon students as parasites, eating up community resources without contributing anything productive in return. Liberals leap to defend the youth by terming them 'investments' in the future. Both notions are insulting."

As Margaret Mead has said we are in a society where the older generation no longer has the answers to the problems of today. But let no one, no one young or old think that this lessens the elders' importance. They have the power and the structure. Their help is needed in using that power to make the answers of those without it workable.

Where does this leave us? Robert Theobald has suggested that "some of us must decide to define ourselves as world problem solvers." Well let's get on with it! It can be done. Think of the creative problem solving that could be carried out if every college and university would start in January and organize its students and efforts not around subjects and disciplines but litter in Now Town. Real problems—the aging, crime, the cities, pollution, and alternate life styles (which are so desperately needed but which you can't learn in a classroom). We need new problem solving mechanisms and ways of organizing interested groups of people to get things done. We have to be courageous enough to experiment in order to find them. Across the country students have paid for a place to live for the rest of the year couldn't they be given (or better yet let them decide for themselves) something to do that makes a difference. Let faculty and administrators become organizers and facilitators. We need you.

Do we have the courage to make difference? We had better because time is short. As students we better live up to the challenge if somebody does give us a chance. This is what striving for a higher ideal might mean. I think if this is the way we go about it, students will then find a new meaning for persons, the historical perspective, the classics, book learning, laboratories, bodies of information and life. But in a framework of action that makes a difference. Could it be that we have made our definitions of education or ideal too small?

Letters to the Editor

Football, Football, Football....

To the editor:

I believe that the "ex-football fan" made several valid points in his/her letter:

1. the football players are allowed to take more than one main course or dessert at one time and are frequently admitted to the dining hall without the required ID card. People in intramurals etc. who are equally inconvenienced by carrying IDs and are equally exhausted physically are not permitted to do so.

2. Football is a very expensive sport for a small school. Maryville College is simply not large or wealthy enough to produce a number one team for lack of recruiting funds etc.

3. Academic standards here have fallen. Required library hours and tutoring sessions for football players seems absurd for mature college students.

4. The soccer club is trying very hard to be a fall sport at Maryville. If football was not so costly perhaps these men who work equally hard at practice and under unfavorable conditions financially would be able to get some school support. These athletes, along with the rest of the athletes on campus, need as much nutrition as any football player. Yet, they are not privilaged as far as serving their own dessert and not carrying ID cards. These points sound ridiculous and trivial but the point is that the rules are for everyone - yet some are not required to be equally inconvenienced. The solution in the dining hall at least seems simple - the same rules apply to all and sufficient food must be offered through the entire meal hour. The solution to the problem of funds for the sports program is not so simple, but I feel it could be more fairly distributed among athletes. It takes quite a bit of dedication to be in any sport, and when being involved takes a sizable chunk out of your personal budget, it takes something extra.

Kathy Devey

Organs Needed

To the editor:

Please note the article, "Transplants are common: now it's the organs that have become rare", in the N. Y. Times Magazine, Sunday, Oct. 13, pp. 56ff.

There are about 8,000 persons per year who go on hemodialysis, hoping for a kidney transplant. Most do not have eligible live donors and must wait for a cadaver donated organ. The waiting list grows because there are not enough organs available.

The student body (sorry about that) can help by doing as thousands have done, and as I recently did. Sign up to be an organ donor. Your state's driver's license may have a form on which you can indicate that you are an organ donor (Tennessee's licensea have such an option). You may specify which organs you wish or do not wish to donate. I simply signed my name and got two adult friends to witness my signature. If your driver's license does not have such a form, we can obtain for you a card to carry, under the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act, from the National Kidney Foundation. I hope to have some cards, soon.

In the event of your death by trauma, you may still be able to give life to someone.

I hope you and I live to be "a hundred". You know the odds, though. So, be an organ donor. I will be very happy to talk about this to anyone.

"Transplant kidneys, don't bury them."

Sincerely,
Dave Cartlidge

To the Editor:

After three years at Maryville College I have finally discovered that I am not a member of a community which consists of administrators, faculty members, students, and staff. Instead, I am part of a corporation. As such, what am I? Could I possibly be a stockholder? I have contributed to the financial well-being of this corporation through the varied and many fees which I have paid over the years. But if I were a stockholder I would have documents to that effect

